THE DAILY WORKER

ROLL 11

APR 27 1927

TO

AUG 20 1927

GRAPHIC MICROFILM SERVICE INC
7 DEY ST NEW YORK N Y

HANDS OFF CHINA! WITHDRAW TROOPS AND BATTLESHIPS!

THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHES THE CONSTITUTION OF THE COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL AND THE PROGRAM OF THE COMMUNIST PARTY OF THE U. S. A. (SECTION OF THE C. I.)

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 89. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $5.00 per year. NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, APRIL 27, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

Current Events

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

PRESIDENT MACHADO of Cuba is in Washington and Calvin Coolidge posed for a picture with Wall Street's Cuban overseer. Machado deserves good treatment and no doubt he will be entertained royally while visiting his paymasters. This great democracy of ours is certainly hanging up a fine record these days. Supporting this murderer of Cuban workers, encouraging bandits and assassins to make war on the Mexican government, tieing the hands of the Nicaraguan liberals while their enemies shoot them and helping to crush the Chinese revolution.

• • •

THE capitalist system does not seem to be a decided success in Japan. The government has declared a moratorium on account of the financial panic. Yet despite this situation there are rumors that the new cabinet is contemplating a more aggressive policy in Japan. The deeper the capitalist system goes into the puddle the more desperate they become. Perhaps England may help out their former ally with a little cash tho John Bull is not as solvent as he used to be.

• • •

WE hear little or nothing of financial stringency in the Soviet Union nowadays, from capitalist sources. The fact is that the Soviet Union is doing very well and that the living conditions of the masses are improving. The peace that prevails throughout that mighty country is not due to the presence of armed forces. It is due to the fact that the people know they have a government which is truly theirs and that it always considering ways and means of making life better for them. Tho the government is obliged to spend considerable money on defense it is increasingly able to appropriate large sums for developing industry.

• • •

IT was rather disappointing for the British Daily Mail banquet team that James Ramsay MacDonald who was brought over from London at considerable expense to grace the boards on the occasion of the thirtieth anniversary of the yellow sheet, could not appear owing to illness. However the assembled guests were assured by Mr. MacDonald's daughter that the British Labor Party is now quite popular and that the better "classes" can belong to it without having to fumigate their clothes after having attended a labor party meeting. It is no longer a class party, it is an all-class party.

• • •

THE rift in the lutes of Aimee MacPherson's Angelus Temple orchestra have widened to such an extent that the lutes and their operators departed. Aimee deserves to be an unhappy in the selection of choir conductors as in her choice of radio operators. The choir leader left with his orchestra and organized another church. He is of the opinion that Aimee is not near enough to god to suit her ex-orchestra leader. We are afraid Aimee would have more unity among her assistants if she were as generous with her coin as she is with her prayers.

• • •

THE Truth Seeker, a so-called "rationalist" weekly, is worried lest the general public becomes convinced that freethinker and Communist are synonymous terms. Because Communists are not accustomed to carrying around antique superstitions in their mental garrets, the impression is prevalent that all those who deny or doubt the existence of a personal deity are revolutionists. Nothing could be farther from the truth, insists the Truth Seeker, in the following language: "The freethinker is not concerned so much with the trifling governments of certain sections of the earth; he is rather chiefly concerned with the government of the universe. He may be a democrat, republican, socialist or even occasionally an anarchist or monarchist. In every case, if persistent, he upholds libertarian principles."

• • •

THIS is very nice and comforting for the ruling classes, who do not mind in the least if skepticism and religious doubt pervade the social atmosphere in which the upper classes do their thinking such as it is. But it is a serious matter if free thought is unhitched from its marriage with pure atheism and used as an instrument to open the minds of the workers to the connection between organized religion and the capitalist system. A bourgeois atheist will tolerate a lot of superstition rather than jeopardize the interests of the best of all possible systems—for him.

• • •

THE Earl of Athlone, governor-general of South Africa, accompanied by several titled ladies, is making a

(Continued on Page Three)

THOMPSON USES DEVER'S STRIKE BREAKING COPS

New Chicago Mayor Has Police at White Plant

By CARL HAESSLER.

CHICAGO, April 26.—The new administration of Chicago under Mayor William Hale Thompson is handling the first labor dispute since its inauguration in the old strong-arm fashion. In the downtown block where the White Printing House has its plant 37 uniformed police on foot, 8 mounted police and an indeterminate number of plainclothes men are massed at noon and almost 100 at nite These city policemen are enforcing a federal injunction against 5 printing trades unions that are fighting a lockout.

Changed Its Name.

The White plant changed its name from the Regan Publishing House, extended the work week from 44 hours to 48 and went from union to open shop, practically overnight. It had been a union house for 30 years.

In granting his drastic injunction U. S. Judge James H. Wilkerson, a Harry Daugherty crony, recites that the company does a normal business of $1,900,000 a year employing 300 men and 50 women. He complains that instead of reporting to work on an open-shop basis when notices had been posted by the company "these employes did not return to their former employment" but formed a conspiracy, picketed the place and made it hot for strikebreakers. The company, the injunction order reads, "is suffering irreparable damage."

Anti-Labor Judge.

Wilkerson, who was the author of the knock-out injunction against the railroad shop crafts in the national strike of 1922, forbids in the present case (1) all picketing either about the premises or on the way to and from work; (2) all loitering; (3) all threats, menaces, calling of scab or assaults; (4) all offensive language; (5) all boycotts; (6) all display of signs branding the White products as unfair to labor; (7) all interference with the hiring of new men, and (8) all advice or encouragement to do any of the things thus prohibited.

The unions with their officers and members enjoined by Wilkerson are Typographical No. 16, Pressmen's 3 and 4, Bookbinders' 8 and 30. Several pickets have been arrested.

Imported Scabs.

The scabs are almost entirely imported from outside Chicago. A few local strikebreakers pulled out after the first night. The out-of-town men are being quartered for the most part in the building. Cots, a rooking stove and considerable quantities of food have been conveyed in. The health department is investigating the resulting unsanitary situation.

The company's output since April 18 when the lockout began has been slim and a number of publications have withdrawn their magazines, switching them to union houses. A hearing on the injuction is slated for April 28. The federal court took jurisdiction because the printing house, on reorganizing, cannily incorporated in Delaware.

Modify Dairy Embargo To Permit Ontario Milk

WASHINGTON, April 26—The embargo against milk and cream from Canadian territory within a radius of 200 miles of Montreal, established on March 26 by the Department of Agriculture because of a typhoid fever epidemic, was modified today.

The change in the embargo permits milk and cream produced in this section of Ontario to be brought into the country, but the embargo remains in force in all territory of the Province of Quebec included in the original embargo.

Sarwat Pasha, Premier Of British, Ruled Egypt

LONDON, April 26.—A new Egyptian cabinet has been formed with Sarwat Pasha as President, the Exchange Telegraph Cairo correspondent reports.

39 Miners Killed in Month.

SCRANTON, Pa., (FP) April 26.—Thirty-nine anthracite miners were killed last March, one to every 15,615 tons mined.

An Echo From Grave, Kerensky, Heard Again

Kerensky and Mother Jones, Both in Chicago

CHICAGO, April 26.—Two figures of the past have arrived in Chicago. One is still looking vigorously and hopefully to the future as she has always done. The other flitted across the world stage for a brief and turbulent moment 10 years ago and now is forgotten except as he forces himself upon grudging newspaper notice now and then. The first figure is the venerable Mother Jones, of the American coal miners, who said goodbye to Chicago friends on her way to live in California. She spoke with great relish of the old fighting days of the miners' union and predicted that its glory would return.

The other is the bedraggled Alex Kerensky, lawyer-premier of revolutionary Russia until the workers and peasants pushed him aside. He has not been in Russia since 1917 but he informs all and sundry that the Soviet government is still tottering. As a newspaper paragrapher remarked after the first few years of such predictions: "Soviet Russia has tottered over most of her enemies and is still tottering strong. If we ever see her tottering our way we'll take to the tyrolene relief."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Cleanrrs and Dyers Win.

NEWARK, N. J., (FP) April 26.—A $3 weekly wage increase is won in a new agreement by 200 unionized cleaners and dyers.

Four Firemen Injured.

Trapped by a falling wall, four firemen were injured today in a blaze that destroyed a five story building of the Universal Feed and Milling Company, foot of Sixteenth Street in West New York. A second building suffered heavy damage.

Merchants Fight, Bath Die.

APPLETON, Wis., April 26.—Adam Oreck, 40, died today from a bullet wound inflicted by David Fleischner, a business competitor. Fleischner entered Oreck's store and after a brief argument fired two shots at Oreck, Fleischner then killed himself.

20 Cartoons by Bales, Becker, Ellis, Gropper. Bales and Vose—May 1

The Special May Day Number of The DAILY WORKER will be the most attrartive issue yet published. It is to be an anti-imperialist and Hands Off China issue. The cartoons alone make the May Day number something to delight the eye and stimulate thot. No less than 20 cartoons by Gellert, Gropper, Ellis, Becker, Bales and Vose will be published in the eight page supplement which augments the usual six-page issue for May Day.

Articles by Robert W. Dunn, Scott Nearing, William Z. Foster, H. M. Wicks, T. J. O'Flaherty, Jay Lovestone, William F. Dunne and other well known labor writers on various phases of the class struggle will be featured.

Wire in your order!

Coolidge Rattles the Saber

"We feel a moral responsibility for the countries north of Panama. WE HAVE UNDERTAKEN TO DISCOURAGE REVOLUTIONS. THIS TERRITORY IS RICH IN NATURAL RESOURCES. We have large and peculiar interests there.

(—Calvin Coolidge, president of the United States, speaking to the banquet of newspaper editors in the Hotel Biltmore, Monday, April 25.)

With the above statement as his text President Coolidge, addressing representatives and owners of powerful capitalist organs, glorified the bloody and tyrannical deeds which Secretary of State Kellogg and other underlings have been encouraging and subsidizing in Mexico and Nicaragua.

Coolidge put forward and defended the theory wherever there is oil, for instance, or any other valuable natural resource, and a population to be robbed, American government's natural duty is to open up these profitable fields to American investors—no matter what the cost may be in the lives of workers and farmers—at home and in the occupied areas—whose duty in turn is to support every act of government abroad without criticism or complaint.

Toward the struggling Chinese workers and peasants Coolidge showed the same cold-blooded and businesslike hostility. He explained, with a cynical hypocrisy that only a New England Puritan training and ancestry can produce, that the bombardment of Nanking and the slaughter of unarmed Chinese was due to "a humanitarian desire for the universal reign of law."

Undoubtedly making a public justification of the attempt of the state department in relation to the Mexican question to debauch entirely the great press services—an incident which shocked even hardened capitalist journalists—Coolidge stated calmly that "it was natural that the press should represent the government under which it lives."

The utterances of Coolidge, taken in connection with the known contempt of his administration for the ordinary decencies of civilized intercourse when questioned as to foreign policy and the scandalous stream of lies and deceptions emanating constantly from the state department, can be interpreted as nothing else than defiance of every person in the United States who is against the warlike imperialist policy pursued in Latin-America and the Far East.

Coolidge is following a war policy. Naval and military mobilization would be proof enough but there are in addition the wreckages of popular governments in Nicaragua, the fomenting of bestial outrages like the recent one in Mexico and the mangled bodies of the Chinese population of Nanking.

Coolidge talks like a warlord. His utterances are reminiscent of those of Kaiser Wilheim and altho he carries no saber saber-rattling formed an undertone to his speech.

From the workers and farmers of the United States must come the answer to the Coolidge challenge.

Smash the war plots!

Get out of Latin-America!

Withdraw all armed forces from China!

Let Coolidge, if he is bent on becoming the hangman of liberation movements everywhere, enlist along with the fat-paunch bankers and industrial lords from whom he now takes his orde.s.

American workers will not become the executioners of their fellows in lands Wall Street has "peculiar" interests.

SOCIALISTS BAR CLEVELAND FROM SACCO MEETING

CLEVELAND, April 26.—The socialists of this city, who up to the present have refused to do anything for the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti have suddenly discovered that they are facing the electric chair.

They called a conference that was a very exclusive affair; only socialist party branches (two of them), the State secretary, Mr. Willert, who represented his union, the metal polishers, and Workmen's circle branches were seated.

Everybody else was excluded; they were not "koshrr"—and Sacco and Vanzetti shall be saved only by the hands of the blessed.

Ban 30 Delegates.

The conference took place at the office of the Garment Workers' Union. There were 15 delegates from the above-named organization who were seated, while nearly 30 other delegates were told that the night air was fresh and inspiring.

Carl Hacker, secretary of the I. L. D., was given an opportunity to speak in the name of the International Labor Defense. He did not stop at the statement, but told them how criminal it was to divide the forces that should be united to carry on the fight. Nothing availed: the outcasts must go.

Chairman Kreindler was not abashed: "If you don't get out, I'll have the janitor put you out." The next thing he would have called the police.

(Continued on Page Three).

NO COMMISSION FOR SACCO CASE FULLER'S EDICT

(Special to The DAILY WORKER)

BOSTON, April 26.—Governor Fuller will not appoint a formal commission to review the new evidence in the Sacco-Vanzetti case, a Frderated Press correspondent was informed here today.

From sources rlose to the governor at the State House, this announcement was mode today, ending apparently all speculation as to the personnel of the board for whirh labor bodies repre-enting millions of workers had appealed. Members of the law faculties of Harvarri and Dartmouth and dozens of other noted legal experts have also asked Fuller to name a nommission to review all the evidence.

Not Formally Ordered

Governor Fuller, however, has not yet formally ratified the death sentence imposed on Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti by Judge Webster Thayer, whose virious partiality and prejudice have been repeatedly challenged by jurists. Instead he may ask the warden of Charlestown State Prison and the attorney general of Massachusetts to look into the case, and submit a report to him.

Another high light in the case is the decision of the governor in the requested reprieve of Celestino Madeiros, who has confessed he was in the bandit car at Soqh Braintree when two paymasters were robbed and killed. Madeiros, a member of the Morelli gang, has practically im-

(Continued on Page Two)

U. S. GUNBOAT SHELLS CHINESE; PLANES AND SUBMARINES RUSHED

154 Imperialist Warships Ready for Attack on Nationalists; Browder Sends Appeal

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—American guns bombard Kiangyin. Chinese losses unknown.

2.—Twelve American military planes arrive at Shanghai; flotilla of submarines arrive at Hongkong; 154 imperialist warships ready for attack on Nationalist China.

3.—Right wing executes five Communists, including two girls, at Canton.

4.—American marines aid Chiang Kai Shek in war against Shanghai labor unions. Turn Nationalist soldiers loyal to workers over to Chiang.

5.—Earl Browder, now in Hankow, appeals to Labor for protest against administration's militant Chinese policy.

SHANGHAI, April 26.—American guns killed an unknown number of Chinese yesterday when the gunboat Penguin fired upon Nationalist troops with her main battery.

The attack was made after the Penguin was accidently hit by a few stray bullets, about eight miles below Kiangyin. The number of Chinese killed in the bombardment is unknown.

Airplanes and Submarines.

The steamship Gold Star arrived here today bringing twelve airplanes for use by the American forces. Two American submarine tenders and a flotilla of submarines is reported to have arrived at Hongkong yesterday.

154 Warships.

There are 154 imperialist warships in Chinese waters ready for an attack on Nationalist China. The fleet is composed of the following units:

Americans, 48; British, 64; Japanese, 29; French, 9; Italian, 3; Spanish, 1. Thirty-seven of these are anrhored at Hankow, with their guns trained on the Nationalist rapital.

Rights Execute Communists.

Reports from Canton state that the situation there is acute Five Communists, including two girls, are reported to have been executed. The right wing is retaining control of the city and continuing the ruthless suppression of labor unions.

Americans Aid Chiang.

American sailors and marines are helping Chiang Kai-shek crush the left wing labor movement in this city. Many of Chiang's soldiers, refusing to shoot down workers at Chiang's orders, are reported to have deserted his army and entered the city in disguise. American marines, who have discovered many of them wearing Nationalist uniforms under civilian clothes, have turned them over to Chiang's agents and to certain death.

Help Raise On Labor.

General Smedley D. Butler, in advising the marines here "not to knock out a Chinaman's teeth because he needs them to eat," congratulated the men "on not using force."

Browder Fears Bombardment.

Pointing out the danger of an imperialist bombardment of Hankow, Nationalist rapital, Earl Browder, Amerirran Communist member of the rommittee sent to China by the Red Trade Union International, has sent the following rable to William Pickens, rhairman of the Hands Off China Association of New York:

"The actions of the American diplomatic and armed forces in China, is making the Amerirran people jointly responsible for one of the great crimes in the history of the armed struggle of imperialism against the Chinese revolution.

"The Chinese people are demonstrating their ability for organization and leadership in crushing the militarists and rebuilding Chinese society on progressive lines.

Must Protest.

"This progress is threatened by imperialist intervention. Thirty-five warships are demonstrating at Hankow against the Nationalist government. Among them are 10 American warships, including the rruiser Cincinnati. This is an imminent threat of armed force against the Chinese people.

"The American people must protest emphatirally against this shameful assault and must demand the removal of all naval forces from Chinese territory and waters. The war against China threatens not only the Chinese revolution but also the peace of the entire world.

Prevent Disaster.

"I urge most strenuous action to acquaint the American people with the true facts and mobilize all forces of the friends of China and freedom to prevent such a disaster."

Anthracite Miners Want Checkoff; Call Lewis to Swear It Was Promised

PHILADELPHIA April 26 (FP)—Demand of the United Mine Workers for the rheckoff in the anthrarite region is the big issue at the meeting of the anthracite board of conrilliation. The onion asserts the rheckoff was verbally promised at the ronrlusion of the anthrarite strike of 1925-6, 14 months ago. John L. Lewis, president of the international organization, and other officers are appearing before the board to swear to the assurances given.

Congress Of Negro Workers Announces Unity With Miners

CHICAGO, April 26.—The American Negro Labor Congress, now in the second year of its existenre, as an organization of Negro workers that is striving to better the conditions of the millions of colored working people through teaching them the principles of unionism and the benefits to be derived therefrom, takes this opportunity to express its views of the present strike of miners in the bituminous coal fields of America.

Many Negro Miners.

There are large numbers of Negro miners in the mining industry. Many are in the unions but large numbers are among the unorganized workers in the mines.

The blow that the operators are striking just at this time will not only hit the Negro miner who is in the union, but it will also hit even harder the unorganized Negro miner who allows himself to be used by the operators to break the strike, because it is an evident fact that if the union miner's wage is forced further down if the strike is lost, surely the unorganized workers will get even less.

Unite Against Boss.

The American Negro Labor Congress is interested in social adjustment in this country, social adjustment through interracial fraternity between working class groups of all nationalities and colors. But we cannot have anything but hard feelings, anger, and strife between, working class people be they black or white, if they allow themselves to be thrown at one another's throats over wages. The workers fall out and fight and lose and the boss adds to his own pile out of what they lose.

The American Negro Labor Congress is with the striking coal miners in this their fight for life. We urge that every Negro bituminous coal miner at once join the union and refuse to work on a scab job. No Negro miners as mine haipers should allow themselves to be transported from other fields to the strike area to help the rich operators to break the strike of union miners who have been working at starvation wages.

There should be a united front of miners of all rolors, nationalities, in the coal fields at all times, but at this time especially. If there is solidarity of purpose and action on the part of the miners at this time, they will win the strike. we are with the striking miners.

Robt. W. Dunn Writes Brilliant Exposé of Civic Federationists

Robert W. Dunn, author of "American Foreign Investments," "Company Unionism" and co-author with Sidney Howard of "The Labor Spy," has written for The DAILY WORKER a series of articles revealing in a brilliant manner the connections between the National Civic Federation, "labor leaders" like Matthew Woll and the various organizations of labor-hating corporation owners, executives and patriotic plutocrats.

These articles will appear in The DAILY WORKER beginning Monday, May 2.

Order a bundle to distribute to your fellow workers. They will thank you for it.

JAPANESE PANIC EFFECT FELT ON STOCK EXCHANGE

The New York Stock Exchange, speculative center of the continent, was cautiously feeling its way yesterday following the sharp break in stock values the day before. Tens of millions of dollars in paper values were wiped out in a sudden break in the market while panicky sales exceeded 2,500,000.

Fifty leading stocks tumbled for an average of $2.81 as compared with $2.98 on October 16, 1926, the last bad break.

Financiers saw an intimate connection between the depression of the Exchange here and the financial panic in Japan. Recalling that the Japanese panic of 1920 preceded the American panic of that year by only a few months, they have been quietly consolidating their position during the last week. In the past two days their activities have been revealed by the sudden outburst of orders to "sell" with hardly any buying.

Ordinarily it will take at least three months for the full affect of the Japanese panic, with its failures and debt moratorium, to be felt in American trade and financial circles. The first flurries, as evidenced on the Stock Exchange, are the preliminary shudders of the financial elements.

Although building remains at high level, figures for the first quarter of 1927 show automobile production definitely at a much lower level than last year. March orders are 10 per cent below last year's. Retail sales, another good barometer, are 5 to 26 per cent below 1926. New York state employment is 5 per cent under last year.

The price level, reflecting in this case over-production, continues to sink slowly to the lowest level since 1921. Even coal prices are dropping steadily, despite the strike. There is no shortage of coal, in fact the Coal Age composite price shows it at $2.11 as against $2.15 the first week of April.

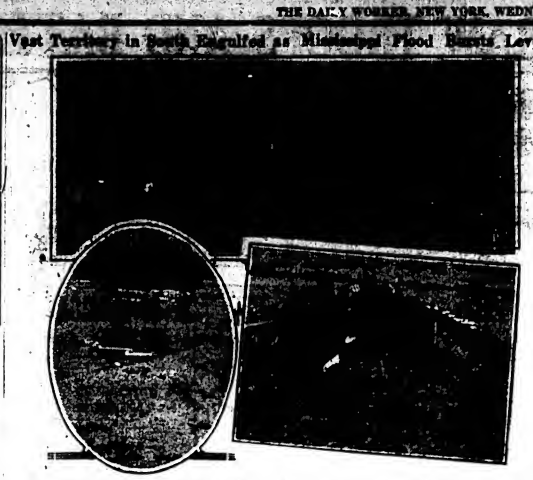
Can't Smoke Out Cal on Third Term Issue, Editor Finds

President Coolidge will "refuse to read" the letter to be published in the Forum, national magazine, demanding that he signify whether he is a candidate for re-election.

This information from the president's secretary at Washington followed the dispatch yesterday of the letter to him. The president also declined to answer 10 questions from a newspaper correspondent relating to the letter.

Henry Goddard Leach, editor of "The Forum", declares that the letter is "friendly and sympathetic in tone throughout, but mincas no words in emphasizing that the American tradition is against a third term."

Refers to Hoover Rebuff.



The letter also points out that President Coolidge's silence already has led to suspicion that he is willing to accept another nomination, if it has the force and aspect of a popular demand, adding, such were the methods of Grant in 1880 and of Roosevelt in 1912.

"Your support is indispensible to another man's success," the letter declares and says "your recent public rebuff of Herbert Hoover has been considered "as a rebuke to the indiscretions of those who support your secretary of commerce for the presidency."

It declares that former Governor Lowden is "asking your displeasure and a rift in the party by building up support for his candidacy among the farmers of the west, but will be powerless against your control of the southern delegations."

Vice-President Dawes, "whatever his ambitions," is compelled to maintain an attitude of quiescence, the letter states, and concludes "you have the power in your party and by silence you can both punish opposition to your leadership and expose to rebuke and failure any man who seeks to lead in your default."

Vast Territory in South Engulfed as Mississippi Flood Bursts Levees

In spite of efforts of thousands of men, waging chiefly under the direction of the United States army engineer department, the Mississippi's great levee system has been giving way under the tremendous strain of the stream's unprecedented flood. The top picture shows last-minute efforts to save with sand bags Reelfoot levee, three miles below Hickman, Ky. A short time after this photo was taken, wind and waves effected serious damage at the spot the picture was taken and warning was issued that the levee, protecting 90,000 acres in Kentucky and Tennessee probably would surrender to the Father of Waters any minute. Photo on lower left shows a house and shed, caught in swirling waters when a levee broke across the river from Hickman, at Dorena, Mo. The break, itself, is pictured in the photo on the lower right. Chickens, geese and furniture are seen piled on the last vestige of dry ground, awaiting a rescue boat. Numerous workers on the Mississippi levees have been reported swept to death. (Exclusive Central Press Photos.)

ASSOCIATED PRESS CONFAB TORN BY INTERNAL ROW OVER POLICIES

Bosses of Public Opinion Fight Over Old Guard Control of Reactionary News Agency

Frank admission that the Associated Press does not aim to serve the rank and file of workers in its handling of news was made by Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, at the annual meeting which about a thousand newspaper owners attended at the Waldorf hotel Monday and Tuesday.

Answering the declaration of the head of a competing news service that the point of view of the reporter is only the point of view of the paper and that newspapers may be grouped as having interests with the capitalists or with the rank and file and reflecting this in the news columns, Noyes insisted that the association of which he is president, the members of which are practically all newspaper owners and dependent upon national advertising, has "no point of view."

The policies of the Associated Press, generally acknowledged to be the most reactionary of the news services in this country, have resulted in "distinct dissent," even within its own ranks, Noyes admitted.

This "dissent" very nearly resulted in a terrific fight on the floor at the annual meeting and was avoided only by the railroading through of a resolution referring the controversy to a committee.

Charges had been made by Victor H. Polachek, an editor, that attempts to bring issues up for discussion at annual meetings had been regularly suppressed by rulings of the chair. He declared that the "Old Guard" which has controlled the Associated Press for many years was openly in opposition to a democratic reorganization.

Declaring the issue to be whether the association should be controlled by 25 or 30 bondholders, Polachek demanded:

"The right of franchise in the political world was once limited to property ownership. Long ago that relic of aristocracy was abandoned. Why should the directors of the Associated Press be so anxious to continue such an undemocratic policy in an organization that SHOULD BE the freest and most democratic in America—the Free Press of America?"

Former Governor Henry J. Allen of Kansas declared that "geology has produced no substance more impervious to outside influence than members of the Associated Press."

Touching on the intelligence of newspaper men, he mentioned as typical of a considerable group, those editors who wanted "more news about the girl who dislocated her spinal cord dancing the Charleston; what do we care about the news from Nicaragua?"

New York's Water Front

News and Views of the Biggest World Port

Foremen Are Used to Terrorize Men

The foremen of the United Fruit especially picked to terrorize the men into complete subjection to company rules and discipline of the workers in gangs and it is their duty to drive them into harder and more systematic efficiency of production thru the means of nagging, rotation, etc.

These man get a few cents more an hour for this work. The foremen however have a good many petty privileges and raise their social and working status for the purpose of drawing them closer to the company. This is only one of the schemes which is used to divide the men against themselves so that the efforts to maintain any sort of union control or solidarity will be broken up.

There are others as for instance the stirring up of the old and sneaky race and color prejudice scheme.

In this way they are able to get more production out of the men because when there is race or color prejudice raised amongst them they will not be making any efforts at solidarity against the tyranny of the foremen and the bosses.

Then there is the bucket and conveyor system of speed up and increase of driving. By this method the company is able to extract the last ounce of weary energy out of the man even at the very end of the terrible day's grind.

This is worked in the following manner: some of the men are sent below into the hold; here the bananas are stacked and then two men are placed on the hatch where the bananas emerge from the hold. The conveyor is then lowered at a terrific rate of speed into the hold endangering the lives of the men in the hold thru its speed of descent and the practical unawareness of its drop.

Pit of Stomach.

Many is the time that writer has felt a terrible emptiness about the pit of the stomach as the conveyor, its or weight descended at an almost unbelievable rate of speed and with absolutely very little warning of its approach so that escape from it was a matter of only a hair breath glance.

When this cargo is raised it is placed on an electrically driven conveyor. This in turn is carried out to the men who are waiting for the cargo outside of the conveyor. They then get this stuff in rotation.

Follow In Turn.

The horror of this system is that the men must follow in their turn no matter how weak or tired or sick they may be. You got to plug and plug until you're ready to drop in your tracks and then there is the ever hanntting fear the forman is around the dock or watching you while you are unawares. The minute that you stop or falter in your work you're fired, no consideration or regard ever being extended since practically a martial rule prevails.

Below Sea Level New Orleans Fears Mississippi Flood

NEW ORLEANS, April 26. "New Orleans fears flood," so the newspapers tell us. They might add that New Orleans always fears floods; the only difference is that now their fears seem about to be realized.

A dread of floods is part of the life of New Orleans, for the city is 15 feet below sea level and is only protected from the waters of the Mississippi by the great levees which now threaten to break under the terrific pressure of flood tides.

Town Sogg).

Whenever it rains hard in New Orleans, the streets are covered with several feet of water. Years ago this water remained until it gradually seeped away into the ground. Men and women caught in a storm would take off their shoes and stockings and wade home.

Recently a pumping system has been introduced. Under each street is a canal; and as fast as the pumps can operate the city is pumped out after every rain. No doubt this system will be relied upon if the levees break; but while pumps may be able to drain the city adequately after a few hours of rain, it is a question how much they will be able to accomplish against a roaring flood.

The Mississippi has no banks to be relied upon to hold its waters. It is a huge, ungainly, roving stream which would just as soon change its course and flow over the city of New Orleans as follow the path in which it has been forcibly confined by expert engineers for many years past.

Breaks Thru.

The levees which protect New Orleans are like walls fifteen or twenty feet thick, wide enough for a horse and wagon to travel on. But a river is a smashing thief, and even before it tries to swoop over the top, it will be slowly seeking some weak chink in the wall and trying to widen it and slip thru in that way.

Such a serious flood as the present one has not threatened New Orleans in many years.

Rescuers Quarrel.

Many new areas odside New Orleans were flooded today from tributaries of the Mississippi rising beyond their banks throughout the lower Mississippi valley. Louisiana was getting its first real touch of the flood disaster when breaks near Shreveport in the Red River levees were reported.

A crisis was expected today in a threatened split between the Red Cross and the Mississippi National Guard over the forceful evacuation of several small towns.

Under orders to move persons from the flooded towns by force if necessary, national guard troops were en route to these towns. These orders were sharply criticised by Red Cross officials in the field.

Flood Near Helena.

Helena, Ark., held its breath today as the levees showed signs of weakening. Helena to date is dry and protecting several thousand refugees, but is surrounded by water.

Cold, half-starved and half-naked refugees, marooned on house tops and in branches of trees in the flood area are being rescued by boats today and taken to Leland, Miss. Some are only semi-conscious from their exposure.

"BIG FOUR" STILL TAKES PREMIUMS THO RESERVE WOULD PAY POLICIES

PREVIOUS EVENTS OF INSURANCE EXPOSE

The following is the fifteenth of a series of thirty articles exposing the fraud of weekly payment (industrial) life insurance. Previous articles have pointed out that there are 40 million weekly payment insurers in the United States and Canada. Mr. Harrison has made specific charges of fraud, misrepresentation, subornation and misuse of public money. Banks, railroads and public utility companies are involved in the swindle. Names prominent in financial and government circles have appeared from time to time. Among these mentioned have been Charles M. Schwab, Haley Fiske, Albert H. Wiggin, Supt. of Insurance James A. Beha and many others.

(Copyrighted by The DAILY WORKER, 1927.)

(By CHARLES YALE HARRISON)

ARTICLE XV.

The following demonstration is unassailable. I have made it before this time to various life insurance officials publicly and privately. The truth of the demonstration is self evident. It proves conclusively that the "Big Four" weekly-payment life insurance swindle is complete, callous and corrupt.

The admitted assets of the "Big Four" are $3,800,000,000 (over three and a half billion). (See N. Y. Insurance Report, 1925. The amount of insurance in force on December 31st 1925 with this combine was a little over $62,000,000,000 (twenty-two billion).

Just to Pay Debts.

According to the statements of various insurance authorities the assets are required "to meet the current insurance liability." That is to say, a reserve must be kept on hand sufficiently large enough to meet all claims, maturities and other payments to policyholders as they come due.

Last year the "Big Four" paid to their policyholders in claims, maturities and in other losses about 216 million dollars. The total amount of premium income from both departments, industrial and ordinary was 424 millions. This, of course, does not include income from rents, bonds, securities, etc. The total income from all sources is $1,026,640,478 (over one billion).

Don't Need More.

The assets of 3.8 billions of dollars invested at a compound interest at 4% for thirty years or at 6% for twenty years would exceed the 22 million dollar total insurance liability, assuming that every policy would be kept up.

What does this mean? Simply this: if every policyholder should die with his policy in full force and benefit for its face death amount, all policies could be paid in full without asking a dollar in future payment.

"Expectancy."

The present assets are great enough to meet all liabilities, for, policyholders do not die all on one and the same day. As pointed out in a previous article, the actuarial tables show that the flow of mortality flows evenly and in accordance to what the actuaries call "expectancy." The average "expectancy of life" is about 32 years after the date of insurance.

The following table shows the expectancy of life from age 20 to 50:

Age	Expectancy
20	42 years
25	39 years
30	35 years
35	31 years
40	29 years
50	25 years

The above figures are based on the American Table of Mortality, which is grossly inaccurate, being based on the mortality returns for the year 1865. It is being used by the "Big Four" in the computation of premium charges. It is more than 50% inaccurate. Its use is sanctioned and approved by the New York State Department of Insurance.

Not All Paid.

However, we know that all policies do not mature for their face values. Only about 15% are ever paid on at all. Last year, as has been repeatedly pointed out in this series, 75% of the terminated policies were lapses. Only 1% were paid as matured endowments and 9% were paid in claims. In the ordinary departments the percentages were higher. This is an attack on industrial insurance.

In effect this means that during the 32-year period of expectancy only a small fraction of the 22 billions now in force will be paid on. The rest will be forfeited at a terrific loss to the tens of millions of policyholders, who are now members of the "mutual" Big Four. Actually about 8 billions of dollars will be required to be paid from one to fifty years hence!

They Draw Interest.

Still these swindling companies have 3.8 billions of dollars on hand today to meet claims and losses which will never amount to more than 8 billions of dollars fifty years from now. These billions of dollars are required, so we are told, for "legal safety."

Apart from the fact that the interest return from these "mutual" assets are grossly inadequate to charges they are incurred. The "mutual" policyholders of the "Big Four" will pay during the 32-year period of expectancy $13,568,000,000 in premiums. This does not include interest.

With interest the following results:

at 3%	$22,896,000,000
at 4%	27,560,000,000
at 5%	33,496,000,000
at 6%	40,704,000,000

In view of the fact that the "Big Four" earn 6% (legally) on their money, the last row of figures are a correct estimate of what the insurance trust premium income will amount to during the 32-year period of expectancy.

They Still Collect.

Think of it! With their present assets disregarding any further premiums, these companies could pay every claim in full as they matured.

In spite of the fact that the present assets are great enough to take care of all future policy payments in perpetuity, the "Big Four" will mulct the American worker insuring public to the tune of Forty Billion Dollars.

And yet they tell us with a straight face that "the net premium is that part of the premium mathematically necessary to meet the present insurance liability" (Alexander).

It Is Good Business.

From the above fabulous figures can be readily seen why buccaneers like Charles M. Schwab, Albert H. Wiggin and their associated comrades in arms are so eager to serve as directors of the "Big Four." One can also understand why the Chase National Bank sees to it that many of its directors are also on the board of directors of the Metropolitan Life. It is quite understandable. It is a profitable business. There are billions of dollars to be invested. These men are interested in gigantic industrial enterprises which require loans and credit.

But what interest have the 40,000,000 workers in continuing a relationship with Wall Street high financiers which results in hundreds of millions of dollars being taken from them in overcharges, outright fraud and slick manipulation? The answer is hard to find.

Possibly some of our readers who are also quixx fiends might know.

Diogen of Nations to Postpone Disarmament Talk Until Next Fall

LONDON, April 26.—The league of nations preparatory disarmament conference will meet again in the autumn to await a report from President Coolidge's proposed tri-partite naval disarmament conference, it was stated in official circles today.

The British official view is that the Geneva conference has done valuable preparatory work and has not hindered the prospects of the proposed tri-partite conference.

Buy The Daily Worker

CHINA IN REVOLT

a new pamphlet

Including the discussion by outstanding figures in the Communist International on the great revolt in China by

STALIN
BUCHARIN
MANUILSKY
TAN PING SHAN

15¢

On China Read Also
THE AWAKENING OF CHINA
by Jas. H. Dolsen.

A complete history of the awakening of over four hundred million people. With photographs, maps and original documents.

NOW 50 CENTS

The DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING COMPANY
33 First Street
NEW YORK

COMPANY UNIONS
BY Robt. W. DUNN WITH CONCLUSIONS BY
WM. Z. Foster

The first booklet of its kind issued. A most valuable study of the growth of a new menace to American organized Labor by a keen student of the problem.
—25 CENTS

On Class Collaboration
READ

CLASS COLLABORATION—How It Works
By Bertram D. Wolfe
A new booklet recently issued covering all phases of this important problem to workers.
—10 CENTS

CLASS STRUGGLE VS. CLASS COLLABORATION
By Earl R. Browder
A brief but invaluable study of the B. & O. Plan, Labor Banking, Workers' Education and other practices of the enemies of Labor to keep the workers from struggle.
—10 CENTS

Read also the two NEW PAMPHLETS

THE THREAT TO THE LABOR MOVEMENT
By Wm. F. Dunne
—15 CENTS

THE WATSON-PARKER LAW
By Wm. Z. Foster
—15 CENTS

Argentina Rail Workers Demand Pardon

(Continued from Page One)

plicated the Morelli gangsters as the criminals. If he dies early Thursday, he will take to the grave with him the most vital evidence in the whole case. He has been reprieved twice and William Thompson, defense attorney for Sacco and Vanzetti, has requested the third reprieve.

Two Refuse Pardon Plea

In the meantime Sacco and Vanzetti, sitting in Dedham jail, are offering the most serious objections to signing any application for a pardon. Attorney Thompson is devising some sort of an application for a review of their case which will not carry all the implications of a pardon plea.

Vanzetti has just asked that the widest publicity be given a statement that he was aiming at one "defense" attorney in the infamous Plymouth trial, for which he is now serving 15 years. In his eloquent statement before Judge Thayer the day he was sentenced to die in the electric chair, Vanzetti referred to a defense attorney who had practically been a member of the prosecution.

The Three Prosecutors

Fred Moore, Callahan, Hill, the McAnarney brothers and Thompson were praised by Vanzetti, who declared that Lawyer Vahey was the traitor. Vahey is a relative of former Prosecuting Attorney Katzmann, who handled the Plymouth case. Vahey, Katzmann and Thayer would gather at the Plymouth hotel in the evenings, going over the case centering and planning the strategy for the next day.

Forty-eight members of the faculty of Wisconsin State Normal school, Oshkosh, Wis., Dr. Calvert Magruder, assistant professor of law at Harvard, Rev. William E. Gardner of the Church of the Messiah, Back Bay and the Pittsfield, Mass., Brotherhood Temple are among the "higher minds" which appealed to Governor Fuller today for a review of the case.

The Railroad Workers Union of Argentina, 100,000 strong, have handed to the United States charge d'affaires at Buenos Aires a demand for a complete and absolute pardon for Sacco and Vanzetti.

Hewitt Must Die.

JEFFERSON, Ga., April 26.—Floyd Hewitt, 16 year old Comanut boy, and son of wealthy parents, today was found guilty of the murder of little Fred Brown, Jr., aged 5, at Comanut, last February 14.

A jury of eight men and four women brought in the verdict at 1:24 p. m. today after getting the case at 11:30 a. m. The verdict authomatically carries a penalty of death.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day.

HOW THE HANKOW PRINTERS STRUCK RAT NEWSPAPERS

Imperialist Sheet For Nationalist Cause

The following story from Hankow was written before the treachery of Chiang-Kai-Shek changed the face of the situation for the Nationalist revolution. This correspondence deals extensively with the printers' strike in Hankow which seems to have enraged the imperialists in China, as much as the strike on the Daily Mail angered the tory government of England on the evening of the General Strike. The growing class-consciousness of the Chinese workers is a guarantee that no matter what temporary setbacks the Revolution may suffer the mighty power of Chinese labor and the peasantry with their allies will bring it to triumph in the end.—Editor.

The walkout of the printers in the newspaper plants of the Hankow Herald and the Central China Post, is competing in news interest with the military situation.

This action occurred on Saturday, the nineteenth. Everything goes to show that it was as complete a surprise to officials here as it was to the newspaper proprietors. The first news brought to official sources concerning it was, in fact, brought by the newspaper editors themselves, protesting against it and asking for government action. The government officials, however, said they could not make the union men work if they did not wish to work.

It was at first believed that the Printers' Union proposed to make some demands on wages and conditions. This, however, did not prove the case. The Union on Monday issued a statement in which it declared that the reason for the walkout was the character of editorials and news articles being printed in the two papers. These articles, the statement declared, were against the best interests of the revolution and the Nationalist Government.

Fighting Against People

"Both of the papers are trying purposely to break the united force of the labor unions and the revolutionary people as a whole," the statement declares. "From what they have printed in their papers we know that they are being utilized by anti-revolutionists. For the sake of the revolution, therefore, we have decided to close these two papers. The printers' union of Wuhan is hereby notified and instructed to call a strike in the two plants at once."

Full responsibility for the strike lies with the General Labor Union of Hupeh, according to the Printers' Union statement. "The General Labor Union of Hupeh is wholly responsible for this action," the union declaration states. "During the period of strike the General Union will pay all the expenses of those who participate in the strike. After we received the order from the General Labor Union a meeting of the printers of the two papers was immediately called and we unanimously voted to obey the order. Strike is hereby declared and the help of all patriotic Chinese is called upon. Unless our end is attained we will not resume work."

Among the foreign population of the city this newspaper strike is looming larger in interest than the Nationalist victories. It is so to speak, the talk of the town.

Mimeographed Sheets

Both the Hankow Herald and the Central China Post are issuing mimeograph papers, on typewriter paper, five or six sheets, single-spaced. They are filled, for the most part, not with news of any kind but with heated articles against the government, which in some cases are childish. Of the two, Hankow Herald is the more truculent. Its editor, Mr. Bruno Schwariz, of six or seven years residence in Hankow, has declared frank and open battle.

The Herald, historically, has been a wavering publication taking on protective coloration with each change of administration here. Chinese of long residence in Hankow have told the writer that the paper's policy under Wu Pei-fu was distinctly pro-Wu Pei-fu. While the arena was still in control of the mid-line warlords and provincial mandarins, its editorial policy, these Chinese state, was strongly anti-Nationalist.

Veering With the Wind

As the Nationalists neared Hankow, however, its tone changed somewhat. During last December, after the Nationalist officials arrived, it was inclined to strike the sympathetic note in its occasional editorials. During the tryme days of January, however, it took the point of view of the British diehards. It again changed, during February, and became more than ever cordial toward the Nationalists.

For the two weeks preceding this strike, however, its tone completely changed. It assumed to speak for the "pure" Nationalist and spoke heatedly against the "radicals." It finally became openly abusive of individuals.

Its columns, always carefully watched by union officials, finally brought about the strike, which is still going on and, from the statements of the Printers' Union, seems unlikely to end very soon.

The Central China Post has been typically die-hard, but much more thinly and faintly than its exemplars, the P. and T. Times of Tientsin and the North China Daily News of Shanghai. It has, however, been consistently pro-British and anti-Nationalist, and has been also consistently abusive. Its entire local news columns have been one large sneer at everything Nationalist. The tiniest news item was not too small to reflect some phase of this grand sneer.

Must Be No Compromise

A series of interviews announcing labor and party leaders here indicates this point of view; in such stressful times as these, with the Nationalists fighting everywhere, seeking with all their might to master a difficult situation here and on the fighting front, there can be no compromise with open counter-revolutionary criticism. The line of the two English-language papers these leaders look upon as plainly counter-revolutionary. The fact that the papers are in a foreign language and are owned by foreign capital, instead of lessening the offense serves to heighten it. These leaders take the line that these editors are, in a sense, guests here. It is not their country, but the country of the Chinese. Chinese are in control of this territory and they are not ready to suffer open criticism from alien newspapers published in Chinese territory.

The printers, in refusing longer to handle counter-revolutionary and counter-trades union copy are merely following in the steps of the printers' union in England last year in refusing to set type for articles abusing the coal miners when the coal strike first opened. What the Printers' Union in Hankow has done here is simply what government agencies in all the warring countries did during the Great War. They have stopped the mouths of newspapers fighting against the great common effort of the warring peoples. This is the line taken by party and union leaders here, in explaining the action of the Printers' Union.

It became known today that, in the case of the Central China Post, the directors have decided that if the strike is not ended by the end of the week, they will try to hire a crew of foreign compositors in Shanghai, bring them to Hankow and get out the paper with their aid. The plan does not seem feasible, however, as while they might succeed in printing the paper it might be difficult for them to circulate it. Another alternative suggested at the directors' meeting was that the paper be issued in Shanghai and the copy supplied it by wireless from Hankow.

So far as is known by the writer, no such plans are being considered by the directors or editors of the Hankow Herald.

JAPAN'S LARGEST DIRIGIBLE

Set up under the supervision of General Umberto Nobile, of North Polar flight fame, a replica of the famous "Norge" has been completed at Kasumigaura Aerodrome, Tokyo, Japan. The dirigible is the latest and largest of Japan's lighter-than-air fleet.

CHILDREN BURNT ALIVE IN WHITE BALKAN TERROR

British Laborites Find Prisoners Tortured

(By Staff Correspondent)

VIENNA, April 26.—On their return journey to London the delegates of the English Labor Party, D. N. Pritt, M.P. and E. C. Wedlwood, received a member of the "Committee for Combating the White Terror in the Balkans and in other countries," and information of the objectives and impressions of their journey.

In the course of a long conversation they made the following statements:

Gallows For Speaking.

Originally they had intended to travel in the Balkans only, in order to rectify at close quarters the allegations of Vandervelde to the League of Nations, and of Wedgewood in the House of Commons, that the present English government was supporting and inciting the Terroristic governments in the Balkans. But as they had learned in Paris that in Hungary, the classic land of the white terror, men were being sent to the gallows whose only crime was the expression of their political opinions, the delegates decided to visit Budapest in order to inform the Hungarian reactionaries of English labor's opinion of their proceedings. Unfortunately they were able to do this only in the form of a protest lodged with the Ministry of Justice.

The first impression the delegates had of the Balkans was news of a meeting of the workers in Sofia which the government, without appealing to any legal grounds whatsoever had banned.

Fascists Terrorize Land.

Their second impression came from conversations with prominent persons of all shades of political opinion who were unanimous that the Fascist-Terrorist organizations, "Kubrat" and "Rodna Zastschita" were the real forces in the land and had unlimited power to carry on their misdeeds. Their high chief and protector is General Volkoff who made a name for himself thru slaughter during the Bulgarian civil war.

Immediately after the strike of June 9th, Zankoff unseated the elected mayor and substituted his own creatures. He also substituted his henchmen for the prefects and police authorities of the old regime. THESE PEOPLE WITH A FEW INSIGNIFICANT EXCEPTIONS ARE STILL AT THEIR POSTS, and hold the whole population in increasing terror.

Women Burned Alive.

Several months before the delegates said they had heard in London of the unspeakable case of the Plevna physician, Bekeroff, who had been burned alive together with his whole family. They told how some people had been unable to credit the truth of this information. Well then! In Bulgaria they were unfortunately able to verify that there was nothing exaggerated in the report. Doctor Beschoff, his wife Sonia, his four-year old daughter Dora, his fifteen-year old son Puju, and the maid-servant were burned alive under the eyes of the Fascist authorities. Only his daughter, Tatiana, escaped with severe injuries. The delegates said authorities advisedly, for the authorities were composed of Fascists and would not interfere.

Government Shuts Eyes.

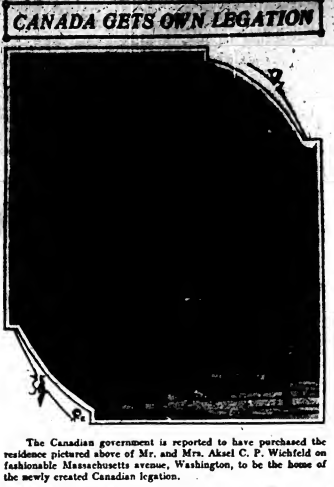
The delegates had a two hour conversation with Minister-President Liapscheff, who declared that so far as his power extended, or the arm of his authority reached, there was no terror; he himself had never ordered it. According to Liapscheff there were only 380 political prisoners in the whole country. On questioning of the Delagates that there were 133 political prisoners in Sofia jails alone, he answered evasively. When he declared to the Delegates that no arrests were being made on account of political opinions, they brought his attention to the mothers who had been punished because they had given shelter to their persecuted sons, and of the sons who were rotting in prison because they had concealed their persecuted parents.

British Aid Terror.

"Why were young Communists arrested merely because of their political opinions?" the Delegates asked. "It is true that they were arrested," Liapscheff replied, "Only not for their own opinions but for the hostile Russian opinions being spread by them." So the propaganda of the English Conservatives had born fruit, even the Bulgarian authorities believe that Soviet Russia is to blame for the bad harvest, the bad weather, the bad prices, the economic crisis and the fall and rise of the leva.

The elections were coming soon, Liapscheff explained, and he hoped to manage the elections in such a way that victory would be assured to the government. In Bulgaria the elections are always managed by the government!

Prisoners Tortured.



The delegates learned the following facts about the condition among the hunger-striking prisoners. Towards the end of the hunger-strike of the political prisoners fearful reprisals were made among them. The prisoners were crowded into narrow cells. The cells are about eight yards long, and in these holes four and five prisoners are herded so that they can scarcely move. The prisoners are allowed five minutes exercise daily; i.e. during the five minutes that their cells are being cleaned out they are allowed to bring the water for cleaning. Even at the end of the hunger-strike when the health of the prisoners was precarious they were systematically "rationed" by the even permitted the political prisoners prison authorities, and it was not to buy food from the prison canteen. Women, who at the end of the hunger-strike, had to nurse back their purposely injured, and were giving health with milk and sugar, were nothing but coarse maize-bread and the so-called bean soup. In order to prevent the succoring of the political prisoners with food or clothing from their relatives or friends, the central prison authorities try to distribute the prisoners in such a way that they are quartered where their relatives can not reach them.

Prevent Aid to Victims.

A group of prominent Bulgarian men and women, among them the chairman of the Bulgarian Women's Union, L. D. Ivanova, as well as the Bulgarian League for Human Rights, have sought thru national and international assistance time of the White Terror in Bulgaria. But the government thru its organ, the Demokratitscheski Sgovor, replied that:

"Any assistance given to those who have fought against us means the strengthening of the opponents of the State." With these words the Bulgarian government puts an end to whatever hopes of relief had again awakened among Bulgaria's thousands of White Terror victims.

CANADA GETS OWN LEGATION

The Canadian government is reported to have purchased the residence pictured above of Mr. and Mrs. Akael C. P. Wichfeld on fashionable Massachusetts avenue, Washington, to be the home of the newly created Canadian legation.

Paris Fliers Are Killed in Crash At Langley Field

LANGLEY FIELD, Va., April 26.—The proposed trans-Atlantic flight of Lt. Comdr. Noel Davis and Lt. Stanton H. Wooster came to a tragic end here today.

While on a final test before hopping off on a non-stop flight from New York to Paris to win a $25,000 prize, Davis and Wooster were killed when their plane crashed while making a forced landing in the water near here.

The plane, the "American Legion," which they were to use in the long flight, was wrecked.

The plane carried a capacity load of 29,000 pounds including the weight of the ship. Included in the load were 1,500 gallons of gasoline, of which 600 gallons were in the extra tanks.

The cause of the crash remains a mystery.

Fata Dogs Fliers.

Fate seems to shadow American trans-Atlantic flight aspirants.

Last autumn Captain Rene Fonck was all but ready to hop off for Paris in a giant Sikorsky when the plane tipped over while taxi-ing across the field and burst into flames, two of Fonck's companions being burned to death.

On Sunday while Bert Chamberlain was flying his trans-Atlantic Bellanca plane at Garden City he lost his landing gear and the great plane was brought to earth safely only by the very skilful flying of Chamberlain.

Ten days ago Commander Richard Byrd and the crew of the plane which he proposes to fly across the Atlantic were testing a collapsible life-boat in the New York harbor when they came within an ace of being run down by harbor boats.

Justice for Vanzetti And Sacco Asked for By the Valier Miners

(Continued from Page One)

VALIER, Ill., April 26. United Mine Workers of America, local 613 has passed the following resolution on Sacco-Vanzetti. "Whereas Nicola Sacco and Bartholomeo Vanzetti, two champions of labor have again been denied a trial trial by the Massachusetts Supreme Court, thus automatically sentencing them to death in the electric chair, and

"Whereas, the American Federation of Labor, at the Cincinnati and El Paso conventions, branded their conviction as a "ghastly miscarriage of justice," therefore be it resolved that this meeting of Local Union 3613, United Mine Workers of America, representing 900 members, requests the Governor of Massachusetts to intervene and give justice in our two persecuted fellow workers, who have devoted their lives to the cause of labor, by releasing them unconditionally from all penalties of this unjust conviction.

"Be it further resolved that copies of this resolution be sent to Governor Alvin T. Fuller, State House, Boston, Mass., to Wm. Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C., and to the labor press."

Pres. Chas. Green.
Sec. Jack Johnson.

* * *

Indiana Workers Have Their Say.

HAMMOND, Ind., April 26.—Carpenters' Local Union 599 with more than 800 members, at their last regular meeting concurred in a resolution utterly denouncing the action of the Massachusetts Supreme Court in upholding the action of Judge Webster Thayer in denying a new trial for these two persecuted champions of labor.

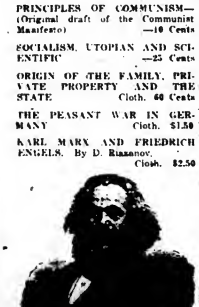
The resolution also calls upon the governor of Massachusetts, Senator Watson of Ind., and William Green, president of the A. F. of L. to exercise their influence in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti.

Similar resolutions are being indorsed by the Central Labor Union of Lake Co., Ind., and other local unions and workers' fraternal societies, throughout the state.

WORKERS! PROTEST AGAINST DEATH OF SACCO and VANZETTI!

Alla Nazimova, noted Russian actress and screen star, signed "single" after the question "married or single?" when applying for her final citizenship papers at the U. S. Naturalization Bureau today.

BOOKS BY
FRIEDRICH ENGELS



PRINCIPLES OF COMMUNISM—(Original draft of the Communist Manifesto) —10 Cents

SOCIALISM, UTOPIAN AND SCIENTIFIC —25 Cents

ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY, PRIVATE PROPERTY AND THE STATE Cloth. 60 Cents

THE PEASANT WAR IN GERMANY Cloth. $1.50

KARL MARX AND FRIEDRICH ENGELS. By D. Riazanov. Cloth. $2.50

Challenge the Dollar Patriots

The minions of American capitalism are daily bringing us nearer and nearer to another world slaughter. In China, in Nicaragua, in Latin America and in the Philippines, the agents of American imperialism are plotting to drown the American people in another welter of blood. The only American newspaper which is militantly fighting against these dastardly schemes of the exploiters, is The DAILY WORKER. The ruling class finds it necessary to attempt to crush The DAILY WORKER, because it openly exposes their nefarious plans and calls upon the workers to frustrate them. This is the real meaning of the case trumped up against The DAILY WORKER in the Essex Market Court in New York, by the Dollar Patriots of the United Patriots' Society, the Keymen of America and the American Legion.

The answer to this attack must be met with all the power of our movement, with all the understanding of its significance to the working class. We must answer blow for blow to the attempt to destroy our chief weapon, The DAILY WORKER. We must meet the challenge of the Dollar Patriots with all the strength at our command.

Money is a powerful weapon in the hands of our enemies. We must raise money to meet their attack. We must raise it quickly. We must exhaust every possible resource in order to save our paper from the onslaughts of the black forces of reaction. DON'T WAIT. ACT NOW.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution o

..... dollars .... cents to the Ruthenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....

Address .....

City .....

State .....

Attach check or money order.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page One)

"good will" tour of South Africa. The object is to give the Boer farmers a good show and thus blunt the edges of the hatred that exists in South Africa for British imperialism since the country was crushed under the heel of British militarism. Earls, counts, lords, princes and other nincompoops, if good for nothing else, make good drummers for imperialism.

* * *

THE Daughters of the American Revolution are suffering from severe soul pains over the indignities heaped upon the historical head of George Washington by writers who have suggested that George fathered more than his country. The tradition of virtue that surrounded Washington, says the "Daughters", is one of the most priceless gems in the casket of American patriotism and to rob American people of this inheritance, as has been done by Woodward, Rupert Hughes and other writers, is a ghoulish act in the opinion of the old ladies. On the contrary we are of the opinion that the first president of our country will rise in the esteem of this gum-chewing, lip-sticky, moon-shine-guzzling generation when it becomes generally believed that George was a human being and not a reformed Elmer Gantry.

* * *

FOOTNOTES to a paragraph: The DAILY WORKER of last Monday appeared with an unforgivable mistake that transformed Maurine Watkins, author of the play "Chicago" into Maurice. As a rule we do not admit our typographical errors, time being almost as scarce as money. But we draw the line on giving the impression that this column can perform biological miracles. Furthermore Maurine Watkins is one of the nation's most prolific debunkers and we have rarely heard of a Maurice being good for anything but "hoofing", or serving noodle soup.

Buy The Daily Worker Special May Day Issue

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, Except Sunday.
26 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1556

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only):	By mail (outside of New York):
$6.00 per year	$6.00 per year
$3.50 three months	$3.00 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 26 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL ..... Editor
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

LENIN SAID:

Not a single class in all history achieved power without putting forward its political leaders and spokesmen capable of organizing the movement and leading it.

(Iskra, December, 1900—"The Urgent Tasks of Our Movement.")

Another Sample of Labor Rewarding Its "Friends"

Again the hoary fraud of labor "rewarding friends and punishing enemies" has turned out disastrously for the labor forces. This time it is the New Jersey Federation of Labor that makes the miserable apology to its membership that it has been "betrayed." The New Jersey labor body complains that it had been promised support for a compensation bill that would increase from $17 to $20 a week the maximum compensation for total disability in industrial accidents and would have increased the number of weeks during which payment is made.

In a resolution adopted at its recent meeting the Federation charges that it was "double-crossed" by the legislators and the manufacturers, who persuaded labor to withdraw its support of a more drastic measure on the promise that the modified bill would be passed without opposition. Instead of carrying out its promises the manufacturers' lobbyists and the legislators killed it in committee.

But even if the bill had passed it would be as impotent to aid those workers maimed and crippled in industry as is the New York State compensation bill which is so involved with legal technicalities that the lawyers and other leeches derive the principal benefits therefrom and the unfortunate worker frequently finds himself not only deprived of the benefits supposed to be due him, but also has to sacrifice his savings in a vain effort to get his compensation.

It is not the New Jersey Federation of Labor that has been betrayed by the old party politicians and the manufacturers, but the working class of New Jersey that has been betrayed by the shysters at the head of the Federation who endeavor to keep alive the myth that labor can obtain favorable legislation from the capitalist political parties and who fight against a class party of labor, because the creation of such a party would force the officials to sever their ties with the old parties or get out of the labor movement.

The Passaic campaign that is now being waged will go a long way toward bringing to an important section of the New Jersey working class the necessity for class political action as opposed to the disastrous policy of "rewarding friends and punishing enemies" in the old parties.

In the Walls of the Kremlin.

The urn containing the ashes of the late leader of the Workers (Communist) Party, Comrade C. E. Ruthenberg, now reposes in the wall of the Kremlin at Moscow. The only other ashes thus far resting there are of Krassin, who died at his post in London. Before the wall lie the other leaders of the proletarian revolution in Russia, who have died since the rise to power of the workers and peasants of that vast country. The final resting places of Lenin, Frunze, Djerjinsky, Uritsky, Volodarsky are there. Millions of workers have in the past and countless numbers will continue to journey to that spot to pay revolutionary tribute to those who lived and fought that mankind throughout the world might throw off the fetters of capitalism—the last slave system that can ever exist.

With the exception of John Reed, who died in Russia, Comrade Ruthenberg is the only non-Russian revolutionist who has a place in that silent assemblage. But it is proper that he should be there because in his revolutionary activity in the United States he was the first of the older of the nationally prominent figures in the Socialist Party who drew the practical lessons from the Russian revolution; he became the leader of the young Communist movement, and remained the most consistent follower of the Communist International to the day of his untimely death.

From the time his remains reached European soil the journey from Hamburg to Moscow was marked by continuous working class demonstrations as the masses paid the respects to the dead leader of the proletarian vanguard in the world's mightiest citadel of imperialism. These demonstrations were of tremendous political significance as it brought home to the working class of Europe the fact that even here, the center of world reaction, there exists a Communist Party that challenges the power of "Uncle Shylock." Some of the leading European working class journals have printed full page illustrated features dealing with the life and achievements of Comrade Ruthenberg. In this way the Communist movement of this country is dramatized before the European proletariat and hearkens them to struggle more determinedly against the servile governments that do the bidding of Wall Street agents in Europe.

While the inscription on the stone in the wall of the Kremlin that conceals the remains of Comrade Ruthenberg marks his resting place, the monument that we must erect to his memory in this country is a powerful Party, many recruits of which we will gain from the Ruthenberg campaign that is now going on and will end with his birthday in July.

Reformist Union Chief Dodging Unity of Labor

MOSCOW, (By Mail)—Among the Amsterdam leaders, as is well known, there is a so-called left wing which supports the demand for an unconditional conference with "the Soviet Trade Unions." These Amsterdamites see no opportunity in condemning the right leaders of the International for rejecting this demand. What is the reason for this position of the lefts? Is there any real desire among them to achieve unity?

This question is excellently answered by two articles of the left Amsterdamers which appeared recently. We refer to the articles of Van-der-Lend which appeared in the Dutch Social-Democratic "Het Volk" of March 14, and the leader in the "Basels Workers' Gazette" of March 9—the organ of Social-Democracy in Switzerland and of the Trade Union Cartel in Basel.

Polite Amsterdamers.

Van-der-Lend's article is in answer to the article of Stenhuis. The latter wrote against an unconditional conference, reproaching the Englishmen for their "impolite" insistence on convening this conference, and calling the Russians disrupationists.

"In order to unmask the tactical game of the Russians,—writes Van-der-Len—the best method would be to convene this conference insisted upon by them. We have no reason to fear that the Russians will use it as a tribune to address the whole world. Have we then no people sufficiently skillful to unmask their game?"

. . . It is possible that unity will be achieved; if not, we shall be able to unmask the Russians and prove to the workers that the Russians are playing their game use the workers as puppets."

At all events Van-der-Lend is of the opinion that such a conference is necessary so that the work of affiliating certain trade union centres to Amsterdam will be moved ahead. Thus, for instance, the Mexican league, for this reason, has categorically stated that while unity is not reached it will not affiliate to the International.

Communists Hard To Kill.

Thus we see that the "left" Van-der-Lend desires only one thing: to unmask the tactical game of the Russians.

The attitude of the Switzerland social-democrats to this question is very interesting. The "Basel Workers' Gazette" in a leader entitled "Amsterdam and Moscow" writes:

"One way or the other, Communists continue to exist in the labor movement. The fact that they are in a different party, in a different organization makes them sufficiently important time after time to menace the aims of the labor movement. This same situation prevails in the Russian Unions. . By refusing to call an unconditional conference the Amsterdamers are only able to keep their opponents outside the International organization, but this does not mean that they disappear from the face of the earth; on the contrary, it is because of this that they develop still greater activity from the outside. This true, is not crowned with great success, but, nevertheless, has many evil effects. In this fashion the aim is lost."

The leader insists on an unconditional conference with the Soviet C. C. T. U. and continues:

"We support the point of view that it is far better to have the Russians inside the International organization, where it will be possible to influence them and where under threat of exclusion they will have to submit to the decisions adopted."

It appears therefore that the calling of a conference and the affiliation of the Soviet C. C. T. U. to Amsterdam is not a means to real unity for the Swiss social-democrats, but simply a manoeuvre—an attempt to make revolutionary propaganda less dangerous, hoping to force the trade unions of the U. S. S. R. to submit to reformist decisions.

They Ignore Facts.

Very characteristic of the authors of these two articles, as well as of many so-called lefts is the fact that the problem of unity ends with the question of mutual relations between the Soviet C. C. T. U. and the Amsterdam International. They completely ignore existing divisions in European countries, completely ignore the existence of parallel revolutionary and reformist trade union centres in France, in Czecho-Slovakia and in Holland, despite the fact that this question, is of central importance. .

The confessions and deliberations of those left Amsterdamers shed light on their true intentions and prove that they are in reality in no way distinguished from their right colleagues. They merely carry on a more astute policy of disruption.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day.

What's What in Washington

President Disliked by His Own Gang

WASHINGTON, April 26. — The President and his small clique of Massachusetts managers are visibly distressed. The enthusiasm with which the public has watched the Borah-Butler debate and the Smith-Marshall query and reply has been a subject of profound grief for them. They view the tendency with great alarm.

The idea of having to meet an issue squarely is one of deep chagrin to them. It is not the Coolidge way. He and they are where they are today because they have so far never been compelled to speak frankly.

To Quiz Coolidge.

It has now come to their attention that a small group of very good and unquestionably regular republicans of the highest rank are planning on giving Mr. Coolidge a heavy dose of the open letter idea. It is learned that there is under way a plan to call the President on the third term issue. It is proposed to have someone of national prominence, of unquestioned republicanism, challenge President Coolidge to bluntly declare himself on the third term controversy.

It will be demanded of him whether he believes in the tradition of a no-third-term, and if not why he does not and if he intends to be a candidate to succeed himself. The challenge will be put in such a manner that he will be compelled to reply straightforwardly. At least that is what is the intention of the group maneuvering the undertaking.

Mr. Coolidge is not above refusing to reply. It is entirely possible that he may retire on his dignity as President and decline to discuss the matter. But whether he answers or not the subject is going to be put up to him in as public and vigorous a manner as Marshall questioned Governor Smith on the catholic church issue.

Await Coolidge Action.

The purpose of course is to smoke Coolidge out on whether he intends to run or not. Presidential politics in the republican party is at a stalemate because of the uncertainty among republican leaders as to what Coolidge intends doing. If he don't intend running, which few of them believe, then they want to know it so they can get busy drumming up trade for themselves or their candidates. If he proposes being a candidate and they can be sure about it, some of them want to know it to be sure that they don't pass up any opportunities about throwing a monkey wrench in his plans.

The next session of congress is going to offer many opportunities for monkey wrench throwing. The President is going to have a hard time in it next congress under any circumstances—but if some of his good republican friends and associates such as Vice-President Dawes, Senator Moses of New Hampshire and others—are convinced that he intends running for re-election, he is going to have a far more difficult time of it.

Would Prefer Silence.

The Coolidge scheme is to maintain silence and to put a damper on third-term debate. Then if economic and commercial conditions remain unchanged, by applying the patronage screws, his managers will blow up a "demand" and he will graciously respond to the pressure to run again.

Fess Statement Untimely.

The plan of these good republicans, who on the face of things are loyal supporters of the President, is to protect just this. They propose keeping the third-term debate continually smoldering. The more statements from presidential friends, such as that issued last week by Senator Fess, ultra-reactionary from Ohio, hysterically insisting that Coolidge has every right to a third term, the better they like it. It can be said authoritatively that Senator Fess's statement did not meet with the President's approval. His idea of a third-term was airight, but the thing that Mr. Coolidge wants most of all right now is agitation on the third-term issue.

Borah Reply Deferred.

By keeping up a barrage on the third-term issue the plan is to arouse public interest in the matter, and then crack a strong challenge to Coolidge to make himself known on the controversy. When Fess let loose his blurb, full of historical inaccuracies despite the fact that he was once a college professor, Senator Borah informed the press that he would prepare a reply. But he was called off for the time being, and advised to let the Coolidge men do the talking for the present.

Fears Congress Action.

One of the proposals that it is intended to give Mr. Coolidge some thinking matter upon is a resolution similar to that adopted by the House of Representatives in 1875 disapproving of a third term for Grant. The vote had a good sized loom until the way that year for another term when the resolution was offered in the House and approved by an overwhelming vote, most of the republicans, among them Harrison, who later became president, voting for it. It ended Grant's plans.

The resolution was actually offered during the last session in the closing days, but it was lost in the jam. It is now planned on reintroducing it next session and forcing a vote on it.

Jealous of Hoover.

The Coolidge outbreak on Hoover last week has added its bit of hate of Coolidge among the Republican leaders. Hoover is Coolidge's most useful and trusted adviser and yet the President never hesitated to turn and snap at him. The way he did it was not only characteristic of Coolidge, but it showed his deep irritation. It is no secret in Washington that Coolidge, although he uses Hoover to the limit, is very jealous of him and his popularity. Recently, when a newspaperman wrote a story, cynically pointing out the absurdity of a political system which made a Coolidge a president and a Hoover his subordinate, the atmosphere about the White House was grouchy for a week.

Gang Dislikes Cal.

Throughout his career Coolidge has always failed his so-called political associates and supporters. He never lifted his hand for a republican last year, excepting Butler of Massachusetts, and he did that only under the greatest pressure and with manifest reluctance. That Massachusetts, his home state, brushed his endorsement aside, added no comfort to his hesitation. This characteristic has come in much secret and some open denunciation. His gratuitous lashing at Hoover fanned the fires anew and many bitter things were said about the Capital.

If Coolidge ever slips he is in for a fierce pummelling. There are many good republicans who hope eagerly for a chance to put in a blow. Mr. Coolidge is without question the most disliked republican president among republicans they have had for a long, long time.

Kenosha May Day Meet.

KENOSHA, Wis., April 26.—A May Day celebration, mass meeting, concert and dance has been arranged by the Workers (Communist) Party for Sunday, May 1, at Tatro Hall, 5148 6th Avenue. There will be speakers in English and in Russian. An interesting musical program, beginning at 2:30 P. M. Admission 35 cents.

May Day Celebration Arranged for Workers Of Cincinnati May First

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 26.—A May Day meeting will be held here on May 1, at 8 p. m. at the Odd Fellows Temple, Seventh and Elm Streets, with T. Johnson and J. Wadl as the principal speakers. A musical program is also being arranged.

Lecture On China.

CHICAGO, April 26.—What are the U. S. marines doing in the Soviet embassy compound in Peking? Why is Chiang-Kai-Shek destroying the labor unions and executing the Communists? Why are the imperialists concentrating their naval forces at Hankow? These and other questions will be answered by M. A. Stoiar in another lecture on the Chinese revolution Friday, April 29, at the Workers' House, 1902 W. Division St. The lecture will be illustrated with stereopticon pictures of China. The Soviet embassy compound, the U. S. embassy, Comrade Borodin and his family, the leaders of the Kuomintang the most important cities, Shanghai, Peking, etc., will be shown. Beginning at 8 P. M. sharp. Admission is free. All who understand the Russian language are invited.

May Day Social.

On April 30, at 8 o'clock the Y. W. L. of Bath Beach St. Nucleus at 1840 Benson Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., will hold a social for comrades and their friends in celebration of May Day. All are invited.

Ask Me Another.

Visitor to the White House says that President Coolidge has the best shined shoes in America—News Item.

Now is there any reason why he should not be re-nominated and re-elected?—Bill Dodgers.

Patronize Our Advertisers.

Let's Fight On! Join The Workers Party!

In the loss of Comrade Ruthenberg the Workers (Communist) Party has lost its foremost leader and the American working class its staunchest fighter. This loss can only be overcome by many militant workers joining the Party that he built. Fill out the application below and mail it. Become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party and carry forward the work of Comrade Ruthenberg.

I want to become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Name .....

Address .....

Occupation .....

Union Affiliation .....

Mail this application to the Workers Party, 108 East 14th Street, New York City; or if in other city to Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Distribute the Ruthenberg pamphlet, "The Workers (Communist) Party. What It Stands For and Why Workers Should Join." This Ruthenberg pamphlet will help build pamphlet thruout the Ruthenberg Drive.

Every Party Nucleus must collect 50 cents from every member and will receive 25 pamphlets for every member to sell or distribute.

Nuclei in the New York District will get their pamphlets from the District Office—108 East 14th St.

Nuclei outside of the New York District write to Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 East First Street, New York City, or to the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

DRAMA

Theatre Guild Plans for Next Season

A new production of Goethe's "Faust," heads the list of plays to be presented by the Theatre Guild next season. The Russian school of drama will be represented by Tolstoy and Turgenev. Shaw too will have a showing, with a revival of "The Doctor's Dilemma."

Of course the list is not definite, but the plays announced by the Theatre Guild from time to time will be chosen from the following: "Porgy," by Dorothy and Dubose Hayward; "All Our Yesterdays," C. K. Munro; "Faust," Goethe; "The Doctor's Dilemma," Shaw; "Much Ado About Nothing," Shakespeare; "The Sea Gull," Anton Tchekov; "The Genius and His Brother," Sil-Vara; "A Month in the Country," Turgenev; "The Camel Through the Needle's Eye," Francis Langer.

Broadway Briefs

Millicent Hasley has replaced Juliette Crosby in the role of "Velma," in "Chicago" at the Music Box Theatre.

The Fidelity Club of Van Nest, will give a theatre party at Wallack's Theatre for tonight's performance of "What Anne Brought Home."

"Six Women" will be presented by the Lepane Amusement Company, at the Frolic Theatre on May 9. "The Night Hawk," now enrrent at the Frolic, will be moved to Boston, opening May 2 at the New Park Theatre.

"A Night in Spain," the new musical revue will come to the 44th Street Theatre on Monday, May 2nd. The production contains groups of Gertrude Hoffmann Girls and Foster Girls in addition to a cast of thirty principals. "Cherry Blossoms," now at the 44th Street Theatre will be moved to the Cosmopolitan next Monday.

"Enchantment," a new play by J. Jefferson Fargeon opens at the Edyth Totten Theatre tonight.

"Spread Eagle," the drama by George S. Brooks and Walter B. Lister, at the Martin Beck Theatre, will be published by Charles Scribner's Sons in May.

Hope Hampton will be starred in a new operetta by Dorothy Donnelly and Edward Sheldon, with music by Sigmund Romberg.

Oshrin and Grisman will produce, "The Girl from Childs." The book is by Archie Colby, lyrics by Phil Cook, and music by Tom Johnstone, and is due here about the middle of May.

MME. VICTORINA KRIZIK

Ballerina of the Moscow Opera, and ranked second only to Anna Pavlowa, has been awarded the title of "worthy artist," by the Soviet govergment.

AMUSEMENTS

Theatre Guild Acting Company in
THE SECOND MAN
GUILD THEA., W. 52 St. Eve. 8:15
Mats. Thurs. and Sat. 2:15
Next Week—Pygmalion

RIGHT YOU ARE
(IF YOU THINK YOU ARE)
GARRICK 42 W. 35 St., Eves. at 8:30
Mats. Thurs. and Sat.
Next Week—Mr. Pim Passes By

THE SILVER CORD
John Golden Th. 58, E. of B'way Circle
Evs. 8:30. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30
Next Week—Red McCabe's Daughter

WALLACK'S West 42nd Street.
Evs. 8:30. Mats. Wed., Thurs. and Sat. 2:30
What Anne Brought Home
A New Comedy Drama

EARL CARROLL Vanities
Earl Carroll Thea., 7th Ave. & 50th St.
Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30

MARTIN BECK THEATRE, 45 St. & 8 Ave. Eve. 8:30
Mats. Wed. and Sat.
JED HARRIS Presents a Drama
'SPREAD EAGLE'

BE SURE TO GET THE SPECIAL ISSUE, MAY FIRST

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN
TWICE DAILY, 2 P.M. & 8 P.M.
RINGLING BROS. and BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS
last among 10,000 Marvels PAWAIS
SACRED WHITE ELEPHANT
TICKETS at GARDEN BOX OFFICE 8th Ave. and 50th St. and Gimbel Bros.

Neighborhood Playhouse
466 Grand St. Dryden 9210
Every Eve (except Mon.) Mat. Sat.
Bill of Lyric Drama

Civic Repertory Cor. 6 Av. & 14 St.
Tel. 9 Stuy. 7161.
EVA LE GALLIENNE
This Afternoon "CRADLE SONG"
Tonight "NIGHTJOHN"
Tomorrow Eve. "John Gabriel Borkman"

Bronx Opera House 135th Street, off 3rd Ave.
Pop. Prices. Mat. Wed. & Sat.
"ON APPROVAL"
The Comedy Success

TIMES SQ. CRIME
Thes., W. 42 St.
Evs. 8:30. Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2:30
with James Rennie & Chester Morris

The LADDER
Now in its 6th MONTH
WALDORF, 58th St. East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT.

These Comrades Responded to the Call for Ruthenberg Sustaining and Defense Fund

J. Yerman; Barberton, Ohio 4.00
S. Weinberg; Phila., Pa. 10.25
F. Tarloff; Bonider, Colo. 1.00
H. Rosenberg; Cleveland, Ohio 6.00
L. King, (agent); N. Y. C. 100.00
Ukrainian Daily; N. Y. C. 100.00
F. Mlanick; Auburn, N. Y. 5.00
F. Lehlki; Fort Meyers, Fla. 2.00
C. D. Brinker; Palla, Pa. 1.00
See. 4, Int. Br.; N. Y. C. 10.00
O. Zimmerman; Milwaukee, Wis. 5.00
L. Zelle; McKeesport, Pa. 2.50
J. S. Masalka; Cleveland, Ohio 1.00
J. Scholts; Dorchester, Mass. 2.00
D. Zolon Subs; 25; N. Y. C. 8.75
Workers Univ. Assn.; N.Y.C. 6.00
C. Lambkin; Detroit, Mich. 14.00
L. Stollerman; Bronx, N. Y. 2.00
E. Perkinson; Seattle, Wash. 1.00
L. Bartoff; Cleveland, Ohio 2.00
A. Mandelin; Mares, Michigan 20.00
S. Smith; Denver, Colo. 1.00
J. Anter; Cleveland, Ohio 10.00
G. Globerman; Los Angeles, Cal. 5.00
F. Zagnestal; Cesport, Pa. 2.00
G. Bloxman; Spokane, Wash. 1.00
Sec. 3, W. P.; Phila., Pa. 3.55
E. E. Raney; Pocatello, Idaho 1.00
L. Lagcessiano; St. Rose, Wash. 2.00
T. W. Pepper; Sanq., Canada 1.00
S. Merton; Warren, Ohio 6.50
S. Johnson; Buffalo, N. Y. 11.50
J. B. Wiesenbach; Wolf Pt., Mont. 5.00
J. Geretzky; N. Y. C. 5.00
D. Rendevavage; Gilberton, Pa. .. 5.00
T. Julio; N. Y. C. 1.00
H. Bruck; Bronx, N. Y. 1.00
B. Brown; Bklyn, N. Y. 1.00
A. Cieselski; Toledo, Ohio 5.00
F. Polin; Detroit, Mich. 14.00
Ukrain. Work. Club; Wheel. W.Va. 5.00
J. Mazzanno; Hoboken, N. J. ... 3.00
C. Lambkin (agent); Detroit .. 23.45
B. Weisbart; Coney Is., N. Y. .. 4.00
L. Marks; N. Y. C. 1.00
S. Sollinger; Chicago, Ill. 1.00
J. Solomon; Los Angeles, Cal. .. 6.50
Dr. Mishg; N. Y. C. 5.00
Shugaitor; Bronx, N. Y. 1.50
Sanz Eye Pharmacy; S. Ber. Cal. 9.64
M. Zelper; Worcester, Mass. 1.00
S. T. Hammersmark; Chicago, Ill. 9.50
Mrs. Sticker; Phila., Pa. 2.50
J. Oswald; N. Y. C. 1.00
A. Weingarten; N. Y. C. 1.00
J. Cohen; N. Y. C. 2.00
O. Berg; Bronx, N. Y. 1.00
P. Babish; West Allison, Wis. .. 5.00
A. Kaas; Decatur, Ill. 4.25
J. H. Greene; Holana, Ill. 1.00
J. R. Jones; Bklyn, N. Y. 1.00
D. Dreier; N. Y. C. 5.00
M. Lorsch; Bronx, N. Y. 1.00
M. Stresson; Central Islip, N.Y. 1.00
M. Mengoli; Bklyn, N. Y. 5.00
M. Spector; McKees Rocks, Pa. .. 2.00
S. Moering; N. Y. C. 10.00

HAT BOSSES ARE BEATEN ON PLEA FOR INJUNCTION

Bolivia Company Bitterly Fights Its Workers

After a trial of hot workers lasting four days, Supreme Court Justice Valente has denied an injunction applied for by the Bolivia Panama Hat Company at 665 Broadway, who sought to restrain the officers and members of Local Unions 2 and 48, of the United Hatters of North America, from picketing its shop which is on strike.

The judge not only declared that peaceful picketing is perfectly permissible, but he also held that "the right of persuasion cannot be enjoined." This application for an injunction was particularly notable because the Bolivia Hat Company asked an injunction against the union, on the ground that the workers had not come out on strike voluntarily, but because they had been ordered to do so by the union.

Third Injunction Sought.

This is the third injunction asked from the courts, by this hat firm since the workers first struck on Monday, March 7. The week-workers came out on that day, in protest against the fact that they were forced to work 54 and 55 hours, instead of 52 as they were supposed to do; and that they had to work overtime on Saturdays, and on Sundays, without extra pay.

This original strike was settled on the very day it was called, the workers gaining a 48 hour week and full pay for overtime. It was agreed there should be no discrimination, for participation in this strike, but on Saturday March 12, one man who had struck was discharged.

Piece Workers Strike.

The following Monday, the piece workers came out on strike in protest against this discharge, and with the demand that their hours and wages also be improved. The week-workers joined in the demand for reinstatement of their fellow-worker—

Celebrate

MAY DAY

With a bundle of a

SPECIAL

of th.

DAILY WORKER

n May Day a Special Issue f The DAILY WORKEL ill be issued.

ORDER A BUNDLE

There will be special articles n the world labor; special artoons and photographs.

ORDER A BUNDLE

A whole section will be de-oted to greetings to the world of labor from individual workers and from working class organizations.

ORDER A BUNDLE

This issue should be brought nto the hands of thousands of workers. Order a bundle for yourself to give away and be sure to order a bundle

FOR YOUR MAY-DAY MEETING

Special Bundle Rates

$2.50 A HUNDRED

RUSH

THE DAILY WORKER
33 First St., New York

Enclosed $... for ... copies of the MAY DAY SPECIAL

Name .....

Street .....

City .....

State .....

Organized Labor—Trade Union Activities

News and Comment
Labor Education
Labor and Government
Trade Union Politics

Policies and Programs
The Trade Union Press
Workers' Education
Labor and Imperialism

Plumbers Helpers Plan to Unionize The Entire City

The American Association of Plumbers Helpers who have been striking since April 1 in Brooklyn are planning to unionize the helpers in Manhattan and Queens.

So they will be able more effectively to carry on their work, the helpers sent a telegram last night to the national headquarters of the plumbers' union in Chicago inquiring what percentage of helpers should be admitted into the union.

It is hoped that a reply will be received in time for tonight's strike meeting to be held at the Church of All Nations, Second Ave. where active leaders of the union will speak.

Their Statement.

The helpers' association has issued a statement to all helpers in Greater New York in which they place the question of a lockout plainly before the workers. How they have been the only unorganized helpers in the building trades, and the necessity of all of them joining the union. The statement says that at present more than 3,000 helpers are members of the organization.

The helpers have a strike song that they are always singing. It is as follows:

We are the plumbers' helpers,
Too hear so much about.
Everybody talks of us,
Whenever we fight hard.

Chorus:

C the plumbers, the helpers,
The union is the thing,
Hey, hey, plumbers,
The union is what we sing.
We are all young workers,
Who fight like hell,
Whenever we go out on strike,
We are sure to win.
We started organizing,
We were only a few,
Organizing, Organizing.
Thousand times two.
We have an organizer,
Who's name is Jimmy Walsh.
He is a good fellow.
And he is true to us.

Woman Sues Judge Rosalsky, Enemy of Labor, for $100,000

Judge Otto Rosalsky, who became especially notorious for his savage sentences of cloakmakers involved in strikes recently, is being sued for $100,000 by Mrs. Mary A. Ledwith.

The suit is being brought against the judge because of his action in committing Thomas A. Ledwith, the husband of the plaintiff, to the psychopathic ward in the Bellevue Hospital. Mrs. Ledwith charges that Rosalsky usurped authority in this matter with the result that her husband was confined in the hospital for three weeks before she succeeded in getting him freed on a writ of habeas corpus.

Supreme Court Justice Edward Riegelmann, in Brooklyn yesterday, reserved decision on the motion made in behalf of Rosalsky for a dismissal of the case.

Supreme Court Judge Rules That Jewelry Workers Can Strike

(By Federated Press)

To strike or not to strike, Supreme Court justice John Ford tell the International Jewelry Workers Union it has the right to strike, to picket and to persuade strikebreakers to join the union. This charter of labor's liberties comes shortly after another New York supreme court justice, Cropsey tells the Brooklyn painters they have no right to strike and that they must withdraw a strike order.

The Jewelry Workers Union was picketing the firm of Dinhofer Bros. when a lower court judge, Isadore Wasservogel enjoined the workers against picketing and enjoined the strikebreakers against joining the union. The case was appealed to Ford. Denying a permanent writ he laid down the following principle:

"Every American citizen," said Ford, "has a perfect right to spread his belief in labor unionism and to spread that doctrine among his fellow workers, especially wage earners, so long as he does it in a peaceful and orderly manner, as in this case."

Commenting on the decision, the president of the Jewelry Workers' district council of New York, said: "Let this case be an object lesson for injunction judges who grant injunctions without a trial upon the perjured testimony of employers and their bulldozed employes."

INJUNCTIONS ARE STRANGLING LABOR IN NEW JERSEY DESPITE NEW LAW

Picketing Measure Has Only Led to Greater Activities by Courts Against Trade Unions

NEWARK, April 26.—Ever since the legal picketing law went into effect last July the organized labor movement of New Jersey has been dealt one hammer blow after another on the part of union-hating judges and anti-labor courts. Last week when the Teamsters' Local 478 of Newark appealed in the Essex county court against making permanent the injunction issued against them, Vice Chancellor Backes made history for the courts.

The court outlined during what hours and the number of pickets permissable that could picket and where pickets, or "observers" as the court calls them, could be stationed. Injunctions and the courts in New Jersey are a strangle-hold against the unorganized and organized workers of this state. The open shoppers and the company unionists with the cooperation of the courts and judges are systematically attempting to break down the existing trade union movement. The teamstere and chauffers are suffering from injunctions against them in Bergen, essex and Hudson counties.

The workers' daily are beginning to see the class nature of the courts thru the issuance of injunctions. Within the past year dozens of injunctions have been issued against local unions in the building trades, cooks and waiters, textile workers and garment trades.

Whenever unorganized trades and workers attempt to unionize, the courts and tools of the bosses always have lawyers and judges ready to sign injunctions. Sooner or later the organized labor movement must take a stand and put up a strong fight against these injunctions and the fake legal picketing bill that went into affect last July. If they do not, the opportunities are slim for organizing the unorganized workers in New Jersey.

Cleaners Get Raise.

NEWARK, N. J.—Cleaners and Dyers' Local 17,800 of Newark has succeeded in gaining an increase of $3 per week in wages. The agreement signed with the bosses constitutes the 44 hour week. Over 200 members of the union are effected by the raise and include all those making less than $40 per week, Morris A. Klein, their business agent declared.

Plumbers Get $12.

PATERSON, N. J.—George M. Mitchell Jr. the chairman of a conference board of the local plumbers union in Paterson announced that the plumbers and their bosses, the master plumbers, signed their agreemnt to pay the journeymen $12 a day.

40 Years Old.

PASSAIC, N. J.—On Saturday evening the Bricklayers and Plasters' Local of Passaic celebrated their 40th anniversary. The membership totals over 400. Representatives from the Passaic trades and labor council, the international union and the state bricklayers and plasters addressed the audience during the banquet.

Firms Escape Heavy Taxes.

ELIZABETH, N. J.—The tax hearing to determine the value of the land and property owned by the Singer Sewing Machine Co., was postponed. Only recently the Botany Consolidated Co. of Passaic lost its appeal in the supreme court to reduce its tax assessment.

The Public Service Corp. and nearly every large corporation in the state of New Jersey systematically seek to evade and reduce the taxes assessed them. These greedy companies make millions in profits, pay low wages and seek to reduce their taxes so that they can pile up more gold in their coffers.

STEEL TRUST MEETING SHOWS GARY, MORGAN'S MAN CLOTHED WITH POWERS OF AN EMPEROR

(By LELAND OLDS, Federated Press)

Power such as old time kings would have envied was embodied in Judge Gary when he opened the U. S. Steel Corporation annual meeting which ratified the decision of J. P. Morgan and his pals to cut a $260,000,000 melon. According to the Wall Street Journal, before the meeting was called to order the Gary management had in its hands more than the ⅔ vote of the common and preferred stock required under New Jersey law to put the 40 per cent stock dividend over.

"The proposal to increase the authorized common capital from 5,000,000 to 7,353,210 shares of $100 par," says the journal, "was passed by a heavy majority. At the start of the meeting the management had proxies for 4,047,883 shares, or 81.4 per cent of the outstanding common shares and 2,882,253 shares, or 74.6 per cent of the outstanding preferred. There were also represented in person or by proxy 3,435 common and 500 preferred shares."

Not Well Distributed.

This reveals the joker in all the propaganda about the wide distribution of stock ownership. U. S. Steel boasts upward of 90,000 individual stockholdere but the annual meetings have become nothing more than formalities at which the decisions of the dominant financiars are recorded. At this meeting the Morgan-Gary autocracy had 6,730,138 votes in contrast with 3,740 votes present independent of the management.

The concentration of ownership of steel trust common stock in the hands of New York financiers appears in the following list of 12 large holdings:

	No. of common shares
U. S. Steel stockholders	66,469
J. S. Bache & Co.	59,358
Waligarten & Co.	54,448
J. W. Davis and Co.	52,951
Geo. F. Baker and family	50,000
T. F. McGowan	47,850
Newborg & Co.	45,000
Gilbert Haldane	40,001
Myron C. Taylor	40,001
L. S. Phipps	30,000
Remick, Hodges & Co.	31,470
Pyne, Kendall & Woollster	28,276
T. F. Rothschild	22,840
Total	523,459

The Wall Street Journal list of some of the larger shareholdings contains 212 individual holdings of more than 1,000 shares of common each. Combined these holdings total 1,314,605 shares. Over 783,000 of these shares are in 32 blocks. These individuals also own thousands of shares of U. S. Steel preferred.

Dummy Stockholders.

Many of the names which appear on the list are masks behind which the big owners hide. This is especially true of the private banking houses and brokers. It is a well known fact that J. P. Morgan & Co., Kuhn, Loeb & Co. and the Rockefeller interests mask their colossal power by the use of such agents.

J. P. Morgan himself is listed as owning 901 shares of common. But George F. Baker, chairman of the Morgan First National Bank, controls 62,951 shares and Gilbert Haldane with 45,000 shares also represents the First National. Similarly Myron C. Taylor with 40,001 shares and Nathan Miller with 2450, both corporation lawyers, are undoubtedly Morgan men. There are also C. F. Anderson with 3500 shares and W. S. Craig with 1450 who give J. Morgan & Co. as their address.

These are merely hints, but they suggest that under cover of a large number of paid agents, who sell the use principally of their names, there exists a concentration of control which would startle the country if it could be uncovered.

40 Hurt When Wooden Trains Smash Up

Forty persons were injured and 400 were thrown into panic when a fire car local train south bound ran into a stalled express on the Third Avenue elevated yesterday afternoon near the Houston Street station.

The local was made up of wooden cars and when the first car crashed into the stalled express the entire forward portion of the car was demolished. The 400 passengers of the local were bowled over and were on the verge of a panic.

Buy The Daily Worker Special May Day Issue

DETROIT'S GREATEST

"Hands Off China", May Day Celebration

SUNDAY, MAY 1st, 2 P. M.

ARENA GARDENS, WOODWARD NEAR HENDRIE

Revolutionary Musical and Dramatic Program.

BEN GITLOW AND OTHER PROMINENT SPEAKERS.

Admission 50 Cents.

MAY DAY FESTIVAL AND DANCE

May Day Evening—NEW WORKERS' HOME, 1343 E. Ferry Ave.

MUSIC DANCING REFRESHMENTS

TORY FUR CZAR SUSPENDS LOCAL IN NEW JERSEY

3 Leaders Also Banned By Reactionary Clique

Local 25 of the International Fur Workers' Union in Newark has received word that it has been suspended by the reactionary International officials for inability to pay a $5,000 debt which was contracted by the former corrupt administration of the local.

Threat of some such action was contained in a letter sent two weeks ago by former Secretary-Treasurer I. Wohl, demanding payment of this debt within 15 days or the local would be denied any representation at the coming International convention.

A committee from Local 25 waited upon President Schachtman to discuss this matter, and promised that since it was absolutely impossible for them to pay this sum all at once, regular payments would be made at the rate of $100 a week. President Schachtman promised to take up this proposition with the sub-committee.

The sub-committee's response was a notice that the local is suspended. This came in the same letter which acknowledged receipt of a check sent by the local last week.

Official Went South.

This debt of $5,000 is owed on account of dues which have already been paid in by the members but were never paid over to the International by the former manager of the local, Milton Corbett. This is the man, a vice president of the International, who was tried and suspended by the local for misappropriation of funds. When he was examined by the Executive Board of the International, he was "whitewashed," but they announced at the same time that he had been suspended as a vice president. His name appears, however, on the latest letterhead on which Schachtman is not only listed as president, but as secretary-treasurer in place of I. Wohl, who resigned.

It was following Corbett's exposure and suspension from Local 25, that a progressive administration was elected with M. Langer as manager. The reactionary International leaders immediately began an attack upon these chosen representatives of the workers, and took out an injunction which they were eventually forced to withdraw.

Repaid Part of Debt.

The local was left with a heavy load of debt when Corbett was forced out, and since then it has paid off thousands of dollars which would never have been owed had they had an efficient and honest administration. The reactionary International's method of helping in this work of housecleaning, and building up a strong, self-sustaining vigorous local is to first attempt to attack it thru the capitalist courts; and failing in that, to suspend it from the International.

The International has also suspended without any notice—three of the active members of Local 25, so the committee was informed when it called upon Schachtman to discuss the payment of the debt. M. Langer, the manager, L. Belfar, vice-president of the local; and J. Schulman, a member of the Executive Board, had been suspended, so Schachtman said.

Sacco and Vanzetti Must Not Die!

Violin and Viola Lessons
Given by expert teacher.
For reasonable rates, write to
JOHN WEINROTH
... SIM LARCHWOOD AVENUE.
Phone Grenoble 7283, Philadelphia, Pa.

THREE SORRY INTERNATIONAL NABOBS OF FURRIERS BOOED FROM MARKET

Workers Cry "Scab, Scab" as Three Musketeers Try to Parade in Center of Industrial District

By HELEN BLACK.

Schachtman, Sorkin and Winnick, three heads of the reactionary International Fur Workers' Union, ventured bravely forth yesterday to the fur market in the city, Sixth to Seventh avenues, between 27th and 28th street.

Cloer Schachtman is president; H. Sorkin and I. Winnick are vice presidents of the International, but it is a long, long time since they saw any of the members of their union. They did not stand the ordeal very well.

"Scab, Scab."

Cries of "scab, scab" greeted them as soon as they were recognized. Hisses, boos, shouts of derision rose on all sides of them as the thousands of workers passed on their way to the shops; and hundreds of others, preceded to the picketing of their shops from which they had been locked out for refusing to register with the reactionary International's "ten-cent" union.

The workers heard Sorkin admonishing Schachtman to "be brave," "have courage." But it was useless. The two of them finally had to run down to the street, where Sorkin at last takes refuge in the hallway of 333 Seventh avenue. In this building are many of the largest shops of the industry, including B. Geller and A. Weckstein & Sons whose workers are picketing. The pickets marched back and forth, back and forth and poor Schachtman and Sorkin dared not come out of their hiding place for nearly an hour.

Sneak Back To Long Island.

Finally police and detectives came to their rescue, and completely surrounded by these representatives of the law, they left the building and went to a nearby restaurant. The pickets followed them and continued the demonstration first in front of the restaurant; then on the opposite side of the street. Schachtman and Sorkin were glad to sneak back to Long Island City later in the morning without further contact with the members of the unions.

Important plans for meeting the lockout of fur workers who have refused to register in the "ten cent union" of the International will be made public at a mass meeting of fur workers in Cooper Union on Thursday night after work.

The meeting will be in the nature of a demonstration against the imprisonment of the nine fur workers who were convicted on a framed-up charge of assault in Mineola, L. I., last week.

Ben Gold and Isadore Shapiro, union leaders who were freed by the jury of the same charges, will be speakers at the meeting.

Ten furriers and four dressmakers were arrested while picketing in the big demonstrations that took place early Monday morning before the shops where workers have been locked out. All were later dismissed by Magistrate Simpson, who declared in Jefferson Market Court that the workers had every right to picket their shops under the existing circumstances, and emphasized that picketing had been peaceful, so that no law had been violated.

Jersey Kills Bill for Raise in Compensation

NEWARK, N. J., (FP) April 26.—The New Jersey Federation of Labor tells why injured workmen will not get higher compensation payments this year. Legislators who had promised to support the bill raising maximum rates from $17 to $20 per week back down when the New Jersey Manufacturers' Association lobby ordered them to. The bill was killed in the senate; the judiciary committee and Chairman Stevens directed the dirty work.

Cops Get Booze.

In what was described as the largest raid of its kind on Long Island, federal prohibition agents and Nassau County detectives last night seized alcohol, mash, and distilling apparatus valued at $100,000 in a 2-story barn on the Woodbury road, 2 miles west of Hicksville.

SEATTLE

Workers, Toilers, Farmers, Exploited Class and Oppressed Nationalities of All Countries! Join the thousands. Listen to the message of freedom! Attend the Monster MAY DAY Demonstration

and CELEBRATION of INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY and the CHINESE REVOLUTION OF THE MASSES

SUNDAY, MAY 1, PEOPLES PARK, Renton Junction

SPEAKERS:

Aaron Fislerman, Shih Chun Huang, D. G. O'Hanrahan, Reginald Mar, J. C. Kennedy, Fotero Efpeca.

Picnic, Sports, Dancing, etc. Admission to All 50c.

Down With War! Down With Imperialism! Hands off China!
Withdraw American Warships From China!
Hands off Soviet Russia! Long Live the Workers' Soviet!
Long Live May Day, the International Labor Day!
Long Live the Chinese Victorious Revolution of the Masses!
Long Live the Coming Revolution of India and of All the Oppressed Nations and the Enslaved of the World!
Long Live the Workers of All Countries!
Hail the Day of Freedom!

AUSPICES WORKERS PARTY.

SAN FRANCISCO

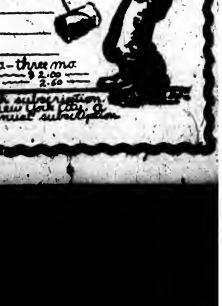
International Labor Day Celebration

at

CALIFORNIA HALL, Polk and Turks Sts.

SUNDAY EVENING, MAY 1st.

SPEAKERS Excellent Musical Program DANCING



Admission, including hat check, 50c.

Auspices, INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY COMMITTEE.

strike a blow for labor subscribe to

THE DAILY WORKER

The National Labor Daily

Name .....

Address .....

City ..... State .....

Subscription rates: one year—six ma—three ma
Outside New York ... $6.00 ... $3.50 ... $2.00
In New York ... $8.00 ... $4.50 ... 2.50

Enclose check or money order with subscription. The Daily Worker will not be responsible for copies of subscriptions that are lost in the mail. Start with next issue after subscription is received.

...iners' Officials Called "Agitators", "Demagogues" By Capitalists in 1874

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

AT SEA, Aboard the United States Liner, President Roosevelt, April 8 (By Mail from Plymouth, England).—This in an oil burning ship. There are no ever... shovels down in the bowels of the liner, shifting ... tons from the bunkers into hungry furnaces. Instead the liquid fuel flows easily and unceasingly to keep ... the fires beneath power-generating boilers.

That means that back in "The States" coal mines are ... idle by the ever diminishing demand for coal, thus ... the problem of over-production and under-... in this basic industry.

... this has never been the biggest problem of the ... miners. The greatest concern of the workers in the industry, since the desire for organization first entered the minds of the coal diggers, has been how to ... the union on a national scale, to function efficiently on a nation wide front, thus ensuring victory ... all their demands. The periods of greatest progress by the union have been characterized by national, centralized, disciplined action. Periods of setback have been featured by localization, separate action against the employers by district, sub-district and even local organizations, always leading to disintegration and decay, sometimes even to annihilation.

Thus the policies invoked by the regime of President John L. Lewis, in the present struggle, merely repeat the mistaken policies in the past when, on numerous occasions, the miners' union presented a broken, disorganized front to the employers.

There are big differences, however, between the present and the past, which constitute a black indictment against the Lewis regime. Some of these are as follows:

First:—The first national organization of the miners, for instance, The American Miners' Association, organized January 28, 1861, disappeared in 1868, largely as a result of the general depression following the Civil War. The Lewis administration has crippled the Miners' Union and made it well-nigh helpless in the years 1926-27, two of the most prosperous years in the whole history of American capitalism.

Second:—In 1868 industrialism in America was just beginning to find itself. Capitalism was only getting a foothold, with competition prevailing extensively, especially in the coal industry. The machine age was just beginning to throw its shadow over the land. Under these conditions the necessity of a national organization and national action could not have been as clear to the coal miners as it should be today, with industrialism at its highest stage of development anywhere in the world, with competition well-nigh eliminated among the employers, who are united in their Operators' (Owners) Associations.

* * *

It is only when these facts are rightly understood that the monstrous crime committed by President Lewis and his administration, in failing to prepare for the present struggle thru the adoption and carrying out of correct policies, can be clearly visualized.

It is such misleaders as John L. Lewis, Phil Murray, Van Bittner and others, not to mention the recently discredited Frank Farrington, that have made it difficult to build the miners' union and make its function as an effective organization of the mine workers. That such treason has existed in the past, as it exists today, has made it possible for Arthur E. Suffarn, in his book, "The Coal Miners' Struggle for Industrial Status," to say that.

"Altho the idea of extending organization coextensive with the areas needing control was conceived relatively early, the path of development to its realization up to the present time—JLE] is strewn with the wrecks of organizations to attain that end. Indeed the attainment of such an end remains to this day a major problem for organized labor in the coal industry."

This should be a warning, even if it does come from a non-working class source. There is no gift of god that will make it possible for the miners' union to live in spite of Lewis, Murray and Bittner. If the coal miners will look around in the other great industries, the steel, automobile, rubber, textile, shoe, metal mining and even the railroad industry, they cannot help but see how the narrow craft viewpoint, aided by the policy of local struggle as against nation-wide action, has wrought havoc with all attempts to build powerful unions in these industries.

* * *

At is of the period, 1860 to 1861 that Suffern writes: "Four years of Civil War, four years of severe business depression from 1866 to 1870, six years of acute depression from 1873 to 1879, a depression again in 1893-97, interspersed by two relatively brief but intense periods of prosperity in the early Seventies and the early Eighties; such was the general industrial setting in which the struggle for collective bargaining in the coal industry took place."

* * *

When the American Miners' Association was destroyed in 1868, the local union had to carry on their struggles individually. This they did, of course, as best they could, in both the bituminous and the anthracite fields, awaiting the building of another national organization. The weakness of the miners, that developed thru individual action, was the strength of the mine owners. The employers refused to recognize the union or negotiate wage scales. When the miners resorted to strikes they were faced by the imported strike-breakers and gunmen of the mine owners, blacklisted or forced to signed declarations of non-affiliation with the union.

The miners gradually thoroly realized their helpless condition and new efforts were made to extend the organization over larger areas. The Miners' and Laborers' Association organized in 1872 established branches among anthracite and bituminous miners in Pennsylvania and extended its activities to Ohio, West Virginia, Maryland, Kentucky and Michigan. About the same time the Miners' Benevolent and Protective Association was organized in Illinois, Indiana and Missouri.

In the following year, 1873, a number of prominent miners from Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania requested the local unions to send representatives to a convention on October 13th. The purpose of the convention was, (1) to consolidate the entire body of miners for self-protection; (2) to afford pecuniary and moral support to the district "forced to the alternative of a strike", and, (3) to devise such measures and advocate the passage of laws in the several states which would provide for the safety and welfare of the miners.

By 1874 there were 224 lodges with a membership of 24,000 represented in the convention, according to Evans' "History of the United Mine Workers of America."

Here was a movement in the right direction. It was not favored on by the employers and politicians, as Lewis and his officialdom are favored on today. Instead the capitalist press and capitalist spokesmen turned their most bitter attacks on the union and denounced the officials of the union as "agitators" and "demagogues."

* * *

The fact that no such bitter invective is today hurled at President Lewis and his fellow officials, should be food for thought for the coal miners.

A bust of Lenin by a Proletarian Sculptor.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Editor, The DAILY WORKER:

S. A. de Witt in this week's Leader speaks at those enthusiastic individuals who, fired by the Russian Revolution and disgusted with the Socialist Party, withdrew and joined the Communist Party. He deplores the activities of the latter, especially when they picture the S. P. as a group of renegades who are known to the world at large as socialists only because they kept their old label—the Socialist Party of America. Mr. de Witt phrases it differently—the attempt by the Communists to destroy the effectiveness of the laboring groups in this country. He admits the existence, in the S.P., of several officials who are in it, not for the good of the movement but for their own good. He goes on to say that to destroy a perfectly good radical organization in order to get rid of some "labor Benedicts" is absurd. And he is right. Just because there are Communists in Russia who are not really Communists is not a reason to condemn the system. The test is to see how the movement as a whole works. And that is why the S.P. must be condemned. Whereas, the Socialist Party, not content with permitting the saboteurs to remain within the organization, actually allows them to rule the movement, to dictate its policies, the Communist Party of Russia not only ejects these! but executes them. The Sigmans and Scha-tmans would not last long in that country.

It is well to remember that when a Socialist organization comes under the control of certain individuals it becomes not only worthless but dangerous, insofar as (1) it deludes the workers into joining their party instead of the one that honestly sets out to accomplish its purpose. (2) It sets out, as a defense mechanism to destroy the group that is sincere and (3) the party confronted by the Left Wing veers sharply to the Right carrying with it many who otherwise might have been won over to a policy of militancy. To these more could be added.

These men may be so entrenched in power that it is impossible to uproot them. And, in the meantime, they continue their mischief. In that case it is better that the purty suffer destruction than to permit it to remain as a cloak about these men. Those who stay within the party in an attempt to reform the leaders will end by being corrupted by the leaders. Mr. H. G. Wells who, after his first enthusiasm for the League of Nations said, it would be better for humanity if the League disappeared since its actuality causes many people to believe that the problem of how to end war has been solved and so lulls them into a false sense of security, causing them to withdraw from actual participation in the fight.

When we examine the names and peoples of the S.P. and its approaching ally, the A. F. of L., we see that here is one organization that ought to die. Their names: Sigman, O'Neal, Hillquit; those of there near-allies: Woll, Green, Frayne and Grady need no introduction and no comment. Their policies support of Chiang in China, of the Right Wing in the needle trades dispute, shows their nature clearly.

One other point: Mr. de Witt, sarcastically, points out the undoubted fact that many former fiery "lefts" have became reactionaries. Rinaldo Capellini is a case in point. But this is a phenomenon not peculiar to the Communistes—the Socialists a1so have their full share: John Spargo, Walling, Russell and others.

Those who live in glass houses should build protecting walls of granite.—Robert Julius Kasten.

Sends $77 to the DAILY WORKER.

Dear Comrades:—Keplying to your telegram I am sending you a check for $77 which I collected among our members and sympathizers.

When I receive a telegram that The DAILY WORKER is in danger I work day and night to get money. We know that the reactionary forces try to crush The DAILY WORKER, but the day is coming when we are going to crush them.

The DAILY WORKER is our weapon and we are going defend it. Comradely yours, — D. Fedarok, Scranton, Pa..

My Country Tis of Thee

By NAT KAPLAN.

The New Leader.

The New Leader is a weekly newspaper "devoted to the interests of the socialist and labor movement." Of late its "exposure" of the Communist "use of gangsters" in the fur trades strongly recommends its editors and supporters for honorary membership in the secret service of the United States, the Key Men of America and similar patriotic organizations.

* * *

S. A. de Witt has a heluva good time functioning as an East Broadway Heywood Broun. A droll fellow, this de Witt. For instance, he refers to a mock debate and "Communist Party, English us she is gespoken." Like others who received training in art and life at the Rand School he probably calls Second avenue residents "kikes".

* * *

James Oneal, the paper's guiding genius, persistently "exposes" the left wing. On one page he raps force and sabotage as ardently as Martin Littleton addressing a reserve officers' association and on another ha boasts of having said in 1920 that "the American revolution was not a pink tea affair which followed a course prescribed by social etiquette."

For once in a long time the New Leader has something with which it can be safely militant—the Sacco-Vanzetti situation. In fact, it becomes as militant as the New York Times.

As an indication of the facilities of imagination of its editorial board note that the issues of April 16 said that "Ramsay MacDonald will arrive in New York on April 15." A timely sheet of inestimable value to the labor movement.

* * *

But lest you imagins that the New Leader is hopelessly out of accord with the best journalistic traditions of the day, remember that it suffers the loss of Ed Sullivan, now sports editor of the Graphic, and Ryan Walker, "art" editor of Mr. MacFadden's delightful home nowspaper.

Also observe that David P. Berenberg, eminent socialist historian and literateur, recently had an Easter poem in Walter Winchell's Graphic in the form.

* * *

We never get very far along with Shipley's dramatic notes before we become convinced that he is a one hundred per cent dramatic critic. He begins with the inevitable "with deft and rapid strokes" and throws "good theatre" here and there.

Even at the cost of boosting the New Leader's circulation Shipley's a heartfelt testimonial—I get as many laugha out of the New Leader as I do out of Life, Judge or both.

And I do hope that the editorial staff takes a good dose of spring tonic, Lydia Pinkham's preferred. I am rooting for the New Leader. I want to see it emerge from its infancy as a real, vital paper of the American socialist party, ohv hasbeens.

And, as a final suggestion, its board of directors could be of add to its prestige as an American newspaper by subscribing to the Graphic's feature syndicate.

SABOTAGE, SACCO AND VANZETTI DEFENSE IN PHILADELPHIA

By VERA BUSH.

PHILADELPHIA—Disruptive tactics of a right wing machine broke up what might have been a splendid demonstration of unity called by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers at Labor Institute, Philadelphia, Wednesday evening. Credentials of delegates of invited organizations were refused seats by a credentials committee arbitrarily selected by the machine, the meeting was dragged out, obscene language hurled without provocation from the chair, a vote on the report of the credentials committee refused, questions from the floor ruthlessly silenced, policemen summoned, in short, whatever could be done to kill the efforts of sincere labor elements to unite in support of Sacco and Vanzetti was done by the Forward gang in control of this conference.

* * *

In response to a rather hasty call issued by the Amalgamated, three hundred workers, representative of labor, political defense and other organizations, packed a room at the Labor Institute.

The policy of the initiators of the conference was foreshadowed immediately in a lengthy canvas preceding the opening. The first words of Chairman Rudow of the Amalgamated left no doubt as to what the character of the gathering was to be. "This mob"—so he characterised the splendid representation—could not be expected to make arrangements. Eighteen delegates had appeared from the International Labor Defense. Was there one or eighteen I. L. D.'s in Philadelphia? Functioning, legitimate organizations only would be allowed to participate.

* * *

These insinuations, shamelessly made in the face of invitations for "organizations and branches" sent to the International Labor Defense as well as to other organizations, provoked a general stir of protest. Rudow nevertheless smugly continued. Only delegates representing trade bodies would be seated. The credentials committee would be as follows.

A spontaneous protest from the floor was ruthlessly quelled, and a delegate who had risen to question the procedure of the machine told to "either sit down and shut up and get the h— out of here."

Amid a storm of boos and hisses Rudow read off unblushingly the names of his committee. All questions from the floor he shoved aside.

Having thus insured the ruling out of all elements not to its liking, the machine then proceeded to drag out the work of the credentials committee until nearly eleven o'clock. Although the delegates were workers who had the prospect of getting up at five o'clock the next morning, not one of them left the hall. Still hoping to see some action taken to save the lives of their fellow workers, Sacco and Vanzetti, they hung on.

* * *

The report of the committee was as could be expected. Such "trade unions" as the Radical Library (let us hope the books represented were at least radical) and the Modern Home Association were permitted full representation. The International Labor Defense with its splendid record of aid to class struggle prisoners, was limited to two delegates only, and these not representative of its Central Committee. The Workers Party was accorded the same treatment.

By this time all of the elements of the conference not committed to support of the left wing in control had been aroused to indignation at this shameless flaunting of the purpose of the gathering. When Albert Walsbord, a delegate of the District Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, protested against the disruptive tactics of the conference and the "severe setback" thereby given the cause of Sacco and Vanzetti, he was greeted by a spontaneous demonstration of several minutes which swept in nearly the whole hall.

* * *

The lateness of the hour was then taken as an excuse for adjourning the meeting without a single action having been taken to further the defense of the two Massachusetts workers who are in such desperate plight. Delegates whom it pleased the conference to accept would be notified of further meetings.

Finding it could neither clear the hall of delegates nor quell the outbursts of spontaneous indignation and protest the right wing finally bolted its own conference, filled out of the hall and put out the lights.

* * *

There is no denying that a splendid opportunity has been lost for a union of broad elements of labor in common struggle, and the cause of Sacco and Vanzetti given a blow in this city. However, the eyes of all sincere and honest workers attending this conference have been opened as to the true nature of the machine in control of the Amalgamated, the Jewish Daily Forward, and the socialist party, which organizations made a common front in this disgraceful smashing policy.

It seems these gentlemen not only expel Communists (present at their own invitation), they wish also to crush non-partisan, fighting class organizations such as the International Labor Defense. They do not hesitate to sacrifice the most vital interests of the working class, if they feel the slightest challenge to their own mechanical rule.

The honest labor elements of the city will not allow their efforts to be thwarted in this manner and will persist in the determined and united struggle which alone will save Sacco and Vanzetti from the deadly chair.

TO JOHN BULL, ET AL.

Plain Talk in Free Verse

By ADOLPH WOLF

Get the hell out of China
You blustering bullying bandits!
Clear out with your murder ships
Your gangsters in uniform
Your insolent meddlesome agents.
You have a god damned nerve
To hang around in another people's country
Armed to the teeth like pirates that you are.

Your sanctimonious mothings
About protecting life
Are nothing but a bloody fraud
That you may put over on your babbits.
You're not in China to protect life
But to destroy life
Your provocative presence
Is bound to result in wholesale murder.

Your one and only purpose
Is to prevent four hundred million people
From being lost as potential wage slaves.
To your rapacious capitalist system.

But you are doomed to fail
In spite of the trashers you have brought
These hand chopping "mechanics" of yours.

The peasants and workers of China
Are bound to triumph sooner or later
And the price of blood they have cost them
Will be on your bloody hands,
Your bloody christian hands!

THE HELPLESS ROBBER!

Imperialist to Chinese worker: Drop this dangerous weapon or I may have to take steps to defend myself.

The Blood Bath Is Being Prepared

TEN short years after Mr. Wilson led this country into the European slaughter to assure the reign of justice and humanity, every indication points to the fact that foul preparations are in full swing to drench Americans with another shower of blood.

The soreidiness of the Nanking people's government cannot be glossed over by diplomatic reports from American imperialistic consular agents intent on excusing the wanton slaughter of Nanking's civilian population. When all the facts of American naval participation in that wilful carnage are made known to the American people those responsible for it will pay dearly for their blood lust. In the light of Secretary of State Kellogg's miserable intrigues in Mexico and Nicaragua his representations of the Chinese situation fail to convince.

Eugene Chen, foreign minister of the Nationalist Government states that the looting charged against the Southern army was done by the defeated northern soldiers. General Tsiang Kai-Shek, commander in chief of the Cantonese Armies declares that White Russians are responsible. "The Powers," continued Gen. Tsiang in his statement to the American correspondents in Shanghai, "cannot suppress the Chinese by means of warships, no matter how numerous."

Britain is again giving the lead to America's foreign policy. America's State Department and the British Foreign Office are dominated by the same interests. These international financiers fatten on foreign concessions.

The British Foreign Office has given America a free hand to do as it sees fit in Mexico, Central, and South America. And in return Mr. Kellogg and the Coolidge administration appear to be prepared to back Great Britain in its exploitation and oppression of China.

But it is the young men of this country, who have no reason to hate but every reason to support the Chinese masses in their struggle for freedom, who will be called upon to fight with arms for the right of their imperialistic masters to exploit the Chinese.

The blood bath is being prepared. Will America's young men be forced to take the plunge?

They Pray For "Splits."

Splits in the Kuo Min Tang Party in China are reported with great frequency in the daily press. We can say that these reports are inspired by the hopes of the imperialistic oppressors of China rather thun on actual facts. Those who have followed the great sweep of victories that have come to the Cantonese will have noted that the reports of "splits" have become more insistent and numerous as the Southern army drew close to Shanghai.

Certainly there are differences inside the ranks of the Kuo Min Tung. The Nationalist Movement has drawn into the scope of its influence all elements in Chinese life—merchants, workers, peasants and students. But the aspirations of some of these elements are satisfied early in the revolutionary struggle. The big merchants, for instance, are primarily concerned with the removal of imperialistic exploitation. The workers and peasants, however, are concerned with the abolition of all exploitation. And these various and sometimes opposing interests and aspirations express themselves in the struggle to dominate the policies of the Kuo Ming Tang.

As the Chinese masses are drawn into the struggle, and their aspirations become articulate, the Nationalist Movement naturally swings to the left. But this is the best guarantee that the revolution will not be betrayed. The Nationalist Movement becomes more and more a people's movement. The army becomes more and more a people's army. Its political education in their own greater importance that its prowess with arms. It becomes a revolutionary army that sweeps forward with a fervor forged in the heat of revolution. Its rank and file are not the mercenary hordes who go to make up the brigand forces of a Chang Tso Lin, but workers and peasants who lay down their tools and scythes to take up arms for the wiping out of exploitation.

Quite naturally the more moderate elements in the Kuo Min Tang attempt to split the movement and to isolate the more determined elements. But their attempts are bound to fail for the simple reason that the two and a half million organized workers and peasants, whose numbers are growing by the thousands daily, are strong enough to maintain the organization and to determine its policies. Leaders who cannot adjust themselves to this new situation are sloughed off. Since this article was written General Chang-Kai-Shek has split with the Nationalist movement and is now for the imperialists.

That this sort of thing has been taking place within the Kuo Min Tang is inevitable and necessary. But it gives small hope to the imperialists who pray for its destruction. The splitters merely find themselves stripped of their power to interfere with the sweep towards victory.

That Soviet Orientation.

More than forty years of intense revolutionary experience shaped the life of Dr. Sun Yat-sen. From 1896 to 1910 he took a leading part in ten unsuccessful attempts to overthrow the Manchu dynasty and to set up a government patterned after the western democracies. Finally in 1911 the Manchus were overthrown and on January 1st, 1912, Dr. Sun was elected Provisional President of the Chinese Republic.

Here was the most numerous people in the world brought into the family of democratic nations. And the treatment accorded New China by the western democracies was, in the words of the late President Wilson, the "acid test," applied to their sincerity. And the "acid test" has proved the baseness of the "democratic metal."

"Democratic" pretensions masked the most inhuman examples of brigandage. England, France, Japan, the United States, and the other imperialistic powers, with "democratic" flags flying over their pirate ships have engaged in expeditions in China besides which the exploits of the buccaneers Kidd and Morgan appear as Sunday School picnics. Unequal treaties, extra-territoriality, forced concessions; Hongkong, Shanghai, Tien Tsin, Amoy, Nanking, Hankow, etc., "internationalized," that is, made the property of the imperialistic invaders; alien governments set up within the borders of China—these are merely some of the indignities heaped upon defenseless China by her sister "democracies."

British diplomacy failed to see that with the revolution it would have to change its methods or invite for itself a swift kick in its ample posterior.

It is notorious that Britain refused the assistance so necessary for the solution of Young China's problems. And it is further notorious that the British attitude dictated the policy of the United States.

The Russian Revolution introduced a new factor. Revolutionary Russia abolished the unequal treaties. Revolutionary Russia treated the Chinese as equals. All the concessions forced from China by the old Russia were returned. The "acid test" proved the metal of the New Russia to be pure and unalloyed. And basing his conclusions on these perfectly obvious facts Dr. Sun, just before he died, wrote to the Central Executive committee of the Soviet Union on March 11, 1925:

"... By the will of fate I must leave my work unfinished, and hand it over to those who, remaining faithful to the principles and teachings of the Party (Kuo Min Tang) will thereby be my true followers. . . .

"Taking leave of you, dear comrades, I want to express the hope that the day will soon come when the U. S. S. R. will welcome a friend and ally in a mighty free China and that in the struggle for the liberation of the oppressed peoples of the world both these allies will go forward to victory hand in hand."

(From the Chinese Guide In America)

Read The Daily Worker

HANDS OFF CHINA! WITHDRAW TROOPS AND BATTLESHIPS!

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION SECTION ONE

Vol. IV. No. 90. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside, New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, APRIL 28, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

Current Events

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE president's speech at a United Press Association banquet was not in the least disappointing. Its literary style measured up to the high standard set by the late, lamented President Harding, the ideal of the tenants and guests of the "little green house on K. street." Five millions of people may have listened to it provided they had their ears to their radio sets, or did not go to sleep at their switches before the morpheon effort was over.

• • •

MR. COOLIDGE assures us that the United States has no imperialistic ambitions. What nation has for that matter? Capitalist powers are always getting misunderstood. Take England for instance! So many charges of greed and grabbing have been levelled against her that large sections of the world's population have come to associate the British empire with oppression and exploitation. But any British cabinet minister—even our dear Ramsay MacDonald—will tell you that it is all a beastly conspiracy against the "policeman of the world."

• • •

NO SIR, take it from "Cal" the United States is not hurling hot shot into crowded Chinese streets for any other purpose than to help the Chinese free their country from imperialism. Our marines are in Nicaragua because the Nicaraguans want them there. They are not interfering in the internal affairs of that country; they only insist that the rival parties only conduct war where nobody is liable to get hurt, least of all the reactionaries. Surely this is most worthy service for our marines to be engaged in.

• • •

WE have nothing but the most peaceful attitude towards Mexico. It is true that we threaten war against our southern neighbor occasionally and there is a strong suspicion that our secretary of state has issued instructions to his agents in Mexico to do everything in their power to foment uprisings against the Calles government, but perhaps this is a playful way the genial and jovial Coolidge has of showing the Mexicans that we are not tha stilted folk our Latin neighbors think we are; that we are a jolly bunch of handshakers, back-slappers and practical jokers who cannot refrain from horse-play even in diplomacy.

• • •

THE president informs us that he has had assurances from the Mexican government that the property of the American oil, mining and land barons would not be confiscated. In which case the generous Wall Street administration would cease encouraging civil war in Mexico and might even hint to the pope that their united front is off for the time being. Perhaps the threats of war, of lifting the arms embargo and the financial measures taken by Wall Street had its effect and randers military measures unnecessary.

• • •

MR. COOLIDGE upbraided a section of the American press, which happens to be less under the thumb of big business than the rest, for criticising his administration's foreign policy. Listen to this gem: "Whenever any section of our press turns on America and on American institutions and assumed a foreign attitude every informed person knows that it has fallen from the high estate which is our common heritage, and becoming no longer worthy of regard, is destined to defeat and failure. No American can profit by selling his own country for foreign favor." There you are. Is it surprising that The DAILY WORKER should be constantly in need of funds?

• • •

THE mild criticisms made of Coolidge's policy by a section of the capitalist press was not in favor of powers that could render favors. It was in behalf of the weak countries that being ground into the dust by the armed forces of the American Empire. And speaking of selling one's country, this jibe comes with poor grace from an executive who crouched silently in the white house while a hurricane of indignation over the sale of a part of the national heritage by some of his cabinet colleagues swept the nation and called for the punishment of the guilty ones.

• • •

COOLIDGE'S speech was no disappointment to those who know the ways of capitalist diplomacy. He has sympathy for China but he says it with bullets. He shows his friendship for Nicaragua by sending marines there. This is the difference between imperialism in words and imperialism in action. The policy of Ameri-

(Continued on Page Three)

RUSH CONVICTS FROM PRISONS TO BATTLE FLOODS

Unusual photo of convicts at Little Rock, Ark., vainly trying to stave off flood in the Arkansas river by packing sand bags in the gun soil.

"MOTHER JONES" ADVISES MINERS TAKE OFFENSIVE

"In Old Days We Kept Enemies on the Jump"

By CARL HAESSLER

CHICAGO, April 27.—Mother Jones sat comfortably in the rocker in her Chicago hotel room as she talked about the mining troubles and the American labor movement. Her white hair and fair skin, unflinching eyes and firm mouth made quite a picture for her uncompromising words.

"You're a labor newspaper man and I'm glad to see you," she said. "And I want to tell you as a newspaper man that the trade unions and the labor leaders aren't what they used to be. Your generation is not like the pioneers that formed the unions and fought the early battles. They weren't afraid of a fight."

Old Timers Fought.

Mother Jones has been in the forefront of countless strikes, chiefly of the coal miners but also in other industries. She has participated in many social movements, her most spectacular agitation having been that for child labor legislation a quarter century ago. At that time she took child workers who had been mutilated in the textile mills of Philadelphia and marched them through the towns between there and New York, opening a memorable battle against the New York police commissioner who wanted to keep these pitiful symbols of American industrialism out of the city.

"What's the matter with you people," she exclaimed. "In the old days we knew how to handle scab coal when it came into union markets. And when we wanted our rights from the government we marched to headquarters and got them there if they were to be had. We did not sit easy and let matters take their course. We kept the enemy on the jump. All that is needed is for labor to feel its power from one end of the country to the other."

Haiped Foster.

Her strike recollections include some fairly recent history. She recalled her cooperation with the American Federation of Labor committee for organizing the steel industry in 1919, when Wm. Z. Foster was its secretary. She urged Foster to detail her to Homestead near Pittsburg where she had helped steel workers fight the exploiter Carnegie over a score of years previous. Foster, she says, warned her she would land in jail. But she went just the same. Her two fellow organizers were arrested one after the other as they stood up in the auto to speak and she was nabbed when she began.

"That evening, however, there were 15,000 people massed outside the jail," she related. "The burgess, as they call the mayor, had sneaked away. The police looked out of the jail windows and turned white. They let us out on bond and I stood up in the auto again and spoke to the steel workers, urging them to go quietly to their homes and promising to return the next day to speak again.

Hopes For Better Days.

"We could have turned those thousands of men into a mob that would have torn down the jail and the steel works but we spoke to them about unionism instead. We showed the police that we had the power and so they let us speak when we came again.

"Well, things look bad now but they will get better again," she concluded. "The miners are up against it but they have been through worse things before."

Mother Jones is on her way to California where the climate is kindlr to her rheumatism than in the east. "I am 90 years old," she exclaimed vigorously, "and I have to begin to take care of myself."

Explosion Kills Four Coal Miners of Glen Alden Co.; More Hurt

SCRANTON, Pa., April 27.—Four miners were reported killed and several others injured in an explosion this afternoon in the Truesdale mine of the Glen Alden Coal Company at Nanticoke.

Weakening of union conditions during the drive against the soft coal miners, and the general breach of contract in the hard coal fields by operators there, is considered responsible for the recent great increase of coal mine accidents.

W. E. B. REFUSES RESOLUTION FOR SACCO, VANZETTI

Green Controls Workers Educational Bureau

BOSTON, April 27.—The Workers Educational Bureau has passed still more under the control of the extreme right wing of the class collaborationist section of the American labor movement.

Reject Sacco. Vanzatti Resolution

Significant of its present attitude was the refusal of its fifth annual convention here to adopt a resolution protesting against the death sentence for Sacco and Vanzetti. The resolution was presented by Dr. Henry W. Dana. He was greeted with polite applause as he pleaded eloquently for a demonstration of solidarity on the part of labor that might save the lives of these two workers and gain them their freedom, but when it came to putting themselves on record for the resolution that might help to accomplish this, a majority of the delegates remembered that the coming executive connell of the A. F. L. had this matter before it, and they must not do anything that would tend to force the hands of members of the executive council. The resolution failed.

Maurer For New Order

Despite the retention of James Maurer as president, and despite the fact that Maurer, in his address to the convention tried to strike a keynote of social revolution, however peaceful, the machinery of control has been entirely turned over to President Green, of the American Federation of Labor.

At a sumptuous banquet given by the Boston Trade Union College, a message of greetings was read from President Green, A. F. of L. in which he commended the W. E. B. as the "educational arm of the American labor movement, whose help is essential in fact-finding, in research necessary to the elimination of waste, and for support of labor's case at the conference table."

Green Controls Board

Jim Maurer was reelected president, the W. E. B.; Spenser Miller, Jr., secretary, William Green, will be honorary president, a new office. Executive committee members are Thomas Kennedy, Fannia Cohn, Thomas of Burlk, A. J. Muste, Paul Fuller, Charles Reed—the last two being new members. Three more will be appointed by Green. In case he feels that he does not have sufficient power on the executive committee as constituted by the conference, he can remedy this situation by his appointments.

Jim Maurer's presidential speech was the principal contribution to the fifth annual convention of the Workers Education Bureau. The veteran chief of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor defined the purpose of the movement as follows:

Underlying the purpose of work-

(Continued on Page Two)

BUILD LEVEE AT NEW ORLEANS TO STEM BIG FLOOD

Death Toll Over 200; 200,000 Homeless

NEW ORLEANS, April 27.—The crest of the great Mississippi river flood slowly bore down upon New Orleans today, scattering dread before it and leaving desolation in its wake.

Flood conditions throughout the Mississippi valley are practically unchanged, but relief is pouring into the devastated area from all sections of the country. The death toll has passed 200, with the property loss estimated at hundreds of millions of dollars. Only a careful check, after the angry waters have subsided, can fix the actual losses in lives and property.

The flood has covered nearly 9,000 square miles of territory, with millions of people in seven river states directly affected. The refugees already under the care of the Red Cross approximate 200,000, of whom 140,000 are in concentration camps.

Tens of thousands of refugees were reported marooned on the river's levees and in high spots throughout the flooded territory.

To Build Levee.

Governor O. H. Simpson issued a proclamation late today declaring that a levee protecting St. Bernard Parish will be built to save New Orleans from flood.

The governor declared an emergency exists which can only be averted by diverting the water of the Mississippi through a crevasse eighteen miles below New Orleans.

Both United States army and levee board engineers have agreed that the cutting of the levee will relieve the flood at New Orleans. Friday at noon is the time set for breaking the levee.

Desperate opposition to the move was made by residents of St. Bernards and adjoining parishes that will be flooded. Business men of New Orleans promised to reimburse the parish dwellers for all loss, estimated at not more than $6,000,000.

Break In Arkansas.

Another levee break was reported overnight. The dyke near Osceola broke, flooding the Arkansas towns of Kilso, Enmore, Dermot, Wilson and Tyler.

Flood waters north of Memphis were slowly receding and in northwest Tennessee, southeast Missouri and in Kentucky the farmers were planning to return to their homes.

Rush Vaccine.

The National Red Cross today centered its activities on co-ordinating public health activities in the flooded territory.

The first act taken to halt epidemics was the shipment of 25,000 typhoid and para-typhoid vaccines, 25,000 small-pox vaccines and 25,000 tubes of sodium hychloride from the seventh army corps to the State of Arkansas. The shipment was requested by the governor of Arkansas through the Red Cross station at Memphis.

Labor - Baiter, Thrown Over by Bosses, Kills Girl, Then Shoots Self

SACRAMENTO, Cal. April 27.—(FP).—Harry Hill, lobbyist for the Better American Federation and for years well known in Sacramento as an anti-labor lobbyist, shot and killed Miss Marybelle Wallace and himself in the state capitol, where the woman was employed. Hill had been out of a job for some time, his masters no longer considering him of use in the fight against labor legislation.

WARLORDS LAUNCH DRIVE ON HANKOW; POWERS MASS WARSHIPS; U. S. MAY RUSH PLANES FOR UNITED ATTACK ON THE NATIONALIST CAPITAL

Weisbord, Labor's Man For Passaic Office

Albert Weisbord, above, Harvard graduate and leader of the Passaic, N. J., mill strike, has attracted nation-wide attention by his campaign for election as one of the city commissioners of Passaic.

• • •

Weisbord Speaks at Large Meeting Held By Women's Council

PASSAIC, N. J., April 27.—Albert Weisbord spoke at a meeting called by the Working Women's Council at Maciade Hall last night.

Mrs. Gitlow, chairman, pointed out how the women have fought shoulder to shoulder with the men during the strike and how they must fight shoulder to shoulder with the men during the election campaign.

Mrs. Wexler from New York spoke in Hungarian. Emil Gardos stressed the necessity for a labor party, as did also Simon Bambach.

Abolish the Slums

Then Weisbord spoke. He pointed out how the women were doubly oppressed both as workers and as women.

He told of the slums of this city, the large number of criminals that have been produced as a result of poverty and how when he was held in the Hackensack jail he met many young men from Passaic who had become crooks due to their low wages.

Weisbord told the women that the labor candidates favor the city cleaning up the slums, that the municipality operate city laundries, restaurants, and other services, and in this way take some of the burden off the working women. He also spoke in favor of lunch being served at schools at cost, and for the unionization of the teachers.

It is believed that the Working Women's Council will gain many members and prestige as a result of this meeting.

Passaic Hosiery Workers Gaining Membership Fast

PASSAIC, N. J., April 27.—A gain of 100% in membership is reported by Carl Holderman, business representative in this city of the Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers.

Holderman made public his annual report for the New Jersey-New York District Council of the American Federation of Full-Fashioned Hosiery Workers, and this showed, that the number of members has doubled during the past twelve months.

The report states that of the 1300 full-fashioned hosiery machines operated in the New York and New Jersey district, 1,100 are handled by union members.

Buy The Daily Worker Special May Day Issue

Communist International Issues May Day Call For World Protest on China War

Report Nationalist Move on Canton Right Wing; Oust Editor for Attack on U. S. Policy

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Imperialists, through war lords, launch drive against Hankow; Americans may send twelve planes to Nationalist capital.

2.—Rumor Chiang alliance with war lords.

3.—Communist International issues May Day appeal, calling for world-wide protest against the imperialist war on China, pointing out danger of a new world war.

4.—Shanghai Chamber of Commerce ousts editor for criticism of United States militaristic policy.

5.—Report four Nationalist armies moving on Canton, where right wing is conducting a reign of terror.

6.—American military attache at Peking goes through Soviet papers seized in Chang Tso-lin's raid on Soviet embassy compound.

7.—British die-hards impatient. Clamor for open war against China.

• • •

SHANGHAI, April 27.—The imperialists, through the northern war lords, are launching a huge, hasty drive against the Nationalist Government at Hankow, it was learned here today. All available northern forces are being gathered by the war lords, who have left skeleton formations to defend their positions elsewhere.

Planes May Go To Hankow.

Close observers of the situation here point to the concentration of imperialist warships at Hankow and to the arrival of a flotilla of American submarines at Hongkong Monday as indications of an imperialist attack on Hankow. Twelve American military planes, which arrived at Shanghai yesterday, may be dispatched to the Nationalist capital, it is stated.

The announcement of the withdrawal of the northern forces from positions north of Nanking leads observers here to believe that Chiang Kai Shek is ready to ally himself with the war lords and the imperialist powers in a war against the Nationalist government.

Babbits Oust Editor.

The Chamber of Commerce here has ousted the "China Weekly Review" from membership because the magazine opposed the sending of troops and warships to China.

In a statement issued yesterday in defence of his position, J. P. Powell, of Hannibal, Mo., editor of the magazine said:

Scores U. S. Policy.

"The American people have no business to interfere in the internal affairs of the Chinese. The Chamber of Commerce apparently believes in involving America in complications in this part of the world, which, in my opinion, may have a far-reaching effect, even to the extent of another world war.

"I believe that the Chinese have the right to express their views as well as the English or Americans, or others, and so long as I am engaged in the publication of an American paper in Shanghai it is my intention to give them a square deal."

• • •

Move On Canton.

CANTON, April 27.—Hankow is reported to have sent four armies to Canton to crush the right wing terror in the city. The armies are said to be commanded by Generals Tan Yen-kai, Chu Peh-tak, Chen Chien and Chun Fat-kwai, and will move thru Honan Province attacking Canton by way of the East and North Rivers, utilizing the peasant and labor unions in the districts en route.

Execute Labor Leaders.

Secret wholesale executions of labor and left wing leaders are taking place here nightly. Tai Chukmen, well known left wing leader, was arrested today.

• • •

Americans Search Soviet Papers.

PEKING, April 27.—A member of the American military attache's office was premitted to examine Soviet account books which were seized when the Soviet embassy compound was raided.

• • •

Die-Hards Impatient.

LONDON, April 27.—The British cabinet met at 10 Downing street today to consider the Chinese situation.

The inability of the powers to agree on a reply to Eugene Chen's note regarding the Nanking affair has caused some uneasiness here and it is reported that one faction of the cabinet desires independent action. It seems probable, however, that the majority of the cabinet will be satisfied to delay matters until the situa-

(Continued on Page Two)

U. S. Marines Land to Protect Captain Who Tried to Rape Woman

HANKOW, April 27.—American marines are guarding the Socony premises here, following an incident Thursday in which the Captain of the "Meifoo" (a steamer owned by the Standard Oil Company) was prevented from attacking a Chinese amah (nurse) by the intervention of a Chinese boy who heard the screams of the amah, according to a report given by the workers of the Socony premises to a Nationalist News Agency representative yesterday. The captain was drunk. Upon the interference of the boy, the captain beat him up, injuring him seriously.

The assault attracted a crowd of workers, but instead of arresting the captain, it was decided not to cause trouble and to report the affair to Duxbury, a Socony official. Duxbury apologized to the boy and the amah, it is stated, and gave them money.

But the workers, enraged, insisted that the captain be handed over to (Labor) union headquarters. Thereupon the company officials notified the American consul and 24 sailors were landed to free the captain. They remained on guard at the Socony premises. The captain has not stopped working. The stocks of the Socony company are being removed. Fifty marines are now on guard inside the premises, Chinese soldiers and picketa maintaining order at the entrance.

PLACE ASHES OF RUTHENBERG IN KREMLIN WALL

MOSCOW, April 27.—Ten thousand workers stood bareheaded in the Red Square yesterday afternoon as M. I. Bukharin, Russian Communist Party leader, and J. Louis Engdahl, editor of The DAILY WORKER, reverently placed the ashes of Charles E. Ruthenberg, former Secretary of the Workers' (Communist) Party of America in a niche in the Red Kremlin Wall.

Four companies of the Red Infantry stood at attention, the Red Guards played a Bolshevik funeral march, and a Red Army detachment fired three volleys from the top of the Kremlin wall as the ashes of the former American leader were placed by the side of John Reed, who had also given his life to the Revolution.

Assuring the Russian workers that the American (Communist) Party intended to carry on its fight against capitalism with all its strength, Engdahl declared:

"America is a country to which the

(Continued on Page Two)

Who Are Needle Trades Wreckers?

Who Are Matthew Woll's Fellow Conspirators?

They Are Leaders of the National Civic Federation!

Woll is Acting President of the Labor Hating Civic Federation.

There is a United Front of the Special American Federation of Labor Committee, headed by Vice President Woll, and the National Civic Federation, dominated by the most powerful capitalists in the United States.

Matthew Woll is the connecting link in the conspiracy. With him in the Civic Federation is:

Morgan J. O'Brien (former Judge, New York Court of Appeals), N. Y.
Director American Safe Deposit Co.
Director, American Trust Company.
Director, Dunwell Brothers, Inc.
Trustee, Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank.
Director, Intertype Corporation.
Director, Metropolitan Life Insurance Company.
The Director, Provident Loan Society of New York.
His son connected with same firm at 120 Broadway and President and director of Broadway Safe Deposit Co.
International News Ticker Co., Director.
Director International News Ticker Co.
The Director of Morris Plan Co. of N. Y.
Director New York Title and Mortgage Co.
Director Code Quotation Telegraph Company.

C., of the firm of O'Brien, Boardman, Parker, Fox, 120 Broadway.

---

22 TAXI DRIVERS FRAMED UP FOR DEATH OF SCAB

Murder Laid to Guards In Cab Strike

A deliberate frame-up on a murder charge involving every striking member of the Taxi Drivers' Union in Weehawken and West New York, N. J., was arousing the protest yesterday of prominent leaders in union labor and legal circles in Hudson county.

Twenty strikers are held without bail in connection with the death of George H. Ewans, a strike-breaker. Four other workers, former employes of the struck Mac Taxi Service, have been arraigned on charges of conspiracy to murder and released under $500 bail. Edward Levy, business agent of the Hudson County Bus and Taxi Drivers' Union, is one of them.

The taxi drivers struck five weeks ago for recognition of the union and a wage increase. Three weeks ago the Weehawken police began furnishing protection to a horde of strike-breakers and gunmen imported from New York City.

Guarded By Gunmen.

Ewans was killed under mysterious circumstances. A plainclothes policeman was riding in his cab "protecting" him while another auto, filled with gunmen, followed his cab to furnish further protection.

Despite these guards, Ewans was body beaten up and died of his injuries. Immediately thereafter the entire membership of the union was arrested and thrown into jail without possibility of release under charges of murder. Unionists declare Ewans was beaten up by his guards in order to frame-up a case against the strikers.

Congressman Charles F. X. O'Brien impressed by the clear evidence of a frame-up, has taken charge of the case for the union men. He declares his rights as attorney have been trampled upon by the police and that the strikers are being held illegally while the detectives indulge on a "fishing expedition."

Brazilian Consul Fears American Imperialism

The United States should clearly emphasize its unwillingness to interfere not only with the political life of the Latin-American countries but also with their economic policies and the free development of their institutions," declared C. C. Manin, acting Brazilian Consul-General in New York in a statement issued yesterday.

The role played by the State Department in Latin-American business relations can "easily lead to misunderstanding," Senor Manin said.

Hungarian Fascists Riot in Budapest

BUDAPEST, April 27.—Hungarian Fascist students started a riot yesterday afternoon when they attempted to break up a meeting, under the chairmanship of Prince Karl Rohenlow, called for the purpose of forming a pan-European League.

The Fascist rowdies pelted speakers with rotten eggs until finally dispersed by the police.

Another Flyer Falls.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., April 27.—Cadet Grady Harley, flying student of Brooks Field here, was fatally injured when his airplane crashed near here today. The accident is believed to have occurred while the aviator was attempting to land in an artillery field near the airdrome.

Buy The Daily Worker Special May Day Issue

LABOR HATER IN PASSAIC MILL IS FORCED TO QUIT

Col. Johnson Resigns As Policy Fails

Col. Charles F. H. Johnson, head of the Botany Worsted Mill at Passaic, N. J., bitter opponent of the workers during their long strike, ardent advocate of company unionism and enemy of trade unionism, has resigned from his post.

Workers' Enemy.

He was vice-president and a director of the Botany Worsted Co. which owns the mill, and he acted as its representative during the year that the mill's workers were fighting for a living wage.

It was Col. Johnson that Gus Deak and his fellow-workers went in January, 1926, with their demands for abolition of the wage cut and for improved working conditions; and it was Col. Johnson's blunt refusal of these demands that precipitated the great strike of textile workers which became world-famous.

Bolster Company Union.

Within the past few weeks, a new attempt to foster a company union has developed in the Botany Mill. The women in charge of the employment office disclaims any knowledge of how it started. Members of the mill try to pretend it is a spontaneous expression of the will of certain workers. They do not explain how these underpaid workers managed to have the printing done for the cell which was issued. They are ignorant of the whole company union plan, so they state.

After Strike Economy.

With Col. Johnson, Carl Schlachter another vice-president and director, has also handed in his resignation. It is understood there are to be other changes made in the personnel of the managerial staff, and a rule of economy inaugurated. No doubt these changes result from the four million dollar deficit which the Botany Mill had last year, as contrasted with a surplus of over three hundred thousand the year before. The deficit was attributed to the strike.

Col. Johnson is to remain as a member of the board of the Botany Consolidated Mills, Inc., and has been elected one of its vice-presidents. This corporation is a holding company for both the Botany Mills and the Garfield Worsted Mills.

Ruthenberg Ashes Put In Kremlin Wall

(Continued from Page One)

workers of all nations emigrate to seek freedom, but soon learn that they must pass under the yoke of the world's most ruthless capitalist tyranny.

"America is not only attacking the little Nicaraguan Republic, but is also preparing to attack all Latin America. Our imperialists are seeking to destroy the workers' movement in Mexico and are taking part in the attack on Chinese workers and in the new imperialist war which is being launched against the Soviets.

Carry On Fight.

"We cry: 'Down with the American imperialists! Long live the American Soviet Republic! Long live the civil war of the American workers against their capitalists!'"

Special Drawings in the May Day Daily Worker

Spring Here Now, Alright.

VANCOUVER, B. C., April 27.—The North Pacific can support season like officially started today. Malcolm Parnell, of Vancouver, reported that he and his brother had seen two sun cougars each 20 feet long in the Hope Island, off Gibsons Landing, 30 miles west of here.

Buy The Daily Worker Special May Day Issue

WIRE ... ILLINOIS ROSSES

Illinois, too, has come having a taste of horseless, killing and stalking. Above is the front end of what was a once an Cleveland, Ill., in the heart of the oil-land region.

WARLORDS LAUNCH DRIVE ON HANKOW; U. S. HELPS

(Continued from Page One)

tion in China becomes less obscure and the superiority of either the Nanking or Hankow government is established.

Ward Sends Protest.

Protesting against the bombardment of Chinese by American warships when British '(and not American) merchant ships on the Yangtze had been struck by stray bullets, Professor Harry F. Ward, of the Union Theological Seminary, has written to President Coolidge, asking him to set some definite limit on the activities of American military forces in China.

The letter in part says:

"Your spokesman and your state department repeatedly inform the American people that our naval forces are in China only for the protection of life and property. Yet in the last two weeks New York papers report two cases of American vessels replying with heavy guns to Chinese sniping while convoying American merchant vessels of the two great British firms, Jardine-Matheson and Butterfield-Swire. The readers naturally think, and in one case the newspaper headlines ignorantly intend them, that these were American merchant vessels.

U. S. Protects British Ships.

"A later dispatch from Shanghai states that American and British admirals have reached an agreement for joint action in convoying merchant vessels of both nationalities, yet American commerce is but a small part of that covered by this agreement. For at least three years now British merchant vessels on the Yangtze have been constantly aided at by various Chinese soldiers, but so far no foreigner has been killed.

Asks Evacuation of Hankow.

"Because of the protests consequences we ask you to inform the American people whether such use of our forces comes within your original intent and within the definition of their use which you have laid down as the controlling principle. We ask you to inform them by what consideration of international law or custom we are justified in convoying merchant ships of our own or any other nationality 600 miles into the interior and through the zone of civil war in China. We ask you whether such commerce in such conditions should not proceed at its own risk.

"We submit to you that it would be far cheaper for the United States, both in cash and in international consequences, to evacuate its sixty-eight citizens at Hankow."

* * *

Communist International Appeals.

MOSCOW, April 27.—The Communist International has issued a May Day statement appealing to workers and oppressed peoples thruout the world to fight against the imperialist war on China.

"The imperialists are gathering armies and navies to crush the Chinese revolution," say the resolution. "After cruel oppression of Syria, Morocco, Java, Sumatra, the combined forces of the industrial and financial oligarchies, are planning to blockade China, to turn their cannons against Chinese cities and to support native reactionary hangmen like Chang Tso-Lin and traitors like Chiang Kai Shek."

Chinese War On.

"The war in China is already on," the resolution continues. "Do not believe the professional betrayer who seeks to lull your vigilance into slumber. War is already here.

"War against the Chinese people is preparation for a gigantic new world war. Unheard of methods of provocation are being employed to goad the Soviet Union into war.

Imperialists Prepare War.

"The imperialists are concluding war alliances. They have arranged for the transportation of troops with Germany against the Workers' Republic. They are arming with terrific speed, land, sea, undersea, air and chemical war. Almost everywhere they raised to power such notorious working class foes as Pilsudski and other dictators.

Spur English Labor.

"In England the struggle of the masses should not be directed at the Chinese people but against die-hard government which has loosed or emboldened that it seeks to turn workers into slaves, by depriving them of the right to strike, by smashing unions, and seeking to set back the labor movement more than a century.

"The French bourgeoisie shackles its working class by military laws, Germany by taking away the eight-hour day. Italy Fascism strangles workers' organizations; while the "cultured democracy" of the United States goes plundering Central America, South America and China, executes innocent men, and throttles workers.

"But against the forces of counter-revolution rises the mighty army of united labor, tremendous masses of people awakened. The Soviet Union is growing stronger; despite the treason of the bourgeoisie the Chinese revolution is making strides forward. The class-conscious European proletariat is gaining strength. In England the stronghold of piracy, of world oppression and colonial horror; preparation for the world struggle are in progress."

Calls For Demonstration.

Closing with an appeal for a world demonstration against the imperialist war on China, the appeal declares:

"Down with the war against China and its imperialist instigators! Long live the Chinese revolution! Down with preparations for a new world war! Down with the league of nations! Long live the Soviet Union! Not a man, not a rifle against the Chinese people! Hail the international solidarity of toilers! Hail May first and review proletarian forces!"

Buy The Daily Worker Special May Day Issue

Globerman Campaign Drives Los Angeles Times to Hysterics

LOS ANGELES, Calif., April 27.—The Los Angeles Times, anti-labor organ, in a leading article declares that "Labor Unions Are In Red Alliance With Socialism" because the Central Labor Council and other district councils have endorsed the candidacy of Sam Globerman, independent candidate for the Board of Education who is being supported by the Workers (Communist) Party.

Labor Fakirs Fought.

The Times fears that the unions are "becoming tools of the radicals" because of this act.

Every conceivable effort has been made to keep Globerman off the ballot; a Times reporter announced that he was not a citizen, and the officials of the Central Labor Council gladly took up the cry in the hope that they would not be forced to endorse a trade unionist running for office in the municipal elections, even to the extent of forming an alliance with the labor-hating Los Angeles Times.

When the Times carried the story of "Red Alliance," these same officials took up the cry of "red" and are seeking to attack Globerman on the grounds that he is a Communist, and there are rumors that an expulsion campaign will soon go into effect.

Rank and File Protest.

Even the bureaucracy feels the rank and file dissatisfaction with the present political policy of "reward your friends and punish your enemies." An editorial in the Citizen, official labor organ, declares, "The thing to do is to make labor's political power felt. If the method followed at present is wrong, if the policy followed is not satisfactory or effective, it can be changed whenever the unions comprising the central bodies and district councils vote so to do."

It is with this background that the Trade Union Political Conference is meeting in a few days to work out a political policy for labor. It is expected to go on record for independent political action.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

Smith Appointee "Overlooks" $250,000 Bribe

RESUME OF INSURANCE EXPOSE

The DAILY WORKER herewith continues its exposure of the "Big Four" Insurance Trust. The "Big Four" is composed of the Metropolitan, Prudential, John Hancock and the Colonial Life Insurance Companies. In previous articles Mr. Herrlong has adduced evidence proving misrepresentation, fraud, subornation and misuse of "mutual" funds. There are 40,000,000 American workers paying tribute to the "Big Four." Names prominent in government and financial circles have peppered the series thus far. Notably in this respect we find Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan Life and outstanding labor-baiter by virtue of his membership in the National Civic Federation, Albert H. Wiggin, Joseph P. Day, New York's super-realtor and many others.

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON

ARTICLE XVI.

The history of the rise of the "Big Four" reads like a series of exploits from the life of Captain Kidd, starting with a few paltry dollars, these corporations have amassed colossal wealth—many until today they are semi-billion dollar institutions thriving on the credulity and ignorance of the 40,000,000 workers who pay tribute to them.

In this article we deal with the two largest tentacles of this octopus; the Metropolitan and the Prudential Life Insurance Company. These two companies insure about $8,000,000,000 workers' lives for over 10,000,000,000 (ten billion) dollars!

The Metropolitan commenced business on January 1, 1867 as an "ordinary" company. That is to say, on its natal day it had no idea of selling that petty larceny form of protection" known as "industrial" insurance. The original investors chipped in $250,000 and for a while this was considered sufficient.

In 1868 this capitalization was deemed inadequate and the capital investment was increased $250,000, making a total of half a million dollars. At this stage and for some time thereafter the company was a purely commercial enterprise with nary a thought of "public service" and "social uplift." It was out to do the public good—and it did.

During its era of crass commercialism it had a most distinguished list of investors. Naturally the Wall Street clique came in on "the good thing," but notably in this respect we find the late Czar Nicholas II with a capital investment of $16,000,000 (sixteen million dollars) hob-nobbing with Messrs. Fiske, Schwab and Hegeman.

Things have not changed much, however, since the palmy days of the Metropolitan. In those days the American worker-insurer helped support the late lamented Nicky and today he is paying similar tole to the self-effacing Albert H. Wiggin et al.

To A Million Dollars.

Five years later, in 1891 the surplus grew and the capitalized making the total investment an even million dollars.

The next year, business still being abnormally good (the company is now doing weekly payment business for the past 10 years), another surplus distribution was declared jacking the capitalization up to the two million dollar mark.

In 1880 the Metropolitan first undertook its first flier into the weekly payment life insurance field. Five years previously the Prudential had introduced the plan from England and found the sales easy to make, the profits unusually high and the public, above all, extremely gullible.

During its first "industrial" year the Metropolitan wrote and placed on its books 5,143 weekly payment policies. During the following five years its business in this department increased as follows:

1882	110,193
1883	190,348
1884	335,789
1885	526,042
1886	1,064,875

And so on up until 1925 we find that the company had 30,883,984 policies for over five billion dollars of insurance. This is exclusive of "ordinary" or annual payment insurance which is as great again.

The Metropolitan's assets in 1880 (the year it first introduced weekly payment insurance) were $1,654,182. In 1925 the assets were over $1,854,000,000, one billion, eight hundred and fifty-four million.

The Prudential.

The Prudential Life Insurance Company was organized in 1877—fifty years ago—and capitalized for $15,5041 Small start, big ending.

From 1877 until 1886, nine years, it did weekly payment business exclusively. Its original policies were issued in amounts which ran from $250 to a top of $197. During this nine year period it had taken in in premiums and interest $5,052,931; had paid in death claims $1,331,111 (264 per cent of the premium income); had charged $2,661,004 for expenses (53 per cent of its premiums and 200 per cent of its death losses) and still managed to put away $1,040,816 in net assets with a membership of 442,871 (1886). Some growth for a newly born babe!

Fed On the Cash.

The stockholders of the Prudential were not wanting in dividends on their rash investment of $15,504. Not mentioning salaries paid to these stockholder-waitress, they began with modest dividends of 96 per cent per annum in 1886; then gradually vote themselves less modest, but more adequate dividends up to 1300 per cent per annum. Finally they slipped in an additional $400,000 just before "selling out to the policyholders"—and thus saving the company for "mutualization." After the chips were all in and counted the original investors made during the mutualization year 6900 per cent on the hazardous investment of $15,504.

"Mutualized" Dividends.

In 1915 there was an enormous surplus, and the stockholders were hungry for a juicy slice of the pie. The public was beginning to make enquiries about insurance generally and about weekly payment insurance specifically.

If the directors voted themselves more than a 10 per cent dividend on the $2,000,000 capitalization (18,333 per cent of the original investment of $15,504), an investigation would surely result.

So "mutualization" became the popular tune. The stockholders, officers familiar with the game knowing the trick of handling surpluses to advantage very generously "sold out" to the policyholders at $910 per share or $18,200,000, i.e., for every dollar originally invested they received $1,170.

This is the history of the two great branches of the "Big Four." Today the same clique of Wall Street financiers sit on top of the heap. They sold their stock but retained their grip on the directorates and policies of the companies.

Bought Their Way.

They bought their way out of the Armstrong Investigating Committee in 1905; they averted investigation in 1915 by instituting "mutuality." Since those cushy days nothing of interest to the defrauded policyholders has happened to palliate the evils of wealthy payment insurance.

Will 1928 be a turning point?

---

39 Miners Killed in Month.

SCRANTON, Pa., (FP) April 27.—Thirty-nine anthracite miners were killed last March, one to every 15,618 tons mined.

W. E. B. Declines to Aid Sacco and Vanzetti

(Continued from Page One)

ers' education is the desire for a better social order. Labor education aims at the elimination of the working masses. . . . Workers' education is distinctly not to be confused with the numerous existing forms of adult education. It is not the purpose of workers' education to help young students rise from one class into a higher one."

To Escape Hard Work

Several delegates expressed the contrary view. One of them said: "Shall we remain dubs all our life and remain in the hard-working group?"

The conference delegates each bought a fifty cent button for the United Textile Workers strike at Woonsocket.

* * *

Miners Demand Release

PITTSBURGH, April 27.—More and more appeals for the release of Sacco and Vanzetti are coming in daily from local unions of the United Mine Workers of America of West-ern Pennsylvania that are now on strike.

During the last week the following locals adopted resolutions demanding that the Governor of Massachusetts release the two labor leaders: Local 824 of Harwick, Pa.; Locals 1355 and 2831 of Avella, Pa.; local 1794, Cedar Grove, Pa.

A number of fraternal societies of Avella and vicinity also adopted Sacco and Vanzetti resolutions which were forwarded to Governor Fuller.

* * *

BUFFALO.—A Buffalo Sacco and Vanzetti Committee, organized to protest and arouse public opinion against the execution of these two Massachusetts labor organizers, was organized Tuesday night at 732 Brisbane Building.

Delegates representing various labor, church and other organizations and individuals were present. The following officers were elected: chairman, James C. Campbell, of the Mechanics' Union; vice-chairman, James Battisteri of the Socialist Party; Herbert Benjamin, of the Workers Party; William Shalnack of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and Martin L. Sparling of the Marine Transport Workers; financial secretary, Frank-lin P. Brill of International Labor Defense; treasurer, Erastaus Reynolds, attorney; secretary, Rev. Herman J. Hahn, pastor of Salem Evangelical Church.

Plans were adopted calling for a large mass demonstration to be held Saturday afternoon, May 7th, the exact time, the place and speakers will be announced later.

Needle Trades Defense News

Local Scores.

The workers who are now in jail and facing trial on charges of picketing and other militant activities during the strike of the Needle Trades Workers, are being supported by the Needle Trades Workers Relief. Funds are being collected from the workers in the shops and from sympathizers in order to make collections for the defense against their grants. These little collections have totaled up to almost $7,000 already, and the workers call on their friends to keep up this good work.

* * *

News From a Philadelphia House Party.

A party given to celebrate his daughter's engagement at his home, 728 So. 6th Street, Philadelphia, by S. Grossman did not forget his fellow-workers in jail and made a collection which netted $21.00 for the defense.

* * *

House Parties at the United Workers Co-operative.

Meyer Kelles had a party at his home in the United Workers' Co-operative Building last Saturday night. He decided to make a collection and his guests contributed $14.00 to the defense.

Charles Strongwater in the same building the same night also had a party. He was a little more persistent, starting the collection with a five dollar bill of his own, netting $56.25 for the defense.

Another collection held in this building the same evening netted about $30.00.

* * *

The Certificate Drive.

The Honor Roll of the buyers of the One Hundred Thousand Dollar Fund Roll Call Certificate is growing rapidly but not fast enough. Hundreds of dollars are coming in daily but the thousands are missing. The office staff is overworked receiving money, but if necessary, longer hours will be arranged to accommodate the certificate buyers.

A new twist in the certificate situation is that originated by many workers, who are buying certificates in honor of their children. These are being framed and preserved for the future as a memory of the great struggle now going on in the unions. This is something that should not be overlooked by the mothers and fathers, who realize that the fathers of other children are now spending their time in jail. MAKE THE ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLAR FUND GROW.

* * *

A Letter From Montreal, Canada.
1061 Henry Julien,
Montreal, Canada.

Please find enclosed $2.00 for your very worthy cause. Friends, carry on, we are with you and will do our very best to help you to a successful end. We have already sold several 3.0.00 books that was sent to Mr. Berger here, and we will do our utmost to sell the one which you sent to us. Please send receipt to the above address.

Yours sincerely,
W. ELBAUM.

Workers Party Branch In Paterson Explains Fascist Riot on Sunday

PATERSON, N. J. April 27.—The Paterson branch of the Workers (Communist) Party has passed a resolution about the Fascist riot there, as follows:

The Paterson Branch of the Workers (Communist) Party of America wishes to express its indignation at the treatment given by the police and by the courts of Paterson to the members of the anti-fascist league in the case of the riot which occurred in Paterson on Palm Sunday.

The Workers (Communist) Party knows that the fascists were provoked by the fascists; that the fascists were armed to the teeth; that the police protected the fascists and attacked the anti-fascists; that in the trial of the arrested Italian workers they were grossly discriminated against by the courts.

The Workers (Communist) Party knows what the fascists stand for. It knows that Mussolini destroyed the Italian trade unions; that he lengthened the working day of the Italian workers, and lowered the general standard of living for them. It feels that any spread of fascism in America means worse conditions for the workers of America.

"The Workers (Communist) Party therefore expresses its sympathy with the aims of the anti-fascist league, and with this resolution shows its solidarity with the Italian workers in America and in Italy, who are fighting against the vicious anti-labor movement so courageously.

Dempsey Frames for Chance at Million

Jack Dempsey, on the alert lookout for jack, informed Tex Rickard, the box fight capitalist yesterday that he is ready for another encounter with Gene Tunney. Dempsey is training in California and wants to tangle with the winner of the Mahoney-Sharkey match, but Tex thinks Paliso Heights would be the former champion's opponent.

Rickard, with a cool eye for the gate receipts, estimates Dempsey's return to the ring will drive a million dollars to the box office.

Buy The Daily Worker

CHICAGO
SUNDAY, MAY 1st, 2 P. M.
Manhattan Casino, Humboldt Park
Kedzie Blvd. and Division St.

MAY DAY CELEBRATIONS

DETROIT
SUNDAY, MAY 1st, 2 P. M.
ARENA GARDENS
Woodward and Baltimore Ave.

Three Meetings to Celebrate Greatest Pleasure For Workers May 1

May Day, international labor holiday, will be celebrated in Manhattan with three great meetings and concerts at the Royal Palace, 29 Manhattan Ave., on the Avenue of the Two Sts., 11-13 Astor Place, and Manhattan Casino, 40 Manhattan Ave.

Interesting Programs.

A large group of speakers and an elaborate musical program has been arranged. Among those who will address the meetings at Royal Palace are B. Lifshitz, secretary of the Jewish section of the Workers (Communist) Party; A. Bimko, radical editor, P. Cosgrove, P. Martoraua, and M. Cowl.

At the Amalgamated Temple Ben Gitlow will be the principal speaker.

Ray Ragozin, B. Lifshitz, and A. Stone will be speakers at the Hopkinson Mansion meeting.

A large number of labor and fraternal organizations are participating in the arrangements, including the Workers Party, Section 6; Young Workers League, I. L. D., Lithuanian Workers Alliance, and many other groups. Members of these organizations are urged to call at 29 Graham Ave., and 46 Ten Eyck St., Thursday and Friday at 8 o'clock to assist in the distribution of May Day leaflets.

Pioneers of New York To Fight Propaganda Of Boss For May Day

May Day this year means much more than ever before. In every Public school the children are being forced to join some military organization such as the Boy Scouts or the R. O. T. C. The Young Pioneers are going to raise the question of military training and show the workers' child how they are being fooled by the capitalist class.

The Board of Health is issuing the slogan of "Health Day" for May 1. The Young Pioneers are going to point out to the workers' children that only the children of the rich can be healthy. We know that the conditions of the workers are so miserable that the workers can't afford to live in large airy rooms, have plenty of clothes and nourishing food.

Other problems that will be raised are: Better conditions in the schools, free meal to every school child, fight against child labor and other daily problems of the workers' child.

Comrades, send your children to the May Day celebration given by the Young Pioneers this Saturday afternoon at 525 E. 72nd St., 2 P. M.

APRIL 23

(1860)

The Birthday of our Leader

L

Choose this appropriate time to read what he has to say

E

on the simplest, most necessary things in the revolutionary movement. This work teaches fundamental problems. It includes all his speeches and writings

I

N

ON ORGANIZATION

$1.50

In a cloth-bound library edition.

The DAILY WORKER PUB. CO.
33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

Admiral Plunkett Has An Big Navy Bouquet; Laugh at Plan, He Says

"Go down to the Hudson River and laugh when the fleet comes in."

This was the advice given by Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett at a banquet of big navy fans which drew forth hooted denials yesterday from the gold-braided admiral himself.

Plunkett was talking in an intimate way to members of the New York Society of Military and Naval Officers, but his ridicule of the alleged fanfare of the American navy leaked out.

Quick reprisal against the admiral's rash statement was forthcoming yesterday when he received orders to take a three months' leave of absence. He will cool off in Europe.

Plunkett told the big navy people to get behind Coolidge and "work for the biggest navy in the world." "The Atlantic Fleet," he said, was "hopelessly inadequate."

Two May Day Meets Will Be Held Here Next Sunday at 1 p.m.

Two large May Day meetings will be held next Sunday, by the Workers (Communist) Party. They will be at Central Opera House, 67th St. and Third Ave., and Hunts Point Palace, 163rd St. and Southern Boulevard, at 1 p. m.

The speakers who will address the meetings include Ben Gitlow, W. W. Weinstone, Charles Krumbein, Richard B. Moore, M. J. Olgin, William F. Dunne, H. M. Wicks and Rebecca Grecht.

With American imperialism having marines on Chinese and Nicaraguan soil, it is of the utmost importance that the American working class rally in large numbers to show their opposition to the plans of American capitalism.

Pittsburgh Miners and Steel Workers Arrange May Day Celebration

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—The miners of western Pennsylvania and the steel workers of western Pennsylvania will celebrate May Day at a number of mass meetings and entertainments arranged far Saturday evening, April 30th and Sunday May 1st. The meetings will be held in the following cities:

Saturday, April 30th, 7 p. m.—East Pittsburgh, Workers' Home, with Alexander Bittelman as main speaker.

Glassport, Pa.—Finnish Hall, D. E. Earley and George Papcun will speak.

Sunday, May 1st, 2 p. m.—Pittsburgh, Pa., Labor Lyceum, 35 Miller Street. Main speaker, Alexander Bittelman.

McDonald, Pa.—Dreamland Theatre, D. E. Earley will speak.

Daisytown, Pa.—Open air meeting. Speakers: A. Jakira, George Papcun and language speakers.

Amalgamated Clothing Workers' International Union 86, at McGeagh Bldg., Pittsburg. Speakers: Sarah Limbach and John Otis.

Saturday, May 7th, 8 p. m.—Strabane (Alexander) Speakers: D. E. Earley.

Foster and Kuomintang Speakers at Milwaukee May First Celebration

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—William Z. Foster will be the main speaker at the May Day celebration of the Workers (Communist) Party, Sunday, May 1, at 2:00 p. m. hours in Harmony Hall, First Ave., and Mineral St.

An attempt will be made to get a representative of the Kuomintang to speak, and the Freiheit Singing Society, Ukranian Singing Club, Peatuh, along with the South Slavic Singing Club, Budnocnost, will entertain. Admission 25 cents.

Waterbury, Conn. Holds May Day Meeting May 1

WATERBURY, Conn., April 27.—May Day will be celebrated here with a mass meeting on Sunday May 1, 7:30 p. m. at Venta Hall, 103 Green St. Sylvan A. Peck of The DAILY WORKER will be the speaker.

Yonkers Communists to Celebrate on Sunday

YONKERS. — Under the auspices of the Workers Party and the Young Workers League of Yonkers, a May Day celebration will be held at the Labor Lyceum, 20 Warburton Ave., Sunday evening, May 1, at 8 o'clock. There will be speakers, music and refreshments. Tickets, 25 cents.

Buy The Daily Worker

Detroit's May Day To Celebrate Ellen And Her Revolution

DETROIT, Mich., April 27.—Detroit's greatest May Day celebration will ring with cheers for the great victories of the Communists and with cries of "End Of China" as the thousands of Detroit workers join the huge Arena Gardens.

Besides being a May Day celebration this huge gathering will express its stand on such outstanding struggles of the workers as the Sacco-Vanzetti defense, the defense of the farmers and clothmakers of New York, the organization of the automobile workers.

Besides having Ben Gitlow as the principal speaker, Earl Browder, who is now on his way back from China and several other prominent speakers, a first class musical and dramatic program has been arranged.

The celebration will take place at two o'clock in the afternoon at the Arena Gardens located on Woodward near Hendrie and will extend into the evening at the New Workers Home.

Workers Children of Detroit Will Have a Big May Day Meeting

DETROIT, April 27.—Working class children of Detroit will enjoy a real workingclass May Day celebration this year. Plans are complete for one of the largest children's demonstrations ever held here.

The Ukranian, Polish, Russian and Lithuanian children have all given their support to this huge affair. Several hundred children are expected to come together and make this a real workers' children's celebration.

This May Day celebration will be held Saturday afternoon, April 30th, 2 p. m., at Grayling Hall, 2376 Grayling, Hamtramck, Mich.

Union City Branch to Hold May Day Fete

UNION CITY, N. J., April 27.—A May Day celebration will be held next Sunday, 2:30 p. m. at the Labor Temple, 57th St., and Tyler Place, West New York, by the Union City Branch of the Workers (Communist) Party. Speakers in several languages will speak. There will also be a musical program. Admission is free.

"Breaking Chains" for New Haven, May First

NEW HAVEN, Conn.—With a large mass meeting in the Central Opera May 1st, at 2 p. m. and an indoor meeting in the evening at 38 Howe St., at which the moving picture "Breaking Chains" will be shown, the working people will celebrate May Day, and demonstrate against American imperialism in China and Latin America.

Both of these meetings are under the joint auspices of the Workers Party and the Young Workers League.

COMMUNISTS OF NEW YORK SPONSOR TWO GREAT RALLIES FOR MAY DAY

The Workers (Communist) Party of America of District Two will hold two large May Day mass meetings Sunday afternoon, May 1, at 2 p. m. at Central Opera House, 67th St. and 3rd Ave., and at Hunts Point Palace, 163rd St. and Southern Blvd.

The speakers at Central Opera House will be Benjamin Gitlow, William W. Weinstone, Charles Krumbein, Juliet Stuart Poyntz, Richard B. Moore, John J. Ballam, a Chinese speaker and representatives from the Young Workers League and the Young Pioneers. Jack Stachel will preside.

Expect Large Crowds

At Hunts Point Palace the following will be the speakers. Wm. W. Walnstone, M. J. Olgin, William F. Dunne, H. M. Wicks, Rebecca Grecht, Rose Wortis, Fannie Warshatsky, with Alexander Trachtenberg as chairman.

In view of the attack of the foreign imperialists upon the Chinese people; in view of the danger of a world war on the part of the great powers against the Chinese workers and peasants and against Soviet Russia, these demonstrations this year on May 1, International Labor Solidarity Day, will be of greater significance than ever.

The meetings will be the answer of all militant workers in New York City to the Imperialists who are enslaving the Chinese masses and threatening the living standards of the workers of the entire world. The meetings will demand—"Hands Off China," "Withdrawal of Battleships and Marines from China," "Abolition of the Unequal Treaties and of Extra-Territoriality." "China for the Chinese," "Against the Imperialist War on China and Soviet Russia," and will demonstrate the solidarity and unity of the workers of this city on these questions.

Jersey Meetings

Many meetings are being arranged by the Workers (Communist) Party of District 2 in New Jersey. The keynote of these meetings will be the same as those in New York—international labor solidarity, protest against the intervention in China and demonstration against the imperialist war against China and Soviet Russia. The following meetings are scheduled:

Passaic—May 1, 7 p. m., at 27 Dayton Avenue. Albert Weisbord and Lena Chernenko, speakers.

Newark—May 1, 3 p. m., at Montgomery Hall, Prince and Montgomery Streets. H. M. Wicks and Tom O'Flaherty, speakers.

Elizabeth—May 1, 2 p. m., at Lutwin Hall, 152 Front St., A. Markoff, George Powers and Otto Hulswood, speakers.

Jersey City—May 1, 2 p. m., at 166 Mercer St., Pat Devine and Ella Wolfe, speakers.

Perth Amboy—May 1, 8 p. m., at 308 Elm St. George Powers will speak.

West New York—May 1, 3 p. m., at Labor Lyceum, 17 Tyler Place. George Siskind will speak.

Paterson—May 6, 8 p. m., at Carpenters Hall. Albert Weisbord and H. M. Wicks will speak.

There will also be a May Day Demonstration at Yonkers, N. Y., on May 1, 8 p. m., at 20 Warburton Ave. A. Markoff will be the principal speaker.

Nicaraguan Society Shows That Coolidge Lies About Country

That President Coolidge's references to Nicaragua in his speech here last Monday are at variance with the facts, is the position of the Central American Society which states that it is substantiated by state department archives and the congressional record.

The Society points out that "revolution was . . . started by the very group that has now been recognized by the United States in spite of existing treaties forbidding the recognition of governments born of fraud or revolution."

Salvador Is American Controlled.

The latter adds that the only Central American countries which have recognized the Diaz regime in addition to the United States are Honduras, the administration of which is tottering and continues only thru American support, and Salvador, whose administration is "virtually in the payroll of American interests."

Of Coolidge's statement that marines were sent to protect American lives and property and the right to construct a canal and naval base, the letter says:

"American lives and property never have been threatened in any Central American upheaval. The proof is that not once in the past fifty years has an outrage involving the loss of life been recorded against any American."

The letter points out that the Bryan-Chamorro treaty, which gave the United States the right to a canal has been declared null by the Central American Court of Justice. Further, the treaty violates the constitution of Nicaragua, the letter declares.

Shows Up Calvin.

"We are not making war on Nicaragua," said Mr. Coolidge, "any more than a policeman is making war on passerby."

"American-manned airships," retorts the letter, "bomb the 'rebel' ranks with American made guns and bombs. Marines have fired upon 'rebels' attacking the railroad, in which not a cent of American capital is invested. American credits have been opened to Diaz and United States Army and Navy supplies forwarded to Diaz."

Wanted: Trade Unions, Only Way to Freedom Drugs Dead From Shock

OLEAN, N. Y. April 27.—The shock of receiving a rooster of $12,000 from a thirty cent investment today killed Matthew W. Kerman, 65, of Ellicottville.

Kerman purchased a baseball pool ticket for thirty cents. When notified his ticket had won and paid $15,000, Kerman did not conceal his excitement. When he went to Salamanca to be identified and received the money, Kerman suffered a stroke of paralysis. He died within a few minutes.

CHINESE SLAVES ENDURE AWFUL FACTORY LIFE

Infants Sleep Under Noisy Machines

Some idea of the cause of widespread anti-foreign feeling and the hatred against foreign exploiters may be gained from reports of actual conditions in the foreign-owned factories that have been built upon the ghastly exploitation of women and children.

Donald Ross, writing from Hankow for the Nationalist News Agency depicting life in that city, depicting tired and worn women sitting over steaming tables in silk factories while their infant children sleep in piles of filthy rags on the factory floor. Legislation abolishing such conditions exist in other parts of the world, but in China the foreign-control of the former governments have prevented the abolition of such horrible conditions. The New York representative of the National News Agency releases the Day article, which, in part, is as follows:

Children Work Long Hours.

"The lives of the workingmen of China are the best explanation of the 'labor unrest.' It is true industries must not be strangled, but it is true also that without strangulation most of the industries of China could be reorganized in such a way that children of 7 and 8 years would not work for twelve hours a day in dark factories for a few paltry cents, and that tired, worn women would not sit all day over steaming tables in silk factories, while their babies cry from discomfort and hunger, or mercifully sleep, in baskets of rags under the machines.

"This afternoon the writer waggided rapidly through four mills. My impression at the end of it is that the industry of China is built up of the energy of pale-faced women and wistful-faced children.

No Labor Legislation.

"It is children and women, as well as men, who labor in China. Laws long since considered necessary for humanity's sake in the West have not yet been evolved in China. In other countries labor has fought for special laws for women. Other countries have fought against child labor. In China the time has not yet come when it is legally conceded that these things are crimes, and factories, belonging to both foreigners and Chinese, work their laborers twelve long hours and often more.

Miserable Wages.

"What in wages does this long day mean to the laborers? In a British-owned pure packing plant I visit today, where hundreds of women and children work sitting on stone floors, loosening cotton from cotton bales, breathing an air thick with cotton dust that the room seems in a perpetual fog, the average wage per day is 20 coppers.

"There is one room where there are more skilled laborers who work around the packing machine. One man in this room crouches down at intervals before one of the metal arms of a huge wheel, and straining every muscle, jars the wheel from a dead stop, and pushes it into place under the machine. Other men take care of other phases of the binding of the packages. Men in this room are the plutocrats of the factory. They get 130 coppers a day.

No Holidays.

"There is no provision for care of the laborers on the premises. There are no holidays with pay. If they take Sunday off, they lose a day's pay. If they take two hours off, they lose a fraction of the day.

"There were children in this factory, swarms of them, sitting off the floor, sorting out the cotton. These children spend the day in rooms filled with cotton dust. They do not have time out for their meals. And they get 20 coppers a day, or less."

Babies Sleep Under Machines.

"I saw three other mills. The worst was a Chinese silk mill. It was a horror. Babies huddled in baskets under the machines. Women and girls were in long lines in a badly lighted, badly ventilated room, with their hands in steaming water in which the cocoons are soaking. The air was thick with moisture and the smells bad. Everywhere were babies, and tiny children, too young to work.

Twelve Hours in Heat.

"The other factories we visited were weaving factories, one Japanese and the other Chinese. The Japanese factory was a model factory for Hankow. The rooms were light and the ceilings high. Wages are a little better here—40 cents a day, or $12 a month. But here, too, most of the workers were women and children and the day was twelve hours.

"The Chinese mill was poorly financed. Rooms here were dark, poorly ventilated. Hours are long. Work is hard and nerve-wrecking, and the pay is only 35 cents a day.

Work at "Home" Also.

"Four factories in an afternoon mean only the most hasty inspection.

Soviet Agrees to Peace Conference, But Nicaragua and United States Forces Attack

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, April 27.—Although the American legation was informed that the Nicaraguan "peace conference," ordered by the United States, is now in its preliminary stage, advices from the front today indicated that a battle is imminent between Liberals and Diaz forces in the Tres-tepe-Chontaha district.

Juan Sacasa, provisional president of the Liberal government, has promised personal representatives to the conference before the end of the week.

There was no time to stop and talk with workmen to find out what is back of tired faces, no chance to chat a little and find more about the lives to which these people return after twelve hours of labor. These are married women who have homes that must be cared for at night. These women do not have nurses to take care of their children while they go out to their jobs. They go home to cook rice and a few vegetables for their families and so to bed in the midst of squalor, only to get up at 5 o'clock the next morning, hurry through early morning duties and be on hand when the whistle blows and the sun rises at 6.

"This is factory life in Hankow."

Beyeridge Dead.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 27.—(INS)—Former United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge, 63, died at his home here today after an illness of two weeks, from heart trouble.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page One)

can imperialism towards the Chinese American states is put quite plainly by the president in the following words: "Toward the governments of countries which we have recognized this side of the Panama Canal we feel a moral responsibility that does not attach to other nations. . . . We have undertaken to discourage revolutions within that zone and to encourage settlement of political differences by the peaceful method of elections."

* * *

In other words American imperialism will have governments that will do its bidding in every country between the Rio Grande and the Panama Canal. This should satisfy William Randolph Hearst and the most intransigeant of the jingoes. Governments that refuse to do Wall Street's bidding will be crushed militarily or squeezed to death financially. They will have revolts on their hands. But once the tools of Wall Street get in power they are sure of prompt recognition even if they have not a corporal's guard in the country to support them.

* * *

STOCKS were sunk without warning on the New York Exchange last Monday and thousands who expected to get rich quick on margin buying are holding their receipts and wishing they had spent the money on Bourbon instead. Ambitious Americans were influenced by the quick rise of several stocks to plump their money on fortune. Now those stocks have slumped and nothing will happen until the sheep have grown another coat of wool. The big interests who own the stocks can jack them up or hammer them down at will. When they are down they buy and when they reach the top they sell. The suckers lose.

Stand Your Ground on May Day

We are on the front line trenches of the class struggle along with your fellow workers of the world. The Chinese workers and peasants are waging a terrific struggle against foreign imperialism. The Russian workers and peasants are fighting to build up Socialism, against the pressure of international capitalism. The toilers of Europe are in the midst of a fierce conflict against their own exploiters, and the bankers of the world. The workers of the colonial countries are beginning to rebel against the heavy yoke of foreign oppression. The workers of America, too, have joined the international army in their struggle against American intervention in China, against those who are seeking to destroy the labor movement, against the execution of Sacco-Vanzetti, and against the recent attack upon labor's militant organ, The DAILY WORKER. You are part of the steel chain of the world revolutionary movement.

The slightest break in this chain means a break in the entire line. You have your end to maintain. Here the capitalists are engaged in an attempt to suppress The DAILY WORKER, the American organ of the world revolutionary movement. You must do your part. You must stand your ground. Support the fight of The DAILY WORKER against the enemies of labor. Rush your defense contribution in at once.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of

..... dollars ..... cents to the Ruthenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....

Address .....

City .....

State .....

Attach check or money order.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published daily except Sunday by the
THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL ..... Editor
WILLIAM F. DUNNE .....
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

A Labor Party Should Be the Reply to Supreme Court's Anti-Union Decision.

The Supreme court decision in the Bedford Cut Stone Company case, outlawing the ordinary activities of labor unions, has as the only good feature about it the fact that it has unmasked a labor officialdom which has been basing its policy upon a theory—which it may or may not believe—that there are no classes in the United States.

By its decision the Supreme court has shown to anyone willing to be convinced that it is an agency of American capitalism, it has kicked into the ashcan the whole worker-employer co-operation policy of labor officialdom.

The Greens, Wolls, and Lewises have been telling the organized workers to be good, to stop fighting with the boss, to interest themselves in increasing production, to turn their unions into efficiency organs and arbitration instruments.

The Supreme court comes along and tells the trade unions that they have no right to do anything that interferes with the profits of the capitalists. Apparently the Supreme court had not heard that under the leadership of Green, Woll and Lewis the unions were really working to increase the profits of the capitalists.

The usual formal protests and promises of great efforts to be made have emanated from official labor circles, but no serious proposal for united struggle against the decision and the forces which lie behind it have been made.

Nor will such proposals be made. There will be appeals of course to so-called progressive democrat and republican congressmen and senators and probably some legislation advocated. But labor officialdom will not do what was done in Great Britain when the Taff Vale decision outlawed labor unions—begin the organization of a political party of labor.

There are two ways of replying to the Supreme Court decision—by mass resistance to its provisions and by the establishment of a labor party allied with the farmers which will, first by the fact of its existence and second by its activity, draw the correct conclusions from the Bedford Company decision—that is, that the workers and farmers of America must fight as a class against the robbing and ruling class which the Supreme court represents.

Coolidge and Kellogg Are Making War on China—Stop It!

Joint bombardment of Chinese cities by American and British warships continues. The excuses given for these atrocities are of the most puerile character and, since there is firing across the Yangtse river by the Nationalist and the militarist armies, and British and American ships are in between, there are always stray bullets to be dodged by the fearless Yanks and Britons protected by the steel walls of their armored ships.

These war vessels have no more right to be in the Yangtse than a Chinese fleet has to sail up the Mississippi and fire indiscriminately into the cities on its banks.

—These aggressions are becoming more frequent. Step by step the United States is making war upon the Chinese liberation movement. It is making war without declaring its intention and this is evidence that Coolidge and Kellogg, and the imperialists who own and direct them, dare not make public their real plans.

Never in the history of the United States, not even at the time when Wilsonian phrases intoxicated millions with a mad blood lust, has there been a more hypocritical policy followed in American government.

In all the welter of civil war that has found the imperialists financing and encouraging the bandit chiefs and militarists who have burned, murdered and raped, one American has been killed.

Even the usual imperialist slogan of "protecting lives and property" has had no basis in fact since no American property has been confiscated.

But American warships cruise up and down the Yangtse, they have bombarded and murdered hundreds in Nanking and they are working hand in hand with the other powers.

Coolidge and Kellogg lie when they say that their attitude toward China is a friendly one. The roar of the guns in the Yangtse and the shells bursting over the cities, towns and villages along its shores give these two procurers of mass murder the lie.

The American workers and farmers must know that Coolidge and Kellogg are plotting war and making war.

From this knowledge will follow action. There is not a single worker or farmer in the United States who wants to aid in the slaughter of Chinese workers, peasants and students who fight against foreign domination.

There is not a single worker, member of a union or not, who wants to aid in smashing the Chinese trade unions so that native and foreign robbers can have easy pickings.

Yet these are exactly the things that Coolidge and Kellogg, by using the armed forces of the United States without authorization from any source that has legal standing, are doing in China.

They have the blood of Chinese workers and peasants on their hands already. They must be allowed to shed no more.

Let Coolidge and Kellogg know that William Green of the American Federation of Labor does not speak for the masses of American workers when he approves the Coolidge-Kellogg policy. Away with this state department—Civic Federation leadership of the American labor movement.

Send in from every local union, fraternal benefit society and co-operative the demand for immediate withdrawal of all armed forces from China. Let Washington know that we of the American working class have no quarrel with the Chinese masses and that we will not be a party to a conspiracy which, beginning with war on them, threatens to engulf the whole world in a bloody struggle to which the world war was child's play.

War is being waged against China.

Stop it.

Trotsky, Socialists and Hero Worship

[illegible] Trotsky [illegible] there [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

Organized Labor—Trade Union Activities

News and Comment
Labor Unions
Labor Organizations
Trade Union Events

Jersey Textile Bosses Kill Compensation Bill

Bakeries Use Speed-Up Under Guise of Doing

Strike of Painters and Paperhangers Ties Up Labor and Industry

FUR CASE NOTES FOUND DOCTORED BY A. F. L. CLIQUE

1,000 Workers Jailed Refute Bribery Charge

SOVIET WANTS ELECTION HELD TO DECIDE ISSUE

Ben Gold Insists on Job Standards

COOLIDGE ADMITS U. S. IMPERIALISM; TELLS NEXT STEP

Millinery Workers Strike A. F. of L. Faction

Storm Moves East.

WASHINGTON, April 27.—The weather bureau today ordered storm warnings displayed from Delaware breakwater to Eastport, Me., because of a disturbance over Lake Huron, which is increasing in intensity. It is moving eastward and will cause increasing south winds this afternoon, becoming strong tonight.

Buy The Daily Worker

NUCLEUS 101
BUFFALO, N. Y.
Greets
The DAILY WORKER

To the Workers of the World!

We Extend Greetings on this May Day. From all sides the tide of rebellion rises against the common oppressor. We declare on this International May Day our solidarity with the proletariat of the world.

UNITY OF THOUGHT, PURPOSE AND ACTION FOR THE LIBERATION OF THE OPPRESSED OF ALL LANDS.

MT. VERNON NUCLEUS
WORKERS (COMMUNIST)
PARTY
Mt. Vernon, Wash.

MAY DAY GREETINGS

AMERICAN NEGRO LABOR CONGRESS

May The DAILY WORKER reach ever more of the exploited toilers of America!

Long live the only English Communist daily organ in America! Keep on spreading the teachings of Lenin!

With Revolutionary Greetings
YOUNG WORKERS' COMMUNIST LEAGUE
DULUTH, MINN.

MAY DAY
GREETINGS
from
FINNISH WORKERS'
CLUB
Canonsburg,
Penna.

Street Nucleus 5,
Section 3
Detroit

MAY DAY
GREETINGS
to
The DAILY WORKER

Large Sums of Money Paid to "Fixers" Here

That "fixers and chiselers" infest the federal court building with promises to fix any case that is being tried, has been revealed in a letter sent to Attorney General Sargent by C. D. Williams, formerly an assistant federal attorney here.

"When the case is dismissed as a matter of form," writes Williams, "the ignorant defendant usually will pay. Under these circumstances large sums of money can be extorted. . . ."

Three New Yorkers Take Lives by Gas

Life wasn't worth much to three New Yorkers. They were found dead from asphyxiation yesterday. They are: Mrs. Caroline Dinert, 56, 184 71st Ave., Flushing. Irving Dexter, 31, 1021 Central Ave., Far Rockaway. John Belber, 58, 222 Scranton Ave., Lynnbrook.

Dodge Dodges Court.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—Horace E. Dodge, Jr., millionaire member of the Detroit automobile family, failed to appear in police court here today to answer charges of assault. Dodge is charged with striking a newspaperman and smashing a camera when he returned from Honolulu and sought to escape publicity.

Die-Hard Baldwin to Visit Canada Soon

LONDON, April 27.—Prime Minister Baldwin will visit Canada at the end of this Parliamentary session it was announced today.

Whether he and his die-hard cabinet will still be in office, however, by the end of the session is unknown. The virulent anti-strike bill, proposed by the Baldwin Government, is meeting with opposition throughout England.

President Machado Is Guarded by Hordes of Department of Justice Operatives

Thirty years ago New York City was in a frenzy of passion over the wanton cruelties of "Butcher" Weyler, Spanish general who was "pacifying" the Cuban insurrection. The furors aroused by the newspapers later permitted American imperialism to sweep through the island, kicking out the Spanish oppressors and substituting Yankees.

Yesterday "Butcher" Machado, president of Cuba—America's most important province, murderer of 200 workers and trade unionists, was the official guest of New York City while newspapers fawned upon him and the city's financial leaders congratulated him on his own "pacification" of the Cuban labor movement.

American steel kings and bankers gave Machado a royal welcome. Swished in all the luxuries of the Biltmore Hotel, the portly agent of the American sugar and railroad interests in Cuba was surrounded by dozens of uniformed policemen, plain-clothes men and agents of the department of justice.

The Military Trappings.

The Biltmore Hotel is decorated with flags of the U. S. and Cuba; soldiers and officers in neat, blue uniforms bustle through the corridors.

Scores of cops from the New York police department guard the puppet president of Cuba.

A dozen anonymous under-cover men from the department of justice follow Machado whenever he goes to the bankers' receptions.

The suite of rooms at the Biltmore is carefully guarded from the approach of "strange-looking individuals."

President Coolidge stopped at the Biltmore when he came to town Monday to address the United Press.

Gov. Smith stopped at the Biltmore yesterday. The president of Cuba was sight-seeing in the city. The governor left his card.

Entertained By Bankers.

Yesterday President Gerado Machado of Cuba was the guest at a luncheon given in his honor by the officers of the Chase National Bank.

Many leaders of financial thought in the United States made speeches. Among them were James A. Farrell, president of the U. S. Steel Corporation; William A. Woodin, chairman of the board of directors of the American Locomotive Works; Julius H. Barnes, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Frederick H. Ecker, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

"All Is Well In My Country."

"Cuba is a splendid example of peace and prosperity. . . . Aided by the people of the United States, it has developed its resources. . . . In President Machado are found the qualities of a statesman and a leader of men."

The American business men agreed that things are going on well in the "Republic" of Cuba.

Mutual genuflexions were exchanged.

The aide-de-camp of Machado at the Biltmore told a reporter for The DAILY WORKER that the president was asleep. "Tonight," he said, "will be a dinner in his honor here; it is being given by your mayor."

The president is a vigorous man, he confided, but one must rest.

"Labor troubles in Cuba? No, all that is exaggerated by the Bolshevik disturbers. There is no truth in such rumors."

* * *

Labor Crushed.

There are no genuine labor organizations, no labor press in Cuba. They have all been suppressed by Machado, the representative of the National City Bank. This bank controls directly the General Sugar Co. Its directors control the Consolidated Railways and the immense sugar holdings of the Cuba Co., as well as many other Cuban corporations.

Leaders of trade unions have been executed, many have been deported, some have been shot without hearing or trial.

Unionists Shot.

Enrique Varona, organizer for the Railway Brotherhood, was shot in the back and killed while leaving a theater.

Thomas Grant, the treasurer of the Railway Brotherhood was shot and killed by a policeman in broad daylight.

Baldomero Dumingo was shot at the behest of agents of the "liberal" Machado government.

Foreigners or naturalised citizens, active in the trade unions have been deported from the country, according to the program of dictatorship of Machado.

The Consolidated Railways are owned and controlled by American bankers.

The gunboat "Maximo Gomez," anchored in Havana Harbor, has become a floating prison for those active in the Cuban labor movement. Many are known to have been thrown into the sea.

Labor organizers disappear mysteriously in Cuba.

Not Mentioned In After-Dinner Speeches.

Yesterday President Machado of Cuba was the guest at a luncheon given in his honor by the officers of the Chase National Bank. None of these things were mentioned at the luncheon.

Mayor Walker, the directors of the important business houses—all agree that things are "fine in Cuba."

When the U. S. declared war on Spain in 1898, in order to free Cuba and several other persecuted republics from the domination of that decayed empire, American investments amounted to 50 million dollars. The bankers who greeted Machado were aware yesterday that American investments totalled $1,250 million.

Florist Workers Secure Wage Raise by Strike

CHICAGO, April 27.—A 5% wage increase and Saturday half-holidays in the summer were gained by a 1-day strike of the Gardeners & Florists union at the Poehlmann Bros. greenhouses in Chicago last week. The strike was shrewdly timed just before the Easter flower demand. The old scale of wages ranged from $26 a week to $40. Other greenhouse employes may follow suit in anticipation of the annual rush for Mother's Day, the bonanza time created by the florist associations to make mere business during the post-Easter slack.

Musicians of the unionized Chicago Symphony orchestra are negotiating for a $20 increase to bring their weekly wage to $100 for the 6-month season. The orchestra association pleads poverty though most of its guarantors are the recipients of huge annual incomes without rendering any service to society in return.

Jersey Textile Bosses Kill Compensation Bill

TRENTON, N. J., April 27.—A bill providing for compensation to workers in the textile industry, which was introduced in the New Jersey legislature by the Federal Textile Company, a subsidiary of the Federal System of Companies, is dead as a result of opposition from the bosses in some of the large cities of the state.

The bill would have established a figure for the cost of operating this industry which includes the salaries of the employes, rent, light, heat, raw material, etc. If the cost of operation increased, the employers could add enough to this figure to cover the increase. The bill was killed in the senate; the judiciary committee, Sen. Chairman Stevens directed the dirty work.

Bakeries Use Speed-Up Under Guise of Doing

By Victor Bernstein.

NEW YORK, April 27.—A campaign to speed up workers in the bakeries of the city, ostensibly in the interest of "sanitation," is being carried on by the Federal Bakery, operating in this city. This is one of the many plants of the Federal System of Companies, a merger in some of the large cities of the country.

The campaign is on to secure a figure for the cost of operating this bakery which includes the salaries of the employes, rent, light, heat, raw material, etc. If the cost of operation increased, the employers could add enough to this figure to cover the increase. "As the employes have no knowledge of what the cost of operation is, they have to take the company's word for the amount of saving that is effected.

There is a grave danger that one or more of the bakeries may be laid off. It may be found that the foods can be cut down and the same work can be done with a smaller force.

It is understood that this bonus system has been installed in most of the shops of the Federal Bakeries System. It has attracted sufficient notice among employers of other lines so that it is being copied by them. It is reported that the General Motors Company has adopted it.

Strike of Painters and Paperhangers Ties Up Labor and Industry

FUR CASE NOTES FOUND DOCTORED BY A. F. L. CLIQUE

1,000 Workers Jailed Refute Bribery Charge

The statements about police graft alleged to have been made by members of the Furriers' Joint Board to Isidore Nagler, manager of the Furriers' Union, to the effect that the Joint Board was in control of the police and that the police would not interfere with the union and let the manufacturers decide whether they employed the left or the right wing, were denied to a committee of the shop chairmen and shop committee representatives of the workers on strike held at Webster Hall. It was held under the auspices of the Fur Joint Board, which is instructed to confer with Sorkin.

Workers are Bewildered.

Most of the shop chairmen and shop committee representatives opposed Sorkin's offer, being convinced that it is not sincere. However, when Ben Gold, manager of the Furriers Joint Board spoke in favor of negotiating, the motion was passed instructing the Joint Board to get in touch with Sorkin. Whether Sorkin is acting as an individual or represents the entire right group of the union is not known at the present time.

A report of the negotiations will be given Thursday evening at meeting-to be held at 6 p. m., at Webster Hall and Cooper Union. Ben Gold will be the principal speaker. Frank P. Walsh and the other attorneys for the union have been invited to speak.

It was also decided that if nothing should materialize from the negotiations, that an aggressive picketing campaign will be conducted under the personal chairmanship of Ben Gold assisted by Irving Potash.

Working Standards.

When the objection to conferring with Sorkin was given by the shop chairmen, Gold pointed out that if Sorkin and those he represents are willing to guarantee that the working standards will be maintained, the Joint Board is willing to end the strike.

Gold also reported on the general situation in the union, on the Mineola trial and the great hearings before Magistrate Corrigan.

Fight Among Themselves.

He told of the bosses and the right wing. Many of the bosses are now beginning to realize that it was a foolish move to meddle in union politics, as they cannot break the unity of the workers.

Gold stated that the joint board promises to fight until the end "Until we are sure the working conditions signed with the joint board are maintained.

"We are for the unity of the workers. For the strength of the workers to be expressed thru the union. We see the right wing already talking peace. No move on their part will be able to bluff us." When Gold finished speaking there was tremendous applause.

It was announced that many workers who registered with the International are coming to the joint board and asking for forgiveness, saying that they did so in a moment of weakness.

Webster Hall will be used as strike headquarters in the future. The hall committee consists of Esther Polansky, S. Schiller, Julius Fliess, M. Jonde and Max Spivak. It is proposed to add several active workers to this committee.

It has also been announced that in those buildings where two or more shops are on strike, to form building committees.

Florist Workers Secure Wage Raise by Strike

CHICAGO, April 27.—A 5% wage increase and Saturday half-holidays in the summer were gained by a 1-day strike of the Gardeners & Florists union at the Poehlmann Bros. greenhouses in Chicago last week. The strike was shrewdly timed just before the Easter flower demand. The old scale of wages ranged from $26 a week to $40. Other greenhouse employes may follow suit in anticipation of the annual rush for Mother's Day, the bonanza time created by the florist associations to make mere business during the post-Easter slack.

Musicians of the unionized Chicago Symphony orchestra are negotiating for a $20 increase to bring their weekly wage to $100 for the 6-month season. The orchestra association pleads poverty though most of its guarantors are the recipients of huge annual incomes without rendering any service to society in return.

SOVIET WANTS ELECTION HELD TO DECIDE ISSUE

Ben Gold Insists on Job Standards

The open move towards peace at the Furriers' Union by the appointment of a committee by the executive board of the manufacturers' association of the Furriers' Union to confer with Sorkin, chairman of the shop chairmen's committee, and the latter's refusal to confer with the manufacturers' committee, has created a new situation in the union and has put the responsibility for the continuation of the strike squarely upon the shoulders of the right wing.

It is expected to-day that the shop chairmen and shop committee representatives of the workers on strike will hold a meeting at Webster Hall. It was decided to confer on questions of the Joint Board, which is instructed to confer with Sorkin.

Workers are Bewildered.

Most of the shop chairmen and shop committee representatives opposed Sorkin's offer, being convinced that it is not sincere. However, when Ben Gold, manager of the Furriers Joint Board spoke in favor of negotiating, the motion was passed instructing the Joint Board to get in touch with Sorkin. Whether Sorkin is acting as an individual or represents the entire right group of the union is not known at the present time.

A report of the negotiations will be given Thursday evening at meeting-to be held at 6 p. m., at Webster Hall and Cooper Union. Ben Gold will be the principal speaker. Frank P. Walsh and the other attorneys for the union have been invited to speak.

It was also decided that if nothing should materialize from the negotiations, that an aggressive picketing campaign will be conducted under the personal chairmanship of Ben Gold assisted by Irving Potash.

Working Standards.

When the objection to conferring with Sorkin was given by the shop chairmen, Gold pointed out that if Sorkin and those he represents are willing to guarantee that the working standards will be maintained, the Joint Board is willing to end the strike.

Gold also reported on the general situation in the union, on the Mineola trial and the great hearings before Magistrate Corrigan.

Fight Among Themselves.

He told of the bosses and the right wing. Many of the bosses are now beginning to realize that it was a foolish move to meddle in union politics, as they cannot break the unity of the workers.

Gold stated that the joint board promises to fight until the end "Until we are sure the working conditions signed with the joint board are maintained.

"We are for the unity of the workers. For the strength of the workers to be expressed thru the union. We see the right wing already talking peace. No move on their part will be able to bluff us." When Gold finished speaking there was tremendous applause.

It was announced that many workers who registered with the International are coming to the joint board and asking for forgiveness, saying that they did so in a moment of weakness.

Webster Hall will be used as strike headquarters in the future. The hall committee consists of Esther Polansky, S. Schiller, Julius Fliess, M. Jonde and Max Spivak. It is proposed to add several active workers to this committee.

It has also been announced that in those buildings where two or more shops are on strike, to form building committees.

COOLIDGE ADMITS U. S. IMPERIALISM; TELLS NEXT STEP

Free Hand to Exploit Latin America Is Aim

Will Aid Oil Barons.

"On his representation that he was going to protect life and property in Nicaragua, a force of marines (Coolidge said, and added that the government had sold arms and ammunition to Nicaragua as well as to Mexico. After saying that "American people who go abroad to develop new fields should be encouraged," he declared that the operations of the use of capitalists operating in foreign nations.

"We need a LOCAL responsibility in Latin countries north of the Panama," he declared. "We have undertaken to encourage revolutions. THIS [illegible] IS RICE IN NATURAL [illegible] interests there."

Applies the doctrine of "protecting lives and property" also to China, he said in reply to the murder of Chinese [illegible] and British consuls as the anti-foreign incident at Nanking.

Further steps on the part of this country will be called in the event that the Chinese reply to the American note "leaves the final disposition of the issue a matter of future consideration."

Summing up the rise of America to the position of the world's leading imperialist nation, Coolidge said:

"Recent history has brought America into a new position in the world. We must expect to be charged with imperialistic motives."

WORKERS! PROTEST AGAINST DEATH OF SACCO and VANZETTI!

Violin and Viola Lessons
Given by expert teacher.
For reasonable terms, write to
JOHN WEINROTH
6136 LARCHWOOD AVENUE.
Above Cedar 7202. Philadelphia, Pa.

DETROIT'S GREATEST
"Hands Off China", May Day Celebration
SUNDAY, MAY 1st. 2 P. M.
ARENA GARDENS, WOODWARD NEAR HENDRIE
Revolutionary Musical and Dramatic Program.
BEN GITLOW AND OTHER PROMINENT SPEAKERS.
Admission 50 Cents.

MAY DAY FESTIVAL AND DANCE
May Day Evening—NEW WORKERS' HOME, 1842 E. Ferry Ave.
MUSIC DANCING REFRESHMENTS

ATTENTION, BOSTON
A Good Time for Everybody at the FIRST ANNUAL CARNIVAL BAZAAR
Of the International Labor Defense
APRIL 28, 29 and 30, 1927
New International Hall, 42 Wenonah St., Roxbury Useful Articles, Books, Handicraft, etc., for Sale.
Concert Program Every Nite. Dancing Saturday Nite.
Refreshments! ADMISSION FREE!
HOW TO GET THERE: Take any Warren Street Car at Dudley Street Terminal and get off at Wainwright Street.
Send your contributions to INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE, 113 Dudley Street, Boston.

PHILADELPHIA
"Hands Off China!" "Save Sacco and Vanzetti!"
May Day Celebration
NEW TRAYMORE HALL
Franklin and Columbia Ave.
Saturday, April 30th, 7 P.M.
SPEAKERS:
Wm. F. Dunne Albert Weisbord
C. E. Miller
and Others.
APPROPRIATE MUSICAL PROGRAM.
Admission 25 cents.
Auspices: WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY and YOUNG WORKERS (COMMUNIST) LEAGUE.

Three New Yorkers Take Lives by Gas

Life wasn't worth much to three New Yorkers. They were found dead from asphyxiation yesterday. They are: Mrs. Caroline Dinert, 56, 184 71st Ave., Flushing. Irving Dexter, 31, 1021 Central Ave., Far Rockaway. John Belber, 58, 222 Scranton Ave., Lynnbrook.

Dodge Dodges Court.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 27.—Horace E. Dodge, Jr., millionaire member of the Detroit automobile family, failed to appear in police court here today to answer charges of assault. Dodge is charged with striking a newspaperman and smashing a camera when he returned from Honolulu and sought to escape publicity.

Die-Hard Baldwin to Visit Canada Soon

LONDON, April 27.—Prime Minister Baldwin will visit Canada at the end of this Parliamentary session it was announced today.

Whether he and his die-hard cabinet will still be in office, however, by the end of the session is unknown. The virulent anti-strike bill, proposed by the Baldwin Government, is meeting with opposition throughout England.

President Machado Is Guarded by Hordes of Department of Justice Operatives

Thirty years ago New York City was in a frenzy of passion over the wanton cruelties of "Butcher" Weyler, Spanish general who was "pacifying" the Cuban insurrection. The furors aroused by the newspapers later permitted American imperialism to sweep through the island, kicking out the Spanish oppressors and substituting Yankees.

Yesterday "Butcher" Machado, president of Cuba—America's most important province, murderer of 200 workers and trade unionists, was the official guest of New York City while newspapers fawned upon him and the city's financial leaders congratulated him on his own "pacification" of the Cuban labor movement.

American steel kings and bankers gave Machado a royal welcome. Swished in all the luxuries of the Biltmore Hotel, the portly agent of the American sugar and railroad interests in Cuba was surrounded by dozens of uniformed policemen, plain-clothes men and agents of the department of justice.

The Military Trappings.

The Biltmore Hotel is decorated with flags of the U. S. and Cuba; soldiers and officers in neat, blue uniforms bustle through the corridors.

Scores of cops from the New York police department guard the puppet president of Cuba.

A dozen anonymous under-cover men from the department of justice follow Machado whenever he goes to the bankers' receptions.

The suite of rooms at the Biltmore is carefully guarded from the approach of "strange-looking individuals."

President Coolidge stopped at the Biltmore when he came to town Monday to address the United Press.

Gov. Smith stopped at the Biltmore yesterday. The president of Cuba was sight-seeing in the city. The governor left his card.

Entertained By Bankers.

Yesterday President Gerado Machado of Cuba was the guest at a luncheon given in his honor by the officers of the Chase National Bank.

Many leaders of financial thought in the United States made speeches. Among them were James A. Farrell, president of the U. S. Steel Corporation; William A. Woodin, chairman of the board of directors of the American Locomotive Works; Julius H. Barnes, former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, and Frederick H. Ecker, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

"All Is Well In My Country."

"Cuba is a splendid example of peace and prosperity. . . . Aided by the people of the United States, it has developed its resources. . . . In President Machado are found the qualities of a statesman and a leader of men."

The American business men agreed that things are going on well in the "Republic" of Cuba.

Mutual genuflexions were exchanged.

The aide-de-camp of Machado at the Biltmore told a reporter for The DAILY WORKER that the president was asleep. "Tonight," he said, "will be a dinner in his honor here; it is being given by your mayor."

The president is a vigorous man, he confided, but one must rest.

"Labor troubles in Cuba? No, all that is exaggerated by the Bolshevik disturbers. There is no truth in such rumors."

* * *

Labor Crushed.

There are no genuine labor organizations, no labor press in Cuba. They have all been suppressed by Machado, the representative of the National City Bank. This bank controls directly the General Sugar Co. Its directors control the Consolidated Railways and the immense sugar holdings of the Cuba Co., as well as many other Cuban corporations.

Leaders of trade unions have been executed, many have been deported, some have been shot without hearing or trial.

Unionists Shot.

Enrique Varona, organizer for the Railway Brotherhood, was shot in the back and killed while leaving a theater.

Thomas Grant, the treasurer of the Railway Brotherhood was shot and killed by a policeman in broad daylight.

Baldomero Dumingo was shot at the behest of agents of the "liberal" Machado government.

Foreigners or naturalised citizens, active in the trade unions have been deported from the country, according to the program of dictatorship of Machado.

The Consolidated Railways are owned and controlled by American bankers.

The gunboat "Maximo Gomez," anchored in Havana Harbor, has become a floating prison for those active in the Cuban labor movement. Many are known to have been thrown into the sea.

Labor organizers disappear mysteriously in Cuba.

Not Mentioned In After-Dinner Speeches.

Yesterday President Machado of Cuba was the guest at a luncheon given in his honor by the officers of the Chase National Bank. None of these things were mentioned at the luncheon.

Mayor Walker, the directors of the important business houses—all agree that things are "fine in Cuba."

When the U. S. declared war on Spain in 1898, in order to free Cuba and several other persecuted republics from the domination of that decayed empire, American investments amounted to 50 million dollars. The bankers who greeted Machado were aware yesterday that American investments totalled $1,250 million.

e Coal Miners' Union Has l Leaders Who Dared to Fight the Goverment

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

AT SEA, Aboard the United States Liner, President Roosevelt, Sunday, April 10. (By Mail from Plymouth, England.)—Bank in "The Banker" the government will not admit that there are classes. The spread eagle orators of the established order always refer to "The people," boiling them all en masse.

But not here in the ocean, on this government-owned liner, the class distinctions are as rigid as any Hindu caste system. It is first class, second class and third class according to the dollars that you have, with the privileged aristocracy in its cabins on the top deck feeling quite secure from those herded in the steerage far beneath.

Those distinctions come to mind in retrospection over the new famous declaration of President John L. Lewis, during the 1922 strike of the coal miners, that:

"I cannot fight the government."

President Lewis made the same declaration later during the struggle of the Nova Scotia, Canada, coal miners, the government this time being that of his royal majesty, the king of England.

President Lewis does not say how else the working class shall become the ruling power, except to fight the existing social order. As a matter of fact he does not want the workers to become the rulers.

The whole history of the development of the miners' union has been one of continuous class struggle. It is well for the mine workers to know this, especially to get acquainted with those leaders and the files of the rank and file thru whose sacrifices the strength of the mine workers' organization has grown in the past. The officials of the early days of the union were of a different type than those now associated with Lewis in the present leadership of the organization.

In the early Seventies of the last century the union was also in affairs. Hardly had the Miners' National Association of America gotten under way than it began to feel the effects of the panic of 1873.

Wages were reduced as much as 30 percent in some cases and in other cases the miners were paid in "worthless paper or such as (they) had to dispose of at 20 percent discount." The leaders of local strikes were "victimized" (refused work) and those who had accepted their leadership were compelled to sign contracts abrogating their affiliation with the union as a condition of obtaining work. In some cases the strikers were displaced by Negroes, many of them only recently released from slavery, who were brought north to take the jobs of union men. This was a confession by the mine owners, to be sure, that the nationality and religious differences, that had been exploited to the limit by the mine owners, were no longer as great a source of dissension among the mine workers as previously.

It was under these conditions that the officials of the Miners' National Association advised the loyal members of the union to organize secretly and to sign the contracts imposed upon them in the same spirit that Galileo retracted before the inquisition when he exclaimed, "But it (the world) does move after all."

Of course, the upstanding American citizen, John L. Lewis, the present president of the United Mine Workers of America, would not deign to build the skeleton of an organization secretly in such states as West Virginia, Kentucky, Tennessee, Alabama and elsewhere that the miners' union now finds itself practically outlawed. That would be un-patriotic to his government and disloyal to his friends in Washington, altho it would be the basis of building the organization in the non-organized fields.

The president of the union in those days, John Siney, and Xingo Parks, national organizer, were tried in Pennsylvania under the common law of conspiracy as participants in a combination to raise wages.

In his "History of the United Mine Workers of America," Evans gives a summary of an extract from the address of the prosecuting attorney, declaring that, "the attempt was made to convict the national union, thru its officials, under the plea that the acts and speeches made by Siney and Parks (in connection with a local strike) together with the printed documents, constitutions and laws, represented the acts of the national union and made it equally guilty of a criminal violation of the law of conspiracy."

The government was fighting the union at that time. This was clearly shown by this attack. The difference at that time was that the union had officials who were not afraid to fight back.

Pennsylvania had passed a law in 1869 which permitted workmen to organize unions, but a proviso was inserted that the act should not apply to Clearfield and Center counties, the area in which the local strike had occurred. Whatever the reason for such a proviso, it left the law of conspiracy in full force in those counties.

Another statute in 1872 had definitely relieved workmen's associations from the law of conspiracy for refusing to work for wages or under conditions that were unsatisfactory, but it contained a proviso that the law should not prevent the prosecution and punishment of persons who hindered others who wished to work from so doing. This "joker" in the law enabled the prosecution to charge Siney and Parks with technical violation of the law against picketing and with inciting to riot.

In the trial, Siney was acquitted, but Parks and the local union officials were fined and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment.

By 1875 the Miners' National Association had reached its highest development. The 347 local unions, having a membership of 35,354, were scattered over Pennsylvania (20,840); Illinois (5,122); Ohio (4,734); Indiana (2,168); Missouri (647); Wyoming (544); Maryland (481); Iowa (272); Colorado (242); West Virginia (178); Tennessee (129); Kansas (123); and Indian Territory, now Oklahoma (67). It can thus be seen that the seeds of militant unionism in the mining industry were being widely sown.

The organization, however, soon came to grief during the severe business depression which followed the panic of 1873. Isolated unions sought, thru independent action, to prevent wage cuts locally. This greatly weakened the organization nationally and by the middle of 1876 the national officers were forced to give up their headquarters. The coal barons did not yet accept to stand up as a unit against the mine owners, even to the extent that they were organized, and the national organization, full of promise, melted away.

The miners' union was to emerge largely for the disorganized state of the industry.

OLD PLANES KILL CADETS

Planes of the type pictured above are used to train student fliers, on the theory perhaps that preparation for war includes getting used to danger. Many have fallen lately.

"The Skid Road" of Seattle, Washington

(By ELLA REEVE BLOOR.)

Have you ever heard men talk of the "Skid Road" and wondered what it was like? Let me tell you how I saw it last Sunday Eve. Such a background, it has the Pudget Sound with its great boats sailing to the far north, Alaska and Arctic ports; huge liners for China and Japan.—The men thronging the Skid Road could tell one all about these far off ports—seamen they are, transport workers, longshoremen, lumber workers, gathering here on the waterfront—some looking for jobs, some looking for old friends, and finding them. It's a friendly mob of travellers.

Here, on the Skid Road, we feel at home, especially in one corner a comrade from San Pedro called out, hello Mother, will you talk to us, another fellow-worker, whose bright intelligent face I had last seen in San Quentin, seemed so glad to see me—young comrades and old—waiting for the speakers who would give them the latest news from the battle-front of the Class War. Here Comrade O. Hanrahan speaks every night, and sells The DAILY WORKER—and I wish you could see him do it. Very often he takes a collection of a few dollars and with this buys The DAILY WORKER for distribution, to those who long to read the only daily that contains the truth about the great events in China,—the struggles of the workers in Hungary, Lithuania, and the news about their own fellow-workers. How many papers are sold on the Skid Road every day? One hundred and twenty-five actually sold. Saturday edition 150. There are other water-fronts in this country where the same thing could be done. One can easily judge the educational effect upon these men by listening to their questions and debates. When I had spoken to them of the Sacco-Vanzetti case, and of Scanto and the 30 other Hungarian comrades in danger of death, they passed a resolution unanimously to be sent to the Hungarian Embassy at Washington. When I left to go to a meeting at the Labor College it seemed to me I had seen the real University of the Workers down there on the Skid Road—with The DAILY WORKER as their text-book. The students have travelling "scholarships" on boats bound to distant ports, have long months in the lumber camps; have places in stoke-holes. They will touch the lives of hundreds of other workers.

It is up to the sustainers of The DAILY WORKER, and to the writers of The DAILY WORKER to realize their great responsibility to the eager open-minded young workers everywhere on all the roads of the earth, and may they all be as earnest boosters for The DAILY WORKER as the migratory workers of the Skid Road of Seattle.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

The Fighters.

SAN PEDRO, Cal., April 20.—As I read your paper when I get a chance, I am interested in it.

I would like to write a few words to your letter-box department.

I read in some capitalist paper of Los Angeles, last Sunday that a man who produces by working, is called a "moron." Sure that is the right expression. But here in Southern California, you have more "morons" in the fishing industry than you can find in any other industry, anywhere else.

Talking about old Southern days, well that is nothing compared to the San Pedro fishermen. They are slaves to the man that owns the boat, and 90 per cent of the boat owners are slaves to the fishing cannery or corporation. The fishing corporation makes the fish prices, so the fishermen, with the boat owners, have to take their prices, or eat the fish themself.

Conditions are not worse anywhere else, in this line of industry. But what can you expect from such able-bodied men, when they don't know any better themselves.—John Jurjev.

Why He Left I. W. W.

Editor, DAILY WORKER:

Fellow worker: There appeared in The DAILY WORKER an editorial why members of the I.W.W. do not support the Industrial Worker. You sure hit the nail on the head. In my case that was only one of the reasons why I left the organization and the other is that the I.W.W. has forsaken what Marxism they ever had.

The war has taught us and the Russian Revolution demonstrated it, that the workers must control industries as well as the administrations of legal and other functions. That is what The DAILY WORKER is teaching; so more power to your pen. Long Live The DAILY WORKER.—Mm. Beck, Ex-C. N. 183478.

"Sacco and Vanzetti Refused New Trial by Massachusetts Supreme Court"—Newspaper Item

By HENRY GEORGE WEISS.

O Justice, is it vain to call
In Massachusetts on thy name!
Must our two martyred comrades fall
To blazon to the world thy shame?

O Raped, Defiled, turn way thy face!
Is it not past for you to see;
Lust, judicial, thy disgrace,
They rend the Robe of Tyranny!

TAXATION

By JAMES ZUCHARY.

Tax the people, tax with care.
To help the multi-millionaire.
Tax the farmer, tax his fowl,
Tax the dog and tax his bowl.
Tax the hen and tax her egg.
And let the bloomin' mudsill beg.
Tax the pig and tax his squeal,
Tax his boots run down at the heel;
Tax his horse and tax his hands,
Tax the blisters on his hands.
Tax his plow and tax his clothes,
Tax the roof that wipes his nose;
Tax his house and tax his bed.
Tax the bald spot on his head.
Tax his "Henry," tax his gas,
Tax his shoes where he may pass.
And make him travel on the grass.
Tax his cow and tax his calf,
Tax him if he dares to laugh.
He is but a common man, so
Tax his labor, but be discreet,
Tax him for walking on the street.
Tax his bread and tax his meat,
Tax his shoes clear off his feet.
Tax his pay-roll, tax the sale,
Tax all his hard-earned paper kale;
Tax his pipe and tax his smoke,
Teach him government is no joke.
Tax their coffins, tax their shrouds,
Tax their souls beyond the clouds.
Tax all business, tax the shops,
Tax their incomes, tax their stocks;
Tax the living, tax the dead,
Tax the unborn before they are fed.
Tax the water, tax the air,
Tax the sunlight, if you dare.
Tax them all and tax them well,
Tax them to the very gates of hell!
Then watch the cash gravitate,
By the iron hand of fate,
In terms of millions now and near,
To storage vaults on Wall Street.
But close your eyes so you can't see,
The coupon clippers go TAX FREE.

Steel Trust Splits $45,000,000 Swag in First 1927 Quarter

Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, at their monthly meeting yesterday, declared a quarterly dividend at the rate of 7 per cent for the common stock, payable on the next dividend date. The disbursement will be made on the stock after the distribution of the 40 per cent stock dividend.

Net earnings of the steel corporation in the first quarter of 1927 aggregated $46,584,735, against $53,509,825 in the previous quarter, and $45,061,285 in the same period last yo

A Hero's Reward

By JACK BLANK.

My friend, John Burton, was a jolly young man, of medium build, dark complexion and with brown eyes. He worked steadily, went out with girls and for a result got himself a beautiful girl.

When the U. S. entered the world war my friend was in the first draft call and he had to go to war to fight for Lady Democracy. His girl sweetheart kissed him and sang to him the famous patriotic song, "I Love You, You Know, But I Want You To Go."

Patted By Boss.

The boss patted him on the shoulder and promised that the job would be waiting for him. He went "over there," and fought like a real American, took part in many battles and his heroism was admired by the military staff.

When the war was over he returned full of hope and promise. The first thing he did as a practical man (realizing that business comes before pleasure) was to see the boss in the hope of getting his job back. The boss on seeing him was rather surprised, but he shook hands with him and asked him whether he participated in many battles and how many times he was on no-man's-land.

Tells of Experiances.

My friend told him all that he experienced with great enthusiasm. At the end of his enthusiastic outburst, he remained silent. Silence prevailed in the office for a few minutes. Than the boss rose from his chair, approached my friend and said: "Burton, I am very sorry, your job is taken. I was very busy during your absence, you know, the war-orders came in a rush and I had to take new help." The boss, however, promised him that he would see to it to get him another job.

Gets Cigar.

He gave him a cigar and shook hands again and told him that he had a very important appointment that afternoon at the Hotel Commodore with a Western buyer.

When my friend came downstairs he was in a state of exultation hearing a tune in his mouth, and the idea that he had just spoken to the boss about the thrills which he experienced in France made him forget what the boss told him about his job, and thus he proceeded straightway to see his "girl."

Was Married.

Coming to the apartment where the lady lived, he was met by total strangers. When he inquired about his fiancee he was told that she married a rich man, a foreman of some establishment. This gave him a rude shock, as he expected to marry her and spend his life with her. He sobered up recalling the conversation with the boss, namely the words that he was so busy during his absence that he had to take new help.

His spirit began to dampen, but the idea of seeing his brother and friends cheered him up anew. He went to the lodging house where roomed his brother. The janitor was the first one to see him, shook hands with him, and told him that he was proud of him, that he did his duty well. He saw his brother and for a few days he had a pleasant time visiting their friends and relatives.

Hunts For Job.

His brother, being a travelling salesman, soon left town promising him that he would send him fifty dollars to enable him to buy new clothes and give him leisure to look for a decent job. Meanwhile he did go about hunting the job, but it remained ever elusive. He blamed it on his appearance—but for factory work must one be dressed neatly? He questioned himself. He consoled himself that he would soon get the fifty dollars and could do as he will.

He visited the post office twice a day but the letter was not forthcoming. Days and weeks passed but the couldn't "land" a job. The few dollars which he had were gone.

Is Penniless.

Finding himself penniless he tried to live on cigarets which he borrowed from his friends, and he slept at the railroad station, but his stomach persisted to send him insistent calls for food. Days passed by time. The lack of food finally drove him to panhandle. The first quarter he received made him shudder, he felt ashamed of himself, his heart almost broke. He ran like a madman to the station in which he took part; and how he had saved on officer by carrying him three miles on his shoulders to the hospital.

The ceremony was to take place at the Plaza field, a military band would be on hand and distinguished guests were invited to attend the ceremony of rewarding the hero. When he had finished reading a feeling of dizziness arose in him from his empty stomach which had not digested food for more than three days. But he resolved to go.

Brightens Up.

Coming to the Plaza, he brightened up. Many flags were displayed, hundreds of automobiles surrounded the field and a band of music presented its chorus.

He approached the headquarters. The officers on seeing a shabby unshaven man were taken aback. They asked him for the letter. He produced the letter. They told him that had he come a little earlier they would have "fixed him up" a little bit, but the hour was late and they had to start the ceremonial rites.

They marched out upon the field, the band struck up "My Country 'Tis of Thee," during a speech was delivered praising the hero, and a resplendent medal was pinned onto his lapel. The officers placed my friend at the very front with two officers at each side. The band was signalled to play a military march and the procession started before the eager spectators.

As my friend was marching under the stimulus of music, trying to pose as a hero, his legs suddenly began to tremble and after taking a few more steps he collapsed to the ground.

When my friend awoke he found himself in the hospital.

SEND IN YOUR LETTERS

The DAILY WORKER is anxious to receive letters from its readers stating their views on the issues confronting the labor movement. It is our hope to develop a "Letter Box" department that will be of wide interest to all members of The DAILY WORKER family. Send in your letter today to "The Letter Box," The DAILY WORKER, 33 First street, New York City.

With the Young Worker

"Disarmament Now Rests With Public"—Lord Cecil

Disarmament has been proved practicable and it remains only for the enlightened public opinion to insist that this greatest of all reforms be carried out. So Viscount Cecil sums up the situation. What are all these myths called disarmament and peace? Can we at this time speak of peace and disarmament when workers are being shot down in China and Nicaragua, by those very phrase mongers' soldiers, for attempting to better their conditions of life? Why were the workers shot down in cold blood in Nanking? Why are all the allied forces massing their battleships in the Chinese waters especially at Hankow, the seat of the Nationalist Government? Can we talk of peace when we are at war—nonsense.

The League of Nations can call a thousand disarmament conference but each conference will only be a signal for further armament. The American youth is becoming more and more militarized, suffice it to mention the C.M.T.C. and the R.O.T.C. Are those signs of peace?

M. Sokol, delegate to a disarmament conference at Geneva, urges that the commission draw up a "normal balance sheet." Is this a solution to the problem of militarism? Our slogans to the young worker and student are, "Boycott the C.M.T.C."—"Fight Against Militarism"—"Learn the Truth About the Situation in China and Nicaragua."—John Post.

SPORT

DETROIT WORKERS SOCCER TEAM MAKING GREAT RECORD THIS SEASON.

By WALTER BURKE

DETROIT, Mich.—One of the best amateur soccer teams in Detroit is the Workers Athletic Club outfit. The team recently climaxed a most successful season by handing the Fay Mullers, an undefeated professional team, their first beating. The score of the game was 2 to 0, and both goals were netted thru the accurate toe work of G. Proudfast.

An outstanding feature of the "Workers" play is the remarkable team work which they have perfected. None of the players performed for the gallery.

The Workers Athletic Club is affiliated to the Detroit section of the Labor Sports Union.

LABOR PAPERS BEGINNING TO FEATURE MORE SPORTS NEWS.

Labor papers thruout the country are beginning to realize the value of featuring news of sporting events. What with the tremendous interest of the American workers in sports, it is only logical that the trade union papers should seek to satisfy this interest. In the past this news has dealt mostly with national and professional athletic events, but lately trade union sports activities, have been written up extensively.

To satisfy the demand for labor sports news, tha Labor Sports Press Service has been started in Chicago. This press service is sent out weekly to labor papers free of charge. Scores of labor papers thruout the country are availing themselves of this press service to add an attractive feature to their columns. The Labor Sports Press Service is issued by the Labor Sports Union at 453 North Ave., Chicago, Ill.

TUNNEY EXPECTS TO GET $750,000 FOR NEXT FIGHT.

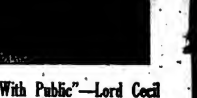
Old time scrappers who used to go to it for 15 rounds, or more, for an average of $2.50 a round, will read about the recent statement of heavyweight champion Gene Tunney that he expects to get 750 thousand bucks for his next fight, and wonder what the old world is coming to anyway. In the so-called good old days, such a fortune would have covered the net income for the entire boxing fraternity for a year.

But times have changed. And by the way, wasn't there a lot of talk at the time Tunney won the championship that he was going to be the "fighting champ"? Yes, it sure was a lot of talk!

Boy Student of Bible Arrested For Stealing

Cecil Snodgross, a Biblical student receives ten year sentence for stealing. Hersy—Our youth must be saved otherwise who knows what these reds might do.

What All Young Workers Say:



Stop crying and join the Young Workers League.

National Office: 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

N. Y. Office: 108 East 14th Street, New York, N. Y.

Special Drawings in the May Day Daily Worker

Line O'type or Two

Working Girls Wanted.

Cyrus H. McCormick of the International Harvester Co., proud possessor of the paltry sum of fifty million dollars ($50,000,000) married a poor working girl employee. Who said there were no opportunities in life.

Seven Hundred Students On Strike.

Charles R. McClinn, Principal of New Albany High School and Miss Alice Funk teacher of botany are dismissed as they approached age for pension. Seven hundred students go out on strike as protest. This game has been played many a time and often.

ABOUT THE C. M. T. C.

By JIMMY.

(Sing this to the tune of Tramp, Tramp, Tramp the Boys Are Marching.)

1.

If you guys will listen clear
'Bout a camp I'll tell you here
That has fooled so many workers right along.
C. M. T. C. sure's the bunk
Beware of swallowing their junk—
'Cause if you do, I tell you now, you're heading wrong.
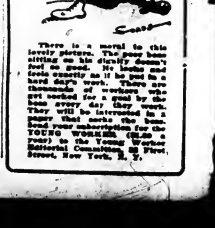
CHORUS:
Tramp, Tramp, Tramp, they keep you tramping
Work you till you're blue and sora,
And when you feel weak in your feet
They give you rotten beans to eat—
Oh, catch me going back there any more!



2.

They give you a vacation free,
A month in camp—that did fool me
I thought the boss was awful nice to let me go.
But after one week had gone by,
And I on hard beds had to lie—
I didn't wish him anything—oh no!
CHORUS:

3.

They give you lectures by the score
(I wonder what the hell they're for)
When most of us would rather take a nap—
And then those damn old drills all day
Till we're 'bout ready to fade away
Whoever goes there sure must be some sap!

SOCKED FOR A GOAL

There is a moral to this lovely picture. The fellow sitting on his dignity doesn't look so good. He is not in the game exactly as if he put a hand on the ball. There are thousands of workers who are socked for a goal by the boss every day of their lives. They will be interested in a paper that backs the fighting and real militant workers. Get a trial subscription for the DAILY WORKER. ($6.00 a year) to the Young Worker Publishing Association, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

Stop the Wall Street-Coolidge-Kellogg War on Chinese Liberation Movement

SUPPLEMENT PART II

THE DAILY WORKER

MAY DAY EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Hands Off China!—Hands Off the Soviet Union!—Smash the Right Wing Drive Against Trade Unionism!—Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Be Freed;

The 1919 May Day Terror in Cleveland

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Victory Loan drive was sagging in Cleveland. The people who were sold a sordid war under the pretense that it was a fight for civilization and freedom for humanity were recovering from the spree and they hugged their dollars regretting that they had not hugged the sons they sent across the ocean to die or be maimed on the bloody fields of Flanders to protect the millions of the House of Morgan that were invested on the side of the allies. The patriotic bankers and business men and their political flunkeys were frantic. The Victory Loan must be put over. The voices of those who continued to tell the masses the truth must be stilled. It was in this atmosphere of contemplated violence that the Socialist Party of Cleveland, under the direction of Comrade C. E. Ruthenberg organized a monster parade on that historic May Day, 1919.

THE Socialists of the city of Cleveland and sympathetic organizations gathered in their respective halls early on May Day and formed in line for the march downtown to the Public Square where they were supposed to arrive by noontime. The procession was orderly. As the parade got under way hoodlums of the American Legion, under the direction of the local business men began to attack the individual marchers who carried red flags. Crippled victims of the war in wheel hairs were used by the reactionaries to arouse the people against the socialists. These unfortunate victims of capitalism did not realize that their crippled bodies was their only gain from a war that raised a crop of American millionaries who were never within hearing of gunshot, and that the men and women they were incited to attack were their best friends whose advice if followed would have kept in the United States the millions of young men who risked life and limb in the bloody holocaust that the imperialist powers turned loose upon the human race.

A DESCRIPTION of the attack on the parade as reported in The Cleveland Press tells us that "trouble started simultaneously on each route as the paraders entered the downtown section." Everything pointed to a well-planned attack.

The Press, which is a member of the allegedly liberal United Press news syndicate, points exultingly to the patriotism shown by the office employes who showered confetti on the hoodlums, labelled "loyalists" as those "heroes" broke the heads of defenseless and "peaceful" workers. How this confetti appeared so suddenly is not explained by the capitalist press but furnishes more evidence in proof of the contention that the attack was planned and premeditated.

The police were supposed to protect the parade but the kind of protection that afforded was the clubbing of the heads of paraders and the killing of two of them.

CRIPPLED war victim James Stevens who was sitting in his wheel chair in front of the Olmstead Hotel deposes:

"The first thing I saw was the red flags. I wheeled my chair into the street as the heads of the column passed and I yelled. 'Get those red flags.'

"Some of the marchers laughed and jeered at me. But my comrades in uniform came running when I yelled, 'Get 'em boys'."

Oh loyal cripple! Oh most perfect soldier of capitalism! Crippled above and below!

Another hero of the day was Sergeant Raymond Williams, "whose arm was shattered at St. Mihiel, who like Stevens, is here for the Victory Loan was one of the first to get a red flag. . . ."

JOSEPH IVANY and Sam Pearlman were shot and killed by policemen. Death alone saved the murdered from being indicted on charges of shooting with intent to kill. The police were exonerated and hailed as heroes. The necessary hysteria for a successful Victory Loan campaign was being worked up. What did it matter if the lives of a few workingmen were sacrificed on the altar of patriotism and that hundreds should be smashed, jailed and separated from their families by deportation?

C. E. RUTHENBERG, then as always, was in the forefront of the fight. He led the parade to the Public Square and mounted the platform accompanied by a number of war veterans in uniform who carried red flags. Those soldiers learned what they had been fighting for and they wanted to show their hatred for the capitalists that sent them to the slaughter. No sooner had the speakers and the radical soldiers mounted the platform than hoodlums attacked them.

The Victory Loan quota for the city of Cleveland was $81,500,000. With only eight more days left the patriots had succeeded only in highjacking $31,000,000 out of the pockets of the public. The bankers did not like the idea of having to fork out the balance even tho they could dig their fists into the people's savings in the banks and claim credit for extra-patriotism.

THE arrests made by Friday numbered 134. Most of those were foreign born. "Almost every other man arraigned" the Cleveland Press reports "appeared with a bandaged head or body bruises. This was the result of blows from police maces or of clubs in the hands of loyalist crowds." Those were the days when habitual criminals accustomed to the rigorous treatment accorded them in United States jails became patriots for the moment by way of a change and got away with it until the war hysteria died down. Many of them are now back in their striped uniforms, numbered and tagged in prison cells.

NOT content with breaking up the parade the "gallant" hoodlums visited socialist party headquarters smashed the windows and destroyed pictures and books. More than 200 workers were injured in the struggle including 17 policemen. All the blows were not on one side. The workers defended themselves as best they could against the armed hoodlums.

In the middle of the second page of the Cleveland Press of May 2, and surrounded by stories and pictures of the riot was an appeal for contributions to the Victory Loan. Here is an example of the threatening language used by the chairman of the drive committee:

"It means a hair-trigger sprint from now on. A victory button is your only protection now. All instructions to wait for the canvassers to reach your homes are off." This meant that a worker without a victory button prominently displayed

(Continued on Page Three)

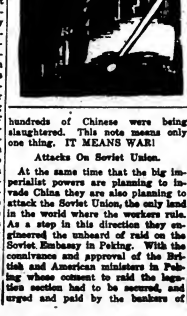
Sink the Electric Chair in a Flood of Protests!

From All Over the World They Come

The Smile That Makes Imperialism Frantic

Young China—Armed and Defiant

MAY DAY, 1927



Declaration of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Com.) Party of America

May Day is International Labor Day—the day when the workers of the entire world demonstrate their solidarity and their determination to fight together in a common cause against common oppressors. There never was a May Day when international solidarity was more necessary than it is today on the first of May, 1927.

A NEW WORLD WAR.

First there is the war danger.

In China, where a nation of 400,000,000 is struggling to be free; where under the leadership of the Chinese labor movement supported by the entire Chinese people, a war of liberation is being waged against the chains of foreign imperialism and native tyranny, the battleships of the big imperialist nations of the earth are massing to throttle the Chinese People's Republic. Over 175 battleships of eight nations are riding in the harbor of Shanghai and far up the inland waters of the Yangtse river.

Under the arrogant leadership of British imperialism which had the biggest strangle-hold upon the economic life of the Chinese people, the great powers are cynically preparing their military intervention to attempt to stop the rising tide of the victorious Chinese revolution. Over thirty of our battleships and all our regiments of marines that are not otherwise occupied in the disgraceful business of invading Nicaragua, are in China. British imperialism which has the biggest stakes there has been trying to make our government and our marines take the lead in butchering Chinese workers. And already our marines have to their credit the invasion of Shanghai and the disgraceful massacre of Nanking. American and British battleships opened up with artillery fire on the civilian population of Nanking under the pretext of defending Socony Hill (Standard Oil Co.) and over 7,000 Chinese men, women and children were slaughtered. American battleships have become tankers for Socony. Now Wall Street and British imperialism have gotten our government to join with England, Japan, Italy, and France in insolent "identic" notes demanding reparations for the fact that one American was killed while hundreds of Chinese were being slaughtered. This note means only one thing. IT MEANS WAR!

Attacks On Soviet Union.

At the same time that the big imperialist powers are planning to invade China they are also planning to attack the Soviet Union, the only land in the world where the workers rule. As a step in this direction they engineered the unheard of raid on the Soviet Embassy in Peking. With the connivance and approval of the British and American ministers in Peking whose consent to raid the legation section had to be secured, and urged and paid by the bankers of England, Japan and America, their hireling, Chang Tso Lin, made his unprovoked attack upon the Soviet Legation in hopes that Soviet Russia would declare war and thus give the other powers a pretext to invade China and attack Russia. But the only government in the world that is sincerely trying to avoid war is the government of the Workers and Peasants of the Soviet Union and in place of falling into the trap it withdrew its ambassador from the puppet government of Peking and warned the workers of the world of the new war plot.

"War To End All Wars."

Ten years ago our country entered into the bloody war which they told us was "to end all wars" and now Wall Street is planning to plunge our country into a bloodier war than the world has ever known. Such a war would be the most unrighteous war and also the most disastrous—a war to crush the rising Chinese republic, a war to crush the Soviet Union. And if those two should be successful then a new series of international wars with England and Japan for the division of the spoils, a war for the partition of China and the control of the Pacific.

We must not permit this new world war for which the nations are arming and the battle fleets gathering in the Pacific. This May Day let us demonstrate in every corner of our land along with the workers of Great Britain, of Japan, of China, of the Soviet struggle. Then Terrence V. Powderly, leader of the Knights of Labor who bore the buphonious title of Grand Master Workman, issued a secret letter in which he advised against being too active in the eight hour movement. At a convention held at Richmond a few months later he defended his traitorous course with the miserable plea that "the education which must always precede intelligent action had not been given to those most in need of it."

Powderly's agents added to his betrayal by taking advantage of the eight hour agitation to increase the membership of his own organization and was highly successful for the reason that the young Federation did not have funds with which to employ even one organizer. The new members in the Knights could not know of Powderly's secret treachery and were strongly behind the eight-hour agitation, which he capitalized only in order that he could more easily betray the movement.

The 1885 convention of the Federation reaffirmed its determination to launch the eight hour day on May First of the next year. In spite of Powderly's circular and the sabotage of his clique the units of the Knights of Labor in the most important centers were unanimously in favor of the movement.

March and April of 1886 saw the most intensive organization of labor groups that had ever occurred in the history of labor anywhere. As the decisive day approached the press serving the interests of the budding trusts began a campaign of vilification and incitement against labor that has had no equal even to this day. A Knights of Labor strike broke over the Gould railroad lines on March 1, over a question of a wage of $1.50 per day and because of discrimination against members who had participated in a strike against the road a year before. Powderly, during the course of the strike, had made the most disgraceful proposals to Jay Gould to "arbitrate" the strike as he wanted it terminated before the Federation's eight-hour struggle began, as by that time it was apparent that the demand was to meet the unanimous resistance of the employers. Gould disdainfully refused arbitration and the strike itself died out and was called off on May 3, two days after the date set for the beginning of the Eight Hour struggle —American Labor's First May Day!

WHEN May Day, 1886, arrived the long-awaited walk-out began but no one then knew the exact number involved. Subsequent statistics place the number at 190,000. More than 100,000 other workers were persuaded to refrain from striking by the promise of shorter hours—but not the eight hour day.

For four days the movement was rapidly spreading when on the evening of May 4, in Haymarket Square in Chicago, during the progress of a mass meeting someone, unquestionably a provocateur, hurled a bomb into a squad of policemen, killing a sergeant and wounding several others.

The wild provocation, the hysterical incitements in the columns of the press, the vapid ravings of the pulpit, the mobilization of all the forces in defense of "law and order," "the family," and "civilization," the riff-raff and hangers-on of capitalist society, need not here be described. Organized terror crippled the eight-hour movement and stopped the spread of the strike.

In spite of the frightfulness and ruthlessness of the enemy the labor movement made substantial gains from the struggle. What the outcome might have been under more

(Continued on Page Three)

Save the Miners' Union—Hands Off Nicaragua and Mexico!—Withdraw All Troops and Battleships From China!—Support the Chinese Trade Unions!

MAY DAY—Yesterday and Today

By H. M. WICKS.

THE May Day that the working class of the world celebrates is not that mystical, far-away festival of sacrifice to gods and goddesses of ancient Greece and the still more ancient Babylon; we do not celebrate it because the name of the month is derived from Maia, the mother of Mercury to whom the Romans offered up sacrifices on the first day of the month, nor because we do homage to the processions to the grotto of Egeria. Nor yet is our May Day derived from the Maypole celebrations in medeival and Tudor England; the gayety of which aroused the ire of the puritans who abolished it during the Cromwellian interregnum.

* * *

OUR May Day is International Labor Day, born of the struggle of the working class against its historical enemy, the capitalist class; born on American soil out of the great eight-hour agitation of the eighties of the last century. For years May First had come to be dreaded by the exploiters of labor in the United States in that era when the colossal trusts of today were young giants endeavoring to enslave the working class of a continent. It is the irony of history that the pressure of the masses of American labor and the preparations that were made for the resumption of the eight-hour struggle in 1899 impelled Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, to request the International Labor Congress at Paris to arrange sympathetic demonstrations throughout Europe on May 1st, the day selected for the beginning of the American eight-hour day strike. It seems ironic today in view of the subsequent history of Gompers who not only repudiated International Labor Day for an innocuous national labor day, but who traduced with the most malevolent billingsgate those workers who even suggested sympathetic strikes in the United States, say nothing of international action.

* * *

THE American labor movement, or rather that portion of it that was organized under the banner of the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, first set aside the First of May for the beginning of a "universal strike" at its convention that began in Chicago on October 7, 1884, when the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, By the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, that eight hours shall constitute a legal day's labor from and after May 1, 1886, and that we recommend to labor organizations throughout this jurisdiction that they so direct their laws as to conform to this resolution by the time named."

But the struggle for the eight-hour-day required something more than a mere resolution directing its affiliated bodies to enforce it, as the new labor movement in America soon discovered as it passed through the blood baptism of the ensuing years.

At the time the resolution was adopted the Knights of Labor played a more important role as far as its influence upon the working class was concerned than did the new Federation which only had an affiliated membership of 50,000, so the convention instructed its "legislative committee" to extend an invitation to the Knights of Labor to cooperate "in the general movement to establish the eight-hour reform."

Few even of the unions affiliated with the Federation adopted the proposal to donate two per cent of their revenue to the fund for financing the struggle. Then Terrence V. Powderly, leader of the Knights of Labor who bore the buphonious title of Grand Master Workman, issued a secret letter in which he advised against being too active in the eight hour movement. At a convention held at Richmond a few months later he defended his traitorous course with the miserable plea that "the education which must always precede intelligent action had not been given to those most in need of it."

Powderly's agents added to his betrayal by taking advantage of the eight hour agitation to increase the membership of his own organization and was highly successful for the reason that the young Federation did not have funds with which to employ even one organizer. The new members in the Knights could not know of Powderly's secret treachery and were strongly behind the eight-hour agitation, which he capitalized only in order that he could more easily betray the movement.

The 1885 convention of the Federation reaffirmed its determination to launch the eight hour day on May First of the next year. In spite of Powderly's circular and the sabotage of his clique the units of the Knights of Labor in the most important centers were unanimously in favor of the movement.

March and April of 1886 saw the most intensive organization of labor groups that had ever occurred in the history of labor anywhere. As the decisive day approached the press serving the interests of the budding trusts began a campaign of vilification and incitement against labor that has had no equal even to this day. A Knights of Labor strike broke over the Gould railroad lines on March 1, over a question of a wage of $1.50 per day and because of discrimination against members who had participated in a strike against the road a year before. Powderly, during the course of the strike, had made the most disgraceful proposals to Jay Gould to "arbitrate" the strike as he wanted it terminated before the Federation's eight-hour struggle began, as by that time it was apparent that the demand was to meet the unanimous resistance of the employers. Gould disdainfully refused arbitration and the strike itself died out and was called off on May 3, two days after the date set for the beginning of the Eight Hour struggle —American Labor's First May Day!

* * *

WHEN May Day, 1886, arrived the long-awaited walk-out began but no one then knew the exact number involved. Subsequent statistics place the number at 190,000. More than 100,000 other workers were persuaded to refrain from striking by the promise of shorter hours—but not the eight hour day.

For four days the movement was rapidly spreading when on the evening of May 4, in Haymarket Square in Chicago, during the progress of a mass meeting someone, unquestionably a provocateur, hurled a bomb into a squad of policemen, killing a sergeant and wounding several others.

The wild provocation, the hysterical incitements in the columns of the press, the vapid ravings of the pulpit, the mobilization of all the forces in defense of "law and order," "the family," and "civilization," the riff-raff and hangers-on of capitalist society, need not here be described. Organized terror crippled the eight-hour movement and stopped the spread of the strike.

In spite of the frightfulness and ruthlessness of the enemy the labor movement made substantial gains from the struggle. What the outcome might have been under more

(Continued on Page Three)

The May Day Hand Clasp

The Symb

LIFE AND LIBERTY FOR SACCO AND VANZETTI!

May Day and the American Farmer

By ALFRED KNUDSON.

MAY Day, the international workers' holiday, should serve as an inspiration to the workers and farmers of America to fight more energetically against the capitalists who exploit them. May Day is created for them as well as the city workers, both the farmers and the workers have the same interests as proletarians of wealth and they have common exploiters, and must, therefore, solve their problems together. On May First they can well demonstrate together,

WHILE it is true that the city workers for various reasons, must take the leadership in the revolutionary struggles against the capitalists and their government, no successful revolution in America is possible without the support and cooperation of the American working farmer. The city worker must get a clearer notion about the significance of the support the workers on the land render him in the winning of these struggles. Through joint demonstrations of farmers and workers on May Day the worker will learn to appreciate the importance of the farmers and vice versa.

I WAS at Kief, the Soviet Union, on May 1st, 1925. Here the farmers and workers, over 400,000 of them demonstrated together, fully conscious of their solidarity. Children, workers, students, teachers, journalists, red army men, all workers, marched together, six abreast on both sides of the street. The parade lasted eight hours. From Minsk in the west to Vladivostock on the Pacific tens of millions of the new and free Soviet citizens are on the march on this May day.

These parades are educational and international and not nationalistic, serving immensly to steel the minds and the nerves of the farmers and workers to fight with greater vigor for their interests. They are a necessity.

TWO-THIRDS of the population of the world are farmers and peasants. These millions of land workers are being more and more tightly squeezed by the landowners and banks and the capitalist governments. Tens of millions of farmers in the advanced industrial countries in Europe and America are rapidly losing their land and groaning under a heavy burden of taxation and hundreds of millions of peasants in the colonial and semi-colonial countries of the East, Near East, Africa, Mexico and South America are in a condition of abject slavery, ground to dust under the blody and rapacious heel of capitalist imperialism. It is beginning to dawn on these workers, the vast majority of the hundreds millions that there is no hope for them under capitalism, that they must make their freedom through their own efforts and new allies.

THE big landowners and capitalists are fighting desperately to hold the farmer as an ally in their schemes of exploitation. As long as they can keep the support of the farming masses they will always be in a strategic position to wield effective weapons of the rise of the power of the city workers. This is a great struggle for supremacy and farmers and workers everywhere must put full to study the situation closely. Too long have the capitalists divided the farmers and the workers, playing the one group of workers against the other. They must prevent these machinations of the capitalists by seeking one another as allies in the most determined fashion. May day demonstrations must serve as a practical means of bringing the farmers and workers world closer together.

THE people of the colonies are now rising with arms in hand against the tyranny of western capitalist imperialism. In the struggle that is now going on in China the Chinese farmers are playing a leading role. Tens of millions of them are following in the footsteps of the Russian farmers by demonstrating the right to occupy and use the land. In this fight against the feudal lords and capitalist imperialism the Chinese farmers need the support of the farmers and workers of the entire world. The Chinese farmers and workers must be supported on this May day in their demands for a free China against both the right-wing merchant elements of their own country as well as the murderous imperialist powers which are looting the Chinese masses.

Hands off the farmers and workers of China!

Down with the right wing and imperialism!

CLASS differentiations among the farmers must be accentuated. Not all the farmers who are on the land have the same interests. There are rich farmers and poor farmers. There are farm owners, tenant farmers and mortgaged farmers and farm workers. These do not belong in the same class. Their class interests are not the same.

THE task before us in the United States at the present time is to develop a left wing political movement among the farmers which can be done by organizing the exploited classes, i. e., the heavily mortgaged farmers, the tenants and the farm farmers of the country, through the adoption and formulation of demands and slogans calling for "land for the users," "a farm credit system operated by working farmers," "nationalization of the railroads and the farm marketing system," "an alliance with the city workers," "a farmers' and workers' government," etc.

With the fiasco of the McNary-Haugen bill and the obvious inexpacity of congress to aid the working farmer, the opportunity for carrying such a movement successfully forward is better than ever.

WE must develop left wing fighters among the working farmers of America. This is the crying need of the hour. All talk about having the farmers form alliances with the bankers and businessmen, as Lowden and Dawes and the so-called progressives advocate must be set upon and enorgetic efforts made to drive the farmers away from the old parties and get them to join the farmer-labor movement, forming political and economic alliances with the city workers.

THE working farmers must do the job of getting farm relief in alliance with the city workers. This is true not only in America but in all countries. Joint May day demonstrations of farmers and workers in America, China, Mexico, Nicaragua and all other nations will make out of them better fighters and get them to realize that they must stand together in the fight against the capitalists who exploit them both.

Working Women and May Day

By MARGARET COWL.

MAY Day! The Workers International Holiday!

May Day, the day on which the workers more than ever, bare the sham of "democracy for all." The day on which the workers demonstrate that they are the prodigious of the world's wealth. The revolute cramping feet of the great army of workers is a defiance to the rule of the exploiting class. It is a day when the class note vibrates thru the universe.

WHAT message does this May Day bring to the working women?

To the awakened working women in the Soviet Union May Day symbolizes the fact that they are an integral part of the world revolutionary movement for the emancipation of the oppressed in every country. The women in the Soviet Union, together with the whole working class, have loosened their bonds. The old traditions binding women have been shattered and they stand on an equal social and economic level with the entire working class of the Soviet Union that is shaping the country in the interests of the workers. Women in Russia engaged actively in the fight for a Workers' government, and now they share in the victories.

TO the awakening women in China this May Day brings hope and inspiration to fight more actively against the yoke of imperialism which bears down more and more heavily on the backs of the doubly enslaved women.

On this May Day what do working women in the United States look forward to?

The capitalist press and capitalist agencies are carrying on a campaign of propaganda to the effect that workers in this country are growing rich, that the hours of labor are short. Foreign commissions ase coming to this conntry to find out the reasons for this "prosperity" of the American workers.

NOT only the church, school, press and the movies—a powerful influence in the hands of the anploying class to lash the minds of the workers—but also the labor bureaucracy helps to disseminate this propaganda.

WHAT is the real situation of the army of women in American industries?

Taking 100 as the index number for the cost of living and 100 for women's wages in 1914, we find that for the last quarter of 1925 the cost of living is 171 and women's wages are 128. The average working week for women is 54 hours and more.

The year 1926 did not bring improved conditions.

The unskilled, the socially and economically weakest—the women—will be hardest hit in the coming employers' drive.

THE labor bureaucracy, allied with the capitalists will bear down them. They will as in the past, plead charity from the capitalists and attempt to keep the workers from fighting for their demands.

Even now the official American labor leaders are preparing to sell out the workers to the bosses. They are throwing out from the trade unions the militant workers who expose their class-collaboration policies.

TO the millions of unorganized women, women bending under the weight of the speed-up system, to the millions of housewives, living a life of privation, slaving long hours at domestic work, this May Day is but another day of monotonous toil. Only the warm hand of comradeship can lift these millions of women out of their dejection. This task belongs to the awakened women.

Women Comrades! Are you ready to accept this task!

The eyes of women from other countries are upon us!

THE women in China expect our active support. What are we doing to arouse the American working women to fight against the sending of marines and battle ships into China? To fight the efforts of American imperialists who are attempting to crush the struggle of the Chinese workers for liberation?

The women of the Soviet Union are holding up to us the shining example of their liberation.

WOMEN Comrades! On this May Day let us pledge ourselves to the task of working more actively among the proletarian women.

We must go to the women with whom we work and get them to join the Workers (Communist) Party. We must convince them that The DAILY WORKER is their friend.

We must mobilize the masses of women for the defense of those workers who were railroaded to prison because they held the fort during the most trying days in the workers struggle for a better existence. We must bring the working women into the unions.

We must be the pioneers in the every-day struggles of the working women. Struggles, that for instance, are in the words of Comrade Clara Zetkin, streamlets, riverlets swelling into rivers that will eventually surge into the great ocean of proletarian revolution and ultimately free women together with the entire working class from capitalist exploitation and men and women will rise in their full stature and live a life free and glorious.

The Struggle Against Imperialism and Feudalism in China

CH'AO-TING CHI,
Member of Chinese Delegation to the Brussel's Congress against Imperialism.

TODAY is May First again! Looking back eight years ago I remember a group of enthusiastic Middle School students, most of them around fifteen years of age, busily engaged themselves in celebrating the May Day. The school was one of the most exclusivo and imperialist dominated (I prefer the term "imperialist dominated" than "foreign dominated") institutions in Peking, chiefly infested with sons of the best selected "bourgeois families" thruout China. It was not likely that such an institution would encourage the students to soil their hands by mixing themselves with sueb a heretic movement like May Day. But somehow or other, something told these innocent youngsters that the world of labor was rising and their efforts could not be spent in a nobler fashion than to work amidst, and for the interest of, their working brothers and sisters. With the scanty material which they gathered from a few radical magazines, they mimiographed a special May Day bulletin and distributed thom to the couple hundreds of school servants.

* * *

I CAN still recall vividly the happy scenes over which wo rejoiced when we noticed that the school servants actually took some interest in the paper and that our first revolutionary labor was not entirely without effect.

IT was through little efforts like this here and there throughout China that the Chinese labor movement was built. Those students who neglected their studies more or less, devoted their time to this kind of work like martyrs, under the sneering and contemptuous criticism and prosecution of their conservative teachers and "sober" fellow students. Little did they realize that within a decade's time they could witness the almost unbelievable transformation of their humble efforts into a gigantic Labor movement. Of course their enemies had very graciously prepared the ground for them. Foreign imperialism and militarism had impoverished the workers to such an extent that a bare living was hardly possible. The Chinese labor movement was built upon such a background, a background full of revolutionary possibilities. It is accomplishing its historic mission by becoming the backbone of the Chinese Revolutionary movement. Those who sneered at the work when it was at its pioneer stage now acclaim the success of the revolution, evidently forgetting their "sober," "sane," and "common sense" predictions of the hopelessness of tho movement. There are still "cool-headed" skeptics now who doubted the possibilities of a world revolution!

* * *

MAY Day and China! Yes. This is a most interesting moment to reflect upon the Chinese revolution. If newspaper reports are true, the "power-intoxicated" generalissimo of the Cantonese army, Chiang Kai-shek, has at last turned against the revolution. Success is dangerous, particularly when ono's enemy was bent upon exploiting the success. Nobody donbted that Chiang Kai-shek was successful up to his recent coup d'etat at Shanghai, but if any one, particularly Chiang Kai-Shek himself, should accredit the success mostly to the ability of ono man, he is at his wit's end. The revalation is fundamentally a mass movement, led by the working class and organized peasants. The clear class consciousness and deep-rooted revolutionary spirit of the Chinese masses are more than the world realizes. It takes supernatural effort, if there is such a thing, to turn the wheel of the revolution backward. Chiang Kai shek was but a tool, an employee of the mass to direct their military forces. Like an engineer he was but a technician of the enterprise, and engineers are seldom the masters of the work.

IT was by the realization of this fact, by following the will of the mass and by guarding the interest primarily of the workers and the peasants that Chiang Kai-shek accomplished what he has done up to the time of his backward move at Shanghai. He owed his success to his early adherence to the "left-wing" principles of Kuomintang which represents the logical and true interpretation of Sun-yet-senism. Now that he has shamelessly turned against the party and the principles that pushed him upward and forward, he is bound to fall downward and backward, deep into the fathomless bottom of failure sharing the same fate with his bourgeois supporters and imperialist manipulaters.

* * *

ALTHOUGH students did play a very important rolo in the early stage of Chinese labor movement and are still of considerable importance, it must not be that only students are leading the movement. Out of the struggle many capable leaders from the rank and file of the laboring class are developed. For instance, Comrade Chan Kuan, whom I met at Brussels, is a typical example of the courageous, intelligent, and tactful leaders of the rising ruling class of China. He represented one and a half million organized workers of China at the Brussels Congress. He is one of the leaders of the Chinese Seamens' Union which is the cementing force and directing spirit of the movement. He also represented the General Labor Unions and the Canton-Hongkong strike Committee. Ho was a very active leader in the famous Hongkong strike and I was told that he was badly hated by the British imperialists. From the boundless confidence and pride with which he talked of the Hongkong strike, you can build up a fairly accurate mental picture of the virtues, ability, and potential power of the Chinese working class! Without exaggeration one can correctly say that the foundation of the Chinese working class movement is well laid. It is strong enough to stand successfully against the bad weather conditions of treachery and temporary drawback. Before very long the world will witness a strong and unified socialist Chinese republic dominated by the workers and peasants and pleiging itself to fight for, and safeguarding, the interests of the workers and peasants of the whole world.

THE CHINESE MASSES ON GUARD

THE HEART OF IMPERIALISM

WORKERS! PROTEST AGAINST DEATH OF SACCO and VANZETTI!

Support the Chinese Workers and Peasants Against Wall Street

May Day Yesterday and Today

By H. M. WICKS.

(Continued from Page One)

conservative leadership can never be estimated.

Powderly at the head of the Knights of Labor had played the role of an agent of the employers from the beginning and at the first blast from the infuriated capitalist posse and pulpit. Compers ran up the white flag of disgrace and, instead of trying to rally labor's forces to defend the victims of America's first May Day, he cowardly disowned them in the following words:

"The effect of that bomb was that it not only killed the policemen, but it killed our eight-hour movement for that year and for a few years after, notwithstanding we had absolutely no connection with those people."

These were not the words of a fighting labor leader, but of a miserable poltroon. The loathsome Powderly lamented that "the bomb has set the labor movement back fifty years!"

• • •

AT the American Federation of Labor Convention held at Baltimore in 1887 (the name had been changed the year previous) no mention was made of the eight-hour day in official proceedings, but the widespread unemployment due to intense industrial depression forced a resolution on shorter hours that concluded with the observation that "so long as there is one man who seeks employment and cannot obtain it the hours of labor are too long."

But in 1888 at the St. Louis convention the eight-hour question again came up and the First of May, 1890 was set as the date for another attempt to enforce it. It was at this convention that the resolution was ordered sent to the International Conference at Paris in 1889.

The European workers responded to the call of the Internetional and on May 1 demonstrations were held in most of the cities of Europe as an expression of solidarity with the struggle to be initiated by the American labor movement.

• • •

BUT again the miserable ineffectiveness of Gompersism, only then in the early stages of its malignancy, asserted itself. The carpenters' office went on strike. Plans had been made for the miners to follow them and then gradually to spread the movement to all industries. The carpenters succeeded in shortening their hours, but the miners were so poorly organized that they could not take up the fight.

Agitation to induce the miners to launch an eight-hour drive on the next May Day, 1891, was taken up, but still the miners could not respond. Next it was proposed that the executive council select another trade to make the attempt on May 1, 1892. Then at the Denver convention in 1894 a last attempt at a "universal (general) strike" was to be made on May 1, 1896. But at the New York convention the next year this was abandoned because, according to Gompers, it was "decided that the magnitude of the interests involved made unwise a demand for the eight hour day May 1, 1896, but affiliated unions should individually begin efforts to secure the shorter work day for the members."

Thus, ten years after America's first May Day, the official machine of the A. F. of L. surrendered for the last time all effort toward concerted action by all labor.

Under pressure of the membership a feeble attempt at revival of the agitation was made the next year, and May 1, 1896, was selected as a date on which a demand would be made for the enforcement of the eight-hour day, but the Spanish-American war furnished the excuse to abandon that half-hearted attempt.

The next action favoring inauguration of the eight-hour day was the endorsement by the Federation of the Typographical Union fight that began on January 1, 1906.

Meanwhile the Federation had officially endorsed its own Labor Day, a purely nationalist Labor Day, to be celebrated the first Monday in September.

• • •

BUT the European workers have not abjured May First and to this day its approach strikes terror into the hearts of the capitalist class throughout every part of the world.

In spite of the fact that official labor in the United States does not recognize the day that was first set aside for its own youthful challenge to the master class, there are thousands upon thousands of workers who celebrate it and who meet and take invoice of the struggles of the past in order better to prepare for the conflicts that are coming.

The class conscious workers here celebrate with their comrades in other countries and the master class even here fears its approach. No one ever heard of frantic preparations being made by the coercive forces of the government because of anticipated outbreaks on the first Monday in September. But on every First of May in this stronghold of capitalism the defenders of property and order are always on the alert.

Who in the vanguard of the labor movement today in the United States can ever forget May Day, 1919, when the streets of a dozen cities in the country ran red with the blood of the working class as massed demonstrators faced the clubs, the guns and the armoured tanks of the gunmen of capitalism? The workers of Cleveland remember the bloody scenes on the Public Square when the late leader of the Workers (Communist) Party, C. E. Ruthenberg, rallied tens of thousands to celebrate International Labor Day by showing their solidarity with the victorious workers and peasants of Russia and the struggling workers of Continental Europe who were endeavoring to throw off the yoke of despotism that had made a shambles of that part of the world. In New York, Boston, Detroit, the Pacific coast cities and in many other places the terror raged against militant labor on that day.

• • •

TO deplet the history of May Day in Europe is to review the history of the European working class for more than a quarter of a century. We can here only relate a few incidents that must suffice for this brief article.

One European May Day that will be remembered as long as there are inhabitants upon the earth to read the glorious pages of labors' struggles is May Day, 1916, when Karl Liebknecht stood in Potsdam Square in Berlin, in the uniform of a German reserve, and hurled defiance at the imperialist war-mongers of his own and every other country engaged in the world slaughter. The fight that should have been taken up by the official socialist parties at the very outbreak of the war was carried alone by Liebknacht, Luxemburg, Mehring and their small group of close co-workers during the darkest days of the holocaust. On that day the man characterized by Lenin as the foremost leader of the working class was thrown into the Kaiser's dungeon, from whence he was to emerge after the armistace only to be foully murdered by the contemptible scoundrels of irriftable apostacy, Schiedemann, Ebert and Noske, heroes of the Social Democracy and the Second International who went over to the camp of the imperialists at the first blast of the trumpets of war.

• • •

THE events of a year ago today, in England, are now and for years to come must be the subject of careful study by the working class. In the heat of the class struggle a new era was forged. The lock-out of the British miners to enforce wage-cuts and accomplish reductions that occurred on May Day brought into action in the most dramatic manner within four days more than four million workers who stood ready to face with the organized power of the state and face to face with the great betrayal of May 12, on the part of the Thomases, Clynes, Macdonalds on the extreme right and exposed the miserable role of the "official left," (Purcell & Co.). The ensuing thirty weeks exposed to all the workers the true character of the right wing when they lined up with the Baldwin government in the conspiracy to starve into submission the wives and children of the miners who, through the capitulation of the General Council, were left to fight alone.

• • •

AS May Day dawns this year in the United States we face a ruling class entrenched in the mightiest citadal of imperialism the world has ever seen. The official leaders of labor, at the head of the same organization that took the initiative in making May First the International Labor Day, are inextricably bound to carry out the anti-labor policies of the master class. Some 150,000 miners are on strike in various sections of the country, valiantly struggling against the steady encroachment of the non-union mines while John L. Lewis and his vicious machine refuse to extend and make effective the strike. In the needle trades in New York the socialist right wingers supported by the Green-Woll bureaucracy have shown that there is no depth of depravity to which they will not sink in forming alliances with the employers, the police and the courts in order to maintain themselves at the head of the unions they once dominated, so that they may continue as leeches upon and betrayers of the workers in that industry. They are proving by their actions that they have so little regard for the welfare of the labor movement that they will endeavor to wreck it just as pirates scuttle a ship they are compelled to abandon before permitting it to fall into the hands of those to whom it rightfully belongs.

The printing trades unions are in the hands of agents of the employers and in the oldest union of them all, the International Typographical Union, two sets of politicians—both equally reactionary, striving to foist themselves upon the membership in order that they may be able to hold their jobs as agents of the employers—have thrown the affairs of the union into state and federal courts, so that capitalist judges, and not the membership, control its destinies.

In practically all industries the unions stagnate under the blight of unprincipled scoundrels who have swindled or terrorized their way into office where they serve as labor lieutenants of capitalism.

Only the left wing, the militant section of the working class, and the revolutionists, the Communists, carry on a relentless struggle for the elementary demands of labor today. Experiences of the year have exposed to ever increasing masses of workers the real menace to the labor movement of the reactionary officials and in many, even of the most conservetive organizations, a determined opposition is crystallizing against the policy of treachery and inaction that has so vitiated the movement in the past.

• • •

THE immediate major task of this May Day is one in which the Communists must take the lead—the struggle against the mad policy of American imperialism in China, in Nicaragua and in Mexico; the utter disregard for the lives of the millions of workers; the cynicism with which official Washington indulges in platitudes of peace while indulging in frantic preparations for war.

In Nicaragua American marines and native mercenaries, armed with instruments of destruction supplied by the United States, are crushing the duly constituted government while the state department issues hysterical diatribes against Bolshevist influence, in a puerile attempt to justify its own infamy. In Mexico agents of the United States are caught resorting to the old American game of bluff and buncombe by first permitting the Calles government to obtain possession of war department plans for military action in that country and then, when Calles instead of becoming terrorized into submission, exposes the military preparations, the doddering old imbecile in the state department tries to conceal his blundering by directing the ridiculous yarn that state documents have been stolen and tampered with in order to arouse antagonism against the sadly wronged, benevolent and innocent United States government.

But most infamous of all the imperialist ventures is the utterly debased acts of provocation on the part of this country against China and the Soviet Union. Americau warships on the Yengste river engage in shelling Chinese towns and murdering in cold blood uncounted Chinese men, women and children, under the shabby pretext that they are "defending" American residents who are there, in spite of the fact that these meddlesome Americans have no business there in the first place and in the second place they have had ample opportunity to get into safety zones and if they have not done so it is their own fault.

The forces of this country are in China only because of the fact that American capital is invested there and because that country is capable of absorbing a fabulous amount of investment capital that must be disposed of, for the simple reason that if new places of investment are not always open the surplus wealth produced by the workers will lie fallow, will stagnate and wreck the whole system of capitalist economy.

Against the sanguinary designs of American imperialism the vanguard of the working class must exert every ounce of its energy to awaken the workers to a realization of what the capitalist class has in store for them, and must endeavor to mobilize in a determined struggle against American imperialism the masses of workers and poor farmers of this nation. This May Day should be utilized for the purpose of ripping from the faces of the lackeys of imperialism at Washington their hypocritical pacifist mask and exposing them as monstrous criminals who are gambling with the lives of the youth and young manhood of the nation.

We must demand that this government withdraw its gunmen of imperialism from Nicaragua; that Kellogg get out of office and quit his preposterous buffonery about "forged documents" that his own agents are responsible for and which were exposed when Calles refused to be browbeaten by being threatened with the grandoise military preparations of the United States government against Mexico in the interests of the oil, mineral and land owners; that the government get its gunboats and soldiere out of China and keep them out.

We must in no uncertain terms insist that the Back Bay codfish aristocracy of Massachusetts and its puppet judge, Thayer, who have conspired to send Sacco and Vanzetti to the electric chair, be prevented from murdering these two champions of the exploited textile slaves of that state.

Here in New York a mighty protest must ring forth against the unholy alliance of the A. F. of L. autocracy, the employers and the police, the prosecutors and the courts who have paved the way to send to the penitentiary the nine members of the Furriers' union convicted on perjured testimony of stool pigeons for the crime of leading a militant and successful strike against the bosses of that industry.

On every front, with every weapon at hand, the workers of the United States must struggle during the next year to clear the ground so that we can go forward to greater victories.

The Mighty Weapon of the Masses

Unity of Marine Transport Workers a May Day Slogan

By FRED HARRIS

TO link the First of May, the international labor day of the world's proletariat, with the marine industry is perhaps somewhat more difficult than with any other trade. This is a fact in the United States.

The two outstanding unions representing marine transportation are the International Seamans Union and the International Longshormens Association of America, both of whom are headed by an officialdom conservative at first but later becoming reactionary. Due to the peculiar character of continuous mobility of their trade, the progressive members in the union had verr little influence on the conservative policy of their leaders, since these men would never be long enough under such destructive leadership is obvious.

• • •

AND yet, no trade is more in need of it than the seamen. Wages, working and living conditions are on par with those of twenty years ago. The difference being that at that time a strong organization was being builded, whereas at the present time only a shadow, a weak, vacilloting remnant of a fighting union remains. There is hope, however for a change; the spirit of revolt is growing, and the near future may show us a new, reorganized, industrial union of merine transport workers.

• • •

SO much for the local situation. In other countries we find that the shipowners have been busy with their own open shop plans and are continuously encroaching upon the organization rights of the sailor. Vividly does this writer remember a labor day parade on May 1, 1914, in Melbourne, Australia, in which it was his good fortune to participate. Labor was out in full force with huge, picturesque floats and flying colors. No one wage worker, whose service was dispensable, failed to march in line. Policemen and other "law and order" elements were conspicuous by their absence. It was labor's own day, and labor took it and celebrated. However the workers of the antipodes were careless with their possession and didn't guard their treasury like they should have done, and so, during the war, that unbusiness fell victim to the patriotism for their country. It was a bad fall, and Australia's workers are now paying a price which will teach them to organize in the future on the basis of the class-struggle, and instead of dabbling with a lot of sentimentel ideals to build a class conscious proletariat which will know how to keep clear of capitalistic pitfalls.

• • •

ENGLAND, the classic land of trade unions, is now going through the necessary ordeal of burying its dead. Havelock Wilson, president of the National Seamens Union of Great Britain, must go. He has committed the most unpardonable crimes, has become the intimate friend and protege of Sir Walter Runcilman, large shipowner and the greatest enemy of the British seamans union; he refused to obey the command of the general council of the trade union council to participate with his union in the general strike last year, and like his prototype, Thomas, even refused to attend the Trade Union Congress at Bournemouth, to defeud his treachery before that body. The British seamen must not tolerate his leadership any longer. There is already an opposition union, led by Shinwell, former minister of mines in the MacDonald cabinet, which, the week end vacillatiga, has nevertheless already challenged Wilson and his traitorous leadership.

IN the meantime, half of the marine workers in Britain are still unorganized. It will be the task of the International Transport Workers' Union, sponsored by the Minority Movement, to organize the men into a powerful industrial union. This new union is already calling upon all workers to refuse work on any boat carrying troops, ammunition and other war material.

• • •

IN Germeny and France the organization work, under the leadership of the Amsterdam International, is lacking. Seamen in these countries work under intolerable conditions. The wages of the Germen seamen were raised during January, yet with this new raise the wages amount to only 100 marks ($25) a month. A longshoremen's strike which was called in Hamburg in September, 1926, had to be called off after two weeks, because of utter futility. The conditions in France are just as bad.

• • •

THE brightest spot is Soviet Russia. Here there has been real progress. The wages are nominally high and places a seaman within the same standard as men working on shore. Ship committees are elected to look after the affairs on the ship, such as to observe that the working rules are enforced, to look after provision regulations, cleanliness of the living quarters, and to arrange for an educational program of reading and speaking. Union meetings are held right on board of the ship during working hours. Each year, when the sailor is in the home port, he gets one month's vacation with pay, during which time he is treated on shore like a guest.

• • •

IT is also of great significence to observe the building of a strong seamen's union in China, which country is now undergoing such tremendous historical change. It is noteworthy, that during the Chinese seamen's strike in 1923, the marine traffic was completely tied up, so much so, that some of the superior white races came to the rescue and scabbed on the Chinese seamen, thus setting our historical precedent as to the white man's ethical concept in his treatment of colored races.

Marine workers in capitalistic countries have therefore all reasons to look forward to a time when they also will be organized industrially and when, by the virtue of their economic strength, they will enjoy the working conditions of a free race, and when their status as working men will cause the respect of all those who now sneer at him. The First of May is a symbol of workers' solidarity, when the labor forces rally together and make their demands known.

Labor must celebrate the day of the proletariat, the first token of World Trade Union Unity.

The 1919 May Day Terror in Cleveland

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from Page One)

would be received by his boss with a fishy eye.

And: "Nail everyone in your territory. Pin him down to a subscription. Reach him at home, where he works or on the street. Sell him a bond."

• • •

THE wages of sin is death according to those who make a living at the sin business. The wages of patriotism is either death and poverty or affluence. It all depends on whether the patriot is being run or running. The bonds that were puchased in 1919 are now safely deposited in the banks who have performed the difficult financial feat of having the loaf they had eaten. The patriotic purchasers retain only a memory.

The concerted attacks on the workers on May Day 1919 ushered in a reign of oppression of the left wing socialist movement in the United States (afterwards transformed into the Communist movement) and has continued ever since with more or less intensity. The efforts of the capitalists to crush this movement and put it out of existence has failed however. Despite the general apathy prevailing among the workers and the treachery of the trade union bureaucrats and their socialist allies the revolutionary movement is virile and hopeful. While in 1919 the Soviet Union was being attacked on all sides and reeling under the blows of world capitalism, today it is impregnable, conscious of the loyalty of its millions of workers and peasants, the strength of its proletarian armed forces and the love of the class-conscious workers of the world.

The existence of the Soviet Union is a perpetual challenge to the enemies of the workingclass and when they strike at the Communist movement in the various countries they have a vision of what is in store for the robber classes when the workers of all lands develop their strength to the point where they will be able to dot the globe with Soviet Republics.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day

Two Judases Applaud a Third

The Power Behind "Banditry"

SUPPORT THE MINERS' STRIKE; SAVE THE MINERS' UNION!

Wall Street Takes Nicaragua

By ROBERT W. DUNN

One of the "dependencies" included in the colonial empire of the United States is Nicaragua. It is slightly larger than Cuba but with only a fifth of Cuba's population.

Nicaragua is chiefly important to the American empire because through it lies the route for a second canal connecting the Atlantic and the Pacific. The United States Empire needs such a canal. This explains "our" protectorate over Nicaragua and "our" military interventions in Nicaragua in 1899, 1907, 1910, 1912, 1925 and again in 1926-1927. It explains why a High Commission of three persons, one representing the State Department of the United States and one representing the American bondholders, the third a Nicaraguan, acts as a collection agency for American interests in that country. An American, appointed by the President of the United States, collects all the customs in Nicaragua.

Then Americans have investments in lumber, fruit and mining enterprises in that country. They exploit "cheap," "native" labor. The landing of marines is necessary, if for no other reasons, Calvin Coolidge contends, then to protect those interests. He puts it this way: "If the revolution continues" against Mr. Coolidge's and the bankers' pet president, Diaz "American investments and business interests will be very seriously affected, if not destroyed. . . . The proprietary rights of the United States in the Nicaragua Canal, . . . place us in a position of peculiar responsibility." Very peculiar.

So "we" are in Nicaragua with six thousand marines because we need a canal and American bankers and business men need more profits and Nicaragua is a good base from which to direct an attack on Mexico. The bankers are modest. They might even be satisfied with a 6 per cent. loan—that is with the proper security. The marines are that security.

This is, of course, not the first time the United States has played the marine game in Nicaragua. In 1912 the bankers' friend, Don Adolfo Diaz, a reactionary, became president. When a revolution broke out against him American marines were landed under the command of Major Smedley D. Butler, late of China and formerly of Philadelphia. Eight American warships and about 2,000 men did the trick. Diaz was restored, a number of marines were left on guard to see that he was kept in office. All revolutions were then kept down, just as previously they had been fomented by the Americans when it served the interests of Brown Brothers & Co., to start one under the proper reactionary auspices.

The marines placed in Nicaragua in 1912 stayed until 1925, having crushed several attempts at revolution by the Liberals of the country. A few months after they were withdrawn, in 1925, a general pulled off a coup d'etat, later resigning to permit brother Diaz to be "elected" by a handpicked congress from which all Liberals were excluded—as most of them were then in jail. Immediately upon his election the Wall Street government of Washington recognized Mr. Diaz. But the Liberals started a counter-movement threatening Diaz with force in an attempt to put in the already constitutionally elected President Sacasa, who had been forced to flee the country. Whereupon Washington rushed in the marines and proceeded to declare as "neutral" zones the important parts of the country held by the Liberals. "We" are still extending these "neutral" zones.

The situation is to be summarized in the words of Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota: "The present dictator of Nicaragua, Diaz, whose illegal usurpation of power provoked the existing trouble, is and always has been a mere pawn of the American banking interests, as was his associate and predecessor, Chamorro; and it is a curious coincidence to say the least, that for a long period of years the Department of State always has seen fit to invoke the might of the American marines to put down he Liberals . . . and never yet has deposed one of these dictators who have betrayed their country to the American banking interests."

There is nothing curious about this, however, when one remembers our "peculiar responsibility" and that Nicaragua is for sale over the Diaz counter to the American bankers. They might have to pay more for it if they bought it from some other party. A Diaz agent in search of a loan of $20,000,000 has agreed, "in return for the advantages accruing to Nicaragua from such a loan we are prepared to accept measures of control by an American financial advisor and receiver general which the American Government might consider proper."

So as American capital and its government work around toward the granting of the loan, the marines remain on the job, naval vessels patrol the harbors, the "neutral" zones are being established, the Diaz national guard is being trained by American military men, the customs continue to be collected by a man from Wall Street, the national bank is run by American directors and managers, Americans direct the national railroad, and Mr. Diaz, the American installed president, is sitting pretty.

If you would know the full story of American intervention you must not lose sight of Brown Brothers & Co., J. & W. Seligman & Co., Baker Kellogg & Co., the J. G. White Engineering Co., The United Fruit Co., and Robert F. Loree, President of the Bank of Central and South America. These are some of the important firms and figures who have helped to determine events in that country. The Atlantic Fruit Co. and the Cuyamel Fruit Co., have also important interests as have a number of other commercial firms. Over 70 per cent of the foreign trade of the country is with the United States.

But chiefly one must remember the canal and the aims of the American Empire in the Caribbean. The United States is in Nicaragua to stay. The rights to this second canal must be protected. The usurper Diaz happens to serve best the imperialist interests of the United States and their designs on Mexico.

There is no danger of "war" with Nicaragua. It is our country now. Its military forces could scarcely cope with the police force of New York City. It is as completely a part of the American Empire as Cuba, Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

RED GUARDS HOLDING THE PASS

(By GEORGE JARRBOE.)

Stand! It is the evil hour.
The road is blocked ahead, behind.
The toxic clouds above us sour,
And Death pours through the shrieking wind.
Home is far but trenchant steel
Holding in an unfaltering hand,
We smile. Despite the wounds we feel
We shall stand.

Steel we hold is unfaltering will
Working through the pliant hand.
Each soul a high, impregnable hill,
We shall stand. We shall stand.

MAKE WAY FOR THE UNION!

THE CLOSED DOOR OF THE OPEN SHOP

Make the Miners One Hundred Per Cent Strike!

ALL SUPPORT TO THE STRIKING MINERS!

FELLOW Workers and Brother Unionists:

The miners strike is already one month old. Over 150,000 miners have downed tools and gone on strike to prevent further cuts in wages and worsening of conditions of labor. The striking miners are waging a valiant struggle to protect themselves, their wives and children, from starvation and misery that the coal operators are determined to force upon them. They are fighting to save their union, the backbone of the American Federation of Labor, which is in danger of being destroyed by the combined efforts of the coal operators, the friendly cooperation of the government, and the criminal negligence of the reactionary Lewis administration.

THE miners are fighting for their very existence. The strike must be won if the miners are to retain even a semblance of a decent standard of living. The coal operators must be defeated if the miners' union is to be saved from destruction. The miners must be victorious in order to prevent a serious disaster to the entire American labor movement.

Broaden the Strike.

MINERS! Workers! Demand that all the efforts of the miners' union and of the entire labor movement be immediately concentrated upon bringing the unorganized miners out on strike. Demand that preparations be started forthwith to strike all the mines in the anthracite region. Demand that the maintenance men in the striking bituminous mines be immediately called out on strike. Demand that all the material and moral resources of the miners' union and of the whole labor movement be instantly mobilized in support of the miners strike. The strike of the miners must be won for the sake of the miners and for the sake of the entire working class of America.

Stop Sabotage of Strike.

THIS is a crucial moment in the life of the American labor movement. In the face of the indifference, sabotage and outright treason of the reactionary Lewis machine it becomes the particular duty of the rank and file, the left wing, and the honest progressive elements in the labor movement to exert all their efforts to insure the victory of the strike. No honest worker, regardless of his political opinions, can permit himself to be terrified by the coal operators, the government and the Lewis administration, into a state of passivity and inactivity.

It is the sacred duty of every honest worker, left winger and progressive to stand in the front line of the battle, to encourage, mobilize and lead the workers to struggle and victory.

Learn Through Struggle.

In this struggle the miners and workers generally will gain experience and a wider understanding of the class struggle. They are learning and will continue to learn the capitalist natura and strike-breaking role of the American government. They will gain a true insight into the intimate connection between their struggles here and similar struggles of the working masses throughout the world, as well as of the oppressed peoples of China and Latin America. The workers engaged in the struggle must and will learn the absolute need of independent class political action by the workers. This will extend and strengthen the movement for a labor party, it will give power and swing to the movement for the nationalization of the mines, and will generally raise the economic and political power of the workers.

Onward to Victory.

The strike must be won. All support to the miners' strike.

No wage cuts. Wage increases for the unorganized miners!

Concentrate upon bringing the unorganized miners out on strike!

Call out the maintenance men and prepare for striking the anthracite mines!

Demand a national strike and a national agreement!

Mobilize the whole labor movement for material and moral support of the strike!

Watch the Lewis administration and realst sabotage and betrayal!

Every honest worker, left winger and progressive must take his post and do his duty.

Demand that the government keep its hands off the miners and abstain from strike breaking activities!

Help win the miners' strike!

Central Executive Committee,
Workers (Communist) Party of America.

Economic Notes for Workers

By SCOTT NEARING

Since Europe was divided into two parts by the Russian Revolution of 1917—Sovietism in the East and capitalist imperialism in the West, a balance sheet has been drawn up that looks something like this:

1. Capitalist Imperialism — Western Europe.

a. Land and tools privately owned.

b. Land and tool owners living parasitically, as a leisure class, on the labor of the workers.

c. Owners rich; workers poor.

d. Labor movement crippled or smashed.

e. Extensive preparations for the next world war.

f. Revolts of the exploited peoples in Morocco, Syria and China met with machine guns and shell fire.

g. Lowered wages; extensive unemployment.

2. Sovietism—Eastern Europe.

a. Land and tools socially owned.

b. All able bodied people doing productive or useful work.

c. Leisure and culture shared among the workers.

d. A labor movement that, in numbers and in organization, is the strongest in the world.

e. Successful efforts to bring the peoples of Asia into a bloc that stands for the co-operation of peoples in the advancement of their mutual interests.

f. Little peoples inside the Soviet Union given their cultural independence; encouragement for the oppressed peoples all over the world to establish their independent existence.

g. Steadily rising standards of productivity and of livelihood.

Glance over this balance sheet of European achievement. If you are a banker, you must conclude that the system of western imperialism is best suited to the advancement of your interests. If you are a worker you must see that the Soviet system means most to you and yours.

A May Day Resolution: "I will work for the economic system that offers the greatest advantages to me and to those dependent on me."

DOGS

Just yesterday
In Hankow,
Concession gates
Carried such signs as:
"Dogs and Chinamen,
Keep Out!"

And today
It seems
The tables are turned,
And signs
Will be put up, saying:
"Imperialists and Dogs,
Keep Out!"

The Drift of the Labor Bureaucracy to the Right

By WM. Z. FOSTER.

THE outstanding characteristic of the drift of the trade union bureaucracy to the right. This has been an almost unbroken process since the close of the war. Three great landmarks stand out in this frightful tendency of the trade union officialdom. These are the movements of the steel workers in 1919-19, of the railroad workers in 1920-22, and the coal miners in 1925-27. These are three key struggles and have exerted profound effects on the general course of the labor movement.

The Great Steel Strike.

THE organization of the steel workers represented the highest point ever reached by organized labor in this country in establishing unionism amongst the masses. The campaign of organization received little or no support from the upper bureaucrats. And when the steel workers were attacked by the steel companies those bureaucrats betrayed the movement outright. They abandoned the steel workers completely. The latter demanded cooperation from the miners and the railroad workers to tie up the steel mills, but their proposals went unanswered by the reactionary leadership of these organizations.

THE strike was lost. Had it been won, as it might easily have been with support from the related basic industries, it would have enormously strengthened the entire labor movement and fortified it for the bitter struggles ahead. But due to the treachery of the class collaborationist leadership it was lost. In consequence the union line-up of the workers was weakened and the employers were encouraged to redouble their attacks against the trade unions. The loss of the steel strike was followed by a decided drift to the right of the bureaucracy.

The Railroad Shopmen's Strike.

AT the close of the war the bloc of 16 railroad unions were the strongest and most progressive section of the labor movement. In 1921 the railroad companies opened their campaign aggressively to shatter these organizations. First they split the four brotherhoods from the rest of the unions by promises of concessions. Then they cut the wages of the shopmen and worsened their conditions so that they had to strike, in spite of the prevailing unemployment. Their great national strike in 1922, like the steel strike of but two years before, was shattered by the attacks of the employers and the treachery of the union leaders. The latter abandoned the railroad workers on strike even as they had the steel workers. The strike presented the real picture of nine unions standing at work while seven were on strike. Real solidarity by the 16 unions would have resulted in a magnificent victory.

THE loss of the shopmen's strike, coming at the end of unsuccessful struggles by the unions in the textile, building, printing, packing, and other industries, drove the timid leadership still further to the right. They concluded that the railroad corporations, fattened like the rest of American capitalism by the super profits of imperialism, were too strong for the unions to resist. Hence, instead of adopting the T. U. E. L. program of amalgamation, a labor party, the organization of the unorganized, and the development of a militant fight against the employers, they surrendered to the employers. This surrender takes the shape of the whole series of class collaboration movements, such as labor banking, the B. & O. plan, etc.

THE entire A. F. of L. bureaucracy also plunged into a retreat to the right in the years following this struggle. With their "new wage policy," and worker-employer cooperation schemes they have fallen in step with the program of the employers to company unionize the trade unions and to reduce them to mere auxiliaries of the exploiters to speed up production and to check class consciousness. An inevitable phase of this retreat to the right is the bitter war being carried on against the left wing, that has culminated in the unheard of persecution and autocracy being practiced now in the needle trades.

The Struggle of the Coal Miners.

WE come next to the vital strike of the bituminous miners, now taking place. This strike was preceded, as well as accompanied, by the rankest treachery on the part of the Lewis machine. For the past two years the employers have been literally cutting the Miners Union to pieces, smashing them in district after district. Yet Lewis has done nothing to prevent the destruction of the organization. During the anthracite strike of 1925 there was splendid opportunity to rehabilitate the organization by pulling out the bituminous miners. But Lewis refused to do this. He permitted the employers, under the flexible of the Jacksonville agreement, to undermine the organization, to the extent that where three years ago under bituminous miners were producing 70% of the bituminous coal and non-union miners 30%, the percentages, on the eve of the present strike, were almost exactly reversed. Lewis' policy brought the union in actual danger of destruction. The "Save the Union" slogan of the progressive bloc in the recent elections was based upon the realist of realities.

THE loss of the vital steel workers' and shopmen's strikes resulted in the bureaucracy of the labor movement going far to the right, with consequent neglect of the workers' interests and to the demoralization and weakening of the unions. Already the weakening of the Miners Union has had a reactionary effect upon the labor movement. And the fate of the present bituminous strike, which would shatter the U. M. W. A., backbone of the American labor movement, would also drive the bureaucracy still further to the right and inflict fresh disasters upon the trade unions as a whole. Hence the rallying of all possible support behind the striking miners looms as the major task confronting the labor movement at the present time. The miners' strike must be won in spite of Lewis' policy of betrayal.

The Road Ahead of Us.

THE present fight of the workers for a powerful and militant labor movement is a difficult one. The reactionary bureaucracy, who are set upon their policies of no fight against the employers, cling to the control of the unions by autocratic measures which outrage every tradition and practice of democracy in the unions. But the situation is much better than it appears upon the surface. There is widespread discontent among the masses of workers. This was evidenced in the recent miners' elections, when the opposition undoubtedly polled a majority of the votes cast. It is also manifest in the vast upheaval now taking place in the needle trades. In the Machinists' Union, which has also recently demonstrated, the workers are discontented with the reactionary leadership. Even in such organizations as the carpenters, the recent anti-Lewis office elections in Chicago and other cities are finding themselves in conflict with the reactionary officialdom.

IN the unions there are great numbers of militant workers with their leaders. The task is to unite these under progressive and left wing leadership. They lack organization and a definite program. It is not that the bureaucracy is so strong but that the opposition is so disunited. The T. U. E. L., with its chief aim to organize the unorganized within and without the existing unions, the amalgamation of the craft unions, the formation of a labor party, and the democratization of the unions, points the way to victory. What is needed is the development of a widespread united front of progressive and left wing elements to put these vital slogans into reality. This is the specific to stop the drift of the present leadership to the right. It is the way to a militant and successful trade union movement.

MASSACRE OF THE INNOCENTS—1927

Sacco and Vanzetti
No murderers are you.
But worse than mere assassins,
That judiciary crew,
Grim, black robed and stony
Just like their Plymouth rock
Killing guiltless workers
By electric shock.
These judges hang together
They ought to hang—by God!
These foul birds of a feather
Smell worse than putrid cod,
That is to say, the "justice,"
That in this case they've shown
There is no worse injustice
In legal records known.
Oh land of boasted freedom
Whence liberty has fled
It seems that even your justice
Is cock-eyed drunk or dead.

—ADOLF WOLFF.

May Day Declaration

(Continued from Page One)

Union and the entire world against the war plots. Let us make our power felt, that power which is in our numbers, and let us make our voices in one world-wide shout that no government will dare disobey:

WE DEMAND THE RECOGNITION OF THE CHINESE PEOPLE'S GOVERNMENT!

WE DEMAND THE WITHDRAWAL OF THE TROOPS AND MARINES!

WE DEMAND THE RECOGNITION OF THE SOVIET UNION!

HANDS OFF CHINA! HANDS OFF SOVIET RUSSIA!

WE WILL NOT TOLERATE A NEW WORLD WAR!

Sacco and Vanzetti.

Then there is the cruel order of judicial murder decreed by the capitalist courts of Massachusetts against the two working class fighters, Sacco and Vanzetti. The international solidarity of the working class with mass demonstrations in every industrial center in the world has thus far saved Sacco and Vanzetti from the electric chair for over six years. But now the date has been set for their execution and only the working class of America and the rest of the world can save them. Let us make of May Day such a unanimous demonstration in favor of Sacco and Vanzetti that the executioners will not dare carry out the sentence. Let no worker be missing when in mass meetings in every corner of our land we gather together in one mighty demonstration to declare:

SACCO AND VANZETTI SHALL NOT DIE!

SACCO AND VANZETTI MUST GO FREE!

FOR A WORKERS' AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT.

It is not enough to get Sacco and Vanzetti out of jail. It is not enough to stop the plot to plunge our country into a new world war. So long as the bosses control the courts, they will continue to frame up workers. So long as the bosses control the courts they will continue to issue injunctions against strikes and picketing. We must take the courts out of the hands of the bosses.

So long as Wall Street controls the government they will be sending our marines to Nicaragua and China. So long as Wall Street controls the government there is always danger of new war. We must take our government out of the hands of the bankers and corporations.

So long as the workers continue to support the bosses' political parties—the republican and democratic parties—the bosses will continue to control the government and frame-ups, anti-labor legislation, injunctions and imperialist adventures and war danger will continue. The workers must end their support of the republican and democratic parties. We must build a powerful labor party of our own to include all the workers' organizations, all the unions and all the political organizations of the workers. We must build an all-inclusive labor party. And supported by the poor farmers, we must take the machinery of our government out of the hands of the bosses, and into the hands of the workers and poor farmers. On May Day, International Labor Day, every worker must demonstrate against boss controlled government with its labor frame-ups, injunctions and war policy. FOR A LABOR PARTY AND FOR A WORKERS' AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT IN AMERICA.

Finally, there are the problems of our labor movement at home.

The big corporations are attacking it with their company unions and their open-shop drives. The bosses' courts are attacking it with injunctions and frame-ups such as the frame-up of Sacco and Vanzetti in Massachusetts and the frame-up of Ben Gold and the other furrier leaders in New York.

Must Fight For Unions.

The employers have succeeded in building up a united front of the courts, the police, reactionary labor leaders and the leaders of the Socialist Party to crush the left wing that is fighting for a policy of militant unionism. Our unions are weak, divided by crafts, include only a small part of the working class, are hamstrung by corrupt and reactionary leaders, and in the coal mines and needle trades industries are fighting at this moment for their very existance. Those who fight for the organization of the unorganized, the amalgamation of the weak craft unions into powerful industrial unions, the adoption of a fighting policy to defend our unions against destruction and to defend the interests of our class—these the bosses are trying to drive out of the unions and the trade union bureaucracy and right wing Socialist leaders are cooperating in this dirty task of cutting the fighting heart out of our unions. A united front of the coal operators and needle trades bosses and other employers, the courts and police, using the Wolls and Lewises and Sigmans as their tools—against this united front we must oppose a united front of all the workers of our country, organised and unorganised alike. Let no man fail to be at his post at the big May Day meetings. Fight for the existence of the unions. Fight for the organization of the unorganized. Fight for the amalgamation of the craft unions into powerful industrial unions. Fight against class collaboration betrayal. Fight for a fighting union policy. And fight for the right of the left wingers and Communists who are the champions of the organization of the unorganized, amalgamation and fighting unionism to be in the unions and for their correct policies to prevail.

Workers of America—such is the meaning of the May Day demonstrations this May Day. Every worker in the country must participate. Every worker in the land must show his solidarity with his class in these fateful moments of war and reaction. Every worker must raise his voice in one universal shout that will be heard thruout our land and thruout the world.

SACCO AND VANZETTI MUST BE FREE!

HANDS OFF CHINA!

HANDS OFF NICARAGUA AND MEXICO!

HANDS OFF THE SOVIET UNION!

NO NEW WAR!

SAVE AND STRENGTHEN THE UNIONS!

ORGANIZE THE UNORGANIZED WORKERS!

MAINTAIN A FIGHTING UNION POLICY!

BUILD A LABOR PARTY!

TAKE THE GOVERNMENT OUT OF THE HANDS OF BANKERS AND WAR-MAKING IMPERIALISTS!

BUILD A WORKERS AND FARMERS GOVERNMENT IN AMERICA!

Red

He was a "red"
They said.
He did not fear
The leer
Of any king
Or thing.
He spoke the truth
To youth
And to old age.
A sage
They called him then.
Of men
He was a brother.
No other
Was meek as he.
To free
Man's mind he sought
And taught
Men love and peace.
To cease
Their wars and hates
Relates
The story told
Of old.
The priest and prince
Did wince
At what he said,
And dead
They wished this man
Whose plan
They greatly feared—
They reared
A cross and hung
Him young
Upon it high
To die!

—HENRY REICH, JR.

Workers School

"Training for the Class Struggle"
108 E. 14th St., New York City

I. MAY DAY GREETINGS!

OUR SLOGANS

Training for the Class Struggle.
Build the Working Class Movement.
Preparation of Leaders for the Workers' Struggles.
Without Class Education there Can Be No Effective Class Struggle by the Workers.

Since last May Day the Workers School has made great progress in the carrying out of these aims. Registration for the fall and spring terms was 2000, 80 per cent. of these union members. The Workers School helped the workers and strikers of New York City and vicinity thru furnishing speakers, research material, scholarships, etc.; furnished speakers to forums in Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Jersey cities; offered courses in American Labor Problems, Labor Journalism, Theory and Practice of Trade Union Work, New Tactics of Employers, American Economic and Political History, Decline of the British Empire, Marxism, Leninism, Fundamentals of Communism, Problems of the Communist Movement. Some instructors were Bertram D. Wolfe, Scott Nearing, William W. Weinstone, Robert Dunn, Alexander Trachtenberg, Arthur C. Calhoun, J Mindel. D. Benjamin, Art Shields, Harvey O'Connor. The growth of the School has shown itself in the enlargement of headquarters and the doubling of seating capacity, in addition to the building up of a library of over 100 volumes. The spirit, work, attendance and study of the students are sufficient proof that the Workers School is accomplishing its aims — Training for the Class Struggle; Build the Working Class Movement; Preparation of Leaders for the Workers' Struggles. Without Class Education There Can Be No Effective Class Struggle by the Workers.

II. SPRING COURSES - REGISTER NOW!

1. FUNDAMENTALS OF COMMUNISM—8 sessions, begins Thurs., April 28, 6:45 to 8 P. M., Ella G. Wolfe, instructor, fee $2.50.
2. THE CHINESE REVOLUTION—4 sessions, begins Fri., May 13, 8 to 10 P. M., H. M. Wicks, instructor, fee $1.25.
3. DEVELOPMENT OF AMERICAN IDEOLOGY—3 sessions, begins, Fri., June 10, 8 to 10 P. M., Bertram D. Wolfe, instructor, fee $1.00.
4. FORUM—every Sunday night, 8 P. M., except May 1 and May May 22, speakers for month of May include Jay Lovestone and Joseph Freeman.

III. NATIONAL SUMMER TRAINING COURSE!

1. This course will be similar to the one which was so successfully given in the summer of 1926. At that time 75 comrades attended, 40 of whom were from out of town and 35 from New York City. Some students came from as far distant points as San Francisco, Kansas City, Chicago and Canada. The course consisted of 5 one-hour sessions a day for 2 weeks together with 3 hours daily for study. The following courses were given: America Today, Marxism, Leninism, American Economic and Political History, History of the American Working Class, Theory and Practice of Trade Union Work, History of the Communist Party, Communist Party Organization Problems, Youth Problems and Methods of Teaching. The instructors were Jay Lovestone, Bertram D. Wolfe, Alexander Trachtenberg, Anton Bimba, William F. Dunne, Wm. W. Weinstone, Jack Stachel, Sam Don and D. Benjamin.
2. The training course this summer will be held the last two weeks of July or the first two weeks in August.
3. Among the courses that will probably be given are: Marxism, Leninism, America Today, American Economic and Political History, Theory and Practice of Trade Union Work, Problems of the Communist Movement, Communist Party Organization, Youth Problems and the Chinese Revolution.
4. Some instructors will be: Jay Lovestone, William Z. Foster, Bertram D. Wolfe, William F. Dunne, Max Bedacht, William W. Weinstone, H. M. Wicks and Jack Stachel.
5. Watch the Daily Worker for further details or write to Bertram D. Wolfe, Director of the Workers School, 106-108 East 14th Street, New York City.

THE UNITED COUNCIL OF WORKINGCLASS HOUSEWIVES on May 1st, 1927 greets their toiling sisters from the shops, factories and homes.

On this May 1st, the workingclass women in America can take with pride an account of their achievements for the past year. In the land of capitalist strongholds the workingclass women in America have fulfilled their task of organizing and educating great masses of workingclass women for the class struggle under great difficulties. The workingclass women in America have succeeded in uniting their struggles with the struggles of their brothers, the workers.

On, sisters, workingclass women, for the coming year with resolute determination for more achievements, deeper into the masses of workingclass women for more clarification in the class struggle.

The United Council of Workingclass Housewives greets the workingclass women the world over.

The United Council of Workingclass Housewives greets their awakened sisters, the workingclass women of China. May you come out victorious in your hard struggle for the liberation of Chinese workers.

To you liberated sisters of Soviet Russia, the United Council of Workingclass Housewives sends greetings. On we shall march to the goal, nearer and nearer until we here in America reach your standard.

Unitedly we will march on until the workingclass the world over will be liberated.
With solidarity!

THE UNITED COUNCIL OF WORKINGCLASS HOUSEWIVES,

KATE GITLOW, Secretary.

Street Nucleus 8, Section 3
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY, DETROIT
Greets The DAILY WORKER
on International May Day.

Greetings!
Bohemian Mining Room
50 E. 106th St., N. Y. C.

May Day
Greeting
SEC. 3
SUB. SEC. 3D S 5

Proletarian May Day Greetings!
FINNISH FRACTION,
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY
Norwood, Mass.

GREETINGS
from
CLOSE CAFETERIA
119 E. 14th Street
Stuy. 7996.

Detroit
Daily Worker Agents
GREET
The DAILY WORKER
on INTERNATIONAL
MAY DAY
We pledge ourselves to fill our quota of subscriptions and help build The DAILY WORKER.

GREETINGS!
CHARLY KROEFFARD
NAK-NAK, BRISTOL BAY
ALASKA

Greetings from
STUYVESANT
CASINO
Dinfur Leasing Co., Inc.
L. Dintenfass
Tel.: Dry Dock 8675-1525
Ball and Banquet
Rooms
MEETING ROOMS
Catering for all Occasions
140-42 SECOND AVE.
NEW YORK CITY

Council of Working Class Housewives
of Brownsville
Sends Its May Day Greetings
to
The DAILY WORKER
Long May It Continue Its Successful Activities in Behalf of the Working Class!

S S 2 A, F D 5
Greets May Day

Detroit
Street Nucleus 1
Section 1
Sends
MAY DAY
GREETINGS

WORKERS' CULTURE CLUB
63 Liberty Ave.
Brooklyn, N. Y.
SENDS HEARTY MAY DAY GREETINGS
to
The DAILY WORKER
Success in Your Struggle for Complete Working Class Liberation.—M. BLOOM, Sec'y.

INTERNATIONAL BRANCH 5, SECTION 5
Sends Its Greetings
to the Revolutionary Proletariat of the World
and Pledges Its Solidarity and Devotion to the Revolutionary Cause
and to Fight On Until Decisive Victory
Is Gained.
AIDA FLOMENBAUM, Sec'y.

STREET NUCLEUS NO. 1
(Section 7)
District 2, Workers Party
Sends May Day Greetings to all Party members and readers of The Daily Worker. It also hopes that comrades will work for our Daily and build the Party.

GREETINGS
from
JOHN'S RESTAURANT
302 E. 12th Street.

READ THE DAILY WORKER EVERY DAY

Workmen's Furniture Fire Insurance Society

INCORPORATED
1872-1927

Membership about 47,000 Assets approximately $600,000

THIS is a society, independent of capitalists, whose aim is to replace for its members all household articles, ruined or damaged by fire.

Founded in 1872 by 44 workingmen, it has now grown to 47,000, with an insured value of $47,000,000.

During its existence it has paid over $300,000 in reimbursements for about 4,000 cases.

Originally it was planned for New York City, but in the course of time it spread over 52 cities, the last of which is Oakland, Cal.

For the past 55 years the average yearly assessment amounted to only 11c per $100 insurance, which covered all expenses for management and reimbursements for losses sustained through fire.

Upon admission the members are making a deposit of $1.00 per $100 insurance.

In the event of his withdrawal, this deposit is returned less 10 per cent, and the accrued assessments.

We paid the claims of our members who had suffered losses in such disasters as occurred in Paterson in 1902, in San Francisco in 1906 and Chelsea (Boston) in 1908, more promptly than any other Fire Insurance Company.

This society has a fraternal agreement with the Workingmen's Aid Association of Massachusetts, which is an organization with the same mission, operating in that state, and members moving there can be transferred, if they wish to, free of charge.

Workingmen and Workingwomen! Protect your home in case of fire! You will find it advantageous to join this society of your own class.

Information may be had through

MAIN BRANCH NEW YORK AND VICINITY,
227 East 84th Street, New York City
TEL. LENOX 3539

ADDRESSES OF BRANCH FINANCIAL SECRETARIES

ALBANY, N. Y.—E. J. Roeder, 17 Dana Ave.
YONKERS, N. Y.—A. Jetser, No. 148 Yonkers Ave.
TROY, N. Y.—J. Schlegel, 616 19th Street.
GLOVERSVILLE, N. Y.—O. Prohock, 44 2nd Street.
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—L. Wagner, 111 Washington St.
ONEIDA, N. Y.—Joseph Drek, 120 E. Hetland St.
TONAWANDA, N. Y.—St. Hrabal, 321 Grunday St.
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—C. Gobler, 17 Canty St.
ROCHESTER, N. Y.—G. Frank, 111 Menin St.
PORT CHESTER, N. Y.—A. Jaeger, 240 Locust Ave.
NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—Peter Allen, 69 Mt. Joy Place.
MT. VERNON, N. Y.—Stephan Grabner, 404 W. Lincoln Ave.
PEEKSKILL, N. Y.—E. Barthel, Bielock Park.
STAPLETON, States Island, N. Y.—A. Kaeubler, 166 Bement St.
TRENTON, N. J.—M. Schaller, 434 Centennial Ave.
PATERSON, N. J.—R. Bartel, 51 Redwood Ave.
NEWARK, N. J.—A. Roehrbein, 242 Sh. 16th St.
HOBOKEN, N. J. — Joseph Mutsch, 402 Livingston St.
PASSAIC, N. J.—Rudolf Klaver, 274 Clinton Ave., Clifton, N. J.
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—R. Schmid, 141 Throop Ave.
RAHWAY, N. J.—St. A. Gesser, 231 N. Stiles St., Linden, N. J.
CAMDEN, N. J.—F. Hartmeyer, 324 Burwood Ave.
CARLSTADT, N. J.—A. Gerevent, 151 Hackensack St., East Rutherford.
NEW HAVEN, CONN.—A. Schofield, 764 Davenport Ave.
WATERBURY, CONN.—A. C. Kercher, 24 Rose St.
HARTFORD, CONN.—F. Ashenbach, 1031 Park St.
MERIDEN, CONN.—B. Strobel, 53 Bunnell St.
BRIDGEPORT, CONN. — A. Nitsch, 436 Shelton St.
ROCKVILLE, CONN.—O. Roehler, 77 Grand St.
STAMFORD, CONN.—C. Schlafer, 42 Cove Road.
NORWALK, CONN.—Otto Bitter, 27 Center Ave.
LYKENS, PA.—J. Scheuwetter, 156 Bennett St.
PHILADELPHIA, PA.—C. H. Kaufmann, 1324 Cowyn St.
PITTSBURGH, PA. — Eugen Grauer, 61, 1604 Pilmore St.
ALTOONA, PA.—Ph. Dosch, 761 2nd Ave.
SCRANTON, PA.—H. Heinrich, 617 Sh. Irving Ave.
MILLVILLE, PA.—F. Wagner, 616 E. 7th St.
ALLENTOWN, PA.—H. Hausbold, 108 Cherry St.
BRADDOCK, PA.—A. Friede, C. Sperrer, 19 Zimmerer Ave., Whitaker, Pa.
CHICAGO, ILL.—A. Hofmann, 714 W. Madison St.
SPRINGFIELD, ILL. — Emil Geist, 1512 Wirth Ave.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL. — C. Schertz, 4301 24th St.
LOS ANGELES, CAL.—C. H. Hemith, P. O. P. 878 oder 2317 Waverly Drive, Eberman, Cal.
OAKLAND, CAL.—L. Stritter, 1847 Dalinda St.
CLEVELAND, O.—Alfred Bormann, 14104 Carydale Ave.
TOLEDO, O.—F. Baedsuber, 1150 Tatos Ave.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Ernst Wahn, 1102 V. 3rd St. N. E.
BALTIMORE, MD.—H. Simon, 1214 Carroll St.
ST. LOUIS, MO.—W. A. Peters, 2117 Elliot Ave.
PROVIDENCE, R. I.—A. J. Schultheiss, 109 Cumerford St.
MILWAUKEE, WIS.—A. Klugy, 577 Nevada St.
SEATTLE, WASH.—F. Koessler, 5218 Corson Ave.
Workingmen's Aid Association of Mass., Sweden durch Ogenmeitgheim-Vertreter.
BOSTON, MASS. — Anton La Fort, 306 E. 6th St., So. Boston, Mass.
ADAMS, MASS.—J. D. Kazlauskas, 9 Pearl St.
ROCKPORT, MASS.—C. Langlait, 65 Jackson St.
SPRINGVALE, MAINE.—G. P. Gregory, 466 Orange St.

MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
UUS ILM
Esthonian Weekly.

INTERNATIONAL MAY DAY
GREETINGS
SEC. 3, SUB. SEC. 3E, SHOP NUCLEUS 4
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

Brooklyn Finnish Workers Association

764 — 40th STREET,
BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Sends May Day Greetings to all the readers of The Daily Worker and to members of the Workers (Communist) Party.

It also hopes that next year when we celebrate our International Labor Day, The Daily Worker will be much stronger and have many more readers.

ONE INDUSTRY! ONE UNION!

May Day Greetings To All Workers In The METAL AND MANUFACTURING Industry

All workers in the metal, machine and manufacturing industry — skilled, semi-skilled, unskilled — irrespective of sex, race or nationality — welcomed into our ranks.

DISTRICT NO. 1

Amalgamated Metal Workers of America

799 Broadway, New York City.

GREETINGS from

STREET NUCLEUS 25

Chicago, Ill.

MAY DAY GREETINGS from

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

F. D. 6, S. S. 2A, Dist. 2, New York

MAY DAY GREETINGS

To All Workers' and Workers' Organizations.

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

Local Kenosha

On This Great INTERNATIONAL Labor Day We Pledge Our Support to The DAILY WORKER and to Continue the Work of Comrades

LENIN and RUTHENBERG.

"LET'S FIGHT ON!"

A. BRESLAW	B. MELNIKER
WM. HEINIG	M. GARBER
J. HOFFER	J. FRIEDMAN
L. NADLER	S. HOCH
D. TZELEPIS	A. STONE
N. DAGIS	J. MILLER
A. PODOLSKY	J. TURCHINSKY

International Branch 2, 6b, Brooklyn-New York

S. NADLER, Secretary.

BERTHA TURCHINSKY, Organizer.

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

Branch 1, Section 5, Dist. 2

SENDS FRATERNAL GREETINGS to The DAILY WORKER.

On April 9 we raised $50 in donations and loans for The DAILY WORKER, and will enroll every member in the Sustaining Fund.

We hope that May 1, 1926, will find The DAILY WORKER with a very large circulation and a surplus in its treasury.

MAY DAY GREETINGS from

Finnish Workers' Club of Milwaukee

to

All the Readers of The DAILY WORKER

Hail to the International Working Class

Sollins' Dining Room

222 E. 14th Street

Phone, Stuyvesant 7661

MAY DAY GREETINGS

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

SECTION 7

LONG LIVE THE DAILY WORKER!

Greetings—

Finnish Women's Section

Eureka, Cal.

GREETINGS TO OUR DAILY WORKER

Comrades of Branch 4, Section 7, Bath Beach, greet The DAILY WORKER's first May Day Issue published in New York.

Long Live America's Only English Communist Daily!

Long Live the Workers' Communist Party!

GREETINGS

from

Supporters

of the

Daily Worker

WORKMEN'S SICK AND DEATH BENEFIT FUND

of the United States of America

Organized 1884

Main Office: 9 Seventh St., New York City

Number of Members December 31, 1926

58,491

348 BRANCHES

Total Assets—Dec. 31, 1926 ..... $2,728,652.73

BENEFITS PAID:

Death Benefit $3,691,437.82

Sick Benefit $8,986,056.61

Workingmen, Protect Your Families

in case of sickness, accident or death!

Death Benefit $250.

Sick Benefit $360 to $900 for 80 weeks.

For further information write to the Main Office or to the Branch Financial Secretary of your district.

Greeting!

SUB. SEC. 2 A

Workers' Party

Of America

UNITED FRONT OF ALL LABOR Against AMERICAN IMPERIALISM

Nucleus 2 E, Cleveland.

INTERNATIONAL

Books for Radicals to Read and Own

JUST PUBLISHED

THE MEMOIRS OF A REVOLUTIONIST

by VERA FIGNER

Looking over three generations, Vera Figner reviews her eventful life in a series of vivid tableaux, tracing the evolution of the aristocratic Russian girl into a leader of the Terrorists, and the twenty years of solitary confinement in the Schlusselburg Fortress for participation in the assassination of Tsar Alexander II. A moving story about the early Russian revolutionary movement. Illustrated. $3.00

THE ECONOMIC THEORY OF THE LEISURE CLASS

by NIKOLAI BUKHARIN

A brilliant theoretical study of the Austrian School of Economics and a lucid Marxian analysis of the shortcomings of their theories of value and profit. $2.50

THE WORKER LOOKS AT GOVERNMENT

by ARTHUR W. CALHOUN

A study of the relation between the State and Labor under the existing economic system. The author is an instructor at Brookwood Labor College. $1.50

KARL MARX AND FRIEDRICH ENGELS

by D. RIAZANOV

A striking account of the lives, theories, and practical achievements of the fathers of scientific socialism treated from the Marxian point of view. The author is the director of the Marx-Engels Institute, Moscow. $2.50

THOMAS MORE AND HIS UTOPIA

by KARL KAUTSKY

The background, the youth, and the development of the great social idealist, with a critical examination of his UTOPIA. $2.25

"International" Books Are Books for Thoughtful Readers.

Learn to Be a Marxist

- ☐ The Eighteenth Brumaire of Louis Bonaparte, Karl Marx. $1.50
- ☐ Selected Essays, Karl Marx. $1.75
- ☐ Peasant War in Germany, Friedrich Engels. $1.50
- ☐ Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, D. Riazanov. $2.50
- ☐ Marxian Economic Handbook and Glossary, W. H. Emmett. $3.25
- ☐ Foundations of Christianity, Karl Kautsky. $4.00
- ☐ Are the Jews a Race, Karl Kautsky. $2.50
- ☐ Thomas More and His Utopia, Karl Kautsky. $2.25
- ☐ Historical Materialism, Nikolai Bukharin. $3.25
- ☐ Economic Theory of the Leisure Class, Nikolai Bukharin. $2.50
- ☐ Social Forces in American History, A. M. Simons. $1.00
- ☐ Whither England, Leon Trotsky. $1.75
- ☐ History of the Fabian Society, Edward R. Pease. $2.50

Be Informed About Soviet Russia

- ☐ Memoirs of a Revolutionist, Vera Figner. $3.00
- ☐ Ten Days That Shook the World, John Reed. $1.50
- ☐ Broken Earth, Life in the New Village, Maurice Hindus. $2.00
- ☐ Russia Today—The Official Report of the British Trade Union Delegation. $1.75
- ☐ Oil Imperialism, Louis Fischer. $2.00
- ☐ Education in Soviet Russia, Scott Nearing. $1.50
- ☐ Literature and Revolution, Leon Trotsky. $2.50
- ☐ New Theatre and Cinema of Soviet Russia, Huntly Carter. $5.00
- ☐ Flying Osip—Stories of New Russia. $2.50
- ☐ Whither Russia, Leon Trotsky. $1.50

Read These Labor Books

- ☐ Left Wing Unionism, David J. Saposs. $1.00
- ☐ The Worker Looks at Government, Arthur W. Calhoun. $4.00
- ☐ The Woman Worker and the Trade Unions, Theresa Wolfson. $1.75
- ☐ Co-operative Movement in Italy, E. A. Lloyd. $1.75

Other Important Books

- ☐ Chains, Henri Barbusse, 2 vols. $4.00
- ☐ Mrs. Socrates, Frits Mauthner. $2.00
- ☐ Henry Ford—America's Don Quixote, Louis P. Lochner. $2.00
- ☐ Tyranny of Time, Charles Nordmann. $3.25
- ☐ War of Lost Opportunities, General von Hoffman. $3.50

WRITE FOR COMPLETE CATALOGUE USING COUPON BELOW

International Publishers Co., Inc., 381 Fourth Avenue, New York.
Please send the books checked on the above list to:

☐ Remittance enclosed .....

☐ Send C.O.D. .....

☐ Place my name on your permanent mailing list.

INTERNATIONAL PUBLISHERS CO.
INCORPORATED
381 FOURTH AVENUE NEW YORK

PROGRESSIVE workers of the International Pocketbook Workers' Union greet The DAILY WORKER, the only workingclass English daily in America, on its first May Day issue in New York City.

We hail The DAILY WORKER as a staunch champion of the needs of the workers in their struggles against all their enemies!

We hail The DAILY WORKER for exposing the reactionary officialdom for collaborating with the bosses and thereby betraying the workers.

We are fully conscious of the fact that in this present period of reaction in the American Labor movement, when all the dark forces are conspiring to suppress every vestige of class-consciousness and progressive action on the part of the rank and file, that an English labor daily has never been in greater need than now.

We urge every honest and sincere worker in our industry, as well as all other workers to buy, read and spread the only labor daily, The DAILY WORKER, and not to rely upon the capitalist and yellow press for their labor news.

PROGRESSIVE WORKERS' INTERNATIONAL POCKETBOOK WORKERS' UNION.

GREETING!

Labor Temple

244 East 14th Street.

GREETINGS

Huntington Hall

Two Large Halls for Balls, Weddings and Parties and Catering for All Occasions

214-216 SECOND AVE.
NEW YORK CITY.
Tel. Dry Dock 9924

Elegant Steam Heated Meeting Rooms With Elevator Service

M. ROTHSTEIN, Prop.

Tel. Cathedral 8254-8071

THE PARK PALACE

ROSENBERG & HERTZ, Props.

ELEGANT BALL ROOMS FOR BALLS, WEDDINGS AND BANQUETS

3-5 WEST 110th STREET
Opposite Central Park NEW YORK CITY

THE JEWISH WORKER'S CLUB of the Lower Bronx

642 East 145th Street New York City

Meets every Friday night.

Long live The DAILY WORKER! Greetings to you on the First of May, the holiday of all the workers.

A. Gussakoff, Org. E. Mazze, Sec'y.

Leo Kling

The DAILY WORKER Builder

SECTION 5, INTERNATIONAL BRANCH 2

sends

HEARTY MAY DAY GREETINGS

GREETINGS TO OUR MARTYRS!

On the occasion of the Proletarian Holiday, the First of May, we send our heartiest and most sincere revolutionary greetings to you workers and peasants in prison.

We are on the battle front with you. We are with you when the savage hand of the oppressor grips you, and sends you to dark dungeons. Keep up your courage. We, who are outside, will continue the struggle till you are restored to our ranks to take up the work once more.

To you in the dark prison cells—to you who suffer under the harsh hand of the capitalist system, we send our greetings, and pledge ourselves to keep up the fight until all the proletarian class war prisoners are released, and the revolutionary working class has attained its aim.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE
NEW YORK SECTION
ROSE BARON, Secretary.

GREETINGS
on INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY, MAY DAY
From
SECTION 1 AC, 4 F
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

UNIT 7F SS 1AC
WORKERS
(COMMUNIST) PARTY
Greets
The DAILY WORKER
on
MAY FIRST
And Promises to Stand With It to the Last.

International May Day Greetings

from

The Chinese Workers Ailiance, Inc.

勞工協社

to

The Daily Worker

Meet you at our Concert and Ball

"NIGHT IN CHINA"

BENEFIT OUR NEW CHINA SCHOOL FOR WORKERS.
23 Chatham Square, New York City
Phone Orchard 1685

FRIDAY, MAY 20

WEBSTER HALL, 119 E. 11th St., NEW YORK CITY

ADMISSION 75c in advance, $1.00 at the door.

THE GRAPHIC PRESS

GREETS THE DAILY WORKER,
ITS READERS AND SYMPATHIZERS
ON THIS INTERNATIONAL HOLIDAY

30 WEST 15
Watkins 3253

READ THE DAILY WORKER EVERY DAY

May Day Greetings

To the International Working Class!
To Organized Labor and Its Friends!

WHENEVER patronizing restaurants, cafeterias, butcher shops, etc., see to it that members of the Amalgamated Food Workers are employed, and always see to it that wherever you buy or consume bakery goods—in bakeries, groceries, delicatessen stores, or restaurants—that the bread bears this

Union CENTRAL LABEL UNION AFW EMBLEM Label

BY DOING THIS, YOU CAN HELP THE FOOD WORKERS IN THEIR STRUGGLE FOR BETTER CONDITIONS

Amalgamated Food Workers of America

An Industrial Union for All the Workers in the Food Industry

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS:

799 BROADWAY Cor. of 11th Street NEW YORK CITY

AUG. BURKHARDT, General Sec'y, Treasurer.

May Day Greetings from the Lithuanian Communist Daily "Laisve"

The Lithuanian Communist Daily Laisve sends its May Day Greetings to the only English Communist daily in the world, The Daily Worker.

The Daily Worker serves as a great weapon in the hands of militant workers against the capitalists and their servants, the reactionary labor leaders.

Long Live the First of May!
Long Live The Daily Worker!
Long Live the Workers (Communist) Party of America!

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION!

THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHES THE ONLY REPORTS OF THE CONDEMNATION OF THE EXECUTIONERS!
FOR SALE AT ALL NEWSSTANDS
PRICE 4 CENTS PER COPY

THE DAILY WORKER

FINAL CITY EDITION

Entered as second-class matter, at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

Vol. IV. No. 98. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. NEW YORK, FRIDAY, APRIL 29, 1927 Price 3 Cents

Current Events

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

IN spring the thots of people often turn to revolution. There is something in the balmy air of this beautiful season that churns the blood and makes men and women hunger for things they haven't got. It is the season of revolt and rebellion. Even the staid membership of the church of England is in revolt and a violent civil war is raging in the ranks of that organization. The bone of contention between the two factions is the revised book of common prayer.

• • •

AT the 128th annual meeting of the Religious Tracts Society presided over by the archbishop of Canterbury, a man started the commotion by resolving that the king should be asked to reject the "popish prayer book." The din became so intense that the archbishop tried to stop it by calling on the loyal section of the audience to sing "All Hail The Power of Jesus" but Jesus was as powerless in the situation as a fly in a cyclone. Finally the archbishop had the interrupters thrown out on their ears and the meeting proceeded with its task.

• • •

SAMUEL GOMPERS is a dead prophet who is not without honor in his adopted country. The city of Calumet, Illinois, named one of its public schools after him. A large tablet bearing an inscription will be placed on the school. Here is part of the blurb—a quotation from a fourth of July oration delivered by the departed prince of labor fakers: "America is not merely a name. It is not merely a land. It is not merely a country. America is not a symbol; it is an ideal. The hope of all the world can be expressed in the ideal—America." And so do not think the peoples of Mexico, Nicaragua, the Philippines and China. It is not surprising that public schools should be called after this loyal servant of American imperialism.

• • •

IT is not yet certain that mayor Walker will reject the alleged offer to head a baseball league at a salary of $100,000 a year, provided it is offered to him. "Jimmy" is beginning to feel the sting of public criticism for his failure to observe regular hours of labor in city hall. The mayor is usually on the job when celebrities arrive to receive the keys of the city. But his known fondness for light entertainment does not sit lightly on the chests of the dignified and newly-respectable leaders of Tammany who want to give their hitherto odoriferous organization a thoro fumigating so that the voter from the Mafia regions can vote for "Tammany Al" for president without having to drop his ballot in the box with a sterilized pincers.

• • •

GOVERNOR SMITH is winning a well-deserved reputation for spontaneous wit and humor. Al Smith sayings are now competing for popularity in Pullman smoking cars with Chauncey Depew jokes. The governor called on Calvin Coolidge in the Biltmore Hotel and suggested that the president do anything he pleased in the city provided he took the precaution not to get caught. Al laughed at his own witticism and the president was not able to stop laughing until caught in the act by a camera.

• • •

IT is hard to predict what effect the grinning presidential countenance may have on the voters. Perhaps these was jesuit cunning behind Al's wise crack! Coolidge's serious followers may misunderstand the reason for the happy face after encountering such a nationally-known wet as Al Smith. "He's not the same old Cal any more" they will say. Those puritans resent the presence of a smile on their president's face as much as the stout-hearted lads from Hell's Kitchen would resent seeing their beloved Al pictured with a sober countenance.

• • •

PRESIDENT Machado of Cuba is receiving the kind of a welcome from our big business men that such a valuable servant of Wall Street is entitled to. Machado is glowingly praised in a New York Times editorial. It seems that Machado stated that he has "no friends and no relatives" meaning that he was not on the government payroll with members of his family and his poor relations. But the president must not have to bother. He gets those little amenities taken care of by others. A few days ago we commented on the appointment of Machado's son-in-law as Cuban representative of the Chase National Bank. Who owns Cuba anyhow? The Chase National Bank et al or the people of Cuba?

• • •

HERE is a funny yarn, not meant to excite hilarity. The fiction is be-

(Continued on Page Three)

CIVIC FEDERATIONIST FIGHTS PLUMBERS

FURRIERS PACK THREE HALLS IN LOYALTY RALLY

Ovations for Gold and Acquitted Members

Condemning the actions of the manufacturers as a violation of the union agreement, pledging the fullest confidence in the Furriers' Joint Board and whole-hearted support to its leaders, thousands of fur workers crowded Cooper Union, Manhattan Lyceum and Webster Hall last night to give a mass welcome to Ben Gold, manager of the Joint Board, who was freed last Friday from the Mineola jail.

It happened that the workers also had an opportunity to welcome A. Antonofsky, M. Rosenberg and A. Wortuna, three workers who were acquitted yesterday after a trial in the Bronx County Court on a charge of assaulting the right wing stool pigeon, Morris Katz.

An ovation greeted Gold when he arrived, and the cheering broke out over and over again as he stood silently watching the enthusiastic greeting of his fellow workers. Henry Uterhardt, one of the attorneys for the union during the Mineola trial, stood next to Gold and when he rose to speak he, too, was greeted with cheers and wild applause.

The mass meetings were called to discuss the rumors of peace in the

(Continued on Page Five)

12 KNOWN DEAD; 6 DYING, TOLL OF BRIGGS FIRE

DETROIT, Mich., April 28.—One by one the flame-seared victims of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. explosion and fire are dying.

Five days after the wrecking by a double explosion of the "fire-proof" main building of the Harper Avenue plant, a total of 12 are known to be dead. Six more are dying by slow stages in hospitals. The recovery of an additional group of five is not certain.

Worst In Industry.

And only today's city and company officials began conducting the first systematic search of the ruins for the bodies of several workers who have been missing since the disaster, the worst in the history of the automotive industry. Brick and twisted steel in some places were heaped 30 feet deep when highly explosive materials in the huge paint shop blew up last Saturday morning. Th wreckage has remained too hot for easy removal until now.

Will Not Pay For Some.

The bodies of several workers may have been entirely consumed by the fire. Others may not be recognizable. The company will benefit from these circumstances, since they will affect the question of compensation. The company in this connection also will benefit from the leisurely pace of the official investigation into the cause of the fire, since publicity is always influential. The high-pressure daily papers, in their fickle fashion, are already tiring of the story.

Anyone who has worked long in Detroit or worked even for a short time in the automobile industry here knows of the Briggs Manufacturing Co. It is probably the most notorious of the low-wage plants. Conditions in the company's plants and the standard of living forced upon its employes by its wage level have been all but unbearable. Its product is automobile bodies.

The ventilation and entire general system in the paint shop was such that the making of an incandescent bulb or a tiny spark caused by some other accidental means might have set off the huge store of explosive material that was used on the floor. The air that the workers breathed was charged with explosive fumes. They worked in air that was dripping with the spray of a highly combustible lacquer. Heavy vapors of this kind clouded along the floor.

Two or three workers injured in the Briggs blast spoke afterward of having notice sparks shooting from a small overhead light. Then ran, shouting to others. Before they had

(Continued on Page Two)

'Big 4' Expose Brings Smith Reply

QUIZ INTO GRAFT OF INSURANCE IS NOW LOOKED FOR

Follows Wire of Editor of Daily Worker

Governor Smith, following the receipt of a telegram from William F. Dunne, editor of The DAILY WORKER calling his attention to the abuses exposed in its articles on industrial insurance, replied as follows:

"My dear Mr. Dunne: The governor is in receipt of your telegram and he has directed me to refer it to the State Superintendent of Insurance, directing him to give immediate attention and consideration to it, and to write you regarding the subject mentioned. Signed George B. Graves."

Additional evidence tending to show that the articles by Charles Yale Harrison have stimulated action toward an investigation of the methods and the enormous illegal profits of the "Big Four" is seen in the visit of an operative of the State Department of Insurance to The DAILY WORKER.

Investigation Demanded.

The DAILY WORKER'S telegram to Governor Smith read as follows:

"We believe the facts so far disclosed in the articles by Charles Yale Harrison and now running serially in The DAILY WORKER and syndicated to five other labor papers with circulations of over 150,000 are prima facie evidence of and furnish the basis for the need for the most searching investigation of the so-called "Big Four" industrial life insurance companies.

"Over 150,000 citizens are readers of these articles which have created a sensation and something resembling a panic in insurance circles. We urge an immediate appointment of a competent committee to conduct such an investigation through public session, where policyholders may be heard, and the publication of its findings at the earliest possible moment.

"We are sure that the findings of such a committee will substantiate the charges made in the Harrison articles and form the basis for much needed corrective legislation in this field. Signed, William F. Dunne, editor, The DAILY WORKER."

CALL MILITIA TO HELP DROWN OUT LOUISIANA POOR

BULLETIN.

NEW ORLEANS, April 28. — The state militia is firing at all moving objects in the river tonight following a theory that trappers and farmers will try to prevent by force cutting of the levee. Secretary Hoover's guards claim that three shots were fired at them.

• • •

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 28.—Flood stricken New Orleans and Louisiana returned to a war time basis today when John M. Parker, former governor, took up his duties as "dictator."

State engineers made final preparations today for the blasting of the Levee at Poydras, Le., ten miles below New Orleans. The crevasse is expected to carry off sufficient water to reduce the level at New Orleans at least thirty inches.

"Very material relief will be afforded by the Poydras opening to all points south of Baton Rouge and there is Poydras, practically no cause to fear trouble, below that point," Major Holcombe said after a careful study of river charts for the last 24 hours.

The Poor Flee.

But while wealthy, modern, business-like New Orleans, the port of second largest commerce in the United States, is cheerful over the prospect that it will not get its warehouses wet, nor the winter homes of

EIDLITZ, PAL OF MATTY WOLL IN CIVIC FEDERATION, DIRECTOR OF BOSSES' OUTFIT, BANKER, CLUBMAN

Who is Otto M. Eidlitz, pal of Matthew Woll in the fight against the New York Plumbers' Union?

A member of the executive committee of the National Civic Federation, Eidlitz is president and director of one of Manhattan's biggest building firms, Marc Eidlitz & Son, Inc., 4 East 42nd St.

Eidlitz, who is no small potato in financial circles either, is a trustee of the Bank for Savings, and director of the Commonwealth Bank, the Mutual Bank, and the Colonial Assurance Co.

Reaching out into other fields, Eidlitz is director of Bear Tractors, Inc., and the U. S. Mortar Supply Co.

Back in 1903-05 Eidlitz was chairman of the board of the Building Trades Employers' Association. He has also been president of the Mason Builders' Association of New York.

To round him off as a polished gentleman, Woll's partner in the Civic Federation has gone in for real leisure class decorations, including "fellow" of the Fine Arts Society and member of the Metropolitan Bureau and the American Museum of Natural History.

Eidlitz lives right up in swelldom, at 787 Fifth Ave. When he tires of his Fifth Ave. home, he can sink into the chairs of these clubs, to which he belongs:

Chelsea Plantation, South Carolina; Laurentian, Canada; Cornell, Aldine, Transportation, Liederkranz, New York Athletic, Engineers, Lotos and Delta Upsilon.

Such is the boon companion of Matthew Woll, acting president of Eidlitz Civic Federation.

IMPERIALISTS URGE CHANG RAID CHINESE-SOVIET UNION RAILWAY

Chiang Smashes Workers' Meeting; Kills 3; War In Field With Nationalist Forces

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Imperialists in effort to provoke U. S. S. R. to war, instigate confiscation of Chinese Eastern Railway, partly owned and controlled by the Soviet Union.

2.—Chang Tso-lin executes 24 captured in raids on the Soviet Union embassy compound.

3.—Resume business in the Japanese concession at Hankow after assurance from Eugene Chen.

4.—Nationalist troops and forces of Chiang Kai-shek clash near Kiukiang.

5.—Chiang smashes workers' demonstration at Kingwan, killing three.

6.—British guns sweep Chinese.

7.—If the United States refuses to join Great Britain in new note to Nationalists, France will do likewise, Foreign Office announces.

• • •

PEKING, April 28.—Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord, instigated it is believed by the imperialist powers, intends to take over complete control of the Chinese Eastern Railway on May 1st, it was learned today. The Chinese Eastern is a joint Sino-Russian enterprise.

Chang's move is regarded as an effort on the part of the imperialist powers to goad the Soviet Union into war. The powers had previously instigated Chang's raids on the Soviet embassy compound.

Executes 24

The Chinese-Eastern's daily receipts have just reached the record figure of 261,000 gold rubles daily. That the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics will retaliate by diverting traffic around the Amur route to Vladivostok is certain; what other action will be taken upon this latest outrage is unknown.

Chang Tso Lin has put to death by execution twenty-four Chinese Communists who were arrested in the U. S. S. R. embassy here a fortnight ago, according to a statement made by Senator Hiram Bingham of Connecticut, who today had a conference with Chang Tso Lin.

Bids For Foreign Support

Senator Bingham, who is here as the guest of American Minister John Van A. MacMurray, has visited Chang Tso-lin. Chang, who is making a bid for an American subsidy, told Senator Bingham that he "intended to protect American property" in the region under his control as long as he was able to do.

Senator Bingham is examining the documents seized by Chang in his unprecedented raid on the Soivet embassy compound. It is believed Chang is making alterations and interpolations in the documents in order to secure foreign support on the basis of a "red scare."

• • •

Resume Business In Hankow

HANKOW, April 28.—Measures for the resumption of business in the Japanese concession were taken at a joint conference Saturday attended by the Japanese vice-consul, representatives of the Japanese Chamber of Commerce, a delegate of the Hupeh Labor Union, a delegate of the Kuomingtang, a labor department delegate and a delegate from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

It was decided that the Japanese shops and factories would all resume business on April 27th. The Government and the General Labor Union are taking full responsibility for affording protection.

Chen Assures Foreigners

Forty-five imperialist gunboats remain in the harbor with their guns trained on the city, despite the small number of foreigners here and the pledges given by Eugene Chen, Nationalist Foreign Minister. Chen has repeatedly requested foreign business men to talk over the situation, assuring that their lives and property are safe. A special police force, equipped with an armored car, has been formed to maintain order in the city, he said.

Purge Party

With the settlement of the party question, purging the party of all reactionary elements, the government now is turning its attention to the economic question, particularly its relations with labor. The government

(Continued on Page Three)

WOLL ASSOCIATE ON FIRING LINE IN LOCKOUT OF 10,000 UNIONISTS

Otto Eidlitz Backs Up Boss Norman of Building Trades Employers Association

Frank admission that the present lockout of over 5,000 plumbers is part of the campaign to break down labor organization in the entire building trades was made yesterday by C. G. Norman, president of the Building Trades Employers' Association.

"If we are successful in preventing the wages of plumbers in Brooklyn from being raised," Norman declared, "it will be the first serious check to increased building trades wages since before the war."

Backing Norman is Otto M. Eidlitz, a director of the Employers' Association and a prominent member of the National Civic Federation. Matthew Woll, vice president of the A. F. of L., and leaders of the sinister forces seeking to drive militant left wing workers from the trade union movement is acting president of the National Civic Federation. This group exists as a liaison body between reactionary labor officials and financial interests anxious to guide the labor movement into reactionary channels.

The plumbers' struggle, which is likely to throw ont of work 100,000 other workers in allied building trades, promises to be a hard fought one.

International Secretary Burke, of the plumbers, characterized the action of the bosses as "diabolical." "It is the first time that a general lockout of this nature has occurred in the building trades in New York."

Want 25 Cents More An Hour.

Refusal of the bosses even to discuss the situation was the result of the demand of Brooklyn plumbers for a $14 day, a $2 increase. According to the city-wide agreement, the $14 scale of wages would apply to all plumbers' locals within 90 days.

The courts were recruited in the aid of the boss plumbers yesterday morning when the effort of the union of Manhattan and the Bronx to avoid the lockout by suing for an injunction, resulted in postponement of the application until May 5.

The declaration of Norman, the head of the employers' association that 700,000 men in the building trades would be affected by the lockout was given the lie by union men, who stated that this number was unduly exaggerated in order to inflame public opinion against the plumbers. They asserted that the number could in the most extreme situation hardly reach more than 150,000.

Plumbers' Helpers Out.

"We are striking against the lockout of the plumbers; we are also striking against the miserable conditions in our own trade." This statement by C. E. Miller, president of the American Association of Plumbers' Helpers, was followed by the declaration that prosperity in the building trades is all a fairy tale in so far as the helpers are concerned.

More than 5,000 plumbers' helpers in Brooklyn, Manhattan, and Queens are now fortifying the battle of the plumbers. Their campaign of organization has become more intensive since the lockout order of the boss plumbers.

The most underpaid workers in the trade, the plumbers' helpers who have been receiving $4 a day are demanding recognition of their union, a 40-hour week, and a $9 a day wage rate.

Expectant Mother Joins Husband in Effort at Burglary

Her husband jobless, Mrs. Agnes Dalton, 20, joined him in burglary yesterday in order to get enough money to provide for an expected baby.

They were caught jimmying the door of an apartment at 396 Brook Ave., the Bronx, according to police who claim they admitted two recent robberies.

Both are held on charges of burglary.

After sleeping in subway stations for two nights from lack of funds, Blanche Speaker, 19, and Mildred George, 18, who came to New York to become Broadway stage stars, were held today for return to their homes in Mayfield, Pa.

System Breeds More Criminals Than Ever

A special cenans made of eleven institutions, including Sing Sing, under the state department of corrections, shows that there are altogether 9,967 inmates under supervision of the department.

This is the largest number ever assembled under the management in the state of New York, or in any other state in the country.

SAVE MADEIROS TO TESTIFY IN VANZETTI CASE

Workers Continue to Demand Freedom

(Special To The DAILY WORKER.)

BOSTON, April 28.—As a result of world wide protest and the advice of Frank A. Brooks, chairman of the state parole board, Governor Fuller has granted a third reprieve to Celestino Madeiros, payroll murderer, who has confessed that he participated in the job for which Sacco and Vanzetti have been condemned to die July 10. Madeiros' third reprieve expires on July 10.

Fuller held up action until the day before the Portuguese slayer was to go to the chair for the Wrentham bank robbery.

The governor's reliance on Brooks for counsel on the Madeiros reprieve strengthens the belief here that he will appoint Brooks special commissioner to report on the Sacco-Vanzetti case. According to a report sponsored by Federated Press several days ago, Fuller was said to have discarded the idea of naming a special commission to investigate the case. Instead, according to the labor news service, Fuller is to name Brooks as his special representative to go over the evidence and report to him.

Brooks is said to have been impressed with the confessions signed by Madeiros practically implicating the Morelli gang, of which he was a member, in the South Braintree job. Yesterday Brooks was closeted with the Portuguese slayer in his cell in the death house at Charlestown State Prison.

To date not a word has come from the American Federation of Labor requesting action of any sort for Sacco and Vanzetti. Although the governor's office has received thousands of communications from local unions in every section of the country, the high officials of the Federation have not yet designed to notice the case officially.

Sacco and Vanzetti are preparing a statement for Governor Fuller so that a formal appeal may be placed before him. They have objected strongly to attempts by their counsel, Attorney William G. Thompson, to have them sign a plea for pardon, with the implication it bears of guilt. A statement which asks simply for whatever justice Massachusetts may see fit to dispense is to be signed by the two workers.

Fuller's Statement.

Governor Fuller, in reprieving Madeiros, issued the following explanation:

"While as yet no formal petition has been presented to me asking executive consideration of the cases of Sacco and Vanzetti, I have reason to believe that at some time in the

(Continued on Page Two)

Read The Daily Worker Every Day

GOVERNOR'S APPOINTEE OKAYS PRUDENTIAL'S CROOKED ACCOUNTS

RESUME OF INSURANCE EXPOSE

The DAILY WORKER herewith continues its exposure of the "Big Four" Insurance Trust. The "Big Four" is composed of the Metropolitan, Prudential, John Hancock and the Colonial Life Insurance Companies. In previous articles Mr. Harrison has adduced evidence proving misrepresentation, fraud, exhoneration and misuse of "mutual" funds. There are 40,000,000 American workers paying tribute to the "Big Four." Names prominent in government and financial circles have peppered the series thus far. Notably in this respect we find Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan Life and outstanding labor-baiter by virtue of his membership in the National Civic Federation, Albert H. Wiggin, Joseph P. Day, New York's super-realtor and many others.

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON.

ARTICLE XVII.

The Superintendent of Insurance is appointed by the governor. His term is three years and his salary, in addition to whatever he makes dispensing favors to the insurance trust, is $10,000 per year. Under the State Reorganization Plan it will be $15,000.

The present incumbent is one James A. Beha, he is Al Smith's personal appointee. He is the custodian of the insurance funds required under law to be deposited with the State of New York.

Supposed to Watch.

Once a year all companies operating in the State of New York must submit reports to him of their activities for the preceding year. It is his duty to make abstracts of these reports, Incorporate them into a document called the New York Insurance Report and submit it to the Legislature.

For due cause he may suspend any company from further operation.

Such due cause exists. It exists specifically in the case of the Prudential Life Insurance Company. This company, not satisfied with the usual procedure of operating on billion dollar "reserves," had deliberately falsified its report to the superintendent.

Let Prudential Steal.

On pages 490 and 491 of the 1925 N. Y. Insurance Report the Prudential admits that it subsidized the Association of Life Insurance Presidents to the tune of $221,254.71.

This item was entered under the heading of "disbursements." On page 504 of the same report under the heading of "partial list of salaries, compensation and emoluments, etc." the Prudential actuary again lists payment to the Association; this time it is set down as $24,998.44.

Now either one of the two entrees is correct. Did Mr. Beha notice this obvious piece of thievery? Did his army of assistants observe this blatant fraud?

Or on the other hand did he accept the report of his future employers without checking it up and incorporate it in his report.

Legislators Too.

After Mr. Beha okayed this theft of some two hundred thousand dollars from the "mutual" Prudential policyholders, the report went to the Legislature. Again it was okayed.

If the item as reported under the partial list of emoluments is reported correctly then how does the Prudential account for the fact that the $221,254.71 balanced the entire account for 1925?

If, on the other hand, the $221,254.71 entry is correct, then the Superintendent of Insurance should immediately call for an examination of the company's books.

This is an old story now. The 1925 report was issued in September 1926. In his statement to the Legislature Mr. Beha said:

"The Superintendent of Insurance transmits herewith for your consideration Part II of his annual report, containing detailed information abstracted from audited statements of stock and mutual companies authorized to transact business in this State. . . ."

Who audited the Prudential statement? And how did this "error" get by the auditor?

All Got Jobs.

It is a well known fact that past insurance superintendents have been taken care of by the insurance trust. In this connection one remembers with a feeling of revulsion John A. McCall Jr., who played a most disgusting role prior to and during the late Armstrong Insurance Investigation.

By his failure to call the Prudential Insurance Company to task in the Association of Life Insurance Presidents' bribe, Mr. Beha has conclusively demonstrated his unfitness to hold the responsible position he does.

Beha Earning His?

By condoning and overlooking a swindle of such magnitude Mr. Beha has offered sufficient reason to believe that he has his eye on a soft job with the "Big Four" when his tenure of public office expires.

In harboring this ambition he does not differ materially with past superintendents.

Governor Smith appointed James A. Beha to his present lucrative position. Governor Smith is empowered to remove him.

We urge Governor Smith, if he nurtures any 1928 ambitions, to immediately remove Mr. Beha from office and clear up the whole weekly payment insurance swindle to the gratification of 40,000,000 American worker-insurers who now suffer from the fraudulent and illegal machinations of the "Big Four."

Twelve Known Dead in Automobile Shop Fire

(Continued from Page One)

gone many feet the explosion filled the room with flame. A second explosion followed in a few seconds. Brick walls crumbled. Sections of floor crashed to the floor below. One worker was blown out of a fourth-story window to the pavement. Bricks showered on the sidewalk across the street, in one instance breaking the windows of a restaurant. The clothing was burned from the bodies of several workers. How many were buried in the ruins no one knows. Twenty nine were taken to hospitals. Two died later the same day.

Indifferent to Safety.

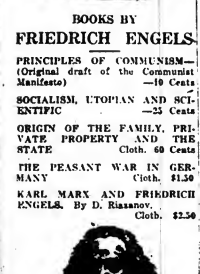
The Briggs Manufacturing Co. has resisted every advance made in the safety code. A former Detroit commissioner of buildings and safety engineering has been quoted as saying as he resigned because of a controversy over one such in the Harper Avenue plant of the Briggs Company. His successor has denied this was the cause of the resignation but has admitted the files of the department show a controversy took place, with the Briggs Manufacturing Co. manifesting barbarous indifference to the safety of its thousands of men and women workers. The profits to be gained from such on enterprise in the open-shop stronghold of Detroit were very great. Walter O. Briggs, head of the company, was the millionaire backer of Gene Buck's extravagantly lavish shok; "Yours Truly."

More workers have lost their lives in a single disaster before. The Briggs fire was especially notable, however, because it occurred in a modern industry, conducted supposedly along scientific or enlightened safety lines. It took place in a modern building, built in 1922. The slaughter, nevertheless, would have been greater had it not occurred while only a comparatively small force was at work.

Hunger Drove Workers.

In asking for jobs there the worker who lost their lives in the fire had to choose between working at the Briggs plant and going hungry. They were aware daily of their danger. But they were tied to their jobs by needs as strong as the chains of ancient involuntary servitude. About 100,000 are out of work in the Detroit industrial district. For every job at the Briggs plant there were 100 applicants at the employment window.

BOOKS BY
FRIEDRICH ENGELS



PRINCIPLES OF COMMUNISM—(Original draft of the Communist Manifesto) —10 Cents

SOCIALISM, UTOPIAN AND SCIENTIFIC —25 Cents

ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY, PRIVATE PROPERTY AND THE STATE Cloth. 60 Cents

THE PEASANT WAR IN GERMANY Cloth. $1.50

KARL MARX AND FRIEDRICH ENGELS. By D. Riazanov Cloth. $2.50

Washington officials admit that the floods of the Mississippi could have merely direct them against the poorer sections of the country, by deliberately breaking the levee above New Orleans.

Call Militia to Help Flood Poorer Parishes

(Continued from Page One)

northern tourists, the old French residents of Saint Bernard and Blaquemine parishes do not feel so happy. Their homes, their crops, their lives too, unless they hasten, are to be flooded from that dynamited levee at Poydras.

Since Tuesday night the Poydras pike had been a stifling course of heavy dust, kicked up by the exodus of the fugitives. The neat homes are closed and shuttered. Not all of these home were deserted placidly. There is about Poydras and its neighborhood a charm and grace of antiquity which shows that many have lived, labored, loved, and died there.

And not far away are the red brick ruins of the old Versailles plantation home, which seem hardly less ancient than the water oaks and their festoons of gray moss. Poydras is old.

Some Would Fight.

And it was accordingly not easy to win the agreement of all persons in the settlement to desert their homes to the flood. Some of the most deeply rooted inhabitants in a flare of defiance refused to move. For the most part these have been won over through intercession by influential neighbors, but it is known that there are many old irreconcilables, particularly in the parts of St. Bernard parish away from the settlement.

"There has been some talk of danger of shooting when the engineers go to break the levee," said a prominent New Orleans civic leader. "We are hoping that everything has been worked out, and that with our assurances of ample indemnities, and of every possible means of relief, our friends in Poydras will be reconciled but we are not sure that this is completely so."

An immediate relief fund of $150,000 has been raised among 50 New Orleans bankers and business leaders. This matter of indemnity is necessarily unofficial at this stage, and it will be largely defrayed by private purses. There is no assurance that the old residents ever will be compensated.

Flood Preventible.

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The disastrous Mississippi floods probably will result in the administration presenting to the new congress in December an ambitious and far-reaching system of flood prevention, it was forecast here today in official circles.

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon said he believed it would be possible to work out a program based upon prevention of spring floods and the development of hydro-electric power plants in the Mississippi, Ohio and Missouri River Valleys that will be of inestimable value to the nation. No excuse has so far been offered as to why this has not been done already.

Passaic's Workers Demand Freedom for Sacco and Vanzetti

PASSAIC, N. J., April 28.—The workers of Passaic and vicinity gathered tonight in an open air meeting at Belmont Park, Garfield.

Among the speakers were: Albert Weisbord, former strike leader and at present one of the labor candidates in the race for city commissioners; Robert W. Dunn, of the American Civil Liberties Union; Pat Devine, Carlo Tresco, Louis G. Quintiliano and Francesco Coco.

The following resolution was passed:

"RESOLVED, That this meeting of workers and vicinity, is in favor of all workingclass organizations uniting their forces to free Sacco and Vanzetti whose persecution is a general attack on the freedom of expression so necessary to the workers:

"That we stand solidly behind the movement for a National Conference at which the question of national action could be discussed, and be it further resolved

"That we request the Governor of Massachusetts to intervene and give justice to our two persecuted fellow workers, who have devoted their lives to the cause of labor, by giving them their absolute and unconditional freedom."

Coast Workers Want Sacco and Vanzetti Set Free at Once

(Special To The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 28.—The workers of the coast are raising their voices in protest against the attempt of the New England capitalists to murder Sacco and Vanzetti.

At a well attended open air meeting held here at the Plaza, the assembled workers listened as speaker after speaker exposed one of the most shameful plots in the history of the labor movement. Many banners were displayed that told of the resentment of the workers towards those responsible for that state of things.

Speakers addressed the meeting in all languages. There were representatives of the American, Italian, Mexican and Negro workers on the speakers stand.

• • •

San Francisco Holds Meeting.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., April 28.—The largest working gathering held here in six years assembled in California Hall to join in the nation-wide protest of the Sacco and Vanzetti from the electric chair.

John D. Barry, feature writer in the Scripps Daily News, was chairman of the meeting. The other speakers were George Speed of the I. W. W., Edgar Owens, of the International Labor Defense; Jack McDonald of the San Francisco Labor College and E. Lewis of the Workers (Communist) Party.

A large collection to assist in the campaign was taken up.

• • •

MADRID, Iowa, April 28.—Protesting against the attempt to railroad Sacco and Vanzetti to death, United Mine Workers, local 6170, have passed a resolution calling upon Governor Fuller of Massachusetts to grant them a pardon.

Madeiros, Witness For Sacco-Vanzetti Saved

(Continued from Page One)

near future such a petition will be filed by either or both of those men, or by counsel in their behalf.

"Such a petition would naturally call for an investigation by the executive, and any such investigation would naturally include in its scope one Celestino Madeiros, who is now under sentance of death, which sentance is to be executed during the week beginning 12:01 A. M., Thursday, April 28, 1927. In order that any such investigation may not be hampered by the execution of Madeiros, I have decided to respite the execution of the said Madeiros on the recommendation of Attorney General Arthur Reading to and including Sunday, July 10, 1927."

Let's Fight On! Join The Workers Party!

In the loss of Comrade Ruthenberg the Workers (Communist) Party has lost its foremost leader and the American working class its staunchest fighter. This loss can only be overcome by many militant workers joining the Party that he built.

Fill out the application below and mail it. Become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party and carry forward the work of Comrade Ruthenberg.

I want to become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Name .....

Address .....

Occupation .....

Union Affiliation.....

Mail this application to the Workers Party, 108 East 14th Street, New York City; or if in other city to Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Distribute the Ruthenberg pamphlet, "The Workers (Communist) Party, What it Stands For and Why Workers Should Join." This Ruthenberg pamphlet will be the basic pamphlet thruout the Ruthenberg Drive. Every Party Nucleus must collect 50 cents from every member and will receive 20 pamphlets for every member to sell or distribute.

Nuclei in the New York District will get their pamphlets from the District Office—108 East 14th St.

Nuclei outside of the New York District write to Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 East First Street, New York City, or to the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Special Drawings in the May Day Daily Worker

Los Angeles Labor Council Prepares To Exclude Lefts

LOS ANGELES, April 28.— Information has leaked out to the effect that reactionary officials of the Central Labor Council are going to begin a wholesale expulsion campaign against the left-wing and progressive delegates of the Council at its next meeting. They have been given documents by the police department's "Red Squad" and compiled a list of ten to fifteen delegates who are charged with being Communist sympathizers, and if precedents will be followed, there is no doubt that an attempt will be made to unseat these members in a red-baiting campaign.

Lead By Buzzell.

The first step in this direction was when Secretary Buzzell of the Central Labor Council, appeared before the Carpenters District Council, who had endorsed Sam Globerman's candidacy for the Board of Education, and demanded that the endorsement be withdrawn on the grounds that the candidate was a Communist. He claimed to have minutes and other documents, thru the stool-pigeons he is associated with, to prove that Globerman is secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party.

An investigation committee was elected, which did not even interview the accused man, but reported back recommending withdrawal of endorsement, which carried, (although a strong fight was put up against it), thru pressure of the reactionary machine.

Fear Globerman.

The fear of the influence of Globerman's candidacy, which has been officially endorsed even by the Central Labor Council itself, prompted the officials to take the next step to prevent their own defeat; expulsion of delegates. Another reason is Buzzel's desire to have the opposition elements in the Council, so-called "progressives" who are flirting with the left-wingers for their votes, branded as "reds" if they take the floor to defend the right of delegates to sit in the Council regardless of their political belief.

Will Work Carefully.

The left-wing will watch this group carefully, to see if they will have the courage to work hard against expulsion. There are two tendencies within this opposition group; one is led by a former Socialist, Fieder of the Electrical Workers Union, which is purely reactionary in character; the other is led by John Valentine, Secretary of Los Angeles County Building Trades Council, who is expected to run on the opposition slate against Buzzell for secretary of the Central Labor Council.

Valentine claims to be a "fearless progressive," and was secretary of the Labor Party in this city in 1923, at which time he was inore or less friendly to the T. U. E. L. group, at which time dozens of carpenters were expelled by the officials, following upon police raids on the headquarters of the T. U. E. L. It is only now that the T. U. E. L. is beginning to revive since that period.

Four Slates.

If this opposition group does not adopt a clear-cut progressive program, there will be four slates in the field in the June elections of the Central Labor Council; Buzzell, the present secretary; Horn, former secretary and friend of Buzzell, with whom he has had a falling out; the opposition group under Fieder of the Electrical Workers, Valentine of the Building Trades Council, Wright of the Carpenters, and Hassel, Labor Temple manager; there may be, then, the fourth slate of left-wing progressives if they are not expelled from the Central Labor Council very shortly, as is planned by the machine.

Die-Hards Fight to Smash British Labor By Anti-Strike Bill

LONDON, April 28.—Faced with important legislation, including the government's anti-strike bill, which is sure to provoke long and stormy debate, parliament assembled today after the Easter recess. In view of the Labor Party's attitude the anti-strike bill may prove one of the liveliest issues that parliament has dealt with in years.

Budget resolutions were scheduled for first consideration this afternoon, with commons taking up the proposed duties on tea, medicines and motor tires.

Sir John Simon, Liberal, representing West Riding, Yorkshire, had previously given notice he would oppose the proposed tariff on tires.

Who Is Behind the Prosecution of the Militant Needle Trades Workers?

Who Are Matthew Woll's Fellow Conspirators?

They Are Leaders of the National Civic Federation!

Woll is Acting President of the Labor Hating Civic Federation.

There is a United Front of the Special American Federation of Labor Committee, headed by Vice President Woll, and the National Civic Federation, dominated by the most powerful capitalists in the United States.

Matthew Woll is the connecting link in the conspiracy. With him in the Civic Federation is:

ON THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE, NATIONAL CIVIC FEDERATION.

William D. Baldwin, Chairman of the Board, Otis Elevator Co.
Director, American Meter Body Co.
Employers' Liability Assurance Corporation, Director.
Member U. S. Branch Advisory Board of London, England, Limited.
Director, Hale and Kilburn Co.
Director, Home Insurance Company.
Director, Martin Rockwell Corporation.
The Director of Metropolitan Trust Company of the city of N. Y.
Director, National Surety Co.
President and Director of the Otis Building Company.
Chairman of the Board of Directors of Otis-Fensom Elevator Co., Canada.
Director of Sondh Electric Co.
The Director of U. S. Life Insurance Co. in the city of N. Y.
Trustee, U. S. Savings Bank.
Director of What Cheer and Hopes Mutual Fire Insurance Co.

Needle Trade Defense

The crying need of money to pay for defense has brought out a great response from the workers who find all sorts of ways to build the fund.

The two most favorite means are shop Collections and Collections at House Parties. Many such collections find their way daily to the office and the income from this amounts to large sums.

• • •

We Hope So Too.

Joint Defense Committee,
Gentlemen,—"Enclosed find check of $16.00. Five Dollars was given to me by Mrs. M. Rosenzweig and $10.00 is from me.

"Hoping you will get a few thousand $18.00 checks, I remain,

"Respectfully yours,
—Ezekiel Mendelsohn."

A few thousand such checks would almost solve the problem of raising money to pay for the defense, but our trouble is that most workers cannot afford such amounts, while the manufacturers are with the union smashers.

• • •

Women's Council Knows How.

Tillie Lttinsky of Women's Council No. 7, Brownsville, made a real collection. She made a visit among her friends with two Bezaar Honor Roll Lists and brought back $161.00.

• • •

RAIC Shares.

Workmen's Circle Branch 715 of Brockton, Mass., sends in three shares of the Russian American Industrial Corporation with the following letter: "Worthy Friends of the Joint Defense Committee":

"We are in receipt of your appeal and send you three shares of the R.A.I.C. amounting to $30.00. One of the shares is the property of the branch and two are from individual members.

"We donate these to you. Fill in the necessary information and cash them for the defense.

"We wish you success in your work and remain,

"Fraternally yours,
Joseph Serin, Branch Secretary."

Miss Sonia Lehman also sent us a share of the R.A.I.C. and we are pleased to report that all four shares have been cashed for the benefit of the Defense fund. Send in the R.A.I.C. SHARES.

The workers of H. Birman's Shop delivered a small collection of $18.00 which was very welcome and they were followed by Anna and Louis Lazaar of 1328 Webster Ave., with a collection of $50.00 raised from their guests at a House Party. We urge friends to take as example and make collections at House Parties and the like.

Outside of New York, the Cloakmakers and Furriers Defense has obtained the best results from the city of Detroit. Not only has Detroit made a fine record in proceeding rapidly in fixing itself as second in the list of cities contributing to the Defense, also much good work is being done.

At a conference held last Sunday, representative of many working class organizations, it was decided to arrange for two tag days to be held on May 1st and 8th. The conference committee has issued a call to all workers in Detroit to assist with the work on these two tag days.

A mass meeting for the near future is being arranged.

It was decided to elect a committee to take a theatre and make other necessary arrangements for the running of the great moving picture "The Jungle" by Upton Sinclair for a date late in May.

The executive committee of the conference is to meet weekly.

Many organizations have already contributed to the defense, among them 3 locals of the Bakery Drivers Union.

Flora Anna Skin Ointment

for PIMPLES, BLACKHEADS, LARGE PORES

freckles, rash, itching skin, eczema or stubborn skin trouble of any kind will be banished by use of FLORA ANNA SKIN OINTMENT. $1.00. Sold on money back guarantee.

NEW WAY LABORATORIES

270 West 43rd St. New York City

25% of all sales are donated to The DAILY WORKER. Always mention The DAILY WORKER on your order.

Are You Getting FINCO Co-operative BAKERY PRODUCTS

(Union Made)

If not, let us know and we'll instruct our driver to call at your home.

Finnish Co-operative Trading Association, Inc.
Tel. Windsor 9052. 4301 Eighth Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The BOOK

Containing the political and economic knowledge so necessary for every worker. Be sure to read —and to re-read often the

ELEMENTS OF POLITICAL EDUCATION

By A. BREDNIKOV and A. SVETLOV

$1.00 Paper $1.50 Cloth

THE DAILY WORKER 33 FIRST ST. N. Y.

Red Leaders Out Misery Invasive Against U. S. In Nicaragua, China War

O'FALLEN, Ill., April 26.—The workers in this city, as well as many others in this state, have been protesting vigorously against the invasion of Nicaragua by the United States marines, and against the intervention in China. One result is the following resolution, regularly passed at a local union meeting here:

WHEREAS, The establishment of order in violation of the principles of self-determination of all peoples has cost the United States marines to support a dictator established by Wall Street in Nicaragua, against the wishes of the laboring people of that republic.

BE IT RESOLVED: That this local union No. 706 United Mine Workers of America, with a membership of over five hundred (500) members, declare our unalterable position in favor of the rights of self determination of all people, and pledge our brotherly support to the labor movement of Mexico and Nicaragua. Be it further resolved: That we protest emphatically against the invasion of Nicaragua, the threats against Mexico and intervention in China.

AND BE IT RESOLVED: That we demand the withdrawal of the United States troops from Nicaragua and China.

J. B. Brown, president; Chas. Mumholt, secretary.

DENVER, (FP) April 28.—In addition to the repeal of the state constabulary law, Colorado labor is celebrating the passage of the 8-hour law for cement and plaster plants and a restriction on sale of prison goods. This act forbids the sale of Colorado prison products in competition with firms in the state hiring free labor.

APRIL 23

(1860)

The Birthday of our Leader

L E N I N

on the simplest, most necessary things in the revolutionary movement. This work teaches fundamental problems. It includes all his speeches and writings

ON ORGANIZATION

$1.50

In a cloth-bound library edition.

The DAILY WORKER PUB. CO.
33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

Sweden Feels Unemployment's Growing Pinch

STOCKHOLM, April 15. (By Mail).—Up to recent times Sweden has been the best off of all the Scandinavian countries as regards unemployment. The number of unemployed was not only relatively, but actually lower than in the other countries. But unemployment has assumed imposing proportions this year. According to official statistics of 250,000 workers 47,614 (or 19%) were unemployed on the 1st of January of this year. In other words every fifth worker in Sweden was unemployed in the beginning of 1927.

Conditions of existence for the unemployed are much worse in Sweden than in Norway and Denmark. There is no unemployed insurance in Sweden and all aid to the unemployed is on the voluntary principle. The unemployed only receive doles from trade union funds, consisting of nothing but membership fees. The bill for the introduction of the Ghent system of unemployment insurance, brought before the Riksdag, never saw the light, although it was considered during the whole of the term of office of the social democratic government.

Not Enough Work.

The unemployed got some help from the state and public departments through the agency of the so-called "unemployment commissions," who were authorized to get the unemployed into municipal compulsory work. This help was, however, in the first place inadequate, as only 10 to 13 per cent. of the unemployed could be used on compulsory municipal work (of 24,700 seeking municipal compulsory employment in December 1926 only 3,259 were given it, i. e., 13%), and in the second place, the unemployment commissions have recently undertaken the task of recruiting the unemployed as strike breakers to substitute workers on strike. The decision of the unemployment commissions to send unemployed to substitute strikers in the Strippe mine fields caused the resignation of the social democratic government in June 1926, the liberals and conservatives voting in the Riksdag for the unemployment commissions to function as recruiting bureaus for strike-breakers.

Organizes The Unemployed.

The growing acuteness of unemployment in the winter of 1926 confronted the masses, and especially those sections of the proletariat standing for the revolutionary class struggle, with the problem of organizing the unemployed. This was essential not only in the interests of the struggle of the unemployed for the improval of their position, but also to avert strike-breaking among the unemployed. The question of the relations between the unemployed and the trade union organizations, the unemployed often having reason to complain of the reluctance of the trade unions to organize them and look after their interests.

It was all this that caused the left elements in the labor movement to get busy in the end of 1926 over the preparation of a National unemployed conference. This conference was held from the 11th to 13th of March in Stockholm. It was attended by delegates from 24 unemployed organizations, 15 local trades councils and 8 trade union branches—106 delegates altogether, representing about 150,000 workers. Invitations to the conference were sent both to political and trade union working class organizations—to the social democratic party, the Swedish federation of trade unions, the Swedish Communist Party, the syndicalist T. U. centre, and the small group of supporters of the I. W. W. in Sweden.

Refused To Send Envoys.

The social democratic party and the Swedish federation of trade unions refused to attend the conference. According to the "social democrat," the Swedish federation of trade unions declared its unwillingness to send a representative. The social democratic executive informed the Initiators of the conference by letter that it "could not send a representative but hoped that the labors and decisions of the conference would be of use to the unemployed." This is extremely characteristic of the Swedish reformists and social-democrats. The social democratic party "hopes that the conference will be of use to the unemployed" and—has no desire to attend such a conference. The following questions stood on the agenda of the conference: 1—report of unemployed movement; 2—policy of government and public departments as regards the unemployed; 3.—compulsory municipal work; 4. unemployed organizations and their activities; 5.—the trade unions and unemployment; 6.—unemployment insurance; 7.—the problem of allotting land to unemployed agricultural laborers.

Dispute Between Employers and Trade Unions in Canton

ON THE second day after the Chinese new year celebrations, which are held at the end of January, many Canton merchants and industrialists dismissed over 4,000 workers without paying the usual and traditional compensation. Moreover, the majority of those dismissed were active workers in the trade unions. The Canton Council of Workers' delegates instructed their members to remain at work and informed the owners that it would not permit any violation of the union rules in dismissing workers. In reply, an urgent meeting called by the Chamber of Commerce was held on the 26th of January. It called upon the Government of the Kwang-Tung Province to protect the traditional rights of the employers and threatening to declare a lockout in case of refusal. To bolster up their case about 20,000 merchants organized a grand demanstration outside the Government Building on the 30th of February. On the same day about 20,000 workers demonstrated, demanding that their interests be defended. There were no collisions between the demonstrators.

The New Strike Law

It should be mentioned here that in December, 1926, the Government of the Kwangtung Province adopted the law on strikes. This law provided for a payment of two months' wages in lieu of notice should workers be kicked theoughout of their own. The trade unions, therefore, had every right to regard the action of the employers as unlawful.

A special Arbitration Commission was appointed by the Government to settle the dispute. However, all its attempts to reach a settlement failed. The employers were implacable and after the fourth meeting of the Commission they recalled their representatives. Thus, the employers not only broke the law on strikes but violated the Government Decree of December last on Obligatory Arbitration.

Workers Boycotted Cato

It is important to note that the employers not only raised the question of the right to dismiss workers without compensation on the second day of the New Year, but even insisted upon a general revision of the existing Government rules and regulations on relations between workers and employers. Furthermore, the employers demanded that the percentage payment on business operations payable to the unions as well as the voluntary subscriptions organized by the latter should be suspended.

On all these questions the point of view of the workers was expressed in the proposals presented to the Arbitration Commission by the Canton Council of Workers' Delegates, Kwangtung General Labor Union, Kwangtung Union of Mechanics and the Canton Association of Revolutionary Workers. Although these proposals differ in detail, their general tone is practically the same. The following proposals made by the General Labor Union are the most typical: 1) the practice of dismissing workers on the second day after the New Year celebrations must be abolished; 2) dismissal of workers is permitted only when a month's notice has been given and on condition that three-months' wages be paid in lieu of notice; 3) during the course of one year after the conclusion of a strike workers cannot be dismissed; 4) neither can the employers during this period of time close down their enterprises; should the enterprise be sold, workers are to be paid off in accordance with point 2; 5) all agreements signed by the trade unions and employers remain in force.

Insisting On Rights

In putting up these demands the workers are only insisting on the recognition of those rights which had already been regulated in part by the Government.

The present dispute prompted the merchants in Canton, Hongkong and Macao to carry on a campaign against trade union interference in industrial disputes. The employers have organized themselves into special Employers' Association. According to communications published in "The Peking and Tientsin Times" on the 10th of March, the police and a few representatives of the Military Staff in Canton took the employers' side in the dispute and supported the idea of setting up a single Employers' Association to struggle with the trade unions. It was reported that certain members of the local organization of the Kwomingtang also favored the employers. On the 12th of March, however, the same paper reported that the employers were backing out and were ready to make concessions to the trade unions. Very interesting is the appreciation of the "Peking and Tientsin Times" March 8th) and their change of policy:

Workers' Technique Better

"Generally speaking the merchants appear quite helpless in the face of opposition. . . . The workers seem to know far more about organization than the merchants do. They have departments for secretarial service, picketing, propaganda, relief of sick and needy members, entertainments and social intercourse. The merchants have nothing but their guilds and their Chambers of Commerce and the members of these bodies do not necessarily know the other members. . . .

The "Peking and Tientsin Times" is especially disturbed by the fact that the merchants were unable to utilize the favorable support they received from the authorities, remaining totally inactive when the police and soldiers had removed the pickets from some of the enterprises. In any case, the employers have given way, and the dispute will evidently be settled in favor of the workers in the very near future.

IMPERIALISTS URGE CHANG TSO-LIN TO WAR ON UNION OF SOCIALIST SOVIET REPUBLICS

(Continued from Page One)

has been in consultation for the past few days with labor leaders, both local and national. The following plan is worked out with him: 1—the suspension of labor which has pledged to impose self discipline in order to bring the revolution to a successful close.

The government, it has been decided, will take up this question of the resumption of business by foreign firms either directly or thru the consuls. Where diplomatic recognition existed, the matter will be settled by agreement. Labor in full cooperation pledges itself to abide by agreement once such stated voluntarily strikes will occur except in cases where employers fail to keep the agreement.

In places not involving strikes but concerning the restoration of conditions under which business can more readily operate the matter will be taken care of by the government.

Labor Cooperates

The labor leaders have made it clear to the government that in cases where agreement reached by the government is violated such violation will be due to counter-revolutionary influences and for the trial and punishment of such cases a special tribunal will be set up. This will be a voluntary act of revolutionary discipline, the labor leaders state.

To carry out the agreement with the government the Hupeh General Labor Union has issued special regulations calling on workers to obey the government and the union, forbidding disturbances of any kind, especially those involving foreigners, and ordering strikes in foreign firms, banks, or factories unless an order is given by the union, announcing the establishment of a special court committee to take up violence of regulations.

Silver Embargo Temporary

The silver embargo is purely a temporary measure, it was stated in official circles here, involving no change in financial policy, and is designed purely to keep finances on a sound basis and to prevent the withdrawal of silver from the banks which might raise prices and bring illegal transfer of the metal abroad. This protective measure is similar to the world war financial measures, it is stated. Measures designed to facilitate foreign trade operations are being taken. The regulations will be announced tomorrow.

* * *

Nationalists and Chiang Clash

SHANGHAI, April 28.—Fighting between the right wing troops of Chiang Kai-shek and the Nationalists is reported to have taken place at Kinkiang. Nationalist troops are also reported to have clashed with Pengtien troops advancing towards the North River.

Chiang Kills 3 More

Chiang's troops smashed a strikers demonstration at Kinghwa, killing three workers and wounding many others, according to a police report. One hundred and fifty other demonstrators were arrested.

Martial law has been declared in Amoy in an attempt to break the labor and peasant unions which have been protesting against Chiang-Kai-shek's raids on unions and execution of left wing and labor leaders, according to a dispatch from Hongkong.

British Guns Again

The British gunboat Cockchafer swept the streets with machine guns when it had been accidentally struck by a few stray bullets. The number of Chinese killed by British fire is unknown.

Chiang Kai-shek is still unable to organize any sort of a government at Nanking. None of the Nationalist leaders are willing to ally themselves with Chiang, it is reported. That he will join himself to Sun Chuan-fang is predicted here.

More On Canton

The four Nationalist armies which left Hankow for a general advance against Canton will move through Hunan Province, it was learned today. Canton is at present in the hands of right wing elements who have conducted a ruthless campaign against workers' and peasants' unions.

* * *

France Follows U. S.

PARIS, April 28.—If the United States refuses to join the powers in the new note of protest to the Chinese Nationalists over the Nanking affair, France will refuse likewise, the foreign office announced today.

France is prepared to assume an attitude of watchful waiting it was stated.

* * *

Japan More Militant

TOKIO, April 28.—The Baron Tanaka, new Premier, may adopt a more militant Chinese policy than his predecessor appears likely.

In his statement issued last Thursday, which has just been translated, he said:

"The disturbances in China threaten to penetrate the zone of Japanese interests. Events in the South have damaged this country's prestige. Our national flag has been trampled on, and our nationals have undergone the utmost humiliation.

"In the face of these facts the Government continues to advocate non-intervention. (Baron Tanaka had previously described non-intervention as a mere expedient to shirk responsibility.) Especially do we fail to understand the Government's failure to protect Shanghai, where Japan has 20,000 residents and also vested interests.

"Red Waves"

"Regarding the Bolshevization of China, the Japanese Government thinks that this concerns China only and that Japan has nothing to do with it. Such an attitude is nonsense.

"The Red waves are encroaching on China. This is not the time to regard the troubles there as far on the other side of the river. The disturbances in China have gone beyond the limits of domestic disputes. They are endangering the Far East and threatening the peace of the world.

"Japan should take the initiative, if necessary, in cooperating with other powers for effective steps to cope with the situation. We believe such steps inevitable. If we continue to remain indifferent, professing non-intervention, it will mean that Japan will throw away her influence in the Orient. Japan should adopt improved policies for the protection of her interests and prestige."

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page One)

ing maintained that Cuba is a foreign country. So to nourish this fiction the Cuban Government conferred the Grand Cross of the National Order of Merit on Calvin Coolidge, but will not deliver it until after Coolidge leaves office, since an American president cannot accept a decoration from a "foreign country" while in office. This should squelch the rumors that Cuba is a satrapy of Wall Street and that the Cubans cannot even hold an election except with the consent and under the auspices of our General Crowder.

* * *

IT is becoming a popular outdoor sport nowadays to ask public officials pertinent questions. Al Smith, the Century magazine and the catholic church cashed in on a question put to the governor relative to his religion by a New York lawyer. The Forum magazine is now trying to smoke out Coolidge on his third term secret. If the Forum succeeds it will be worth one thousand dollars of advertising for it. But it is not likely that Cal will accomodate a curious public.

* * *

SHOULD Coolidge announce his declaion not to run for a third term it is believed that his present supporters in congress would figuratively thumb their nasal organs at him, and add more vigor to the kicks with which they project Calvin's proposed legislation thru the senate windows. If he tells the world that his hat is in tha ring his competitors will proceed to hire the services of expert grinders so that their axes may be sharpened for the business of chopping off a politicl head that has worn the presidential topper long enough to suit them.

Killed By Rolling Pin.

PITTSBURG, April 28.—Mrs. Roxie Mumford, 42, formerly of East Liverpool, O., was held without bail on a charge of murder here today by a coroner's jury investigating the death of her husband, April 17.

Mrs. Mumford is alleged to have struck Mumford on the head with a rolling pin during a quarrel.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

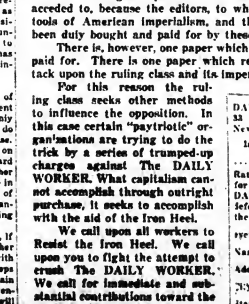
Ruthenberg Lays Down Basis Building Of Workers Party

By D. BENJAMIN.

The loss of C. E. Ruthenberg is a blow severe blow to the workers of this country. It is all the more severe coming as it does at a time when the workers of this country are faced with the danger of a world war and by a brutal attack of the American capitalist class and the trade union bureaucrats upon the left wing workers. The American workers need such a leader now as he was—one who led in the formation of the left wing in the Socialist Party; one who had the understanding, devotion and courage to fight against the world war; one who was among the first to recognize the significance of the Russian revolution and rally to its support. As leader of the Workers (Communist) Party, he fought for the organization of the unorganized, for the protection of the foreign born, for the farmation of a Labor Party.

Many Difficult Tasks.

In these critical days, when the capitalist class is trying to railroad Sacco and Vanzetti to the electric chair; when the American government is preparing to plunge the American workers into a war against the Chinese people and against the Soviet Union; when on all sides the courts and police and bosses and trade union bureaucrats are trying their hardest to make it impossible for the workers to improve their condition and to organize—in these days, Comrade Ruthenberg is needed as he was never needed before.



Must Strengthen Party.

There is only one way in which we can make up for his loss. That is by strengthening the party of which he was the leader, by increasing its membership, by intensifying its activities. This will enable the party not only to lead the workers against the present attacks and out of the present dangers, but also to a point where they will be able to more effectively fight for their rights and for emancipation from the present capitalist system which enslaves them.

You, as a reader of The DAILY WORKER, as one who has studied in one form or another about the wage-slave system in which we live, as one who has most probably directly participated in the workers' struggles of this country, or has been in close contact with them—you should be among the first to realize the importance of joining the ranks of the Workers Party, should be among the first to rally to the working class in its present hour of trial.

Do you want to take an active part in building up the working class movement? Do you want to take your place in leading the struggle against capitalism? Then join the Workers (Communist) Party. Fill out the application blank in this issue of The DAILY WORKER and send it to 108 East 14th Street, New York City.

Special Drawings in the May Day Daily Worker

Resist the Iron Heel

President Coolidge, speaking at the banquet of the United Press Association in the sumptuous ballroom of the Hotel Biltmore, did not hesitate to call upon the representatives of the American press to uphold his imperialist policy. He felt that "it was natural that the press should represent the government under which it lives."

Mr. Coolidge is quite certain that his request will be acceded to, because the editors, to whom he spoke, are the tools of American imperialism, and their newspapers have been duly bought and paid for by these interests.

There is, however, one paper which cannot be bought and paid for. There is one paper which refuses to cease its attack upon the ruling class and its imperialist adventures.

For this reason the ruling class seeks other methods to influence the opposition. In this case certain "paytriotic" organizations are trying to do the trick by a series of trumped-up charges against The DAILY WORKER. What capitalism cannot accomplish through outright purchase, it seeks to accomplish with the aid of the Iron Heel.

We call upon all workers to Resist the Iron Heel. We call upon you to fight the attempt to crush The DAILY WORKER. We call for immediate and substantial contributions toward the defense of our case. Be on the job. Do your duty. Do it now.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of

..... dollars .... cents to the Rathaenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly ysery .....

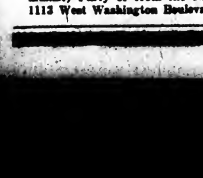
Name .....

Address .....



City .....

State .....

Attach check or money order.

RAISE YOUR VOICE AGAINST WAR ON MAY DAY

Be one of the millions of American workers in demanding—

HANDS OFF CHINA!

ACTUAL SIZE.
Pennant in red, with gold lettering.

Wear one of the little red pennants, printed in gold, and induce other workers to do the same.

Bring this to the attention of all labor organizations. This is important. Do it now. Join the forces to prevent another bloody slaughter.

Single pennant 25c
10 or more ... 15c

Order a supply at once and sell them or give them away free if you can.

Order from the nearest district office of the Workers (Communist) Party or from the National Office of the Party, 1113 West Washington Boulevard Chicago, Ill.

RAMSAY'S HOME FITTED OUT IN SPLENDID STYLE

Has Portrait of King, Walls Done in Biscuit

LONDON, April 15 (By Mail).—"Eve," a smart society women's journal, has handed an apple to the old Adam in the right hon. J. Ramsay MacDonald, tempting him to display the wonders of his eighteenth century house at Hampstead for the amazement of the idle, luxury-loving public.

There are photographic embellishments which show a home expensively furnished and appointed. We are told that the hall has an "air of quiet dignity and spaciousness," and you can see, if you care, the doors leading to "the service quarters" where the common household work is done.

The study "simply glows with color." Its walls "are enamelled with gold." Chippendale furniture—gold brocade curtains—Persian rugs—pictures by famous artists—so runs the imposing inventory. The portrait is shown of a lady who, as Mr. MacDonald explains, "would have been the duchess of Bruce[illegible] had not her husband died before he could inherit the title."

Mac's Friend, "Bloody Ferdinand"

The whole place reeks of royalty and aristocracy. Books are displayed signed by "George R., Mary R.," and above all, "on the handsome Sheraton bureau . . . there stands an autographed photograph of King Ferdinand of Bulgaria," the old fox of the Balkans, who apparently tried his wiles on the "leader" of the Labor Party.

The "dignified charm" of one room is added to in that the walls are of "a soft biscuit tint," and no doubt this pleasing colour brings to Mr. MacDonald the grateful memory of Sir Alexander Grant's famous $150,000.

What a pity it is that the poor wives of the miners and unemployed do not read "Eve." For there they could see what it means to be a "Labor leader" who in policy and life believes in "continuity," and so is recognized, flattered, and pampered by society.

CHICAGO MEETINGS

May 7th - Y. W. L. Spring Festival, Workers' Lyceum, 2733 Hirsch Blvd.

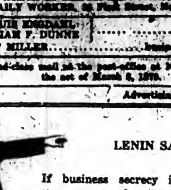
May 15th—Ukrainian Educational Club, Drama Walshes Hall, Emma and Noble St., at 6.30 p. m.

May 15th—Freiheit Singing Concert at Orchestra Hall.

May 15th—Y. W. L. hike to Desplaines, Illinois—meets at 9 a. m., at 1239 S. Sawyer Ave.

Chicago Liberals Protest.

CHICAGO, Ill., April 28.—A demonstration was held by the Liberal Club, University of Chicago, to protest against the action being taken towards Sacco and Vanzetti.



By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year, $3.00 six months, $1.50 three months, $0.50 one month. By mail (outside of New York): $6.00 per year, $3.00 six months, $1.50 three months.

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 26 Park Place, New York, N. Y.

A. LOUIS ENGDAHL.....Editor
BERT MILLER.....Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

LENIN SAID:

If business secrecy is indispensable in petty economy, for the small peasants and artisans among whom production is not collective but scattered and separate, in the big capitalist economy the preservation of business secrecy means the maintenance of the privileges and profits of a handful of people against the interests of the whole people.

The Meaning of the Attack on Our Party and Its Press

The raid on the New York district headquarters of the Workers (Communist) Party Tuesday, when 11 members of the "bomb squad" invaded the premises and searched the occupants, marks a continuation of the methods used in recent weeks to hamper the party and its official organ, The DAILY WORKER.

There can be no question but that the anti-imperialist campaign of our party, with its special emphasis of "Hands Off China" since the bloody aggression perpetrated there by American and British gunboats, the manner in which it has fought against the invasion of Nicaragua and the throttling of Mexico, has roused the ire of the state department and the various suppressive agencies with which it has contact.

That The DAILY WORKER is a thorn in the side of American imperialism and hated by the fat and bespatted "patriots" who thrive upon the loot it brings home cannot be doubted. It has already, even tho handicapped in the few years of its existence by a constant lack of finance, given a new understanding and militancy to the struggles of the American working class and made considerable progress in becoming, as Lenin said, a Communist paper must be, both a people's paper and a collective organizer of our party and the masses.

The DAILY WORKER editorial staff and the business manager are already held for trial on a complaint lodged by representatives of various "patriotic" societies. The raid on the New York headquarters, coming in the week before May Day, and during the joint offensive of the bosses and imperialist agents in the labor movement, is an indication that the American ruling class is conscious of the fact that our party plays a role in the United States far out of proportion to the size of its membership.

That our party will not escape these and other more serious persecutions is obvious. There is a rise of complete reaction in the imperialist nations, a new world war threatens and the rulers will do their best to muzzle and strangle the Communist parties and their supporters.

Our press must in this imperialist epoch acquire a new importance and secure more support. It must be able, in spite of all difficulties to continue to expose the bloody plans of imperialism and put forward the program of struggle against it.

Every attack on our party and its official organ should be answered by renewed support and a broadening of its influence and of all our activities.

"Impartiality" in the Sacco-Vanzetti Case.

The New York Herald-Tribune editorially regrets what it terms "biased arguments" in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti. The Herald Tribune says that "by indicting the whole community where the crimes were committed and the whole judicial system of Massachusetts, they have produced a reaction in public sentiment which has made an impartial approach increasingly difficult."

Dean Wigmore of the Northwestern University law school is brought forward by the Herald Tribune to confound such "biased" persons as Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard law school.

The hope is expressed that Wigmore's statement, which cites as a major evidence of Frankfurter's "bias" that he fails to stress the "guilty actions" of Sacco and Vanzetti when arrested, will "still the eager sentimentalists and permit a review of the case under Governor Fuller's direction, undertaken calmly and with scrupulous fairness. . . ."

The sudden desire expressed by the Herald Tribune for an impartial inquiry is of course to be commended, but it was not the possessors of impartial minds who have kept Sacco and Vanzetti from the electric chair for six and one-half years when capitalist papers like the Herald Tribune were shrieking for their blood and denouncing the efforts to save them as part of a "Bolshevist plot" to wreck civilization.

Sacco and Vanzetti would have been murdered long ago had their fate been left in the hands of the Thayers, Wigmores and Herald Tribunes.

The Sacco-Vanzetti case bears a great lesson for the working class of America. It shows the power of mass protest and mass effort. Those agencies which speak now of the necessity for impartial inquiry—after the death sentence passed on two innocent workers has aroused another world-wide storm of protest—are trying merely to mend the veil of democracy and impartiality which covered American courts and which has been torn so badly by indignant millions.

Tyrants and their courtiers always become apostles of truth and justice when they are about to be repudiated by the masses.

Question for Hollywood religio-movie producers: Did the fact that H. B. Warner, the light comedian who made his greatest hit as the safe-cracker in the famous crook play "Alias Jimmy Valentine," have anything to do with his selection by Cecil B. DeMille to play the role of Jesus Christ in that monstrosity called "The King of Kings"?

Washington Wonders

COOLIDGE OPENS MOUTH AT LAST, AND PUTS HIS FOOT IN IT; SAYS MUST RULE LATINS

(By a Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, April 28.—The one item in President Coolidge's Monday night New York speech that aroused the greatest interest here was his intimation that a definite "Panama Canal policy" in relation to the countries lying between the American border and the waterway, International authorities declared, that for the first time in the history of the country, a president had openly enunciated the policy that in its relations with Central American countries, the United States would take a different attitude than that deemed appropriate in dealing with other lands.

Coolidge Talked.

As a matter of actual deed, Coolidge merely gave expression to what has been the American policy since Roosevelt's day. But it is of the greatest significance, that he and his financial managers and advisers, should permit themselves to make public avowal that the United States has an interest in the Caribbean area that gives it the right to conduct its affairs there differently than in other foreign lands.

Has Pet Governments.

The sum and substance of Coolidge's statement was that he proposed seeing that "safe" governments functioned in the countries to the south of the United States. This is what the administration is doing in keeping the illegally installed Diaz in power in regime, and what it has been accused of doing in trying to unseat Calles in Mexico. It means that the administration proposes to say who should or should not rule in the countries below our border.

Coolidge's specific reference to such a Panama Canal policy as it is being characterized in Washington, was as follows:

"Toward the government of countries which we have recognized this side of the Panama Canal we feel a moral responsibility that does not attach to other nations."

This is actually not a new policy, although as already said, it is the first time a president of the United States dared publicly to proclaim it.

To the great mass, who pays no attention to presidential addresses, it meant nothing, but to those who are interested in international problems, the fact that Coolidge, whose foreign policy is that of Big Wall Street and commercial advisers, had the courage to publicly announce such an attitude, is gravely ominous.

Announces Protectorate.

There can be but one inference from the president's statement, corroborated by his conduct toward Nicaragua and Mexico; that the proposes to establish what amounts to a suzerainty in Central America.

This may sound fantastic but an anecdote told the correspondent by a republican senator of international repute may make it seem less so. The informant declared that on one occasion, Harding while president told him that if he had the power for eight years he, proposed leaving known in history as the president who "reared the American flag from the Rio Grande to the Panama Canal."

Hall Compares Hanna.

"Senator," Harding is alleged to have said, "you may yet live to hear the president of the Senate say, 'I recognize the gentleman from Mexico,' or the 'gentleman from Nicaragua.'"

If Harding conceived himself in this "heroic" mold, who is there to gainsay that Coolidge, New England backyard politician, and a political accident, may not under the ministrations of a Dwight Morrow, Morgan's partner and Coolidge's intimate adviser, also, have similar ambitions. Certainly with a Kellogg as Secretary of State, a man who envisions a Bolshevik behind every door and every shrub, such a program will be ardently seconded.

"National Defense"

There is every indication to give cause for grave concern in Central American affairs. There is and has been for some time an active campaign on by military interests to enlarge the Panama Canal and to build another canal through Nicaragua. The United States has an option for a canal through the latter country for which it has paid $3,000,000. The cry of "national defense" has been raised by these well financed and influential interests. They want the financial penetration that Wall Street has perpetrated in these small Republics to materialize into actual management and control.

There can be no doubt but that the ultimate aim is "Cubanization of Central America." Coolidge's speech Monday night, a declaration that should shame every American, is clear evidence that he is a party to such a program. The New York Times in its edition of April 26, the day following the presidential address, made clear, if there could be any doubt, just what was in the wind. Said its Washington correspondent:

"In general the enunciation of the President was accepted by those experts whose opinion was sought as in line with the developing Caribbean policy of the United States, but marking an advance in the determination of this country to protect the Panama canal and its approaches as well as the political route of another Isthmian waterway from the Atlantic to the Pacific through Nicaragua.

"The President's declaration was the immediate result of circumstances of the Nicaraguan revolution. Although officials looked upon it as the formal expression of a policy that has existed in fact for some time. They did not conceal their gratification that President Coolidge had had the 'courage' to make the statement."

"Courage" indeed. No doubt the way-cry will be, "Make the Caribbean safe for Caribbeans."

Numerous Leaflets Call Chicago Labor To May Day Meet

Thousands of leaflets are being distributed in the shops and factories of Chicago urging the workers to celebrate the International Workers' Holiday on May 1st, calling on them to unit against wage cuts, the speed-up system and long hours, calling upon them to fight for complete freedom of Sacco-Vanzetti, to unite against war and demand "Hands Off Workers' China." Workers' China also announce the May Day demonstration to be held by the Workers Party at the Ashland Auditorium, Sunday May 1st at 8 p. m.

While the origin of the International Labor Day that has grown out of the big strikes for the eight hour day in America in 1886 is being emphasized, the need of solidarity of the world's workers is being particularly stressed in view of the present invasion of American imperialism in China and the readiness to suppress the Chinese revolution. This phase will be dealt with by C. T. Chi, a member of the Kuomintang.

The many thousands of workers who were present at the Ruthenberg memorial meeting held in the Ashland Auditorium on March 6 will get an opportunity to see themselves in moving pictures since the film taken there which will be shown at the May Day meeting not only pictures the speakers, the many beautiful wreaths, but also pictured the huge audience present at that meeting. The admission to the May Day meeting will be 50 cents.

There will also be a musical program. The other speakers are Wm. Z. Foster, Max Schachtman, just returned from the Soviet Union and M. J. Olgin, editor of the Freiheit.

For the first time the Young Pioneers are going to celebrate their own May Day affair which will be held this Saturday at 825 East 72nd St., New York at 2 p. m.

Comrades, do you want your child to learn all about the workingclass?

Detroit May Day Celebration Huge One; Opens Drive

This gigantic May Day celebration is being called by the Workers (Communist) Party in conjunction with the Young Workers (Communist) League. The May Day mass meeting is to serve five purposes:

1.—To celebrate May Day, the International Labor Day.

2.—To demand "Hands Off China."

3.—To protest against the cold-blooded murder of Sacco-Vanzetti.

4.—To launch the campaign for the organization of the auto workers into one big union.

5.—To officially open the Ruthenberg Membership Recruiting Drive.

We have arranged the best program possible for only 25c. The following is the program:

1.—Labor pantomine by the Young Pioneers.

2.—Symbolic May Day athletic exercises and exhibitions by the Finnish Workers' Athletic Club.

3.—Russian folk dancing by the Russian Workers' Dramatic Club.

4.—Ukrainian Workers Chorus in native costumes together with the Lithuanian Workers Chorus.

5.—The Finnish Workers' Band.

In addition to this extravaganza we shall have capable and appropriate speakers on the platform. The principal speaker is Comrade Earl Browder, editor of "Labor Unity," who has arrived a few days ago from a six months' visit to Canton, Hankow, Nanking, Shanghai and other revolutionary centers in Nationalist China. Comrade Bertram D. Wolfe, director of the N. Y. Workers School will also speak.

After the mass meeting there will be a May Day festival and dance in the New Workers Home, 1343 E. Ferry. Admission, 50c.

Do not forget this big May Day celebration to be held at the Arena Gardens, (seating capacity over 8,000) located on Woodward at Hendrie, Sunday, May 1st, at 2 p. m. Admission 25c. Bring your whole family, all your friends, fellow workers.

Buffalo United Front Demonstration Wants Hands Off China, May 1

BUFFALO, April 28.—The First of May in Buffalo will be the occasion of a united front demonstration against American intervention in China, Nicaragua and Mexico.

The demonstration will take place in Elmwood Music Hall, Virginia and Elmwood and will begin at 2.30 p. m. of May first.

Don Ki Kee a local member of the Kuomintang and Jesse Taylor of the local Negro Progressive Club are scheduled to speak along with Herbert Benjamin, district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party; John Abbott for the Young Workers League and Franklin P. Brill who has been active in the local struggles of the workers for many years.

The meeting is being arranged under joint auspices of a number of local unions, fraternal organizations and workers clubs, in cooperation with the Workers (Communist) Party.

Sacco, Vanzetti, Chief Issue Before May Day Celebration in Boston

BOSTON, Mass. — The May Day celebration here will be held at the Scenic Auditorium, Berkeley and Tremont St., Sunday, May 1, at 2.30 p. m. It is under the auspices of the United May Day Labor Conference, and has, besides a fine musical program, the following speakers scheduled: H. M. Wicks, Mary Donovan, Michael Flaherty, Nat Kay, Alfred Baker Lewis, Louis Rabinowitz and A. Ravutsky.

The Sacco-Vanzetti case will be the chief topic for discussion.

Buy by Labor

The workers (Communist) Party has May Day meetings and celebrations in the following cities:

GARY, Ind.—Labor Hall, 21st and Washington, April 30. Speaker, Wm. Z. Foster.

CHICAGO, Ill.—Ashland Auditorium, May 7, 8 p. m. Speaker, Wm. Z. Foster.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Harmony Hall, First and Mitchell, May 1, 3 p. m. Speaker, Wm. Z. Foster.

MADISON, Ill.—May 1, at 10 a. m. Speaker, Martin Abern.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—May 1. Speaker, Martin Abern.

WAUKEGAN, Ill.—Workers Hall, 517 Helmholz Ave., May 1. Speaker, Wm. Simons.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill.—May 1. Speaker, Pat Toohey.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Humboldt Hall, Western and Humboldt, May 1. 1 p. m. Speaker, B. D. Wolfe.

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, B. D. Wolfe.

DETROIT, Mich.—Arena Garden, May 1. Speaker, Max Bedacht.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—May 1, at 2 p. m. Speaker, Herbert Zam.

BOSTON, Mass.—Scenic Auditorium, Berkeley and Tremont St., May 1, at 2.30 p. m. Speaker, H. M. Wicks.

EAST PITTSBURGH, Pa.—April 30. Speaker, A. Bittelman.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—May 1. Speaker, A. Bittleman.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—April 30. Speakers, J. Lovestone and Albert Weisbord.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Brith Sholom Hall, 1012 E. Baltimore, May 1 at 2.30. Speaker, Albert Weisbord.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Elmwood Music Hall, May 1, at 2.30. Speakers, Campbell—Benjamin.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Labor Lyceum, May 1, at 8 p. m. Speakers, Campbell—Benjamin.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. — Central Trades Assembly, May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, J. J. Ballam.

ALBANY, N. Y.—May 1, at 2.30. Speaker, J. J. Ballam.

UTICA, N. Y.—Labor Lyceum, May 1, at 7 p. m. Speaker, S. Essman.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, F. P. Brill.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y.—Lithuanian Hall, 259 Clinton St., May 1, at 2.30 p. m. Speaker, Randolph Katz.

N. TONAWANDA, May 1. 8 p. m. Speaker, James Campbell.

CLEVELAND, Ohio—Moose Auditorium, 1000 Walnut St., May 1 at 2 p. m. Speaker, James P. Cannon.

CLEVELAND, Ohio—Odd Fellows Hall, 7th and Elan St. Speaker, T. Johnson.

WARREN, Ohio—Hippodrome Hall, High St., May 1, at 2 p. m. Speaker, N. Shaffer.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio—Workmen's Home, 369 E. Federal, May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, J. P. Cannon.

AKRON, Ohio—Liberty Hall, 601 S. Main St., May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, I. Amter.

LORAIN, Ohio—Slovenian National Home, Pearl Ave., May 1, at 2 p. m. Speaker, J. Foley.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Woodmen's Hall, 644 Main St., May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, Scott Wilkins.

NEFFS, Ohio—Dernach Hall, May 1 at 1.30 p. m. Speakers Carl Hacker.

YORKVILLE, Ohio—Miners' Hall, May 1, at 7.30 p. m. Speaker, Carl Hacker.

CANTON, Ohio—Music Hall, 810 E. Tuscarawas, May 3, at 8 p. m. Speaker, I. Amter.

E. LIVERPOOL—Trades and Labor Hall, Fifth St., above Erlanger's Store, May 1. Speaker, E. Reich.

FAIRPORT, — Finnish Workers' Hall, Plum St., May 1 at 1.30 p. m. Speaker, J. Brahtin.

ASHTABULA—May 1, at 7 p. m. Speaker, J. Brahtin.

DRAMA

"Grand St. Follies" Due At Neighborhood Playhouse, May 17

The Bill of Lyric Drama which includes the Hungarian dances, a Commedia Dell 'Arte, and Tone Pictures by Charles T. Griffes, will close at the Neighborhood Playhouse this Sunday evening. The theatre will then remain dark until the opening of the "Grand Street Follies of 1927," Tuesday, May 17th. The Follies will play for two weeks only. Sunday evening, May 29th, will be the closing performance of the Neighborhood Playhouse company, which organization is suspending its activities at their playhouse on the East Side.

If however the new bill proves successful, the production may be moved to an uptown house. If this is done, another management will take over the management, or the players themselves may run the show cooperatively.

Broadway Briefs

The Theatre Guild School will give special performances of "Seven Keys to Baldpate" at the Garrick Theatre next Tuesday, Wednesday and Friday afternoons, and the following week "The Boomerang" will be presented on the same afternoons.

Hortense Alden is temporarily replacing Phyllis Connard in "Right You Are If You Think You Are" at the Garrick. Miss Connard, is confined to her home by illness.

"He Loved the Ladies" is the new title chosen for the new Herbert Hall Winslow play, which will open at the

MAYO METHOD

Has the leading feminine role in "What Anne Brought Home," now in its third month at Wallack's theatre.

Frolic Theatre May 9. The play was formerly called "Six Women."

Ed Wynn, who has been absent from the stage for over a year, will be starred next season by George White in his new musical show "Manhattan Mary." The musical comedy star has been appearing in pictures the past year.

"The Lady Screams," a new dramatic thriller, will be housed at the Selwyn theatre beginning Monday night. Everett Chantler is the author.

"A Night in Spain" will open at the Forty-fourth Street Theatre next Tuesday night instead of Monday, as previously announced.

AMUSEMENTS

Theatre Guild Acting Company in
THE SECOND MAN
GUILD THEA., W. 52 St. Evs. 8.15
Mats. Thurs. and Sat. 2.15
Next Week—Pygmalion

RIGHT YOU ARE
IF YOU THINK YOU ARE
GARRICK 65 W. 35 St. Evs. 8.30
Mats. Thurs. and Sat.
Next Week—St. Pius Passion Play

THE SILVER CORD
Joan Golden in a play by Sidney Howard
Mts. Thu. & Sat.; 2.15.
Next Week—McCabe's Daughter

WALLACK'S West 42nd Street.
Mats. Tues., Wed., Thurs. and Sat.
What Anne Brought Home
A New Comedy Drama

EARL CARROLL Vanities
Earl Carroll Thea., 7th Ave. & 50th St.
Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2.30

MARTIN BECK THEATRE, 45 St. & 8 Ave.
Mats. Wed. and Sat.
JED HARRIS Presents a Drama
'SPREAD EAGLE'

BE SURE TO GET THE SPECIAL ISSUE, MAY FIRST

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN
TWICE DAILY, 2 P.M. & 8 P.M.
RINGLING BROS. and BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS
Next among 10,000 Marvels PAWAH
SACRED WHITE ELEPHANT
TICKETS at GARDEN BOX OFFICES 8th Ave. and 49th St., and Gimbel Bros.

Neighborhood Playhouse
466 Grand St. Dryduck 7516
Every Eve. (except Mon.) Mat. Sat.
Bill of Lyric Drama

Civic Repertory Ctr. 6 Av. & 14 St.
Tel. Watkins 9660
EVA LE GALLIENNE
Tonight at 8.30 "ALCESTIS"
Tomorrow Mat. "TWELFTH NIGHT"
Tomorrow Eve. "THREE SISTERS"

Bronx Opera House 149th Street, E. of 3rd Ave.
Popular Prices. Mat. Wed. & Sat.
"ON APPROVAL"
The Comedy Success

TIMES SQ. THEA., W. 42 St. Evs. 8.30 Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2.30
CRIME
with James Rennie & Chester Morris

The LADDER
Now in its 6th MONTH
WALDORF, 49th St., East of B'way
Mats. WED. and SAT.

These Comrades Responded to the Call for Ruthenberg Sustaining and Defense Fund

G. A. Karr; Cleveland, Ohio	3.75
M. Meroff; Chicago, Ill.	10.00
N. Rabinowitz; N. Y. C.	.50
E. E. Ramsey; Pocatello, Idaho	2.00
L. Preston; Export, Pa.	40.00
J. McConnery; N. Y.	1.00
S. Vukos; Jeannette, Pa.	4.00
E. Tarkoff; Boulder, Colo.	1.00
J. Rachnegel; N. Y. C.	1.00
A. Petras; Cicero, Ill.	5.00
W. Hemig; Bklyn, N. Y.	4.00
Intl. Br. Sec. 5; Coney Is. N. Y.	11.75
G. Kamko; N. Y. C.	6.00
A. Kaplan; St. Louis, Mo.	1.00
R. Chikarain; Bklyn, N. Y.	3.00
M. Mazanock; N. Y. C.	5.00
A. Schneder; N. Y. C.	3.50
M. Borich; (1st Pub.) Wilkes Barre, Pa.	45.00
E. Alamen; Mass., Mich.	3.00
A. Singman; Bklyn, N. Y.	2.00
J. Bricker; Elwood City, Pa.	2.00
D. G. Israel; N. Y. C.	3.00
J. Stresson; Central Islip, N. Y.	2.00
S. Weinberg; Phila., Pa.	5.00
P. Peasmaan; Bklyn, N. Y.	5.00
G. Morphis; Rock Springs, Wyo.	1.00
E. Greathed; Oakland, Cal.	1.00
E. Kaufman; N. Y. C.	2.00
L. Rubin; N. Y. C.	2.00
W. H. Schimidt; Jersey City, N.J.	2.00
J. Ponce; N. Y. C.	2.00
J. Oswald (Sick & Benefit So.) N. Y. C.	9.25
J. Bulatkin; N. Y. C.	5.00
J. Feurer; N. Y. C.	2.00
P. Kranschik; Westbury, Conn.	4.00
M. Popovich; Warren, Ohio	2.00
J. Silverman; N. Y. C.	1.00
Eldorado Workers; N. Y. C.	17.50
N. Hectman; N. Y. C.	2.00
S. Peterson; Stratford, N. Y.	1.00
I. Jeppson; Bklyn, N. Y.	2.00
F. Kogan; Chicago, Ill.	3.00
J. Bulatkin; N. Y. C.	100.00
M. Nelleson; N. Y. C.	5.00
Z. Pesin; Bklyn, N. Y.	2.00
W. W. Weinstone; N. Y. C.	1.00
C. Safron; N. Y. C.	8.50
P. Beach; Bklyn, N. Y.	1.00
S. Dietroff; Boston, Mass.	5.00
M. Maichaleson; N. Y. C.	1.00
Exec. Com. Fraction Painters; Bklyn, N. Y.	20.00
I. H. Rasnick; Bronx, N. Y.	10.00
S. C. Burns; Lakeview; Ore.	9.00
The Siegel Family; Ontario, Can.	1.00
Pr. Mislig; N. Y. C.	5.00
M. Fishbein; Coney Island, N. Y.	10.00
C. Porschke; N. Y. C.	2.00
Mrs. S. Toorock; Bronx, N. Y.	2.00
M. Rosenberg; Bklyn, N. Y.	2.00
W. Kugerman; Phila., Pa.	1.00
Anonymous; N. Y. C.	50.00
S. Dubow; N. Y. C.	2.00
A. Knuton; Bismark; N. D.	1.00
Section 1A, W. P. (Nucleus 1). N. Y. C.	5.00
A. Fisherman (agt.); Seat., Wash.	24.50
J. Palegrimo; N. Y. C.	1.00
J. H. Hanulis; Seattle, Wash.	5.00
V. Cibulsky; N. Y. C.	1.00
F. Tomac; Crosby, Minn.	1.00
P. Sagmenter; Glasport, Pa.	2.00
G. Lang; Ferrysburg, N. Y.	1.00
D. Federrich; Scranton, Pa.	77.00
E. Blank; Lima, Ohio.	2.00
E. Weiser; Passaic, N. J.	1.00
Section 1, W. P., N. Y. C.	47.07
F. Schlekatis; Scranton, Pa.	2.00
S. Victor; Detroit, Mich.	16.00
N. Borich; Wilkes Barre, Pa.	43.00
M. Heshtman; N. Y. C.	1.00
A. Omhalt; Williston, N. D.	2.50
J. Moskowitz; N. Y. C.	5.00
S. Nuchow; Bklyn, N. Y.	4.00
C. A. Whitney; Oakland, Cal.	1.00
R. Rasanski; Elizabeth, N. J.	4.00

MACHADO BENDS KNEE AT MORGAN WALL ST. SHRINE

Guest of T. W. Lamont at Bankers Luncheon

Escorted by heavy detachments of motorcycle policemen, plainclothes men and special operatives, President Machado of Cuba paid homage to the real capitals of Cuba yesterday when he toured Wall Street, visited the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. and had lunch as the guest of Thomas W. Lamont, Morgan partner. The leading financial and industrial kings of the country attended the luncheon.

Earlier he had assured 700 businessmen at the Astor Hotel that American capital had "made" Cuba and that it would be guarded to the last drop of the last Cuban's blood. The president, who has the murder of 300 trade unionists on his credit in the eyes of Wall Street, visited yesterday morning the Sugar Exchange as the guest of Leopold S. Rache. It was for the Sugar Exchange and allied interests that most of the 200 were killed.

Morgan Firm There.

At the Lamont luncheon were: Frederic W. Allen of Lee, Higginson & Co., Hernand Behn of the International Telephone & Telegraph Company, Soothenes Behn of the International Telephone & Telegraph Company, Edward J. Berwind of the Berwind White Coal Mine Company, James Brown of Brown Brothers & Co., Herbert Case of the Federal Reserve Bank, Thomas Cochran of J. P. Morgan & Co., William T. Dewart, president of The Sun; Martin Egan of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Elbert H. Gary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, Charles Hayden of Hayden, Stone & Co., N. Dean Jay of Morgan & Co., Russel C. Leffingwell of J. P. Morgan & Co., A. W. Loasby of the Equitable Trust Company, Gates W. McGarrah of the Federal Reserve Bank, Charles E. Mitchell of the National City Bank, S. Z. Mitchell of the Electric Bond & Share Company, Vernon Munroe of J. P. Morgan & Co., Alexander D. Noyes, financial editor of the New York Times.

Frank L. Polk of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed; Jackson E. Reynolds of the First National Bank, Manuel Rionda of the Czarnikow-Rionda Company, Charles H. Sabin of the Guaranty Trust Company, Charles S. Sargent of Kidder, Peabody & Co., Mortimer L. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Lloyd W. Smith of Harris, Forbes & Co., Frederick T. Snare of Frederick Snare Corporation, James Speyer of Speyer & Co.

Albert Strauss of J. & W. Seligman & Co., Gerard Swope of the General Electric Company, Herbert B. Swope, executive editor of the World, Albert A. Tilney of the Bankers Trust Company, Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation; George Whitney of J. P. Morgan & Co., Albert H. Wiggin of the Chase National Bank, William H. Woodin of the American Car and Foundry Company, and William Woodward of the Hanover National Bank.

PASSAIC TORIES SCARED BY BIG WEISBORD FIGHT

PASSAIC, N. J., April 28.—The political campaign here is gaining strength as it goes down the stretch for the final two weeks.

A large campaign rally at Ukrainian Hall at 7:30 p. m. will be addressed by Albert Weisbord; Bert Miller, business manager of The DAILY WORKER; Sylvan A. Pollack of The DAILY WORKER staff and Emil Gardos.

Politicans Terrified.

That the old time politicans are becoming terrified at the support that the labor candidates are obtaining among the working class here can be seen in the desperate methods they are adopting to kill its effectiveness.

All of the large halls are barred to the labor group.

No Publicity.

Another significant point is that the local capitalist press is now completely ignoring the labor campaign. No news of the meetings where Weisbord or other labor candidates speak can be found in the Passaic Daily News or the Passaic Daily Herald.

Gaining Strength.

The entire radical and left wing movement is gaining strength as a result of the present campaign. Wednesday evening the International Labor Defense held a large rally for Sacco and Vanzetti at Castle Park, Garfield, which was addressed by Pat Devine, organizer of the International

New Student Suicide.

QUINCY, Mass., April 28.—Another name was added to the list of student suicides today when Arthur Hubbard, 21, Quincy art student, died at Quincy hospital after drinking a vial of poison.

His parents could give no reason for his act.

Short Taxi Strike In Hoboken Is Won; Levy Fined on Bail

HOBOKEN, N. J., April 28.—Thirty taxi drivers employed by the Hudson Taxi Co., here have gone back to work after a short and successful strike.

Bernard McFeeley, director of public safety, arbitrator in the dispute ruled that the men who had gone on strike after nine of their fellow-workers had been fired for not buying the company's caps should be reinstated. The men fired given an extra day in which to get the caps, the workers will be paid $4.14 each for last Monday night when they went on strike.

The strike was a result of the general organization drive among taxi workers now being conducted in Hudson county.

WEST NEW YORK, N. J., April 28.—Edward Levy, business agent of the Hudson County Bus and Taxi Drivers' Union who was arrested charged with conspiracy in the recent death of George Evnan, a scab driver, has been released on $500 bail.

Stock Gambler Pays $190,000 for His Seat

Another record price for New York stock exchange membership was established yesterday when a seat was sold to Charles Sincere for $190,000. The previous price was $180,000.

Special May Day Issue

For the interest and delight of all workers

READY

The Special Anniversary Number of the

NEW MASSES

MAY DAY ISSUE

Full of interesting articles, stories, reviews, poems, by

Scott Nearing
Joseph Freeman
Floyd Dell
Paxton Hibben
V. F. Calverton
Louis Untermeyer
Genevieve Taggart
and others

This Anniversary Number

IN TWO COLORS

Cartoons and Drawings by

William Gropper
Hugo Gellert
Covarrubias
Klein
Soglow
and others

On All Newsstands NOW.

Subscription Rates

$2.00 A YEAR

THE NEW MASSES
39 Union Square
New York

Enclosed $..... for ..... mos. sub.

Name .....

Street .....

City .....

State .....

Technical Men in Subways to Strike If Justice is Denied

The Union of Technical Men, transportation department, are just about through being polite.

Bandied about for months on their grievances, the members met last night at the 14th Street Labor Temple and decided that if the city does not give favorable reply to their demands, a strike is possible. A walkout would completely tie up all construction work on the Eighth Ave.-St. Nicholas Ave.-Washington Heights subway line.

Officers read the adverse report of Thomas C. Murray, examiner of the civil service commission and urged that the board of transportation be given one more chance before the May 12 meetings, which will decide on drastic action, if need be.

The subway engineers want a substantial increase over their $2,402 a year average wage and seek a minimum rate of $2,160 instead of $1,860. They are the only city employes denied sick leave.

The field men, who do the surveying above ground, have had an additional hour put on to their working day without any increase in pay. They want either the seven hour day or more money.

The union, only a year old, is amply strong enough already to protect its members' interests. Starting with 12 members, it now has nearly 1,400.

Next Week.

Several large meetings are arranged for next week. Saturday afternoon the Young Pioneers will hold a May Day celebration at the Workers' Home, 27 Dayton Ave, at which Albert Weisbord and others will speak.

The Young Workers League is arranging a youth meeting for next Tuesday evening.

New York Senator Gives Coolidge Hearty Praise For His Foreign Policy

Unqualified praise of President Coolidge's foreign policies, as expressed in his speech last Monday, was given yesterday by New York's democratic senator, Royal S. Copeland, when he made a personal call upon the president at the White House.

"We should have gone into Nicaragua to protect the Monroe Doctrine; we ought to help China, and "we ought to help all nations to help themselves," so the senator believes. "The president is exactly right."

Call New York Bakers To May Day Meeting to Denounce Imperialism

New York Bake Shop Workers are called to a big protest meeting to hear speeches on Yankee imperialism and to adopt resolutions to save Sacco and Vanzetti. They will also hear speakers discuss the terror in Hungary, and the bad conditions and low pay in New York.

The meeting is under the auspices of the Amalgamated Food Workers, at 9 a. m. sharp, at the Labor Temple, 243 East 84th St. Admission is free.

Flood and Japanese Panic Hurt Market

Industrial and southern railroad stocks, disturbed by the extensive Mississippi flood and the black financial prospects in Japan, weakened yesterday on the Stock Exchange. Speculators who were short in the roads in the flood country suffered heavy losses under a deluge of selling orders.

United States Steel and General Motors moved down 2 points as the big interests behind the exchange hammered down the market.

Savage Sentence For Young Worker To Be Appealed

Extreme savageness was shown yesterday morning in the 57th Street Magistrate's Court by Judge Wolf, when he sentenced Hyman Moskowitch, a member of the Young Workers League to six months in jail on the trumped up charge of disorderly conduct.

Moskowitch with Morris Kushner whose case comes up this morning, were arrested Wednesday at Union Square and 16th Street, where they were distributing "Hands Off China" leaflets. After being brutally beaten by the police they were taken to jail in the Tombs which was released on $100 bail. Bail was refused in the case of Kushner.

No Witnesses.

No witness appeared against Moskowitch yesterday while on trial before Judge Weil. The only evidence offered was the "Hands Off China" leaflet.

When the judge read it he frothed at the mouth and without further ado dealt out his inhuman sentence. Kushner's "trial" will take place this morning in the same court.

When informed of the sentence, Rose Barron, secretary of the International Labor Defense, which is defending the two young workers, said that "the sentence given to Moskowitch is outrageous. There was no evidence against him and no witnesses testified as to any violation of any law. Only when Judge Weil read the leaflet did he come to the conclusion of giving such an extreme sentence as six months. In many cases of a "serious" character 10 days is the most that is given.

Refusal of Bail.

"Another thing. The refusal to grant bail to Kushner is another violationof the most elementary rights of a defendant. The International Labor Defense will appeal the case and fight it to a finish."

Attorney Joseph, an associate of Joseph R. Brodsky appeared as Moskowitch's counsel.

FURRIERS SHOW JOINT BOARD LOYALTY IN THREE BIG RALLIES; GOLD CHEERED

(Continued from Page One)

international union, which has taken pleas for meeting the leaders of workers who refused to register.

But no pledges or resolutions were needed to prove that Gold was right in saying:

"There are 2,000 locked out workers who would rather lose their jobs than register with the rank traitors of the International." This was registered with the utmost enthusiasm, as was every mention of defying the bosses, the disrupting forces of the A. F. of L. and the reactionary leaders of the International. The workers pledged themselves to a "fight to the finish."

Gold told the workers that it is certain that "dissention had arisen within the ranks of the Reorganization Committee. The A. F. of L. officials do not understand the Jewish workers; they cannot understand their devotion to the Joint Board.

"Peace is no doubt we want peace," said Gold. "We want peace so that our members may have a chance to work without interference; so that union conditions may be enforced in the shops. But we will not have peace unless the traitors are cleared out of our union and it is freed from all outside interference and left to the workers to run for themselves."

Bosses Want Sorkin.

Louis Hyman, manager of the Cloak and Dressmakers' Joint Board, who was one of the speakers, brought a laugh from the crowd by saying that the bosses, who are forcing workers to register with the International, are becoming such good union men that "we do not need a union."

"But they are afraid that with Gold they will not get July raises, so they want Sorkin." (One of the vice presidents.)

Henry Uterhardt, the union's lawyer, said he had never seen such an enthusiastic meeting; and in his brief speech he asserted:

"I have rarely had a case that has touched me like the one of the boys at Minola. It was because I dealt with men sincere, who believed in what they said and were ready to lay down their life and liberty for their comrades. We are going to leave no stone unturned until justice has been done to all of them."

Other speakers included I. Shapiro, I. Putash, S. Liebowitz, S. Biro.

Hearings Adjourned.

The hearings concerning alleged bribery of the police during the fur strike last year, which have been going on before Magistrate Corrigan in the Criminal Courts Building, were yesterday adjourned to be resumed next Tuesday, May 3rd.

Assistant District Attorney Brodsky stated that he had certain matters to investigate further before proceeding with the hearings.

The trial of A. Antonofsky, M. Rosenberg and A. Wortuns which ended yesterday with their acquittal in the Bronx County Court, was enlivened by a description of the duties of a union's executive coupcil, as given by Morris Katz, the stool pigeon accused the workers of assault.

Katz has been appointed a member of the Executive Council of Sigman's new Local 35, but the only account he could give the Joint Board's lawyer as to the duties of a member of the Executive Council was "that one went to meetings and one came away."

Katz' Record.

Katz is a worker in the Reisman, Rothman and Bieber shop where Antonofsky and Rosenberg were also employed. Workers were discharged from this shop for not registering, and the shop was declared on strike. During the month of February, Katz claimed that he had been attacked, and he accused Aaron Wortuns, a cloakmaker who had made a charge against two right wing gangsters.

Katz stated that two other men had also taken part in the attack, and two weeks later he had Antonofsky and Rosenberg arrested. He had worked with them for six months and it is inconceivable that he would not have recognized them immediately if they had taken any part in assaulting him.

At was on Katz' charge of assault that all three men were freed by a jury yesterday.

Third of Million for Dempsey in Fight Here

With $300,000 as his share of the gate receipts, Jack Dempsey, former champion pugilist, will swap a few punches with Paulino Uscudun at the Yankee Stadium on the night of July 1. Dempsey held out for several days for his price.

Five Day Week Bothers Bosses Of Plute Press

Because the 75,000 union printers of the United States and Canada refuse to agree to the employers' type of arbitration machinery, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association has empowered its board of directors to name a "new committee" to deal with the International Typographical Union. Negotiations were concluded.

The union's demand for the five day week is bothering the publishers. Their objection is not so much to the shorter work week as to the increased pay necessary to fill out the week's wages.

Open shop sirens, led by Charles A. Webb of the Asheville, N. C., Citizen, chairman of the open shop committee, H. W. Flarg, manager of the open shop department of the association, Col. Robert Ewing of the New Orleans states and Leonard K. Nicholson of the New Orleans Times-Picayune attempted to show bigger profits and less difficulty with workers through licking out the union.

Publishers as a whole, however, showed no intention of courting a fight with the printing trades unions.

Coney Island Girls Hurt.

Two girls were injured, one perhaps fatally, today by the explosion of a boiler in the cellar of a bungalow at 176 Arnold Court, Coney Island.

Miss Shirley Harris, 17 was hurled 15 feet. Her left leg was cut off below the knee by a fragment of iron and she was injured internally. Rita Wasserman, 15, of 306 Brighton Beach Ave., was severely injured internally. Both are in the Coney Island hospital.

Frame Up Workers In African Gold Rush

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa, April 28.—It is now definitely proven that the recent "gold rush" was a fake backed by the government for the purpose of getting the unemployed workers out of the big cities for a short time.

Taking their scant belongings with them they traveled on a wild goose chase and now are returning understanding that they were victims of a coarse frame-up.

May Day Dance in Harlem.

May Day will be celebrated Saturday evening by a dance at the Harlem Workers Center, 81 East 110th St. There will be plenty to eat for all. Admission is twenty-four cents.

Jimmy Walker Says Tammany to Protect Nickel Fare Forever

The perennial political farce enacted by Tammany Hall on the theme of the transit situation assumed high comic aspects yesterday with Mayor Jimmy Walker and Samuel Untermyer, special transit counsel, both solemnly backing the five cent fare.

Inasmuch as Tammany would fave political suicide if it did not back the jitney fare, the announcement came as no surprise. Claims that Untermyer's report will save the strap-hangers $40,000,000 were a surprise however.

The special counse for the transit commission, after a five month study of the problem, announced that the subways can be operated at a profit on a five-cent fare. He made no recommendation for increased wages for the traction workers.

Walker, Untermyer and members of the transit commission and the board of estimate heard Untermyer's report in a special closed session.

Special May Day Issue

Volunteers Wanted Articles Wanted

For The DAILY WORKER Booth at the Joint Defense Bazaar, May 12 to 16. Art objects of all kinds, especially antiques, pictures, statues, vases, curios, etc. Report at once to the Local Office of The DAILY WORKER, 108 East 14th Street, New York City.

Patronize Our Advertisers

BUSINESS & PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
FRIENDS OF ORGANIZED LABOR

Booth Phone, Dry Dock 6812, 7645. Office Phone, Orchard 9919.
Patronize
MANHATTAN LYCEUM
Large Halls With Stages for Meetings, Entertainments, Balls, Weddings and Banquets. Can Accommodate 50 to 500 People.
66 East 4th Street, New York, N. Y.
Small Meeting Rooms Always Available.

Tel. Lehigh 6068.
DR. ABRAHAM MARKOFF
SURGEON DENTIST
Office Hours 9.30-12 M. 2-8 P. M.
Daily Except Friday and Sunday.
249 EAST 115th STREET
Cor. Second Ave. New York.

Dr. J. Mindel — Dr. L. Hendin
Surgeon Dentists
1 UNION SQUARE
Room 803 — Phone Stuyv. 10119

Tel. Orchard 8782
Strictly by Appointment
DR. L. KESSLER
SURGEON DENTIST
48-50 DELANCEY STREET
Cor. Eldridge St. New York

Health Food Vegetarian Restaurant
1600 Madison Ave.
PHONE: UNIVERSITY 8565.

Telephone Dry Dock 8849.
Meet me at the Public Art
Dairy Restaurant
and Vegetarian
75 SECOND AVE. NEW YORK
Opposite Public Theatre

For
A Home-Cooked Vegetarian Meal served in a home-like atmosphere come to
ESTHER'S DINING ROOM
26 East 109th Street.

Phone: Drydock 6660.
FRED SPITZ
The FLORIST
3 SECOND AVENUE
Near Houston.
FRESH CUT FLOWERS DAILY
Fresh and Artificial Flowers Delivered Anywhere.
SPECIAL REDUCTION TO LABOR ORGANIZATIONS.

ANYTHING IN PHOTOGRAPHY
STUDIO OR OUTSIDE WORK
Patronize Our Friend
SPIESS STUDIO
54 Second Ave., cor. 3rd St.
Special Rates for Labor Organizations.
(Established 1857.)

"NATURAL FOODS"
Sundried Fruits, Honey, Nuts, Brown Rice, Whole Wheat, Macaroni, Spaghetti, Noodles, Nut Butters, Swedish Bread, Maple Syrup, Tea and Coffee Substitutes, Innercican, Kneipp Teas.
Books on Health.
VITALITY FOOD & VIGOR FOOD
Our Specialities.
KUBIE'S HEALTH SHOPPE
75 Greenwich Ave., New York
(7th Ave. and 11th St.)
Open Evenings. Mail Orders Filled.

Patronize Our Advertisers

Demonstrate Against War. Demand Hands Off China.
Demand Freedom for Sacco and Vanzetti.

May Day Celebration

TWO LARGE MASS MEETINGS
SUNDAY, MAY 1, at 1 P. M.

Central Opera House
67th Street & Third Avenue
SPEAKERS:
WM. W. WEINSTONE
BERTRAM D. WOLFE
CHARLES KRUMBEIN
JULIET S. POYNTZ
RICHARD B. MOORE
JOHN J. BALLAM
Also representative of Young Workers' League and the Young Pioneers.
Also Chinese speaker.
Chairman: JACK STACHEL.
Freiheit Gesangs Verein.

Hunts Point Palace
163rd St. & So. Blvd., Bronx
SPEAKERS:
M. J. OLGIN
WM. W. WEINSTONE
WM. F. DUNNE
HARRY M. WICKS
REBECCA GRECHT
ROSE WORTIS
FANNY WARSHAWSKY
Young Workers' League speaker.
Young Pioneer speaker.
Chinese speaker.
Chairman: A. TRACHTENBERG
Freiheit Mandolin Orchestra

ADMISSION 50 CENTS.
Auspices: Workers (Communist) Party, District New York.
Doors Open 12 M.

Woman Shoe Worker Killed by Fumes in Bay State Hell Hole

EVERETT, Mass., April 28.—Eleven blood transfusions failed to save the life of Edna McCumber, 20, Chelsea Shoe Factory worker who was infected by a deadly poison from breathing shoe cement fumes. She was buried this afternoon.

Her sweetheart, Daniel Ricci, her two sisters and eight other men and women gave their blood in an unsuccessful effort to save the stricken worker at Massachusetts General Hospital.

Buy The Daily Worker

Union Meetings

Amalgamated Food Workers
BAKERS' LOCAL No. 1.
350 E. 85th St. Office hours from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Meeting on announcement of Executive Board.

Advertise your union meetings here. For information write to The DAILY WORKER
Advertising Dept.
33 First St., New York City.

●●●●●●●●●

ASK YOUR NEWSDEALER for the Big May Day Special

AN UNUSUALLY FINE NUMBER OF
THE DAILY WORKER.
With special articles by leading proletarian writers and cartoons by noted artists.

YOU MUST NOT MISS This SPECIAL NUMBER

Ask Your Newsdealer for It.

●●●●●●●●●

"The Russian vs. The American System of Government"
Will be debated by
Bertram D. Wolfe and Arthur Garfield Hays
FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 13th
(Auspices of The Bronx Free Fellowship)
at THE COMMUNITY CHURCH, 34th St. and Park Ave.
Tickets at 50 and 75 cents on sale at:
Workers Party and Workers School, 108 East 14th Street.
The Freiheit, 30 Union Square, Room 104 University Place.
Jamie Higgins Bookshop, 104 University Place.

Coal Miners Must Build The Union and Also Help Organize the Labor Party

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

At Sea, Aboard the United States Liner President Roosevelt, Saturday, April 9.—(By Mail from Plymouth, England.)—There is no inducement anywhere on this ship that the men are organized, or that they have the least semblance of a union.

Andrew Furuseth, head of the International Seamen's Union, has great faith in the United States government. Instead of spending his time and energies organizing the seamen, however, he has been a perpetual lobbyist in Washington, trying to get favorable legislation from congress these many years.

Among the results have been that entirely satisfactory legislation has not been forthcoming and the union has been practically banished from the high seas, just as the Lake Seamen's Union has lost its hold on the Great Lakes, where it faced the giant Trust of the United States Steel Corporation. The fact that the United States Lines are government-owned hasn't helped Furuseth or the seamen.

* * *

Here is a warning to the coal miners, who, disgusted and discouraged thru the repeated betrayals of the administration of President John L. Lewis, may turn to legislative action alone as a forlorn hope, thus forgetting to rebuild and strengthen the union where it has been weakened. Thru long experience, however, the miners have learned that they must develop their political as well as their economic power, so that the danger is not so great here, as in other industries, that either will be neglected. The present crisis must be no exception.

* * *

The present period of struggle thru which the coal miners are passing cannot help but sharpen and develop the class consciousness of these workers. They see not only the employers, but many of their own officials as well, openly arrayed against them. Those officials who have been most loyal to them, like Alex Howat, in Kansas, they see outlawed by the Lewis administration.

Evans, in his "History of the United Mine Workers of America," writes of the early struggles of the coal miners that:

"The failure of the miners to gain recognition and the right to organize and bargain collectively furnished incentive for the growth of class consciousness. The miners were of the opinion that wealthy interests were fast becoming the dominating influence in the country, that large corporations were gaining ascendancy in the entire market, and that, when the price of coal rose, it was of very little advantage to independent (smaller) operators because the railroads took the lion's share by increasing freight rates."

This was especially true in the anthracite field where the so-called "Mmrgan Pool" united the big mine owners in the fight for their interests.

* * *

Thus, in the early history of the attempts at organization, when the miners found that their collective action was not sufficiently effective to gain them recognition and rectify the conditions of which they complained they turned to state legislatures for relief. Although the miners, in this manner, succeeded in getting the Pennsylvania legislature to pass an eight-hour law in 1868, its effectiveness was nullified by a clause inserted at the instigation of mine owners which made eight hours a legal workday where "there was no agreement to the contrary." Unless a union was powerful enough to gain recognition and collective bargaining there naturally would be an "agreement to the contrary." Nothing better illustrates the necessity of economic power to force and bulwark legislative gains.

Just as in the industrial struggle, however, where the reactionary officialdom continually cripples the class action of the workers, so in "politics" these same officials continue to function there the old parties, fighting every effort of the workere to build their own independent political action.

The present struggle will effectually expose this double treason of the union bureaucracy. Already the "Cossacks" (state constabulary) in Pennsylvania has been turned loose against the union pickets at the Gallatin mine of the Pittsburgh Coal Company. Pennsylvania is in the grip of the republican party machine that President Lewis supports.

* * *

The statement of the Trade Union Educational League entitled, "Win the Miners' Strike!" truly says:

"The government is making preparations to enter into the strike in its traditional role of strikebreaker to crush the workers and help the employere. The miners must be fully conscious of the nature of the class struggle in which they are engaged and which must be prosecuted with the utmost determination and political consciousness in order to secure victory for the miners. This is a struggle which must heighten the political understanding of the workers, accelerate the movement for a Labor Party, and pave the way for an energetic struggle for the nationalization of the coal mines."

* * *

William Green, former international secretary of the Miners' Union, but now the Bolshevik-baiting head of the American Federation of Labor, was at one time a democratic state senator in Ohio, while over in Illinois, Frank Farrington, while president of the Illinois district, was always a cog in the republican party machine, being finally involved in the huge corruption fund raised to put Frank Smith in the United States senate.

President John L. Lewis, also from Illinois, has always been a petted child of the republican party, being mentioned as a vice-presidential candidate in 1924, and later as likely timber to succeed Secretary of Labor Davis in the president's cabinet. Yet miners need but survey the pathetic condition of their union today, with John L. Lewis as president, to know that John L. Lewis as vice-president or secretary of labor in the capitalist state, would be of no benefit, but instead only another handicap for them.

* * *

Miners' conventions have repeatedly gone on record in favor of independent political action, but the officialdom allied with the capitalist parties has continually sabotaged all steps in this direction. Efforts of the coal miners to act locally have been frowned upon.

Expensive lobbies have been maintained during the session of the various state legislatures, and in Washington, to watch and cajole the old party legislators rather than elect coal miners or workers from other industries as the spokesmen of a class Labor Party.

* * *

The continuous and vicious use of the police power of the state against striking coal miners, in all sections of the country, developed a strong socialist sentiment among the coal diggers in the pre-war days. This was effectually squelched during the war, but again raised its head when the militarist spirit had somewhat subsided. Labor, however, it again ran counter to the reactionary state power, which is one of the weapons used by the ruling class to keep itself in power.

AGGRESSIVE PAINTERS FIGHTING TO IMPROVE UNIONS IN NEW YORK

By L. MARGULIES.

A movement of great vitality and militancy is spreading among the membership of the Brotherhood of Painters in the city of New York. The rank and file is awakening; they are beginning to realize that their destiny lies in their own hands.

What is the cause of this awakening? What is prompting them to organize on a broad inter-local basis (Inter-local Clubs)? What is it that must drive the rank and file to change the conditions as they exist today?

The men in the trade are today subjects to an unbearable speed-up system. They work with the most poisonous material. All health rules are grossly violated. On the job the boss is the almighty ruler. There is no protection whatsoever. Men are fired anytime the boss feels like doing so. If a man does not produce as much as the boss wants him to, he is immediately fired.

The result is that the men, fearing to lose their jobs, are compelled to drive each other, drive the life out of each other in the unbearable, speed-up, sweat dance. This means ruin of their lives, ruin of their family, and less employment.

Those who are supposed to represent us in the district council, and whose duty it is to create good working conditions and improvement in the trade all around, in whose hands we have entrusted the destiny of many thousands of painters, these men do not represent us, the rank and file. They represent their own personal interest and the interest of a clique of corrupt politicians. They do not work for the interest of the organization. Facts prove this. They betray us at every occasion, they rob our treasury and spit us out to the bosses.

What is the rank and file going to do about it. We cannot and will not bear it any longer. The broad membership must begin to act. In the past the members have shown what they can' do. They have rid themselves from the grafters and betrayers, the Zaunners and Koenigs, but there is still a strong opposition in the District Council, who is blocking every progress, and who make it impossible for the newly elected progressive delegates to bring about better working conditions. The general membership must wake up to the facts, and must begin to take a more active part in their own work. We must make the the Inter-local Club. The club is the central body where members from every local union are represented. For this purpose a move has been started to concentrate and intensify organization work. This work is not carried on on a weak and sectarian basis, but on a broad scale, namely the Inter-local Club. The club is the central body where members from every local union are represented. By the inter-local membership of every local will be informed of the situation in the trade and of all the tasks with which we are confronted in the trade. The members will be instructed as to how to act and what proposition to defend and to fight for in their respective locals.

The Inter-local Club, joined and supported by all rank and file members, will be a paramount factor in the heroic effort for a clean and militant painters' union. All our support should go to the Inter-local Club of the Painters' Brotherhood in the City of New York.

Yellow Socialist Sheet Yelps for Aid from Dupes

The decrepit and discredited remnants of the yellow socialist party leadership is desperately striving to maintain its English language weekly publication, "The New Leader," edited by the lying "historian," James Oneal, and is sending out appeals to all the "faithful," but is meeting with but meagre response.

The honest proletarian elements that have remained in the socialist party are disgusted with the shameful alliance of the Jewish Daily Forward (the godfather of the New Leader), the Woll-Civic Federation, employers and police that is endeavoring to wreck the New York labor movement in order to maintain power against the will of the membership and are now deserting wholesale.

Faces "Immediate Suspension."

The revulsion of feeling against the traitorous role of the New Leader has been instantaneous. One of those upon whom the New Leader has heretofore depended in emergencies declares that he no longer will support it and has given The DAILY WORKER the following appeal that speaks for itself:

"April 22, 1927.

"Dear Comrade:

"THE NEW LEADER IS IN DANGER OF IMMEDIATE SUSPENSION!

"There, without mincing words, is the situation in which your paper finds itself today.

"A combination of circumstances beyond the control of any of the loyal comrades who have helped build the New Leader make it necessary to suspend publication at once unless—

"Unless you and the other readers of the New Leader respond immediately to this most urgent appeal.

"There is no need here to stress the service that the New Leader is rendering the socialist cause in this country. At a time when all forward looking movements are suffering financial distress, the New Leader has valiantly kept alive the fine spirit of idealistic revolt. By the enmities that it has made in capitalist ranks, and the following it has won among the workers, it has more than justified its existence.

"But we cannot go on without your help. We are facing a financial crisis where every dollar that you send will do yeoman's service. The next few issues of your paper may be the last you will receive, if at this time you do not answer our call to you for comradely aid. We know that you will not abandon us in the thick of the fight. But do not delay, send your check or money order today.

"Emergency Committee of the New Leader.
"S. A. De WITT.
"MEYER GILLIS.
"ADOLPH WARSHAW."

Completely Discredited.

In spite of its known record of treachery and betrayal of the working class into the hands of a combination of bosses and union wreckers masquerading as "labor leaders" that vile sheet still has the audacity to appeal for working class support because it has "valiantly kept alive the fine spirit of idealistic revolt." It probably refers to its aid to Woll, the Civic Federation, the stool pigeons and bosses in endeavoring to railroad to the penitentiary the leaders of the rank and file in the Furriers' Union. Its boast of enemies in the capitalist ranks is mere camouflage, as the capitalists themselves who are fighting militant unionism recognize it as their defender.

The worker who sent us the "appeal" from the New Leader suggests that they get their sustaining fund from those whom thay serve—the enemies of labor.

Passaic Prepares To Go To The Polls

By SYLVAN A. POLLACK

In a little over a week Passaic goes to the polls. The election of five city commissioners will be in the hands of the citizens of that city which includes a substantial number of former textile strikers.

Practically without exception all the ex-strikers that are eligible will cast their ballot for the labor slate—Albert Weisbord, Simon Smelkinson and Sima Bambach, who are running in the non-partisan elections with the endorsement of the Passaic Branch of the Workere (Communist) Party.

In previous articles I have referred to the fact that the labor candidates have the old party men worried. And here is the important point that should not be overlooked.

The labor bloc is running with a definite labor program that calls for independent working class political action, a labor party and many immediate tasks that confront the workers.

After The Strike.

The strike is over. The textile workere have a union; the workers in the other trades who were interested in the strike and watched it so carefully and gave funds so it could continue are not organized as yet. But they have hopes of being unionized and until that time comes, they are listening to speeches by the workere who put fear into every boss in Passaic, Garfield, etc. And they are going to do more than that. They will vote for them in the local election that takes place on May 10.

Will Support Weisbord.

Yes. These workers are going to vote for Weisbord, Smelkinson and Bambach—Communists who have shown that they stand for the interests of labor. That they favor the unification of all workers who today are toiling long hours for low wages.

These workers know that Preskiel and his clique are not their candidates. The strike beare testimony to that. And then Judge Cabell who "supported" the strike. He is an employer of scab labor—an owner of an open shop. These men are not their candidates so they are rallying to the support of the labor candidates who have the only logical program for any working man or working woman in Passaic.

COLLEGE MAY PRINT PRICE FOR ATHLETES IN FRANK CATALOGUE

Frankly admitting that his institution had been "disgraced" in 1926 by having men on its football team who had violated the amateur code, President Hamilton Holt, of Rollins College, a member of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, yesterday threatened to expose out and out professionalism in college athletics unless rival schools abandoned all "athletic hypocrisy."

"If it is impossible," says Holt, "to find enough colleges geographically proximate to play with under purely amateur conditions, I am ready to suggest that we abandon our pretense of amateurism and come out open and above board for professionalism. I would be perfectly willing to print in our catalogue just how much we pay our pitcher, our quarterback and high jumper.

A JOB-HUNTER'S LAMENT

Our Calvin says we're prosperous—
To doubt is most preposterous;
Kerensky says we're beau idcal—
Before such knowledge I must kneel.

But, woe is me! I'm ont of work;
I might as well been born a Turk
As either of the U. S. A.,
For all the wealth that comes my way.

The bosses say we must produce;
I offer help but it's no use:
With walking miles, my shoes are thin,
But still I'm out and can't get in.

I know that God is good and kind,
And Calvin says the doubter's blind;
I do not doubt, I only say
I'm out of work, alack-a-day!

The bible says we'll get the earth
If we are meek from day of birth;
I've aye been meek, but I am poor;
There must be some mistake I'm sure.

I know that up above the sky,
We'll live in mansions when we die;
It will be grand, but—oh dear, dear!
I'm living in a hovel here.

DONALD McKILLOP.

Get Your Raise in Wages— But Then Go After the Rest!

Bricklayer Shows He Is Great Athlete

Here is an athlete testing a machine designed to measure the energy expended by athletes. The experiments are being made on the entire Cornell University track team. The apparatus is the handiwork of Professor A. V. Hill, distinguished British scientist and winner of the Nobel prize in 1922.

BOOKS

THE "POLITICAL NEBULA" THAT IS CHINA.

China and the Powers, by Henry Kittredge Norton. The John Day Company. $4.

Mr. Norton, one time journalist in China, has contributed to that mass of superficial quackery that is accepted by capitalist publishers as information regarding that country. Having been away from China since long before the nationalist liberation movement developed to its present proportions, he knows nothing of what is happening there at this time, but the fact that he was once there was evidently considered by the publishers sufficient cause to publish his diatribe.

"The Chinese republic," says Mr. Norton, "is a political nebula." It has not the "slightest tendency in the direction of the establishment of a republic in which there is popular participation."

* * *

After this profound political observation the author devotes his talents to an apology for the rights of foreign investore in China. These imperialist plunderers have rights "upon which hundreds of millions of dollars have been invested, a vast commerce built up, and the lives of thousands of foreigners planned."

Of course, it is extremely rude, not to say ungrateful of the benighted Chinese masses to disturb the planful lives of these parasitic owners of investment capital by throwing them off their backs. Many of the Chinese are so backward that they cannot appreciate the irreparable injury they do their Christian benefactore by indulging in anti-imperialist struggles. Then, too, the Chinese revolutionists are too rude; they do not follow the peaceful, gradual, legal forms of civilized nationalist movements, but actually indulge in revolutionary activity. They should learn from the historico-political oracls, Mr. Norton, and only indulge in sweet persuasion.

* * *

Perhaps the nationalist movement was "nebulous" when Mr. Norton last rubbed shoulders with it. But while using astronomical terminology to describe a political movement, Mr. Norton ought to carry the analogy a bit farther. Emanuel Kant stated hypothetically and Laplace mathematically proved a number of facts about nebulous things, the most important for the present discussion being the fact that through motion—through condensation and rotation the gaseous substances crystallised and eventually formed new worlds and even solar systems. Even accepting Mr. Norton's estimation of the state of the movement at the time he was in China there is now unquestionably sufficient action to convince even the most skeptical that something solid will come of it—and it will require no astronomical age to solidify it either.

—H. M. WICKS.

AN AMERICAN UTOPIAN.

Looking Backward, by Edward Bellamy. Vanguard Press, New York. 50 cents.

Had this book been written in 1927 instead of 1888 it would have been received with great bellows of enthusiasm by the optimistic liberal journals, the Nation and New Republic and Survey Graphic, and by such social foes of capitalism as Albert Jay Nock, Calvin Coolidge, James Oneal, William Green, and Henry Ford. It would have been reviewed as a very important scientific work and could have been found on the chaste shelves of all public libraries.

* * *

Briefly, the thesis propounded in this revived classic is that eventually, maybe a few quatrillions of years (Bellamy places the evolution one hundred years from 1888), man will see the error of his ways and reform, and we shall have a clearer, higger, happier world. If Edward Bellamy were alive today he would be in the campaign for unions and class collaboration schemes the fulfillment of his evolutional predictions. I have no quarrel with tha state ho outlines after the supposed social evolution would have taken place. The book is very valuable if only for this reason, that it paints a realistic picture of what the final state will be like. I have, however, a quarrel with his belief that this new society would be the culmination of a hundred years gradnal and peaceful evolution.

* * *

This is in effect, an attempt to make us believe that there is no class struggle, that strikes and picket lines are useless, and that the Rottenfelers, Morgans, Mellons, and Fords at present pull the strings that make puppet Cal and his henchmen in congress dance to the overture of clinking kale, would be visited by the divine spirit of God and made to see the light. To those of us who believe that the capitalistic system now passing in its painful throes to be soon nearly prostrate into evolution, this belief is rather naive. How did this evolution take place? Bellamy says "the popular sentiment toward the corporations and those identified with them had ceased to be one of bitterness (O worker—give up your unions!), and they came to realize their necessity as a link, a transition phase in the evolution of the true industrial system."

In spite of Bellamy's belief that there would be no bloodshed he previously stated that "the epoch of trusts had ended in the Great Trust. In a word, the people of the United States concluded to assume the conduct of their own business. Just as a hundred years before they had assumed the conduct of their own government, organizing now for industrial purposes on precisely the same grounds that they had then organized for political purposes." Mr. Bellamy, the son of a parson, and no doubt permeated with the philosophy of the Christ, conveniently forgot that when the people of the United States assumed the conduct of their own government it was not because King George III had been convinced of the error of his ways by the Holy Spirit. Unless I am greatly mistaken the people achieved their political liberty (*) by force.

Mr. Bellamy also naively believed that the "Reds" of 1888 were subsidized by the capitalists to discredit the labor movement. Mr. Bellamy had evidently paid too much attention to the capitalistic press of his day. Even today the Reds are charged with throwing bombs, undermining family and religious life. And even today the liberals fall for that bunk, as witness the Nation, when it deplored the use of violence in a certain frame-up in New York.

The social economics of the species propounded by Messrs. Kautsky, Nock. Bellamy, James Oneal, and the New Republic, generates the social movement from a parlor pastime on the same level with Mah Jong. When the people (and the proletariat have not yet evolved, apparently, to the status of people), that is, the middle class, are oppressed too ferociously by the big capitalists, these men, and these journals, will make a great hue and cry, calling on God to give them legislation, and investigation. May I ask what has legislation ever accomplished, especially legislation hampering the inalienable rights of capitalists to exploit the workere? What exactly, did the Teapot Dome investigation accomplish? Mr. Nock is ten times more passive than the evolutionists, as he doesn't believe in legislation, or even education, but does believe that to merely think the present social order is putrid is far more effective. And no doubt Mr. Nock (see his Anarchist's Progress in the March American Mercury) believes that the right-hour day and higher wages were accomplished by peaceful evolution.

* * *

One of the respectable red herrings still in good standing among historians and evolutional radicals is that not every revolution was effected by bloodshed. I have diligently examined histories and can find no mention of any such important revelation. What about the Colonial Revolution? The French Revolution? The Russian Revolution? The German revolutions? The present Chinese revolutions?

When capitalism develops to such an extent that it can no longer feed its slaves, we shall have a revolution.

Yes, say the evolutinnal radicals, you workers are getting a hell of a deal. But wait—Time and God will intervene in your behalf. In the meantime, work, starve, and go to church. Obey the laws, be peaceful (that is, don't strike) and venerate Cautious Cal. Blah. . . blah. . .

Because "Looking Backward" propounds such a philosophy is why most of the above named journals and gentlemen would have acclaimed it as the new Messiah had it been written today. It is a perfectly harmless theory, containing about as much T. N. T. as the belief that black is white. Capitalists should welcome the revival of this human document since it gives them potentialities of promulgating a future perfect social order.

* * *

But God help the worker who falls for this evolutional, company unionism, class collaboration, hunk!

JOSEPH KALAR.

Read The Daily Worker

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION!

FIRST SECTION
This issue consists of three sections. Be sure to get them all.

THE DAILY WORKER

FINAL CITY EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 92. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

Current Events

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE MICHIGAN MANUFACTURER AND FINANCIAL RECORD is considerably exercised because a representative, John Holland by name, introduced a bill in the legislature providing for the limitation of work in all state factories to eight hours a day and the imposition of a fine in the form of time and half for overtime on any employer working his help beyond the specified hour-limit. Should the employer flout the law and pay only straight time or nothing at all for the extra hours worked Mr. Holland would assess the refractory employer anything from $50 to $500 for each offense.

• • •

FAR be it from the indignant organ of big business to commiserate with the employer in his tribulation at the hands of this peculiar legislator. It is for the workman's liberty that the paper does battle. "This is a characteristic privation of liberty of the workingman, in whose alleged interest it is presented" says the "Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record." Suppose the worker chose to work his overtime for nothing. Any citizen may make a donation of his property to any one whom he chooses. Suppose he desired to make a donation of his labor. Under such a measure as Mr. Holland presents, he couldn't even have that liberty."

• • •

NOW, I am sure you are all convinced that this man Holland is an undesirable citizen who would Bolshevise this country and reduce the workers thereof to a very low ethical and social level by robbing them of the god-given right to work for nothing if they saw fit. Let us suppose by way of illustration that the daughter of a manufacturer wanted to divorce a count so that she could marry a prince. She would need extra money to buy off the count in order to purchase the prince. And suppose her father's loyal slaves were aching to contribute a few extra hours gratis to the marital experiments of their employer's daughter. Holland's bill, if passed into law would be the means of leaving a useless count on a fair lady's arm and a lonely prince pining away in his garret or gazing thru restaurant windows at food he could not buy.

• • •

THE American workers are more capitalistically-minded than is good for them. Too many of them believe that without capitalists there would be no work for them to do, no food for them to eat and no clothes for them to wear. They do not realize that the boss hires them in order to profit from their labor rather than to play the role of a humanitarian in business for the purpose of putting food in the mouths of the hungry. But we dare say that a canvass of the workingclass population of the United States would not subscribe to the indignation professed by "The Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record" over the introduction of Holland's bill. They would exchange a lot of abstract freedom for a few hours out of the factory or time and half for extra hours inside of it.

• • •

HERE is a human interest story with a kick: William Keuntze of Hoboken finds $34.75 in his envelope on every pay day. Mrs. Keuntze puts her trade mark on $34.25 of that amount and she agreed that her reckless husband could hold on to the balance, provided he spent it on a daily lunch, a five cent cigar and a weekly package of chewing gum. Evidently William was saving his allowance, which made Mrs. Keuntze duly suspicious. "I believe he wanted to squander that fifty cents on other women," she told the judge. His honor being a man of the world could not see what a fellow could do nowadays in view of the high cost of living, with fifty cents, so he dismissed the case, returning Mr. Keuntz to the status quo, but the flea of suspicion still bites the jealous spouse, her theory being that what Mr. Keuntze saves by the week he spends by the month.

• • •

THAT little kidnapping escapade a cost Aimee Semple MacPherson dearly. Confessions should now be in order. Her life since she returned from the desert, footsore and weary, but with her most priceless heritage intact, has been one disappointment after another. Her mother broke with her, her orchestra leader left her because she bobbed her hair, and worse still, organized a rival church. The unkindest cut of all comes from the attorney who defended her against the Devil et al, in a Los Angeles court. He is suing her for $3,500, the balance of his fee for saving a beautiful soul from Satan. Old Nick is a jolly good fighter. He never quits.

• • •

CLIPPINGS come from friend and foe. A California citizen spied a

(Continued on Page Three)

ADMIT PLAN TO STOP ONLY LABOR DAILY

COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL GIVES LIE TO CHANG TSO-LIN'S FAKE DOCUMENTS

Great Britain Reorganizes Wrangel's Army for War on Nationalist China

Chicago Kuomintang Wires Support Pledge to Hankow Government; Calls Chiang Traitor

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Britain organizing White Russian army under General Wrangel, for war against Nationalist China.

2.—Communist International brands Chang Tso-lin's statement that it is creating anti-foreign sentiment as a deliberate lie; charges Chang's "Soviet Documents" faked.

3.—Chicago Kuomintang cables support to Nationalist Government at Hankow; denounces Chiang Kai Shek as a traitor to the liberation movement.

4.—Mme. Borodin brought to Peking for "special trial."

5.—Nationalist troops repulse Chiang Kai Shek at Kiukiang.

6.—Chiang tries to forestall mass May Day demonstration in Shanghai.

BELGRADE, April 29.—General Wrangel, White Russian, whose invasions of Soviet Russia backed by the imperialist powers, were completely crushed, is organizing an army of 20,000 for service in China. Great Britain is subsidizing Wrangel again, it is reported.

Wrangel is collecting troops from Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Turkey.

MOSCOW, April 29.—Documents alleged to have been found by Chang Tso-lin in his unprecedented raids on the Soviet embassy compound at Peking were declared to be counterfeits by Communist International.

In a statement made public today, the Communist International branded Chang's documents as spurious and declared that the connections that the Communist International is stirring up the Chinese masses against foreigners are political lies, fabricated by foreign espionage." The charges are too ridiculous to need repudiation, the statement declares.

Substantial Backing.

Chang has been making public documents alleged to have been taken in his raids on the Soviet embassy in the hope of securing even more substantial backing from the powers than he has been receiving.

That Chang has succeeded in convincing willing and credulous foreign diplomats of "Soviet plots" in China is indicated in dispatches received here. Senator Bingham of the United States is reported to have expressed sympathy for Chang Tso-lin after a perusal of the spurious documents.

M. Cherny, Soviet Chargé who had been recalled from Peking, has arrived here with his staff.

• • •

CHICAGO, April 29. — The local branch of the Kuomintang has cabled the Nationalist government at Hankow pledging its support to the liberation movement and denouncing Chiang Kai-shek as a traitor.

The cable, signed by Chao Ting-chi, resident secretary in America of the Oriental Committee of the League Against Imperialism, recently formed at Brussels, follows:

Denounce Chiang.

"Chiang Kai-shek has turned traitor. He is aiding imperialism. Destroy him. All oppressed peoples are rallying to your support."

• • •

Nationalists Hold Position.

SHANGHAI, April 29.—The Nationalist troops are holding their own in their skirmishes with Chiang Kai-shek's troops at Kiukiang, according to reports received here.

In order to forestall a monster workers' demonstration on May 1st,

(Continued on Page Two)

Read The Daily Worker Every Day.

War Hero Badly Hurt When Cop Chases Him Off Roof in Brooklyn

Gregory Golemko, who is said to have been decorated for bravery while serving with the 147th Infantry in the World War, was seriously injured yesterday when he jumped from the roof of a three-story building at 63 Moore St., Williamsburg, while being pursued by Patrolman John Tanbrano, according to the police.

Golemko lay unconscious in the yard, back of the building until Ambulance Surgeon Donnelly took him to a hospital.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

HANKOW TROOPS WILL JOIN FENG IN PEKING DRIVE

German Vessel Arrives Without Mishap

(Special to the Daily Worker).

HANKOW, April 29.—The Nationalist army in this area, numbering 70,000 men, has been mobilized and is proceeding toward Honan today. It is reported that this body will cooperate with armies of Feng Hu-hsiang and Yen Hsi-shan, the governor of Shansi, in a drive toward Peking.

Spectacular review of troops in connection with the inauguration of military council officials took place yesterday.

• • •

German Ship Not Hurt.

HANKOW, April 29.—The German freighter, Eldarwald, unarmed and unconvoyed, arrived here today unmolested by Chinese troops. It left Woosang, at the mouth of the Yangtze River three and one half days ago.

This is interpreted in Nationalist circles here as indicative that nations not despatching troops to China and not making threats of the use of force in China are regarded as friends by the Chinese people, and therefore do not have trouble.

• • •

Japanese Resume Business.

HANKOW, April 29. — Japanese shops, factories and river services are resuming today and a majority of their 10,000 Chinese employes are returning to work for the Japanese firms.

The local representative of the Nippon Kisen Kaisha have wired to Shanghai for additional passengers and freight ships to come up the river. Four boats are held here for unloading.

It is understood that cotton mills will resume operations shortly.

• • •

Labor Chiefs Meet.

HANKOW, April 29.—The labor conference called under the auspices of the new labor commission, including Eugene Chen, Chen Kung-cho, head of the labor department of the Central Kuomintang, and Su Shao-chen, labor minister, which has been formed to act in cases of labor questions involving foreigners, will meet today to consider steps to promote local business prosperity.

The conference will be attended by representatives of all important labor bodies. It will discuss the general policy of specific measures to bring labor into line with the government on measures to be taken to restore normality of business conditions and insure safety for lives and interests.

Imperialist Armada Anchors in the Hudson

On Friday, two days before May Day, there steamed into the mouth of the Hudson River the combined Atlantic and Pacific fleets of the United States navy, fresh from their maneuvers in the Carribean, where they were parading mightily and majestically before the peoples of that part of the world in order to properly impress upon them the convincing means by which Wall Street is able to enforce its will against smaller nations.

In all there are 129 warships, the greatest concentration of naval force New York has ever seen, anchored in the Hudson and extending from 57th street in Manhattan to Yonkers. Battleships, destroyers, armoured cruisers, light cruisers, submarines, aircraft tenders, mine sweepers and all the other floating instruments of death and destruction that human ingenuity has yet devised comprise the combined fleets. Every battleship that is not occupied terrorizing the inhabitants of China, Nicaragua or some other country where Wall Street has heavy investments is now on exhibition in New York.

The bankers, the industrialists, the exploiters of labor, the despoilers of weaker peoples, may now sit in their exquisite automobiles as they traverse Riverside Drive and be assured that THEIR FLEET, fully armed and equipped, the mightiest on earth, stands at their disposal, ready at their command to repeat a hundred fold the massacres of helpless colonials as they massacred the Chinese on Socony Hill a few days ago. But for workers these majestic ships are ominous signs of impending disaster—of new and more devastating wars in which the death toll of humanity will mount to millions upon millions.

Also the very presence of this colossal assemblage of battleships at this time is significant for the working class. The master class knows that this May Day is set aside by the militant workers for a concentrated attack upon the forces of imperialist reaction that are now ravaging China, throttling the legally constituted government of Nicaragua because it will not become a lackey for Wall Street, striving, through ridiculous talk about "forged state documents" to conceal its foul designs upon Mexico, and endeavoring to murder Sacco and Vanzetti in order to strike terror into the hearts of the foreign-born workers in the slave pens of America. Knowing this, the presence of the fleet at this time was unquestionably deliberately timed by the master class in order to give the city a martial color during the period of the May Day demonstrations.

In spite of the presence of the gunmen of imperialism, the admirals, vice-admirals and the rest of the braided and epauletted officers who will strut before their masters in their gilded clubs and talk long and loudly about the glory of this government and lie about its pacific intentions, we will raise the standard of international solidarity of labor on this as on every other May Day and do all that we can to mobilize the workers against everything that the fleet stands for by demanding:

Hands Off China!
Hands Off Nicaragua and Mexico!
Stop the Imperialist War Maneuvers!
Life and Liberty for Sacco and Vanzetti!
Open the jail doors and free the imprisoned fighters against capitalism!

And in every way we will strive to direct the mass energy of the American working class into revolutionary channels so that the workers and farmers and not the Wall Street brigands will control this country.

13 Admirals Lead Fleet Up Hudson in Huge War Show

Uncle Sam's foreign policemen, 32,500 bluejackets, came into town yesterday. Like a circus parade, 122 men of war of the United States fleet came through the Narrows, steamed into New York harbor amid the clamorous welcome of metropolitan imperialists, and dropped anchor in the Hudson river.

Thirteen admirals and vice admirals, at the head of the fleet, were wined and dined by their capitalist bosses last night. A series of dinners and conferences are being arranged, to culminate in a dinner at the Hotel Astor on May 3, which will be attended by all the officers of the fleet. Rodman Wanamaker will be toastmaster.

The fleet is the largest aggregation of warships ever assembled in New York harbor. Even when the United States was mobilizing for the world war, yesterday's record was not approached.

No reasons for the parade could be secured from the Brooklyn Navy Yard last night. Naval officials scouted the theory that the men of war were being prepared for a trip to China, but admitted that the mobilization was part of the administration's peace-time preparedness program.

Mayor Walker, late as usual, arrived at 11:45 a. m. to extend the city's official greetings to Admiral Hughes at the city hall. Hughes was kept waiting three quarters of an hour.

When Walker hove into sight surrounded by a cloud of photographers, the admiral impatiently asked, "doesn't the mayor ever go anywhere without his photographers."

The police department was given special instructions on how to handle the 30,000 gobs on shore leave. No clubs, and no rough stuff, the cops were warned. Sailors are better than ordinary workers.

MANY MAY DAY MEETINGS IN AND NEAR CITY

All Rally to Protest Against Tyranny

Labor's vanguard has completed arrangements for the celebration of May Day—International Labor Day—in innumerable meetings to be held in New York and vicinity. Every worker should come and demonstrate for "Hands Off China," for freedom for Sacco and Vanzetti, for defense of the persecuted leaders of the masses in New York, or international labor solidarity. Attend your May Day meetings.

New York Meetings.

Central Opera House, 67th Street and Third Avenue, May 1; 1 p. m. Speakers: Gitlow, Staehel, Weinstone, Poyntz, Moore, Krumbein.

Hunts Point Palace 163rd Street and Southern Boulevard, Bronx. Speakers: Dunne, Wicks, Weinstone, Trachtenberg, Grecht, Olgin, Wortis, Warshafsky.

(Continued on Page Three)

FURRIERS' RIGHT TO PICKET UPHELD 12 WORKERS FREE

Judge Throws Cases Out in Decision

The fur workers locked-out by the bosses for refusing to register with the reactionary right wing International, have a perfect right to picket their shops and to peacefully persuade other workers not to turn scab and fill their places.

This was the decision of Magistrate Simpson in Jefferson Market Court yesterday, when he dismissed seven fur workers who had been arrested in several parts of the fur market for picketing.

The workers brought to court were Lillian Winogradsky, Ester Polansky, Morris Wiener, Jack Kramer, Goldberg, Annie Feldman and M. Lenber. They had been picketing 150 West 20th St., 333 Seventh Ave., and one shop in West 32nd St. The court ruled that they have a perfect right to do this, and cannot be interfered with by the police.

Magistrate Gottlieb in Jefferson Market Court yesterday freed Ester Kushner, Annie Liebowitz and Anna Shapiro, three dressmakers who were arrested a couple of weeks ago for picketing one of the shops on West 36th St., where an injunction had been granted against the union.

Two other dressmakers also gained their freedom yesterday after serving a setence of 30 days imposed upon them for their strike activities last summer.

Gnasis and Clara Kimberg had been confined in Raymond Street Jail, after being convicted of attacking a scab who identified them only because she had been worked in the same shop.

The Kimbergs were met yesterday by a delegation of workers carrying flowers, and their release was celebrated by speeches and an enthusiastic welcome from the union. They were escorted to their home by the workers, and they will be guests at a banquet to be held on Sunday, International Labor Day.

HELPERS PLEDGE FULL SUPPORT TO PLUMBERS UNION

A thousand striking plumbers' helpers showed their solidarity with the striking and locked-out plumbers in a demonstration which was held yesterday in front of the Labor Temple, 243 East 84th St., where the registration office of the locked-out New York plumbers is located.

The helpers not only showed their support of the plumbers in this way, but, according to C. E. Miller, president of the American Association of Plumbers' Helpers, they also "wanted to call the attention of the plumbers to the miserable conditions in which their helpers, with whom they work side by side on the job, find themselves."

Such slogan as "We are helping you, will you help us to win a union?" "You have a union, we want one too." "Four dollars a day is a dog's wage, not an American's" were seen on the banners carried by those taking part in the demonstration.

Confer With Burke.

Coincident with this rally of the helpers, a conference between their representatives and Thomas E. Burke secretary-treasurer of the United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters, was being held at the Aberdeen Hotel. Burke firmly denied that he had stated the A. F. of L. was opposed to organization of the plumbers helpers, or to the American Association which is working for formation of a union.

"The problem of the helpers will have to be solved," he said. "The situation is very complicated and it must be taken up by the whole executive board at the annual meeting at Chicago." The American Association of Plumbers' Helpers was invited to send delegates to this meeting.

Mediators Refused.

According to Burke there was no change yesterday in the situation of the locked-out and striking plumbers, so far as the men were concerned. It is reported that representatives of

JAIL EDITORS AND SUPPRESS PAPER IS PLOT

Professional Patriots on Stand Confess Plan

Salaried professional patriots and the organizations for which they work have been plotting for eighteen months to "get" The DAILY WORKER staff, rob the paper of its mailing privileges and railroad the editors and business manager to prison, it was stated under oath yesterday morning in the Essex Market court with Magistrate Tolleris presiding, in the trial of William F. Dunne and Bert Miller.

During the searching examination of Conroy Joseph Brodsky, George L. Darte admitted that he is the paid "adjutant-general" of the Military Order of the World War, that the organization is incorporated, a corporation exclusively of ex-army officers, has its headquarters in Washington, D. C. and that he had personally notified the postmaster-general of the publication of the poem America on which the charge is based.

Read Daily For Year

He also testified that he had read The DAILY WORKER "religiously" for a year and a half and that this was the first time he had ever felt impelled to register a complaint with the postoffice and police authorities.

Darte spends the title of "captain" in addition to adjutant-general.

George Seitz, who described himself as "a research worker" for the Keymen of America, testified that his job was to furnish information—he would not say about what or to whom.

"What kind of an organization is this Keymen of America?", asked Attorney Brodsky. Seitz replied that he knew little about it.

"Is it a Communist organization?",

(Continued on Page Two)

INSURANCE MAN BEATS RETREAT AS PROBE NEARS

Tully Resigns as Daily Trails His Activities

William J. Tully, general solicitor of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company resigned yesterday, following The DAILY WORKER'S exposure of the weekly payment frauds of the Big Four insurance companies.

Tully first reached fame in 1905 as a member of the Armstrong state senate committee. He was one of the reactionaries who blocked the move to have the "Big Four" investigated at that time.

Shortly afterward Tully was appointed solicitor with the Metropolitan with a yearly salary of $20,000, later raised to $30,000 He organized the law department in 1909 and has been its executive chief ever since.

Governor Smith's action indicating that there may be a legislative investigation of the industrial life insurance business is believed to have caused Tully's speedy withdrawal. He will travel in Europe and the Far East.

the department of labor, Thomas Williams and George Lilller, would continue their efforts to act as mediators but no results of their activities were announced yesterday.

The head of the Building Trades' Employers' Association, C. G. Norman, continues to refuse discussion of the lock-out until the striking Brooklyn plumbers return to work. The workers stand firm in their strike demands for $14 a day and a five-day week but are ready to discuss a peace settlement at any time on the basis of these terms.

They will be guests of honor at the Proletarian Banquet for "Unity," the weekly newspaper recently inaugurated by the two Joint Boards, which is to be held on May 1 after May Day celebrations in the Star Casino.

The other guests will be Ben Gold and Isadore Shapiro, who were acquitted in the "Mineola" case last week.

All workers are invited to attend the banquet in the Casino.

INSURANCE LAWS SMOKE SCREEN FOR THE "BIG FOUR" SWINDLE

RESUME OF INSURANCE EXPOSE

The DAILY WORKER herewith continues its exposure of the "Big Four" Insurance Trust. The "Big Four" is composed of the Metropolitan, Prudential, John Hancock and the Colonial Life Insurance Companies. In previous articles Mr. Harrison has adduced evidence proving misrepresentation, fraud, misuse and misuse of "surplus" funds. There are 40,000,000 American workers paying tribute to the "Big Four." Names prominent in government and financial circles have peppered the series thus far. Notably in this respect we find Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel Corp., Haley Fiske, president of the Metropolitan Life and outstanding labor-baiter by virtue of his membership in the National Civic Federation, Albert H. Wiggin, Joseph P. Day, New York's super-realtor and many others.

(Copyrighted by The DAILY WORKER, 1927).

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON.

ARTICLE XVIII.

If while reading this article some of the phrases used sound outlandish and meaningless to the reader it should cause him no alarm. He is in perfectly good company. The very officials and legislators who originated them don't know precisely what they mean.

Phrases like, "net premium"—"select and ultimate methods"—"terminal reserve value"—all these are verbal camouflage employed by the "Big Four" to obscure their fraudulent machinations and to create the impression abroad that the life insurance business is tinted with cabalistic and esoteric financial overtones.

Philadelphia Lasgaege Stuck.

A system has been built up which even the courts cannot penetrate, because the Insurance Law deals in vague and undefined phrases which are interpreted by the Superintendent of Insurance to suit the companies operating under the smoke screen.

Where there is smoke there is fire. Where there is vague and misleading terminology there is swindle and fraud.

The terms "net premium"—"select and ultimate methods" and other jumbles of nebulous phraseology are simply excuses for legalizing the terrific overcharging and fake "expense" entries in the annual reports to the Superintendent of Insurance.

Costs Money to Live.

The "Big Four" base their premium charges on a Table of Mortality which predicts two deaths for every funeral and the excessive charge, as always, is borne by your old friend and pee-pui; in this case 40 million American workers.

This insurance combine charges original premiums for protection assuming that every outstanding policy will become a claim or a maturity while public reports show that only 15 per cent of all policies now in force will ever be paid on.

Neither Ignorant Nor Innocent.

Every actuary knows this; an actuary is one who figures premium charges for an insurance company. These actuaries are not fools. They are dishonest.

The average instructor in mathematics in any decent university gets about $2,500 a year—and he's got to be good to get that much. But then he does not have to juggle figures which results in criminal insurance rates.

Listed below are some of the salaries paid to the actuaries in the employ of the "Big Four":

R. V. Carpenter	$21,000
J. D. Craig	20,000
John K. Gore	40,000
James F. Little	16,500
L. H. Howe	16,566

Why be a bookkeeper when being an actuary pays so well? Ask Gore & Co.

Too Much Premium.

These companies assume that their colossal reserve will earn only 3% whereas it is a well known fact that they earn over 24%.

This enormous ratio of profits is due to the losses sustained by lapsed policyholders. In their official reports these companies say that the interest return is less than 6%—but this is merely on the bond income and does not include forfeitures.

Net premiums are more than three times to large to pay death losses, claims, etc., and seven times too large for the actual benefits paid.

For example the "net premium" sanctioned by the New York State Legislature at age 40, whole life is $23.50 while the actual death loss cost is less than $5. No wonder an actuary receives $40,000 a year.

Hide the Loot.

Real profits made by the "Big Four" are fraudulently concealed, behind "net premiums" and expenses.

The officials of the "Big Four" must have been travelling salesmen with expense accounts in their early days. No other explanation can account for their expense-padding proficiency.

Let us take for example the list of Home Office salaries as submitted in the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company's report to the legislature. It reads in part:

Haley Riske	$150,000
Fred H. Ecker	125,000
D. E. Waid	113,000
F. O. Ayres	38,000
Robert I. Cox	38,000
Lee K. Frankel	35,000
J. E. Kavanaugh	37,500
H. I. Potter	33,840
Walter Stabler	30,000
Leroy Lincoln	35,000
William J. Tully	30,000

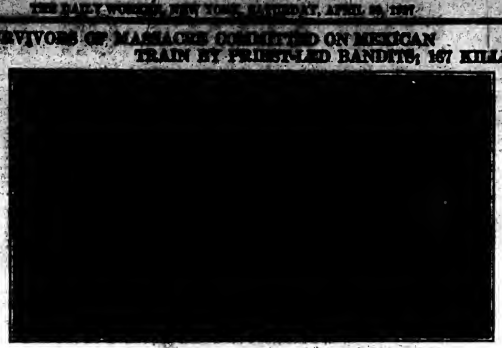
This is a very abridged list of inflated salaries. I have merely listed those over $30,000. Scores of fat jobs paying anywhere from ten thousand to $30,000 pepper the payroll. So much so that the total Metropolitan Home Office salaries for 1925 amounted to $5,725,784.30.

Clerks Underpaid.

However, the reader must not labor under the illusion that all Home Office employes are overpaid. Clerks and stenographers only receiver an average of about $15 per week and very often less. But then Mother Metropolitan serves free lunches, and provides the "free" use of umbrellas on wet days. Can kindness ever reach higher levels?

The Prudential Life Insurance Company, another limb of the "Big Four" submits this list for approval:

Edward Duffeild	$ 75,000
Cass Gilbert	177,000
Louis Kamm	100,000
John K. Gore	40,000
W. S. Johnson	35,000
G. W. Munsick	35,000
Fred A. Boyle	30,000
Ed. Gray	30,000
W. I. Hamilton	30,000
Alfred Hurrell	30,000
L. A. Wilkinson	39,000



Total Prudential Home Office salaries and agency salaries came to $3,999,612.38 for 1926.

In this face of these criminally wasteful bloated salaries Haley Fiske of the Metrooplitan said: "It seems to us that the best thought of the age has fixed upon insurance as the solvent for most of the economic ills of society."

Quite true, Mr. Fiske, insurance seems to have solved a lot of your economic ills.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

SURVIVORS OF MASSACRE COMMITTED ON MEXICAN TRAIN BY PRIESTLED BANDITS; 167 KILLED

Exclusive picture of arrival of survivors of looted Mexican train at Kempsine, Escobedo. The train, bound for Laredo, was stopped, attacked and the wooden cars burned, with loss of life.

Communist International Brands "Documents" False

(Continued from Page One)

Chiang Kai-shek's subordinates here have announced a mass meeting for that day.

Demonstrations against Chiang's ruthless suppression of labor unions may break out on a few of the numerous national holidays, which will be observed thruout May.

Workers' Holidays.

May Day will be observed by a complete suspension of work. On May 4th there will be another holiday to celebrate the anniversary of the students' strike in 1919; on May 5th, there will be another suspension to commemorate China's humiliation in accepting the twenty-one demands forced upon her by Japan; on May 30th, Shanghai workers will mourn the loss of students and workers shot down by British soldiers in 1925.

Remove Officers.

In addition to executing militant labor leaders and workers, Chiang Kai-shek is removing officers in his armies suspected of Nationalist sympathies. The commander of the First Division of Chiang's army was recently removed on direct orders from Chiang Kai-shek.

* * *

Detain Russians.

PEKING, April 29.—Russian citizens arrested in the raids upon the Soviet embassy here are still being detained.

Besides the twenty-four Chinese, executed yesterday as the result of these raids ,four others were given lengthy prison sentences.

Mme. Borodin, wife of the Russian adviser to the Hankow Nationalist government arrested by Chang's troops, is being brought to Peking for a special trial.

Packed Court.

The twenty-four left wing leaders executed by Chang Tso-lin yesterday were strangled after a secret trial in a court packed by Chang.

* * *

Pointing out the militant stand that the State Department has taken on the Chinese situation, twenty-eight American educators and missionaries who have recently been to China have addressed an open letter to President Coolidge urging the United States to act independently of the other powers and to accept the Nationalist request for an international investigation of the Nanking affair.

John Dewey, well-known philosopher and educator, Edward A. Hume, president of Yale in China, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick, who has lectured in China, Paul Monroe, director of the School of Education of Teachers' College, Columbia University, are among those who signed the appeal.

The letter says, "It appears to us that our present policy leads step by step automatically to intervention."

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

Needle Trades Defense

If one would like to know how the workers stand in the present struggle, he need only pay a visit to the office of the Joint Defense Committee at 41 Union Square.

As the great defense bazaar draws closer, the group of workers bringing in bundles of dollar bills on the $100,00 Fund Roll Call, or paying money on booklets, Bazaar Honor Roll Lists, Collections or Donations, are supplemented by more delegates of workers from the shops, bringing presents for the bazaar.

For the Bazaar.

Thirty workers of the Marcus Brothers Shop sent in a committee consisting of Charles Friend, shop chairman, Morris Bernstein, R. Bernstein, and Louis Moscovitz. The committee brought a present for the bazaar consisting of a half dozen newly made beautiful ladies' spring coats and a half dozen children's coats.

Morris Divin brought only a small package but it contained a half dozen pair of ladies' hose and several sets of delicate ladies' lingerie.

Lists and Tickets.

All Bazaar Honor Roll Lists must be turned in before the end of the present week so as to enable us to have the names published in the Special Bazaar number of "Unity." Bazaar tickets must be settled for by May 5th or they will be charged to person holding them.

Another Reply to Sigman.

Dear Sirs:

The letter sent us thru your information bureau, concerning Communist activities in the Jewish unions, was received by our last meeting and acted upon as it deserved.

We decided to answer your letter immediately by sending $36.00 for the defense of the imprisoned cloakmakers and furriers. This is only a deposit on the fund being raised by our branch.

As to a lecturer, please send us someone who is willing to debate the question and we will be glad to receive him. If you are willing to send someone please notify us at once so that we may make the necessary preparations.

(Signed.) Abe Bleckman, Secretary, W. C. Branch 519.

Even Winnipeg Plute Paper Is Critical

WINNIPEG (FP).—Under the caption Civilized Cruelty, the conservative Winnipeg Tribune comments adversely on the handling of the Sacco-Vanzetti case by the state of Massachusetts.

"Dissatisfaction with the conduct of the case for the prosecution has lately become widespread in the United States," it remarks. "On questions of American law it is impossible for outsiders to form any opinion. But the fact that the case has dragged on for six years is legitimate ground for foreign comment."

Recover Tuition Fees From Fake School.

DETROIT (FP) April 29.—In Cooperation with the Detroit federation of labor many young workers are forcing the socalled Detroit school of trades to refund their tuition fees. This outfit advertises that it will teach a boy a trade in 6 weeks or refund the money. Fees of $90 have been paid and refunding was refused until the Detroit federation brought pressure.

Plan Anti-War Meet.

CLEVELAND, April 29. — The Cleveland Committee against Imperialism will hold a meeting against war on China at the Engineers Auditorium, St. Clair and Ontario Aves., on Tuesday, May 3 at 8 P. M. This is the second meeting that the Cleveland Committee has arranged, and promises it to be a big one.

Among the speakers scheduled are Judge Florence Allen of the Ohio State Supreme Court, Rev. Joel Hayden, Rev. Lupton, Max Hayes, Minister Zee, representing the Chinese government, Rabbi Brickner and A. F. Coyle.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

Plotting for Year and Half to Get The Daily

(Continued from Page One)

asked Brodsky. "Absolutely not," said the information expert. "Then you do know something about it. Is it a spy organization?" The prosecutor objected and was sustained.

Spies Show Off

An interested crowd of policemen, detectives and court room attaches watched the introduction of telegrams from Bert Miller received by Darte and Seitz who, being regular subscribers, had received these appeals for aid in warding off the attack of professional patriots on the DAILY WORKER.

The two prosecution witnesses displayed these messages with considerable pride evidently regarding them as proof of their stool-pigeon capacities.

Brodsky's motion to dismiss the case was taken under advisement by Magistrate Tolleris and will be argued today at 10 a. m.

Clear Case of Conspiracy

That the Military Order and the Keymen, together with the representatives of some other "patriotic" who were present caned and spatted have entered into a conspiracy to railroad members of the DAILY WORKER staff to jail and deprive the paper of its mailing privileges was plainly brought out in cross-examination altho the two professional paid informers shied away from the word "conspiracy."

Copies of the issue containing the poem "America," the wrappers in which they were mailed, the address label and the aforementioned telegrams were introduced as direct evidence.

Long Record of Spying

The Military Order of the World War, with headquarters in Washington, D. C. seems to be taking the lead in the frame-up against The DAILY WORKER. Darte has a long record of spying and snooping as has the whole organization.

Early this year Darte, who also belongs to the National Flag Association, in a public statement declared that Professor Carlton J. H. Hayes of Columbia ought to be "kicked out of the university bodily" for referring jocosely to patriotic organizations and symbols.

Darte Denounced Jane Addams

At another time Darte denounced Jane Addams of Hull House fame and Carrie Chapman Catt, the noted suffragist, as "radicals." He also charged the National Board of the Y.M.C.A., the W.C.T.U. and the American Association of University Women with having members in the "radical, pink or intelligentsia group."

In 1924 the Commander of the Buffalo branch of the Military Order made false and libelous charges against the National Council for Prevention of War.

The close connection and friendly relations existing between these professional patriots and the state's attorney's office was shown yesterday when "Captain" Darte openly took over the functions of the prosecutor and began to question the defendants. Attorney Brodsky's objection to this weird procedure was sustained, however.

The case may result in both a penitentiary sentence and a fine for the members of the staff in addition to prospective federal action against the staff and the loss of mailing privileges.

Methodist Churches Are Built by Scabs, Their Pastors Declare

Despite protestations of friendship to organized labor by the methodist church, many of the new church buildings are being erected by nonunion labor, it was charged on the floor of the New York East Conference yesterday.

Few pastors consider the building trades unions in awarding contracts, according to the social service department. Other pastors, echoing the demands of their wealthy member, declared that was the right policy and that all houses of the lord should be built by scabs.

A compromise resolution giving organized labor the preference, so long as there is "no infringement on the rights of unorganized labor," was finally passed.

New York's Water Front

News and Views of the Biggest World Port

Families on N. Y. Coal Barges Lead A Miserable Life

The situation amongst the coal barge workers in the New York harbor and the adjoining rivers as far as employment is concerned is becoming more and more critical each day.

Along the waterfront there is an increasing string of barges and scows tied up and rendered useless by the existing slump in the buying of coal. This slump has already thrown over a thousand men and their families out of work, and it is predicted by union officials that shortly, that is, within the next few months this condition will not only double but also triple itself.

Many Idle Barges.

All along the upper North, East and Harlem Rivers the barges that usually are occupied in transporting the coal from the centers of shipment off the freight depots in New Jersey are lying idle. This means that the men and their families on these boats must starve thru the six or seven months on a miserable sustenance that necessitates living a hand to mouth existence.

Statistics and observation on and among these workers show that the great majority of them know no other trade than the manipulation and steering of these barges. The majority of these barge captains have their wives and children living with them on the barges.

Miserable Conditions.

At the best, existence on these barges is miserable. Due to the unsanitary conditions and inadequate space for living and cooking aboad them, especially the sea going barges are dangerous. The children on these barges rarely have even the opportunity to get even a primary school education. All must be above board to the profits and exploitation of the contractors and coal companies. This is so true that the board of education no longer even takes the trouble to send patrol officers after the delinquent or hooky-playing children.

Little Union Organization.

These conditions would not be so terrible if all of the workers were in the ranks of the union. Then the workers would not only be able to take action towards the improvement of the general living conditions for the men and their families, but would also, be able to regulate the periods of employment and slack so that there would be no reason crises attacking at the expenses of the highly exploited workers.

New Jersey Bosses Worried by Strikes In Building Trades

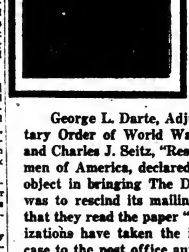
ASBURY PARK, N. J., April 29.—Several hundred thousand dollars worth of construction work has been tied up in Asbury Park, Bradley Beach, Neptune and Belmar sections as a result of the general strike called by building trades in Monmouth County in sympathy with the hod-carriers and cement mixers when the bosses refused to concede a raise in wages from $7 to $8 at the expiration of their agreement.

This country is the seat of the open shoppers and manufacturers association who are trying to establish the American Plan or open shop in the building trades in this state.

* * *

Carpenters Ask Boost

NEWARK, N. J., April 29.—Representatives of the carpenters' locals and Master Builder Assn. have been negotiating for the past few months on an increase in wages for the journeymen from $11.20 to $12 a day. The agreement expires July first. Possibilities are there will be no strike and that the bosses will concede to the demands of the union.



* * *

NEWARK, N. J., April 29.—The agreement between the electricians local union of Newark and the Association of Electrical Contractors which expires May 1 will undoubtedly bring about a walkout of the 800 workers. The union men are asking for an increase in wages from $12 to $14 a day. The bosses stubbornly refused to grant the increase and a strike will result.

* * *

3 Trainmen Killed.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., April 29.—Three trainmen were killed and a fourth sustained serious injuries today when a Denver-bound Colorado and Southern passenger train collided with a light engine near Ure, 30 miles north of here. A misunderstanding of orders is believed to have caused the collision.

The Paytriots vs. The Daily Worker

George L. Darte, Adjutant General, of the Military Order of World War Veterans, Incorporated, and Charles J. Seitz, "Research" worker of the Keymen of America, declared in court today that their object in bringing The DAILY WORKER to trial, was to rescind its mailing privileges. They stated that they read the paper "religiously." These organizations have taken the initiative in reporting the case to the post office authorities.

The issue is clear. In open court these representatives of the business interests of the city, parading under a number of doubtful titles, have proclaimed their unflinching opposition to The DAILY WORKER and their determination to destroy it.

Shall they have their way? Shall they succeed in their nefarious plans? YOU must give the answer. The answer can be clearly given by your support of the fund which is being raised to defend The DAILY WORKER. Lawyers and legal expenses are a heavy drain upon our organization. Unless we can meet them we will not win our case and reaction will triumph.

Every comrade who reads The DAILY WORKER, who believes in it, who wants it to live and grow, must do his share. Act at once. Send in your contribution.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of

..... dollars .... cents to the Ruthenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....

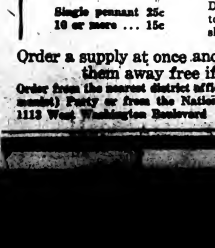
Address .....

City .....

State .....

Signature or nom de plume .....

Lectures and Forums



LABOR TEMPLE
14th Street and Second Avenue
THIS SUNDAY
5 P. M.—The Pioneers of the Race
DR. G. F. BECK
"The Seer of Modern India"
—Rabindra Nath Tagore
ADMISSION 25 CENTS
7:30 P. M.—
SPECIAL PROGRAM
SPEAKERS:
DR. WILL DURANT
DR. G. F. BECK
and Others.
ALL WELCOME.
ADMISSION FREE

INGERSOLL FORUM
anti-religious center of N. Y.
CHAMBER MUSIC HALL,
CARNEGIE HALL
SUNDAY EVENING, 8 P. M.
CHARLES A. WAGNER
will speak on
"Why Evolution Is Morally Necessary for Children"
Questions and Synopsis from Floor, Admission 75c. All Welcome.

RAISE YOUR VOICE AGAINST WAR ON MAY DAY

Be one of the millions of American workers in demanding—

HANDS OFF CHINA!

ACTUAL SIZE.
Pennant in red, with gold lettering.

Single pennant 25c
10 or more ... 15c

Wear one of the little red pennants, printed in gold, and induce other workers to do the same.

Bring this to the attention of all labor organizations. This is important. Do it now. Join the forces to prevent another bloody slaughter.

Order a supply at once and sell them or give them away free if you can.

Order from the nearest district office of the Workers (Communist) Party or from the National Office of the Party, 1113 West Washington Boulevard Chicago, Ill.

CENTRAL OPERA HOUSE — Demands Against War. — Second Bank Of Class. — Demand Freedom for Sacco and Vanzetti. — HUNTS POINT PALACE

...th Street and Third Avenue — Hall St. and So. Blvd., Bronx

SPEAKERS:

Wm. W. Weinstone — Juliet S. Poyntz — R.T. Ellis — Harry M. Wicks

Bertram D. Wolfe — Richard R. Moore — Wm. W. Weinstone — Rebecca Grecht

Charles Krumbein — John J. Ballam — Pin. F. Dennis — Rose Wortis

Also representatives of Young Workers League and the Young Pioneers. Also Chinese speaker. — Young Workers' League speaker, Young Pioneer speaker, Chinese speaker.

Chairman: JACK STACHEL. — Chairman: A. TRACHTENBERG.

MAY DAY CELEBRATION

Two Large Mass Meetings — SUNDAY, MAY 1, at 1 P. M. — Two Large Mass Meetings

Freiheit Gesangs Verein. — Auspices: Workers (Communist) Party, District New York. — Admission 50c. — Doors Open 12 M. — Freiheit Mandolin Orchestra.

Defend Kushner; Seek Appeal on Moskowitz Case

Argument by Attorney Joseph R. Brodsky, representing the two workers who were arrested Wednesday for distributing "Hands Off China" leaflets, resulted yesterday in having the plea of Morris Kushner changed to "not guilty," and his case set over for hearing until Thursday, May 9th.

Kushner, who was arrested with Herman Moskowitz, had entered a technical plea of "guilty" when he was not represented by counsel. For this reason, Magistrate Well, sitting in the 57th street court, was unwillingly forced to allow a withdrawal of the first plea and the entrance of a plea of "not guilty." Bail was fixed at $100, instead of $500 as the judge intimated was his intention.

It is this same magistrate who yesterday sentenced Herman Moskowitz to six months in the workhouse on a charge of disorderly conduct. His offense was the same as Kushner's; distributing leaflets. Attorney Brodsky has already started to appeal this extreme sentence, and to have Moskowitz released on bail immediately. Brodsky is acting in behalf of the International Labor Defense in looking after the cases of these workers.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page One)

news item that told of a certain Feodor Volkov, who was recently sentenced to death by the Soviet Government for murdering 300 peasants to avenge himself for the confiscation of his property by the state. He was a big landholder under the Czar. "Fine. I'd kill a million of you dogs if you tried to take my property" comments this gentle soul, whose property in all probability is confined to whatever livestock manages to eke out a precarious existence on the inside of his rags.

* * *

OF better stuff is our Cleveland correspondent who forwarded a clipping from a local paper which recorded the death of a prohibition stool-pigeon. The fink is alleged to be a former radical who became an agent of the department of justice and was responsible for the arrest and imprisonment of many workers. There is a suspicion that the bootleggers got him. But the informer could not claim that they did not give him a fair warning. Some of them recently hung him by the heels out of an eight-story window with the hint that the next time he became over-zealous in the line of duty, he would hit the sidewalk. Those soft-hearted people who sympathize with stool-pigeons may now shed a tear over Dan Kuts.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day

Volunteers Wanted Articles Wanted

For The DAILY WORKER Booth at the Joint Defense Bazaar, May 12 to 16. Art objects of all kinds, especially antiques, pictures, statues, vases, curios, etc. Report at once to the Local Office of The DAILY WORKER, 108 East 14th Street, New York City.

British Union Heads in Conference Against No Strike Bill of Tories

LONDON, April 29.—Representatives of 4,000,000 British trade unionists met today in Kingsway Hall to complete plans for a campaign to fight the government's proposed bill for the control of trade unions.

Although George Hicks, chairman of the Trades Union Congress, announced that "labor forces will fight the bill to the bitter end," the convention indicated early in its session that it would take considered action.

Communists proposed a real strike to force the withdrawal of the bill.

Policemen Assault Workers Who Defy Fascist Murderer

Uniformed policemen and detectives last night again aided the notorious fascist propagandist, Francesco de Pinedo, who prostitutes his ability as an aviator in order to get a favorable hearing for his apologies for the bloody regime of Mussolini, by launching a savage assault upon some 2,000 or more anti-fascists who were demonstrating against the presence of de Pinedo.

The anti-fascisti workers were marching toward the Vietor Emanuel Post of the Italian Legion at 215 Second Ave., where de Pinedo was delivering one of his apologies for fascism. There was no disorder and the marchers intended merely to pass the place in order to prove that the vast majority of Italian workers in this country, as in Italy, are opposed to fascism.

As the workers marched toward the hall Patrolman Schoenfeld and three other policemen tried to head them off by assaulting them with clubs. In a few moments reserves from three police stations arrived and began beating the marchers. At the same time a handful of fascist hoodlums who were listening to the harrangue of de Pinedo rushed out of the hall and mixed in with the fracas. Since the anti-fascists were anxious to avoid such a disturbance as was provoked by the police and the fascists they withdrew.

Fascist Had Revolver.

A number of the fascists were armed and flourished weapons. One of them, Antonio Tumbarelli, was arrested because he continued to flourish a loaded revolver in a drug store. The fascist explained that he was a "self-appointed" defender of de Pinedo and that he was armed in order to protect his leader.

The anti-fascisti workmen who were interviewed charge that de Pinedo is militising his time here to encourage the fascist to arm themselves to avenge Mussolini against his political enemies in this country who criticise his murderous regime.

Four Four Flyers Dead.

Washington, April 29.—Four navy fliers are believed to have perished when the plane in which they were flying from Philadelphia to the naval station at Hampton Roads was struck by lightning off Matthews, Va. late this afternoon.

Scores of Big May Day Meets in New York

(Continued from Page One)

Brooklyn Meetings.

Amalgamated Temple, 11-17 Arion Place, May 1, 2 p. m. Speakers: Oklow, Minor, Grigetas.

Royal Palace, 18 Manhattan Ave., May 1, 2 p. m. Speakers: Bimbo, Cosgrove, Unione, Materno.

Hopkinson Manlion, 423 Hopkinson Avenue. Speakers: Litvakis, Cosgrove, Rapolis, A. Stone.

New Jersey Meetings.

Prasaic—27 Dayton Ave., May 1, 3 p. m. Speakers: O'Flaherty, Clarence Miller.

Elizabeth—Lutwin Hall, 152 Front Street, May 1, 2 p. m. Speakers: Markoff, Powers.

Perth Amboy—308 Elm St., May 1, 3 p. m. Speakers: Powers.

Newark—Montgomery Hall, Prince and Montgomery Sts., May 1, 3 p. m. Speakers: Devine, Rutzweed.

Jersey City—166 Mercer St., May 1, 2 p. m. Speakers: Ella Wolfe, Joe Freeman.

West N. Y.—Labor Lyceum, 17 St. and Tyler Ave., May 1, 2 p. m.

Paterson—Carpenter Hall, Van Houten and Main Sts., May 6, 8 p. m. Speakers: Wicks, Weisbord.

St. April 30, 8 p. m. Speaker: Weisbord.

Yonkers, N. Y.

20 Warburton Avenue, May 1, 8 p. m. Speaker: A. Markoff.

Connecticut Meetings.

Hartford—Unity Hall, 64 Pratt St., April 30, 8 p. m. Speakers: Primoff.

Stamford—Workmen Circle Center, 49 Pacific St., May 1, 8 p. m. Speaker: Siskind.

New Haven—28 Howe St., May 1, 2 p. m. and 8 p. m.

A. C. W. Workers to Fight Piece System

A mass meeting to protest against the attempt of the officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers to institute the piece work system will be held at Manhattan Lyceum at 1 p. m. today.

Convinced that the establishment of the piece work method would eventually open the way for return to sweat-shop conditions, the "Rank and File Conference Committee" which is organizing the meeting will point out the dangers of the present policy of the Amalgamated officials.

At a meeting of Local 5 held Wednesday evening the workers pledged their opposition to the secret secret agreements and urged that a meeting be called where the membership can have an opportunity to vote on the question.

RATIONAL LIVING

A RADICAL HEALTH MONTHLY

H. LISER, Editor.

MAY ISSUE: The Role of Sympathy. 6 Pp. Schmalhausen—The Crimes of Dentistry. Dr. A. Argo—Anti-Pessimism. Opportunities in Care and Prevention of Senile. Mary Dudderidge—Scare of Disease—Letter from Italy (Futurism and Fascism)—Common Cause of Disease. How to Treat Them Rationally—Food—A Student's First Steps in Medicine—Illustrations: Sex Instruction, War Neurosis, Exercise, etc.

Rational Living is a revolution in thought, personal life, hygiene and treatment of disease. It contains ideas taken from everywhere; but, not filling into any system, they form a new philosophy.

An exposition published at a loss. No paid advertisements. No doctors, lawyers, politicians, or societies to recommend. Its aim is to teach its readers to become independent from them as possible. Limited circulation.

Subscription, 12 months, $2 (Europe $3). (Confidence System: Those who cannot pay this full price may pay as much as they can.) Single copy 20 cents (Europe 25 cents). Old sample copies free to new readers.

AS A DOCTOR SEES IT, by B. Liber, an elegant book of 172 poignant stories from proletarian life as seen by a physician, and illustrated by the author. 320 pages. $1.50. Free with a subscription to Rational Living if requested.

Address: Rational Living, Box 5, Station M, New York.

UNIONS PERMEATED WITH CORRUPTION ASSERTS BECKERMAN AT COLUMBIA

The Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union is insensitive to the "right hand left" fight occurring in the rest of the needle trades, so Abraham Beckerman, manager of the New York Joint Board of the Amalgamated, told members of the Social Problems Club of Columbia University at a meeting held yesterday afternoon.

The methods I have used in ridding the union of this problem have been severely criticized," Beckerman confessed, "but I have no apologies. They have succeeded.

"If someone sticks me in the ribs with a knife, I go one better and get a gun."

Admits Corruption.

Beckerman was announced to speak on the present controversy in the needle trades, but his talk was by no means of any issues at stake or any problems involved as a picture of wholesale corruption which he says exists in all labor unions thruout the country. His frank acceptance of these evils, without promise or hope for the future, was a revelation.

"I imagine it would be almost impossible to get an honest election in any trade union," said Beckerman.

"Books may be handed out promiscuously; they may be printed promiscuously and given to anyone who wants to use them. I imagine there are many crooks in the needle trades and the rest of the labor movement. Many of the leaders are lazy. But the people thrust our country are inclined to smile at corruption."

He seemed to feel that trade union members had the same attitude.

No Faith In Membership.

Beckerman discussed at length the "right and left" fight in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and the Furriers' Union. He attributed it to the rise of the Trade Union Educational League, and stated his belief that the only difference between the rights and lefts was the question of whether an outside body should control the union. He felt the matter would be settled by the members themselves, but he did not explain how. He definitely opposed the efforts of an election. He even had no faith in an election supervised by an impartial body, like the American Civil Liberties Union.

"I myself suspect that body. Two on three people do the active work for the others. For instance there was a meeting called to discuss problems of our union and I deliberately did not interfere, just to see what would happen. But the Civil Liberties appointed a committee to visit that meeting without even asking me whether I wanted it. They have lost whatever usefulness they had."

Fired For Attending Meeting.

One of the students asked about the Kulok shop, where a worker was taken off the job for attending a left wing meeting, and the whole shop came out on strike. Beckerman remembered that the man had been fined by the Executive Board for some infringement of union rules, but he could not remember what it was. He was taken off the job for failing to pay the fine.

According to Beckerman, members of the Amalgamated can be members of the T. U. E. L. but such members cannot run for office.

"But as a member of the union is he not entitled to all privileges of the union," someone asked.

BUSINESS & PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY

FRIENDS OF ORGANIZED LABOR

Phone: Drydock 8886.

FRED SPITZ
The FLORIST
3 SECOND AVENUE
Near Houston.
FRESH CUT FLOWERS DAILY
Fresh and Artificial Flowers Delivered Anywhere.
SPECIAL REDUCTION TO LABOR ORGANIZATIONS.

ANYTHING IN PHOTOGRAPHY
STUDIO OR OUTSIDE WORK
Patronize Our Friend
SPIESS STUDIO
54 Second Ave., cor. 3rd St.
Special Rates for Labor Organizations. (Established 1887.)

"NATURAL FOODS"
Sandried Fruits, Honey, Nuts, Brown Rice, Whole Wheat Macaroni, Spaghetti, Noodles, Nut Butters, Swedish Bread, Maple Syrup, Tea and Coffee Substitutes, Innerclean, Knoipp Teas.
Books on Health.
VITALITY FOOD & VIGOR FOOD
Our Specialties.
KUBIE'S HEALTH SHOPPE
75 Greenwich Ave., New York
(7th Ave. and 11th St.)
Open Evenings. Mail Orders Filled.

For
A Home-Cooked Vegetarian Meal served in a home-like atmosphere come to
ESTHER'S DINING ROOM
36 East 109th Street.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Booth Phones, Dry Dock 6812, 7445. Office Phone, Orchard 9319.
MANHATTAN LYCEUM
Large Halls With Stage for Meetings, Entertainments, Balls, Weddings and Banquets; Cafeteria.
66-68 E. 4th St. New York, N. Y.
Small Meeting Rooms Always Available.

Tel. Lehigh 6823.
Dr. ABRAHAM MARKOFF
SURGEON DENTIST
Office Hours: 9:30-12 A. M. 2-6 P. M. Daily Except Friday and Sunday.
240 EAST 116th STREET
Cor. Second Ave. New York.

Dr. J. Mindel — Dr. L. Hendin
Surgeon Dentists
1 UNION SQUARE
Room 803 — Phone Stuyv. 10119

Tel. Orchard 5726
Dietetic by Appointment
DR. L. KESSLER
SURGEON DENTIST
48-50 DELANCEY STREET
Cor. Eldridge St. New York

Dr. Jacob Levenson
SURGEON DENTIST
54 East 109th Street
Corner Madison Ave.
PHONE: UNIVERSITY 7572.

Health Food
Vegetarian Restaurant
1600 Madison Ave.
PHONE: UNIVERSITY 8585.

Telephone Dry Dock 9057.
Meet me at the Public Art
Dairy Restaurant
and Vegetarian
75 SECOND AVE. NEW YORK
Opposite Public Theatre

FOR A FRESH, WHOLESOME VEGETARIAN MEAL
Come to
Scientific Vegetarian Restaurant
76 E. 107th Street New York.

Where do we meet to drink and eat?
at Sollins' Dining Room
Good Food! Good Company!
Any Day!!
REAL HOME COOKING
222 E. 14th St. Bet. 2 & 3 Aves.
Phone: Stuyvesant 7461.

MRS. ROGIN
Vegetarian Restaurant
240 E. 12th St. New York

Envoy Houghton Dines—With Royalty While Insurance Quizz Pends

LONDON, April 29.—United States Ambassador and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton will entertain King George and Queen Mary at dinner shortly according to the Daily Express.

In addition to his plenipotentiary activities Houghton acts in the capacity of director for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company whose business practices are threatened with an investigation due to pressure brought about by a series of articles now appearing in The DAILY WORKER.

Maj. Berry Opposes Five Day Week For Printing Trades Men

President George F. Berry of the International Pressmen's Union received the commendation of the American Newspaper Publishers Association in convention here yesterday when he declared that he is opposed to the five day week in the printing trades.

The publishers special standing committee on the five day week quoted with approval Berry's statement in his official journal, the American Pressman:

"The international Printing Pressmen and Assistants' Union of North America has very frankly declared that it does not consider the time propitious to even think about a further reduction in the work week."

The American Federation of Labor, in which Major Berry, whose title dates from quartermaster service during the war, is an important leader, has declared officially for the five day week. Berry has forced his union to buy several banks in Tennessee. He was formerly vice commander of the American Legion and tried hard to get the democratic vice presidential nomination in 1924.

Give Beckerman Air.

NEWARK, N. J., April 29. — Abraham Beckerman, manager of the New York Joint Board of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union was chased out of a meeting of Local 24 that was held in this city last Tuesday evening, when the installation of new officers of the local was to be the order of business.

* * *

Three elections have been held in the local during the last month where two cliques have been struggling for the two paid jobs that are available. Last Tuesday Beckerman had more than 200 ballots stuffed in the ballot box and "elected" his two men.

BLAST LEVEE TO TURN BIG RIVER ON POOR FARMERS

Militia, Plague, Famine Add to Flood Horrors

POYDRAS, La., April 29.—The Poydras crevasse on the east bank of the Mississippi, twelve miles below New Orleans was blasted at 2:17 p. m. today in a supreme attempt to break the back of the valley's most devastating flood in history.

Guns and Deadline.

Virtual martial law prevailed from day-break today in the territory in which the levees line was to be ripped open with dynamite. State troops patrolled the highways and fast river boats with armed guardsmen aboard maintained a dead line across the river.

Airplanes flew over the doomed region to give final warning to scattered residents who were either unaware that the river was to be turned upon them, or unwilling to leave their possessions to the yellow torrent. Three hundred people were believed by state officials to be in the sacrificed territory at day-break.

Some strugglers still made their way to New Orleans. A few others apparently, were preparing to take their chances on high spots in the vicinity of their farms and gardens.

Ruins Two Parishes.

The Poydras dynamiting already has gone into history as the $2,000,000 blast, that being conservative official estimate of the property loss involved to St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes.

New Orleans for the most part went about her business quite as usual—almost nonchalantly—as she has during the entire period of the flood, apparently convinced that the man-made volcano at Poydras would remove the last menace to their city.

Union Meetings

Amalgamated Food Workers
BAKERS' LOCAL No. 1.
350 E. 85th St. Office hours from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Meeting on announcement of Executive Board.

Advertise your union meetings here. For information write to
The DAILY WORKER
Advertising Dept.
33 First St., New York City.

Concert and Ball

will be given by the

"Novy Mir"

SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 8 P. M. Sharp

At STAR CASINO, 107th St. and Park Ave.

In the Musical Program will participate:

IVAN STASHENKO
Well-known bass of Chicago Civic Opera.

DORA BACHOER
Favorite Russian Soprano.

FREIHEIT MANDOLIN ORCHESTRA
Under direction of the well-known composer JACOB SCHAEFER.

UKRAINIAN CHORUS
Under direction of M. MATVOROMSKY.

DANCING
Will follow musical program under FELDMAN'S ORCHESTRA.
STEINWAY PIANO USED

Tickets in advance, 75 Cents — At the door $1.

On Sale at NOVY MIR OFFICE, 30 Union Square; FREIHEIT, 30 Union Square; RUBSKY GOLOS, 64 East 7th Street; SOLLINS RESTAURANT, 222 East 14th Street.

CHARLES SELIKSON

Radios and Victrolas
1225 FIRST AVENUE
Corner 66th Street.
Cash or Easy Payments—
Stromberg-Carlson Radios
Fada-Neutrodyne
Atwater Kent
Radiola Super-Heterodyne
Freed-Eisemann
Freshman Masterpiece, Etc.
No Interest Charged.
INSTALLED FREE.
Everything Guaranteed.
OPEN EVENINGS.

Mr. Pim Passes By

But on His Way That Kindly Old Man Is Going to Help The DAILY WORKER if You Give Him a Chance

May 16 to May 21

is again a DAILY WORKER WEEK at the Theatre Guild. "Mr. Pim Passes By" is a delightful comedy in three acts with an all-star cast. Buy your tickets immediately. You will get better seats and your paper really benefits.

Tickets Now on Sale at the Local Office
108 East 14th Street.
Telephone Stuyvesant 6584
("FIESTA" TICKETS WILL BE EXCHANGED.)

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
[illegible] Street, New York, N. Y. Phone, Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
By mail (in New York city): By mail (outside of New York):
$6.00 per year / $3.50 six months / $2.00 three months — $8.00 per year / $4.50 six months / $2.50 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE .....Editors
BERT MILLER .....Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

LENIN SAID:

There is not a single political worker who has not experienced defeat at some period of his career, and if we desire to speak seriously about exercising influence upon the masses, about winning the "good will" of the masses, we must exert every effort to prevent these defeats from being concealed in the vitiated atmosphere of study-circle and groups; they must be submitted to the judgment of all. At first sight it would seem that this is not a proper thing to do and that it would give "offense" to this or that leader. But this false sense of propriety must be overcome; it is our duty to the party and to the working class. By this and this alone will we make it possible for the whole mass (and not a casually selected group or study-circle) of influential party workers to know their leaders AND TO PLACE EACH ONE OF THEM IN THEIR PROPER PLACE.

("Lenin on Organization"—From a letter to the Iskra, November 25, 1903.)

Hankow and the Chinese Eastern Railway—
The Imperialist Front.

The two things that remain clear in the Chinese situation, that stand out thru all the confusion created by imperialist correspondents who do not know what is actually going on to begin with and who in the second place wish to create an intervention atmosphere, are:

1.) The attack of the imperialists is centering on Hankow, the stronghold of the labor movement, of the Kuomintang government and the important industrial district of China.

2.) The offensive against the Soviet Union is being developed by means of attempts to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway and eliminate the Soviet Union from the management committee organized jointly by them and the Chinese.

Battleships of the great powers numbering from forty-five to fifty (estimates vary) are anchored in front of Hankow "with their guns trained on the city," to quote the imperialist press. Wild rumors of disorders in Hankow, which would furnish an excuse for intervention, have been cabled to the American press ever since the treason of Chiang Kai Shek occurred. But to date nothing of the kind has happened and yesterday the news comes of a resumption of business by Japanese concerns by agreement with the labor unions and the Hankow government.

It seems that the "demoralization" of the labor unions and the left wing government, which the imperialist correspondents have been so industriously propagating, is pure fiction. Not only is the Hankow government consolidating its influence in the three great industrial cities of Wuchang, Hanyang and Hankow but it is, according to the New York Times, whose correspondent is bitterly hostile to Hankow, sending four armies southward to Canton.

This certainly is evidence of strength and not weakness. On the other hand, Chiang Kai Shek has not even been able to organize a civilian government in spite of strenuous efforts in this direction but is still operating as a dictator with but little authority over subordinate commanders.

The concentration of imperialist naval and military forces at Hankow is in itself a refutation of the tales of the weakness of the anti-imperialist and labor government there. World imperialism knows that the Hankow government, with its base in the labor unions and peasant organizations, with millions of supporters in and around great centers of population such as Shanghai and Canton, is the only powerful force opposing it in China.

This is the secret of the huge fleet 600 miles up the Yangtze and the constant bombardments conducted jointly by British and American gunboats.

These two great imperialist nations, both of them seeing in the rise of the Soviet Union and the Chinese liberation movement the beginning of the end of their careers of robbery, and aided by Japan and France when necessary, are striking at the heart of the mass movement in China. Japan again is inciting Chang Tso Lin to aggression against the Soviet Union.

To end the war on the Chinese labor unions, the peasant organizations, the militant nationalist student organizations and those sections of the middle class which are honestly fighting against imperialism, is the task of the workers in the imperialist countries. We can be certain that if the present plans of the imperialists mature and the Chinese liberation movement is crushed temporarily (it cannot be destroyed) that there will be a new and more destructive wave of world reaction.

The Chinese masses hold the first line trenches. We must give all possible aid.

Every imperialist government must be exposed by the workers whom it oppresses at home.

The demand for Hands Off China can be made so powerful that imperialism cannot carry out its program for establishing anew the enslavement of the Chinese masses.

Nicaraguan Liberals Should Reject Stimson Plan

The combination of American marines and subsidized Diaz forces having thus far failed completely to subdue in the interest of imperialist policy the liberal forces supporting the legally selected government of Sacasa, the Wall Street-Coolidge-Kellogg government has sent Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war under President Taft and one of the directors of the American Superpower Corporation, to utilize dirty diplomacy in an effort to disarm the liberal forces.

Stimson, under orders of the Coolidge administration, has proposed to the supporters of Sacasa that they disarm and permit the usurper Diaz to remain in office until December 31, 1928, with "guaranteed participation of the liberals in the conservative government," to be followed by elections "guaranteed by the United States if both sides request it."

This brazen attempt to disarm the opposition and establish Diaz as the undisputed dictator is too flimsy to escape detection by the liberals. Certainly the Diaz side will not request an election that might endanger their position, therefore no election will be held unless a reign of terror is established that will assure the disfranchising of the masses and a fake election that will cloak Diaz's dictatorship with legality.

The liberals should refuse to disarm and should continue the fight against Diaz, the Wall Street agent, as well as against Coolidge's gunmen of imperialism and the industrial magnate, Mr. Stimson, until the whole mess of them are driven from the country and the people permitted to choose their own form of government.

In their defiance of American imperialism they will have the support of all workers and farmers in the United States who are awakened to the menace of the administration's provocative policy in the South and Central American republics.

Official Labor Reaction Meets Political Defeat

(Big Capitalists and Their Agents Discipline Their Labor Leaders)

By WM. F. DUNNE

REACTION in the American labor movement has suffered a political defeat in the last thirty days.

If the left wing is able to drive home the lessons of this defeat to the workingclass and give organizational expression to the disillusionment and resentment which is bound to arise, it will be able to take the offensive again in the near future.

IT MUST be understood to begin with, in this article a distinction is made between reaction in the labor movement proper and the general wave of reaction which is sweeping the United States and which is bound up intimately with its predominant imperialist position. It is exactly the great depth of this general wave of reaction which is partially responsible for the impossible political position in which the Greens, Wolls, Lewises—the whole leading circle of the American Federation of Labor and its socialist allies—now find themselves.

IT IS hardly necessary here to give in detail the evidence (listed in many previous articles) which shows that the leadership of the American labor movement has adopted a program having as its central point the castration of the unions and the replacement of virility by organizations which are to be instruments for promoting increased production. This policy does not merely abandon the class struggle (theory) but does not even acknowledged the existence of the class struggle) but it repudiates the rank and file militancy, shown in strikes, boycotts and armed struggles which made the American labor movement as forceful as it is.

THIS policy, to be successful, must be based on a truce in the class struggle—agreement by the capitalists to abandon their aggressions against the workers' organizations, their wages and working conditions and all attempts to lower the political status of the workers and their organizations. The class struggle arises from the fact that the capitalist class never treats the working class as anything else then a subject class. (The reasons for this do not need to be explained here.)

THE official leadership of American labor has acted on the theory that in the United States there is no such thing as the class struggle —no class divided by the efficiency capitalism. In the American Federationist for June 1923 (about the time the present offensive against militant trade unionism was opened) we read that the American Federation of Labor is "squarely for the defense and maintenance of the existing order and for its development and improvement."

IN practice the above statement has expressed as "union-management cooperation"—the Baltimore and Ohio plan, the Watson-Parker bill, etc. Flowing out of this denial of the class struggle has come a flood of apologies for the discarding of the policy of struggle for obtaining demands made by the unions.

A WHOLE literature has developed whose sole purpose is to justify the embrace with American capitalism. Every two-hy-four "economist" has been prating about the "tremendous new developments in American industry," preaching against "waste in industry," lauding the "sane and constructive" policy of the Greens, Wolls and Lewises, forecasting a "new civilization," etc.

THE Workers Education Bureau, beginning as something of a revolt against the absolute lack of any educational activity in the A. F. of L. program, has rapidly become a propaganda instrument for efficiency unionism. Its principal function is to give as much theoretical justification as possible for the wrecking of the unions as weapons of the workers.

AGAINST the Communists and the organized left wing the principal arguments used by the efficiency union apologists have been 1) that they insisted on basing a policy on the class struggle when no such clash existed in democratic America and 2) that the strikes organized and led by the left wing were unnecessary when the capitalists were ready to come to an understanding, and further, that these strikes fosterfered with the sweet peace which enveloped worker and capitalist alike.

LABOR officialdom is for peace but American capitalism is for war and in the last months it has shown clearly that any disposition for a truce in the class struggle that may exist is solely in the breasts of labor officialdom.

How has this been shown?

By two important events and by a number of minor ones. Occurrence of a major character which show that American capitalism is on the offensive are:

1.—The closing of their mines by the coal barons rather than consider the wages and working conditions specified in the Jacksonville agreement.

2.—The decision of the United States supreme court handed down on April 11 in the Bedford Cut Stone case outlawing even the ordinary defensive activities of unions in so brazen a manner that Justice Brandeis in his dissenting opinion referred to it as "an instrument for imposing restraints upon labor which reminds of involuntary servitude."

These two blows at the labor movement cannot be understood in their full importance as complete and unanswerable refutations of the workers-employer cooperation doctrine unless they are seen in their relation to the recent history of the labor movement.

(To Be Continued.)

The First of May and the Working Woman

By RACHEL HOLTMAN.

Not long ago, the First of May was celebrated by just a small group in the big industrial centres. Then came the Russian revolution and the liberated workers and peasants took this day as the most cherished holiday. The class conscious workers followed them and soon there will not be a corner in the globe where this day will not be recognized as the most praised workers' holiday.

It is hard to believe that the reactionaries of the American Federation of Labor, the ones that now persecute workers, the ones that go hand in hand with the bosses—that this American Federation of Labor should have been the first over thirty years to propose at the International Congress in Paris, that the first of May be considered as the day of struggle for the eight hour day.

With that proposition' (it was accepted unanimously) the A. F. of L. put herself in the forefront as the vanguard to fight for better working conditions.

Now They Change.

Never before was it so plain as it is now that the leaders of the A. F. of L. are closely connected, are going hand in hand with the government courts, bourgeois press and the bosses. Never before were the class lines so sharply drawn as they are now. Never before were there such disruptions in the workers' movement as there is on this first of May.

The A. F. of L. has completely forgotten its ideals—the cause for which it stood. It is no longer celebrating the First of May, but instead has adopted the labor day which is so much being exhorted by the American bourgeoisie, namely, the first Monday in September.

Call It "Health Day."

Yet, the bourgeoisie is considering this great international holiday and the manner in which they are celebrating it is by taking an account of the great work they have done for society.

They are trying high and low to show how much they have done to bring up a healthy generation, healthy physically and morally.

The Child Welfare Association is organizing May 1, celebrations throughout the States, the attractions with which they hope to draw people are with May Day Parties, prizes for the best fed children, etc. Naturally —who are the best fed children? Certainly not the children of the great masses, who are compelled to go to work before they are physically developed, for a low unearthly wage that is not even enough to give them the mere necessities of existence.

Workers Look to Future.

May the 1st, when the workers gather to account for everything they have done and decide what should be done; it is also the duty of the working class woman to take stock of what she has done to enlighten the lives and better conditions of the working women, in the factory, and home. What is the situation now? For the last year into the class struggle were drawn in elements as were considered impossible to get hold of—i.e. the women.

Women Unionists.

The heroic fight in Passaic, where 80 per cent of the working women are now organized in unions shows clearly what a power women can be when organized. The excellent relief work during the strike showed clearly that the women have been able to achieve. For the last year, the women grew up and developed mentally. She is beginning to understand that the struggle of the workers is her struggle. This historic mass meeting of the 3000 women workers in Cooper Union is the best proof that the woman is on the right path and in the right place.

Give Relief.

For the last year the women have built up and developed their organization. They gave relief wherever and whenever it was necessary. They took part in picketing, in different protest meetings, bazaars and educational work.

With the best of hope and aspirations, the women may look towards the future and with enthusiasm continue the struggle.

On the day of May 1st the working women of America are sending to all the oppressed and enslaved the world over their comradely greetings.

Sisters, unite with the men workers in the fight for a better, more beautiful world.

I.L.D. Bazaar In Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—The annual bazaar of the International Labor Defense, Local Philadelphia, will be held at New Traymore Hall, Franklin St. and Columbia Ave., on Friday evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening, May 6th and 7th.

Secretary Lyman claims that this bazaar will certainly measure up to the high standard set by their previous bazaars, and invites all who wish to help in the work of defense for political prisoners to participate.

Anyone wishing to contribute money or articles to the bazaar should send same to the local headquarters at 521 York Ave.

Young Pioneer League, May Day Celebration.

The Young Pioneer League will celebrate May Day on Saturday afternoon, one o'clock at 525 East 72nd Street. The program includes a play, "The Rose Bush" and a talk by Joe Freeman, who has just returned from Russia, on May Day in Sovnet Russia. He also brings greetings from the Russian Pioneers.

MEETING FOR WOMEN MEMBERS OF WORKERS PARTY

The Second Party Women's Industrial Conference will be held Friday, May 6th at 8 p. m., at 126 ast 16th Street, New York City.

All delegates at first conference plus the following comrades must attend:

1.—Representatives from shop nuclei in shops employing women.

2.—All Party industrial organizers.

3.—Individual comrades working in shops employing women.

4.—Section and sub-section organizers for women's work.

This conference will be of especial interest. Report on activities and new tasks will be taken up.

Let's Fight On! Join The Workers Party!

In the loss of Comrade Ruthenberg the Workers (Communist) Party has lost its foremost leader and the American working class its staunchest fighter. This loss can only be overcome by many militant workers joining the Party that he built.

Fill out the application below and mail it. Become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party and carry forward the work of Comrade Ruthenberg.

I want to become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Name .....

Address .....

Occupation .....

Union Affiliation.....

Mail this application to the Workers Party, 108 East 14th Street, New York City; or if in other city to Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Distribute the Ruthenberg pamphlet, "The Workers (Communist) Party, What It Stands For and Why Workers Should Join It." This Ruthenberg pamphlet will be the basic pamphlet thruout the Ruthenberg Drive.

Every Party Nucleus must collect 50 cents from every member and will receive 20 pamphlets for every member to sell or distribute.

Nuclei in the New York District will get their pamphlets from the District Office—108 East 14th St.

Nuclei outside of the New York District write to Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 First First Street, New York City, or to the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

FOOTNOTES TO THE NEWS

By ROBERT LYONS

FROM RAGS TO RICHES: A SUCCESS STORY.
By Jake, the Demon Reporter.

From rags to riches—that in brief is the story of Herbert Klotz, the multimillionaire rags dealer, a self-made man who attributes all his success to his mother. This reporter, being softhearted, wiped a tear as Mr. Klotz unfolded the stirring story of his career.

No man (since the last one we interviewed) has had so many obstacles to contend with before rising to his present pinnacle of wealth.

"You see, young feller,' Mr. Klotz said from the side of his mouth which was not occupied by a cigar, "it was this way. When I got to this here country I was just a kid, you know. And I was interested in a lot of nonsense. I liked music, for example—Bach and Mozart and Beethoven and the rest of the heavyweights. Get me?"

"Yeh," the reporter interjected.

"But my mother, God bless her memory," he continued, signing large checks for charity, perhaps a little sadly, "my mother she says, 'Herbie,' she says, 'y'gotta get over it. There aint no future in it. Money talks in this here country, see? Now look at Uncle Gerhart,' she says, 'just look at uncle Gerhart.' "

Mr. Klotz did. This uncle was born with a fine tenor voice. In the old country he had dreamed of becoming an opera star. But in America he decided to put his voice to better use. He became an old clothes collector. No one could resist his sweet resonant cries. Women rushed to sell their husbands' Sunday suits for next to nothing when his "Any ol' clo's . . ." echoed through the streets. And so Uncle Gerhard was established as a prosperous rags dealer, with a cellar all his own, then two cellars, and so on.

"I became apprenticed to my uncle," Klotz declared, absent-mindedly tearing up the checks he had signed, "but it was no dinch. Always at the wrong moment music would come into my head, and thoughts about birds and spring and that sort of stuff. But I thought of my poor old mother and her hopes for my future. I crushed those thoughts and got down to hard tacks. And after a while I got on quite nicely, thank you."

Then came a great day when he discovered that there was another kind of rags, a kind that his uncle knew nothing about. Klotz discovered that his great failing, music, could help him. He began to specialize in musical rags!

"Ragtime music was just going into style," he said, toying idly with $20 gold pieces. "That was my chance! I began to corner the market. At last my love of music was a Business Asset. I began to buy up bits of Bach and Beethoven and Mozart and the rest of the big boys; tag-ends, snatches, 'seconds' from all the masters; tunes torn out this place and that. . . . I had them all turned to good honest rags. Orders came faster than I could fill them and now I have a factory in Rutherford, New Jersey, another in Gary, Indiana, and a third—but let me show you."

He led the excited reporter to the show-room. Radios and victrolas and mechanical pianos were going full blast. Hundreds of uniformed composers were at work.

"You see," he said, "business is just humming."

"Humming' ain't the word for this racket," the reporter agreed and rushed off to beat the deadline.

The Battle of Banker Hill.

At the Battle of Bunker Hill
our men saw red
and stabbed
at those straps criss-crossed on the chests of lazy shiftless fellows
And Lost!

At the Battle of Banker Hill
(And other Socony Hills)
our men saw clouds
of red—red—red . . .
and sent speeding, sizzling shell . . . shell . . . shell and Won!

—SPULL.

God and Gunboats.

"Some mean people are saying," Norman Studer advises this department, "that the missionaries have forsaken God for Gunboats in China, but don't you believe them. To prove it, I am sending you a quotation from a letter written by a one of God's own salesmen, now stranded in Shanghai. The letter appears in full in the college newspaper of Chowan College, Murfreesboro, N. C. Here it is:

" 'We do crave the prayers of our friends at home. It is not for ourselves that we are concerned, but for the native Christians, the native pastors, the native evangelists and the native Bible women. They are having to undergo all kinds of persecutions at this time, and there is no one to protect them. . . . For our protection there are warships from America and Britain here in the harbor, and plans are laid by which we could be put on boats at short notice. . . .'

"In an exclusive spirit-world interview for this paper I have just discovered why the missionaries are right in praying for God to protect the native Christians while they rely on Gunboats. It seems that God is so busy protecting the native Believers from an awful fate at the hands of the enemy that it would be downright ingratitude to ask Him to bother with a mere handful of missionaries."

Literary Intervention.—A distinguished group of Jewish writers has published an open letter to the needle trades workers of New York. These literary gentlemen have been watching the internal struggle for a long time. They saw the bloodshed, the starvation, the threat against the very life of the unions involved. But they did not feel that they should interfere. Then, however, something worse happened. In the fervor of the fight the combatants forgot their manners. The Yiddish tongue was being defiled by gross invectives. That was more than they could stand, wherefore the public letter demanding peace.

Now it only remains to see how Messrs. Woll, McGrady, Frayne et al will meet this appeal to their literary conscience.

Further Suggestions For An All-Star Reporting Team.—Comrade Sam Levine volunteers the following recommendations for the all-star staff of reporters being mobilized by Footnotes:

History—Henry Ford.
Communism—Abraham Cahan.
Latest News From Russia—Alexander Kerensky.
Left Wing Trade Unionism—Matthew Woll.

READ THE DAILY WORKER EVERY DAY

Stop the Wall Street-Coolidge-Kellogg War on Chinese Liberation Movement

SUPPLEMENT PART II

THE DAILY WORKER

MAY DAY EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y. under the act of March 3, 1879.

Hands Off China!—Hands Off the Soviet Union!—Smash the Right Wing Drive Against Trade Unionism!—Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Be Freed;

The 1919 May Day Terror in Cleveland

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THE Victory Loan drive was sagging in Cleveland. The people who were sold a sordid war under the pretense that it was a fight for civilization and freedom for humanity were recovering from the spree and they begged their dollars regretting that they had not bagged the sons they sent across the ocean to die or be maimed on the bloody fields of Flanders to protect the millions of the House of Mean that were invested on the side of the allies. The patriotic bankers and business men and their political flunkeys were frantic. The Victory Loan must be put over. The voices of those who continued to tell the masses the truth must be stilled. It was in this atmosphere of contemplated violence that the Socialist Party of Cleveland, under the direction of Comrade C. E. Ruthenberg organized a monster parade on that historic May Day, 1919.

THE Socialists of the city of Cleveland and sympathetic organizations gathered in their respective halls early on May Day and formed in line for the march downtown to the Public Square where they were supposed to arrive by noontime. The procession was orderly. As the parade got under way hoodlums of the American Legion, under the direction of the local business men began to attack the individual marchers who carried red flags. Crippled victims of the war in wheel hairs were used by the reactionaries to arouse the people against the socialists. These unfortunate victims of capitalism did not realise that their crippled bodies was their only gain from a war that raised a crop of American millionaires who were never within hearing of gunshot, and that the men and women they were incited to attack were their best friends whose advice if followed would have kept in the United States the millions of young men who risked life and limb in the bloody holocaust that the imperialist powers turned loose upon the human race.

A DESCRIPTION of the attack on the parade as reported in The Cleveland Press tells us that "trouble started simultaneously on each route as the paraders entered the downtown section." Everything pointed to a well-planned attack.

The Press, which is a member of the allegedly liberal United Press news syndicate, points exultingly to the patriotism shown by the office employes who showered confetti on the hoodlums, labelled "loyalists" as those "heroes" broke the heads of defenseless and peaceful workers. How this confetti appeared so suddenly is not explained by the capitalist press but furnishes more evidence in proof of the contention that the attack was planned and premeditated.

The police were supposed to protect the parade but the kind of protection that afforded was the clubbing of the heads of paraders and the killing of two of them.

CRIPPLED war victim James Stevens who was sitting in his wheel chair in front of the Olmstead Hotel deposes:

"The first thing I saw was the red flags. I wheeled my chair into the street as the heads of the column passed and I yelled. 'Get those red flags.'

"Some of the marchers laughed and jeered at me. But my comrades in uniform came running when I yelled, 'Get 'em boys'."

Oh, loyal cripple! Oh most perfect soldier of capitalism! Crippled above and below!

Another hero of the day was Sergeant Raymond Williams, "whose arm was shattered at St. Mihiel, who like Stevens, is here for the Victory Loan was one of the first to get a red flag. . ."

JOSEPH IVANY and Sam Pearlman were shot and killed by policemen. Death alone saved the murdered from being indicted on charges of shooting with intent to kill. The police were exonerated and hailed as heroes. The necessary hysteria for a successful Victory Loan campaign was being worked up. What did it matter if the lives of a few workingmen were sacrificed on the altar of patriotism and that hundreds should be smashed, jailed and separated from their families by deportation?

C. E. RUTHENBERG, then as always, was in the forefront of the fight. He led the parade to the Public Square and mounted the platform accompanied by a number of war veterans in uniform who carried red flags. Those soldiers learned what they had been fighting for and they wanted to show their hatred for the capitalists that sent them to the slaughter. No sooner had the speakers and the radical soldiers mounted the platform than hoodlums attacked them.

The Victory Loan quota for the city of Cleveland was $81,500,000. With only eight more days left the patriots had succeeded only in hijacking $31,000,000 out of the pockets of the public. The bankers did not like the idea of having to fork out the balance even tho they could dig their flats into the people's savings in the banks and claim credit for extra-patriotism.

THE arrests made by Friday numbered 134. Most of those were foreign born. "Almost every other man arraigned" the Cleveland Press reports "appeared with a bandaged head or body bound up. This was the result of blows from police mace or of clubs in the hands of loyalist crowds." Those were the days when habitual criminals accustomed to the rigorous treatment accorded them in United States jails became patriots for the moment by way of a change and got away with it until the war hysteria died down. Many of them are now back in their striped uniforms, numbered and tagged in prison cells.

NOT content with breaking up the parade the "gallant" hoodlums visited socialist party headquarters smashed the windows and destroyed pictures and books. More than 200 workers were injured in the struggle including 17 policemen. All the blows were not on one side. The workers defended themselves as best they could against the armed hoodlums.

In the middle of the second page of the Cleveland Press of May 2, and surrounded by stories and pictures of the riot was an appeal for contributions to the Victory Loan. Here is an example of the threatening language used by the chairman of the drive committee:

"It means a hair-trigger sprint from now on. A victory button is your only protection now. All instructions to wait for the canvassers to reach your homes are off." This meant that a worker without a victory button prominently displayed

(Continued on Page Three)

Sink the Electric Chair in a Flood of Protests!

From All Over the World They Come

The Smile That Makes Imperialism Frantic

Young China—Armed and Defiant

MAY DAY, 1927

Declaration of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Com.) Party of America

May Day is International Labor Day—the day when the workers of the entire world demonstrate their solidarity and their determination to fight together in a common cause against common oppressors. There never was a May Day when international solidarity was more necessary than it is today on the first of May, 1927.

A NEW WORLD WAR.

First there is the war danger.

In China, where a nation of 400,000,000 is struggling to be free; where under the leadership of the Chinese labor movement supported by the entire Chinese people, a war of liberation is being waged against the chains of foreign imperialism and native tyranny, the battleships of the big imperialist nations of the earth are massing to throttle the Chinese People's Republic. Over 175 battleships of eight nations are riding in the harbor of Shanghai and far up the inland waters of the Yangtse river.

Under the arrogant leadership of British imperialism which had the biggest strangle-hold upon the economic life of the Chinese people, the great powers are cynically preparing their military intervention to attempt to stop the rising tide of the victorious Chinese revolution. Over thirty of our battleships and all our regiments of marines that are not otherwise occupied in the disgraceful business of invading Nicaragua, are in China. British imperialism which has the biggest stakes there has been trying to make our government and our marines take the lead in butchering Chinese workers. And already our marines have to their credit the invasion of Shanghai and the disgraceful massacre of Nanking. American and British battleships opened up with artillery fire on the civilian population of Nanking under the pretext of defending Socony Hill (Standard Oil Co.) and over 7,000 Chinese men, women, and children were slaughtered. American battleships have become tankers for Socony. Now Wall Street and British imperialism have gotten our government to join with England, Japan, Italy, and France in insolent "identic" notes demanding reparations for the foul deed one American was killed while hundreds of Chinese were being slaughtered. This note means only one thing. IT MEANS WAR!

Attacks On Soviet Union.

At the same time that the big imperialist powers are planning to invade China they are also planning to attack the Soviet Union, the only land in the world where the workers rule. As a step in this direction they engineered the unheard of raid on the Soviet Embassy in Peking. With the connivance and approval of the British and American ministers in Peking where consent to raid the legation section had to be secured, and urged and paid by the bankers of England, Japan and America, their stooling, Chiang Tso Lin, made his unprovoked attack upon the Soviet Legation in hopes that Soviet Russia would declare war and thus give the other powers a pretext to invade China and attack Russia. But the only government in the world that is sincerely trying to avoid war is the government of the Workers and Peasants of the Soviet Union and in place of falling into the trap it withdrew its ambassador from the puppet government of Peking and warned the workers of the world of the new war plot.

"War To End All Wars."

Ten years ago our country entered into the bloody war which they told us was "to end all wars" and now Wall Street is planning to plunge our country into a bloodier war than the world has ever known. Such a war would be the most unrighteous war and the most disastrous—a war to crush the rising Chinese republic, a war to crush the Soviet Union. And if these two should be successful then a new series of international wars with England and Japan for the division of the spoils, a war for the partition of China and the control of the Pacific.

We must not permit this new world war for which the nations are arming and the battle fleets gathering in the Pacific. This May Day let us demonstrate in every corner of our land along with the workers of Great Britain, of Japan, of China, of the Soviet

(Continued on Page Five)

Save the Miners' Union—Hands Off Nicaragua and Mexico!—Withdraw All Troops and Battleships From China!—Support the Chinese Trade Unions!

MAY DAY—Yesterday and Today

By H. M. WICKS.

THE May Day that the working class of the world celebrates is not that mystical, far-away festival of sacrifice to gods and goddesses of ancient Greece and the still more ancient Babylon; we do not celebrate it because the name of the month is derived from Maia, the mother of Mercury to whom the Romans offered up sacrifices on the first day of the month, nor because we do homage to the processions to the grotto of Egeria. Nor yet is our May Day derived from the Maypole celebrations in medieval and Tudor England; the gayety of which aroused the ire of the puritans who abolished it during the Cromwellian interregnum.

* * *

OUR May Day is International Labor Day, born of the struggle of the working class against its historical enemy, the capitalist class; born on American soil out of the great eight-hour agitation of the eighties of the last century. For years May First had come to be dreaded by the exploiters of labor in the United States in that era when the colossal trusts of today were young giants endeavoring to enslave the working class of a continent. It is the irony of history that the pressure of the masses of American labor and the preparations that were made for the resumption of the eight-hour struggle in 1899 impelled Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, to request the International Labor Congress at Paris to arrange sympathetic demonstrations throughout Europe on May 1st, the day selected for the beginning of the American eight-hour day strike. It seems ironic today in view of the subsequent history of Gompers who not only repudiated International Labor Day for an innocuous national labor day, but who traduced with the most malevolent billingsgate those workers who even suggested sympathetic strikes in the United States, say nothing of international action.

* * *

THE American labor movement, or rather that portion of it that was organized under the banner of the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, first set aside the First of May for the beginning of a "universal strike" at its convention that began in Chicago on October 7, 1884, when the following resolution was adopted:

"Resolved, By the Federation of Organized Trades and Labor Unions of the United States and Canada, that eight hours shall constitute a legal day's labor from and after May 1, 1886, and that we recommend to labor organizations throughout this jurisdiction that they so direct their laws as to conform to this resolution by the time named."

But the struggle for the eight-hour-day required something more than a mere resolution directing its affiliated bodies to enforce it, as the new labor movement in America soon discovered as it passed through the blood baptism of the ensuing years.

At the time the resolution was adopted the Knights of Labor played a more important role as far as its influence upon the working class was concerned than did the new Federation which only had an affiliated membership of 50,000, so the convention instructed its "legislative committee" to extend an invitation to the Knights of Labor to cooperate "in the general movement to establish the eight-hour reform."

Few even of the unions affiliated with the Federation adopted the proposal to donate two per cent of their revenue to the fund for financing the struggle. Then Terence V. Powderly, leader of the Knights of Labor who bore the capacious title of Grand Master Workman, issued a secret letter in which he advised against being too active in the eight hour movement. At a convention held at Richmond a few months later he defended his traitorous course with the miserable plea that "the education which must always precede intelligent action had not been given to those most in need of it."

Powderly's agents added to his betrayal by taking advantage of the eight hour agitation to increase the membership of his own organization and was highly successful for the reason that the young Federation did not have funds with which to employ even one organizer. The new members in the Knights could not know of Powderly's secret treachery and were strongly behind the eight-hour agitation, which he capitalized only in order that he could more easily betray the movement.

The 1885 convention of the Federation reaffirmed its determination to launch the eight hour day on May First of the next year. In spite of Powderly's circular and the sabotage of his clique the units of the Knights of Labor in the most important centers were unanimously in favor of the movement.

March and April of 1886 saw the most intensive organization of labor groups that had ever occurred in the history of labor anywhere. As the decisive day approached the press serving the interests of the budding trusts began a campaign of vilification and incitement against labor that has had no equal even to this day. A Knights of Labor strike broke over the Gould railroad lines on March 1, over a question of a wage of $1.50 per day and because of discrimination against members who had participated in a strike against the road a year before. Powderly, during the course of the strike, had made the most disgraceful proposals to Jay Gould to "arbitrate" the strike as he wanted it terminated before the Federation's eight-hour struggle began, as by that time it was apparent that the demand was to meet the unanimous resistance of the employers. Gould disdainfully refused arbitration and the strike itself died out and was called off on May 3, two days after the date set for the beginning of the Eight Hour struggle —American Labor's First May Day!

* * *

WHEN May Day, 1886, arrived the long-awaited walk-out began but no one then knew the exact number involved. Subsequent statistics place the number at 190,000. More than 100,000 other workers were persuaded to refrain from striking by the promise of shorter hours—but not the eight hour day.

For four days the movement was rapidly spreading when on the evening of May 4, in Haymarket Square in Chicago, during the progress of a mass meeting someone, unquestionably a provocateur, hurled a bomb into a squad of policemen, killing a sergeant and wounding several others.

The wild provocation, the hysterical incitements in the columns of the press, the vapid ravings of the pulpit, the mobilization of all the forces in defense of "law and order," "the family," and "civilization," the riff-raff and hangers-on of capitalist society, need not here be described. Organized terror crippled the eight-hour movement and stopped the spread of the strike.

In spite of the frightfulness and ruthlessness of the enemy the labor movement made substantial gain from the struggle. What the outcome might have been under more

(Continued on Page Three)

The May Day Hand Clasp

The Symbol of Workingclass Unity

SPECIAL MAY DAY SUPPLEMENT

LIFE AND LIBERTY FOR SACCO AND VANZETTI!

May Day and the American Farmer

By ALFRED KNUDSON.

MAY Day, the international workers holiday, should serve as an inspiration to the working farmers of America to fight more energetically against the capitalists who exploit them. May Day is created for them as well as the city workers. Both the farmers and the workers have the same interests as producers of wealth and they have common exploiters, and must, therefore, solve their problems together. On May first they can well demonstrate together.

WHILE it is true that the city workers for various reasons, must take the leadership in the revolutionary struggles against the capitalists and their government, no successful revolution in America is possible without the support and cooperation of the American working farmer. The city worker must get a clearer notion about the significance of the support the workers on the land render him in the winning of these struggles. Through joint demonstrations of farmers and workers on May Day the worker will learn to appreciate the importance of the farmers and vice versa.

I WAS at Kief, the Soviet Union, on May 1st, 1925. Here the farmers and workers, over 400,000 of them demonstrated together, fully conscious of their solidarity. Children, workers, students, teachers, journalists, red army men, all workers, marched together, six abreast on both sides of the street. The parade lasted eight hours. From Minsk in the west to Vladivostock on the Pacific tens of millions of the new and free Soviet citizens are on the march on this May day.

These parades are educational and international and not nationalistic, serving immensly to steel the minds and the nerves of the farmers and workers to fight with greater vigor for their interests. They are a necessity.

TWO-THIRDS of the population of the world are farmers and peasants. These millions of land workers are being more and more tightly squeezed by the landowners and banks and the capitalist governments. Tens of millions of farmers in the advanced industrial countries in Europe and America are rapidly losing their land and groaning under a heavy burden of taxation and hundreds of millions of peasants in the colonial and semi-colonial countries of the East, Near East, Africa, Mexico and South America are in a condition of abject slavery, ground to dust under the bloody and rapacious heel of capitalist imperialism. It is beginning to dawn on these landless millions that there is no hope for them under the system of capitalist imperialism, but that they must seek their freedom through new alignments and new allies.

THE big landowners and capitalists are fighting desperately to hold the farmer as an ally in their defense of capitalism. As long as they can keep the support of the farming masses they will always be in a strategic position to ward off the growing menace of the rise of the power of the city workers. This is a great struggle for supremacy and farmers and workers everywhere must not fail to study the situation closely. Too long have the capitalists divided the farmers and the workers, playing the one group of workers against the other. They must prevent these combinations of the capitalists by seeking one another as allies in the most determined fashion. May day demonstrations must serve as a practical means of bringing the farmers and workers world closer together.

THE people of the colonies are now rising with arms in hand against the tyranny of western capitalist imperialism. In the struggle that is now going on in China the Chinese farmers are playing a leading role. Tens of millions of them are following in the footsteps of the Russian farmers by demonstrating the right to occupy and use the land. In this fight against the feudal lords and capitalist imperialism, the Chinese farmers need the support of the farmers and workers of the entire world. The Chinese farmers and workers must be supported on this May day in their demands for a free China against both the right-wing merchant elements of their own country as well as the murderous imperialist powers which are looting the Chinese masses.

Hands off the farmers and workers of China!

Down with the right wing and imperialism!

CLASS differentiations among the farmers must be accentuated. Not all the farmers who are on the land have the same interests. There are rich farmers and poor farmers. There are farm owners, tenant farmers and mortgaged farmers and farm workers. These do not belong in the same class. Their class interests are not the same.

THE task before us in the United States at the present time is to develop a left wing political movement among the farmers which can be done by organising the exploited classes, i. e., the heavily mortgaged farmers, the tenants and the farm workers, the vast majority of the farmers of the country, through the adoption and formulation of demands and slogans calling for "land for the users," "a farm credit system operated by working farmers," "nationalization of the railroads and the farm marketing system," "an alliance with the city workers," "a farmers' and workers' government," etc.

With the fiasco of the McNary-Haugen bill and the obvious incapacity of congress to aid the working farmer, the opportunity for carrying such a movement successfully forward is better than ever.

WE must develop left wing fighters among the working farmers of America. This is the crying need of the hour. All talk about having the farmers form alliances with the bankers and businessmen, as Lowden and Dawes and the so-called progressives advocate must be set upon and energetic efforts made to drive the farmers away from the old parties and get them to join the farmer-labor movement, forming political and economic alliances with the city workers.

THE working farmers must do the job of getting farm relief in alliance with the city workers. This is true not only in America but in all countries. Joint May day demonstrations of farmers and workers in America, China, Mexico, Nicaragua and all other nations will make it them better fighters and get them to realize that they must stand together in the fight against the capitalists who exploit them both.

THEY SHALL NOT PASS!

Working Women and May Day

By MARGARET COWL.

MAY Day! The Workers International Holiday!

May Day, the day on which the workers more than ever, bare the sham of "democracy for all." The day on which the workers demonstrate that they are the producers of the world's wealth. The resolute tramping feet of the great army of workers is a defiance to the rule of the employing class. It is a day when the class note vibrates thru the universe.

WHAT message does this May Day bring to the working women?

To the awakened working women in the Soviet Union May Day symbolizes the fact that they are an integral part of the world revolutionary movement for the emancipation of the oppressed in every country. The women in the Soviet Union, together with the whole working class, have loosened their bonds. The old traditions binding women have been shattered and they stand on an equal social and economic level with the entire working class of the Soviet Union that is shaping the country in the interests of the workers. Women in Russia engaged actively in the fight for a Workers' government, and now they share in the victories.

TO the awakening women in China this May Day brings hope and inspiration to fight more actively against the yoke of imperialism which bears down more and more heavily on the backs of the doubly enslaved women.

On this May Day what do working women in the United States look forward to?

The capitalist press and capitalist agencies are carrying on a campaign of propaganda to the effect that workers in this country are growing rich, that the hours of labor are short. Foreign commissions are coming to this country to find out the reasons for this "prosperity" of the American workers.

NOT only the church, school, press and the movies—a powerful influence in the hands of the employing class to lash the minds of the workers—but also the labor bureaucracy helps to disseminate this propaganda.

WHAT is the real situation of the army of women in American industries?

Taking 100 as the index number for the cost of living and 100 for women's wages in 1914, we find that for the last quarter of 1925 the cost of living is 171 and women's wages are 123. The average working week for women is 54 hours and more.

The year 1926 did not bring improved conditions.

The unskilled, the socially and economically weakest—the women—will be hardest hit in the coming stage of capitalist economics.

THE labor bureaucracy, allied with the capitalists will blur class issues. They will as in the past, plead charity from the capitalists and attempt to keep the workers from fighting for their demands.

Even now the official American labor leaders are preparing to sell out the workers to the bosses. They are throwing out from the trade unions the militant workers who expose their class-collaboration policies.

TO the millions of unorganized women, women bending under the weight of the speed-up system, to the millions of housewives, living a life of privation, slaving long hours at domestic work, this May Day is but another day of monotonous toil. Only the warm hand of comradeship can lift these millions of women out of their dejection. This task belongs to the awakened women.

Woman Comrades! Are you ready to accept this task!

The eyes of women from other countries are upon us!

THE women in China expect our active support. What are we doing to arouse the American working women to fight against the sending of marines and battle ships into China? To fight the efforts of American imperialists who are attempting to crush the struggle of the Chinese workers for liberation?

The women of the Soviet Union are holding up to us the shining example of their liberation.

WOMEN Comrades! On this May Day let us pledge ourselves to the task of working more actively among the proletarian women.

We must go to the women with whom we work and get them to join the Workers (Communist) Party. We must convince them that The DAILY WORKER is their friend.

We must mobilize the masses of women for the defense of those workers who were railroaded to prison because they held the fort during the most trying days in the workers struggle for a better existence. We must bring the working women into the unions.

We must be the pioneers in the every-day struggles of the working women. Struggles, that in substance, are in the words of Comrade Clara Zetkin, streamlets, riverlets swelling into rivers that will eventually surge into the great ocean of proletarian revolution and ultimately free women together with the entire working class from capitalist exploitation and men and women will rise to their full stature and live a life free and glorious.

The Struggle Against Imperialism and Feudalism in China

CH'AO-TING CHI.
Member of Chinese Delegation to the Brussel's Congress against imperialism.

TODAY is May First again! Looking back eight years ago I remember a group of enthusiastic Middle School students, most of them around fifteen years of age, busily engaged themselves in celebrating the May Day. The school was one of the most exclusive and imperialist dominated (I prefer the term "imperialist dominated" than "foreign dominated") institutions in Peking, chiefly infested with sons of the best selected "bourgeois families" thruout China. It was not likely that such an institution would encourage the students to soil their hands by mixing themselves with such a hersle movement like May Day. But somehow or other, something told these innocent youngsters that the world of labor was rising and their efforts conid not be spent in a nobler fashion than to work amidst, and for the interest of, their working brothers and sisters. With the scanty material which they gathered from a few radical magazines, they mimiographed a special May Day bulletin and distributed them to the people and distributed them to the people hundreds of school servants.

* * *

I CAN still recall vividly the happy scenes over which we rejoiced when we noticed that the school servants actually took some interest in the paper and that one first revolutionary labor was not entirely without effect.

IT was through little efforts like this here and there throughout China that the Chinese labor movement was built. Those students who neglected their studies more or less, devoted their time to this kind of work like martyrs, under the sneering and contemptuous criticism and prosecution of their conservative teachers and "sober" fellow students. Little did they realize that within a decade's time they could witness the almost unbelievable transformation of their humble efforts into a gigantic Labor movement. Of course their enemies had very graciously prepared the ground for them. Foreign imperialism and militarism had impoverished the workers to such an extent that a bare living was hardly possible. The Chinese labor movement was built upon such a background, a background full of revolutionary possibilities. It is accomplishing its historic mission by becoming the backbone of the Chinese Revolutionary movement. Those who sneered at the work when it was at its pioneer stage now acclaim the success of the revolution, evidently forgetting their "sober," "sane," and "common sense" predictions of the hopelessness of the movement. There are still "cool-headed" skeptics now who donbted the possibilities of a world revolution!

* * *

MAY Day and China! Yes. This is a most interesting moment to reflect upon the Chinese revolution. If newspaper reports are true, the "power-intoxicated" generalissmo of the Cantonese army, Chiang Kai-shek, has at last turned against the revolution. Success is dangerous, particularly when one's enemy was bent upon exploiting the success. Nobody doubted that Chiang Kai-shek was successful up to his recent coup d'etat at Shanghai, but if any one, particularly Chiang Kai-Shek himself, should accredit the success mostly to the ability of one man, he is at his wit's end. The revolution is fundamentally a mass movement, led by the working class and organized peasants. The clear class consciousness and deep-rooted revolutionary spirit of the Chinese masses are more than the world realises. It takes supernatural effort, if there is such a thing, to turn the wheel of the revolution backward. Chiang Kai shek was but a tool, an employee of the mass to direct their military forces. Like an engineer he was but a technician of the enterprise, and engineers are seldom the masters of the work.

IT was by the realisation of this fact, by following the will of the mass and by guarding the interest primarily of the workers and the peasants that Chiang Kai-shek accomplished what he has done up to the time of his backward move at Shanghai. He owed his success to his early adherences to the "left-wing" principles of Kuomintang which represents the logical and true interpretation of San-yat-senism. Now [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

ALTHOUGH students did play a very important role in the early stage of Chinese labor movement and are still of considerable importance, it must not be that only students are leading the movement. Out of the struggle many capable leaders from the rank and file of the laboring class are developed. For instance, Comrade Chan Kuan, whom I met at Brussels, is a typical example of the courageous, intelligent, and tactful leaders of the rising ruling class of China. He represented one and a half million organized workers of China at the Brussels Congress. He is one of the leaders of the Chinese Seamens' Union which is the cheering force and directing spirit of the movement. He also represented the General Labor Unions and the Canton-Hongkong strike Committee. He was a very active leader in the famous Hongkong strike and I was told that he was badly hated by the British imperialists. From the boundless confidence and pride with which he talked of the Hongkong strike, you can build up a fairly accurate mental picture that pushed him upward and forward, he is bound to fall downward and backward, deep into the fathomless bottom of failure sharing the same fate with his bourgeois supporters and imperialist manipulators.

* * *

THE CHINESE MASSES ON GUARD

THE HEART OF IMPERIALISM

of the virtues, ability, and potential power of the Chinese working class! Without exaggeration one can correctly say that the foundation of the Chinese working class movement is well laid. It is strong enough to stand successfully against the bad weather conditions of treachery and temporary drawback. Before very long the world will witness a strong and unified socialist Chinese republic dominated by the workers and peasants and pledging itself to fight for, and safeguarding, the interests of the workers and peasants of the whole world.

WORKERS! PROTEST AGAINST DEATH OF SACCO and VANZETTI!

Support the Chinese Workers and Peasants Against Wall Street!

May Day—Yesterday and Today

By H. M. WICKS.

(Continued from Page One)

courageous leadership can never be estimated.

Powderly at the head of the Knights of Labor had played the role of an agent of the employers from the beginning and at the first blast from the infuriated capitalist press and pulpit Gompers ran up the white flag of disgrace and, instead of trying to rally labor's forces to defend the victims of America's first May Day, he cowardly disowned them in the following words:

"The effect of that bomb was that it not only killed the policemen, but it killed our eight-hour movement for that year and for a few years after, notwithstanding we had absolutely no connection with those people."

These were not the words of a fighting labor leader, but of a miserable poltroon. The loathsome Powderly lamented that "the bomb has set the labor movement back fifty years!"

• • •

AT the American Federation of Labor Convention held at Baltimore in 1887 (the name had been changed the year previous) no mention was made of the eight-hour day in official proceedings, but the widespread unemployment due to intense industrial depression forced a resolution on shorter hours that concluded with the observation that "so long as there is one man who seeks employment and cannot obtain it the hours of labor are too long."

But in 1888 at the St. Louis convention the eight-hour question again came up and the First of May, 1890 was set as the date for another attempt to enforce it. It was at this convention that the resolution was ordered sent to the International Conference at Paris in 1889.

The European workers responded to the call of the International and on May 1 demonstrations were held in most of the cities of Europe as an expression of solidarity with the struggle to be initiated by the American labor movement.

• • •

BUT again the miserable ineffectiveness of Gompersism, only then in the early stages of its malignancy, asserted itself. The carpenters only went on strike. Plans had been made for the miners to follow them and then gradually to spread the movement to all industries. The carpenters succeeded in shortening their hours, but the miners were so poorly organized that they could not take up the fight.

Agitation to induce the miners to launch an eight-hour drive on the next May Day, 1891, met with a response, but still the miners could not respond. Next it was proposed that the executive council select another trade to make the attempt on May 1, 1892. Then at the Denver convention in 1894 a last attempt at a "universal (general) strike" was to be made on May 1, 1895. But at the New York convention the next year this was abandoned because, according to Gompers, it was "decided that the magnitude of the interests involved made unwise a demand for the eight hour day May 1, 1896, but affiliated unions should individually begin efforts to secure the shorter work day for the members."

Thus, ten years after America's first May Day, the official machine of the A. F. of L. surrendered for the last time all efforts toward concerted action by all labor.

Under pressure of the membership feeble attempt at revival of the agitation was made the next year, and May 1, 1896, was selected as a date on which a demand would be made for the enforcement of the eight-hour day, but the Spanish-American war furnished the excuse to abandon that half-hearted attempt.

The next action favoring inauguration of the eight-hour day was the endorsement by the Federation of the Typographical Union fight that began on January 1, 1906.

Meanwhile the Federation had officially endorsed its own Labor Day, a purely nationalist Labor Day, to be celebrated the first Monday in September.

• • •

BUT the European workers have not abjured May First and to this day its approach strikes terror into the hearts of the capitalist class throughout every part of the world.

In spite of the fact that official labor in the United States does not recognize the day that was first set aside for its own youthful challenge to the master class, there are thousands upon thousands of workers who celebrate it and who meet and take invoice of the struggles of the past in order better to prepare for the conflicts that are coming.

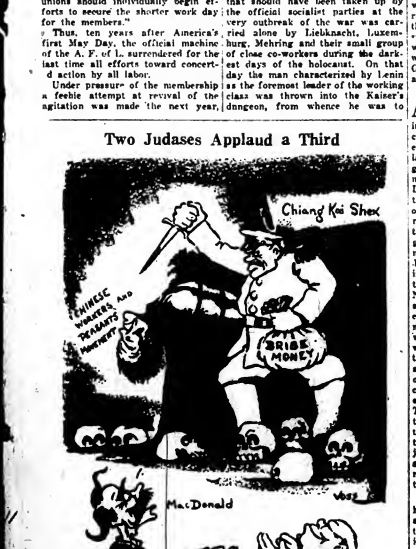
The class-conscious workers here celebrate with their comrades in other countries and the master class even here fears its approach. No one ever heard of frantic preparations being made by the coercive forces of the government because of anticipated outbreaks on the first Monday in September. But on every First of May in this stronghold of capitalism the defenders of property and order are always on the alert.

Who in the vanguard of the labor movement today in the United States can ever forget May Day, 1919, when the streets of a dozen cities in the country ran red with the blood of the working class as massed demonstrators faced the clubs, the guns and the armoured tanks of the gunmen of capitalism. The workers of Cleveland remember the bloody scenes on the Public Square when the late leader of the Workers (Communist) Party, C. E. Ruthenberg, rallied tens of thousands to celebrate International Labor Day by showing their solidarity with the victorious workers and peasants of Russia and the struggling workers of Continental Europe who were endeavoring to throw off the yoke of despotism that had made a shambles of that part of the world. In New York, Boston, Detroit, the Pacific coast cities and in many other places the terror raged against militant labor on that day.

• • •

TO depict the history of May Day in Europe is to review the history of the European working class for more than a century and a century. We can here only relate a few incidents that must suffice for this brief article.

One European May Day that will be remembered as long as there are inhabitants upon the earth to read the glorious pages of labors' struggles is May Day, 1916, when Karl Liebknecht stood in Potsdam Square in Berlin, in the uniform of a German reserve, and hurled defiance at the imperialist war-mongers of his own and every other country engaged in the world slaughter. The fight that should have been taken up by the official socialist parties at the very outbreak of the war was carried alone by Liebknecht, Luxemburg, Mehring and their small group of close co-workers during the darkest days of the holocaust. On that day the man characterized by Lenin as the foremost leader of the working class was thrown into the Kaiser's dungeon, from whence he was to emerge after the armistace only to be foully murdered by the contemptible scoundrels of ineffable apostacy, Scheidemann, Ebert and Noske, heroes of the Social Democracy and the Second International who went over to the camp of the imperialists at the first blast of the trumpets of war.



• • •

THE events of a year ago today, in England, are now and for years to come, must be the subject of careful study by the working class. In the heat of the class struggle a new era was forged. The lock-out of the British miners to enforce wage-cuts and sectional agreements that occurred on May Day brought into action in the most dramatic manner within the space of more than four million workers who stood face to face with the organized power of the state—and face to face with the great betrayal of May 12, on the part of the Thomasses, Clynes, Macdonalds on the extreme right and exposed the miserable role of the "official left," (Purcell & Co.). The ensuing thirty weeks exposed to all the workers the true character of the right wing when they lined up with the Baldwin government in the contemptible attempt to starve into submission the wives and children of the miners who, through the capitulation of the General Council, were left to fight alone.

• • •

AS May Day dawns this year in the United States we face a ruling class entrenched in the mightiest citadel of imperialism the world has ever seen. The official leaders of labor, at the head of the same organization that took the initiative in making May First the International Labor Day, are inextricably bound to carry out the anti-labor policies of the master class. Some 150,000 miners are on strike in various sections of the country, valiantly struggling against the steady encroachment of the non-union mines while John L. Lewis and his vicious machine refuse to extend and make effective the strike. In the needle trades in New York the socialist right wingers supported by the Green-Woll bureaucracy have shown that there is no depth of depravity to which they will not sink in forming alliances with the employers, the police and the courts in order to maintain themselves at the head of the unions they once dominated, so that they may continue to lay leaches upon the energies of the workers in that industry. They are proving by their actions that they have so little regard for the welfare of the labor movement that they will endeavor to wreck it, just as pirates scuttle a ship they are compelled to abandon before permitting it to fall into the hands of those to whom it rightfully belongs.

The printing trades unions are in hands of agents of the employers and in the oldest union of them all, the International Typographical Union, two sets of politicians—both equally reactionary, striving to foist themselves upon the membership in order that they may be able to hold their jobs as agents of the employ-

Two Judases Applaud a Third

The Mighty Weapon of the Masses

The 1919 May Day Terror in Cleveland

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

(Continued from Page One)

would be received by his boss with a fishy eye.

And: "Nail everyone in your territory. Pin him down to a subscription. Reach him at home, where he works or on the street. Sell him a bond."

• • •

THE wages of sin is death according to those who make a living at the sin business. The wages of patriotism is either death and poverty or affluence: It all depends on whether the patriot is being run or running. The bonds that were purchased in 1919 are now safely deposited in the banks who have performed the difficult financial feat of having the loaf they had eaten. The patriotic purchasers retain only a memory.

The concerted attacks on the workers on May Day 1919 ushered in a reign of oppression of the left wing socialist movement in the United States (afterwards transformed into the Communist movement) and has continued ever since with more or less intensity. The efforts of the capitalists to crush this movement and put it out of existence has failed however. Despite the general spirit prevailing among the workers and the treachery of the trade union bureaucrats and their socialist allies the revolutionary movement is virile and hopeful. While in 1919 the Soviet Union was being attacked on all sides and reeling under the blows of world capitalism, today it is impregnable, conscious of the loyalty of its millions of workers and peasants, the strength of its proletarian armed forces and the love of the class-conscious workers of the world.

The existence of the Soviet Union is a perpetual challenge to the enemies of the workingclass and when they strike at the Communist movement in the various countries they have a vision of what is in store for the robber classes when the workers of all lands develop their strength to the point where they will be able to dot the globe with Soviet Republics.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day

Unity of Marine Transport Workers a May Day Slogan

By FRED HARRIS

TO link the First of May, the international labor day of the world's proletariat, with the marine industry, is perhaps somewhat more difficult than with any other trade. This is a fact in the United States.

The two outstanding unions representing marine transportation are the International Seamans Union and the International Longshoremens Association of America, both of whom are headed by an officialdom conservative at first but later becoming reactionary. Due to the peculiar character of continuous mobility of their trade, the progressive members in the union had verr little influence on the conservative policy of their leaders, since these men would never be long enough in port to bring pressure on the officialdom. Thus the only outstanding historical event in the seamen's struggle against the shipowners which may be linked to the International Labor Day is the general seamen's strike of 1921, which was, by co-incident, called on May 1.

AND yet, by reason of the very fact, that the average seaman and longshoreman is a true internationalist, the First of May should be more applicable to him as a workers' holiday that among others. The reason that such is not the case may be traced therefore directly to the union leadership. It is an outstanding fact that between the leaders of these two major organizations of marine industry there has existed ever since the formation of these unions a continuous state of friction and hostility about jurisdiction of working rights, each claiming that the other was infringing upon his territory. Furuseth, president of the seamen's union would accuse the longshoremen that they were doing work belonging to the seamen, while T. V. O'Connor, former President of the I. L. A. would hurl back the charge that the seamen were scabbing against the longshoremen.

UNDER such condition of antagonism it was of course impossible to achieve any kind of industrial solidarity. When in 1919 the longshoremen's strike was lost, resulting in a partial breakdown of the union, Furuseth was a happy man.

That no class solidarity could grow under such destructive leadership is obvious.

• • •

AND yet, no trade is more in need of it than the seamen. Wages, working and living conditions are on par with those of twenty years ago. The difference being that at that time a strong organization was being builded, whereas at the present time only a shadow, a weak, vacillating remnant of a fighting union remains. There is hope, however for a change; the spirit of revolt is growing, and the near future may show us a new, reorganized, industrial union of marine transport workers.

• • •

SO much for the local situation. In other countries we find that the shipowners have been busy with their own open shop plans and are continuously encroaching upon the organization rights of the sailor. Vividly does this writer remember a labor day parade on May 1, 1914, in Melbourne, Australia, in which I, this good fortune to participate. Labor was out in full force with huge, picturesque floats and flying colors. No one was working, whose service was dispensable, failed to march in line. Policemen and other "law and order" elements were conspicuous by their absence. It was labor's own day, and labor took full advantage of it. However the workers of the antipodes were careless with their possession and didn't guard their treasury like they should have done, and so, during the war, this enthusiasm fell victim to the patriotism for their country. It was a bad fall, and Australia's workers are now paying a price which will teach them to organize in the future on the basis of the class-struggle, and instead of dabbling with a lot of sentimental rot, to build a class conscious proletariat which will know how to keep clear of capitalistic pitfalls.

• • •

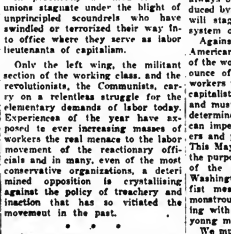
ENGLAND, the classic land of trade unions, is now going through the necessary ordeal of burying its dead. Havelock Wilson, president of the National Seamens Union of Great Britain, must go. He has committed the most unpardonable crimes, has become the intimate friend and protege of Sir Walter Runcilman, large shipowner and the greatest enemy of the British seamens union; he refused to obey the command of the general council of the trade union council to participate with his union in the general strike last year, and like his prototype, Thomas, even refused to attend the Trade Union Congress at Bournemouth, to defend his treachery before that body. The British seamen must not tolerate his leadership any longer. There is already an opposition union, led by Shinwell, former minister of mines in the MacDonald cabinet, which, the weak and vacillating, has nevertheless already challenged Wilson and his traitorous leadership.

IN the meantime, half of the marine workers in Britain are still unorganized. It will be the task of the International Transport Workers Union, sponsored by the Minority Movement, to organize the men into a powerful industrial union. This new union is already calling upon all workers to refuse work on any boat carrying troops, ammunition and other war material.

• • •

IN Germany and France the organization work, under the leadership of the Amsterdam International, is lacking. Seamen in these countries work under intolerable conditions. The wages of the German seamen were raised during January, yet with this new raise the wages amount to only 100 marks (82$) a month. A longshoremen's strike which was called in Hamburg in September, 1926, had to be called off after two weeks, because of utter futility. The conditions in France are just as bad.

• • •



THE brightest spot is Soviet Russia. Here there has been real progress. The wages are nominally high and places a seaman within the same standard as men working on shore. Ship committees elected to look after the affairs on the ship, such as to observe that the working rules are enforced, to look after provision regulations, cleanliness of the living quarters, and to arrange for an educational program of reading and speaking. Union meetings are held right on board of the ship during working hours. Each port when the sailor is in the home port, he gets one month's vacation with pay, during which time he is treated on shore like a guest.

• • •

IT is also of great significance to observe the building of a strong seamen's union in China, which country is now undergoing such tremendous historical change. It is noteworthy, that during the Chinese seamen's strike in 1925, the marine traffic was completely tied up, so much so that some of the superior white races came to the rescue and scabbed on the Chinese seamen, thus setting our historical precedent as to the white man's ethical concept in his treatment of colored races.

Marino workers in capitalistic countries have therefore all reasons to look forward to a time when they also will be organized industrially and when, by the virtue of their economic strength, they will enjoy the working conditions of a free race, and when their status as working men will cause the respect of all those who now sneer at him. The First of May is a symbol of workers' solidarity, when the labor forces rally together and make their demands known.

Labor must celebrate the day of the proletariat, the first token of World Trade Union Unity.

union into state and federal courts, so that capitalist judges, and not the membership, control its destinies.

In practically all industries the unions stagnate under the blight of unprincipled scoundrels who have swindled or terrorized their way into office where they serve as labor lieutenants of capitalism.

Only the left wing, the militant section of the working class, and the revolutionists, the Communists, carry on a relentless struggle for the elementary demands of labor today. Experiences of the year have exposed to ever increasing masses of workers the real menace to the labor movement of the reactionary officials and in many, even of the most conservative organizations, a determined opposition is crystallising against the policy of treachery and inaction that has so vitiated the movement in the past.

• • •

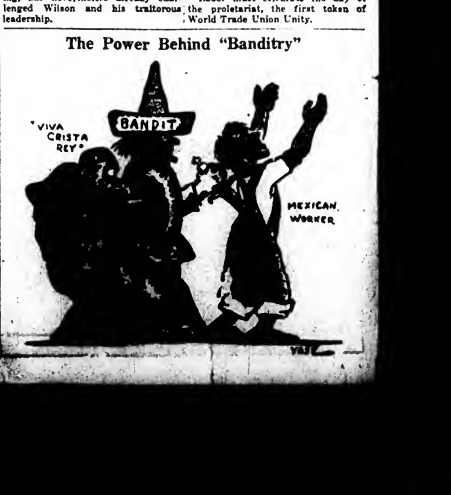
THE immediate major task of the 1 May Day is one in which the Communists must take the lead—the struggle against the mad policy of American imperialism in China, in Nicaragua and in Mexico; the utter disregard for the lives of the millions of workers; the cynicism with which official Washington indulges in platitudes of peace while indulging in frantic preparations for war.

In Nicaragua American marines and native mercenaries, armed with instruments of destruction supplied by the United States, are crushing the only constituted government, while the state department issues hysterical diatribes against Bolshevist influence, in a puerile attempt to justify its own infamy. In Mexico agents of the United States are caught resorting to the old American game of bluff and buncombe by first permitting the Calles government to obtain possession of war department plans for military action in that country and then, when Calles, instead of becoming terrorized into submission, exposes the military preparations, the doddering old imbecile in the state department tries to conceal his blundering by circulating the ridiculous yarn that state documents have been stolen and tampered with in order to arouse antagonism against the sadly wronged, benevolent and innocent United States government.

But most infamous of all the imperialist ventures in the miserly federal note of protestation on the part of this country against China and the Soviet Union. American warships on the Yangste river engage in shelling Chinese towns and murdering in cold blood uncounted Chinese men, women and children, under the shabby pretext that they are "defending" American residents who are there, in spite of the fact that these meddlesome Americans have no business there in the first place and in the second place they have had ample opportunity to get into safety zones and if they have not done so it is their own fault.

The forces of this country are in China only because of the fact that American capital is invested there and because that country is capable of absorbing a fabulous amount of investment capital that must be disposed of, for the simple reason that if new places of investment are not always open the surplus wealth produced by the workers will lie fallow, will stagnate and wreck the whole system of capitalist economy.

Against the sanguinary designs of American imperialism the vanguard of the working class must exert every ounce of its energy to awaken the workers to a realization of what the capitalist class has in store for them, and must endeavor to mobilize in a determined struggle against American imperialism the masses of workers and poor farmers of this nation. This May Day should be utilized for the purpose of ripping from the faces of the lackeys of imperialism at Washington their hypocritical pacifist masks and exposing them as monstrous criminals who are gambling with the lives of the youth and young manhood of the nation.



We must demand that this government withdraw its gunmen of imperialism from Nicaragua; that Kellogg get out of office and quit his preposterous buffonery about "forged documents" that his own agents are responsible for and which were exposed when Calles refused to be browbeaten by being threatened with the grandoise military preparations of the United States government against Mexico in the interests of the oil, mineral and land owners; that the government get its gunboats and soldiers out of China and keep them out.

We must in no uncertain terms insist that the Back Bay codfish aristocracy of Massachusetts and its puppet judge, Thayer, who have conspired to send Sacco and Vanzetti to the electric chair, be prevented from murdering these two champions of the exploited textile slaves of that state.

Here in New York a mighty protest must ring forth against the unholy alliance of the A. F. of L. autocracy, the employers and the police, the prosecutors and the courts who have paved the way to send to the penitentiary the nine members of the Furriers' Union convicted on perjured testimony of stool pigeons for the crime of leading a militant and successful strike against the bosses of that industry.

On every front, with every weapon at hand, the workers of the United States must struggle during the next year to clear the ground so that we can go forward to complete victory

The Power Behind "Banditry"

SUPPORT THE MINERS' STRIKE; SAVE THE MINERS' UNION!

Wall Street Takes Nicaragua

By ROBERT W. DUNN

One of the "dependencies" included in the colonial empire of the United States is Nicaragua. It is slightly larger than Cuba but with only a fifth of Cuba's population.

Nicaragua is chiefly important in the American empire because through it lies the route for a second canal connecting the Atlantic and the Pacific. The United States Empire needs such a canal. This explains "our" protectorate over Nicaragua and "our" military interventions in Nicaragua in 1899, 1907, 1910, 1912, 1926 and again in 1926-1927. It explains why a High Commission of three persons, one representing the State Department of the United States and one representing the American bondholders, the third a Nicaraguan, acts as a collection agency for American interests in that country. An American, appointed by the President of the United States, collects all the customs in Nicaragua.

Then Americans have investments in lumber, fruit and mining enterprises in that country. They exploit "cheap," "native" labor. The landing of marines is necessary, if for no other reasons, Calvin Coolidge contends, then to protect those interests. He puts it this way: "If the revolution continues" against Mr. Coolidge's and the bankers' pet president, Diaz "American investments and business interests will be very seriously affected, if not destroyed. . . . The proprietary rights of the United States in the Nicaragua Canal. . . . place us in a position of peculiar responsibility." Very peculiar.

So "we" are in Nicaragua with six thousand marines because we need a canal and American bankers and business men need more profits and Nicaragua is a good base from which to direct an attack on Mexico. The bankers are modest. They might even be satisfied with a 6 per cent. loan—that is with the proper security. The marines are that security.

This is, of course, not the first time the United States has played the marine game in Nicaragua. In 1912 the bankers' friend, Don Adolfo Diaz, a reactionary, became president. When a revolution broke out against him American marines were landed under the command of Major Smedley D. Butler, late of China and formerly of Philadelphia. Eight American warships and about 3,000 men did the trick. Diaz was restored, a number of marines were left on guard to see that he was kept in office. All revolutions were then kept down, just as previously they had been fomented by the Americans when it served the interests of Brown Brothers & Co., to start one under the proper reactionary auspices.

The marines placed in Nicaragua in 1912 stayed until 1925, having crushed several attempts at revolution by the Liberals of the country. A few months after they were withdrawn, in 1925, a general pulled off a coup d'etat, later resigning to permit brother Diaz to be "elected" by a hand-picked congress from which all Liberals were excluded—as most of them were then in jail. Immediately upon his election the Wall Street government of Washington recognized Mr. Diaz. But the Liberals started a counter-movement threatening Diaz with force in an attempt to put in the already constitutionally elected President Sacasa, who had been forced to flee the country. Whereupon Washington rushed in the marines and proceeded to declare as "neutral" zones the important parts of the country held by the Liberals. "We" are still extending these "neutral" zones.

The situation is to be summarized in the words of Senator Lynn J. Frazier of North Dakota: "The present dictator of Nicaragua, Diaz, whose illegal usurpation of power provoked the existing trouble, is and always has been a mere pawn of the American banking interests, as was his associate and predecessor, Chamorro; and it is a curious coincidence to say the least, that for a long period of years the Department of State always has seen fit to invoke the might of the American marines to put down the Liberals . . . and never yet has it put down one of these dictators who have betrayed their country to the American banking interests."

There is nothing curious about this, however, when one remembers our "peculiar responsibility" and that Nicaragua is for sale over the Diaz counter to the American bankers. They might have to pay more for it if they bought it from some other party. A Diaz agent in search of a loan of $20,000,000 has agreed, "in return for the advantages accruing to Nicaragua from such a loan we are prepared to accept any measures of control by an American financial advisor and receiver general which the American Government might consider proper."

So as American capital and its government work around toward the granting of the loan, the marines remain on the job, naval vessels patrol the harbors, the "neutral" zones are being extended, the Diaz national guard is being trained by American military men, the customs continue to be collected by a man from Wall Street, the national bank is run by American directors and managers, Americans direct the national railroad, and Mr. Diaz, the American installed president, is sitting pratty.

If you would know the full story of American intervention you must not lose sight of Brown Brothers & Co., J. & W. Seligman & Co., Baker Kellogg & Co., the G. White Engineering Co., The United Fruit Co., and Robert F. Loree, President of the Bank of Central and South America. These are some of the important firms and figures who have helped to determine events in that country. The Atlantic Fruit Co. and the Cuyamel Fruit Co., have also important interests as have a number of other commercial firms. Over 70 per cent of the foreign trade of the country is with the United States.

But chiefly one must remember the canal and the aims of the American Empire in the Caribbean. The United States is in Nicaragua to stay. The rights to this second canal must be protected. The usurper Diaz happens to serve best the imperialist interests of the United States and their designs on Mexico.

There is no danger of "war" with Nicaragua. It is our country now. Its military forces could scarcely cope with the police force of New York City. It is completely a part of the American Empire as Cuba, Haiti and the Dominican Republic.

RED GUARDS HOLDING THE PASS

(By GEORGE JARRBOE.)

Stand! It is the evil hour.
The road is blocked ahead, behind.
The toxic clouds above us sour,
And Death pours through the shrieking wind.
Home is far but trenchant steel
Holding in an unfaltering hand,
We amile. Despite the wounds we feel
We shall stand.

Steel we hold is unfaltering will
Working through the pliant hand,
Each soul a high, impregnable hill,
We shall stand. We shall stand.

MAKE WAY FOR THE UNION!

THE CLOSED DOOR OF THE OPEN SHOP

Make the Miners One Hundred Per Cent Strike!

ALL SUPPORT TO THE STRIKING MINERS!

FELLOW Workers and Brother Unionists:

The miners strike is already one month old. Over 150,000 miners have downed tools and gone on strike to prevent further cuts in wages and worsening of conditions of labor. The striking miners are waging a valiant struggle to protect themselves, their wives and children, from starvation and misery that the coal operators are determined to force upon them. They are fighting to save their union, the backbone of the American Federation of Labor, which is in danger of being destroyed by the combined efforts of the coal operators, the friendly cooperation of the government, and the criminal negligence of the reactionary Lewis administration.

THE miners are fighting for their very existence. The strike must be won if the miners are to retain even a semblance of a decent standard of living. The coal operators must be defeated if the miners' union is to be saved from destruction. The miners must be victorious in order to prevent a serious disaster to the entire American labor movement.

Broaden the Strike.

MINERS! Workers! Demand that all the efforts of the miners' union and of the entire labor movement be immediately concentrated upon bringing the unorganized miners out on strike. Demand that preparations be started forthwith to strike all the mines in the anthracite region. Demand that the maintenance men in the striking bituminous mines be immediately called out on strike. Demand that all the material and moral resources of the miners' union and of the whole labor movement be instantly mobilised in support of the miners strike. The strike of the miners must be won for the sake of the miners and for the sake of the entire working class of America.

Stop Sabotage of Strike.

THIS is a crucial moment in the life of the American labor movement. In the face of the indifference, sabotage and outright treason of the reactionary Lewis machine it becomes the particular duty of the rank and file, the left wing, and the honest progressive elements in the labor movement to exert all their efforts to insure the victory of the strike. No honest worker, regardless of his political opinions, can permit himself to be terrorized by the coal operators, the government and the Lewis administration, into a state of passivity and inactivity.

It is the sacred duty of every honest worker, left winger and progressive to stand in the front line of the battle, to encourage, mobilize and lead the workers to struggle and victory.

Learn Through Struggle.

In this struggle the miners and workers generally will gain experience and a wider understanding of the class struggle. They are learning and will continue to learn the capitalist nature and strike-breaking role of the American government. They will gain a true insight into the intimate connection between their struggles here and similar struggles of the working masses throughout the world, as well as of the oppressed peoples of China and Latin America. The workers engaged in the struggle must and will learn the absolute need of independent class political action by the workers. This will extend and strengthen the movement for a labor party, it will give power and swing to the movement for the nationalization of the mines, and will generally raise the economic and political power of the workers.

Onward to Victory.

The strike must be won. All support to the miners' strike.

No wage cuts. Wage increases for the unorganized miners!

Concentrate upon bringing the unorganized miners out on strike!

Call out the maintenance men and prepare for striking the anthracite mines!

Demand a national strike and a national agreement!

Mobilize the whole labor movement for material and moral support of the strike!

Watch the Lewis administration and resist sabotage and betrayal!

Every honest worker, left winger and progressive must take his post and do his duty.

Demand that the government keep its hands off the miners and abstain from strike breaking activities!

Help win the miners' strike!

Central Executive Committee, Workers (Communist) Party of America.

Economic Notes for Workers

By SCOTT NEARING

Since Europe was divided into two parts by the Russian Revolution of 1917—Sovietism in the East and capitalist imperialism in the West, a balance sheet has been drawn up that looks something like this:

1. Capitalist Imperialism — Western Europe.

a. Land and tools privately owned.

b. Land and tool owners living parasitically, as a leisure class, on the labor of the workers.

c. Owners rich; workers poor.

d. Labor movement crippled or smashed.

e. Extensive preparations for the next world war.

f. Revolts of the exploited peoples in Morocco, Syria and China met with machine guns and shell fire.

g. Lowered wages; extensive unemployment.

2. Sovietism—Eastern Europe.

a. Land and tools socially owned.

b. All able bodied people doing productive or useful work.

c. Leisure and culture shared among the workers.

d. A labor movement that, in numbers and in organization, is the strongest in the world.

e. Successful efforts to bring the peoples of Asia into a bloc that stands for the co-operation of peoples in the advancement of their mutual interests.

f. Little peoples inside the Soviet Union given their cultural independence; encouragement for the oppressed peoples all over the world to establish their independent existence.

g. Steadily rising standards of productivity and of livelihood.

Glance over this balance sheet of European achievement. If you are a banker, you must conclude that the system of western imperialism is best suited to the advancement of your interests. If you are a worker you must see that the Soviet system means most to you and yours.

A May Day Resolution: "I will work for the economic system that offers the greatest advantages to me and to those dependent on me."

DOGS

Just yesterday.
In Hankow,
Concession gates
Carried such signs as:
"Dogs and Chinamen,
Keep Out!"

And today
It seems
The tables are turned,
And signs
Will be put up, saying:
"Imperialists and Dogs,
Keep Out!"

The Drift of the Labor Bureaucracy to the Right

By WM. Z. FOSTER.

THE outstanding characteristic of the American labor movement is the drift of the trade union bureaucracy to the right. This has been an almost unbroken process since the close of the war. Three great landmarks stand out in this rightward tendency of the trade union officialdom. These are the movements of the steel workers in 1918-19, of the railroad workers in 1920-22, and the coal miners in 1925-27. These are three key struggles and have exerted profound effects on the general course of the labor movement.

The Great Steel Strike.

THE organization of the steel workers represented the highest point ever reached by organised labor in this country in establishing unionism amongst the masses. The campaign of organization received little or no support from the upper bureaucrats. And when the steel workers were attacked by the steel companies those bureaucrats betrayed the movement outright. They abandoned the steel workers completely. The latter demanded co-operation from the miners and the railroad workers to tie up the steel mills, but their proposals went unanswered by the reactionary leadership of these organizations.

THE strike was lost. Had it been won, as it might easily have been with support from the related basic industries, it would have enormously strengthened the entire labor movement and fortified it for the bitter struggles ahead. But due to the treachery of the class collaborationist leadership it was lost. In consequence the union line-up of the workers was weakened and the employers were encouraged to redouble their attacks against the trade unions. The loss of the steel strike was followed by a decided drift to the right of the bureaucracy.

The Railroad Shopmen's Strike.

AT the close of the war the bloc of 16 railroad unions were the strongest and most progressive section of the labor movement. In 1921 the railroad companies opened their campaign aggressively to shatter these organizations. First they split the four brotherhoods from the rest of the unions by promises of concessions. Then they cut the wages of the shopmen and worsened their conditions so that they had to strike, in spite of the prevailing unemployment. Their great national strike in 1922, like the steel strike of but two years before, was shattered by the attacks of the employers and the treachery of the union leaders. The latter abandoned the railroad workers on strike even as they had the steel workers. The strike presented the sad picture of nine unions staying at work while seven were on strike. Real solidarity by the 16 unions would have resulted in a magnificient victory.

THE loss of the shopmen's strike, coming at the end of unsuccessful struggles by the unions in the textile, building, meat packing, and other industries, drove the timid leadership still further to the right. They concluded that the railroad corporations, fattened like the rest by American capitalism by the super-profits of imperialism, were too strong for the unions to resist. Hence, instead of adopting the T. U. E. L. program of organization, a labor party, the organization of the unorganized, and the development of a militant fight against the employers, they surrendered to the employers. This surrender takes the shape of the whole series of class collaboration movements, such as labor banking, the B. & O. plan, etc.

THE entire A. F. of L. bureaucracy also plunged into a retreat to the right in the years following this struggle. With their "new wage policy," and worker-employer co-operation schemes they have fallen in step with the program of the employers to company unionize the trade unions and to reduce them to mere auxiliaries of the exploiters to speed up production and to check class consciousness. An inevitable phase of this retreat to the right is the bitter war being carried on against the left wing, that has culminated in the unheard of persecution and autocracy being practiced now in the needle trades.

The Struggle of the Coal Miners.

WE come next to the vital strike of the bituminous miners, now taking place. This strike was precedeed, as well as accompanied, by the rankest treachery on the part of the Lewis machine. For the past three years the employers have been literally cutting the Miners Union to pieces, smashing them in district after district. Yet Lewis has done nothing to prevent the destruction of the organization. During the anthracite strike of 1925 there was a splendid opportunity to rehabilitate the organization by pulling out the bituminous miners. But Lewis refused to do this. He permitted the employers, under the fiction of the Jacksonville agreement, to undermine the organization, to the extent that where three years ago union bituminous miners were producing 70% of the bituminous coal and non-union miners 30%, the percentages, on the eve of the present strike, were almost exactly reversed. Lewis' policy brought the union in actual danger of destruction. The "Save the Union" slogan of the progressive bloc in the recent elections, was based upon the realist of realities.

THE loss of the vital steel workers' and shopmen's strikes resulted in the bureaucracy of the labor movement going far to the right, with consequent neglect of the workers' interests and to the demoralisation and weakening of the unions. Already the weakening of the Miners Union has had a reactionary effect upon the labor movement. And the loss of the present bituminous strike, which would shatter the U. M. W. A., backbone of the American labor movement, would also drive the bureaucracy still further to the right and inflict fresh disasters upon the trade unions as a whole. Hence the rallying of all possible support behind the striking miners looms as the major task confronting the labor movement at the present time. The miners' strike must be won in spite of Lewis' policy of betrayal.

The Road Ahead of Us.

THE present fight of the workers for a powerful and militant labor movement is a difficult one. The reactionary bureaucracy, who are set upon their policies of no fight against the employers, cling to the control of the unions by autocratic measures which outrage every tradition and practice of democracy in the unions. But the situation is much better than it appears upon the surface. There is widespread discontent among the masses of workers. This was evidenced in the recent miners' elections, when the opposition undoubtedly polled the majority of the votes cast. It is also manifest in the vast upheaval now taking place in the needle trades. In the Machinists' Union, which the recent election demonstrated, the workers are discontented with the reactionary leadership. Even in such organizations as the carpenters, the rank and file (witness the elections in Chicago and other cities) are finding themselves in conflict with the reactionary officialdom.

IN the unions there are great numbers of workers at odds with their leaders. The task is to unite these under progressive and left wing leadership. They lack organization and a definite program. It is not that the opposition is so strong but that the opposition is so disunited. The T. U. E. L., with its slogans of organize the unorganized within and without the existing unions, the amalgamation of the craft unions, the formation of a labor party, and the democratization of the unions, points the way to victory. What is needed is the development of a widespread united front of progressive and left wing elements to put these vital slogans into reality. This is the specific to stop the drift of the present leadership to the right. It is the way to a militant and successful trade union movement.

MASSACRE OF THE INNOCENTS—1927

Sacco and Vanzetti
No murderers are you.
But worse than mere assassins,
That judiciary crew,
Grim, black robed and stony
Just like their Plymouth rock
Killing guiltless workers
By electric shock.
These judges hang together
They ought to hangs—by God!
These foul birds of a feather
Smell worse than putrid cod,
That is to say, the "justice"
That in this case they've shown
There is no worse injustice
In legal records known.
Oh land of boasted freedom
Whence liberty has fled
It seems that even your justice
Is cock-eyed drunk or dead.

—ADOLF WOLFF.

A MIGHTY PAIR

May Day Declaration

(Continued from Page One)

Union and the entire world against the war plots. Let us make our power felt; the power which is in our numbers, and let us raise our voices in one world-wide shout that no government will dare disobey:

WE DEMAND THE RECOGNITION OF THE CHINESE PEOPLE'S GOVERNMENT!

WE DEMAND THE WITHDRAWAL OF THE TROOPS AND MARINES!

WE DEMAND THE RECOGNITION OF THE SOVIET UNION!

HANDS OFF CHINA! HANDS OFF SOVIET RUSSIA!

WE WILL NOT TOLERATE A NEW WORLD WAR!

Sacco and Vanzetti.

Then there is the cruel order of judicial murder decreed by the capitalist courts of Massachusetts against the two working class fighters, Sacco and Vanzetti. The international solidarity of the working class with mass demonstrations in every industrial center in the world has thus far saved Sacco and Vanzetti from the electric chair for over six years. But now the date has been set for their execution and only the working class of America and the rest of the world can save them. Let us make of May Day such a unanimous demonstration in favor of Sacco and Vanzetti that the executioners will not dare carry out the sentence. Let no worker be missing when in mass meetings in every corner of our land we gather together in one mighty demonstration to declare:

SACCO AND VANZETTI SHALL NOT DIE!

SACCO AND VANZETTI MUST GO FREE!

FOR A WORKERS' AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT.

It is not enough to get Sacco and Vanzetti out of jail. It is not enough to stop the plot to plunge our country into a new world war. So long as the bosses control the courts, they will continue to frame up workers. So long as the bosses control the courts they will continue to issue injunctions against strikes and picketing. We must take the courts out of the hands of the bosses.

So long as Wall Street controls the government they will be sending our marines to Nicaragua and China. So long as Wall Street controls the government there is always danger of a new war. We must take our government out of the hands of the bankers and corporations.

So long as the workers continue to support the bosses' political parties—the republican and democratic parties—the bosses will continue to control the government and frame-ups, anti-labor legislation, injunctions and imperialist advantures and war dangers will continue. The workers must end their support of the republican and democratic parties. We must build a powerful labor party of our own to include all the workers' organizations, all the unions and all the political organizations of the workers. We must build an all-inclusive labor party. And supported by the poor farmers, we must take the machinery of our government out of the hands of the bosses, and into the hands of the workers and poor farmers. On May Day, International Labor Day, every worker must demonstrate against boss controlled government with its labor frame-ups, injunctions and war policy. FOR A LABOR PARTY AND FOR A WORKERS' AND FARMERS' GOVERNMENT IN AMERICA.

Finally, there are the problems of our labor movement at home.

The big corporations are attacking it with their company unions and their open-shop drives. The bosses' courts are attacking it with injunctions and frame-ups such as the frame-up of Sacco and Vanzetti in Massachusetts and the frame-up of Ben Gold and the other furrier leaders in New York.

Must Fight For Unions.

The employers have succeeded in building up a united front of the courts, the police, reactionary labor leaders and the leaders of the Socialist Party to crush the left wing that is fighting for a policy of militant unionism. Our unions are weak, divided by crafts, include only a small part of the working class, are hamstrung by corrupt and reactionary leaders, and in the coal mines and needle trades industries are fighting at this moment for their very existence. Those who fight for the organization of the unorganized, the amalgamation of the weak craft unions into powerful industrial unions, the adoption of a fighting policy to defend our unions against destruction and to defend the interests of our class—these the bosses are trying to drive out of the unions and the trade union bureaucracy and right wing Socialist leaders are cooperating in this dirty task of cutting the fighting heart out of our unions. A united front of the coal operators and needle trades bosses and other employers, the courts and police, using the Wolls and Lewises and Sigmans as their tools—against this united front we must oppose a united front of all the workers of our country, organized and unorganized alike. Let no man fail to be at his post at the big May Day meetings. Fight for the existence of the unions. Fight for the organization of the unorganized. Fight for the amalgamation of the craft unions into powerful industrial unions. Fight against class collaboration betrayal. Fight for a fighting union policy. And fight for the right of the left wingers and Communists who are the champions of the organization of the unorganized, amalgamation and fighting unionism to be in the unions and for their correct policies to prevail.

Workers of America—such is the meaning of the May Day demonstrations this May Day. Every worker in the country must participate. Every worker in the land must show his solidarity with his class in these fateful moments of war and reaction. Every worker must raise his voice in one universal shout that will be heard throuout our land and thruout the world.

SACCO AND VANZETTI MUST BE FREE!

HANDS OFF CHINA!

HANDS OFF NICARAGUA AND MEXICO!

HANDS OFF THE SOVIET UNION!

NO NEW WAR!

SAVE AND STRENGTHEN THE UNIONS!

ORGANIZE THE UNORGANIZED WORKERS!

MAINTAIN A FIGHTING UNION POLICY!

BUILD A LABOR PARTY!

TAKE THE GOVERNMENT OUT OF THE HANDS OF BANKERS AND WAR-MAKING IMPERIALISTS!

BUILD A WORKERS AND FARMERS GOVERNMENT IN AMERICA!

EMBRACING THE BOSS

Red

He was a "red"
They said.
He did not fear
The leer
Of any king
Or thing.
He spoke the truth
To youth
And to old age.
A sage
They called him then.
Of men
He was a brother,
No other
Was meek as he,
To free
Man's mind he sought
And taught
Men love and peace,
To cease
Their wars and hates
Relates
The story told
Of old.
The priest and prince
Did wince
At what he said,
And dead
They wished this man
Whose plan
They greatly feared—
They reared
A cross and hung
Him young
Upon it high
To die!

—HENRY REICH, JR.

Workers School

"Training for the Class Struggle"
108 E. 14th St., New York City

1385

I. MAY DAY GREETINGS!

OUR SLOGANS

Training for the Class Struggle.
Build the Working Class Movement.
Preparation of Leaders for the Workers' Struggles.
Without Class Education there Can Be No Effective Class Struggle by the Workers.

Since last May Day the Workers School has made great progress in the carrying out of these aims. Registration for the fall and spring terms was 2000, 80 per cent. of these union members. The Workers School helped the workers and strikers of New York City and vicinity thru furnishing speakers, research material, scholarships, etc.; furnished speakers to forums in Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore and New Jersey cities; offered courses in American Labor Problems, Labor Journalism, Theory and Practice of Trade Union Work, New Tactics of Employers, American Economic and Political History, Decline of the British Empire, Marxism, Leninism, Fundamentals of Communism, Problems of the Communist Movement. Some instructors were Bertram D. Wolfe, Scott Nearing, William W. Weinstone, Robert Dunn, Alexander Trachtenberg, Arthur C. Calhoun, J Mindel, D. Benjamin, Art Shields, Harvey O'Connor. The growth of the School has shown itself in the enlargement of headquarters and the doubling of seating capacity, in addition to the building up of a library of over 100 volumes. The spirit, work, attendance and study of the students are sufficient proof that the Workers School is accomplishing its aims — Training for the Class Struggle; Build the Working Class Movement; Preparation of Leaders for the Workers' Struggles. Without Class Education There Can Be No Effective Class Struggle by the Workers.

II. SPRING COURSES - REGISTER NOW!

1. FUNDAMENTALS OF COMMUNISM—8 sessions, begins Thurs., April 28, 6:45 to 8 P. M., Ella G. Wolfe, instructor, fee $2.50.
2. THE CHINESE REVOLUTION—4 sessions, begins Fri., May 13, 8 to 10 P. M., H. M. Wicks, instructor, fee $1.25.
3. DEVELOPMENT OF AMERICAN IDEOLOGY—3 sessions, begins, Fri., June 10, 8 to 10 P. M., Bertram D. Wolfe, instructor, fee $1.00.
4. FORUM—every Sunday night, 8 P. M., except May 1 and May 22, speakers for month of May include Jay Lovestone and Joseph Freeman.

III. NATIONAL SUMMER TRAINING COURSE!

1. This course will be similar to the one which was so successfully given in the summer of 1926. At that time 75 comrades attended, 40 of whom were from out of town and 35 from New York City. Some students came from as far distant points as San Francisco, Kansas City, Chicago and Canada. The course consisted of 5 one-hour sessions a day for 2 weeks together with 3 hours daily for study. The following courses were given: America Today, Marxism, Leninism, American Economic and Political History, History of the American Working Class, Theory and Practice of Trade Union Work, History of the Communist Party, Communist Party Organization Problems, Youth Problems and Methods of Teaching. The instructors were Jay Lovestone, Bertram D. Wolfe, Alexander Trachtenberg, Anton Bimba, William F. Dunne, Wm. W. Weinstone, Jack Stachel, Sam Don and D. Benjamin.

2. The training course this summer will be held the last two weeks of July or the first two weeks in August.

3. Among the courses that will probably be given are: Marxism, Leninism, America Today, American Economic and Political History, Theory and Practice of Trade Union Work, Problems of the Communist Movement, Communist Party Organization, Youth Problems and the Chinese Revolution.

4. Some instructors will be: Jay Lovestone, William Z. Foster, Bertram D. Wolfe, William F. Dunne, Max Bedacht, William W. Weinstone, H. M. Wicks and Jack Stachel.

5. Watch the Daily Worker for further details or write to Bertram D. Wolfe, Director of the Workers School, 106-108 East 14th Street, New York City.

B 473

THE UNITED COUNCIL OF WORKINGCLASS HOUSEWIVES on May 1st, 1927 greets their toiling sisters from the shops, factories and homes.

On this May 1st, the workingclass women in America can take with pride an account of their achievements for the past year. In the land of capitalist strongholds the workingclass women in America have fulfilled their task of organizing and educating great masses of workingclass women for the class struggle under great difficulties. The workingclass women in America have succeeded in uniting their struggles with the struggles of their brothers, the workers.

On, sisters, workingclass women, for the coming year with resolute determination for more achievements, deeper into the masses of workingclass women for more clarification in the class struggle.

The United Council of Workingclass Housewives greets the workingclass women the world over.

The United Council of Workingclass Housewives greets their awakened sisters, the workingclass women of China. May you come out victorious in your hard struggle for the liberation of Chinese workers.

To you liberated sisters of Soviet Russia, the United Council of Workingclass Housewives sends greetings. On we shall march to the goal, nearer and nearer until we here in America reach your standard.

Unitedly we will march on until the workingclass the world over will be liberated.
With solidarity!

THE UNITED COUNCIL OF WORKINGCLASS HOUSEWIVES,

KATE GITLOW, Secretary.

Street Nucleus 6, Section 3
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY, DETROIT
Greets The DAILY WORKER
on International May Day.

1382 Greetings!
Luther's Dining Room
26 E. 109th St., N. Y. C.

Proletarian May Day Greetings!
FINNISH FRACTION,
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY
Norwood, Mass.

GREETINGS
1380 from
GLOBE CAFETERIA
119 E. 14th Street
Stuy. 7996.

Detroit
Daily Worker Agents
GREET
The DAILY WORKER
on INTERNATIONAL
MAY DAY.
We pledge ourselves to fill our quota of subscriptions and help build The DAILY WORKER.

GREETINGS!
CHARLY KROEFFARD
NAK-NAK, BRISTOL BAY
ALASKA

May Day Greeting
SEC. 3
SUB. SEC. 3D S 5

Council of Working Class Housewives
of Brownsville
Sends Its May Day Greetings
to
The DAILY WORKER
Long May It Continue Its Successful Activities in Behalf of the Working Class!

S S 2 A, F D 5
Greets May Day

Detroit
Street Nucleus 1
Section 1
Sends
MAY DAY
GREETINGS

WORKERS' CULTURE CLUB
63 Liberty Ave.
Brooklyn, N. Y.
SENDS HEARTY MAY DAY GREETINGS
to
The DAILY WORKER
Success in Your Struggle for Complete Working Class Liberation.—M. BLOOM, Sec'y.

1373
Greetings from
STUYVESANT CASINO
Dinfur Leasing Co., Inc.
L. Dintenfass
Tel.: Dry Dock 8675-1525
Ball and Banquet Rooms
MEETING ROOMS
Catering for all Occasions
140-42 SECOND AVE.
NEW YORK CITY

B492
STREET NUCLEUS NO. 1
(Section 7)
District 2, Workers Party
Sends May Day Greetings to all Party members and readers of The Daily Worker. It also hopes that comrades will work for our Daily and build the Party.

INTERNATIONAL BRANCH 5, SECTION 5
Sends Its Greetings
to the Revolutionary Proletariat of the World
and Pledges Its Solidarity and Devotion to the Revolutionary Cause
and to Fight On Until Decisive Victory
Is Gained.
AIDA FLOMENBAUM, Sec'y.

1376 GREETINGS
from
JOHN'S RESTAURANT
302 E. 12th Street.

READ THE DAILY WORKER EVERY DAY

Workmen's Furniture Fire Insurance Society

INCORPORATED
1872-1927

Membership about 47,000 Assets approximately $600,000

THIS is a society, independent of capitalists, whose aim is to replace for its members all household articles, ruined or damaged by fire.

Founded in 1872 by 44 workingmen, it has now grown to 47,000, with an insured value of $47,000,000.

During its existence it has paid over $300,000 in reimbursements for about 4,000 cases.

Originally it was planned for New York City, but in the course of time it spread over 52 cities, the last of which is Oakland, Cal.

For the past 55 years the average yearly assessment amounted to only 11c per $100 insurance, which covered all expenses for management and reimbursements for losses sustained through fire.

Upon admission the members are making a deposit of $1.00 per $100 insurance.

In the event of his withdrawal, this deposit is returned less 10 per cent, and the accrued assessments.

We paid the claims of our members who had suffered losses in such disasters as occurred in Paterson in 1902, in San Francisco in 1906 and Chelsea (Boston) in 1908, more promptly than any other Fire Insurance Company.

This society has a fraternal agreement with the Workingmen's Aid Association of Massachusetts, which is an organization with the same mission, operating in that state, and members moving there can be transferred, if they wish to, free of charge.

Workingmen and Workingwomen! Protect your home in case of fire! You will find it advantageous to join this society of your own class.

Information may be had through

MAIN BRANCH NEW YORK AND VICINITY,
227 East 84th Street, New York City
TEL. LENOX 3559

ADDRESSES OF BRANCH FINANCIAL SECRETARIES

ALBANY, N. Y.—E. J. Roeder, 17 Dana Ave.
YONKERS, N. Y.—A. Jotzer, No. 138 Yonkers Ave.
TROY, N. Y.—J. Schlegel, 465 18th Street.
GLOVERSVILLE, N.Y.—O. Prohock, 34 2nd Street.
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—L. Wagner, 111 Washington St.
ONEIDA, N. Y.—Joseph Dyok, 126 E. Railroad St.
TONAWANDA, N. Y.—St. Hrabal, 321 Goundry St.
SCHENECTADY, N. Y.—C. Gebner, 22 Cherry St.
ROCHESTER, N. Y.—G. Frank, 117 Martin St.
PORT CHESTER, N. Y. — A. Loew, 140 Locust Ave.
NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y.—Peter Alles, 45 Mt. Joy Place.
MT. VERNON, N. Y.—Stephen Strahser, 204 W. Lincoln Ave.
PEEKSKILL, N. Y.—K. Barthel, Bluhach Park.
STAPLETON, Staten Island, N. Y.—A. Roehrig, 186 Beach St.
TRENTON, N. J.—J. Schaller, 334 Centennial Ave.
PATERSON, N. J.—S. Bartel, 81 Redwood Ave.
NEWARK, N. J.—A. Roehrbein, 272 So. 15th St.
ELIZABETH, N. J. — Joseph Nickel, 402 Livingston St.
PASSAIC, N. J.—Hans Meyer, 196 Clifton Ave., Clifton, N. J.
NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J.—R. Schmid, 141 Throop Ave.
BARWAY, N. J.—St. A. Gaszler, 291 N. Stiles St., Linden, N. J.
CAMDEN, N. J.—F. Hartmeyer, 324 Sherwood Ave.
CARLSTADT, N. J.—A. Gervase, 751 Hackensack St., East Rutherford.
NEW HAVEN, CONN.—A. Schofeld, 266 Davenport Ave.
WATERBURY, CONN.—A. C. Knercher, 36 Rose St.
HARTFORD, CONN.—F. Ashenbach, 667 Park St.
MERIDEN, CONN.—H. Strobel, 52 Ruben St.
BRIDGEPORT, CONN. — A. Mnch, 426 Shelton St.
ROCKVILLE, CONN.—O. Roehler, 77 Grand St.
STAMFORD, CONN.—C. Schlafner, 42 Cove Road.
NORWICH, CONN.—Otto Bittner, 17 Center Ave.
LUZERNE, PA.—B. Schoonwetter, 214 Bennett St.
PHILADELPHIA, PA.—C. H. Kaufmann, 1844 Colwyn St.
PITTSBURGH, PA. — Eugen Grabert, Jr., 4626 Filmore St.
ALTOONA, PA.—Ph. Dosch, 701 2nd Ave.
SCRANTON, PA.—H. Hetarich, 627 So. Irving Ave.
ERIE, PA.—F. Wagner, 919 E. 32nd St.
ALLENTOWN, PA.—E. Haubold, 112 Chew St.
BRADDOCK, PA.—Friedr. G. Mehrtash, 19 Kenmore Ave., Wilkensburgh, Pa.
CHICAGO, ILL.—A. Hofmann, 716 W. Madison St.
SPRINGFIELD, ILL. — Emil Geist, 1122 Watch Ave.
SAN FRANCISCO, CAL. — C. Scherr, 4150 24th St.
LOS ANGELES, CAL.—C. H. Homuth, P. O. P. 676 oder 8927 Waverly Drive, Sherman, Cal.
OAKLAND, CAL.—L. Stritter, 2237 Galindo St.
CLEVELAND, O.—Alfred Hermann, 14104 Carrydale Ave.
TOLEDO, O.—F. Badstuber, 1859 Yeter Ave.
MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.—Ernst Wiese, 1820 4. 3rd St., N. E.
BALTIMORE, MD.—H. Simon, 1741 Carroll St.
ST. LOUIS, MO.—W. A. Peters, 3117 Elliot Ave.
PROVIDENCE, R. I.—A. J. Schultheiss, 109 Cumerford St.
MILWAUKEE, WIS.—A. Kluge, 377 Newhall St.
SEATTLE, WASH.—P. Koessner, 3218 Corson Ave.
Workingmen's Aid Association of Mass., verbunden durch Gegenseitigkeits-Vertrag.
BOSTON, MASS. — Anton Lo Presti, 130 E. 4th St., So. Boston, State-Sec'y.
ADAMS, MASS.—J. D. Karbitschka, 5 Pearl St.
HOLYOKE, MASS.—O. C. Langner, 52 Jackson St.
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.—G. P. Gregory, 469 Orange St.

MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
UUS ILM
Esthonian Weekly.

INTERNATIONAL MAY DAY
GREETINGS
SEC. 3, SUB. SEC. 3E, SHOP NUCLEUS 4
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

B411

Brooklyn Finnish Workers Association

764 — 40th STREET,
BROOKLYN, N. Y.

Sends May Day Greetings to all the readers of The Daily Worker and to members of the Workers (Communist) Party.

It also hopes that next year when we celebrate our International Labor Day, The Daily Worker will be much stronger and have many more readers.

ONE INDUSTRY! ONE UNION!

May Day Greetings To All Workers In The METAL AND MANUFACTURING Industry

All workers in the metal, machine, and manufacturing industry — skilled, semiskilled, unskilled — irrespective of sex, race or nationality — welcomed into our ranks.

DISTRICT NO. 1

Amalgamated Metal Workers of America

799 Broadway, New York City.

On This Great INTERNATIONAL Labor Day We Pledge Our Support to The DAILY WORKER and to Continue the Work of Comrades

LENIN and RUTHENBERG.

"LET'S FIGHT ON!"

1370

A. BRESLAW	B. MELNIKER
WM. HEINIG	M. GARBER
J. HOFFER	J. FRIEDMAN
L. NADLER	S. HOCH
D. TZELEPIS	A. STONE
N. DAGIS	J. MILLER
A. PODOLSKY	J. TURCHINSKY

International Branch 2; 6b, Brooklyn-New York

S. NADLER, Secretary.

BERTHA TURCHINSKY, Organizer.

MAY DAY GREETINGS

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

SECTION 7

LONG LIVE THE DAILY WORKER!

GREETINGS from

STREET NUCLEUS 25 Chicago, Ill.

1383

Hail to the International Working Class

Sollins' Dining Room

222 E. 14th Street

Phone, Stuyvesant 7661

Greetings—

Finnish Women's Section Eureka, Cal.

MAY DAY GREETINGS

from

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

F. D. 6, S. S. 2A, Dist. 2, New York

MAY DAY GREETINGS

To All Workers and Workers' Organizations.

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

Local Kenosha

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

Branch 1; Section 5, Dist. 2

SENDS FRATERNAL GREETINGS to The DAILY WORKER.

On April 9 we raised $50 in donations and loans for The DAILY WORKER, and will enroll every member in the Sustaining Fund.

We hope that May 1, 1928, will find The DAILY WORKER with a very large circulation and a surplus in its treasury.

MAY DAY GREETINGS

from

Finnish Workers' Club of Milwaukee

to

All the Readers of The DAILY WORKER

GREETINGS TO OUR DAILY WORKER

Comrades of Branch 4, Section 7, Bath Beach, greet The DAILY WORKER's first May Day Issue published in New York.

Long Live America's Only English Communist Daily!

Long Live the Workers' Communist Party!

WORKMEN'S SICK AND DEATH BENEFIT FUND

of the United States of America

Organized 1884

Main Office: 9 Seventh St., New York City

Number of Members December 31, 1926

58,491

348 BRANCHES

Total Assets—Dec. 31, 1926 ..... $2,728,652.73

BENEFITS PAID:

Death Benefit $3,691,437.82

Sick Benefit $8,986,056.61

Workingmen, Protect Your Families

in case of sickness, accident or death!

Death Benefit $250.

Sick Benefit $360 to $900 for 80 weeks.

For further information write to the Main Office or to the Branch Financial Secretary of your district.

GREETINGS

from

Supporters

of the

Daily Worker

Greeting!

SUB. SEC. 2 A

Workers' Party

Of America

UNITED FRONT OF ALL LABOR Against AMERICAN IMPERIALISM

Nucleus 2 E, Cleveland.

B493

PROGRESSIVE workers of the International Pocketbook Workers' Union greet The DAILY WORKER, the only workingclass English daily in America, on its first May Day issue in New York City.

We hail The DAILY WORKER as a staunch champion of the needs of the workers in their struggles against all their enemies!

We hail The DAILY WORKER for exposing the reactionary officialdom for collaborating with the bosses and thereby betraying the workers.

We are fully conscious of the fact that in this present period of reaction in the American Labor movement, when all the dark forces are conspiring to suppress every vestige of class-consciousness and progressive action on the part of the rank and file, that an English labor daily has never been in greater need than now.

We urge every honest and sincere worker in our industry, as well as all other workers to buy, read and spread the only labor daily, The DAILY WORKER, and not to rely upon the capitalist and yellow press for their labor news.

PROGRESSIVE WORKERS, INTERNATIONAL POCKETBOOK WORKERS' UNION.

1378

GREETING!

Labor Temple

244 East 14th Street.

1377

Leo Kling

The DAILY WORKER Builder

GREETINGS
on INTERNATIONAL LABOR DAY, MAY DAY
From
SECTION 1 AC, 4 F
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

READ THE DAILY WORKER EVERY DAY

1375

GREETINGS

Henington Hall

Two Large Halls for Balls, Weddings and Parties and Catering for All Occasions

214-216 SECOND AVE.
NEW YORK CITY.
Tel. Dry Dock 9924

Elegant Steam Heated Meeting Rooms With Elevator Service

M. ROTHSTEIN, Prop.

UNIT 7F SS 1AC
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY
Greets
The DAILY WORKER
on
MAY FIRST
And Promises to Stand With It to the Last.

May Day Greetings

To the International Working Class!
To Organized Labor and Its Friends!

WHENEVER patronizing restaurants, cafeterias, butcher shops, etc., see to it that members of the Amalgamated Food Workers are employed, and always see to it that wherever you buy or consume bakery goods—in bakeries, groceries, delicatessen stores, or restaurants—that the bread bears this

Union AFW CENTRAL UNION LABEL EMBLEM Label

BY DOING THIS, YOU CAN HELP THE FOOD WORKERS IN THEIR STRUGGLE FOR BETTER CONDITIONS

Amalgamated Food Workers of America

An Industrial Union for All the Workers in the Food Industry

GENERAL HEADQUARTERS:

799 BROADWAY Cor. of 11th Street NEW YORK CITY

AUG. BURKHARDT, General Sec'y, Treasurer.

Tel. Cathedral 4284-5071

1374

THE PARK PALACE

ROSENBERG & HERTZ, Props.

ELEGANT BALL ROOMS FOR BALLS, WEDDINGS AND BANQUETS

3-5 WEST 110th STREET

Opposite Central Park NEW YORK CITY

SECTION 5, INTERNATIONAL BRANCH 2
sends
HEARTY MAY DAY GREETINGS

International May Day Greetings

from

The Chinese Workers Alliance, Inc.

勞工協社

to

The Dail

Meet you at our

"NIGHT

BENEFIT OUR NEW CHIN

23 Chatham Squa

Phone Or

FRIDAY,

WEBSTER HALL, 119 E.

ADMISSION 75c in ad

May

The Day G world,
T
of mil
the re
L
L
L

THE JEWISH WORKER'S CLUB of the Lower Bronx

542 East 145th Street New York City

Meets every Friday night.

Long live The DAILY WORKER! Greetings to you on the First of May, the holiday of all the workers.

A. Gumnekoff, Org. E. Masse, Sec'y.

GREETINGS TO OUR MARTYRS!

On the occasion of the Proletarian Holiday, the First of May, we send our heartiest and most sincere revolutionary greetings to you workers and peasants in prison.

We are on the battle front with you. We are with you when the savage hand of the oppressor grips you, and sends you to dark dungeons. Keep up your courage. We, who are outside, will continue the struggle till you are restored to our ranks to take up the work once more.

To you in the dark prison cells—to you who suffer under the harsh hand of the capitalist system, we send our greetings, and pledge ourselves to keep up the fight until all the proletarian class war prisoners are released, and the revolutionary working class has attained its aim.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE
NEW YORK SECTION
ROSE BARON, Secretary.

Greetings from RATIONAL VEGETARIAN RESTAURANT
1599 Madison Avenue,
University 6778

Greetings! 1371
Scientific Vegetarian Restaurant
75 E. 116th Street

Greetings 1372
Health Food Vegetarian Restaurant
1600 MADISON AVE.

PARAGON STATIONERY CO.
23 EAST 13th Street
NEW YORK 681
Telephone Stuyvesant 8812
We specialize in all kinds of Bond Papers, Mimeograph Paper and Envelopes
SPECIAL PRICES TO RADICAL ORGANIZATIONS.

Greetings!
Vegetarian Restaurant
249 E. 13th St.
New York City
Mrs. Rogin and Markoff,
Proprietors.

GREETINGS
NUCLEUS 33,
CLEVELAND, OHIO.

THE WORKING WOMEN'S CLUB
3514 Kinsman St.,
Cleveland, Ohio,
sends
May Day Greetings
Meetings every Wednesday.

GREETINGS
SHOP NUCLEUS 10
DETROIT, MICH.

MAY DAY
GREETINGS
SUB SECTION 3C,
UNIT 4S

May Day Greetings
to
The Daily Worker.
Long Live
The Only English
Communist Daily
Of America.
Factory Nucleus No. 1
Sec. 3, Sub. D.

GREETINGS
from
THE BROOKLYN LABOR LYCEUM
349 Willoughby Ave.

INTERNATIONAL MAY DAY GREETINGS
GREEK FRACTION
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

A GROUP OF ST. PAUL READERS send
MAY DAY GREETINGS
to
The DAILY WORKER

MAY DAY GREETINGS
TO THE DAILY WORKER
from
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY
OF AMERICA
District 2, 6A
Brooklyn, N. Y.

MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
Factory District 3
Sub Section 2 A
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY
NEW YORK CITY

Greeting!
BOHEMIAN NATIONAL HALL
321 East 73rd Street.
Large airy meeting rooms and halls to rent for all occasions.

SUB SECTION 2B
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY
Greets
The DAILY WORKER
on
INTERNATIONAL HOLIDAY, MAY FIRST
And Pledges Its Fullest Support in Building Up the Communist Press in the United States.
Sub Section Org. LEON LITVIN.

HELP THE JEWISH MASSES IN SOVIET RUSSIA
HELP THEM TO HELP THEMSELVES BECOME A MEMBER
of the
"ICOR"
(Committee to Help Jewish Colonization in Soviet Russia)
MINIMUM DUES $1.00 A YEAR
Enroll Your Organization as a Member of the "Icor"
MINIMUM DUES $5.00 A YEAR
"Icor," 112 E. 19th Street, New York City
TELEPHONE STUYVESANT 0891.

THE HARLEM STREET NUCLEUS
of the
YOUNG WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY
Greets
The DAILY WORKER
On This International Labor Holiday.

GREETINGS
to
The DAILY WORKER
from
JOSEPH R. BRODSKY
41 Union Square,
New York City.

SUB SECTION 6 C, BROWNSVILLE
Greets
The DAILY WORKER

We Send Our Greetings on This International Holiday
of
The Working Men and Women
Of the World.
WILLIAMSBURG COUNCIL OF WORKING CLASS HOUSEWIVES
29 Graham Avenue,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

INTERNATIONAL MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
FINNISH COMRADES, SECTION 3
DETROIT, MICH.

Valo Inc.
159 Grider, Buffalo, N. Y.
Sends
MAY DAY GREETINGS
to all
DAILY WORKER READERS

MAY DAY GREETINGS
from the
NEW YORK JOINT BOARD
of the
CLOAKMAKERS' UNION
AND ITS LOCALS.
Louis Hyman, Mgr. Julius Portnoy, Sec.-Treas.

"Say It With Flowers —Say It With Ours"

GEO. W. EDMONSON, Sr.

Successor to CHAS. HILDEBRANDT & SON

Decorations & Flowers for All Occasions

WEDDING BOUQUETS — FUNERAL DESIGNS

3902 Ninth Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

We also cover Graves with Evergreens for the Winter

Ground occupied by Cemetery

READ THE DAILY WORKER EVERY DAY

SUB SECTION B, SECTION 3

Greets

The DAILY WORKER

On This International Workers' Holiday.

On this holiday of the working class, we send greetings to all who are fighting against imperialism, and for the overthrow of capitalism.

1 AC, FD 6

WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY

INTERNATIONAL MAY DAY GREETINGS

from

NUCLEUS 3F, SECTION 1, SUB D

LONG LIVE THE DAILY WORKER!

LONG LIVE THE WORKERS

(COMMUNIST) PARTY!

Tel. Stuyvesant 4881

WEBSTER HALL

119-25 EAST 11th STREET

NEW YORK

BALL ROOMS BANQUET HALL

MEETING ROOMS

REVOLUTIONARY GREETINGS

from

The Young Workers (Communist) League

District No. 2

The Young Workers' League, as part of the general working class movement of America, raises the slogan on this International Labor Holiday, of Organize the Unorganized Young Workers!

Fight Against the Militarization of the Youth!

Withdraw the Marines From China and Nicaragua!

Long Live the Solidarity of All the Young Workers the World Over, in the Common Struggle Against Capitalism!

GREETINGS

from

Finnish Workers' Club

New Rochelle, N. Y.

Buy The Daily Worker

MAY DAY

GREETINGS

from

Section 4

International Br. 1 & 2

Opened 1910

HERMAN'S

RELIABLE

ARMY AND NAVY

RETAIL STORE

52nd STREET, CORNER 5th AVENUE

BROOKLYN, N. Y.

SATISFACTION GUARANTEED

— OR MONEY REFUNDED. —

Union Made

WORK CLOTHES

Only

$10

READ THE DAILY WORKER EVERY DAY

BE SURE TO SEE

"Breaking Chains"

A Picture of Life in New Russia

STIRRING LOVE DRAMA

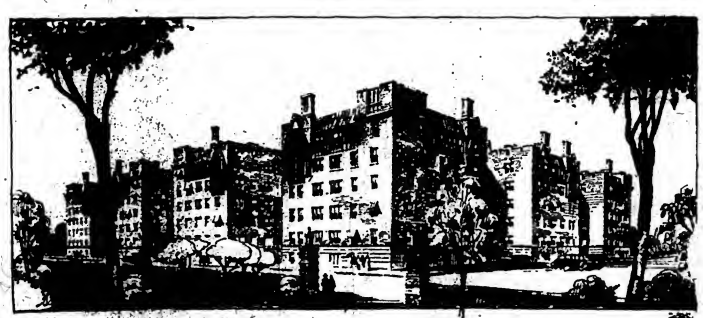
Full of Life, Love, Hate, Revolution

Being Shown Throughout the Country

Under the Auspices of

THE INTERNATIONAL WORKERS' AID.

$100



Invest Your Money In A

WORKERS' COOPERATIVE FINANCE INSTITUTION

$300

DAILY 6% Dividends

Secured by This

Square Block Cooperative Apartments

BRONX PARK EAST & ALLERTON AVE.

BONDS SOLD ON WEEKLY PAYMENTS

BONDS SOLD ON WEEKLY PAYMENTS

$500

CONSUMERS' FINANCE CORPORATION

Subsidiary of the United Workers' Cooperative Association

2 FIFTH AVENUE, CORNER 14th STREET. Tel.: Stuyvesant 6200.

Gold Bonds

LABOR'S Motion Picture

The Big Passaic Textile Strike

Must Be Shown Everywhere!

Your Organization Can Assist

In Organizing the Unorganized and Building the American Labor Movement
By Organizing a Showing
In Your City
Your Neighborhood
Your Meeting Hall

Write to:
INTERNATIONAL WORKERS' AID
743 Main Ave. — Room 14
PASSAIC, N. J.

978 Remember Passaic?

VICTIMS

of "New Jersey Justice" Need Labor's Strong Arm To Protect and Defend Them

Adolph Wisnefski—five to twenty years at hard labor; Joseph Bellene—three years; Alex Kostamaha—three years; Paul Oznak—three years; Tony Pocino—three years; William Sikora—three years. These five were held under bail ranging from $50,000 to $25,000 for more than four months without trial.

Paul Kovac—one to five years at hard labor; Nicholas Schillaci—one year; Charles Current—one year; Tom Regan—held in jail four months without trial; acquitted by jury; Joseph Toth—held in jail four months on $15,000 bail without trial; charge against him still pending out on $15,000 bail.

RELEASED ON BAIL (Partial List)

Albert Weisbord	$30,000	Jennie Persico	1,000	Steve Koppla	500
Jack Rubenstein	27,000	Joseph Puzzio	1,000	Sophia Barnise	500
Robert Dunn	10,000	John Lapatyo	1,000	John Bistritz	500
Clarence Miller	10,000	Charles Simchera	1,000	Frank Lasek	500
Norman Thomas	10,000	Agnes Simchesen	1,000	Elizabeth Mesako	500
David Weinstein	10,000	William Sroka	1,000	Josephine Rinsielle	500
Robert Wolf	5,000	Samuel Swala	1,000	Stanley Skrocki	500
John Perelick	5,000	Henry Tomack	1,000	Ambrosio Tamburina	500
Daniel Net	3,000	Jesus Correo	1,000	Rita Verrelli	500
Barbara Gracony	2,000	Simon Bamback	1,000	Michael Stezanick	500
Stephen Klarac	2,000	Stephen Flasik	1,000	Frank Seran	500
Sam Elam	2,000	John Vanyo	1,000	Margaret Saper	500
Maggie Pittocco	2,000	George Weiss	1,000	William Raynan	500
Esther Lowell	1,500	Thomas Winnik	1,000	Angelo Pivorotta	500
Andrew Trusty	1,500	Martin Winkler	500	Mike Hilsky	500
Francisco Llamas	1,500	Bertha Wilda	500	Samuel Lachuk	500
Steven Klesiz	1,500	Joseph Vanyo	500	Peter Kapachinsky	500
Mitro Mulick	1,500	Louis Tustka	500	Carolina Kachinsky	500
Anton Risdar	1,500	Edward Tambita	500	Joseph Bokosovitch	500
Salvatore Ribardo	1,500	Chester Grabinsky	500	Evelyn Come	500
Frances Ribardo	1,500	Mike Bab	500	John Bolt	500
Martin Rozward	1,500	Frank Casan	500	Margaret Bohatife	500
Julius Kovach	1,000	Andrew Bokowsky	500	Michael Elasic	500
Jacob Dudas	1,000	Andrew Baron	500	Lena Chernenko	500
John Plantak	1,000	Anna Kramer	700	John Karteez	500
Alsenio Columbo	1,000	Elizabeth Roma	700	Nicholas Krowetz	500
Henry Intruini	1,000	Frank Laborbera	700	Mary Lane	500
Lazaro Intruini	1,000	Pasáuale Giorando	700	Feliz Panarisi	500
Eli Kellar	1,000	Mary Santo	700	John Rogalni	500
Michael Lenchak	1,000	Salvatore Bigica	700	Andrew Toth	500
Eugenio Matteo	1,000	Gilippo Bongioranni	700	Joseph Chuddzy	250
Manuel Oco	1,000	Rosario Marchioni	700	Victoria Lebeda	250
Barbara Pados	1,000			Anna Valerino	250

FINES (Partial List)

Eugenio Matteo	$150	Josephine Busesky	50	Simon Bamback	25
Teckla Gubrinska	150	Jack Rubinstein	50	John Lapatyg	25
Jesus Correo	150	Anna Fieder	50	Anna Kostive	25
Barbara Gracony	150	John Cantanzare	30	Mary Wisner	25
Sam Elam	100	Philip Ribauda	27.50	Lizzi Wiederman	25
Stanley Skrocki	100	Frances Ribardo	27.50	John Kuher	25
Martin Kozwara	100	Antonio Sappa	27.50	John Sahaydak	25
Andrew Toth	100	Mrs. B. Jug	27.50	Mike Fabian	25
Steven Klesitz	79.50	Vincent Ali	27.50	Frank Vacaro	25
Anton Risdar	75	Katie Moll	27	Charles Simchera	25
John Perelick	50	Steven Chistak	27	William Sroka	25
Lena Noto	50	Louis Walesh	27.50	John Vanyo	25
Frances Ribardo	50	Maggie Pitocco	26.50	Paul Serafin	25
Salvatore Ribardo	50	Ricardo Cinto	26.50	Luck Alphanso	25
Francisco Llamas	50	Joseph Cinto	26.50	Mary Wasovska	25
Julius Kovach	50	Santo Damico	26.50	Sophie Bernise	25
John Plantus	50	Mike Marvika	26.80	Anna Schneider	25
Mrs. A. Buick	50	Anna Giovence	26.50	Mark Kubas	25
Nicholas Krowetz	50	Enrico Cinto	26.50	Theresa Studinger	25
Stephen Holchi	50	Salvatore Sarco	26.50	Frank Rambish	25

MINOR SENTENCES (Partial List)

Jack Rubenstein	90 days	Frank Lesoosky	30 days	Edward Tampitas	30 days
Frances Pellizzo	90 days	CarolineKachinsky	30 days	Sophie Bernise	30 days
Nancy Sandowsky	90 days	Sam Lachuk	30 days	Frank Cesara	30 days
Harry Tomach	90 days	Steven Klesitz	30 days	Patal Dangener	30 days
Joseph Vanyo	90 days	Lacy Alphanzo	30 days	Herman Ficker	30 days
Frances Pellizzo	90 days	John Kovics	30 days	Stanley Meriachip	15 days
Barbara Gracony	60 days	William Pupenka	30 days	Walter Pazzio	10 days
Salvatore Perrise	60 days	Frank Seppa	30 days	Anna Valerno	10 days
Agnes Simchesen	60 days	Gabriel Panarisi	30 days	John Zewesky	10 days
Mike Huba	60 days	Louis Tulesko	30 days	John Pelstar	10 days
Barbara Gracony	60 days	Angelo Piverette	30 days	Sophie Schultz	10 days
		Louis Tulesko	30 days

American Workers Will Never Forget the Big Passaic Textile Strike!
(an historic struggle to organize the unorganized)

And American Labor Must Not Forget the Victims of the Textile Barons

GIVE!

Collect in Your Union.
Collect in Your Shop.
A Contribution From Your Organization.

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE
743 Main Avenue, Room 14
Passaic, New Jersey

THE JOINT DEFENSE & RELIEF COMMITTEE

1533

sends

May Day Greetings

on behalf of the

IMPRISONED CLOAKMAKERS AND FURRIERS

to the

AMERICAN WORKERS

SHOE WORKERS
CARPENTERS
PLUMBERS
FOOD WORKERS
AND OTHERS
WE NEED YOUR HELP!
OFFICE WORKERS
PAINTERS
MILLINERY WORKERS
METAL WORKERS

The Needle Trades Workers

fought for an improvement of the conditions of the entire American working class. They made the sacrifice to establish in this country the five-day, 40-hour week. Their strong unions under the guidance of loyal leadership won the demand after a struggle in which the furriers were on strike for 17 weeks, and the cloakmakers 25 weeks. Every effort was made to break their strikes and when their ranks held firm they were in each case exposed to treachery from within, in the person of the official leadership of the A. F. of L., in unison with the presidents of their International unions. In each case the traitorous bureaucracy failed. The strikes were won.

The bureaucracy believes in the principle of efficiency unionism, that is—greater production for the bosses rather than better working conditions for the workers. They guarantee plenty of highly skilled workers to the bosses, rather than plenty of good jobs to the workers. The needle workers were not in accord with their principle so they proclaimed that the unions were opposed to the A. F. of L. and must therefore be smashed.

Workers who led in resistance to their attempts at reorganization into boss-controlled unions have been torn from their wives and children and thrown into jail on all sorts of framed-up charges, based on their work as pickets during the strike. The leaders of the furriers, especially, have been exposed to frame-ups and held incommunicato while the bosses, taking advantage of the opportunity declared a lockout in an effort to drive the workers to register in the Woll, McGrady, Frayne, dual unions.

Family men whose reputations and records are of the best, are among the earliest victims, and it was only when the attack failed that the leaders were framed up. Although a jury in the Klan ridden town of Mineola could find no excuse, aside from the charges of a stoolpigeon and a scab, on which to base a decision of guilty, nine leading furriers were sent to jail while the case against Gold and Shapiro fell down so completely that the jury was compelled to declare them not guilty. Immediately they were rearrested on the same charge through a legal technicality, and on May 2nd they come to trial again.

The case of J. Goretzky, manager of Local 35, I. L. G. W. U., who is held on $25,000 bail comes up before the openly prejudiced Judge Rosalsky on May 9th.

Over fifty workers are in jail. Many more face serious charges. Their wives and children need relief. Their cases must be fought to a finish through the courts. To abandon them means a surrender to the bureaucracy which hopes to frighten the mass of the workers with the terrible example that has been made of these men.

Assisting the bureaucracy are the bosses, the Klan, the American Legion and the police. These elements furnish the money to carry on the fight against the unions. The unions can depend only on the workers.

The Cloakmakers and Furriers know this and they are giving the defense magnificent support. This is not enough. All other workers must help.

The defeat of the needle trades unions means the defeat of the entire American Labor Movement. Today they attack the needle trades, tomorrow it may be your own union. This will result in a setback that will require years to overcome. The victory in the five day, 40 hour week fight will be lost, and with it will be lost all hope of extending this gain to the rest of the workers.

THE FIGHT OF THE CLOAKMAKERS AND FURRIERS IS THE FIGHT OF EVERY WORKER IN EVERY TRADE AND INDUSTRY

EVERY WORKER MUST HELP!

THE DEFENSE NEEDS YOU! READ THE FOLLOWING CAREFULLY AND ACT!

COLLECT ARTICLES FOR THE BAZAAR
BRING IN YOUR BAZAAR HONOR ROLL
WITH PLENTY OF NAMES
SELL TICKETS FOR THE BAZAAR

We call on every worker to buy a dollar certificate at once in the $100,000 Fund Roll Call Drive.

Be sure your certificate is stamped with the official seal accompanied by the special certificate receipt.

DEFENSE BAZAAR

MERCHANDISE AT HALF PRICE

Everything for the Family

Thursday Saturday MAY Friday Sunday

12, 13, 14, 15

Summer and Winter Outfits

Men's New Style Straw Hats

A FINE RESTAURANT

STAR CASINO

107th Street and Park Avenue

DANCING EVERY NIGHT — CONTINUOUS CONCERTS

JOINT DEFENSE AND RELIEF COMMITTEE CLOAKMAKERS AND FURRIERS

41 Union Square, Room 714, New York, N. Y.

STAND BEHIND THE IMPRISONED CLOAKMAKERS & FURRIERS

Do you like to see the imprisoned Cloakmakers and Furriers in Jail?

Do you like to see their families suffering and in want?

Do you like to see other active union members now under charges sentenced to long prison terms?

If not, fill out the Certificate printed in the advertisement of the Committee and mail it to the office with One Dollar.

This reply will encourage the mass of workers to keep up their fight for a clean union.

The necessity is so great that even if you have already given, we ask you to give again, and sign this Roll Call.

CUT OUT THIS CERTIFICATE AND SEND IT OR BRING IT IN WITH ONE DOLLAR

We call upon all Workers to support the 100,000 Dollar Drive of the Joint Defense and Relief Committee, Cloakmakers and Furriers.

(Signed) BEN GOLD, LOUIS HYMAN.

$1

THE 100,000 ROLL CALL DOLLAR FUND

Joint Defense and Relief Committee, Cloakmakers and Furriers
Room 714, 41 Union Square, New York City

I hereby contribute One Dollar to the need of freeing the imprisoned Cloakmakers and Furriers, defending those under indictment and raising relief for their families.

Name _____

Address _____

$1

Joint Defense & Relief Committee, Furriers & Cloakmakers, 41 Union Sq., Room 714
Other stations at Local 22, 16 W. 21st St., or the Joint Boards of the Cloakmakers and Furriers.
Be sure your Certificate is stamped with the official seal, accompanied by the special certificate receipt.

CUT OUT THIS CERTIFICATE AND SEND IT OR BRING IT IN WITH ONE DOLLAR

HELP TILL ALL THE IMPRISONED CLOAKMAKERS AND FURRIERS ARE FREE! SEND IN YOUR CONTRIBUTION TODAY!

On The New Road

By S. SLOBODSKY

[illegible] the end of February the Fascist Press published [illegible] the expulsion [illegible] of the seven traitors of the Italian Confederation of Labour. Having [illegible] control of the C. C. L. these traitors [illegible] were quite the servile tools of the fascists. On the [illegible] 26th of February at one of the factories in Milan the most representatives of the G. C. L. held a conference, which proceeded to the world—and no less to America—that the G. C. L. was not dead, that the workingmen decided to take matters into their own hands. They proclaimed that the struggle against fascism and the bourgeoisie will not be suspended; on the contrary, under the leadership elected by the workingmen itself, it will be carried on more resolutely than ever.

This conference was illegally convened on the initiative of three left federations. It was attended by delegates of dozens of woodworkers, business employees and hotel and restaurant workers, metal workers, transport workers, printers, chemical workers, textile workers and food workers. Representatives of the Trade Councils of Milan, Turin, Trieste, Bologna, Genoa, Rome, Naples, Bergamo and Vicenza and from a number of local trade union bodies also participated. The conference received greetings and expressions of solidarity from the "Bolshevik" Debate, the Agricultural Workers' Union of Apulia and from a number of individuals. Besides the Communists, there were also reformist and unaffiliated delegates at the conference.

Decisions of the Conference.

The conference at which complete unanimity prevailed declared the liquidation of the G. C. L. intact and elected a provisional committee to direct the work of the confederation. Reformists, maximalists and Communists (who were in the majority), belong to the committee. A decision was taken to join the C. G. L., Amsterdam must be situated in Italy, and demanded that Amsterdam recognize the organization as the only one having the right to represent the Italian proletariat. It was decided to re-organize the trade unions along new lines, making the factory committee the basic trade union unit. Membership cards are shortly issued.

The provisional committee was charged to convene an All-Union Congress to work out a program of action for the trade union movement and to elect a permanent executive bureau.

A Reformist's Admission.

Very remarkable is the statement made at this conference by a well-known and responsible reformist worker in the executive committee of the G. C. L.:

"I came to the conference today," he said, "to make the following statement: You know that I always bitterly fought any attempt on your part (the Communists) to get control of the G. C. L.

"I always thought—although this proved an illusion—that the distinct division between the social-democrats and the Communists would guarantee personal and trade-union freedom, at all events for the social-democrats, and that the latter could continue their work of defending workingclass interests under a regime if only of comparative freedom. I repeat that this proved an illusion. After unsuccessful experiments we get to know better. Today, I belong to those workers—to those social-democrats, who confronted with the choice of two dictatorships prefer and choose the dictatorship of the proletariat. I, therefore, state that all my sympathies are with Communism, which I will understood as a world-outlook, but against which I was struggling, being one of the opposite camp. Today, I have finished with them. It is with these considerations that I appeal to social-democratic comrades: we must do everything to get the support of the masses for Communism. Once we are smashed by reactionary methods—methods incredibly reactionary, by a dictatorship which is considered such even from the capitalist point of view—for has not the masked constitutional forms also been discarded—all our efforts must be directed to get the workingmasses to join the Communist Party, which is theoretically and organizationally better prepared for the struggle with the dictatorship of the bourgeoisie."

Reformist Methods

This statement of a reformist worker who for many years part was actively fighting the Communists is exceedingly symptomatic for it throws light on the feelings among the working masses of Italy. It exhibits the methods used by reformist leaders to control the working masses. It shows how reformist workers who could not otherwise but feel in complete sympathy with the USSR and the Russian proletariat, who on every occasion manifested their sympathy—permitted the exclusion of Communists from the trade unions and allowed the trade unions to be incapacitated in face of fascist reaction.

They believed the assertions of the opportunist leaders that in steering clear of the Communists, that by keeping "clean" of them, reformist unions would be able to continue their existence under the fascist regime. Their leaders assured them that with submission and loyalty the fascists could be persuaded to allow the legal existence of the unions. This is the justification for their opportunist and treacherous policy. Step by step the reformist leaders closed down the trade union organizations, day by day they capitulated to fascism for the sake of saving their "personal and trade union freedom." The results of this policy are now conspicuously clear and the anger and dismay of the workers are equalled only by their contempt for these traitors. What is more important in this statement is the fact that it was made not before the representatives of a victorious Communist Party, not in a moment of triumph or rise in the labor movement of Italy—but at an illegal meeting in the presence of thirty representatives of the workers, who risking their lives and their freedom has gathered at a time when fascist reaction was rampant and at its worst.

Shared Workers' Needs.

This clearly demonstrates that the foremost elements of the labor movement, the most honest and steady workers of the trade unions have maintained their connections with the rank and file, have shared their needs and hopes and despair and have learnt the bitter lessons of recent years They realize now that the road to victory is through national and international unity under the slogan of the Communist Party. The feeling among the Italian workers prompted the maximalist workers who at one time was in the leading organs of the Trades Council and in the Metal Workers' Union of Milan to participate also at this conference.

"My comrades," he declared, "in deciding to send me to the conference said: 'Go, but with conditions.' But I put up no conditions. My comrades are intellectuals. I am a worker. As my conscience dictates so will I act."

As indeed, the Milan conference is the expression of the revolutionary consciousness of the Italian proletariat. The impulse for unity, the incentive to take up the struggle, which for so many years had been held up by the leaders of the G. C. L. and socialist parties, is now once again crystallizing into concrete forms.

The Black Cities

By BERNARD COFFIN

I WONDER if the [illegible] suddenly in his face, a pe[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [

The COMRADE
Published by the Young
Struggle for Workers'

Young SECTION
Pioneers of America
and Farmers' Children

CELEBRATE MAY DAY

May 1 is known to millions and poor farmers and toilers all over the world as the day they gave their lives that we might celebrate May Day. It is the one day in the year that workers and poor farmers are united against their enemies and are willing to fight them until we have a workers' and poor farmers' government instead of a capitalist government.

May Day is a workers' holiday. It was started in America and has been celebrated through the world ever since. But it is not like this, as they gave us a holiday in September. But not mind Father May It on May 1.

The children of the working class should also celebrate May Day. When they are also a part of the class struggle. When they are interested in fighting for a workers' and farmers' government. They know that it is a workers' government, the Soviet Russia that is the only friend, and that is a worker's country. They will do as they always do. They would like a workers' government, provided with schools, books, music and all things that go to make strong, healthy and intelligent children.

They know they can get these things only in a workers' and Farmers' Government. That's why they are interested in May Day.

OUR LETTER BOX

Dear Comrades: My father obtained two lots from the collector of the Potash works. My father could not pay it so he went to the workers for my father's lots. He went to the workers and got the whole amount. It was very hard to collect the money. Though the workers are willing, they are unemployed and cannot help much. My father had to collect the money from the workers. Anyway we did collect the money.

Every night I see the dead men on the streetcar and on the streets. All workers should fight like that and those would be no more hunger.

MARY MAHAROKUS.

Back to School

Dear Comrades: I will not be in Sweden, this is Spain. Now I am in the fourth church empty and cold. Sometimes I feel I don't know what I am doing. I don't know why God let us suffer. I would like to know what you think you've learned in Spain. I think you learn to fight them. I think you have to go and that is where they are. You should think until your body is dead. We don't say anything. We don't know his comrades fight Franco.

Now the fascists are in all the world "strikes." Now they are in Spain. I will say here and tell the other children that they should think workers are people that don't want to work, and if they do, they are not people. I will close. Yrs. Now that's my letter. I hope that you have a place about three and a half feet high and quite handy enough money to buy food and clothes. Bye bye. "You may sit down."

My letter is not very long. Now I must go to my school to see something about "strikers" as maybe happens. I'll say b.—MARGARET YUHAS.

NOTICE!!!

Have you read the story in the Young Comrade? If not, why not? Don't fail to read it. Send in to the Young Comrade Corner, 35 East First Street, New York City, for a free sample copy of the Young Comrade.

FUNNY!

Johnny was a little late for school. When the day was over the girls and boys made Johnny stay that he and C. Thought that the teacher gave geography and not arithmetic. "Johnny, what is a sea?" Johnny replied, "Please, teacher, I don't see how I can find out from here." HARRY WINTER.

Answer to Picture Puzzle

By [illegible] KOSUL

The picture published in the Young Comrade of May 1st showed children [illegible] food [illegible] The workers are compelled to [illegible] the right to have food for their children. [illegible] because they have not work, or [illegible] because [illegible] strikes them in. [illegible] who do not have to work for their [illegible] children in luxury. This will continue [illegible] capitalists will rule the workers. [illegible] us to win our independence.

When America Will Be Like Russia

By EMMA FALL

The rich man child likes the fun,
He has these years,
But when America is like Russia
He won't be anything but tears.

2.

When America is another Russia,
We'll have the fun,
Of seeing the rich capitalists
Working until the day is done.

KNOCKING HIM OUT

(By Sam Silver)

The Chinese Workmen and Farmers are getting rid of the foreigners.

THE LITTLE GREY DOG

(Continued.)

At evening, tired, he would crawl into the hut, bury his head in the hide of the gray dog, cry, and dog would lick his salty face.

One evening, his back all bloody and his face swollen, Benjamin came home. The overseer had been in a bad temper, had beaten the little boy with a whip and hit him in the face with his fist.

"I could do it," cried Benjamin, while the dog softly and gently licked his wound. "I can't stand it any longer. My parents are gone, I am entirely alone, and everyone is unkind to me. Dog, dear dog, what shall I do?"

"Run away," replied the dog.

"Where to? They will catch me and beat me again."

The dog thought hard for a while.

"We must go north," said he at last. "There people are better than they are here. They do not want the Negroes to be slaves. We must run away there."

"I don't know the way," complained Benjamin.

"I will lead you. Morning and night, when everybody is asleep, we will go."

And so it happened. The moon was a small white sickle in the sky, the great trees leaned weird, black shadows on the earth, all was deathly quiet, only once in a while the leaves rustled sleepily. Benjamin and the dog ran swiftly on their tiptoes, out of the [illegible] and went toward the great river. All night they wandered along the side of the river, and when morning came the dog looked for a safe hiding place, for the short legs of little Benjamin had not carried him very far, and there was still the danger that the servants of the rich man might trace him.

(To Be Continued.)

THE LITTLE WORKER

By JULIA KRUGLEWICZ.

I am a little worker,
And my mother is too.
But my father is sick in bed,
So I work the whole day thru.

BE A BUILDER

LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE

The answer to last week's puzzle No. 11 is: Young Comrade. The following have answered correctly:

Anna Cohen, Phila., Pa.; Dora Dale, Phila, Pa.; Sylvia Mazder, New York City; Vera Rosinsky, New York City.

More Answers to Puzzle No. 10

Helge Roos, Bklyn, N. Y.; Vera Rosinsky, New York City; Jannis Lukashewich, Utica, N. Y.; Raymond Kozul, So. Chicago, Ill.; Esther De Hoyos, Endicott, N. Y.; Rudolph Bronesky, Chicago, Ill.; Sylvia Nusitak, Negaunee, Mich.; Lillian Zager, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Max Sonnenschein, Chicago, Ill.; Lee Wolin, Chicago, Ill.; Anna Tuhy, Chicago, Ill.; Leara Borin, New York City; Norman Heikin, Los Angeles, Calif.

More Answers to Puzzle No. 9

Liberto Vifarino, Inglewood, Calif.

THIS WEEK'S PUZZLE NO. 12

This week's puzzle is a new one. Fill in the missing letters and see what you get. Let's go.

Th— w—rke—s a— d ch—ldr—n a—l or —e t—r wor—d hop— th—t t—e Chi—ese pe—p—e w—ll g—t r—d of their oppr—ss—rs and e—tabl—sh a Sov—et Chi—a.

Send all your answers to Daily Worker, Young Comrade Corner, 35 East First Street, New York City, stating your name, age, address and number of puzzle.

WHY WE HAVE STRIKES

By ANNA SHARUPSKA.

Why do we have strikes?

We have strikes because the rich boss does not pay the poor hard working men fair. The rich millionaire boss does not care, and makes the poor man work hard, so hard and pays so little that the workers cannot stand it.

The poor man goes and asks the boss if he would pay more, but pooh! He would laugh it off.

Take for instance, Henry Ford, he makes the worker work five days and eight hours a day. He says he pay six days work for five days. He does not. He makes the men work so hard and make him do so much and pays such low wages that the people do not buy automobiles because they cannot buy so much, so the man has to quit because there is no more work to do.

We children of the working family unite all together, knock these millionaires down and be divided equally and paid fair. Then when we work together and be paid fair we all would be happy and contented. Then would we need strikes? No! Because we all would be paid fair and all of us would work.

MAY DAY

Are you going to cerebrate May Day with the Young Pioneer? If you are, then we will meet you on Saturday, April 30 at 525 East 72nd Street, at 1.30 sharp. You will surely enjoy the program that we will have there. It will consist of recitations, a play, a dance and musical numbers. After the concert we will all leave the hall and hike to Central Park, where we will have lots of games, acrobatic stunts, etc. All working class children who live in the city should be down if they want to have a wonderful time.

RUTHENBERG SUB BLANK

May Day is here. The workers and children all over the world, as well as in America, are going to celebrate this day as they have in previous years. They will come to many meetings and listen to many well-known speakers. But there is one well-known speaker who will not be there. He will not be there, because he is dead, and he sure will be missed. We children of the workingclass can help a little in making up for his loss, by getting subscriptions for the Young Comrade, the children's newspaper that spread Ruthenberg's ideas.

Send your subs to the Young Comrade Corner, 35 East First Street, New York City.

½ Year Sub 25c. 1 Year Sub 50c.

Name .....Age.....

Address .....

City .....State .....

Issued Every Month

May Day and the Soviet Union

By ALEX BITTELMAN

THE Soviet Union is undoubtedly the dearest possession of the international workingclass of today. Every hour of the existence of the Soviet Union strengthens the workers and weakens the capitalists. Every new achievement in the building of socialism in the Soviet Union marks a fresh step forward in the development of the world revolution. To celebrate May Day is to celebrate the victory of the masses over their oppressors in what was formerly the empire of the czars, landlords and capitalists, and re-dedicate ourselves to uncompromising struggle for the liberation of the toilers the world over.

May Day has become a symbol of international workingclass solidarity and struggle against capitalism. It has become a symbol of determined opposition and militant struggle against imperialism and imperialist war. It has become the day of concentration and mobilization of hundreds of thousands of workers to demonstrate readiness to fight for the abolition of capitalism and for the establishment of the rule of the workingclass.

What is symbolic in May Day has become actual, living reality in the Soviet Union. International workingclass solidarity, the consciousness and spirit that transcends the boundaries of state, language, race, color, creed and religion, the power that merges millions of exploited and oppressed throughout the world into an inspired and determined army of struggle against capitalism—these are the things that are incorporated in May Day, and these are the forces that brought about the downfall of czarism and capitalism in Russia. These are the forces that will inevitably bring about the downfall of capitalism all over the world.

The Unfolding of the World Revolution.

When capitalist politicians get into difficultion they invariably blame the so-called "machinations" of the Soviet government. This has become a regular practice with capitalist statesmen. It has almost reached the point of a new political science for the administration of capitalist affairs of state. Which is, of course, nothing else but a dishonest, demagogic trick of raising hostility to the Soviet Union and of covering up the failures of the capitalist governments.

It is sheer nonsense to believe, as Secretary Kellogg would like us to, that the Mexican government is dominated by Bolsheviks and that therefore it becomes the "sacred duty" of the American government to interfere in Mexican affairs. Of course, we do not expect Secretary Kellogg or any of his colleagues to speak the truth in the matter. For a truthful account of American policy in Mexico would disclose the well-known fact that it is the profits and the power of exploitation of American capitalists that the American government is defending in Mexico. Such an account would also disclose the fact that big American capital, particularly our oil and copper magnates, is wildly cherishing the ambition of destroying Mexico's national independence and to do with Mexico what American capital has done with the Philippine Islands, Porto Rico, Haiti, and what is now being accomplished in Nicaragua. War with Mexico to subdue and conquer it for the greater glory and profits of American big capital—that is what the rulers of America desire.

Is it to be expected that Secretary Kellogg would tell this story in so many words? Naturally, not. He would not be what he is, a big capitalist himself and a true servant of big capital generally, if he were to tell the truth about Mexico. So he does something else. While he is engaged in terrorizing and blackmailing the Mexican government and the Mexican people to submit to the exploitation of American imperialism, he at the same time sets up a smoke screen of "Bolshevist dangers" and "Soviet intrigues" to frighten the innocent and to confuse the traces of the real intrigues of American capitalists against the independence of Mexico.

The Soviet government is also made to blame for "our" troubles in Nicaragua which is even more ridiculous and brazen than the charge of Bolshevist "intrigues" in Mexico. In China, which is passing through the most heroic and epoch-making struggle for its liberation from the yoke of foreign imperialism, a struggle which is caused by the brutal rule of English, American, Japanese, French, etc. imperialists and which derives its strength from the spirit of rebellion against oppression inspiring millions of toilers in China, this tremendous social upheaval is also attributed to the "intrigues" of the Soviet government. Chamberlain, manager of the foreign affairs of British capitalism, is particularly skilfull in the game of "blame it on the Soviets." Foreign ministers of other capitalist governments are studiously copying these methods of Chamberlain.

But what is the truth? The world revolution is continuing to unfold itself with greater sweep and vigor. It travels now along two wide paths. The ever growing strength and socialist stabilization of the Soviet Union is one path along which the world revolution is unfolding itself, and the other path is the uprising of the oppressed colonial peoples, particularly the nationalist revolution in China. The two world revolutionary factors are steadily undermining the structure of world capitalism and bringing closer the day of its eventual collapse.

Capitalist statesmen watch these developments and understand their meaning. Capitalist governments are drawing conclusions from these developments and the result is the preparation for a large scale war on China, similar preparations for an attack on the Soviet Union, the opening up of the basic antagonisms between the big capitalist powers and the danger of a world imperialist war.

The so-called impatience of the British government with the Soviet government is to be explained not by some mysterious complexion of the former, but by the very real and substantial successes of the socialist development of the Soviet Union. The unity and nervousness of capitalist politicians over Russia is caused not by what they term "the red propaganda" but by the tremendous force of the inspiration that is emanating from the positive achievements of the toiling masses in the Soviet Union. It is the example of the success and rapidly upward development of socialism in the Soviet Union. It is the ever growing sympathy of the international workingclass for the Soviet Union and the revolutionizing effects of these developments upon the militant structure of the toiling masses of the world over, that is driving fear into the heart of world capitalism and is causing the imperialist preparation for an attack upon the Workers Republic.

The same is true with the developments in Soviet China. The success of the Chinese revolution spells the end of imperialist domination in China. It means the loss of a tremendously rich source of superprofits for the capitalists of Great Britain, America, Japan, etc., with which to maintain most favorable fully capitalist domination at home. In short, the success of the Chinese revolution means a death blow at world capitalism and imperialism.

It is through the socialist upbuilding of the Soviet Union and through the upward swing of the Chinese revolution that the world revolution is proceeding forward at the present time. And in the periods of the depression of capitalism such mass forces are becoming revolutionized. In the mad struggle are becoming revolutionized the oppressed nations in the colonial and semi-colonial countries. Thus the world revolution is unfolding itself with ever growing steadiness and consistency.

In the celebration of May Day this year we shall remember the historic significance of the epoch in which we live. We shall express by our demonstrations our realization of the fact that that the Soviet Union is the greatest achievement of the workingclass in the history of its struggles. And together with the slogan "Hands Off China" and "Down With Imperialist War," we shall also demand: "Hands Off the Soviet Union. Immediate Recognition and Resumption of Complete Trade Relations With the Soviet Union."

ELECTRICITY AND GOD

(Continued from Page 2)

in behalf of god, religion, the devil—and what not! Many of them are doing it. And this is why one can see lately frequent attempts to betrooth the still young science to the old decrepit god. Every new and then someone of the learned gentry solemnly announces that science not only does not disprove, but on the contrary, confirms the existence of god.

And herein is the substance and the purpose of Professor Pripin's "learned" effusion. Of course, he doesn't say that god created in six days everything out of nothing, that he made Adam from clay and Eve from Adam's rib, as this wouldn't be exactly scientific and in the spirit of our materialistic age.

Therefore Professor Pripin eliminates from his "theory" of the electro-divine creation of the world that mysterious biblical "nothing" and replaces it by the electrons and protons: "God employed the heavenly host of electronic workers to build the atoms, the molecules and the galaxies of burning stars," and everything else above, underneath and between the stars, among other things our own little planet and together with it our sinful race. Our worthy professor, of course, doesn't forget to emphasize the "mystery" of the origin of the tiny electron: "God created them and god only knows when, where and how."

So, everything springs from that tiny electron. In it is that "mysterious beginning of all beginnings."

The same old story, the same ecclesiastic bunk about the creation of the world disguised in a pseudo-scientific "theory."

Of course, Professor Pripin knows that it's all bunk. He knows that not so very long ago the atom Now we know that it isn't so, that the "indivisible" microorganism, the "beginning of all beginnings." Now we know that it isn't so that the "indivisible" atom is but a conglomeration of billions of electrons. Some nice day the electron will also lose its "indivisibility" and its "primogeniture." Then God will be compelled to recreate, with the kind assistance of the learned gentry, the entire vast universe from some other microorganism, still smaller than the electron.

However, the time is nearing when it will be unnecessary and impossible for the scientists to sell their knowledge, when they will unselfishly help humanity free itself of all its gods, all its primitive beliefs, superstitions and prejudices and build a better, sensible life.

It isn't inopportune to add that in the poor and "backward" Soviet Union electricity plays one of the most important roles in the building up of such a life (remember Lenin's words: "If Russia will be covered with a thick network of electric stations and powerful technical equipments, then our Communist economy shall serve as a model for the coming Socialist Europe and Asia).

So it is in the Soviet Union. But here, in the rich, "enlightened" and "civilized" America the scientists are trying, it appears, to employ electricity for the very opposite purpose.

Moral Inspiration at the C. M. T. C.

SILENCE.

Mine is a song that millions sing
Mine is a melody that flows
From a million hearts; a peasant knows
My tune far better than a king.

And though I seem to sing alone
I feel the throb in every breast
A throb divine yet unexpressed
A universal undertone.

My heart is hope whene'er I hark
The magic mumblings of the mass
The struggling symphonies that pass
Into my soul from out the dark.

From out the dark, from out the deep
A chorus of a silence rare
Murmuring ever "Rise and dare"
The world is still but not asleep.

—By ZING.

...NDS Off CHINA! STOP Attack ON THE SOVIET UNION!

FIRST SECTION

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter ... Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 92. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $4.00 per year. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

Current Events

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE MICHIGAN MANUFACTURER AND FINANCIAL RECORD is considerably exercised because a representative, John Holland by name, introduced a bill in the legislature providing for the limitation of work in all state factories to eight hours a day and the imposition of a fine in the form of time and half for overtime on any employer working his help beyond the specified hour-limit. Should the employer flout the law and pay only straight time or nothing at all for the extra hours worked Mr. Holland would assess the refractory employer anything from $50 to $500 for each offense.

* * *

FAR be it from the indignant organ of big business to commiserate with the employer in his tribulation at the hands of this peculiar legislator. It is for the worker's liberty that the paper does battle. "This is a characteristic privation of liberty of the workingman, in whose alleged interest it is presented" says the "Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record." Suppose the worker chose to work his overtime for nothing. Any citizen may make a donation of his property to anyone whom he chooses. Suppose he desired to make donations of his labor. Under such measure as Mr. Holland presents, he couldn't even have that liberty."

* * *

NOW, I am sure you are all convinced that this man Holland is an undesirable citizen who would Bolshevize this country and reduce the workers thereof to a very low ethical and social level by robbing them of the god-given right to work for nothing if they saw fit. Let us suppose by way of illustration that the daughter of a manufacturer wanted to divorce a count so that she could marry a prince. She would need extra money to buy off the count in order to purchase the prince. And suppose her father's loyal slaves were willing to contribute a few extra hours of labor to the marital experiments of their employer's daughter. Holland's bill, if passed into law would be the means of leaving a useless count on a fair lady's arm and a lonely prince pining away in his garret or gazing thru restaurant windows at food he could not buy.

* * *

THE American workers are more capitalistically-minded than is good for them. Too many of them believe that without capitalists there would be no work for them to do, no food for them to eat and no clothes for them to wear. They do not realize that the boss hires them in order to profit from their labor rather than to play the role of a humanitarian in business for the purpose of pitching food in the mouths of the hungry. But we dare say that a canvass of the workingclass population of the United States would not subscribe to the indignation professed by "The Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record" over the introduction of Holland's bill. They would exchange a lot of abstract freedom for a few hours out of the factory or time and half for extra hours inside of it.

* * *

HERE is a human interest story with a kick: William Keuntze of Hoboken finds $34.75 in his envelope on every pay day. Mrs. Keuntze puts her trade mark on $34.25 of that amount and she agreed that her reckless husband could hold on to the balance, provided he spent it on a daily paper, a five cent cigar and a weekly package of chewing gum. Evidently William was saving his allowance, which made Mrs. Keuntze duly suspicious. "I believe he wanted to squander that fifty cents on other women," she told the judge. His honor being a man of the world could not see what a fellow could do nowadays in view of the high cost of living, with fifty cents, so he dismissed the case, returning Mr. Keuntze to the status quo, but the fire of suspicion still bites the jealous spouse, her theory being that what Mr. Keuntze saves by the week he spends by the month.

* * *

THAT little kidnapping escapade cost Aimee Semple MacPherson dearly. Confessions should now be in order. Her life since she strayed from the desert, footsore and weary, but with her most priceless heritage intact, has been one disappointment after another. Her method broke with her, her orchestra leader left her because she bobbed her hair, and worse still, organized a rival church. The unbleached rest of all comes from the attorney who defended her against the Devil et al. in a Los Angeles court. He is suing her for $2,000, the balance of his fee for saving a beautiful soul from Satan. Old Nick is a jolly good fighter. He never quits.

* * *

CLIPPINGS come from friend and foe. A California citizen spied a

(Continued on Page Three)

ADMIT PLAN TO STOP ONLY LABOR DAILY

PLOTTING A YEAR AND HALF TO GET THE DAILY WORKER

Professional Patriots Brag of Spying

Salaried professional patriots and the organizations for which they work have been plotting for eighteen months to "get" The DAILY WORKER staff, rob the paper of its mailing privileges and railroad the editors and business manager to prison, it was stated under oath yesterday morning in the Essex Market court with Magistrate Tolleris presiding in the trial of William F. Dunne and Bert Miller.

Under the searching examination of Attorney Joseph Brodsky, George L. Darte admitted that he is the paid "adjutant-general" of the Military Order of the World War, that the organization is incorporated, is composed exclusively of ex-army officers, has its headquarters in Washington, D. C. and that he had personally notified the postmaster-general of the publication of the poem America on which the charge is based.

Read Daily For Year

... also testified that he had ... The DAILY WORKER "religiously" for a year and a half and that this was the first time he had ever felt impelled to register a complaint with the postoffice and police authorities.

Darte parades the title of "captain" in addition to adjutant-general.

George Seitz, who described himself as "a research worker" for the Keymen of America, testified that his job was to furnish information—he would not say about what or to whom.

"What kind of an organization is this Keymen of America?", asked Attorney Brodsky. Seitz replied that he knew little about it.

"Is it a Communist organization?

(Continued on Page Two)

Labor's Candidates Continue to Attract Big Passaic Crowds

PASSAIC, N. J. April 29.—An enthusiastic campaign rally was held here tonight for the labor candidates at Ukranian Hall. It was jammed by workers eager to hear the workingclass speakers.

Weisbord Applauded.

Albert Weisbord, who led the 14 months textile strike was greeted by applause as he spoke on the local situation pointing out that only the working class itself is capable of solving its own problems. He referred to the need of providing work for the unemployed saying that the city should immediately start road construction work. The need of a labor party was also taken up.

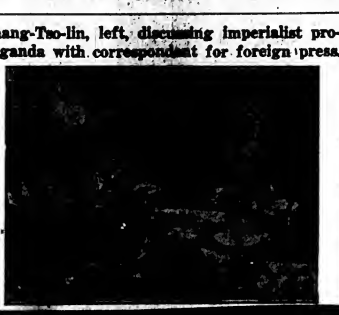
Bert Miller Speaks.

Bert Miller, business manager of the DAILY WORKER, said that "Passaic has been the keynote for all the unorganized workers throughout the country. The slogan of 'organizing the unorganized' has been taken up by the workers all over this land."

Sylvan Pollack of The DAILY WORKER told the assembled workers that not only the questions of local interest should be discussed but they also should give attention to world wide politics.

A May Day celebration will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Workers' Home, 27 Dayton Ave. A large number of workers' children are expected to be present.

Addresses Two Large Meetings.



Weisbord spoke at two large meetings Thursday evening. At the Civic Forum conducted by the Italian-American Association he told the Italian workers, among the lowest paid and most exploited, how they have been kept in subjection and allowed to do only the most dirty work.

Sacco-Vanzetti.

He also pointed out that with the exception of the labor candidates the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti has been ignored. More than 200 were present at the meeting.

Weisbord received a fine reception at Public School 3 where he also spoke. More than 300 people were present.

Chang-Tso-lin, left, discussing imperialist propaganda with correspondent for foreign press.

Jersey Cossack Is Jailed As Robber; Active In Strike

PASSAIC, N. J., April 29.—Officer "Whitie" Adamchesky has been suspended and arrested on an alleged charge of implication with a robbery.

This copper sustained a great record during the textile strike as one of the most cruel cossacks that ever wore a uniform. His record for beating up and manhandling strikers has gone down in the history of Passaic and vicinity.

Elections are coming up in Garfield soon where Adamchesky was on the police force. The mayor and others representing the millowners are out for office as councilmen. The workers will have a labor ticket to represent the workers and not the millowners and their tools on the police force.

Freed, Claims False Arrest.

SEATTLE, April 29.—Freed by the jury trying him on charges of slaying a 14-year-old girl, Dr. Chester C. Dobbs, Kirkland dentist, planned a suit for false arrest against Sheriff Claude G. Bannick today.

Bannick, it was alleged, arrested the dentist without a warrant when the body of Letitia Whitehall, one of Dobb's patients, was found floating in a slough. An autopsy showed the young girl had been drugged and attacked.

Autoist Kills Woman; Flees.

Propped against the wall on Riverside Drive at 197th street, the body of a well-dressed woman about 32, apparently the victim of a hit-and-

Catholic Boss of Boston Gets Out Of Vanzetti's Way

BOSTON, April 29. — Cardinal O'Connell, political and religious boss of Boston, straddled the fence today on the Sacco-Vanzetti issue by refusing to intervene with the Massachusetts courts which have condemned them to burn, while giving permission to Governor Fuller to review the case if he wishes to.

O'Connell has maintained silence on the case the two innocent workers until now, although privately he has been known to be viciously prejudiced because Sacco and Vanzetti are atheists. Yielding to the pressure of labor in his own city, the cardinal admitted that he would not oppose the governor's review of the facts.

Eruption At Reunion Island.

PARIS, April 29.—Volcanic eruptions and earthquakes have caused considerable damage in reunion island, the French colony in the Indian Ocean, according to dispatches received here.

Eruptions raised the river bed thirty yards resulting in floods, which carried away a factory, a theatre and a bridge at St. Benoist. One person was drowned.

Carpenter Killed.

Kenneth Dunn, 22, is dead today as the result of internal injuries and a compound fracture of the right leg suffered when he fell four stories to the ground while working with a gang of carpenters on an addition under construction at the plant of the National Sugar Refining Company in Yonkers.

COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL DECLARES CHANG'S "DOCUMENTS" ABOUT ITS CHINESE ACTIVITIES SPURIOUS; SECRET TRIAL FOR MADAME BORODIN

British Union Heads in Conference Against No Strike Bill of Tories

LONDON, April 29.—Representatives of 4,000,000 British trade unionists met today in Kingsway Hall to complete plans for a campaign to fight the government's proposed bill for the control of trade unions.

Although George Hicks, chairman of the Trades Union Congress, announced that "labor forces will fight the bill to the bitter end," the convention indicated early in its session that it would take considered action.

Communists proposed a real strike to force the withdrawal of the bill.

BLAST LEVEE TO TURN BIG RIVER ON POOR FARMERS

Militia, Plague, Famine Add to Flood Horrors

POYDRAS, La., April 29.—The Poydras crevasse on the east bank of the Mississippi, twelve miles below New Orleans was blasted at 2:17 p. m. today in a supreme attempt to break the back of the valley's most devastating flood in history.

Guns and Deadline.

Virtual martial law prevailed from day-break today in the territory in which the levee line was to be ripped open with dynamite. State troops patrolled the highways and fast river boats with armed guardsmen aboard maintained a dead line across the river.

Airplanes flew over the doomed region to give final warning to scattered residents who were either unaware that the river was to be turned upon them, or unwilling to leave their possessions to the yellow torrent. Three hundred people were believed by state officials to be in the sacrificed territory at day-break.

Some stragglers still made their way to New Orleans. A few others apparently, were preparing to take their chances on high spots in the vicinity of their farms and gardens.

Ruins Two Parishes.

The Poydras dynamiting already has gone into history as the $2,000,000 blast, that being conservative official estimate of the property loss involved to St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes.

New Orleans for the most part went about her business quite as usual—almost nonchalantly—as she has during the entire period of the flood, apparently convinced that the man-made volcano at Poydras would remove the last menace to their city. In the concentration camps in which the lowland refugees are being carefully housed, and in the relatively limited official areas in which final preparations were made for the grim ordeal of uncorking the Mississippi system, an atmosphere of tension prevailed.

* * *

Militia and Plague Visit Flood.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 29.—With martial law impending over the Mississippi delta due to threatening epidemics Greenville, Miss., "The queen city of the delta," today ordered all Negroes to move from their homes onto the levee to bring about better sanitary conditions. Greenville has been under curfew law since Wednesday.

Flood Spreads.

Another thousand acres near Shreveport, La., was flooded last night by a break in the Louisiana Navigation Company embankment.

The lake water has been found to contain typhoid germs and red cross officials have warned the people against drinking it. Two boats today were removing all who wished to

Great Britain Reorganizes Wrangel's Army for War on Nationalist China

Chicago Kuomintang Wires Support Pledge to Hankow Government; Calls Chiang Traitor

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Britain organizing White Russian army under General Wrangel, for war against Nationalist China.

2.—Communist International brands Chang Tso-lin's statement that it is creating anti-foreign sentiment as a deliberate lie; charges Chang's "Soviet Documents" faked.

3.—Chicago Kuomintang cables support to Nationalist Government at Hankow; denounces Chiang Kai Shek as a traitor to the liberation movement.

4.—Mme. Borodin brought to Peking for "special trial."

5.—Nationalist troops repulse Chiang Kai Shek at Kiukiang.

6.—Chiang tries to forestall mass May Day demonstration in Shanghai.

BELGRADE, April 29.—General Wrangel, White Russian, whose invasions of Soviet Russia backed by the imperialist powers, were completely crushed, is organizing an army of 20,000 for service in China. Great Britain is subsidizing Wrangel again, it is reported.

Wrangel is collecting troops from Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Turkey.

MOSCOW, April 29.—Documents alleged to have been found by Chang Tso-lin in his unprecedented raids on the Soviet embassy compound at Peking were declared to be counterfeits by Communist International.

In a statement made public today, the Communist International branded Chang's documents as spurious and declared that the "accusations that the Communist International is stirring up the Chinese masses against foreigners are political lies, fabricated by foreign espionage." The charges are too ridiculous to need repudiation, the statement declares.

Substantial Backing.

Chang has been making public documents alleged to have been taken in his raids on the Soviet embassy in the hope of securing even more substantial backing from the powers that have been receiving.

That Chang has succeeded in convincing willing and credulous foreign diplomats of "Soviet plots" in China is indicated in dispatches received here. Senator Bingham of the United States is reported to have expressed sympathy for Chang Tso-lin after a perusal of the spurious documents.

M. Cherny, Soviet Chargé who had been recalled from Peking, has arrived here with his staff.

* * *

CHICAGO, April 29. — The local branch of the Kuomintang has cabled the Nationalist government at Hankow pledging its support to the liberation movement and denouncing Chiang Kai-shek as a traitor.

The cable, signed by Chao Ting-chi, resident secretary in America of the Oriental Committee of the League Against Imperialism, recently formed at Brussels, follows:

Denounce Chiang.

"Chiang Kai-shek has turned traitor. He is aiding imperialism. Destroy him. All oppressed peoples are rallying to your support."

* * *

Nationalists Hold Position.

SHANGHAI, April 29.—The Nationalist troops are holding their own in their skirmishes with Chiang Kai-shek's troops at Kiukiang, according to reports received here.

In order to forestall a monster workers' demonstration on May 1st,

(Continued on Page Two)

Sacasa Asks Latins to Judge U. S. Action in "Smothering" Nicaragua

MEXICO CITY, April 29.—Dr. Pedro Jose Zepeda, representative of Juan Sacasa, leader of the liberal movement in Nicaragua, announced today that he has sent a message to the president of the congress of international law at Rio Janeiro appealing for Latin American condemnation of the United States' policy towards Nicaragua.

13 Admirals Lead Fleet Up Hudson in Huge War Show

Uncle Sam's foreign policemen, 32,500 bluejackets, came into town yesterday. Like a circus parade, 122 men of war of the United States fleet came through the Narrows, steamed into New York harbor amid the clamorous welcome of metropolitan imperialists, and dropped anchor in the Hudson river.

Thirteen admirals and vice admirals, at the head of the fleet, were wined and dined by their capitalist bosses last night. A series of dinners and conferences are being arranged, to culminate in a dinner at the Hotel Astor on May 3, which will be attended by all the officers of the fleet. Rodman Wanamaker will be toastmaster.

The fleet is the largest aggregation of warships ever assembled in New York harbor. Even when the United States was mobilizing for the world war, yesterday's record was not approached.

No reasons for the parade could be secured from the Brooklyn Navy Yard last night. Naval officials scouted the theory that the men of war were being prepared for a trip to China, but admitted that the mobilization was part of the administration's peace-time preparedness program.

Attack on Guards of U. S. S. R. Frontier?

BERLIN, April 29.—A battle is reported here from the town of Sergiejci on the border between Poland and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Fighting between frontier guards involved the use of machine guns and hand grenades, the rumor says.

Envoy, Houghton Dines With Royalty While Insurance Quizz Peeds

LONDON, April 29.—United States Ambassador and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton will entertain King George and uuen Mary at dinner shortly according to the Daily Express.

In addition to his plenepotentiary activities Houghton acts in the capacity of director for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company whose business practices are threatened with an investigation due to pressure brought about by a series of articles now appearing in The DAILY WORKER.

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION!

FIRST SECTION

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter [illegible] Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 92. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, APRIL 30, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

Current Events

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE MICHIGAN MANUFACTURER AND FINANCIAL RECORD is considerably exercised because a representative, John Holland by name, introduced a bill in the legislature providing for the limitation of work in all state factories to eight hours a day and the imposition of a fine in the form of time and half for overtime or any employer working his help beyond the specified hour-limit. Should the employer flout the law and pay only straight time or nothing at all for the extra hours worked Mr. Holland would assess the refractory employer anything from $50 to $500 for each offense.

• • •

FAR be it from the indignant organ of big business to commiserate with the employer in his tribulation at the hands of this peculiar legislator. It is for the worker's liberty that the paper does battle. "This is a characteristic privation of liberty of the workingman, in whose alleged interest it is presented" says the "Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record." Suppose the worker chose to work his overtime for nothing. Any citizen may make a donation of his property to any one whom he chooses. Suppose he desired to make a donation of his labor. Under such measure as Mr. Holland presents, he couldn't even have that liberty."

• • •

NOW, I am sure you are all convinced that this man Holland is an undesirable citizen who would Bolshevise this country and reduce the workers thereof to a very low ethical and social level by robbing them of the god-given right to work for nothing if they saw fit. Let us suppose by way of illustration that the daughter of a manufacturer wanted to divorce a count so that she could marry a prince. She would need extra money to buy off the count in order to purchase the prince. And suppose her father's loyal slaves were willing to contribute a few extra hours of labor to the marital experiments of their employer's daughter, Holland's bill, if passed into law would be the means of leaving a useless count on a fair lady's arm and a lonely prince pining away in his garret or gazing thru restaurant windows at food he could not buy.

• • •

THE American workers are more capitalistically-minded than is good for them. Too many of them believe that without capitalists there would be no work for them to do, no food for them to eat and no clothes for them to wear. They do not realize that the boss hires them in order to profit from their labor rather than to play the role of a humanitarian in business for the purpose of putting food in the mouths of the hungry. But we dare say that a canvass of the workingclass population of the United States would not subscribe to the indignation professed by "The Michigan Manufacturer and Financial Record" over the introduction of Holland's bill. They would exchange a lot of abstract freedom for a few hours out of the factory or time and half for extra hours inside of it.

• • •

HERE is a human interest story with a kick: William Keuntze of Hoboken finds $34.75 in his envelope on every pay day. Mrs. Keuntze puts her trade mark on $34.25 of that amount and she agreed that her reckless husband could hold on to the balance, provided he spent it on a daily lunch, a five cent cigar and a weekly package of chewing gum. Evidently William was saving his allowance, which made Mrs. Keuntze duly suspicious. "I believe he wanted to squander that fifty cents on other women," she told the judge. His honor being a man of the world could not see what a fellow could do nowadays in view of the high cost of living, with fifty cents, so he dismissed the case, returning Mr. Keuntz to the status quo, but the flea of suspicion still bites the jealous spouse, her theory being that what Mr. Keuntze saves by the week he spends by the month.

• • •

THAT little kidnapping escapade of Aimee Semple MacPherson's county. Confessions should now be in order. Her life since she returned from the desert, footsore and weary, but with her most priceless heritage intact, has been one disappointment after another. Her mother broke with her, her orchestra leader left her because she bobbed her hair, and worse still, organized a rival church. The undercurrent cat of all comes from the attorney who defended Satan against the Devil et al, in a Los Angeles court. He is suing her for $6,000, the balance of his fee for saving a beautiful soul from Satan. Old Nick is a jolly good fellow. He never quits.

• • •

SPRINGS come from friend and foe. A California citizen opted a

(Continued on Page Three)

ADMIT PLAN TO STOP ONLY LABOR DAILY

PLOTTING A YEAR AND HALF TO GET THE DAILY WORKER

Professional Patriots Brag of Spying

Salaried professional patriots and the organizations for which they work have been plotting for eighteen months to "get" The DAILY WORKER staff, rob the paper of its mailing privileges and railroad the editors and business manager to prison, it was stated under oath yesterday morning in the Essex Market court with Magistrate Tolleris presiding in the trial of William F. Dunne and Bert Miller.

Under the searching examination of Attorney Joseph Brodsky, George L. Darte admitted that he is the paid "adjutant-general" of the Military Order of the World War, that the organization is incorporated, is composed exclusively of ex-army officers, has its headquarters in Washington D. C. and that he had personally notified the postmaster-general of the publication of the poem America of which the charge is based.

Read Daily For Year

also testified that he had read The DAILY WORKER "religiously" for a year and a half and that this was the first time he had ever felt impelled to register a complaint with the postoffice and police authorities.

Darte parades the title of "captain" in addition to adjutant-general.

George Seitz, who described himself as "a research worker" for the Keynsen of America, testified that his job was to furnish information—he would not say about what or to whom.

"What kind of an organization this Keynsen of America?", asked Attorney Brodsky. Seitz replied that he knew little about it.

"Is it a Communist organization?

(Continued on Page Two)

Labor's Candidates Continue to Attract Big Passaic Crowds

PASSAIC, N. J. April 29.—An enthusiastic campaign rally was held here tonight for the labor candidates at Ukranian Hall. It was jammed by workers eager to hear the workingclass speakers.

Weisbord Applauded.

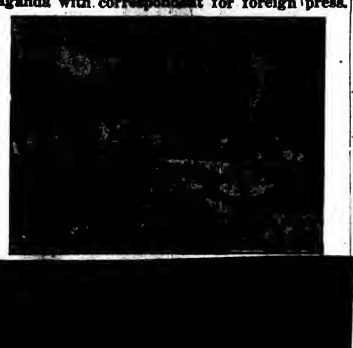
Albert Weisbord, who led the 14 months textile strike was greeted by applause as he spoke on the local situation pointing out that only the working class itself is capable of solving its own problems. He referred to the need of providing work for the unemployed saying that the city should immediately start road construction work. The need of a labor party was also taken up.

Bert Miller Speaks.

Bert Miller, business manager of the DAILY WORKER, said that "Passaic has been the keynote for all the unorganized workers throughout the country. The slogan of 'organizing the unorganized' has been taken up by the workers all over the land."

Sydney Hollack of The DAILY WORKER told the assembled workers that not only the questions of local interest should be discussed but they also should give attention to world wide politics.

A May Day celebration will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. at the Workers' House, 27 Dayton Ave. A large number of workers' children are expected to be present.



Addresses Two Large Meetings.

Weisbord spoke at two large meetings Thursday evening. At the Civic Forum conducted by the Italian-American Association he told the Italian workers, among the lowest paid and most exploited, how they have been kept in subjection and allowed to do only the most dirty work.

Zoom-Yamamiti.

He also pointed out that with the exception of the labor candidates the conviction of Sacco and Vanzetti has been ignored. More than 200 were present at the meeting.

Weisbord received a fine reception at Public School 3 where he also spoke. More than 800 people were present.

Chang-Tso-lin, left, discussing imperialist propaganda with correspondent for foreign press.

Jersey Cossack Is Jailed As Robber; Active In Strike

PASSAIC, N. J., April 29.—Officer "Whitie" Adamcheasky has been suspended and arrested on an alleged charge of implication with a robbery.

This copper sustained a great record during the textile strike as one of the most cruel cossacks that ever wore a uniform. His record for beating up and manhandling strikers has gone down in the history of Passaic and vicinity.

Elections are coming up in Garfield soon where Adamcheasky was on the police force. The mayor and others representing the millowners are out for office as councilmen. The workers will have a labor ticket to represent the workers and not the millowners and their tools on the police force.

Freed, Claims False Arrest.

SEATTLE, April 29.—Freed by the jury trying him on charges of slaying a 14-year old girl, Dr. Chester C. Dobbs, Kirkland dentist, planned a suit for false arrest against Sheriff Claude G. Bannick today.

Bannick, it was alleged, arrested the dentist without a warrant when the body of Letitia Whitehall, one of Dobb's patients, was found floating in a slough. An autopsy showed the young girl had been drugged and attacked.

Arsonist Kills Woman; Flees.

Propped against the wall on Riverside Drive at 197th street, the body of a well-dressed woman about 22, apparently the victim of a hit-and-run [illegible] by

Catholic Boss of Boston Gets Out Of Vanzetti's Way

BOSTON, April 29. — Cardinal O'Connell, political and religious boss of Boston, straddled the fence today on the Sacco-Vanzetti issue by demanding "respect" for the Massachusetts courts which have condemned them to burn, while giving permission to Governor Fuller to review the case if he wishes to.

O'Connell has maintained silence on the case the two innocent workers until now, although privately he has been known to be viciously prejudiced because Sacco and Vanzetti are atheists. Yielding to the pressure of labor in his own city, the cardinal admitted that he would not oppose the governor's review of the facts.

Eruption At Reunion Island.

PARIS, April 29.—Volcanic eruptions and earthquakes have caused considerable damage in reunion island, the French colony in the Indian Ocean, according to dispatches received here.

Eruptions raised the river bed thirty yards resulting in floods, which carried away a factory, a theatre and a bridge at St. Benoist. One person was drowned.

Carpenter Killed.

Kenneth Dunn, 22, is dead today as the result of internal injuries and a compound fracture of the right leg suffered when he fell four stories to the ground while working with a gang of carpenters on an addition under construction at the plant of the National Sugar Refining Company at Yonkers.

COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL DECLARES CHANG'S "DOCUMENTS" ABOUT ITS CHINESE ACTIVITIES SPURIOUS; SECRET TRIAL FOR MADAME BORODIN

British Union Heads in Conference Against No Strike Bill of Tories

LONDON, April 29.—Representatives of 4,000,000 British trade unionists met today in Kingsway Hall to complete plans for a campaign to fight the government's proposed bill for the control of trade unions.

Although George Hicks, chairman of the Trades Union Congress, announced that "labor forces will fight the bill to the bitter end," the convention indicated early in its session that it would take considered action.

Communists proposed a real strike to force the withdrawal of the bill.

BLAST LEVEE TO TURN BIG RIVER ON POOR FARMERS

Militia, Plague, Famine Add to Flood Horrors

POYDRAS, La., April 29.—The Poydras crevasse on the east bank of the Mississippi, twelve miles below New Orleans was blasted at 2:17 p. m. today in a supreme attempt to break the back of the valley's most devastating flood in history.

Guns and Deadline.

Virtual martial law prevailed from day-break today in the territory in which the levee line was to be ripped open with dynamite. State troops patrolled the highways and fast river boats with armed guardsmen aboard maintained a dead line across the river.

Airplanes flew over the doomed region to give final warning to scattered residents who were either unaware that the river was to be turned upon them, or unwilling to leave their possessions to the yellow torrent. Three hundred people were believed by state officials to be in the sacrificed territory at day-break.

Some stragglers still made their way to New Orleans. A few others apparently were preparing to take their chances on high spots in the vicinity of their farms and gardens.

Ruins Two Parishes.

The Poydras dynamiting already has gone into history as the $2,000,000 blast, that being conservative official estimate of the property loss involved to St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes.

New Orleans for the most part went about her business quite as usual—almost nonchalantly—as she has during the entire period of the flood, apparently convinced that the man-made volcano at Poydras would remove the last menace to their city. In the concentration camps in which the lowland refugees are being cared for, however, and in the relatively limited official areas in which final preparations were made for the grim ordeal of uncorking the Mississippi system, an atmosphere of tension prevailed.

• • •

Militia and Plague Visit Flood.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 29.—With martial law impending over the Mississippi delta due to threatening epidemics Greenville, Miss., "The queen city of the delta," today ordered all Negroes to move from their homes onto the levee to bring about better sanitary conditions. Greenville has been under curfew law since Wednesday.

Flood Spreads.

Another thousand acres near Shreveport, La., was flooded last night by a break in the Louisiana Navigation Company embankment.

The lake water has been found to contain typhoid germs and red cross officials have warned the people against drinking it. Two boats today were removing all who wished to [illegible]

Great Britain Reorganizes Wrangel's Army for War on Nationalist China

Chicago Kuomintang Wires Support Pledge to Hankow Government; Calls Chiang Traitor

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Britain organizing White Russian army under General Wrangel, for war against Nationalist China.

2.—Communist International brands Chang Tso-lin's statement that it is creating anti-foreign sentiment as a deliberate lie; charges Chang's "Soviet Documents" faked.

3.—Chicago Kuomintang cables support to Nationalist Government at Hankow; denounces Chiang Kai Shek as a traitor to the liberation movement.

4.—Mme. Borodin brought to Peking for "special trial."

5.—Nationalist troops repulse Chiang Kai Shek at Kiukiang.

6.—Chiang tries to forestall mass May Day demonstration in Shanghai.

BELGRADE, April 29.—General Wrangel, White Russian, whose invasions of Soviet Russia backed by the imperialist powers, were completely crushed, is organizing an army of 20,000 for service in China. Great Britain is subsidizing Wrangel again, it is reported.

Wrangel is collecting troops from Yugoslavia, Bulgaria and Turkey.

MOSCOW, April 29.—Documents alleged to have been found by Chang Tso-lin in his unprecedented raids on the Soviet embassy compound at Peking were declared to be counterfeits by Communist International.

In a statement made public today, the Communist International branded Chang's documents as spurious and declared that the "accusations that the Commnnist International is stirring up the Chinese masses against foreigners are political lies, fabricated by foreign espionage." The charges are too ridiculous to need repudiation, the statement declares.

Substantial Backing.

Chang has been making public documents alleged to have been taken in his raids on the Soviet embassy in the hope of securing even more substantial backing from the powers than he has been receiving.

That Chang has succeeded in convincing willing and credulous foreign diplomats of "Soviet plots" in China is indicated in dispatches received here. Senator Bingham of the United States is reported to have expressed sympathy for Chang Tso-lin after a perusal of the spurious documents.

M. Cherny, Soviet Chargé who had been recalled from Peking, has arrived here with his staff.

• • •

CHICAGO, April 29. — The local branch of the Kuomintang has cabled the Nationalist government at Hankow pledging its support to the liberation movement and denouncing Chiang Kai-shek as a traitor.

The cable, signed by Chao Ting-chi, resident secretary in America of the Oriental Committee of the League Against Imperialism, recently formed at Brussels, follows:

Denounce Chiang.

"Chiang Kai-shek has turned traitor. He is aiding imperialism. Destroy him. All oppressed peoples are rallying to your support."

• • •

Nationalists Hold Position.

SHANGHAI, April 29.—The Nationalist troops are holding their own in their skirmishes with Chiang Kai-shek's troops at Kinkiang, according to reports received here.

In order to forestall a monster workers' demonstration on May 1st,

(Continued on Page Two)

Sacasa Asks Latins to Judge U. S. Action in "Smothering" Nicaragua

MEXICO CITY, April 29.—Dr. Pedro Jose Zepeda, representative of Juan Sacasa, leader of the liberal movement in Nicaragua, announced today that he has sent a message to the president of the congress of international law at Rio Janeiro appealing for Latin American condemnation of the United States' policy towards Nicaragua.

13 Admirals Lead Fleet Up Hudson in Huge War Show

Uncle Sam's foreign policemen, 32,600 blue jackets, came into town yesterday. Like a circus parade, 122 men of war of the United States fleet came through the Narrows, steamed into New York harbor amid the clamorous welcome of metropolitan Imperialists, and dropped anchor in the Hudson river.

Thirteen admirals and vice admirals, at the head of the fleet, were wined and dined by their capitalist bosses last night. A series of dinners and conferences are being arranged, to culminate in a dinner at the Hotel Astor on May 3, which will be attended by all the officers of the fleet. Rodman Wanamaker will be toastmaster.

The fleet is the largest aggregation of warships ever assembled in New York harbor. Even when the United States was mobilising for the world war, yesterday's record was not approached.

No reasons for the parade could be secured from the Brooklyn Navy Yard last night. Naval officials scouted the theory that the men of war were being prepared for a trip to China, but admitted that the mobilization was part of the administration's peace-time preparedness program.

Attack on Guards of U. S. S. R. Frontier?

BERLIN, April 29.—A battle is reported here from the town of Szypliejci on the border between Poland and the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. Fighting between frontier guards involved the use of machine guns and hand grenades, the rumor says.

Envoy, Houghton Dines With Royalty While Insurance Quizz Pends

LONDON, April 29.—United States Ambassador and Mrs. Alanson B. Houghton will entertain King George and queen Mary at dinner shortly according to the Daily Express.

In addition to his plenipotentiary activities Houghton acts in the capacity of director for the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company whose business practices are threatened with an investigation due to pressure brought about by a series of articles now appearing in The DAILY WORKER.

MAY DAY MEETINGS

Rathenberg Film To Feature May Day Chicago Meet

CHICAGO, Ill., April 29.—With 400,000,000 Chinese workers and farmers as one of the principal speakers, the Chicago local of the Workers (Communist) Party will celebrate May Day with a great demonstration in Ashland Auditorium which will have as a keynote the struggle of world labor and subject peoples against world imperialism.

C. T. Chi, a member of the Kuomintang Party will tell the story of the epochal struggle that is being waged by the oppressed masses of China against their own militarists and the imperialist powers.

William Z. Foster, secretary of the Trade Union Educational League is headlined as the principal speaker in addition to Melach Epstein, editor of The Freiheit and Arne Swabeck, organizer of District 8 of The Workers (Communist) Party.

One of the attractions of the meeting will be the showing of a film of C. E. Rathenberg's funeral, a concert by the Freiheit Singing Society, and a symbolic hammer drill by the Finnish Gymnastic Society.

The meeting will begin promptly at 8 p. m.

The workers (Communist) Party announces May Day meetings and celebrations as follows:

GARY, Ind.—Labor Hall, 21st and Washington, April 30. Speaker, Wm J. White.

CHICAGO, Ill.—Ashland Auditorium, May 1, 8 p. m. Speaker, Wm. Z Foster.

MILWAUKEE, Wis.—Labor Hall, First and Mitchell, May 1, 7 p. m. Speaker, Wm. Z. Foster.

MADISON, Ill. May 1, at 10 a. m. Speaker, Martin Abern.

ST. LOUIS, Mo.—May 1 Speaker Martin Abern.

WAUKEGAN, Ill.—Workers' Hall 517 Helmholz Ave., May 1. Speaker Wm. Simons.

WEST FRANKFORT, Ill.—May 1 Speaker, Pat Toohey.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn.—Humboldt Hall, Western and Humboldt, May 1 p. m. Speaker, B. D. Wolfe.

ST PAUL, Minn., May 1, 8 p. m. Speaker, B. D. Wolfe.

DETROIT, Mich.—Arena Garden, May 1. Speaker, May Bedacht.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich.—May 1, at 2 p. m. Speaker, Herbert Zam.

MUSKEGON, Mich.—May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, Herbert Zam.

BOSTON, Mass.—Scenic Auditorium, Berkeley and Tremont St., May 1, at 2.30 p. m. Speaker, H. M. Wicks.

EAST PITTSBURGH, Pa.—April 30, Sneaker, A. Bittelman.

PITTSBURGH, Pa.—May 1 Speaker, A. Bittleman.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa.—April 30. Speakers, J. Lovestone and Albert Weisbord.

BALTIMORE, Md.—Brith Sholom Hall, 1012 E. Baltimore, May 1 at 2.30. Speaker, Albert Weisbord.

BUFFALO, N. Y.—Elmwood Music Hall, May 1, at 2.30. Speakers, Campbell—Benjamin.

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Labor Lyceum, May 1, at 8 p. m. Speakers, Campbell—Benjamin.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. — Central Trades Assembly, May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, J. J. Ballam.

ALBANY, N. Y.—May 1, at 2.30. Speaker, J. J. Ballam.

UTICA, N. Y.—Labor Lyceum, May 1, at 7 p. m. Speaker, S. Kearan.

ERIE, Pa.—Finnish Hall, May 1, at 2.30. Speaker, F. P. Brill.

JAMESTOWN, N. Y.—May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, F. P. Brill.

BINGHAMPTON, N. Y.—Lithuanian Hall, 259 Clinton St., May 1, at 2.30 p. m. Speaker, Randolph Katz.

N. TONAWANDA, May 1. 8 p. m. Speaker, James Campbell.

CLEVELAND, Ohio—Moose Auditorium, 1000 Walnut St., May 1 at 2 p. m. Speaker, James P. Cannon.

CINCINNATI, Ohio—Odd Fellows Hall, 7th and Elm St. Speaker, T. Johnson.

WARREN, Ohio—Hippodrome Hall, High St., May 1, at 2 p. m. Speaker, N. Shaffer.

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio—Workman's Home, 369 E. Federal, May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, J. P. Cannon.

AKRON, Ohio—Liberty Hall, 603 S. Main St., May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, L. Amler.

LORAIN, Ohio—Slovenian National Home, Pearl Ave., May 1, at 2 p. m. Speaker, J. Filey.

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Woodmen's Hall, 60 E. Main St., May 1, at 8 p. m. Speaker, Scott Wilkins.

NEFFS, Ohio—Dernach Hall, May 1 at 1.30 p. m. Speakers Carl Hacker.

YORKVILLE, Ohio—Miners' Hall, May 1, at 7.30 p. m. Speaker, Carl Hacker.

CANTON, Ohio—Music Hall, 810 E. Tuscarawas, May 3, at 8 p. m. Speaker, L. Amler.

LIVERPOOL—Trades and Labor Hall, Fifth St., above Erlanger's Store, May 1. Speaker, E. Dolch.

FAIRPORT. — Finnish Workers' Hall, Plum St., May 1 at 1.30 p. m. Speaker, J. Rankin.

AMSTERDAM, May 1, at 7 p. m. Speaker, J. Rankin.

AT THE NEWSSTANDS
BUY THE DAILY WORKER

MAY DAY MEETINGS IN NEW ENGLAND

PROVIDENCE—8 P. M., A. C. A. Hall, 1758 Westminster St. Speakers: Al Bloch and Lovell Fort Whiteside.

MAYNARD—8 P. M., 48 Waltham St. Speaker: Lewis Merrick.

NORWOOD—8 P. M., Lithuanian Hall. Speaker; Jack McCarthy.

SPRINGFIELD — Sunday afternoon. Speakers: W. T. Murdock, S. Bloomfield.

HOLYOKE—Sunday evening Speakers: W. T. Murdock and S. Bloomfield.

GARDNER—1 o'clock, Holmes Park Highway, between Gardner and Fitchburg. Speakers: Bert Miller, and R. Sholan.

WORCHESTER—8 P. M. 54 Belmont St. Speakers: Harry Wicks, and Lerner.

BROCKTON—May 2nd, Eagles Hall, 8 o'clock. Speaks: Harry Wicks.

SOUTH BOSTON—8 P. M. Speaker: M. Brown.

W. CONCORD—1 o'clock. Speaker: A. Berkovits.

Celebrate May Day.

ELIZABETH, N. J., April 29.—A May Day meeting will be held here Sunday 2 P. M., at Lutwin Hall, 69 South Park St. There will be speakers in several languages.

Technical Men in Subways to Strike If Justice is Denied

The Union of Technical Men, transportation department, are just about through being polite.

Bandied about for months on their grievances, the members met Thursday night at the 14th Street Labor Temple and decided that if the city does not give a favorable reply to their demands, a strike is possible. A walkout would completely tie up all construction work on the Eighth Ave.-St. Nicholas Ave.-Washington Heights subway line.

Officers read the adverse report of Thomas C. Murray, examiner of the civil service commission and urged that the board of transportation be given one more chance before the May 12 meetings, which will decide on drastic action, if need be.

The subway engineers want a substantial increase over their $2,402 a year average wage and seek a minimum rate of $2,160 instead of $1,560. They are the only city employes denied sick leave.

The field men, who do the surveying above ground, have had an additional hour put on to their working day without any increase in pay. They want either the seven hour day or more money.

The union, only a year old, is amply strong enough already to protect its members' interests. Starting with 12 members, it now has nearly 1,400.

Five Day Week Bothers Bosses Of Plute Press

Because the 75,000 union printers of the United States and Canada refuse to agree to the employers' type of arbitration machinery, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association has empowered its board of directors to name a new committee to deal with the International Typographical Union. Negotiations will be continued.

The union's demand for the five day week is bothering the publishers. Their objection is not so much to the shorter work week as to the increased pay necessary to fill out the week's wages.

Open shop sirens, led by Charles A. Webb of the Asheville N. C., Citizen, chairman of the open shop committee, H. W. Flagg, manager of the open shop department of the association, Col. Robert Ewing of the New Orleans states and Leonard K. Nicholson of the New Orlean Times-Pacayuna attempted to show bigger profits and less difficulty with workers through kicking out the union.

Publishers as a whole, however, showed no intention of courting a fight with the printing trades unions.

Flood and Japanese Panic Hurt Market

Industrial and southern railroad stocks, disturbed by the extensive Mississippi flood and the black financial prospects in Japan, weakened yesterday on the Stock Exchange. Speculators who were short in the roads in the flood country suffered heavy losses under a deluge of selling orders.

United States Steel and General Motors moved down 2 points as the big interests behind the exchange

MANY MAY DAY MEETINGS IN NEW YORK CITY

On Sunday, May 1, tens of thousands of workers in New York City and hundreds of thousands of workers all over the country will demonstrate their solidarity with the oppressed Chinese people, with the imprisoned militant workers Sacco and Vanzetti and with the exploited workers of the entire world.

Score of Meetings.

New York City itself will be the scene of meetings for this purpose, the principal ones of which will be held in Central Opera House, 67th St. and 3d Ave.; Harris Point Palace, 183rd St. and Southern Blvd., Bronx; Royal Palace, 16 Manhattan Ave., Williamsburgh; Amalgamated Temple, 11-17 Arlon Place, Williamsburgh; Hopkinson Mansion, 428 Hopkinson Ave., Brownsville. Among the main speakers at these meetings will be Benjamin Gitlow, William W. Weinstone, Charles Krumbein, Moissaye J. Olgin, Alexander Trachtenberg, P. Cosgrove and others. The meetings are all being held at 2 p. m.

Hands Off China.

With 12,000 American marines and bluejackets in China, with over 27 American warships in Chinese waters, with a record of having helped to kill 5,000 Chinese in Nanking, with ultimatums and notes sent at the behest of Wall Street to the struggling Chinese Nationalist government, the American government has practically plunged the American nation into a war against the oppressed Chinese people.

Sacco and Vanzetti.

While the American government has so much money and lives to spend in China to protect the property of a few American banks and companies, it does not find the time to free Sacco and Vanzetti, two Italian workers whose only crime was that they were active on behalf of their class.

Retire Old Spirit.

Sunday, May 1, is the time for all militant workers in N. Y. C. to show the old spirit of the American workingclass, the spirit that originated the May Day movement in 1886 for the eight-hour day, the spirit that manifested itself in the Pullman strike of 1894, the Seattle General Strike of 1919, and to come out and demonstrate for Sacco and Vanzetti and for the Chinese workers and peasants.

Workers of Newark To Celebrate May Day With Meeting

Newark workers will celebrate May Day on Sunday at New Montgomery Hall, Prince street, corner Montgomery, at 1:00 p. m., under the auspices of the United May Day Committee of Newark. The main question to be discussed at the meeting will be China and among the speakers will be a Chinese from the Kuomintang party.

Among the other speakers are H. M. Wicks, for the Workers (Communist) Party, and T. J. O'Flaherty for the International Labor Defense.

A splendid musical program has also been arranged and admission to the meeting is free.

CURRENT EVENTS

(Continued from Page One)

news item that told of a certain Feodor Volkov, who was recently sentenced to death by the Soviet Government for murdering 300 peasants to avenge himself for the confiscation of his property by the state. He was a big landholder under the Czar. "Fine. I'd kill a million of you dogs if you tried to take my property" comments this gentle soul, whose property in all probability is confined to whatever livestock manages to eke out a precarious existence on the inside of his rags.

* * *

OF better stuff is our Cleveland correspondent who forwarded a clipping from a local paper which recorded the death of a prohibition stool-pigeon. The fink is alleged to be a former radical who became an agent of the department of justice and was responsible for the arrest and imprisonment of many workers. There is a suspicion that the bootleggers got him. But the informer could not claim that they did not give him a fair warning. Some of them recently hung him by the heels out of an eight-story window with the hint that the next time he became over-zealous in the line of duty, he would hit the sidewalk. Those soft-hearted people who sympathize with stool-pigeons may now shed a tear over Dan Kuta.

From Montana

PIENTYWOOD, Mont., April 29.—The Peoples Publishing Co. of Plentywood yesterday sent a telegram to Governor Fuller of Boston asking for the pardon of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti. The county officials will also send a protest to Governor Fuller.

Sacco and Vanzetti Must Not Die!

FURRIERS PACK THREE HALLS IN LOYALTY RALLY

Condemning the actions of the manufacturers as a violation of the union agreement, pledging the fullest confidence in the Furriers' Joint Board and whole-hearted support to its leaders, thousands of fur workers crowded Cooper Union, Manhattan Lyceum and Webster Hall Thursday to give a mass welcome to Ben Gold, manager of the Joint Board, who was freed last Friday from the Mineola jail.

It happened that the workers also had an opportunity to welcome A. Antonofsky, M. Rosenberg and A. Wortuna, three workers who were acquitted the same day after a trial in the Bronx County Court on a charge of assaulting the right wing stool pigeon, Morris Katz.

An ovation greeted Gold when he arrived, and the cheering broke out over and over again as he stood silently watching the enthusiastic greeting of his fellow workers. Henry Utenhardt, one of the attorneys for the union during the Mineola trial, stood next to Gold and when he rose to speak he, too, was greeted with cheers and wild applause.

The mass meetings were called to discuss the rumors of peace in the internal union dispute, and to make plans for meeting the lockout of workers who refused to register.

But no pledges or resolutions were needed to prove that Gold was right in saying.

"There are 2,000 locked out workers who would rather lose their jobs than register with the scab union of the International." This was received with the utmost enthusiasm, every mention of defying the bosses, the disrupting forces of the A. F. of L. and the reactionary leaders of the International. The workers pledged themselves to a "fight to the finish."

Gold told the workers that it is certain that dissention had arisen within the ranks of the Reorganization Committee. The A. F. of L. officials do not understand the Jewish workers; they cannot understand their devotion to the Joint Board.

"There is no doubt we want peace," said Gold. "We want peace so that our members may have a chance to work without interference. Only if union conditions may be enforced in the shops. But we will not have peace unless the traitors are cleared out of the union and it is freed from all outside interference and left to the workers to run for themselves."

Bosses Want Sorkin.

Louis Hyman, manager of the Cloak and Dressmakers' Joint Board, who was one of the speakers, brought a laugh from the crowd by saying that the bosses, who are forcing workers to register with the International, are becoming such good union men that "we do not need a union."

"But they are afraid that with Gold they will not get July raises, so they want Sorkin." (One of the vice presidents.)

Henry Utenhardt, the union's lawyer, said he had never seen such an enthusiastic meeting; and in his brief speech he asserted:

"I have rarely had a case that has touched me like the one of the boys at Mineola. It was because I dealt with men sincere, who believed in what they said and were ready to lay down their life and liberty for their comrades. We are going to leave no stone unturned until justice has been done to all of them."

Hearings Adjourned.

The hearings concerning alleged bribery of the police during the fur strike last year, which have been going on before Magistrate Corrigan in the Criminal Courts Building, were yesterday adjourned to be resumed next Tuesday, May 3rd.

Assistant District Attorney Brothers stated that he had certain matters to investigate further before proceeding with the hearings.

* * *

The trial of A. Antonofsky, M. Rosenberg and A. Wortuns which ended yesterday with their acquittal in the Bronx County Court, was enlivened by a description of the duties of a union's executive council, as given by Morris Katz, the stool pigeon accused the workers of assault.

Katz has been appointed a member of the Executive Council of Sigman's new set up, but the only account he could give the Joint Board's lawyer as to the duties of a member of the Executive Council was "that one went to meetings and one came away."

Katz' Record.

Katz is a worker in the Reisman, Rothman and Bieber shop where Antonofsky and Rosenberg were also employed. Workers were discharged from this shop for not registering, and the shop was declared on strike. During the month of February, Katz claimed that he had been attacked, and he accused Aaron Wortuns, a cloakmaker who had made a charge against two right wing gangsters.

Katz stated that two other men had also taken part in the attack, and two weeks later he had Antonofsky and Rosenberg arrested. He had worked with them for six months and it is inconceivable that he would not have recognized them immediately if they had taken any part in assaulting him.

New York Banker Gives Coolidge Hearty Praise For His Foreign Policy

Unqualified praise of President Coolidge's foreign policies, as expressed in his speech last Monday, was given Thursday by New York's democratic senator, Royal S. Copeland, when he made a personal call upon the president at the White House.

We should have gone into Nicaragua to protect the Monroe Doctrine; we ought to help China, and "we ought to help all nations to help themselves," so the senator believes. "The president is exactly right."

MACHADO BENDS KNEE AT MORGAN WALL ST. SHRINE

Guarded by heavy detachments of motorcycle policemen, plainclothes men and special operatives, President Machado of Cuba paid homage to the real capital of Cuba and U.S.A. when he toured Wall Street, visited the offices of J. P. Morgan & Co. and had lunch as the guest of Thomas W. Lamont, Morgan partner. The leading financial and industrial kings of the country attended the luncheon.

Earlier he had assured 500 business men at the Astor Hotel that American capital had "made" Cuba and that it would be guarded to the last drop of the last Cuban's blood. The president, who has the murder of 200 trade unionists to his credit in the eyes of Wall Street, visited yesterday afternoon the Sugar Exchange as the guest of Leopold S. Rothe. It was for the Sugar Exchange and allied interests the cost of the 200 were killed.

Morgan Firm There.

At the Lamont luncheon were: Frederic W. Allen of Lee, Higginson & Co., Howard Bohn of the International Telephone & Telegraph Company, Scothenes Bohn of the International Telephone & Telegraph Company, Edward J. Berwind of the Berwind White Coal Mine Company, James Brown of Brown Brothers & Co., J. Herbert Case of the Federal Reserve Bank, Thomas Cochran of J. P. Morgan & Co., William T. Dewart, president of The Sun; Martin Egan of J. P. Morgan & Co.

Elbert H. Gary of the U. S. Steel Corporation, Charles Hayden of Hayden, Stone & Co., N. Dean Jay of Morgan & Co., Russell C. Leffingwell of J. P. Morgan & Co., A. W. Loasby of the Equitable Trust Company, Gates W. McGarrah of the Federal Reserve Bank, Charles E. Mitchell of the National City Bank, S. Z. Mitchell of the Electric Bond & Share Company, Vernon Munroe of J. P. Morgan & Co., Alexander D. Noyes, financial editor of the New York Times.

Frank L. Polk of Davis, Polk, Wardwell, Gardiner & Reed; Jackson E. Reynolds of the First National Bank, Manuel Rionda of the Czarnikow-Rionda Company, Charles H. Sabin of the Guaranty Trust Company, Charles S. Sargent of Kidder, Peabody & Co., Mortimer L. Schiff of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., Lloyd W. Smith of Harris, Forbes & Co., Frederick T. Snare of Frederick Snare Corporation, James Speyer of Speyer & Co.

WOLL ASSOCIATE ON FINING LINE IN LOCKOUT OF 10,000 UNIONISTS

Frank' admission that the present lockout of over 5,000 plumbers is part of the campaign to break down labor organization in the entire building trades has been made Thursday by C. G. Norman, president of the Building Trades Employers' Association.

"If we are successful in preventing the wages of plumbers in Brooklyn from being raised," Norman declared, "it will be the first serious check to increased building trades wages since before the war."

Backing Norman is Otto M. Eidlitz, a director of the Employers' Association and a prominent member of the National Civic Federation. Matthew Woll, vice president of the A. F. of L., and leaders of the sinister forces seeking to drive militant left wing workers from the trade union movement is acting president of the National Civic Federation. This group exists as a liaison body between reactionary labor officials and financial interests anxious to guide the labor movement into reactionary channels.

The plumbers' struggle, which is likely to throw out of work 100,000 other workers in allied building trades, promises to be a hard fought one.

International Secretary Burke, of the plumbers, characterized the action of the bosses as "diabolical." "It is the first time that a general lockout of this nature has occurred in the building trades in New York."

Want 25 Cents More An Hour.

Refusal of the bosses even to discuss the situation was the result of the demand of Brooklyn plumbers for a $14 day, a $2 increase. According to the city-wide agreement, the $12 scale if won would apply to all plumbers' locals within 90 days.

The courts were recruited in the aid of the boss plumbers Thursday morning when the effort of the union of Manhattan and the Bronx to avoid the lockout by suing for an injunction resulted in postponement of the application until May 5.

The declaration of Norman, the head of the employers' association that 700,000 men in the building trades would be affected by the lockout was given the lie by union men, who stated that this number was unduly exaggerated in order to inflame public opinion against the plumbers. They asserted that the number could in the most extreme situation hardly reach more than 150,000.

Plumbers' Helpers Out.

"We are striking against the lockout of the plumbers; we are also striking against the miserable conditions in our own trade." This statement by C. E. Miller, president of the American Association of Plumbers' Helpers, was followed by the declaration that prosperity in the building trades is all a fairy tale in so far as the helpers are concerned.

More than 5,000 plumbers' helpers in Brooklyn, Manhattan, and Queens are now fortifying the battle of the plumbers. Their campaign of organization has become more intensive since the lockout order of the boss plumbers.

The most underpaid workers in the trade, the plumbers' helpers who have been receiving $4 a day are demanding recognition of their union, a 40-hour week, and a $9 a day wage rate.

Portland Labor Council.

PORTLAND, Ore., April 29.—The Central Labor Council Monday night adopted in resolution instructing the secretary to forward to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts the council's demand that "justice be given Sacco and Vanzetti."

Savage Sentence For Young Worker To Be Appealed

Extreme savageness was shown Thursday morning in the 57th Street Magistrate's Court by Judge Wall, when he sentenced Hyman Moskowitch, a member of the Young Workers League to six months in jail on the trumped up charge of disorderly conduct.

Moskowitch with Morris Kushner whose case comes up this morning, were arrested Wednesday at Union Square and 16th Street, where they were distributing "Hands Off China" leaflets. After being brutally beaten by the police they were taken to jail where Moskowitch was released on $100 bail. Bail was refused in the case of Kushner.

No Witnesses.

No witness appeared against Moskowitch yesterday while on trial before Judge Wall. The only evidence offered was the "Hands Off China" leaflet.

When the judge read it he frothed at the mouth and without further ado dealt out his inhuman sentence. Kushner's "trial" will take place this morning in the same court.

When informed of the sentence, Rose Barron, secretary of the International Labor Defense, which is defending the two young workers, said that the sentence given to Moskowitch is outrageous. There was no evidence against him and no witnesses testified as to any violation of any law. Only when Judge Wall read the leaflet did he come to the conclusion of giving such an extreme sentence as six months. In many cases of a "serious" character 10 days is the most that is given.

Refusal of Bail.

"Another thing. The refusal to grant bail to Kushner is another violation of the constitutional rights of a defendant. The International Labor Defense will appeal the case and fight it to a finish."

Attorney Joseph, an associate of Joseph R. Brodsky appeared as Moskowitch's counsel.

Violin and Viola Lessons
Given by expert teacher.
For reasonable rates, write to
JOHN WEINROTH
6186 LARCHWOOD AVENUE,
Phone Granite 7282. Philadelphia, Pa.

JOINT DEFENSE AND RELIEF COMMITTEE CLOAKMAKERS AND FURRIERS

41 Union Square, Room 714, New York, N. Y.

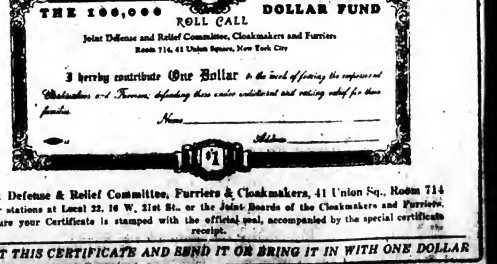
STAND BEHIND THE IMPRISONED CLOAKMAKERS & FURRIERS

Do you like to see the imprisoned Cloakmakers and Furriers in Jail?

Do you like to see their families suffering and in want?

Do you like to see other active union members now under charges sentenced to long prison terms?

If not, fill out the Certificate printed in the advertisement of the Committee and mail it to the office with One Dollar.



This reply will encourage the mass of workers to keep up their fight for a clean union.

The necessity is so great that even if you have already given, we ask you to give again, and sign this Roll Call.

CUT OUT THIS CERTIFICATE AND SEND IT OR BRING IT IN WITH ONE DOLLAR

We call upon all Workers to support the 100,000 Dollar Drive of the Joint Defense and Relief Committee, Cloakmakers and Furriers.

(Signed) BEN GOLD, LOUIS HYMAN.

Joint Defense & Relief Committee, Furriers & Cloakmakers, 41 Union Sq., Room 714
Other stations at Local 22, 16 W. 21st St., or the Joint Boards of the Cloakmakers and Furriers.
Be sure your Certificate is stamped with the official seal, accompanied by the special certificate receipt.

CUT OUT THIS CERTIFICATE AND SEND IT OR BRING IT IN WITH ONE DOLLAR

DAILY WORKER

Published daily except Sunday by the DAILY WORKER PUB. CO.

Phone, Orchard 1606

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year, $3.50 six months, $2.00 three months

By mail (outside of New York): $5.00 per year, $2.50 six months, $1.50 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, N. Y. C.

A. LOUIS ENGDAHL ..... Editor
WILLIAM F. DUNNE
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

LENIN SAID:

There is not a single political worker who has not experienced defeat at some period of his career, and if we desire to speak seriously about exercising influence upon the masses, about winning the "good will" of the masses, we must exert every effort to prevent these defeats from being concealed in the vitiated atmosphere of study-circle and groups; they must be submitted to the judgment of all. At first sight it would seem that this is not a proper thing to do and that it would give "offense" to this or that leader. But this false sense of propriety must be overcome; it is our duty to the party and to the working class. By this and this alone will we make it possible for the whole mass (and not a casually selected group or study-circle) of influential party workers to know their leaders AND TO PLACE EACH ONE OF THEM IN THEIR PROPER PLACE.

("Lenin on Organization"—From a letter to the Iskra, November 25, 1903.)

Hankow and the Chinese Eastern Railway—The Imperialist Front.

The two things that remain clear in the Chinese situation, that stand out thru all the confusion created by imperialist correspondents who do not know what is actually going on to begin with and who in the second place wish to create an intervention atmosphere, are:

1.) The attack of the imperialists is centering on Hankow, the stronghold of the labor movement, of the Kuomintang government and the important industrial district of China.

2.) The offensive against the Soviet Union is being developed by means of attempts to seize the Chinese Eastern Railway and eliminate the Soviet Union from the management committee organized jointly by them and the Chinese.

Battleships of the great powers numbering from forty-five to fifty (estimates vary) are anchored in front of Hankow "with their guns trained on the city," to quote the imperialist press. Wild rumors of disorders in Hankow, which would furnish an excuse for intervention, have been cabled to the American press ever since the treason of Chiang Kai Shek occurred. But to date nothing of the kind has happened and yesterday the news comes of a resumption of business by Japanese concerns by agreement with the labor unions and the Hankow government.

It seems that the "demoralization" of the labor unions and the left wing government, which the imperialist correspondents have been so industriously propagating, is pure fiction. Not only is the Hankow government consolidating its influence in the three great industrial cities of Wuchang, Hanyang and Hankow but it is, according to the New York Times, whose correspondent is bitterly hostile to Hankow, sending four armies southward to Canton.

This certainly is evidence of strength and not weakness. On the other hand, Chiang Kai Shek has not even been able to organize a civilian government in spite of strenuous efforts in this direction but is still operating as a dictator with but little authority over subordinate commanders.

The concentration of imperialist naval and military forces at Hankow is in itself a refutation of the tales of the weakness of the anti-imperialist and labor government there. World imperialism knows that the Hankow government, with its base in the labor unions and peasant organizations, with millions of supporters in and around great centers of population such as Shanghai and Canton, is the only powerful force opposing it in China.

This is the secret of the huge fleet 600 miles up the Yangtze and the constant bombardments conducted jointly by British and American gunboats.

These two great imperialist nations, both of them seeing in the rise of the Soviet Union and the Chinese liberation movement the beginning of the end of their careers of robbery, and aided by Japan and France when necessary, are striking at the heart of the mass movement in China. Japan again is inciting Chang Tso Lin to aggression against the Soviet Union.

To end the war on the Chinese labor unions, the peasant organizations, the militant nationalist student organizations and those sections of the middle class which are honestly fighting against imperialism, is the task of the workers in the imperialist countries. We can be certain that if the present plans of the imperialists mature and the Chinese liberation movement is crushed temporarily (it cannot be destroyed) that there will be a new and more destructive wave of world reaction.

The Chinese masses hold the first line trenches. We must give all possible aid.

Every imperialist government must be exposed by the workers whom it oppresses at home.

The demand for Hands Off China can be made so powerful that imperialism cannot carry out its program for establishing anew the enslavement of the Chinese masses.

Nicaraguan Liberals Should Reject Stimson Plan

The combination of American marines and subsidized Diaz forces having thus far failed completely to subdue in the interest of imperialist policy the liberal forces supporting the legally seated government of Sacasa, the Wall Street-Coolidge-Kellogg combine has sent Henry L. Stimson, secretary of war under Taft and one of the directors of the American Superpower Corporation, to refine dirty diplomacy in an effort to disarm the liberal forces.

Stimson, under orders of the Coolidge administration, has arrived in the interior of Nicaragua and has had a conference with the supporters of Sacasa that they disarm and participate in the election to be held on November 21, 1928, with "guaranteed participation of the liberals in the conservative government," to be followed by elections "guaranteed by the United States if both sides request it."

The liberals should refuse to disarm and should continue the fight against Diaz, the Wall Street agent, as well as against Coolidge's gunmen of imperialism and the industrial magnate, Mr. Stimson, until the whole mess of them are driven from the country and the people permitted to choose their own form of government.

In their defiance of American imperialism they will have the support of all workers and farmers in the United States who are awakened to the menace of the administration's provocative policy in the South and Central American republics.

Official Labor Reaction Meets Political Defeat

(By Capitalists and Their Agents Disguise Their Labor Leaders)

By WM. Z. DUNNE

I.

REACTION in the American labor movement has suffered a political defeat in the last thirty days.

If this keeps up it will drive home the lessons of this defeat to the workingclass and give organizational expression to the disillusionment and resentment which is bound to arise, it will be able to take the offensive again in the near future.

IT MUST be understood to begin with, in this article a distinction is made between reaction in the labor movement proper and the general wave of reaction which is sweeping the United States and which is bound up intimately with its predominant imperialist position. It is exactly the great depth of this general wave of reaction which is partially responsible for the impossible political position in which the Greens, Wolls, Lewises—the whole leading circle of the American Federation of Labor and its socialist allies—now find themselves.

IT IS hardly necessary here to give in detail the evidence (listed in many previous articles) which shows that the leadership of the American labor movement has adopted a program having as its central point the castration of the unions and the replacement of virility by organizations which are to be instruments for promoting increased production. This policy does not mean to abandon the class struggle (these leaders have never acknowledged the existence of the class struggle) but it repudiates the rank and file militancy, shown in strikes, boycotts and armed struggles which made the American labor movement as forceful as it is.

THIS policy, to be successful, must be based on a truce in the class struggle—agreement by the capitalists to abandon their aggressions against the workers' organizations, their wages and working conditions and all attempts to lower the political status of the workers and their organizations. The class struggle arises from the fact that the capitalist class never treats the working class as anything else than a subject class. (The reasons for this do not need to be explained here.)

THE official leadership of American labor has acted on the theory that in the United States there is not such thing as the class struggle—no class division. It does not fight capitalism. In the American Federationist for June 1923 (about the time the present offensive against militant trade unionism got under way) we read that the American Federation of Labor is "squarely for the defense and maintenance of the existing order and for its development and improvement."

IN practice the above statement has expressed as "union-management cooperation"—the Baltimore plan, Ohio plan, the Watson-Parker bill, etc. Flowing out of this denial of the class struggle has come a flood of apologies for the discarding of the policy of struggle for obtaining demands made by the unions.

A WHOLE literature has developed whose sole purpose is to justify the embrace with American capitalism. Every two-by-four "economist" has been prating about the "tremendous new developments in American industry," preaching against "waste in industry," lauding the "sane and constructive" policy of the Greens, Wolls and Lewises, forecasting a "new civilization," etc.

THE Workers Education Bureau, beginning as something of a revolt against the absolute lack of any educational activity in the A. F. of L. program, has rapidly become a propaganda instrument for efficiency unionism. Its principal function is to give as much theoretical justification as possible for the wrecking of the unions as weapons of the workers.

AGAINST the Communists and the organized left wing the principal arguments used by the efficiency union apologists have been 1) that they insisted on basing a policy on the class struggle when no such clash existed in democratic America and 2) that the strikes organized and led by the left wing were unnecessary, when the capitalists were ready to come to an understanding, and further that these strikes interfered with the sweet peace which enveloped worker and capitalist alike.

LABOR officialdom is for peace but if American capitalism is for war and in the last month it has shown clearly that any disposition for a truce in the class struggle that may exist is solely in the breasts of labor officialdom.

How has this been shown?

By two important events and by a number of minor ones. Occurrences of a major character which show that American capitalism is on the offensive are:

1.—The closing of their mines by the coal barons rather than continue the wages and working conditions specified in the Jacksonville agreement.

2.—The decision of the United States supreme court handed down on April 11 in the Bedford Cut Stone case outlawing even the ordinary defensive activities of unions in a brazen decision that Justice Brandeis in his dissenting opinion referred to as "an instrument for imposing restraints upon labor which reminds of involuntary servitude."

These two blows at the labor movement cannot be understood in their full importance as complete and unanswerable refutations of the worker-employer cooperation doctrine unless they are seen in their relation to the recent history of the labor movement.

(To Be Continued.)

The First of May and the Working Woman

By RACHEL HOLTMAN.

Not long ago, the First of May was celebrated by just a small group in the big industrial centres. Then came the Russian revolution and the liberated workers and peasants took this day as the most cherished holiday. The class conscious workers followed them and soon there will not be a corner in the globe where this day will not be recognized as the most praised workers' holiday.

It is hard to believe that the reactionaries of the American Federation of Labor, the ones that now persecute workers, the ones that go hand in hand with the bosses—that this American Federation of Labor should have been the first over thirty years ago to propose at the International Congress in Paris, that the first of May be considered as the day of struggle for the right hour's day.

With that proposition (it was accepted unanimously) the A. F. of L. put herself in the forefront as the vanguard to fight for better working conditions.

Now They Change.

Never before was it so plain as it is now that the leaders of the A. F. of L. are closely connected, are going hand in hand with the government courts, bourgeois press and the bosses. Never before were the class lines so sharply drawn as they are now. Never before were there such disruptions in the workers' movement as there is on this first of May.

The A. F. of L. has completely forgotten its ideals—the cause for which it stood. It is no longer celebrating the First of May, but instead has adopted the labor day which is ardently being celebrated by the American bourgeoisie, namely, the first Monday in September.

Call It "Health Day."

Yet, the bourgeoisie is considering this great international holiday and the manner in which they are celebrating it is by taking an account of the great work they have done for society.

They are trying high and low to show how much they have done to bring up a healthy generation, healthy physically and morally.

The Child Welfare Association is organizing May 1. celebrations throughout the States, the attractions with which they hope to draw people are with May Day Parties, prizes for the best fed children, etc. Naturally —who are the best fed children? Certainly not the children of the great masses, who are compelled to go to work before they are physically developed, for a low unearthly wage that is not even enough to give them the mere necessities of existence.

Workers Look to Future.

May the 1st, when the workers gather to account for everything they have done and decide what should be done; it is also the duty of the working class woman to take stock of what she has done to enlighten the lives and better conditions of the working women, in the factory, and home. What is the situation now? For the last year into the class struggle were drawn in elements as were considered impossible to get hold of—i.e. the women.

Women Unionists.

The heroic fight in Passaic, where 90 per cent of the working women are now organized in unions shows clearly what a power women can be when organized. The excellent relief work during the strike showed clearly what the women have been able to achieve. For the last year, the woman grew up and developed mentally. The beginning to understand that the struggle of the workers is her struggle. This historic mass meeting of the 3000 women workers in Cooper Union is the best proof that the woman is on the right path and in the right place.

Give Relief.

For the last year the women have built up and developed their organization. They gave relief wherever and whenever it was necessary. They took part in picketing, in different protest meetings, bazaars and educational work.

With the best of hope and aspirations, the women may look towards the future and with enthusiasm continue the struggle.

On the day of May 1st the working women of America are sending to all the oppressed and enslaved the world over their comradely greetings.

Sisters, unite with the men workers in the fight for a better, more beautiful world.

MEETING FOR WOMEN MEMBERS OF WORKERS PARTY

The Second Party Women's Industrial Conference will be held Friday, May 6th at 8 p. m., at 126 ast 16th Street, New York City.

All delegates at first conference plus the following comrades must attend:

1.—Representatives from shop nuclei in shops employing women.

2.—All Party industrial organisers.

3.—Individual comrades working in shops employing women.

4.—Section and sub-section organisers for women's work.

This conference will be of especial interest. Report on activities and new tasks will be taken up.

I.L.D. Bazaar In Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, April 29.—The annual bazaar of the International Labor Defense, Local Philadelphia, will be held at New Traymore Hall, Franklin St. and Columbia Ave., on Friday evening, and Saturday afternoon and evening, May 6th and 7th.

Secretary Lyman claims that this bazaar will certainly measure up to the high standard set by their previous bazaars, and invites all who wish to help in the work of defense for political prisoners to participate.

Anyone wishing to contribute money or articles to the bazaar should send same to the local headquarters at 521 York Ave.

Young Pioneer League, May Day Celebration.

The Young Pioneer League will celebrate May Day on Saturday afternoon, one o'clock at 525 East 72nd Street. The program includes a play, "The Rose Bush" and a talk by Joe Freeman, who has just returned from Russia on May Day in Soviet Russia. He also brings greetings from the Russian Pioneers.

Let's Fight On! Join The Workers Party!

In the loss of Comrade Ruthenberg the Workers (Communist) Party has lost its foremost leader and the American working class its staunchest fighter. This loss can only be overcome by many militant workers joining the Party that he built.

Fill out the application below and mail it. Become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party and carry forward the work of Comrade Ruthenberg.

I want to become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Name .....

Address .....

Occupation .....

Union Affiliation.....

Mail this application to the Workers Party, 108 East 14th Street, New York City; or if in other city to Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Distribute the Ruthenberg pamphlet, "The Workers (Communist) Party, What it Stands For and Why Workers Should Join." This Ruthenberg pamphlet will be the basic pamphlet thruout the Ruthenberg Drive.

Every Party Nucleus must collect 50 cents from every member and will receive 20 pamphlets for every member to sell or distribute.

Nuclei outside of the New York District write to Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 East First Street, New York City, or to the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

FOOTNOTES TO THE NEWS

By EUGENE LYONS

FROM RAGS TO RICHES: A SUCCESS STORY.

By Jake, the Demon Reporter.

From rags to riches—that in brief is the story of Herbert Klotz, the multimillionaire rags dealer, a self-made man who attributes all his success to his mother. This reporter, being softhearted, wiped a tear as Mr. Klotz unfolded the stirring story of his career.

No man (since the last one we interviewed) has had so many obstacles to contend with before rising to his present pinnacle of wealth.

"You see, young feller,' Mr. Klotz said from the side of his mouth which was not occupied by a cigar, "it was this way. When I got to this here country I was just a kid, you know. And I was interested in a lot of nonsense. I liked music, for example—Bach and Mozart and Beethoven and the rest of the heavyweights. Get me?"

"Yeh," the reporter interjected.

"But my mother, God bless her memory," he continued, signing large checks for charity, perhaps a little sadly, "my mother she says, 'Herbie,' she says, 'y'gotta get over it. There aint no future in it. Money talks in this here country, see? Now look at Uncle Gerhart,' she says, 'just look at uncle Gerhart.' "

Mr. Klotz did. This uncle was born with a fine tenor voice. In the old country he had dreamed of becoming an opera star. But in America he decided to put his voice to better use. He became an old clothes collector. No one could resist his sweet resonant cries. Women rushed to sell their husbands' Sunday suits for next to nothing when his "Any ol' clo's . . ." echoed through the streets. And so Uncle Gerhard was established as a prosperous rags dealer, with a cellar all his own, then two cellars, and so on.

"I became apprenticed to my uncle," Klotz declared, absent-mindedly tearing up the checks he had signed, "but it was no-cinch. Always at the wrong moment music would come into my head, and thoughts about birds and spring and that sort of stuff. But I thought of my poor old mother and her hopes for my future. I crushed those thoughts and got down to hard tacks. And after a while I got on quite nicely, thank you."

Then came a great day when he discovered that there was another kind of rags, a kind that his uncle knew nothing about. Klotz discovered that his great failing, music, could help him. He began to specialize in musical rags!

"Ragtime music was just going into style," he said, toying idly with $20 gold pieces. "That was my chance! I began to corner the market. At last my love of music was a Business Asset. I began to buy up bits of Bach and Beethoven and Mozart and the rest of the big boys; tag-ends, snatches, 'seconds' from all the masters; tunes torn out this place and that. . . . I had them all turned to good honest rags. Orders came faster than I could fill them and now I have a factory in Rutherford, New Jersey, another in Gary, Indiana, and a third—but let me show you."

He led the excited reporter to the show-room. Radios and victrolas and mechanical pianos were going full blast. Hundreds of uniformed composers were at work.

"You see," he said, "business is just humming."

"Humming ain't the word for this racket," the reporter agreed and rushed off to beat the deadline.

The Battle of Banker Hill.

At the Battle of Bunker Hill
our men saw red
and stabbed
at those straps criss-crossed on the chests of lazy shiftless fellows
And Lost!

At the Battle of Banker Hill
(And other Socony Hills)
our men saw clouds
of red—red—red . . .
and sent speeding, sizzling shell . . . shell . . . shell
and Won!

—SPULL.

God and Gunboats.

"Some mean people are saying," Norman Studer advises this department, "that the missionaries have forsaken God for Gunboats in China, but don't you believe them. To prove it, I am sending you a quotation from a letter written by a one of God's own salesman, now stranded in Shanghai. The letter appears in full in the college newspaper of Chowan College, Murfreesboro, N. C. Here it is:

" 'We do crave the prayers of our friends at home. It is not for ourselves that we are concerned, but for the native Christians, the native pastors, the native evangelists and the native Bible women. They are having to undergo all kinds of persecutions at this time, and there is no one to protect them. . . . For our protection there are warships from America and Britain here in the harbor, and plans are laid by which we could be put on boats at short notice. . . .'

"In an exclusive spirit-world interview for this paper I have just discovered why the missionaries are right in praying for God to protect the native Christians while they rely on Gunboats. It seems that God is so busy protecting the native Believers from an awful fate at the hands of the enemy that it would be downright ingratitude to ask Him to bother with a mere handful of missionaries."

Literary Intervention.—A distinguished group of Jewish writers has published an open letter to the needle trades workers of New York. These literary gentlemen have been watching the internal struggle for a long time. They saw the bloodshed, the starvation, the threat against the very life of the unions involved. But they did not feel that they should interfere. Then, however, something worse happened. In the fervor of the fight the contestants forgot their manners. The Yiddish tongue was being defiled by gross invectives." That was more than they could stand, wherefore the public letter demanding peace.

Now it only remains to see how Messrs. Woll, McGrady, Frayne et al will meet this appeal to their literary conscience.

Further Suggestions For An All-Star Reporting Team.—Comrade Sam Levine volunteers the following recommendations for the all-star staff of reporters being mobilized by Footnotes:

History—Henry Ford.
Communism—Abraham Cahan.
Latest News From Russia—Alexander Kerensky.
Left Wing Trade Unionism—Matthew Woll.

READ THE DAILY WORKER EVERY DAY

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION

THE DAILY WORKER

FINAL CITY EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 94. | SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. | NEW YORK, TUESDAY, MAY 3, 1927 | Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. | Price 3 Cents

Current Events

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

FREDERICK MOORE, the New York "Times" Shanghai correspondent contributes to the self-satisfaction of the bourgeois-minded newspaper readers by telling them that the Hankow nationalist government has decided to refrain from carrying on anti-foreign propaganda for the reason that it needs foreign assistance. Every person who is acquainted with the way news is made and who is honest would like to take Mr. Moore by the neck and tickle his apple, but since that is difficult the best we can do is prove that he is a liar and depend on our business manager to give our words the necessary circulation.

• • •

IN THE first place the Hankow government was never anti-foreign. It was and is anti-imperialist. It is not opposed to the idea of foreigners living and working in China. But it objects to either foreigners or natives fleecing the Chinese people. Until the Nationalist movement in China got as far as Hankow, Canton was blamed for all the ills that China was supposed to be heir to, but when the nationalist movement developed and went northwards our imperialist scribblers also went along.

• • •

YOU have read about Chiang-Kai-Shek. As the DAILY WORKER pointed out, Chiang sold out to the foreign imperialists. This is not a novelty. Many persons like Chiang have sold out under similar circumstances. In China, Chiang is now the favorite of the imperialists. But without some mass support Chiang would be as helpless as a flea in a whirlwind. So the imperialists tell Chiang to continue babbling about anti-foreignism in order that he may hold on to the mass following that he had before he betrayed the nationalist cause.

• • •

FREDERICK MOORE would have us believe that the revolutionary nationalists in China are anti-foreign. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In fact there are many foreigners co-operating with the Nationalist revolutionists. What they are against are the foreign tools of the international plunderbund. The imperialist powers are not particularly concerned about shooting down Chinese revolutionists. They would just as soon shoot down American or British revolutionists fighting in China. But they will shoot down anybody who helps in the task of putting a kink in the policy of imperialism in China.

• • •

THE Hankow Government represents the Chinese movement that aims to unify China under one government. Because it has not sold out to the foreign imperialists the foreign correspondents unite in maligning it. They say it is anti-foreign. The object is, of course, to prejudice the average newspaper reader against Hankow. But our readers know enough to discount everything that appears as news in the capitalist press and to assume that every bit of Chinese news sent across by a capitalist scribbler is false until it is proven true by events.

• • •

ABOUT 120 American battleships are lying in the two rivers that gird Manhattan Island. Some 20,000 young fellows are tramping the city and having a good time according to their individual tastes. The papers have extended editorial greetings to the fleet. The city has practically turned over its keys to the bluejackets. Not so long ago certain theatres had a rule which prevented bluejackets from getting inside their portals. The idea was that only a waster would join the navy. This was before Wall Street started on its imperialist rampage. Now, there is no nobler cause than imperialism. So the bluejackets who were scorned a few years back are now the white-haired boys of our bourgeoisie.

Mob Forms at Church To Kill Accused Negro

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 2. — Following an all-night fruitless search of jails for Leonie Dixon, 16, Negro, who Sunday was forced to confess he criminally assaulted and murdered Vivian MacDonald, a mob of almost 1,000 people dispersed today.

Vowing that a lynching would follow [illegible] the whereabouts of Dixon was learned, the mob reassembled [illegible] First Presbyterian church [illegible] disbanded themselves to [illegible] scene as the Negro was [illegible] At early trial, with the death [illegible] demanded by the state, was [illegible]

FUR BOSSES SPLIT ON ALLIANCE WITH WOLL

CHIANG FEARS REVOLT AS TROOPS DESERT FOR HANKOW NATIONALISTS

Imperialist Powers Thru Chang Tso-lin to Court-Martial Thirty-six From U. S. S. R.

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Large sections of Chiang Kai Shek's army deserting to Nationalists; Chiang calls in northern troops to prevent rebellion in Nanking.

2.—Split between Minister MacMurray in Peking and State Department; MacMurray wants immediate partition of China.

3.—Chiang Kai Shek prevents May Day demonstrations.

4.—Chang Tso-lin, inspired by imperialist powers, will court-martial 36 citizens of Soviet Union; denies American lawyer admission to court to defend them.

5.—Text of Communist International statement, branding Chang's documents as forgeries.

• • •

SHANGHAI, May 2.—Large sections of Chiang Kai Shek's army are refusing to fight the Nationalist Government at Hankow and are deserting, according to reports received here

One report states that Chiang, fearing a rebellion, disarmed 7,000 men of his Sixth Army last Saturday and is moving several thousand men of his "loyal" Third Army into Nanking.

Old Troops Desert.

Chiang's strength, it is reported, lies with the counter-revolutionary northern troops who have been incorporated into his army. Chiang's old forces, who are educated in the principles of the Kuomintang, are rapidly leaving him.

In an effort to forestall a rebellion, Chiang has been sending officers suspected of left wing sympathies to the front against the northern war lords only to cut them off and leave them to capture and certain death at the hands of their enemies.

• • •

Powers Agree on Note.

LONDON, May 2. — England, France, Italy and Japan are now in full accord as to the character of the new note to China demanding reparations for the Nanking affair, it was said at the foreign office tonight.

Hope is still maintained that the United States will join in the demands and the forwarding of the communication will await definite rejection or notice of agreement to participate from President Coolidge.

At the conclusion of today's meeting, the cabinet was understood to have been agreed to notify the Nationalist government that the British intend to reoccupy the Hankow concession. This move will be made independently of the joint action in demanding reparations.

• • •

MacMurray Wants War.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The differences between the state department and Minister John V. A. MacMurray at Peking are becoming more acute.

MacMurray has openly espoused the militarist policy of the British die-hard cabinet and is clamoring for open war on China. The state department, though it is responsible for a huge American armed force in China, is treading a little more cautiously.

Favors Partition.

MacMurray is understood to favor the British plan for the occupation of the entire Yangtse Valley and the

(Continued on Page Two)

Hold Off Sentence Of Furriers; Won't Retry Gold, Shapiro

Nine fur workers unjustly convicted on April 23 on charges growing out of the recent furriers' strike, were taken before Judge Smith at Mineola yesterday for sentence. On motion of Prosecutor Edwards, imposition of sentence was postponed pending an attempt to frame up more charges against them.

Ben Gold and Isidore Shapiro, chairman and president of the Joint Board of the Furriers' Union, probably will not be tried again following their recent acquittal of second degree assault charges. Without a shred of evidence against them Gold and Shapiro were fined and Edwards has little liking for another effort to railroad them.

Sentence will be imposed on the nine convicted men next Thursday.

LITTLE HOPE FOR MINERS ENTOMBED BY FATAL BLAST

Second Mine Takes Fire Near Fairmont

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 2.—Rescue crews today had penetrated less than half the distance into the blast-wrecked depths of the New England Fuel & Transportation Company's mine at Everyjarville, W. Va., near here, where 77 miners, entombed late Saturday afternoon, are still imprisoned.

Presence of gas in the mine is delaying the rescue attempts. Sixteen dead and seven injured have been brought to the surface.

Mounted police and a company of infantry have established a camp here to "protect the company's interest" and "keep order among the crowds." The relatives of the men below are roped away from the mine mouth.

Used To Danger.

Upon the success or failure of the rescue crews depends the fate of many families represented in that mournful group of relatives.

They did not weep for they are the wives and children of miners, who are taught from childhood to be prepared to meet such emergencies without faltering.

Bad Roads.

The mine is one of the largest in Monongahelia county. It is located four miles off the main road from Morgantown to Fairmont. The nearest railroad is two miles away and only one telephone, a party line serves the vicinity of the mine.

Explosion Twists Steel.

The fate of the entombed men was in doubt, according to reports here from the scene, but rescuers were said to be doubtful of the possibility of finding any great number of them alive, because of the evidences al-

(Continued on Page Two)

Hands Off China Meeting At Union Square Next Saturday; Huge Protest

New York will witness a mass protest demonstration against any attempt to declare war on China and to demand the withdrawal of the American marines and battleships from that country, next Saturday at 1 p. m.

It will be held at Union Square by the Hands Off China Committee and more than 40 speakers are expected to address the workers.

Among those who already have signified their willingness to speak are: William Pickens, Richard B. Moore, Joseph Freeman, Robert W. Dunn, Pat Devine, Carle Tresca, William F. Dunne, H. M. Wicks, Pascal Cosgrove and Rebecca Grecht.

The Hands Off China Committee have opened new offices at 39 Union Square. Vivan Wilkinson is secretary and William Pickens, chairman of the executive committee.

HUMAN SACRIFICE—ANNO 1927

Big Four Control U. S. Bank, Insurance Expose Shows

PAST EVENTS OF INSURANCE EXPOSÉ

Apr. 22.—William F. Dunne, editor of The DAILY WORKER, wires Gov. Smith demanding an investigation of the "Big Four", basing his demand on a series of articles by Charles Yale Harrison.

Apr. 28.—Governor Smith orders James A. Beha, Superintendent of Insurance to conduct an inquiry into the charges made in The DAILY WORKER exposure.

Apr. 29.—Ex-senator William J. Tully, one of the targets in the Harrison articles, announces his resignation from official position with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company—"to travel in the Far East."

Apr. 30.—James A. Beha, acting under orders from Governor Smith, writes to The DAILY WORKER asking for data on which to base his investigation. Facsimile of this letter appears in this edition.

Charges pressed against the editors of The DAILY WORKER for printing an alleged unpatriotic poem.

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON.

ARTICLE XIX.

The "Big Four" assets, for the year ending December 31st 1925, in aggregate were $3,606,884,715, (over three and a half billion dollars). The figures for 1926, not yet available, will certainly be over the four billion dollar mark. The 1925 figures, however, are distributed as follows:

Metropolitan	$1,854,657,482
Prudential	1,373,110,038
Hancock	368,818,073
Colonial	10,229,122

In the United States and Canada there are over forty million workers insured by 62,222,702 weekly payment life insurance policies for a total of $11,052,748,627. More than eleven billions of dollars. This is distributed in the following manner:

NO. OF POLICIES.

Metropolitan	30,883,384
Prudential	26,158,302
John Hancock	4,075,631
Colonial	471,285

AMOUNT OF INSURANCE.

Metropolitan	$5,013,452,116
Prudential	4,988,647,816
John Hancock	975,371,776
Colonial	78,277,419

These statistics show the enormous "progress" made by the "Big Four" weekly payment life insurance companies in recent years.

To this extent is the American worker interested in curbing the growing economic and political influence of the "Big Four." Directly and indirectly practically every person in the United States is interested in the machinations of this gigantic combine, because for every policy in force there are at least three members of the family affected as beneficiaries.

$4,000,000,000 Necessary?

How powerful this insurance combine is, may be shown best by the abnormally large assets held by these companies as "a necessary reserve,"

(Continued on Page Two)

Norwegian Labor to Back Sacco-Vanzetti

OSLO, Norway, May 2.—The Norwegian Federation of Labor will declare a boycott on American goods if Sacco and Vanzetti are electrocuted. This threat was delivered today to the American legation.

The federation members will refuse to transport or load any merchandise of American manufacture.

Nearing Protests.

HARTFORD, Conn., May 1.—Eight hundred workers urged the withdrawal of American marines and warships from China at a mass meeting held at Liberty Theatre, Sunday evening.

Labor Injunction Fails to Relieve Plumber Lockout

An injunction has been issued by Justice May on behalf of that part of the 5,000 locked out union plumbers employed in Queens county, restraining the Building Trades Association from continuing its lockout.

Up to last night no effective results had been achieved by the injunction, since the employers have completely ignored it. The lockout has not been called off, nor have any of the men returned to work.

The injunction was issued to test the legality of the lockout, but it is obvious that no such test has to be made, since the bosses are the actual rulers who decide as to what is legal and what is not. A hearing is to be held tomorrow to take action on the injunction and to decide the continuation of it.

The lockout against the New York union plumbers was instituted by the bosses to counteract the plumbers strike in Brooklyn, now in its fifth week. The strikers demand a $14 wage scale and a five day work week. The plumbers' helpers, just recently organized, showed solidarity with the journeymen plumbers by coming out with them in a solid body. Their demands are recognition of their newly formed organization and a $9 daily wage.

A meeting was called last night at the Church of All Nations by Clarence Miller, president of the plumbers' helpers organization. A large crowd attended and it was decided to hold more special meetings in the Bronx, Queens and Brooklyn. A unanimous demand was made to continue the strike at all cost, even if the journeymen plumbers should decide to return to work.

ROANOKE, Va., May 2.—Walter L. Bootte, the 13-year old youth who had been kept alive for ten days by artificial respiration, continued to amaze his physicians today by his tenacious hold on life.

TRIMMERS HURL DEFI AT GROUP TIED TO RIGHTS

Negotiating Settlement With Joint Board

An agreement between the Joint Board of the Furriers' Union and the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association seemed near yesterday as the result of a complete break in relations between the trimmers and the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc.

The association, which has been acting as the ally of Matthew Woll and reactionary labor officials in the A. F. of L. and the international furriers' union in attempting to break the Joint Board, was flatly told that it could not dictate the policies of the Trimmers in a lengthy letter authorized by the board of directors of the Fur Trimmers yesterday afternoon.

The association in its desire to dominate the fur industry of New York City, is plotting to destroy the Trimmers' Association, declared President Morris Steinig. He defied the association in its efforts to control the Trimmers' employment policies and declared that left wing workers would not be barred from Trimmers' shops.

Woll Issues Ukase.

The association, acting at the behest of Matthew Woll, demanded immediate discharge of all workers recognizing the Joint Board. A letter from Woll to the association presented the ultimatum that "all the members of the Fur Trimming Manu-

(Continued on Page Five)

ROCKEFELLER, JR. TOPS LOCAL LIST OF MONEY BARONS

He is Wealthiest Stock and Bond Man Here

The ten richest persons in New York City today include one woman, and are, in order of their wealth:

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., $850,000,000.

George F. Baker, $200,000,000.

Charles M. Schwab, $125,000,000.

Sidney Z. Mitchell, $125,000,000.

Edward S. Harkness, $100,000,000.

J. P. Morgan, $75,000,000.

Arthur Curtis James, $70,000,000.

Payne Whitney, $70,000,000.

These estimates assessed by each individual could only be estimated, because in some instances the exploiters themselve could not estimate the exact value of their holdings.

Of the ten stock and bond holders listed as topping the roster of the city's aristocracy of wealth, five were native-born in New York City. The others are men who came here after sharp business practices elsewhere had started them on the road to fortune.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., successor through inheritance to the title of the second richest man in America, is a native of Cleveland. The family fortune had been well established by his father when he attained his majority. George F. Baker, listed as the city's second wealthiest man, came here from Troy, N. Y., during early manhood, and Charles M. Schwab is a native of Williamsburg, Pa.

Edward S. Harkness, whose fortune is, like that of the Rockefellers, founded on Standard Oil, came from Cleveland, and Sidney Z. Mitchell, of the General Electric, of whom the average man has heard little, is from Dadesville, Ala.

New Yorkers Inherited Theirs.

Vincent Astor, Mrs. E. H. Harriman, J. P. Morgan, Arthur G. James and Payne Whitney were all born in New York and inherited large portions of their wealth.

The fortune of George F. Baker, much of which has already been turned over to his son, George F. Baker, Jr., was accumulated through the banking industry and through the handling of railroad and industrial stocks for which Baker, senior, has long been noted.

Charles M. Schwab, as the average person knows, "cleaned up" after the consolidation days of the steel industry and through careful investments in the days which followed.

INSURANCE TRUST FIGURES

[illegible] companies [illegible] of country [illegible]
[illegible] companies have a total capital of $1,370,101,000, the "Big Four" [illegible] companies [illegible] in U. S. [illegible] are only three [illegible] banks [illegible] deposits in U. S.
The people now in the hands of the "Big Four" is greater than the entire amount of currency in circulation in this country, which is $4,669,718,000.
The insurance companies now threaten to vest control of the entire economic life of the nation into fewer and more unscrupulous hands than ever before.

"BIG FOUR" CONTROL U. S. BANK, EXPOSÉ SHOWS

(Continued from Page One)

at this stage of their development about four billion dollars.

While the size of the assets are admittedly high, they do not give evidence of the power implied therein. The danger to the economic life of the nation lies in the character and condition under which these terrific sums are held.

The day is long past when banks obtained the greatest menace to the control of industry and production. Standing behind the banks are these colossal insurance combines with their billions of dollars of liquid capital.

Mobilized Menace.

Liquid capital—therein lies the menace. For whereas other anti-social combines such as the Steel Trust, the Oil Trust and the Automobile Trust control enormous amounts of capital, such capital, is of necessity, tied up in real estate, machinery and stock. This condition does not exist in the case of insurance assets.

Where the former are essentially borrowers of capital, the "Big Four" are lenders.

On November 31st 1925 these four public pawnbrokers had on deposit in their controlled banks throughout the country over $76,000,000.00 in cash. No one but a child will hesitate to say who controls the banks in which this enormous amount of ready cash is deposited.

During the month of November the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the largest of the "Big Four" had over $52,000,000.00 in cash deposited with the Metropolitan branch of the Chase National Bank in New York City.

Assets Negotiable.

Even the four billions of dollars in assets are more or less in liquid form. The vast majority of it being invested in negotiable bonds and securities.

Some idea of the enormity of these figures may be gained by calling to mind that the entire amount of currency in circulation in the United States is $4,669,000,000. This is less than the amounts of assets now held by the "Big Four."

The total number of savings bank depositors are 12,573,001, the number of weekly payment life insurance policyholders is over 40,000,000.

On December 21st 1925 there were 8,064 national banks doing business in the United States with an aggregate paid in capital of $1,379,101,000. Four weekly payment life insurance companies have $4,000,000,000 in assets.

The total government revenue for 1926 was $3,962,755,690; the "Big Four" assets are greater than the entire U. S. revenue for one solid year.

Great, Not Good.

The magnitude of these companies means absolutely nothing. They do not bespeak honesty, efficiency or fair dealing. Size, in insurance companies, indicates the energy with which the company has been prosecuting its business. A boppopotamus is not more intelligent than an ant.

The immensity of the "Big Four" is evidence of the gullibility of the insuring public and proof that the presence of Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, on the directorate of the Metropolitan Life has aided the insurance trust in getting lots of free favorable publicity.

For example the Metropolitan assets of over one and a half billion dollars and over twelve billions of insurance in force is no more proof of worth and business acumen than a 5 karet diamond ring on the finger of a prosperous pawnbroker is proof of his business integrity.

Success Measure.

The success of industrial life insurance will be proven not by pointing to the scores of millions of poor dupes that have fallen for the swindle but rather by the great amount of insurance which these companies can offer with absolute safety at the lowest possible cost. Previous articles have shown how exorbitant the weekly payment life insurance rates are in comparison with the risk and benefits expense involved.

"The Big Four" will be adjudged successful when they learn (sic) to operate at low ratio of expenses, a safe return on investment and when the present murderous lapse rate is considerably lowered.

For the year 1925, 75 out of every 100 weekly payment policies which terminated on these companies' books were total loss lapses. Only 1 per cent were matured endowments! This condition of lapses has existed for the past twenty years. Only an incurable optimist could imagine that these corrupt companies will ever remedy without the most drastic action on the part of the 40,000,000 policyholders who now suffer financial losses of the basest variety.

Big Overhead.

[illegible] able [illegible] to [illegible] operating [illegible] to pay [illegible] on the paid [illegible] the weekly payment insurance trust stands indicted as the most crooked gang of buccaneers that ever looted the public.

For every dollar which pours into the coffers of this heartless combine, about 40 cents is spent on management expense. If any other business was run upon the same principle it would be bankrupt in a months of an eye—unless it resorted to the merciless overcharging that the "Big Four" do.

The Prudential Life Insurance Company uses as its advertising slogan, "As Strong as the Rock of Gibraltar"—and then calmly proceeds to charge its "cooperative" policyholders nearly 40 cents for every dollar paid by them for "protection."

As strong as the Rock of Gibraltar—and as hard.

The figures used in this and preceding articles have been taken from the public reports of the "Big Four" as submitted by them to the Superintendant of Insurance at Albany, and from other official documents. It is common knowledge that the reports are doctored and "prepared" by $50,000 a year actuaries.

A French philosopher has said, that "Language was made to conceal thought."

Actuaries are made to conceal facts. Demand an investigation!

Needle Trade Defense

Men's Clothes.

"Men, buy your new straw hats and spring and summer suits and top coats at the Great Defense Bazaar at the Star Casino, 107th St. and Park Ave., May 12 to 18."

This is the slogan of the members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers who have taken in a complete line of the famous G. G. G. Brand of men's clothes for the Bazaar. All necessary alterations on suits or topcoats will be made right at the Bazaar.

• • •

"The Jungle"

is going to have a great run. This picture, based on Upton Sinclair's book, has been donated to the defense by Upton Sinclair, and already arrangements have been made and theatres hired in Philadelphia, for June 3rd and 4th, and in New Haven for May 23rd.

• • •

Shop Collections.

Beckerman's white terror in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union prevents the publication of numerous reports from Amalgamated Shops. Nevertheless, acknowledgment is here made to the many shops and individuals who have contributed to the Defense Fund. Workers of the Rubinette Dress Company collected $13.50, Troy Cloak Company $6.00, Goodwell Dress Company $50.000. Many other shops will be acknowledged thru the Special Bazaar Number of "Unity," and in the language press.

• • •

Letters.

April 29, 1927.

To the Joint Board Defense Committee:

Although I am not a farrier but heard of the good work done by the Joint Board Defense Committee, I am enclosing a dollar for the relief of the imprisoned workmen. My profession is upholstering and I belong to Local 76 U. I. U.

Yours truly,
Morris Miller, Bklyn, N. Y.

• • •

Joint Defense Cloak Makers:

Dear Comrades: We are enclosing a check for $6.00 as a donation towards your defense fund. This amount was collected in one of our union shops, and we would ask you to send us a receipt as we would like to turn it over to the girls, and show them that this money was sent to the proper place.

Wishing you success, we are,

Comradely,

Millinery Hand Workers Union,
Local 43.

• • •

Dear Friend Landy:

At last my work in Buffalo is beginning to show results. I am enclosing a check for $50.00 as a start and I am organizing a defense committee which will meet next Monday to organize and decide on a Tag Day.

We will send out several hundred One Dollar Roll Call checks on which we expect a fine response. A committee of twenty women has already begun to collect articles for the Bazaar. Please send me a big supply of all sorts of literature. Expect to be able to come to New York in June as in Buffalo and will try to arrange a big tag day for the same day as in Buffalo.

S. Stoll.

WORKERS STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI!

GREAT HOPES OFF CHINA COMMITTEE ACTS IN CHICAGO

Darrow Heads List of Famous Speakers

CHICAGO, May 2.—Clarence Darrow, Congressman A. J. Sabath, Professor John Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Federation of Labor and William A. Cunnea are among the prominent members of a "Hands Off China" Committee which will dispose a huge mass meeting will be held on May 6th, to protest against foreign intervention in China and to demand the withdrawal of United States armed forces.

Many On Program.

Clarence Darrow and Miss Jane Addams head an impressive list of speakers who will address the meeting in Ashland Auditorium, Ashland and Van Buren Streets, on Friday at 8 P. m. Included in the list are Congressman Sabath, Rev. John A. Lapp, Director of the Catholic National Welfare Conference; Mr. Cunnea, several times Socialist candidate for mayor; Rev. Paul Hutchinson of the Christian Century; Carl Haessler, managing editor of the Federated Press; Manuel Gomez, secretary of the All-American Anti-Imperialist League, and Chao Ting Chi, representing the Chicago branch of the Kuomintang of China in America.

China For Chinese.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, will send a special message to the meeting.

Standing firmly against any attempt to involve the United States in war with China, the committee supports the principle of China for the Chinese and demands the abolition of the unequal treaties imposed upon China by the foreign powers.

The meeting on Friday is intended to start a wave of protest in Chicago that will exert pressure toward the withdrewal of United States armed forces from China. The prominence of the speakers and the fact that they include widely divergent groups drawn from the labor, church, liberal, and anti-imperialist fields, make the meeting as important political event.

Union Heads Speak.

The committee supports the protest meeting includes besides most of the speakers listed above: Edward Nockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Margaret Haley, secretary of the Teachers' Union; Prof. Ferdinand Schevill of the University of Chicago; Ella Boynton of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; William H. Holly 77 West Washington Street, is provisional secretary. Cooperating with the Americans on the committee will be three representatives of the Chinese Kuomintang: Chao Ting Chi, P. Wong, and J. Chin.

Soon at his office after the committee session, Mr. Holly expressed the attitude of himself and those associated with him, in the following words:

"Millions of Americans are thinking seriously about China for the first time. The United States, declaring friendship, nevertheless maintains large military and naval forces in Chinese territory, precisely as the British do. Preparations are being made to send still larger forces. Shall we slow them to be used to crush the great Nationalist movement that is ushering in the dawn of a new day in China?

"It is these considerations which, as I personally see it, have resulted in the formation of the "Hands Off China" Committee and which, as well as the personalities of the speakers, will give us a huge demonstration on May 6th. And these same considerations will make of the mass meeting the beginning of a sustained movement on behalf of the long-suffering Chinese people."

Open Trial of Mexican Worker of Chicago Who Is Victim of Frame-Up

CHICAGO, May 2.—The case of Agustin Morales, the Mexican who is being framed by the police as the murderer of Policeman Lyman J. Stahl of Melrose Park, Dec. 7th, will attract widespread attention because of the ugliness of the circumstances in which the Mexican colony at Melrose Park found themselves involved following a comedy in the darkness of which little is actually known. It is feared that much perjured testimony will be introduced to aid the state in its attempt to secure a death penalty for a Mexican who is obviously innocent.

Los Angeles Pioneers To Meet.

LOS ANGELES, Cal. — On May 8th, the Young Pioneers of Los Angeles are holding a big anniversary concert and entertainment at the Co-operative Center. The main feature will be a 3-act comedy "The Revolt of the Orphans."

RADIO CENSORS ARE HAMMERED IN DEBATE HERE

WEAF Chief Assailed By Radio Liberals

By HARBOR ALLEN,
(Federated Press).

Questions on freedom of speech over the radio, which he could only evade on statement about, were hurled at Merlin N. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co. station WEAF, at the radio dinner of the America Civil Liberties Union.

Aylesworth, in a bland tone, had just assured the guests that there was plenty of free speech on the air; that anybody who wanted to broadcast could do so—providing WEAF, owned by the Westinghouse and the Western Electric Companies, felt his remarks were "suited to radio," and that broadcasting was a losing proposition.

Morris L. Ernst, attorney for the Liberties Union, demanded to know why, if there was free speech on the radio, Norman Thomas, Senator Watson, De Valera, Hans Kaltenborn of the Brooklyn Eagle, and other critics of political administrations had their speeches censored, cut off, or denied the air. Ha also asked why, if broadcasting is a losing proposition, stations with practically no equipment are being traded at a premium of $200,000 to $300,000.

Ernst denounced the sale of "the mere signature of Secretary Hoover's name" for large sums of money. Labor had fought for two years before it was granted a license, he added, and some liberal groups in New York still find it impossible to get one.

Dr. James Yard, of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions, asked whether WEAF would broadcast a plea for the removal of warships from China, and a "Hands Off China" policy. Aylesworth, stammering, presumed that "the speaker was serious," and said he had "thought of starting an open forum over the radio for all topics. Of course, that can't be overdone, as the public wants only to be entertained."

In reply to a question by Arthur Garfield Hayes, another Liberties Union attorney, Aylesworth listed among his "advisory board" William Green, Elihu Root, Charles Evans Hughes, Julius Rosenwald and Owen D. Young. "Why don't you have a board composed of all shades of political opinion?" asked Mr. Hayes. "Your board would not pass anything the least bit radical."

"There can be no freedom of the air as long as broadcasting is commercial," declared J. Mahon, radio editor of the New York Evening Journal. "Stations must please their customers, and they are afraid to send out controversial subjects or anything that make people think. WEAF won't broadcast a talk on atheism or socialism, because they're in business and they hope to stay."

Little Hope for Men Trapped in Scab Mine

(Continued from Page One)

ready encountered of the terrific force of the gas explosion which swept the pit late Saturday.

The entombed men, it is believed, are imprisoned at a depth of 10,500 feet. Rescurers this morning, according to early reports, had succeeded in reaching the 4,000 foot level only, and were progressing but slowly, due to the presence of smoke and gas.

The dead are: Commodore Burton, Edward Allen, Thomas Daugherty, W. L. Davis, Virgil Straight and Orvel Leech, all white, Martin Stone, William Hunter, Irvin Mallory and Frank Goodwin, Negroes, and four unidentified Negroes in Morgantown Morgues.

The seven injured have been removed to the city hospital at Fairmont.

Another Mine Burns.

Fire broke out today in the Virginia and Pittsburg Coal Company mine at Kingmont, near Fairmont, according to word received here.

The mine is several miles off the nearest main highway and only meager information was received concerning the blaze.

A considerable number of workers are imperiled by the blaze, but it is thought that they may have all escaped.

This second fire, following closely on the heels of the disastrous explosion and fire at the New England Fuel and Transportation Co. mine here, is but another point in the indictment against non-union mine management which is taking form in the minds of all miners as a result of the great increase in the number fatal or dangerous accidents lately.

Non-union Dangers.

Miners see the prevalence of such conditions as inseparable from union contracts, made by organized workers who are able to effectively strike, if necessary, to establish safe conditions.

The attempts made in near-by Pennsylvania to extend the area of non-union fields, and turn large coal companies from union to non-union conditions, is taken by miners as a threat of increased menace to life and limb.

Who is Behind the Prosecution of the Militant Needle Trades Workers?

Who Are Matthew Woll's Fellow Conspirators?

They Are Leaders of the National Civic Federation!

Woll is Acting President of the Labor Hating Civic Federation.

There is a United Front of the Special American Federation of Labor Committee, headed by Vice President Woll, and the National Civic Federation, dominated by the most powerful capitalists in the United States.

Matthew Woll is the connecting link in the conspiracy. With him in the Civic Federation are:

JOHN MARKLE, 2 Rector St., New York City.
Director Industrial Finance Corporation of New York (also Pres.).
President and Director Jeddo-Highland Coal Co.
President and Director Jeddo Supply Co.
President and Director Jeddo Tunnel Co.
Director Mayfield Construction Co.
Vice Pres. and Director Morris Plan Co. of New York.

OGDEN L. MILLS, 15 Broad Street, New York City.
Director Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe R.R. Co.
Director Atlantic Coast Steamship Co.
Director Continental Paper Bag Co.
Director Morgenthaler Linotype Co.
Director New York Tribune, Incor.
The Trustee New York Trust Co.
Director Shredded Wheat Co.
Director York Haven Paper Co.

Chiang Fears Revolt As Troops See His Treason

(Continued from Page One)

eventual partition of the whole of China.

Rumors here indicate that the split may result in the recall of MacMurray.

• • •

Sends More Planes.

LONDON, May 2.—The foreign office is understood to be planning the dispatch of more bombing planes, guns and light craft to China.

What the next move of the foreign office will be in view opposition of New Zealand, Canada and Australia to British intervention in China is problematical.

• • •

Enter The Marines.

SHANGHAI, May 2.—The Sixth Regiment of the United States marines arrived at Shanghai aboard the transport Henderson this afternoon.

No mass May Day demonstrations were held here yesterday because of the repressive measures taken by Chiang Kai Shek. Workers fearing another such wholesale massacre that have been the order of the day since Chiang joined the counter-revolution stayed in their homes.

• • •

Court-Martial.

PEKING, May 2.—The Soviet Union, it appears, will be prevented from taking any part of legal defense in behalf of the fifteen Russians captured in Chang Tso-lin's unprecedented raids on the Soviet embassy compound when they are court-martialed.

Deny Legal Defence.

Charles James Fox, American lawyer and editor of the North China Star, who has been retained by the Soviet Consul to defend them and twenty other Russians, including Mme. Borodin being held at Tsinanfu, said last night that his request to appear at the court martial in their behalf had received no reply.

It is believed that Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord, acting for the imperialist powers, is trying to goad the Soviet Union into a war.

Documents Forged.

MOSCOW, May 2.—The statement issued by the Communist International several days ago branding as forgeries the documents alleged by Chang Tso-lin to have been captured in his unprecedented raids on the Soviet Union embassy compound follows:

"The Chinese press appearing in territory occupied by Chang Tso-lin publishes many forged documents alleged to have been seized by police during the last raid on the Soviet embassy in Peking.

The Red Herring.

"These 'materials' now reproduced by the bourgeois press of all countries contain the usual denunciations of the Communist International. All this news raised by imperialist circles about these fantastic documents clearly shows why police serving foreign capitals wanted to raid the Soviet embassy.

"This act was necessary for the dissembling system of fraud and forgery which British conservatives use in their anti-Soviet campaign and purpose, leading credibility to 'documents' false. Nothing more nor less than assistance to the plans of the imperialist hangmen is attributed to the Communist International. Furthermore, the same 'inspection' recommends for the 'fulfillment of this purpose (intervention) to rob and murder foreigners,' regardless of their class.

Statements Ridiculous.

"All this nonsense, which indicates the political ignorance of its authors and fabricators by the specialists of foreign intelligence departments is so absurd that it needs no denial.

"Only hopelessly naive persons or acknowledged rogues attempting to justify by such filthy means the [illegible] imperialist robbers can make use of such documents.

"Before the workers of the whole world the Communist International can only condemn these methods despicable in their intention and inefficient in their execution of the worst enemies of the Chinese revolution.

"Workers of all countries will estimate according to their value these attempts inspired by foreign capitalists for the purpose of strangling the great movement of workers and peasants of China. Their vile cause can use no other means than gross frauds and forgery."

• • •

Fine For Bound Feet.

HANKOW, May 2. — The women folks in this section of the country have decided to do away with bound feet at the completion if necessary. The local women's organizations have undertaken the registration of all bound-feeted women under thirty years of age who must immediately remove their paralyzing bandages. They claim that physical freedom is the first step toward the emancipation of womankind. Three months will be devoted for the purpose of registration. After that a fine will be imposed upon every woman under thirty years who has bound feet.

• • •

Mammoth Protest Meeting.

A mammoth mass meeting to protest against imperialist intervention in China will be held in the north side of Union Square this Saturday.

The withdrawal of American troops and warships from China and the immediate recognition of the Nationalist government at Hankow will be among the demands voiced at the meeting.

"Red Flag" Stockings On Market Next Year From Leningrad Plant

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—Russian women will be wearing "The Red Flag" stockings next year following the opening of a huge hosiery factory of that name which is being erected in Leningrad.

Machinery has been ordered from abroad, and the factory will open in the autumn and turn out twice as many stockings as it has done in the past. Six thousand workers will be employed there, and the value of the product will be about eighty million roubles.

The cost of the new factory will be 18,774,000 roubles, of which 5,500,000 will be for equipment.

Blackshirts Armed With Stilettos to Guard Fascist Plane

Under heavy guard by black-shirted fascists, the airplane Santa Maria II was being primed yesterday for the flight back to Europe of Francesco de Pinedo, the Italian "air ambassador" of Mussolini. Armed in dramatic fashion with stilettos, the fascisti threatened newspaper cameramen with violence. On the voyage over from Italy, the plane was guarded by black shirts working in three watches of six men each while passengers were not allowed within 75 feet.

In honor of the fascisti, the captain and officers of the steamer Duilio and officials on the pier wore black neckties and black gloves yesterday.

McCormick and Stone Bash.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, May 2.—Cyrus McCormick and his bride, who was formerly his secretary, disembarked quietly from the S. S. Baltic here today. The McCormicks found an automobile awaiting them at the pier and drove off in the direction of Cork. It is believed they will take a honeymoon tour through Ireland.

Search For Bodies.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.—Fearing that sharks may have attacked Alfred Oliver, 16, and John Andrade, 20, who disappeared while wigging for clams, searchers scoured the coast near Moss Landing today in search of the bodies.

Passaic Sheriff Of Union Pickets On Way to Prison

(Special to Daily Worker)

PASSAIC, May 2.—Sheriff (Whitey) Adamsheisky, one of the most brutal policemen in the textile strike last year, is on his way to the penitentiary.

The slugger of pickets, both men and women, and the virulent foe of unionism, "Whitey" found himself yesterday in the same jail to which he had consigned so many brave fighters for labor. He has confessed to the robbery of the gasoline service station at 213 Passaic Ave., Garfield.

Adamscheisky was suspended from the force last Monday on conviction and after spending several hours in a cell—confessed to the crime. It is believed that other members of the police force are implicated.

APRIL 23

(1860)

The Birthday of our Leader

L

Choose this appropriate time to read what he has to say

E

on the simplest, most necessary things in the revolutionary movement. This work teaches fundamental

N

I

problems. It includes all his speeches and writings

N

ON ORGANIZATION

$1.50

In a cloth-bound library edition.

The DAILY WORKER PUB. CO.
33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

BOOKS BY
FRIEDRICH ENGELS

PRINCIPLES OF COMMUNISM—(Original draft of Communist Manifesto) 10 Cents

SOCIALISM, UTOPIAN AND SCIENTIFIC —25 Cents

ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY, PRIVATE PROPERTY AND THE STATE Cloth. 60 Cents

THE PEASANT WAR IN GERMANY Cloth. $1.50

KARL MARX AND FRIEDRICH ENGELS. By D. Riazanov. Cloth. $2.50

Mussolini Sues to Balkanize Rumania, Revealed By Paris Newspaper

PARIS, May 2.—A sensational allegation of proposals made by Premier Mussolini to King Boris to secure Bulgaria's support in the Italo-Jugo-Slavian dispute, is published today by L'Information, which states that its story is based upon a dispatch to the Belgrade Novosti Zagreb from its Sofia correspondent.

This dispatch alleges that Premier Mussolini has sent a special emissary to King Boris and Foreign Minister Bourov, proposing that if Bulgaria remains neutral in any Italo-Jugo-Slavian conflict that she will obtain several districts of Macedonia.

A further proposal is alleged to have been made that if Bulgaria enters an alliance with Italy a marriage will be arranged between Princess Giovanni and Boris.

Promises Hegemony.

Premier Mussolini is alleged to have promised to establish a Bulgarian hegemony over the Balkans and to restore to Bulgaria portions of Dobrudjae taken from Bulgaria by the Treaty of Bucharest.

Foreign Minister Bourov is said to have rejected the proposals and announced his intention of remaining strictly neutral and refusing to profit from difficulties of Bulgaria's neighbors.

Marconi After New Wife.

ROME, May 2.—Count Bezzilcall today announced the engagement of his daughter, Christine, to Guglielmo Marconi, famous wireless inventor and scientist. The marriage is expected to take place the middle of June. Signor Marconi's first marriage to the honorable Beatrice O'Brien, daughter of the fourteenth Baron Inchiquin was recently dissolved by the "sacred rota" of the catholic church.

Let's Fight On! Join The Workers Party!

In the loss of Comrade Ruthenberg the Workers (Communist) Party has lost its foremost leader and the American working class its staunchest fighter. This loss can only be overcome by many militant workers joining the Party that he built.

Fill out the application below and mail it. Become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party and carry forward the work of Comrade Ruthenberg.

I want to become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party.

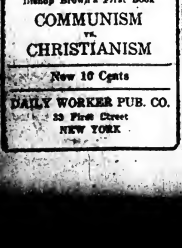
Name .....

Address .....

Occupation .....

Union Affiliation.....

Mail this application to the Workers Party, 108 East 14th Street, New York City; or if in other city to Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.



Distribute the Ruthenberg pamphlet, "The Workers (Communist) Party, What it Stands For and Why Workers Should Join." This Ruthenberg pamphlet will be the basic pamphlet thruout the Ruthenberg Drive.

Every Party Nucleus must collect 50 cents from every member and will receive 20 pamphlets for every member to sell or distribute.

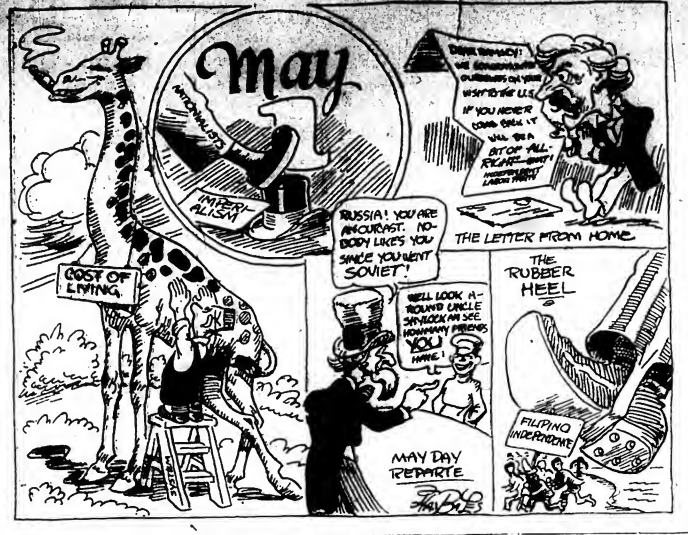
Nuclei in the New York District will get their pamphlets from the District Office—108 East 14th St.

Nuclei outside of the New York District write to Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 East First Street, New York City, or to the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

BISHOP BROWN'S NEW BOOK

"My Heresy"

The autobiography of an idea.



$2.00 Clothbound

Bishop Brown's First Book

COMMUNISM vs. CHRISTIANISM

Now 10 Cents

DAILY WORKER PUB. CO.
33 First Street
NEW YORK

Political Declaration of 8 Chinese Proletarian Organizations

IMPERIALISM AND MILITARISM.

The victorious northern expedition brings the revolutionary army face to face with the main forces of the enemies on the one hand, the marines and soldiers of the imperialists concentrated in Shanghai on the other hand, the soldiers of the northern militarists.

The defeat of Sun Chuan fang—though a heavy blow to the imperialists and militarists—is only the beginning of a final clash between the revolution and the counter-revolution. Because Sun was unable to prevent the revolutionary army from coming to Shanghai, the imperialists are constrained to play their last card: armed intervention. Consequently, a fight between the revolutionary army and international imperialism is becoming inevitable.

Furthermore, Chang Tso-lin is concentrating his forces against the revolutionary army; and hopes if possible, to push back the latter. It is clear that his hypocritical plan has the entire backing of the imperialists.

Duty of the Masses.

The first phase of the northern expedition being at its highest point, it is very necessary to have an decided and energetic fight to make it completely victorious.

At this urgent moment, all democratic and advanced forces must stand united behind the revolutionary army, in order to help it clear out all imperialist and militarist combined forces from the Yangtze region, and to reap the fruit of victory.

Up to the present, the people and the revolutionary army sincerely fulfilled their obligations. They deserve felicitation for the victory thus gotten under the leadership of the Kuomintang and the nationalist government. To defend that victory and the victory in the future, the leadership of the Kuomintang is more necessary than ever.

The strongest defense of the revolution remains in the disciplined organization of the revolutionary forces. Our forces, however, are being scattered over a large front of several hundred miles, in which modern communication is lacking. In such a situation, a supreme centralized power is necessary to realize the program of national revolution. This power must rest in the hands of the Kuomintang. Therefore, whatever act that may weaken the supreme power of the Kuomintang is a danger for the revolution. That will be intolerable, and will not be tolerated. We rally all the organized masses under the Kuomintang to make its power higher than any other organs: above also the nationalist government and the revolutionary army.

Comrade Wang Must Resume Office.

To develop the revolutionary movement to the highest point, to lead the revolutionary army to victory, to organize a democratic and revolutionary government, to consolidate the political power of the masses in the territories newly acquired—It is necessary to centralize the power of the party. To consolidate the party power, it is necessary to unite all revolutionary forces, without distinction. For this, comrade Wang Ching-wei is needed by the party. We hope comrade Wang shall resume office. We will rally all the organized masses to urge comrade Wang to return immediately.

Kuomintang Above All.

The Kuomintang must be defended above and before all else. Whoever mixes up with the organization and the power of the party must be condemned as dangerous for the revolution. We consider them as anti-party. If there are some in the party who commit such acts with the organized masses we urge the central executive committee to punish them, to deal with them according to party discipline.

Cooperation With Kuominchun.

In military affairs, the cooperation with the Kuominchun is of the highest importance. The united action of the revolutionary army and the Kuominchun will place the northern anti-revolutionary forces in a dangerous position. The nationalist government in Hankow must be the centre of all revolutionary cooperation. The revolutionary troops are the arms of the revolutionary government; and this latter is the foundation of mass democracy.

The masses have fought the Imperialists and their counter-revolutionary tools. The imperialists, either jointly or individually, are intervening at the front. We shall not be fooled by them. They are all enemies of the Chinese people. Our aim of fighting is against them all. Momentarily, we must concentrate our forces against this or that imperialism; but we shall not forget that our emancipation urges the overthrow of all imperialism.

French imperialism pretends to keep a so-called "neutrality". It is only hypocrisy. The French government not only secretly armed Yunan militarists, but openly supported the intervention policy of Britain. The "friendly" policy of America is but a false note. American imperialism always utilized or encouraged Chinese opportunist elements, in order to weaken the Chinese emancipation movement.

The "Tartufferie" of American imperialists was already unmasked by its proposal of neutralizing Shanghai. That proposal, aimed at transforming Shanghai into a property of imperialists so that they can legally use their armed forces against the revolutionary army if this latter attacks that city.

The policy of Japanese imperialism is clear. No Chinese can ever forget the humiliation of the 21 damands, the help given to Yuan Shi-kai before and to Chang Tso-lin at present —by Japan.

All imperialist purpose to come in relation with the revolutionary army and the nationalist government is intended to disperse our strength. Those who favor these hypocrites are enemies of the revolution, and must be dealt with accordingly.

Kuomintang Above All.

We need to weaken the imperialist forces by utilizing their own rivalry and antagonisms, in order to consolidate our own forces. But such tactics must be used only with the authorization of the Kuomintang and the Nationalist government, after serious study. No army or government shall be allowed to come in relation with foreign government without the agreement and direction of the party and the nationalist government.

Recently there were rumors about the general headquarters of the revolutionary Army entering into treaty with Chang Tso-lin. We urge the people to heed these rumors, and to deny them energetically; they are unfounded. Chang Tso-lin and his followers pretend that they are fighting for the same aim as the revolutionary army. That is a lie. We are sure that never, never can the revolutionary army make peace with the leader of the reaction—Chang Tso-lin. Maybe Chang Tso-lin was obliged to ask for peace when his soldiers were in a perilous position, but the answer for his demand is: "NO!" One of the most important meanings of national revolution is to free China from reaction. Therefore, in whatever necessity, strategical or otherwise, the revolutionary army cannot act contrary to that principle.

Workers' and Peasants' Demands

All organizations of the people shall stand behind the Kuomintang and the Nationalist government, in order to shoulder the revolutionary soldiers up to victory. We must never compromise with Japanese imperialism and northern militarism, because this will be a sort of alliance with the enemies of the people. This will lead to the pitfall of international imperialism, to the submission of the revolution. Therefore, the people must back the Nationalist government to defend the victory, to avoid a chance of defeat.

To make the Nationalist government the centre of the revolution, the Kuomintang must rely upon the toiling masses. And for that, the Revolutionary government must carry out the labor and peasant program. Only by realizing the labor and peasant advanced program shall military crisis be avoided. The prosperity of the masses at the rear makes sure 50% the victory of the soldiers at the front. If the revolutionary soldiers can cure the miseries of the masses—such as heavy taxes, usury, banditism certainly the peasants will support the soldiers with all their heart and soul. If the revolutionary soldiers can abolish the oppression of the gentries, can give village autonomy and democracy to the peasants, these latter will surely help and welcome them.

Soldiers' Conscience

The soldiers are the most powerful instrument of the revolution. To measure the fighting strength, one must look at the degree of awakening of the army—from the command to the rank and file. Therefore, the Party must enlarge the work of the Political sections of the Army. Material betterment for the soldiers—such as payroll—is an important question, and must be the first thing to take care of in military budget.

With organization and enthusiasm of the people, the Revolution will be defended, and opportunism avoided. We make bold to appeal to the organized and enthusiastic masses to back the Kuomintang and the Nationalist government.

Down with imperialism, militarism, and opportunism!

All power to the Party of the People!

Signed: The All-China Labor Union, Canton Branch
The Enlarged CEC of Kwangtung PO.
The Hongkong-Shaweon Strike Committee.
The CEC of the Kwangtung Communist P.
The KWDC
The Hongkong General Labor Union
The All-China Railwaymen's Union.
The All-China Seamen's Union.

What's What in Washington

Hoover and Kellogg Intrigue For Power As Coolidge Wobbles

WASHINGTON, May 2 (FP)—President Coolidge's announcement that Secretary of Commerce Hoover would not be made secretary of state, even if Secretary Kellogg should resign, has been followed by a series of moves on the political chessboards in Washington that again raise the question as to which man has the greater influence on administration policy.

Hoover Has Machine.

Hoover, maintaining in all corners of the world a highly-paid and alert staff of commercial advisers, has been getting more credit than ever, since the Coolidge slap, for extension of American prestige and trade aboard. Kellogg has brought home from Europe a number of men especially qualified to deal with trade problems, and thereby to make the state department appear as the prime promotor of American foreign commerce.

Hoover Speaks Thru Cal.

Kellogg has lowered his tone toward Mexico, but the Coolidge New York speech, suggesting that the United States and Mexico can amicably settle their differences, is credited a Hoover line of influence. It was Hoover who pointed out privately to administration leaders that the fruits of conquest in Nicaragua and of bulldozing in Mexico were never going to match up to the losses that these offenses would bring to trade and investments in South America.

Now comes the Pan-American Commercial Conference, with speeches by Coolidge, Kellogg, Hoover and other hegnoters. There are future billions in it for American big business, if the South Americans are handled right.

Kellogg Cools Off.

Kellogg is reported to be cultivating a genial smile and soft words, while Henry Stimson, sent to Nicaragua to look over the grabbed territory, is suddenly converted into a peacemaker between the puppet Diaz and the liberal Sacasa government, which was supposed to be so completely wiped out as the free government of Haiti.

Hoover's play in this conference has yet to be disclosed. But his finnd is respected by the Kellogg adherents in a cruel article published in the Magazine of Wall Street, showing how the silk-hatted and caned and spatted snobs in the state department are costing the country billions in lost foreign trade. A photograph of J. Butler Wright, assistant secretary of state, now designate minister to Hungary, and one of the chief exhibits in the topper-and-spats brigade, is published with the article.

American Investments In Europe and Canada Reach Highest Stage

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The flow of American dollars abroad for foreign investment during April broke all records, the department of commerce announced today.

Loans to foreign governments and corporations during the month totaled $200,000,000, of which Europe and Canada received the biggest share.

Germany To Protest Allied Arms.

BERLIN, May 2.—The German government will make diplomatic moves tonight for a reduction of the army of occupation in the Rhineland, it was learned today.

INTERNATIONAL MAY DAY NOTES

Stop Anti-Strike Bill.

LONDON, May 2.—Resolutions denouncing the Infamous Trades Disputes and Trades Union Bill and declaring "Hands off China," and "Save Sacco-Vanzetti from the electric chair," were passed at thousands of May Day meetings thruout Great Britain yesterday. Hundreds of thousands of marching workers, men, women and children, with banners and floats, denounced the Baldwin government as the consistent enemy of the British working class and demanding its overthrow. The police and Fascists were everywhere but were not able to overawe the workers' demonstrations. Half of central London's population lined the way of march of the celebrating workers. Red flags waved in Trafalgar Square and Piccadilly. In Stepney Borough the Council in accord with resolutions passed last week raised the red flag over the four principle municipal buildings.

• • •

May Day in U. S. S. R.

MOSCOW, May 2.—Hundreds of thousands of marchers, troops representing every division of the Red Army, delegations representing every labor union in the U. S. S. R., the Red Boy and Girl Scouts, and floats and motor trucks packed with hundreds of singing school children, took part in the May Day celebration on the Red Square in Moscow while the Communist and high government officials reviewed the monster parade and sixteen aeroplanes maneuvered overhead. The crowd carried banners or took part in floats depicting episodes in the revolution, showing the great forward strides the Soviets have made in production and electrification and declaring the Soviet Union's friendship for China.

• • •

Down With Fascism."

BERLIN, May 2.—Berlin's entire police and fascist force was out to suppress the May Day celebration of the 300,000 Communists and workers in front of the former Imperial Palace. Proletarian songs were sung, and hannars were paraded reading: "Down with the fascists," but the police did not care to interfere.

• • •

Wound Il Polish Workers.

WARSAW, May 2. — The police charged the May Day demonstration of 20,000 workers here today, wounding eleven Communists and making nearly 100 arrests. The Communists attempted to make a united front with the socialists to demonstrate against the White Terror and the murders of workers and Communists by the Pilsudski dictatorship. The socialists repulsed the Communists and called the police to their assistance.

• • •

Arrest Communist Leader.

PARIS, May 2.—M. Monmousseau, Communist leader, was arrested during this May Day speech in Dunkirk yesterday. He was held on the charge of inciting the French troops sent to Chioa to fraternize with the proletarian armies of the Chinese Nationalist armies. There were parades, and speeches by well-known Communists here.

• • •

MEXICO CITY, May 2.—President Calles yesterday reviewed the May Day parade of 25,000 workers from all branches of industry. The marchers carried giant banners calling on the Mexican workers to boycott American and other foreign goods and buy home products. At noon the marchers observed a five minute silence in honor of the labor leaders who lost their lives in the disturbances in Chicago in 1886.

• • •

TOKIO, May 2.—Police today made many arrests in the huge labor demonstration, comprising thousands of workers and 1,500 women textile workers, carrying banners with resolutions demanding the eight-hour day, protection for the unemployed, abolition of unjust labor laws, and no intervention in China.

• • •

VIENNA, May 2.—150,000 workers, Communists and socialists celebrated May Day with a gigantic demonstration. In Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest, and Constantinople May Day demonstrations were prohibited by the governments. The police remained in control.

• • •

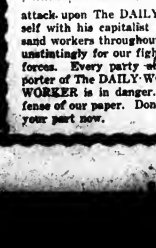
Filipino Conference Calls Coolidge Bluff On U. S. Imperialism

CHICAGO, May 2 (FP).—Pres. Coolidge's declaration before the United Press Association in New York that "there is no shred of imperialism in the foreign policies of the United States" draws the following comment from the Conference for Filipino Independence:

"If Mr. Coolidge wishes to be taken at his word he must immediately reverse his policy with regard to the American empire. The Philippine Islands a nation of 11,500,000 people is demanding its freedom. The Conference for Filipino Independence, an American body, echoes the demand. Taking up the challenge of the president's speech we call upon his administration to grant immediate and absolute independence to the Philippine Islands. Independence was specifically promised in the Jones law of 1916."

Reduce Rubber Quota.

LONDON, May 2.—The colonial office announced that the rubber supply quota of Maylaya and Ceylon will be reduced for the next quota to sixty percent of production.



Police Break Up Sacco-Vanzetti May 1 Parade; Jail 28 in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, May 2.—The Sacco-Vanzetti May Day parade here was broken up by the police. Twenty-eight machines filled with paraders were arrested, and the drivers of the cars were taken to jail and held until late in the day, when they were released in time to take part in the united front May Day demonstration and picnic.

All banners and placards calling for justice for Sacco and Vanzetti were confiscated by the police.

The picnic was a huge success, and a large crowd listened to speeches denouncing the frame-up of Sacco and Vanzetti by the courts of Massachusetts, and calling for a stop being put to American imperialism in Latin-America and China.

They Mean Business

WILLIAM F. DUNNE,
Editor and Bert Miller, Business Manager, of The DAILY WORKER, have both been called for Special Sessions in spite of the fact that neither one was in a position to be responsible for or aware of the publication of the matter for which the paper is being attacked.

Special representatives of the District Attorney's office have taken a leading hand in the case. Powerful pressure has been brought to bear upon the court to prevent the dismissal of any of the defendants. The situation is clear. The black forces of American capitalism intend to railroad our staff to jail and crush our DAILY WORKER.

But we mean business, too. We will fight to the last ditch to save our paper. For every professional patriot seeking by the attack upon The DAILY WORKER to ingratiate himself with his capitalist masters, we will show a thousand workers throughout the country ready to sacrifice unstintingly for our fighting organ. Let's mobilize our forces. Every party unit, every comrade, every supporter of The DAILY WORKER on the job. The DAILY WORKER is in danger. Money is needed for the defense of our paper. Don't wait for the next appeal. Do your part now.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of

..... dollars ..... cents to the Ruthenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....

Address .....

City .....

State .....

Attach check or money order.

DAILY WORKER

Published daily except Sunday at 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

Telephone Orchard 8760

Entered as second-class matter at the postoffice at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

By mail (in New York only): $6.00 per year | $3.25 six months | $1.75 three months

By mail (outside of New York): $6.00 per year | $3.00 six months | $1.50 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors

BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

FOR CHINESE WORKERS

Editor, Daily Worker:

I would like to add my little mite to assist the Chinese workers and farmers in their struggle against the imperialists that infest that great land. Being a member of the Communist Party, I have carefully studied the history of the Russian revolution, likewise all of the imperialist movements that have taken place in the last quarter century.

The Kaiser seeing that Russia was to continue the war made it possible for Lenin and all of the radicals to return to Russia. They, of course, were welcomed by the masses and put forth the workers' program, which is summed up as follows: Immediate peace, land to the peasants, industries to the wage workers. This program caused the army to leave the battlefield, whereupon Kerensky turned what was left of his army on the Bolsheviki. Needless to say the Kerensky government was soon replaced by the Bolsheviki, which in turn was attacked by the Kaiser's army. This, of course, met with the approval of the allied powers as they hated a workers' government more than they did the imperialism of the central powers. As proof of this fact we noticed that the allies laid low on the west front all the while the German army invaded Bolshevik territory. After the Kaiser forced the Bolsheviki to sign the treaty at Brest the allies again began their attack on the Kaiser's army. This continued until the uprising of the German workers led by Carl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg caused the Kaiser to abdicate. This brings us back to the above mentioned Fritz Ebert, who did not want to see the German masses launch the workers' republic. So he adopted the first plank of the Bolshevik program which was peace.

The situation in China is the same as that of Germany on the day the armistice was signed, and the renegade socialist was placed at the head of the government. The workers and peasants of China must never lay down their arms or listen to a peace slogan until the last profit monger is driven from their soil. The refusal to lay down their arms will of course give the foreign powers an excuse for armed intervention. In this event, every class conscious worker on the face of the earth must do all in his or her power to block any attack coming from the imperialist plunderbunds.

If they will not keep their hands off China and Russia, they will give the workers of other nations another chance to get what the people of Russia have. That is, a workers' republic.

A. C. Miller, Williston, N. D., April 20, 1927.

Rally to Daily Worker.

Editor, Daily Worker:

Inclosed is my contribution of $5.00 for the defense of The DAILY WORKER. I shall not be called the sentry who has slept at his post of duty.

We must do our utmost to support our paper, The DAILY WORKER. Without it we would be at a loss, especially at this moment when the reactionary forces are employing every means of destroying the revolutionary movement.

It is our duty to support and uphold the only English daily paper, which fights for the interests of the exploited masses.

Fraternally Yours,

Comrade MRS. F. MLADINICH.

215 Roxbury Rd., Garden City, L. I.

Cops Surprise This Worker.

Editor, Daily Worker:

I have just read in The DAILY WORKER about the arrest of the members of the Young Workers League for distributing leaflets on Union Square.

Above all we, the people of America should see that the laws of our constitution should not be trampled by any petty judge or policeman, who, for money, or whatever has influence with politics.

The judges and policemen are here to serve us fair justice, humanity and liberty, and not to prosecute their fellowmen, and free born citizens. I am surprised that a policeman who professes and borders a human being would dare to act so animal-like to one who is like himself, a man.—BENJAMIN.

New York, 1927, 9 p. m.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

PRINTERS' FIGHT HARD.

Editor, Daily Worker:

The strike of the printers who were locked out on April 16 by the White Printing Company here in Chicago, has been progressing very favorably.

The open-shoppers of the White Printing Company have fetched up scabs from all over the country, and brought them here to bring the strike together with the Thompson strike-breaking police and thugs, which are very numerous around the White plant. The company is unable to produce a third of the work it did before the lockout. The little work that is being produced, is done in such a way that the customers may have to accept it, because the inexperienced scabs are unable to do a printers' job.

To date the unions involved in the lockout have succeeded in transferring the printing of six publications from the open shop plant to union shops. It is believed that more will follow.

The open shoppers will long regret this onslaught they have made upon the Printers' Union, involving five of them. In the hearing on the injunction, the bosses-owned judge, Wilkerson delayed the action for another week.

Comradely greetings.

DAN POLLIN.

2659 Walton Street, Chicago, Ill., April 28, 1927.

Canadian Legion Like American Legion.

Editor, Daily Worker:

I read The DAILY WORKER very closely as regards the opinions of the American Legion in getting two teachers fired from jobs. It seems as though they believe in Empey's policy, "treat 'em rough" and that our country is not always wrong. Our Canadian Legion is not always right and uses very poor judgment in allowing some of its members to have too many privileges. Some of the Canteeners among the returned soldiers here had protested about the Japanese flag flying on a certain day over the National League. It was simply the anniversary of the formation of the league and was satisfactorily explained.

I wish we could send some Canadian Legionnaires with the American Legion to Paris so that all the drunkards could drink themselves to death.

Yours for emancipation,

THOMAS ASHTON.

Alberta, April 19th.

Don't Be Passive.

In "Evolution in the Light of Modern Knowledge," Geological section, professor William W. Watts, says:

"The development of armour has throughout geological history been a constant temptation and one highly dangerous to those that have taken this 'primrose path.' A few examples may be given; the heavily plated fishes of the Devonian Period, the development of granules, scales and spines by the dinosaurs, followed by groups more and more heavily plated, enclosed, and spired; the occurrence of horned, armoured, and plated forms in some of the Tertiary mammals . . . In the majority of cases where this method of passive resistance has been resorted to, the form adopting it have gone under in competition with those which have developed weapons of attack, teeth and claws, necessarily accompanied by activity, speed and movement, and attack."

I was struck with the wonderful neatness of this passage as applied to the pacifist of our day. Further comment seems to be superfluous.

(Emphasis mine) A. J. P.

Los Angeles.

Brooklyn Bag Makers Also.

BE IT RESOLVED that we, the membership of the Paper Plate and Bag Makers Union, Local 107 in meeting assembled, declare our deep-rooted conviction that Sacco and Vanzetti are guiltless of the crime charged against them and that their execution would constitute the most unjustified, cold-blooded and brutal case of judicial murder on record, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that we demand a new and immediate trial and the freedom of Sacco and Vanzetti, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that we urge a National Conference in order to help free Sacco and Vanzetti, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that copies of this resolution be sent to the Governor of the State of Massachusetts and to the press.

M. Gordon, Secy.

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

The Murderous Machado Government

By J. NEVAREZ.

In Cuba, one of the West Indian provinces of the American Dollar Empire, there now exists a reign of terror against the working masses of that island, which in its horribleness and in its bloodiness can rival the white terror of Zankov against the Bulgarian workers. The list of outrages perpetrated against workers in Cuba is too long for the space allowed; it is enough to say that Chester M. Wright of the Pan A. F. of L., who recently returned from that island reports that 200 of the outstanding trade union leaders of the Island have been treacherously and most brutally murdered, hundreds of militant workers linger in prisons or on prison ships where they are subject to the most unhuman treatment.

Wall Street Reaction.

Prior to the introduction of the present reign of white terror, the labor movement of Cuba was making rapid strides in development towards militancy; the trade union movement, particularly among the railroad and tobacco workers, grew rapidly, and promised to give expression to the anti-imperialist consciousness of the Cuban masses. This was topped by the formation of the Communist Party of Cuba, and the growth of a strong anti-imperialist political movement among all elements of the native population. The development of a strong anti imperialist labor movement in Cuba could not be tolerated for one moment by the American imperialist rulers, at a time when the Wall Street empire intends not only to retain what it already has in its clutches, but plans further aggression and subjection to the will of the rest of Latin America.

The militant labor movement of Cuba had to be crushed, it is a forerunner to the submission of Nicaragua and the plans of attack upon other Latin American republics.

Erect Despotic Government.

To facilitate the crushing of Cuban labor, Wall Street had to have a native government completely submissive to its will; and under the auspices of one of its military men, General Crowder as "ambassador" thru fraudulent methods imposed on the Island of Cuba, a government headed by a General Machado, who upon ascending the Presidency of the government gave his oath to the American bankers that he will "be a better Platt amendment that the Platt amendment itself." The first blow struck by the Machado Government, naturally, was against the Communist Party, with the imprisoning of its leaders, including Julio Mella, and their later assassination or expulsion from the country, then followed, to "present day, a period of systematic terror in which terms for labor, dictated by the superintendents of the centrals.

The following is a picture of the make up of the Machado-Crowder government.

Machado acts as the President of the clique of which he is in reality nothing but a mouthpiece, and whose real but silent director is the American General Crowder. Machado, under the direction of Crowder, contrives the crimes to be perpetrated against workers and citizens of Cuba, but these criminal schemes, such as later result in such assassinations as of Enrique Varona, organizer of railroad workers or of Thomas Grant, official of Railroad Brotherhood, are given form and carried into execution by the so-called "Minister of Justice" one Dr. Jesus Maria Barraque, a Cuban of Catasinian origin, a reactionary of the blackest type, one who in other times would have made a slave owner. Following this brigand we face next the Secretary of Public Order and the Secretary of War and Marine, the first heading the police and the second the army.

The first of these last two is Rogerio uyas Bazen, an ignorant impetuous individual but a long time supporter of Machado. And the second one, the army commander, is Rafael Iturralde, an imbecilic character, less person who is an easy tool for the clique.

Aside from his cabinet, Machado has to aid the legislative body, who unquestionably approve all decrees submitted by Machado. Should any legislator dare to question in the slightest any act of Machado, then he is ruthlessly persecuted and threatened to be deprived of 1000 dollar monthly bribe awarded to all members of the legislature. This money comes from the heavy revenues derived from the Machado sanctioned lotteries and all forms of gambling.

General Machado, thus, with the aid of these legislators, issued a decree (decree No. 1100), which practically abolishes civil rule, by handing supreme power to the military tribunals with whose dealings no civil functionaries can interfere. These military tribunals are responsible for the executiou of numerous workers in the sugar growing regions, and at the present moment the workers are compelled to labor under whatever conditions imposed upon them, with a military guard in every sugar mill and plantation.

If a worker or peasant suddenly disappears or is found to "have committed suicide," crimes which are easily traced to the police Hoodlums or to agents of the Dept. of Public Order, there comes on the scene the expert on crime concealing, of the Machado clique, the chief inquisitor, Barranque, or his underlings, Eguilior. They "investigate" and instruct the judges and magistrates how to "hush up." These gentlemen obey without question. So the grim acts of Machado's henchmen are veiled, and silenced.

The towns of the interior, and around the sugar centrals, countless men in rags and half starved wander about jobless. This army of unemployed will soou be many times increased by the termination of the grinding season. The sufferings of the workers who depend upon the sugar industry for their existeuce has been further augmented this year by the restriction, per order of Machado, of the sugar output so as to retain or raise the prevailing sugar profit and thus assure the bulky profits of the sugar corporations.

The graft and corruption pervading the high government officials, reflects on the sanitation and health conditions of the country. The housing conditions of the workers and their surroundings are almost beyond description in their rottenness. Streets are unpaved, not cleaned, particularly in towns in the region of Cameguey, with mosquitos and other vermin breeding freely. Such conditions in the tropics kuan for the workers malaria, typhus, hookworm, and even occasionally yellow fever, and the death of thousands of workers' babies. Such is the lot of the Cuban workers under Machado, who is now being entertained and feted at Hotel Biltmore, by the New York bankers.

BOOK BARGAINS
AT SPECIAL PRICES
First Notice to Readers

In this space, EVERY DAY, will appear a notice of books being offered at unusually low prices. These prices are made on books and pamphlets left in small lots—or on books we have been able to purchase at especially favorable terms. Stocks of books offered will be limited. Orders will be filled in turn as received. Cash remittance must be made. No discounts allowed. Watch this space daily and rush your orders to secure the unusual advantages offered.

DRAMA

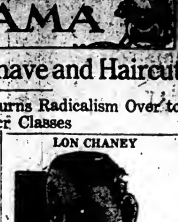
Drama - Bath, Shave and Haircut

"Mr. Pim Passes By" Turns Radicalism Over to the Upper Classes

Reviewed By HARBOR ALLEN

Socialism gets a bath, a shave, and a haircut in the Theatre Guild's latest production, "Mr. Pim Passes By," by A. A. Milne, revived at the Garrick, is devoted to proving that you can be a Socialist—in the old sense, hence a radical—and still be a gentleman.

By the time the play is over the dapper ypung Socialist is much less of a Socialist; and the smug conservative a little less smug. They become good friends and marry the right women. A comedy made to order for English liberals: hence American liberals will love it.



A "Civilized" Play.

This does not imply that "Mr. Pim Passes By," is without merit—if you like that kind of play. It's a gentle, playful satire on English morality, on English knuckling to church and state and fear of publicity. It says, politely, that George Marden, J. P., with his set ideas on art, his old English home, his preference for talking about pigs, and his termagant female relatives—George Marden may be a cad and a coward and a rag in the wind of public opinion; but after all, don't you know, he's a pretty fine fellow. To succeed thus in tight-roping the top of the fence, in saying something and yet saying nothing, in "kidding 'em along" and yet offending nobody is what the critics call writting a "civilized" play. Nobody could be more civilized than Mr. Milne.

"Mr. Pim Passes By" shows what happens to radicalism when the upper classes get hold of it. They bowdierize it, dress it in white pants and tennis shoes, lean it against a baby grand piano, and wreathe epigrams in its hair. Naturally it losses virility; but then, it gains in gracefulness. Gracefulness is Mr. Milne's forte; he has a touch of Shaw and a barrel of Barrie.

English Pastry.

I can see that there must be room in the theatre for English pastry. Personally, I'm fed up on pastry. I'm tired of polite laughter on the stage. The theatre is to me a place where you should be moved, made furious, made told and hot and ecstatic. A good play is to me a torrent of emotion, a swift pattern of action, feeling set free, ideas without bottom on the end so prevent their getting under your skin. Shakespeare knew how to write a play; so did Schiller, Lope de Vega, Calderon, Moliere. Most of them were afraid of horseplay, a roughhousing, of swat and bang and coarse language. The man who wants to write for a Nordic audience would do well to study them. He would do well to ignore the Barries and the Milnes.

In "Flesh and Blood" the film feature at the Cameo theatre.

The Theatre Guild serves Mr. Milne's pastry on the best silver ware: Lauru Hopes Crews, Erskine Sanford, and Dudley Digges are pure sterling. From a Broadway producer such a performance would be altogether praiseworthy. The Guild claims to be more radical, more experimental, more advanced, more daring. Yet to produce "Spread Eagle," "Pinwheel," "Rapid Transit," "Loud Speaker," "Earth," "In Abraham's Bosom," took more courage, and in some instances more discrimination than is shown in anything I have seen by the Guild this year.

The Guild gets sore if you say this bluntly. They have cut off my review tickets because I have said so bluntly. I'm glad to find Mr. Woolcott of the World saying the same thing—more politely. I'm sure he'll still get tickets; and maybe his remarks will affect the Guild's future policy. It's a pity to see an organization that started out so brave, go flabby.

If you're tired, if you want to be amused lightly, if you feel it's spring and you're tired of heavy stuff—"Mr. Pim Passes By," may be worth your $2.20.

Broadway Briefs

Louise Carter and Lyons Wickland have been added to the cast of "He Loved the Ladies" the Herbert Hall Winslow play which opens at the Frolic Theatre May 9.

"The 19th Hole" is the title selected for Frank Cravan's new play. Rehearsing will begin immediately under the direction of Sam Forrest, and the first performance will be given in Atlantic City, May 30, prior to the Broadway showing.

AMUSEMENTS

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN
TWICE DAILY, 2 P.M. & 8 P.M.
RINGLING BROS. and BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS
Incl. among 10,000 Marvels: PAWAH SACRED WHITE ELEPHANT
TICKETS at GARDEN BOX OFFICES 8th Ave. and 49th St., and Gimbel Bros.

Theatre Guild Acting Company in PYGMALION
GUILD THEA., W. 52 St. Evs. 8.15 Mats. Thurs. and Sat. 2.15 Next Week—The Second Man

MR. PIM PASSES BY
GARRICK Mats. Thurs. and Sat. Next Week—Night Must Fall

NED McCOBB'S DAUGHTER
John Golden Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2.30

Sam HARRIS THEA. West 42nd St. Twice Daily, 2.30 & 8.30
WHAT PRICE GLORY
Evs. (exc. Sat.) 50c-$3. Mats. 50c-$2

EARL CARROLL Vanities
Earl Carroll Thea., 7th Ave. at 50th St. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2.30

TIMES SQ. CRIME
Thea., W. 42 St. Evgs. 2.30. Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2.30
with James Rennie & Chester Morris

The LADDER
Now in its 6th MONTH
WALDORF, 58th St., East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT.

Bronx Opera House 149th Street, E. of 3rd Ave.
Pop. Prices. Mat. Wed. & Sat.
"KATY DID"
A New Domestic Comedy

WALLACK'S West 42nd Street.
Evgs. 8.30. Mats. Tues., Wed., Thurs. and Sat.
What Anne Brought Home
A New Comedy Drama

GROVE ST. THEATRE
Block So. of Christopher St. Subw. Sta.
DORSHA presents the THEATRE of the DANCE
Featuring three new ballets
This week only (May 2 to May 7).
Evenings 8.30. Mat. Thurs. & Sat. 2.30.
Phone, Spring 1092.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

Young Workers League Training School Gets Down to Spring Course

Saturday night, April 23, at 8:00 P. M., the Young Workers League Training School on Organizational Policy opened its first course at 62 Chambers Street, Boston, Mass.

Fourteen students were present, eager to get started. These students were selected from various units in the League who are active in their work.

This semester is divided into seven sessions with a period of an hour and a half for each session. Beginning with May 1st, the course will start at 10:30 in the morning, ending at 12 noon. Then the class, after the lunch hour, will either go on hikes, outings, picnics, or any other form of recreation. The director of the school, Nat Kay, is also the instructor of this course.

To date, students have elected a Student Council composed of Bessie Leafland, Elizabeth Aser, Reynold Rihonen, Al G. Stone, and Sam Oser. This Council, in turn, elected Al G. Stone, secretary, who also officiates as the secretary of the school. The students plan to publish a school bulletin, having elected an editorial committee.

Philadelphia Youth To Hear H. M. Wicks

PHILADELPHIA, May 2.—H. M. Wicks will lecture on "Present Day China," Sunday, May 8, at 8 p. m. at Grand Fraternity Hall, 1626 Arch St.

This meeting, arranged by the Young Workers' League, will assure all those who attend of a clear cut analysis of all the forces at play in all the Chinese revolutionary arena, and of an explanation of all the latest developments. Admission is free.

May Dance and Festival.

The Lower Downtown I.L.D. Branch is arranging a "May Dance and Festival" for Saturday, May 21, at the Downtown Workers' Club Rooms, 35 East 2nd Street.

CIGAR MAKERS IN ONE OF RIGHTS AT CONVENTION

Left Wing Delegates Unseated by Clique

The building decorated inside and outside with scores of huge American flags, the 16th Convention of the Cap and Millinery Workers' Union opened yesterday morning at Rothstein Hall, Fifth St., near Second Ave.

On the first test vote of the convention held at 9 a. m. yesterday right wing candidate for permanent chairman, Max Pastinsky was elected, receiving 52 votes to 51 for I. Feinfeld, the left wing nominee. Eighteen delegates were absent from voting.

Wyatt Sent Sorts.

A. Sorin of Omaha was not seated, the convention referring his matter back to the credentials committee with a recommendation that he be seated as a fraternal delegate. The reason given by the right wing steam roller was that he was sent from a local he is not a member of.

Sorin is the Pacific coast organizer of the union and a member of Local 83, San Francisco. That local not being in a financial condition to elect a delegate he was selected by Local 48, Los Angeles.

Twice In Past.

On two occasions in the past, left wing delegates told The DAILY WORKER conventions have seated delegates who have represented locals other than their own. They point to Percy Ginsberg who was seated as a delegate at the 1921 convention, altho he was not representing his own local. Ginsberg, a staunch supporter of the ruling clique and a former vice-president, is now a labor manager for one of the largest manufacturers in Chicago.

"Forwards' Boy."

Left wingers also point out that Zaritsky, selected as chairman yesterday, was elected president of the union by the 1925 convention. Shortly after taking office he resigned because it meant that he would have to lead an aggressive struggle against the bosses. He then became an insurance agent and latter was on the payroll of the Jewish Daily Forward. Now he is brot back by the ruling clique to preside at their convention.

The convention will reconvene this morning at 10 a. m.

Tammany Police Boss Names Four Helpers

Police Commissioner Joseph A. Warren yesterday announced that four of the five positions in his "cabinet" have been definitely filled.

Appointment of a fourth deputy commissioner has not been decided upon but the Tammany boss cop said he was awaiting the decision of "a friend of nine years standing" who has been offered the job.

Members of the new commission are: Phillip D. Hoyt, first deputy; Felix Muldoon, second; John A. Leach, third and Joseph Boog, fifth.

Commissioner Boog is the only one of the new cabinet retained in the capacity he occupied under the regime of former Commissioner McLaughlin who resigned to accept a $75,000 a year job with the Postal Telegraph and Cable Co.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Tom Clement's Motto Is: "Union Label Shirtsleeves to Combat with Plan"

C. O. Wermuth, chairman of the board of governors of the Building Trades Employers Association, and Tom Clement, president of the 250,000 union plumbers, issue a joint statement which is a challenge to the open shop movement.

Gompers was in Madison's office. The building then offered a slight to them, saying sarcastically:

"I don't know whether the boy with the cigar outside is half a union label or not, Mr. Gompers."

"Oh, that's all right," he replied, "I don't carry my policies into friendly company."

Gompers was one of the founders of the Cigar Makers Union and held his A. F. of L. job for forty years on the basis of his card in that union.

FUR TRIMMERS REFUSE TO WORK; CONFER WITH JOINT BOARD

(Continued from Page One)

Gutknecht Assn. soon outlines the arrangements of the workers to work on a non-union basis. The Joint Board will then call a strike of the Fur Workers' Union and will have proper and authentic evidence of such membership.

Negotiations have been pending between the Joint Board and the Fur Trimmers, leading to the panic on Wall's part and the demand for immediate discharge of local united Workers' Conference yesterday afternoon brought officials of the board and the Trimmers nearer an agreement.

The refusal of the Trimmers to knuckle down to the association will encourage scores of dissatisfied member of the association to break away. Afraid to defy the central association as individuals, they will willingly follow the lead of the Trimmers.

The futility of trying to run an industry in which the best workers refuse to work under any agreement except one signed by their own union is causing big employers died up with the association's leak and threaten for a settlement of their problems. Having demonstrated that the loyalty of the Joint Board furriers cannot be reserved by any amount of pressure, they are following eagerly the Fur Trimmers negotiations and may be expected to climb on the band wagon as soon as an agreement is reached.

Steinig's letter, authorized by the board of the Fur Trimmers, reads:

May 2nd, 1927.

Samuel N. Samuels, Esq., President,
Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc.,
224 West 30th Street, New York.

Dear Sir:

I acknowledge receipt of your letter of April 28th, demanding that the membership of this association employ workers in good standing of the International Fur Workers' Union only. Appreciating the tone and significance of your letter and in order not to delay your reply to the American Federation of Labor, a meeting of the board of directors of this association was held today.

The mandatory spirit of your letter makes necessary a resume of the history of the relations between our respective organizations.

Act In Good Faith.

Shortly after our organization was formed, it status was declared in February, 1926. In a choice between independent action and the delegation to you of the trust to act on our behalf, and upon your earnest solicitation, and spirited avowal of a good faith representation of our interests, we reposed our trust in you in the interests of a united front, having faith in your declarations and being desirous of serving the industry first.

You promised that we would be consulted as to the final terms of settlement and that we would be a party to the agreement as an independent unit in the trade.

How far were your promises fulfilled?

You did not consult us before concluding the final agreement.

You did not keep your promise that we be a signatory to the agreement as one of the units in the trade.

Usurp Position.

Instead of that, you signed an agreement making a manufacturer's association an equal party to trade agreement with the organization of workers.

We submit the contentment of past conditions, pertaining our membership to work with strict observance of the agreement, the open shop conditions prevailed by you against the members of our organization between union and open shop conditions and asking unemployment between us relative to the establishment of the protection you had promised. We offered to contribute to the cost of maintaining the impartial labor machinery, but after very careful thought and preparation, you presented to us a proposal designed to establish such protection.

That astounding proposal required all our members desiring the benefit of protection under the labor agreement to make application for membership in a special labor department of your association, upon your own application forms, with dues payable directly to you. In short, that proposal meant absolute abdication of our autonomy and independence. The honor of that proposal betrayed a bold attempt on your part to legislate us out of existence by capitalizing the situation you had placed us in by your abuse of our trust.

Trimmers Ignored.

You then concluded an agreement with the special representatives of the American Federation of Labor, under which arrangement you guarded against the distribution of peaceful conditions in the factories of your own members only. You ignored us both in the adoption and in the consequences of that arrangement.

We conferred with officials of the American Federation of Labor. We explained the necessity for protecting our membership by a separate labor agreement. They promised to confer with you in an effort to conciliate our differences. But the letter of which you enclose a copy, sent to you by Mr. Woll some two weeks after our conference with him, demanding that we employ members of his group only, manifests an arbitrary rather than an arbitrative spirit and ignores the fundamental problem which he knew existed.

Your present ultimatum asserting that we are violating an agreement which you so studiedly withheld from us and the price for which you returned the virtual destruction of our organization comes as a fitting conclusion to a course of action indicating the studied objective before referred to.

This association was organized to promote the welfare of the trimming manufacturers and of the fur industry as a whole. We intend to carry forward these aims and to serve the constituents of that industry. Under the circumstances, we believe these results can be best accomplished by independent action. We therefore wish to inform you that with regard to the subject of your letter and other vital matters which concern us, we intend to solve our own problems in our own way.

Very truly yours,—Fur Trimming Manufacturers Assn. Inc.—Pres. M. L. Steinig.

DIE-HARD STRIKE BILL UNDER FIRE; HOWL DOWN HOGG

Left Wing Favors New General Strike

LONDON, May 2. — A storm of boos, catcalls and hisses greeted Sir Douglas Hogg, attorney-general in the die-hard cabinet, when he moved the second reading of the labor-smashing anti-strike measure in the house of commons this afternoon.

Calls Hogg Liar.

Jack Jones, of Silverton, was ejected for a violent attack on the bill, while five other laborites were threatened with a similar fate. William Thorne, laborite from West Ham, was reprimanded by the speaker for calling Sir Douglas Hogg a liar.

Hogg's reading of the vicious measure was interrupted by continual stream of criticism from the labor benches, particularly from representatives of the militant minority in the labor party. John Robert Clynes opened the debate for the opposition in the absence of J. Ramsay MacDonald and moved that the bill be tabled for reflection and consideration.

Favor General Strike.

The cabinet's bill would not merely outlaw general and sympathetic strikes and the boycott, but makes picketing virtually impossible.

Although the labor party is solid in its opposition to the measure, some of its more far-sighted and militant members see the futility of parliamentary action alone on this question, and have been advocating a general strike as a defense against the measure. The anti-strike bill would rob the British labor movement of the victories that it has gained in the last hundred years, labor leaders say.

Dirigible Over Hudson.

The naval dirigible Los Angeles arrived over New York yesterday morning from her hangar in Lakehurst, and sailed up the Hudson. Flying very low, the Los Angeles passed over the long line of fighting craft anchored in the river.

Boston Labor Union To Investigate Lax Enforcement of Law

BOSTON, May 2.—The Central Labor Union yesterday directed a thorough probe of the enforcement of labor legislation by the state labor department. Julia O'Connor Parker, of the Telephone Operators' Union, heads the special committee which will probe the department's unwarranted discharge of Mary Donovan for her sympathy with the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

The Central Labor Union and the Women's Trade Union League will co-operate in the investigation of the department, which is under the supervision of General Sweetser, who commanded the state militia during the lawrence textile strike.

Two Workers School Classes Are Called Off for This Evening

As the instructers are out of town William W. Weinstone's class in the Problems of the Communist Movement and John J. Ballam's class in Theory and Practice of Trade Unionism will not be held tonight at the Workers' School 108 East 14th St.

Youth Dance This Saturday.

The Brownsville section of the Young Workers (Communist) League will hold a May Dance Saturday evening, May 7th at 81 Liberty Ave., Brooklyn. A real jazz hand-will perform. Admission is 35 cents.

Bosses Ask Three More Injunctions Against Painters

Three applications to subpoe officials of the Brooklyn District Council of the Brotherhood of Painters, Paperhangers and Decorators guilty of contempt of court were made yesterday before Supreme Court Justice Mitchel May in Brooklyn.

The applications were made by Ernest F. Seelman on behalf of three bosses. Seelman charged violation of Justice Callaghan's recent injunction restraining the District Council from calling a strike in an effort to force the master painters to pay union members a wage of $14 a day instead of $12.

One application was made in behalf of the Eisenberg Decorating Company against A. Aziant, president and acting business agent of Local 917. It was charged that on April 20 Aziant directed 24 men to leave a job which was being done by the Eisenberg Company and go to the union offices to register. The men never returned to work, Seelman contended.

Deserter Found Dead From Job, Arrested By Signors Outfit

The activities of Signors new "Organization Committee" from his unorganized Local 26 were clearly defined on Monday morning, when its "committee" appeared at the shop of Finkelstein Brothers, at 26 West 27th St., to attempt to obtain the discharge of Henry Turk, an Executive Board member of the real Local 26.

From their actions on Monday it appears that the new "Organization Committee will devote its time to persuading the bosses to discharge loyal union members, rather than in organizing non-union shops. The "Committee" attempted to intimidate Turk, and failing in this, argued with his employer to agreed to send him down. They then called the police and had Turk arrested, declaring that he was making a disturbance in the shop, although he had been quietly at work.

Barred From Job.

In Jefferson Market Court, Turk was released on a suspended sentence, with the adjurnation not to attempt to go back to his shop for work.

Anna Lanfer, a dressmaker, who protested against the arrest of Turk, was also arrested, and was released on the payment of a $5 fine.

A large mass demonstration of pickets befors the shop which have locked out furriers who have refused to register with the "ten cent union," was held without any disturbance, early Monday morning.

Anthony Zulds, a furrier, was arrested in the market later in the day on the charge of "threatening to attack"—the favorite charge of the reactionaries for frame-nps against the workers loyal to the Joint Board. He was released on payment of a $10 fine.

Probe Seamanship of Navy in Beaching of U.S.S. Colorado Here

All the ponderous machinery of naval investigation was turned on the latest navy disaster yesterday as the super-dreadnought Colorado swung at anchor in the North River off Cortlandt St. For 35 hours the huge hell-belcher was hung on Diamond Reef between the Battery and Governors Island. Only an unusually high tide enabled tugs to remove her.

Capt. F. D. Karns, the brilliant navigator who managed to find Diamond Reef although he had all New York Bay to sail around in may face a court martial. The Colorado was following the Maryland, but veered out of course and managed to locate one of the few bad spots in the harbor.

Had Record of Wrecks.

The cost to the government will be at least $60,000 although for a time it looked as though the entire $21,000,000 investment in imperialism might be lost as a score of tugs puffed away in vain.

Two years ago the West Virginia found the beach near Hampton Roads. The naval collier Orion recently bumped so badly off the Virginia Capes, due to poor navigation, that she was sent to the scrap heap but the outstanding record of the navy departments own brand of seamanship was the smashing of a whole flotilla of destroyers on the rocky California coast a few years ago. One followed another until all but one vessel had been hopelessly wrecked.

Trenton Workers Ask Retrial in Sacco Case

TRENTON, N. J., May 2.—Groups representing thousands of New Jersey workers met here yesterday in May Day celebration at Arcada Hall and demanded a just retrial of the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Branch 77 of the Independent Workmen's Circle, the Ukrainian Workers Club, the International Labor Defense, the Workers Culture Club, the Workers (Communist) Party and the Anti-Fascist League joined in the protest.

WORKERS: STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

SACCO, VANZETTI JUSTICE IS ASKED IN 500 MEETINGS

Workers in Every Nook of Country Protest

BOSTON, May 2.—The desk of Governor Fuller was heaped higher today than at any time in the past month with protests from every section of the country against the electrocution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti July 10.

The holding of May Day meetings in every city of any size in the United States and Canada was immediately responsible for the extraordinary deluge of telegrams. Particularly noticeable were the yellow telegram sheets from sections of the International Labor Defense.

More than 500 May Day meetings were held under International Labor Defense auspices, Rose Barron, in charge of the New York office, estimated yesterday. Each section adopted resolutions demanding a complete review of the case with the end of absolute and unconditional freedom for the two Italian workers.

Mexican Workers Speak Up

Five communications addressed to President Coolidge asking that Sacco and Vanzetti be set free were received yesterday by Gov. Fuller from Frank B. Kellogg, secretary of state. Translations of the communications were enclosed by Kellogg.

The letters were sent by Jesus Ramos, Monterrey, Mexico, representing Filomino Rodriquez, Guererro, Mexico: J. Aguilar, and Pedro Tapia, both of Monterrey, Mexico: and from the middle Rhine division of the Red Aid of Germany.

H. M. Wicks Compares The Vanzetti Frame-up With Haymarket Case

BOSTON, May 2.—Workers here in a united May Day mass meeting, demonstrated yesterday against the Sacco-Vanzetti frame-up. Meeting in the capital of Massachusetts, the workers rallied cold turkey with Governor Fuller as resident of the same city.

Harry M. Wicks of the Workers (Communist) Party, compared the Sacco-Vanzetti case with the Haymarket case of 1886 and declared the frame-up had its origin in the red raids of the post-war days. Under the chairmanship of Dr. Harry W. L. Dana, Mary Donovan of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, Michael Flaherty of Painters' Local 11, Matt Kay of the Young Workers' League, Albert Baker Lewis of the socialist party, Louis Rahinowitz of the Young People's Socialist League and Charles Cline, recently released from the Texas penitentiary, spoke.

The meeting cabled May Day greetings to the Chinese Nationalist government at Hankow.

Boston Postal Clerks Ask Wage Increase

BOSTON, May 2.—Increases in wages for postal clerks in the Boston district are sought in a bill introduced in congress by Representative Peter F. Tague, democrat, Massachusetts, it was announced today.

The bill would increase the salaries of clerks in the Boston district $200 a year.

Boston Labor Leaders Speak at Rally in Celebration

Dear Daily Worker Comrades:

"Long shines the sun over May Day fields!" Every orator in the Boston Labor Lyceum last night, Haldeed every hour of our Workers' union is a powerful and effective weapon on all fronts of the living class.

With such militant leadership, the revolutionary elements should launch with redoubled energy a fighting offensive against the brutal tyranny and bloody intrigues of American capitalist imperialism.

All hands to the support of The DAILY WORKER!—Here's another ten dollars to the sustaining fund.

—J. M. A. SPENCE.

Chicago.

A Tag Day in Detroit.

The Workers of Detroit have organized a conference for defense. At their first meeting it was decided to have a Tag Day to be held on May 1st, and May 8th.

Union Meetings

Amalgamated Food Workers

BAKERS' LOCAL No. 1.

350 E. 85th St. Office hours from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Meeting on announcement of Executive Board.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

Advertise your union meetings here. For information write to The DAILY WORKER
Advertising Dept.
33 First St., New York City.

NOTICE to All New York DAILY WORKER Agents

There will be a meeting of all DAILY WORKER Agents on Tuesday, May 3, at 8 P. M., at 108 East 14th Street. Every unit organizer and every section and sub-section organiser is urged to be personally responsible for the presence of DAILY WORKER Agents. It is necessary that every unit be represented at this important meeting, in order that our plans may be properly executed.

Mr. Pim Passes By

But on His Way That Kindly 'Old Man Is Going to Help The DAILY WORKER if You Give Him a Chance

May 16 to May 21

is again a DAILY WORKER WEEK at the Theatre Guild. "Mr. Pim Passes By" is a delightful comedy in three acts with an all-star cast. Buy your tickets immediately. You will get better seats and your paper really benefits.

Tickets Now on Sale at the Local Office
108 East 14th Street.
Telephone Stuyvesant 6584
("FIESTA" TICKETS WILL BE EXCHANGED.)

BUSINESS & PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
FRIENDS OF ORGANIZED LABOR

Booth Phone, Dry Dock 8412, 7646, Office Phone, Orchard 9318.
Formerly
MANHATTAN LYCEUM
Large Halls With Stage for Meetings, Entertainments, Balls, Weddings and Banquets, Cafeteria.
66-70 E. 4th St., New York, N. Y.
Small Meeting Rooms Always Available.

Tel. Lehigh 6622.
Dr. ABRAHAM MARKOFF
SURGEON DENTIST
Office Hours: 9:30-12 A. M. 2-8 P. M.
Daily Except Friday and Sunday.
210 EAST 116th STREET,
Cor. Second Ave New York.

Dr. J. Mingel Dr. L. Mendin
Surgeon Dentists
1 UNION SQUARE
Room 803 Phone Stuyv. 10119

Tel. Orchard 3733
Strictly by Appointment
DR. L. KESSLER
SURGEON DENTIST
48-50 DELANCEY STREET
Cor. Eldridge St. New York

Health Food
Vegetarian Restaurant
1600 Madison Ave.
PRONE: UNIVERSITY 8168.

Telephone Dry Dock 9669.
Meet me at the Public Art
Dairy Restaurant
and Vegetarian
75 SECOND AVE. NEW YORK
Opposite Public Theatre

MRS. ROGIN
Vegetarian Restaurant
249 E. 12th St. New York

Phone: Drydock 8810.
FRED SPITZ
The FLORIST
3 SECOND AVENUE
Near Houston.
FRESH CUT FLOWERS DAILY
Fresh and Artificial Flowers Delivered Anywhere.
SPECIAL REDUCTION TO LABOR ORGANIZATIONS.

ANYTHING IN PHOTOGRAPHY
STUDIO OR OUTSIDE WORK
Patronize Our Friend
SPIESS STUDIO
54 Second Ave., cor. 3rd St.
Special Rates for Labor Organizations. (Established 1887.)

"NATURAL FOODS"
Sunkdried Fruits, Honey, Nuts, Brown Rice, Whole Wheat, Macaroni, Spaghetti, Noodles, Nut Butters, Swedish Bread, Maple Syrup, Tea and Coffee Substitutes, Innerclean, Kneipp Teas.
Books on Health.
VITALITY FOOD & VIGOR FOOD Our Specialties.
KUBIE'S HEALTH SHOPPE
75 Greenwich Ave., New York
(7th Ave. and 11th St.)
Open Evenings. Mail Orders Filled.

Flora Anna Skin Ointment
for PIMPLES, BLACKHEADS, LARGE PORES
freckles, rash, itching skin, eczema or stubborn skin troubles of any kind will be banished by use of FLORA ANNA SKIN OINTMENT. $1.00, Sold on money back guarantee.
NEW WAY LABORATORIES
322 West 42nd St. New York City

Are Seat Others Who Remain on the Outside

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

[illegible] Aboard United States Lines Steamer [illegible], Tuesday, April 12 (By Mail from Cherbourg, France).—My table steward shakes his head at the mention of trade unionism aboard ship. It is impossible to get the cooks together, he says. When they want to get the cooks together, they simply send out the word, "Supper," and the cooks come out of the kitchen. Naturally that favored places are reserved for the few, while the many continue to suffer the same as ever. This is his viewpoint.

• • •

To be sure, the conditions might be better, he admits. The food is good, but the quarters are so cramped that the men are compelled to stand up while eating. Sleeping quarters are also crowded.

The worst conditions are on the run to Jamaica, and other ports of the West Indies, on which the stewards, who act as waiters, used the dining room as their eating place also, when the passengers were thru with their meals.

• • •

This steward little realised that he was confessing to the weakness of all labor organizations, which is not limited so much in those who join the union, as in those who do not join for some reason or other. It is the lack of desire for organization among some of the workers in an industry, totalling into the mass, that makes effective organization impossible.

• • •

Thus Arthur E. Suffern in his book, "The Coal Miners' Struggle For Industrial Status," is only partially correct, which is sometimes the same as being entirely wrong, when he gives as the first difficulty in making and enforcing the agreements of the Joint Conference of miners and mine owners, the failure to include enough miners and operators in the agreement to make it effective.

Suffern could more correctly have said that the first difficulty was the failure of the miners to realize the strength that comes to them thru acting as a unit, thru presenting a united front to the mine owners. When the mine workers well organized, the mine owners will quickly get together to protect their own property interests. As long as the workers remain unorganized, the owners have little need of organization, altho the development of capitalism gradually concentrates ownership in fewer and fewer hands, which is one form of the organization of the exploiters, which goes on thruout industry even where workers have little or no organization, as in the steel, automobile and other highly monopolised industries.

• • •

If the coal miners of the nation were today thoroly organized under the banners of the United Mine Workers of America, the mine owners would be compelled to meet with their representatives in joint conference. The capitalist government at Washington would also take a keen interest in the situation, instead of adopting the fatuous fairy attitude that it assumes towards this and other industrial struggles. The burden of improving their conditions, therefore, is upon the miners themselves. Experience has always shown this to be true. The Joint Conferences has functioned well, and agreements then in have been reached, when the Miners' Union has been strong. It has failed to function when the Miners' Union is in a weak condition, as at the present time, a condition growing out of the disintegrating policies pursued by the administration of President John L. Lewis. The mine owners are quick to take advantage of this weakness.

• • •

Thus the Northern Illinois mine owners, who attended the joint conference of 1887, complained of the severe competition from Central and Southern Illinois and demanded the enforcement of the wage scale in those districts. They demanded this of the Miners' Union. As a result the scale agreed to was made a conditional one. The miners ware to receive an advance of five cents per ton from May 1, 1887, to Nov. 1. 1887, and five cents more from Nov. 1, 1887, to May 1, 1888, on condition that the miners were able to enforce the scale in the non-union districts. The Interstate Board of Conciliation and Arbitration was delegated to decide whether the scale was being enforced. Failure to enforce the scale would relieve the mine owners who had signed the agreement from their obligation to pay the scale.

• • •

The same line of reasoning is being used today to explain the breaking of the Jacksonville agreement of 1924, that expired on the last day of March, with no new agreement to take its place.

William A. McGarry writes in the Magazine of Wall Street that "one perfect illustration" of this shifting struggle is to be found in the present situation. Giving words to the philosophy of this organ of finance capital, McGarry says that the present situation is "based on the victory won by the miners in 1922 and clinched for three years in the 1924 agreement of the union operators in the central competitive field (Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania) to pay $7.50 a day as a base rate."

McGarry then goes on to say that, "John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, was hailed by his admirers as one of the greatest union leaders for this achievement. At the time it was made the union mines controlled somewhere between 65 and 80 per cent of the total bituminous tonnage, and with that balance of power it appears to be a simple matter to drive the open shops into line and unionize the entire industry."

• • •

The capitalist view of what happened is outlined by Wall Street's spokesman as follows:

"Less than 30 days after the agreement was made, however, the union operators began to discover that they could not sell their coal at the prices necessitated by the higher wages. Then began the most rapid and colossal shift of an industry in the history of the world. Non-union mines closed and the non-union fields opened. Output [illegible] more coal was being turned out of the non-union fields than could possibly be accounted for by the union and tabulated number of non-union miners. The union men, in other words, finding no work at $7.50 in the union fields, followed the doctrine of economic necessity and moved over to the open shop mines at $5 per day or whatever they could get.

"Still later the now familiar controversy between Lewis and the union operators over breach of contract developed. It was charged and admitted that mine owners [illegible] had signed the contract were working their mines at less than the contract wage rate, altho this practice had not been accepted by the United Mine Workers. Such mines became known as 'scabbing' mines, the union meant that the open shop miner was undermining the basis of the coal.

"This wage victory, therefore, (the Jacksonville agreement of 1924), which was to stabilize the mining industry [illegible] instead of [illegible] a closed iron of territory and prestige. The number of workers employed in

(Continued on Page Six, Column 6)

Professional Patriots and Labor Leaders

By [illegible] KUHN.

ARTICLE II.

Labor Baiting.

Labor baiting is the favorite pastime of professional patriots, which has been growing lately among the big business and navy elements in the country generally at large, as well as among certain civilian bunghodies.

He suffers from willful failure to discriminate between organizations devoted to peace and those which are out for all they can get. They all look alike to him and they all look as red as Moscow—not only the out-and-out bolsheviks but the socialists ("pinks"), anarchists, (philosophical and otherwise), Fabians, church peace societies, liberals, pacifists, mild progressives, advocates of child labor amendments, women's peace societies, plumb planners, open forumites, farm relief proponents, municipal ownership defenders, cooperationists, British Labor Party members, peace councils of women, fellowships of reconciliation, conferences to reduce armaments, non-partisan leagues, non-resistants, women's trade union leagues, christian endeavor societies that discuss the ethics of capitalism, economics professors who have read Karl Marx—all are the same lot of "Reds" in the eyes of Easley.

And as for the Quakers, Mr. Easley just can't control himself. "If I had my way, I'd run every damn Quaker out of the country." It is apparent from the gentlemen's ravings that he would heartily like to run every soul out of this land, etc. who happens to be equal him in his prodigious intolerance for ideas. This noisy, foolish, self-acclaimed red-sniffer would like nothing better than to get all the persons who favor minimum wage legislation and old age pensions put into another Buford and deported to outer darkness—as a Soviet Russia.

Labor's Slant On Easley.

What the rank and file of the United Mine Workers of America think of Mr. Easley as a "conciliator" of labor and capital is reflected in the following, quotation from their constitution:

"Mine managers, top foremen, operators' commissioners, persons engaged in the sale of intoxicating liquors and members of the Civic Federations shall not be eligible to membership."

And the attitude of another A. F. of L., international union may be gathered from the resolution adopted under left wing pressure in the convention of the International Ladies Garment Workers of America at their Philadelphia convention in 1925:

"WHEREAS, the National Civic Federation is an organization tending to perpetuate the slavery of the working class and its spirit is therefore contrary to that of our International Union and of all progressive labor unions, and

"WHEREAS, some of the worst enemies of labor in the United States are members of said National Civic Federation and have great influence in its deliberation, and

"WHEREAS, we consider it inconsistent for labor men to belong to said organization and to give thereby prestige to our enemies, be it therefore

"RESOLVED, that we instruct our delegates to all future annual conventions of the American Federation of Labor to introduce and vote for a resolution that all officers of the American Federation of Labor who are at present connected with the National Civic Federation should severe all affiliations with that Body."

These instructions were of course not carried out. Imagine Mr. Sigman introducing such a resolution!

The machinists and other unions have taken similar action and forbidden their officers to have anything to do with the business, fascisti, and open shop elements represented by the Civic Federation. Why they do it is evident from Easley's record, as well as from what even the most conservative economists say about him in their works.

Dr. Clarence E. Bonnett, Professor of Economics at Tulane University of Louisiana, in his book on "Employers Associations in the United States," writes:

"The Federation has always had among its members a large number of the leading financiers of the world—there can hardly be a question that any other employers' association in the country is so intimately connected with 'Wall Street.'"

No wonder intelligent labor unions instruct their officials to stay clear of contamination from this federation.

Financial Backers.

As for Mr. Easley's supporters, one needs but to glance over the list of the "capital" and "public" members of his N. C. F. committees. As Will Irwin har pointed out the roll reads like a Directory of Directors of large corporations, most of them, incidentally, openly anti-labor in their policies. Consider, for example, such names as Nicholas F. Brady, Coleman DuPont, Elon H. Hooker, Ogden Mills, John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Hammond, all of them executives in corporations that have waged smashing campaigns against organized labor with the use of spies, armed guards, the police, thugs and strikebreakers. Mr. Easley also numbers among his heaviest contributors Mr. Finley J. Shepherd and his wife, the former Helen Gould, as V. Everett Macy of the Central Union Trust Co. One man on the executive committee of the Federation Infersoll, Jr., Rockefeller, Jr., Mrs. Russell Sage, Mrs. Finley J. Shepherd, Mrs. Vincent Astor, Mrs. Ogden Mills, Mrs. Harold McCormick, Mrs. Cyrus McCormick, Mrs. Edward Harkness, Mrs. Stephen V. Harkness, Mrs. Payne Whitney, Mrs. Henry Phipps, Mrs. Robert Goelet, Mrs. Ogden Goelet, Mrs. Robert Gerry, Mrs. Robert Bacon, Mrs. Henry Pomeroy Davison, Mrs. Thomas W. Lamont, Mrs. Henry P. Davison, Mrs. Charles Hayden, Mrs. Percy Rockefeller, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Arthur Curtiss James, Mrs. Cleveland H. Dodge, Mrs. Robert Winthrop, Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, Mrs. Whitney Warren, Mrs. Charles Steele, Mrs. Arthur Scott Burden, Mrs. Charles Lanier, Mrs. Henry Sloane Coffin, Mrs. Ernest Iselin, Mrs. Robert Olyphant, Mrs. Robert Walton Goelet, Mrs. Robert Shaw Minturn, Mrs. Robert Shaw Minturn, Jr., Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, Jr., Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 3rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 4th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 5th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 6th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 7th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 8th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 9th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 10th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 11th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 12th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 13th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 14th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 15th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 16th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 17th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 18th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 19th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 20th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 21st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 22nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 23rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 24th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 25th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 26th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 27th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 28th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 29th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 30th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 31st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 32nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 33rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 34th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 35th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 36th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 37th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 38th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 39th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 40th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 41st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 42nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 43rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 44th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 45th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 46th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 47th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 48th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 49th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 50th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 51st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 52nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 53rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 54th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 55th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 56th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 57th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 58th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 59th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 60th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 61st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 62nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 63rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 64th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 65th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 66th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 67th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 68th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 69th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 70th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 71st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 72nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 73rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 74th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 75th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 76th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 77th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 78th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 79th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 80th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 81st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 82nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 83rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 84th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 85th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 86th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 87th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 88th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 89th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 90th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 91st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 92nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 93rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 94th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 95th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 96th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 97th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 98th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 99th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 100th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 101st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 102nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 103rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 104th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 105th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 106th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 107th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 108th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 109th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 110th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 111th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 112th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 113th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 114th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 115th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 116th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 117th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 118th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 119th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 120th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 121st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 122nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 123rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 124th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 125th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 126th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 127th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 128th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 129th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 130th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 131st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 132nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 133rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 134th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 135th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 136th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 137th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 138th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 139th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 140th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 141st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 142nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 143rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 144th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 145th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 146th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 147th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 148th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 149th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 150th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 151st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 152nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 153rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 154th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 155th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 156th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 157th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 158th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 159th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 160th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 161st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 162nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 163rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 164th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 165th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 166th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 167th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 168th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 169th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 170th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 171st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 172nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 173rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 174th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 175th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 176th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 177th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 178th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 179th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 180th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 181st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 182nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 183rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 184th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 185th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 186th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 187th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 188th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 189th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 190th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 191st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 192nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 193rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 194th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 195th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 196th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 197th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 198th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 199th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 200th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 201st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 202nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 203rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 204th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 205th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 206th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 207th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 208th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 209th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 210th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 211th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 212th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 213th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 214th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 215th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 216th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 217th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 218th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 219th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 220th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 221st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 222nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 223rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 224th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 225th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 226th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 227th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 228th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 229th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 230th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 231st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 232nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 233rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 234th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 235th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 236th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 237th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 238th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 239th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 240th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 241st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 242nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 243rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 244th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 245th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 246th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 247th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 248th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 249th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 250th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 251st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 252nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 253rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 254th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 255th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 256th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 257th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 258th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 259th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 260th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 261st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 262nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 263rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 264th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 265th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 266th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 267th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 268th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 269th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 270th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 271st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 272nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 273rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 274th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 275th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 276th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 277th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 278th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 279th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 280th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 281st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 282nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 283rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 284th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 285th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 286th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 287th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 288th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 289th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 290th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 291st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 292nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 293rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 294th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 295th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 296th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 297th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 298th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 299th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 300th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 301st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 302nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 303rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 304th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 305th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 306th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 307th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 308th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 309th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 310th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 311st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 312nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 313rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 314th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 315th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 316th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 317th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 318th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 319th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 320th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 321st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 322nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 323rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 324th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 325th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 326th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 327th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 328th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 329th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 330th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 331st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 332nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 333rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 334th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 335th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 336th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 337th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 338th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 339th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 340th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 341st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 342nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 343rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 344th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 345th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 346th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 347th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 348th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 349th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 350th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 351st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 352nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 353rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 354th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 355th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 356th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 357th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 358th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 359th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 360th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 361st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 362nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 363rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 364th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 365th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 366th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 367th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 368th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 369th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 370th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 371st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 372nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 373rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 374th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 375th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 376th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 377th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 378th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 379th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 380th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 381st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 382nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 383rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 384th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 385th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 386th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 387th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 388th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 389th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 390th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 391st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 392nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 393rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 394th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 395th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 396th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 397th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 398th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 399th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 400th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 401st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 402nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 403rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 404th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 405th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 406th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 407th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 408th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 409th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 410th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 411st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 412nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 413rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 414th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 415th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 416th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 417th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 418th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 419th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 420th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 421st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 422nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 423rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 424th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 425th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 426th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 427th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 428th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 429th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 430th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 431st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 432nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 433rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 434th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 435th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 436th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 437th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 438th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 439th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 440th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 441st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 442nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 443rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 444th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 445th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 446th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 447th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 448th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 449th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 450th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 451st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 452nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 453rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 454th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 455th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 456th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 457th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 458th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 459th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 460th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 461st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 462nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 463rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 464th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 465th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 466th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 467th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 468th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 469th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 470th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 471st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 472nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 473rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 474th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 475th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 476th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 477th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 478th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 479th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 480th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 481st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 482nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 483rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 484th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 485th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 486th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 487th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 488th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 489th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 490th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 491st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 492nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 493rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 494th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 495th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 496th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 497th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 498th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 499th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 500th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 501st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 502nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 503rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 504th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 505th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 506th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 507th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 508th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 509th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 510th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 511st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 512nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 513rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 514th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 515th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 516th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 517th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 518th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 519th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 520th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 521st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 522nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 523rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 524th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 525th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 526th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 527th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 528th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 529th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 530th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 531st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 532nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 533rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 534th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 535th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 536th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 537th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 538th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 539th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 540th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 541st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 542nd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 543rd, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 544th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 545th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 546th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 547th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 548th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 549th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 550th, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry, 551st, Mrs. Robert Livingston Gerry,

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION!

THE DAILY WORKER PORTS:
FOR THE ORGANIZATION OF THE UNORGANIZED
FOR THE 40-HOUR WEEK
FOR A LABOR PARTY

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y. under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 94. | SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $4.00 per year. | NEW YORK, TUESDAY, MAY 3, 1927 | Published Daily, except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. | Price 3 Cents

Current Events

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

FREDERICK MOORE, the New York "Times" Shanghai correspondent contributes to the self-satisfaction of the bourgeois-minded newspaper readers by telling them that the Hankow nationalist government has decided to refrain from carrying on anti-foreign propaganda for the reason that it needs foreign assistance. Every person who is acquainted with the way news is made and who is honest would like to take Mr. Moore by the neck and tickle his apple, but since that is difficult the best we can do is prove that he is a liar and depend on our business manager to give our words the necessary circulation.

• • •

IN THE first place the Hankow government was never anti-foreign. It was and is anti-imperialist. It is not opposed to the idea of foreigners living and working in China. But it objects to either foreigncrs or natives fleecing the Chinese people. Until the Nationalist movement in China got as far as Hankow, Canton was blamed for all the ills that China was supposed to be heir to, but when the nationalist movement developed and went northwards our imperialist scribblers also went along.

• • •

YOU have read about Chiang-Kai-Shek. As the DAILY WORKER pointed out, Chiang sold out to the foreign imperialists. This is not a novelty. Many persons like Chiang have sold out under similar circumstances. In China, Chiang is now the favorite of the imperialists. But without some mass support Chiang would be as helpless as a flea in a whirlwind. So the imperialists tell Chiang to continne babbling about anti-foreignism in order that he may hold on to the mass following that he had before he betrayed the nationalist cause.

• • •

FREDERICK MOORE would have us believe that the revolutionary nationalists in China are anti-foreign. Nothing could be farther from the truth. In fact there are many foreigners co-operating with the Nationalist revolutionists. What they are against are the foreign tools of the international plunderband. The imperialist powers are not particularly concerned about shooting down Chinese revolutionists. They would just as soon shoot down American or British revolutionists figlting in China. But they will shoot down anybody who helps in the task of putting a kink in the policy of imperialism in China.

• • •

THE Hankow Government represents the Chinese movement that aims to unify China under one government. Because it has not sold out to the foreign Imperialists the foreign correspondents unite in maligning it. They say it is anti-foreign. The object is, of course, to prejudice the average newspaper reader against Hankow. But our readers know enough to discount everything that appears as news in the capitalist press and to assume that every bit of Chinese news sent across by a capitalist scribbler is false until it is proven true by events.

• • •

ABOUT 120 American battleships are lying in the two rivers that gird Manhattan Island. Some 20,000 young fellows are tramping the city and having a good time according to their individual tastes. The papers have extended editorial greetings to the fleet. The city has practically turned over its keys to the blnejackets. Not to do long certain theatres had a rule which prevented bluejackets from getting inside their portals. The idea was that only a waster would join the navy. This was before Wall Street started on its imperialist rampage. Now, there is no nobler cause than imperialism. So the blnejackets who were scorned a few years back are now the white-halired boys of our bourgeoisie.

Mob Forms at Church To Kill Accused Negro

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 2. — Following an all-night futile search of jails for Lonnie Dixon, 16, Negro, the mob was formed to lynch the fiend who criminally assaulted and murdered Phoilis McDonald, a moh of almost 4,000 people dispersed today.

Vowing that a lynching would follow as soon as the whereabouts of the Negro was learned, the mob returned to the First Presbyterian Church and pledged themselves to come again as soon as the Negro was located. An early trial, with the death penalty demanded by the state, was ordered by officials.

SACCO, VANZETTI JUSTICE ASKED IN 500 MEETINGS

Workers in Every Nook of Country Protest

BOSTON, May 2.—The desk of Governor Fuller was heaped higher today than at any time in the past month with protests from every section of the country against the electrocution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti July 10.

The holding of May Day meetings in every city of any size in the United States and Canada was immediately responsible for the extraordinary deluge of telegrams. Particularly noticeable were the yellow telegram sheets from sections of the International Labor Defense.

More than 500 May Day meetings were held under International Labor Defense auspices, Rose Baron, in charge of the New York office, estimated yesterday. Each section adopted resolutions demanding a complete review of the case with the end of absolute and unconditional freedom for the two Italian workers.

Mexican Workers Speak Up

Five communications addressed to President Coolidge asking that Sacco and Vanzetti be set free were received yesterday by Gov. Fuller from Frank B. Kellogg, secretary of state. Translations of the communications were enclosed by Kellogg.

The letters were sent by Jesus Ramos, Monterrey, Mexico, representing unions of bakers and other workmen: Florentino Rodriques, Guerrero, Mexico: J. Aguilar, and Pedro Tapia, both of Monterrey, Mexico: and from the middle Rhine division of the Red Aid of Germany.

RAILROADING OF RUBINSTEIN HIT BY CANDIDATES

The crass exhibition of Jersey justice by which Jack Rubinstein was sentenced to six months in jail and a $500 fine for being beaten up by a jailer brought forth a heated denunciation yesterday from the three labor candidates for city commissioners in Passaic.

Simon Bambach, Simon Smelkenson and Albert Weisbord in a joint statement declared the sentence is a direct consequence of the textile workers' heroic struggle for union last year and pledged the candidates, if elected, to build a labor party to insure justice for workers in New Jersey.

Their statement reads:

If anybody is still unconvinced that the textile strike of 1925 is not a great issue in the present campaign, if anyone still thinks that the mill owners are not going to take full revenge on everyone who dared to fight that the workers of this city should get a better wage and a union, then what took place Thursday in Hackensack certainly should make him change his mind.

Jack Rubinstein, one of the outstanding leaders in the fight of the textile workers for the right to live was sentenced to jail for 6 months, and given a $500 fine. The charge was that Jack Rubinstein attacked a keeper while in jail facing trial on another count arising from his activities during the strike.

The charge is a most brazen frame up. Again and again Officer "Whitey," Adam Chesky, the same man who is now in jail as an alleged common thief tried to "get" Jack Rubinstein on similar charges outside of jail. This proving impossible it was decided to "frame" Jack while inside jail where only witnesses of the underworld would be present to see what was going on.

Mooney and Billings cases before, Sacco and Vanzetti cases recently, now the Rubinstein case all show clearly how the agents of the government are controlled by the capitalists of the country. Against this bosses' government the labor candidates declare for a workers' government, a government that will not punish trade unionists but will build the trade unions and secure to the workers the full product of their toil.

We emphatically protest this outrageous decision against Jack Rubinstein and pledge ourselves to do all in our power to build a labor party in New Jersey that will clean out the enemies of the workers.

(Signed) Simon E. Bambach.
Simon Smelkenson.
Albert Weisbord.

Labor Candidates on a Labor Platform

The Daily Worker Every Day

HUMAN SACRIFICE—ANNO 1927

Big Four Control U. S. Bank, Insurance Expose Shows

PAST EVENTS OF INSURANCE EXPOSÉ

Apr. 22.—William F. Dunne, editor of The DAILY WORKER, wires Gov. Smith demanding an investigation of the "Big Four", basing his demand on a series of articles by Charles Yale Harrison.

Apr. 28.—Governor Smith orders James A. Beha, Superintendent of Insurance to conduct an inquiry into the charges made in The DAILY WORKER exposure.

Apr. 29.—Ex-senator William J. Tully, one of the targets in the Harrison articles, announces his resignation from official position with the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company—"to travel in the Far East."

Apr. 30.—James A. Beha, acting under orders from Governor Smith, writes to The DAILY WORKER asking for data on which to base his investigation. Facsimile of this letter appears in this edition.

Charges pressed against the editors of The DAILY WORKER for printing an alleged unpatriotic poem.

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON.

ARTICLE XIX.

The "Big Four" assets, for the year ending December 31st 1925, in aggregate were $3,606,854,715, (over three and a half billion dollars). The figures for 1926, not yet available, will certainly be over the four billion dollar mark. The 1925 figures, however, are distributed as follows:

Metropolitan	$1,854,657,482
Prudential	1,373,110,038
Hancock	368,818,073
Colonial	10,229,122

In the United States and Canada there are over forty million workers insured by 62,222,702 weekly payment life insurance policies for a total of $11,052,748,627. More than eleven billions of dollars. This is distributed in the following manner:

NO. OF POLICIES.

Metropolitan	30,883,984
Prudential	26,188,802
John Hancock	4,679,631
Colonial	471,285

AMOUNT. OF INSURANCE

Metropolitan	$5,013,452,116
Prudential	4,988,847,216
John Hancock	975,371,776
Colonial	75,277,419

These statistics show the enormous "progress" made by the "Big Four" weekly payment life insurance companies in recent years.

To this extent is the American worker interested in curbing the growing economic and political influence of the "Big Four." Directly and indirectly practically every person in the United States is interested in the machinations of this gigantic combine, because for every policy it forms there are at least three members of the family affected as beneficiaries.

$4,000,000,000 Necessary?

How powerful this insurance combine is, may be shown best by the abnormally large assets held by these companies as "a necessary reserve,"

(Continued on Page Two)

East Ohio Miners Turn Down Coal Company Plea To Resume at 1917 Rate

CLEVELAND, May 2. — The Lorain Coal & Dock Co., and the Sanday Creek Coal Co., operating mines in Eastern Ohio, have offered to reopen their mines on the 1917 basis. These companies are said to employ several thousand miners, but their offer has been turned down. Although at the offices of the Pittsburgh Coal Co., the offer was alleged to be untrue. C. J. Albasin, commissioner for the East Ohio Operators' Association, confirmed its correctness.

The union men are standing firm in the East Ohio district, which is known for the courageous stand that the miners have taken in all struggles. Although the miners in this part of the country were without work for months prior to April 1, and some of them worked only a few days a week, there have been no breaks in their ranks—and there are likely to be none. East Ohio stands by the Jacksonville agreement and will stay out till it is agreed to by the operators.

LITTLE HOPE FOR MINERS ENTOMBED BY FATAL BLAST

Second Mine Takes Fire Near Fairmont

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., May 2. —Rescue crews today had penetrated less than half the distance into the blast-wrecked depths of the New England Fuel & Transportation Company's mine at Everettsville, W. Va., near here, where 77 miners, entombed late Saturday afternoon, are still imprisoned.

Presence of gas in the mine is delaying the rescue attempts. Sixteen dead and seven injured have been brought to the surface.

Mounted police and a company of infantry have established a camp here to "protect the company's interests" and "keep order among the crowds." The relatives of the men below are roped away from the mine mouth.

Used To Danger.

Upon the success or failure of the rescue crews depends the fate of many families represented in that mournful group of relatives.

They did not weep for they are the wives and children of miners, who are taught from childhood to be prepared to meet such emergencies without falteriog.

Bad Roads.

The mine is one of the largest in Monongahelia county. It is located four miles off the main road from Morgantown to Fairmont. The nearest railroad is two miles away and only one telephone, a party line serves the vicinity of the mine.

Rescuers found considerable difficulty in trekking over the muddy, winding mountain roads with tile, cement and timber with which to erect barricades as they force their way back into the inner workings of the mine. Coal companies contribnte little to the upkeep of the county roads.

Explosion Twists Steel.

The fate of the entombed men was in donbt, according to reports here from the scene, but rescuers were said to be doubtful of the possibility of finding any great number of them alive, because of the evidences al-

(Continued on Page Two)

CHIANG FEARS REVOLT AS TROOPS DESERT FOR HANKOW NATIONALISTS

Imperialist Powers Thru Chang Tso-lin to Court-Martial Thirty-six From U. S. S. R.

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Large sections of Chiang Kai Shek's army deserting to Nationalists; Chiang calls in northern troops to prevent rebellion in Nanking.

2.—Split between Minister MacMurray in Peking and State Department; MacMurray wants immediate partition of China.

3.—Chiang Kai Shek prevents May Day demonstrations.

4.—Chang Tso-lin, inspired by imperialist powers, will court-martial 36 citizens of Soviet Union; denies American lawyer admission to court to defend them.

5.—Text of Communist International statement, branding Chang's documents as forgeries.

• • •

SHANGHAI, May 2.—Large sections of Chiang Kai Shek's army are refusing to fight the Nationalist Government at Hankow and are deserting, according to reports received here

One report states that Chiang, fearing a rebellion, disarmed 7,000 men of his Sixth Army last Saturday and is moving several thousand men of his "loyal" Third Army into Nanking.

Old Troops Desert.

Chiang's strength, it is reported, lies with the counter-revolutionary northern troops who have been incorporated into his army. Chiang's old forces, who are educated in the principles of the Kuomintang, are rapidly leaving him.

In an effort to forestall a rebellion, Chiang has been sending officers suspected of left wing sympathies to the front against the northern war lords only to cut them off and leave them to capture and certain death at the hands of their enemies.

• • •

MacMurray Wants War.

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The differences between the state department and Minister John V. A. MacMurray at Peking are becoming more acute.

MacMurray has openly espoused the militarist policy of the British die-hard cabinet and is clamoring for open war on China. The state department, though it is responsible for a huge American army in China, is treading a little more cautiously.

Favors Partition.

MacMurray is understood to favor the British plan for the occupation of the entire Yangtse Valley and the

(Continued on Page Two)

INADEQUATE AID FOR VICTIMS OF SOUTHERN FLOOD

WASHINGTON, May 2. — The American Red Cross announced this morning that total contributions thus far received are $5,040,400.

It is likely, however, that this enormous sum will prove inadequate, and that another appeal will soon be issued setting $10,000,000 as the minimum necessary to grapple with the gigantic relief problem.

President Coolidge has announced that the government will stick to his economy policy and will donate nothing to the relief of flood victims. The Coolidge "economy policy" has seldom been relaxed for anything except war preparations and increased salaries of higher officials.

Hoover Didn't Get Wet.

"Conditions down there are terrible."

This was Herbert Hoover's description of the lower Mississippi Valley flood situation when he arrived here this morning to report to President Coolidge on the results of his week's observation and investigation.

Hoover said as soon as he "had a bath" and made his report he was returning to the flood area, probably Wednesday.

• • •

Thousands Face Death

NATCHEZ, Miss., May 2.—A fleet of several hundred boats fought frantically today to save the lives of thousands of persons in the immediate path of flood waters from breaks in levees on the west bank of the Mississippi River in Louisiana, near here.

Thirty thousand persons in a 3,100 square mile area are in the path where the raging Mississippi soon may spread ruin.

Thirty million dollars worth of property is doomed to destruction.

• • •

BATON ROUGE, La., May 2. — While Northern and Central Louisiana on the east bank and Southern Mississippi on the west banks of the river became the most critical area today, relief was afforded New Orleans.

The river guage at New Orleans fell one tenth of a foot over Sunday. Blasting continued throughout last night at Poydras, while a thousand foot crevasse in prospect before Monday night.

The city is crowded with refugees. Stories of breaks farteiir up the river, inundating thousands of acres of land seldom before flooded continne.

DIE-HARD STRIKE BILL UNDER FIRE; HOWL DOWN HOGG

Left Wing Favors New General Strike

LONDON, May 2. — A storm of boos, catcalls and hisses greeted Sir Douglas Hogg, attorney-general in the die-hard cabinet, when he moved the second reading of the labor-smashing anti-strike measure in the house of commons this afternoon.

Calls Hogg Liar.

Jack Jones, of Silverton, was ejected for a violent attack on the bill, while five other laborites were threatened with a similar fate. William Thorne, laborite from West Ham, was reprimanded by the speaker for calling Sir Douglas Hogg a liar.

Hogg's reading of the vicious measure was interrupted by continual stream of criticism from the labor benches, particularly from representatives of the militant minority in the labor party. John Robert Clynes opened the debate for the opposition in the absence of J. Ramsay MacDonald and moved that the bill be tabled for reflection and consideration.

Favor General Strike.

The cabinet's bill would not merely outlaw general and sympathetic strikes and the boycott, but makes picketing virtually impossible.

Although the labor party is solid in its opposition to the measure, some of its more far-sighted and militant members see the futility of parliamentary action alone on this question, and have been advocating a general strike as a defense against the measure. The anti-strike bill would rob the British labor movement of the victories that it has gained in the last hundred years, labor leaders say.

Sam Gompers Didn't Let Union Label Interfere In Confabs With Plutes

C. G. Norman, chairman of the board of governors of the Building Trades Employers Association and leader of the lockout of the 5,000 union plumbers, knew Sam. Gompers, former president of the A. F. of L. Norman has a good story about Gompers, which he tells to visiting newspapermen.

Gompers was in Norman's office. The building boss offered a cigar to Sam, saying apologetically:

"I don't know whether the box this cigar came in had a union label or not, Mr. Gompers."

"Oh, that's all right," he replied, "I don't carry my policies into friendly company."

Gompers was one of the founders of the Cigar Makers Union and held his A. F. of L. job for forty years on the basis of his card in that union.

DAILY WORKER, NEW YORK, SUNDAY, MAY 1, 1927

INSURANCE TRUSTS SECURES

The U.S. Steel Corporation, capitalized at $1,402,846,100, has 168,132 stockholders.

1,264 individuals hold here a total capital of $1,370,184,600, the "Big Four" have four billion.

There are over 40,000,000 weekly payment policyholders in U. S. There are over 20,000,000 industrial policyholders in U. S.

The assets now in the hands of the "Big Four" is greater than the entire amount of currency in circulation in this country, which is $4,669,775,000.

The insurance companies now threaten to rest control of the entire economic life of the nation into fewer and more unscrupulous hands than ever before.

"BIG FOUR" CONTROL U. S. BANK, EXPOSE SHOWS

(Continued from Page One)

at this stage of their development about four billion dollars.

While the size of the assets are by itself big, they do not give evidence of the power implied therein. The danger to the economic life of the nation lies in the character and condition under which these terrific sums are held.

The day is long past when banks constituted the greatest menace to the control of industry and production. Standing behind the banks are these colossal insurance combines with their billions of dollars of liquid capital.

Mobilized Menace.

Liquid capital—therein lies the menace. For whereas other anti-social combines such as the Steel Trust, the Oil Trust and the Automobile Trust control enormous amounts of capital, such capital, is of necessity, tied up in real estate, machinery and stock. This condition does not exist in the case of insurance assets.

Where the former are essentially borrowers of capital, the "Big Four" are lenders.

On November 31st 1925 these four public plunderers had on deposit in their controlled banks throughout the country $16,000,000.86 in cash. No one but a child will hesitate to say who controls the banks in which this enormous amount of ready cash is deposited.

During the month of November the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, the largest of the "Big Four" had over $33,000,000.00 in cash deposited with the Metropolitan branch of the Chase National Bank in New York City.

Assets Negotiable.

Even the four billions of dollars in assets are more or less in liquid form. The vast majority of it being invested in negotiable bonds and securities.

Some of the enormity of these figures may be gained by calling to mind that the entire amount of currency in circulation in the United States is $4,359,500,000. This is less than the amounts of assets now held by the "Big Four."

The total number of savings bank depositors are 12,573,001, the number of weekly payment life insurance policyholders is over 40,000,000.

On December 31st 1925 there were 9,054 national banks doing business in the United States with an aggregate paid in capital of $1,379,101,000. Four weekly payment life insurance companies have $4,000,000,000 in assets.

The total government revenue for 1926 was $3,962,755,690; the "Big Four" assets are greater than the entire U. S. revenue for one solid year.

Great, Not Good.

The magnitude of these companies means absolutely nothing. They do not bespeak honesty, efficiency or fair dealing. Size, in insurance companies, indicates the energy with which the company has been prosecuting its business. A boppopotamus is not more intelligent than an ant.

The immensity of the "Big Four" is evidence of the gullibility of the insuring public and proof that the presence of Frank B. Noyes, president of the Associated Press, on the directorate of the Metropolitan Life has aided the insurance trust in getting lots of free favorable publicity.

For example the Metropolitan assets of over one and a half billion dollars and over twelve billions of insurance in force is no more proof of worth and business acumen than a 5 karat diamond ring on the finger of a prosperous pawnbroker is proof of his business integrity.

Success Measure.

The success of industrial life insurance will be proven not by pointing to the scores of millions of poor dupes that have fallen for the swindle but rather by the great amount of insurance which these companies can offer with absolute safety at the lowest possible cost. Previous articles have shown how exorbitant the weekly payment life insurance rates are in comparison with the risk and honest weekly premium rate is considerably lowered.

For the year 1925, 75 out of every 100 weekly payment policies which terminated on these companies' books were total loss lapses. Only 1 per cent were matured endowments! This condition of lapses existed for the past twenty years. Only an incurable optimist could imagine that these corrupt companies will ever reform without the most drastic action on the part of the 40,000,000 policyholders who now suffer financial abuse of the basest variety.

Big Overhead.

The ratio of expense to income is positively appalling, about 23 per cent. On this point alone the weekly payment insurance trust stands indicted as the most crooked gang of businessers that ever looted the public.

For every dollar which passes into the coffers of this heartless combine, about 40 cents is spent on management expense. If any other business was run upon the same principle it would be bankrupt in a twinkle of an eye—unless it resorted to the merciless overcharging that the "Big Four" do.

The Prudential Life Insurance Company uses as its advertising slogan, "As Strong as the Rock of Gibraltar"—and then calmly proceeds to charge its "cooperative" policyholders nearly 40 cents for every dollar paid by them for "protection."

As strong as the Rock of Gibraltar—and as hard.

The figures used in this and preceding articles have been taken from the public reports of the "Big Four" as submitted by them to the Superintendant of Insurance at Albany, and from other official documents. It is common knowledge that the reports are doctored and "prepared" by $30,000 a year actuaries.

A French philosopher has said, that "Language was made to conceal thought."

Actuaries are made to conceal facts. Demand an investigation!

Needle Trade Defense

Mea's Clothes.

"Men, buy your new straw hats and spring and summer suits and top coats at the Great Defense Bazaar at the Star Casino, 107th St. and Park Ave., May 12 to 15."

This is the slogan of the members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers who have taken in a complete line of the famous G. G. G. Brand of men's clothes for the Bazaar. All necessary alterations on the suits or topcoats will be made right at the Bazaar.

• • •

"The Jungle"

is going to have a great run. This picture, based on his famous book, has been donated by Upton Sinclair, and already arrangements have been made and theatres hired in Philadelphia, for June 3rd and 4th, and in New Haven for May 23rd.

• • •

Shop Collections.

Beckerman's reign of terror in the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union prevents the publication of numerous reports from Amalgamated Shops. Nevertheless, acknowledgement is here made to the many shops and individuals who have contributed to the Defense Fund. Workers of the Rubinstein Dress Company collected $18.50, Troy Cloak Company $6.00, Goodwell Dress Company $50.000. Many other shops will be acknowledged later the Special Bazaar Number of "Unity," and in the language press.

• • •

Letters.

April 29, 1927.

To the Joint Board Defense Committee:

Although I am not a furrier but heard of the good work done by the Joint Board Defense Committee, I am enclosing a dollar for the relief of the imprisoned workmen. My profession is upholstering and I belong to Local 76 U. I. U.

Yours truly,
Morris Miller, Bklyn, N. Y.

• • •

Joint Defense Cloak Makers:

Dear Comrades: We are enclosing check for $5.00 as a donation towards your defense fund. This amount was collected in one of our union shops, and we would ask you to send us a receipt as we would like to turn it over to the girls, and show them that this money was sent to the proper place.

Wishing you success, we are,
Comradely,
Millinery Hand Workers Union,
Local 43.

• • •

Dear Friend Landy:

At last my work in Buffalo is beginning to show results. I am organizing a check for $50.00 as a start and I am organizing a defense committee which will meet next Monday to organize and decide on a Tag Day. "

We will send out several hundred One Dollar Roll Call checks on which we expect a fine response. A committee of twenty women has already begun to collect articles for the Bazaar. Please send me a big supply of all sorts of literature. Expect to be able to organize on the same lines as in Buffalo and will try to arrange a big tag day for the same day as in Buffalo.

S. Stoll.

WORKERS! SHOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

GREAT NAMES OFF CHINA COMMITTEE ACTS IN CHICAGO

Darrow Heads List of Famous Speakers

CHICAGO, May 1.—Clarence Darrow, Congressman A. J. Sabath, Presidential John Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Federation of Labor and William A. Gomez are among the prominent members of a "Hands Off China" Committee under whose auspices a huge mass meeting will be held on May 6th, to protest against foreign intervention in China and to demand the withdrawal of United States armed forces.

Many On Program.

Clarence Darrow and Miss Jane Addams head an impressive list of speakers who will address the meeting in Ashland Auditorium, Ashland and Van Buren Streets, on Friday at 8 p. m. Included in the list are Congressman Sabath, Rev. John A. Lapp, Director of the Catholic National Welfare Conference; Mr. Cannes, several times Socialist candidate for mayor; Rev. Paul Hutchinson of the Christian Century; Carl Haessler, managing editor of the Federated Press; Manuel Gomez, secretary of the All-American Anti-Imperialist League, and Chae Ting Chi, representing the Chicago branch of the Kuomintang of China in America.

China For Chinese.

John Fitzpatrick, president of the Chicago Federation of Labor, will send a special message to the meeting.

Standing firmly against any attempt to involve the United States in war with China, the committee supports the principle of China for the Chinese and demands the abolition of the unequal treaties imposed upon China by the foreign powers.

The meeting on Friday is intended to start a wave of protest in Chicago that will exert pressure toward the withdrawal of United States armed forces from China. The prominence of the speakers and the fact that they include widely divergent groups drawn from the labor, church, liberal, and anti-imperialist fields, make the meeting an important political event.

Union Heads Speak.

The committee sponsoring the protest meeting includes a number of the speakers listed above: Edward Rockels, secretary of the Chicago Federation of Labor; Margaret Haley, secretary of the Teachers' Union; Prof. Ferdinand Schevill of the University of Chicago; Ella Boynton of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; William H. Holly '?? West Washington Street, provisional secretary. Cooperating with the Americans on the committee will be three representatives of the Chinese Kuomintang: Chao Ting Chi, P. Wong, and J. Chin.

Seen at his office after the committee session, Mr. Holly expressed the attitude of himself and those associated with him, in the following words:

"Millions of Americans are thinking seriously about China for the first time. The United States, declaring friendship, nevertheless maintains large military and naval forces in Chinese territory, precisely as the British do. Preparations are being made to send still larger forces. Shall we allow them to be used to crush the great Nationalist movement that is ushering in the dawn of a new day in China?

"It is these considerations which, as I personally see it, have resulted in the formation of the "Hands Off China" Committee and which, as well as the personalities of the speakers, will give us a huge demonstration on May 6th. And these same considerations will make of the mass meeting the beginning of a sustained movement on behalf of the long-suffering Chinese people."

Open Trial of Mexican Worker of Chicago Who Is Victim of Frame-Up

CHICAGO, May 2.—The case of Agapito Morales, the Mexican who is being framed by the police as the murderer of Policeman Lyman J. Stahl of Melrose Park, Dec. 7th, will come to trial before Judge Harry B. Miller, today. The trial will probably last a week or longer.

Senator Eleazar del Valle of Mexico recently called upon Mary Bello Spencer, Morales' attorney, and expressed a willingness to do anything possible for the defense. The case is attracting widespread attention because of the ugliness of the circumstances in which the Mexican colony at Melrose Park found themselves involved following a tragedy in the darkness, of which little is known. It is feared that much perjured testimony will be introduced to aid the state in its attempt to secure a death penalty for a Mexican who is obviously innocent.

Los Angeles Pioneers To Meet.

LOS ANGELES, Cal. — On May 8th, the Young Pioneers of Los Angeles are holding a big anniversary concert and entertainment at the Co-operative Center. The main feature will be a 3-act comedy "The Revolt of the Orphans."

RADIO CENSORS ARE HAMMERED IN DEBATE HERE

WEAF Chief Assailed By Radio Liberals

By HARBOR ALLEN.
(Federated Press).

Questions on freedom of speech over the radio, which he could only evade by clumsy silence, were hurled at Martin N. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Co., station WEAF, at the radio dinner of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Aylesworth, in a bland tone, had just assured the guests that there was plenty of free speech on the air; that anybody who wanted to broadcast could do so—providing WEAF, owned by the Westinghouse and the Western Electric Companies, felt his remarks were "adapted to radio," and that broadcasting was a losing proposition.

Morris L. Ernst, attorney for the Liberties Union, demanded to know why, if there was free speech on the radio, Norman Thomas, Senator Watson, De Valera, Hans Kaltenborn of the Brooklyn Eagle, and other critics of political administrations had their speeches censored, cut out, or denied the air. He also asked why, if broadcasting is a losing proposition, stations with practically no equipment are being traded at a premium of $200,000 to $300,000.

Ernst denounced the sale of "the mere signature of Secretary Hoover's name" for large sums of money. Labor had fought for two years before it was granted a license, he added, and some liberal groups in New York still find it impossible to get one.

Dr. James Yard, of the Methodist Board of Foreign Missions, asked whether WEAF would broadcast a plea for the removal of warships from China, and a "Hands Off China" policy. Aylesworth, stammering, presumed that "the speaker was serious," and said he had "thought of starting an open forum over the radio for all topics. Of course, that can't be overdone, as the public wants only to be entertained."

In reply to a question by Arthur Garfield Hayes, another Liberties Union attorney, Aylesworth listed among his "advisory board" William Green, Elihu Root, Charles Evans Hughes, Julius Rosenwald and Owen D. Young. "Why don't you have a board composed of all shades of political opinion?" asked Mr. Hayes.

"Your board would not pass anything the least bit radical."

"There can be no freedom of the air as long as broadcasting is commercial," declared J. Maher, radio editor of the New York Evening Journal. "Stations must please their customers and they are afraid to send out controversial subjects or anything that makes people think. WEAF won't broadcast a talk on militarism or socialism, because they're in business and they hope to stay."

Little Hope for Men Trapped in Scab Mine

(Continued from Page One)

ready encountered of the terrific force of the gas explosion which swept the pit late Saturday.

The entombed men, it is believed, are imprisoned at a depth of 10,500 feet. Rescuers this morning, according to early reports, had succeeded in reaching the 4,000 foot level only, and were progressing but slowly, due to the presence of smoke and gas.

The dead are: Commodore Burton, Edward Allen, Thomas Daugherty, W. L. Davis, Virgil Straight and Orvel Leech, all white, Martin Stone, William Hunter, Irvin Mallory and Frank Goodwin, Negroes, and four unidentified Negroes in Morgantown Morgues.

The seven injured have been removed to the city hospital at Fairmont.

Another Mine Burns.

Fire broke out today in the Virginia and Pittsburg Coal Company mine at Kingmont, near Fairmont, according to word received here.

The mine is several miles off the nearest main highway and only meager information was received concerning the blaze.

A considerable number of workers are imperiled by the blaze, but it is thought that they may have all escaped.

This second fire, following closely on the heels of the disastrous explosion and fire at the Woodward Fuel and Transportation Co. mine here, is but another point in the indictment against non-union mine management which is taking form in the minds of all miners as a result of the great increase in the number fatal or dangerous accidents lately.

Non-union Dangers.

Miners see the prevalence of such conditions as inseparable from union contracts, made by organized workmen who are able to effectively strike, if necessary, to establish safe conditions.

The attempts made in near-by Pennsylvania to extend the area of non-union fields, and turn large coal companies from union to non-union conditions, is taken by miners as a threat of increased menace to life and limb.

Who is Behind the Prosecution of the Militant Needle Trades Workers?

Who Are Matthew Woll's Fellow Conspirators?

They Are Leaders of the National Civic Federation!

Woll is Acting President of the Labor Hating Civic Federation.

There is a United Front of the Special American Federation of Labor Committee, headed by Vice President Woll, and the National Civic Federation, dominated by the most powerful capitalists in the United States.

Matthew Woll is the connecting link in the conspiracy. With him in the Civic Federation are:

JOHN MARKLE, 2 Rector St., New York City.
Director Industrial Finance Corporation of New York (also Pres.).
President and Director Jeddo-Highland Coal Co.
President and Director Jeddo Supply Co.
President and Director Jeddo Tunnel Co.
Director Mayfield Construction Co.
Vice Pres. and Director Morris Plan Co. of New York.

OGDEN L. MILLS, 15 Broad Street, New York City.
Director Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe R.R. Co.
Director Atlantic Coast Steamship Co.
Director Continental Paper Bag Co.
Director Morgenthaler Linotype Co.
Director New York Tribune, Incor.
The Trustee New York Trust Co.
Director Shredded Wheat Co.
Director York Haven Paper Co.

Chiang Fears Revolt As Troops See His Treason

(Continued from Page One)

eventual partition of the whole of China.

Rumors here indicate that the split may result in the recall of MacMurray.

• • •

Sends More Planes.

LONDON, May 2.—The foreign office is understood to be planning the dispatch of more bombing planes, guns and light craft to China.

What the next move of the foreign office will be in view opposition of New Zealand, Canada and Australia to British intervention in China is problematical.

• • •

Enter The Marines.

SHANGHAI, May 2.—The Sixth Regiment of the United States marines arrived at Shanghai aboard the transport Henderson this afternoon.

No mass May Day demonstrations were held here yesterday because of the repressive measures taken by Chiang Kai Shek. Workers fearing another of the wholesale massacres that have been the order of the day since Chiang joined the counter-revolution stayed in their homes.

• • •

Court-Martial.

PEKING, May 2.—The Soviet Union, it appears, will be prevented from putting up any sort of legal defense in behalf of the fifteen Russians captured in Chang Tso-lin's unprecedented raids on the Soviet embassy compound when they are court-martialled.

Deny Legal Defence.

Charles James Fox, American lawyer and editor of the North China Star, who has been retained by the Soviet Consul to defend them and twenty other Russians, including Mme. Borodin being held at Tsinanfu, said last night that his request to appear at the court martial in their behalf had received no reply.

It is believed that Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord, acting for the imperialist powers, is trying to goad the Soviet Union into a war.

Documents Forged.

MOSCOW, May 2.—The statement issued by the Communist International several days ago branding as forgeries the documents alleged by Chang Tso-lin to have been captured in his unprecedented raids on the Soviet Union embassy compound follows:

"The Chinese press appearing in territory occupied by Chang Tso-lin publishes many forged documents alleged to have been seized by police during the last raid on the Soviet embassy in Peking.

The Red Herring.

"These 'materials' now reproduced by the bourgeois press of all countries contains the usual denunciations of the Communist International. All this news raised by imperialist circles about these fantastic documents clearly shows why police serving foreign powers wanted to raid the Soviet embassy.

"This act was necessary for the dissembling system of fraud and forgery which British conservatives use in their anti-Soviet campaign and purpose, lending credibility to 'documents' false from beginning to end.

Hide Imperialist Hangmen.

"These documents printed by the press controlled by Chang Tso-lin affirm that the Communist International has been trying to 'incite' the masses against foreigners for the purpose of provoking intervention in China.

"Thus nothing more nor less than assistance to the plans of the imperialist hangmen is attributed to the Communist International. Furthermore, the same 'instruction' recommends for the 'fulfillment of this purpose (intervention) to rob and murder foreigners,' regardless of their class.

Statements Ridiculous.

"All this nonsense, which indicates the political ignorance of its authors and fabricated by the specialists of foreign intelligence departments is so absurd that it needs no denial.

"Only hopelessly naive persons or acknowledged rascals attempting to justify by such filthy means the imperialist robbers can make use of such nonsense.

"Before the workers of the whole world the Communist International can only condemn these methods despicable in their intention and inefficient in their execution of the worst enemies of the Chinese revolution.

"Workers of all countries will estimate according to their value these attempts inspired by foreign capitalists for the purpose of strangling the great movement of workers and peasants of China. Their vile cause can use no other means than gross frauds and forgery."

• • •

Fine For Bound Feet.

HANKOW, May 2. — The women folks in this section of the country have decided to do away with bound feet by compulsion if necessary. The local women's organizations have undertaken the registration of all bound-footed women under thirty years of age who must immediately remove their paralyzing bandages. They claim that physical freedom is the first step toward the emancipation of womankind. Three months will be devoted for the purpose of registration. After that a fine will be imposed upon every woman under thirty years who has bound feet.

• • •

Mammoth Protest Meeting.

A mammoth mass meeting to protest against imperialist intervention in China will be held in the north side of Union Square this Saturday.

The withdrawal of American troops and warships from China and the immediate recognition of the Nationalist government at Hankow will be among the demands voiced at the meeting.

Blackshirts Armed With Stilettos to Guard Fascist Plane

Under heavy guard by black-shirted fascists, the airplane Santa Maria II was being primed yesterday for the flight back to Europe of Francesco de Pinedo, the Italian "air ambassador" of Mussolini. Armed in dramatic fashion with stilettos, the fascisti threatened newspaper cameramen with violence. On the voyage over from Italy, the plane was guarded by black shirts working in three watches of six men each while passengers were not allowed within 75 feet.

In honor of the fascisti, the captain and officers of the steamer Dulle here today. The McCormicks found an automobile awaiting them at the pier and drove off in the direction of Cork. It is believed they will take a honeymoon tour through Ireland.

Search For Bones.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 2.—Fearing that sharks may have attacked Alfred Oliver, 16, and John Andrade, 29, who disappeared while wigging for clams, searchers scoured the coast near Mesa Landing today in search of the bodies.

"Red Flag" Stockings On Market Next Year From Leningrad Plant

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R.—Russian women will be wearing "The Red Flag" stockings next year following the opening of a huge hosiery factory of that name which is being erected in Leningrad.

Machinery has been ordered from abroad, and the factory will open in the autumn and turn out twice as many stockings as it has done in the past. Six thousand workers will be employed there, and the value of the product will be about eighty million roubles.

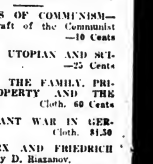
The cost of the new factory will be 18,774,000 roubles, of which 5,500,000 will be for equipment.

Passaic Slugger Of Union Pickets On Way to Prison

(Special to Daily Worker)

PASSAIC, May 2. Stephen (Whitey) Adamachesky, one of the most brutal policemen in the textile strike last year, is on his way to the penitentiary.

The slugger of pickets, both men and women, and the virulent foe of unionism, "Whitey" found himself yesterday in the same jail to which he had consigned so many brave fighters for labor. He has confessed to the robbery of the gasoline service station at 213 Passaic Ave., Garfield.



Adamachesky was suspended from the force last Monday on suspicion and after spending several hours in a cell confessed to the crime. It is believed that other members of the police force are implicated.

APRIL 23
(1869)
The Birthday of our Leader
L
Choose the appropriate time to read what he has to say
E
on the simplest, most necessary things in the revolutionary movement. This work teaches fundamental
N
I
problems. It includes all his speeches and writings
N
ON ORGANIZATION
$1.50
In a cloth bound library edition.
The DAILY WORKER PUB. CO.
33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

BOOKS BY
FRIEDRICH ENGELS
PRINCIPLES OF COMMUNISM—(Original draft of the Communist Manifesto) —10 Cents
SOCIALISM, UTOPIAN AND SCIENTIFIC —25 Cents
ORIGIN OF THE FAMILY, PRIVATE PROPERTY AND THE STATE Cloth. 60 Cents
THE PEASANT WAR IN GERMANY Cloth. $1.50
KARL MARX AND FRIEDRICH ENGELS. By D. Riazanov. Cloth. $2.50

Barnes Armed Band Kills Two Miners

Coal Operator Leads Gunmen in Attack on Union Men

By ART SHIELDS.

HARLAN, Ky., May 2.—Two miners were killed and three wounded when a band of gunmen led by Jim Barnes, coal operator, attacked a group of miners who were holding a meeting in the Cumberland Mountains near Evarts, Ky., on Saturday night.

The miners were holding a meeting in the home of Bill Jones, when the gunmen opened fire on the house. Jones and Ben Unthank were killed and Jones' wife and two children were wounded.

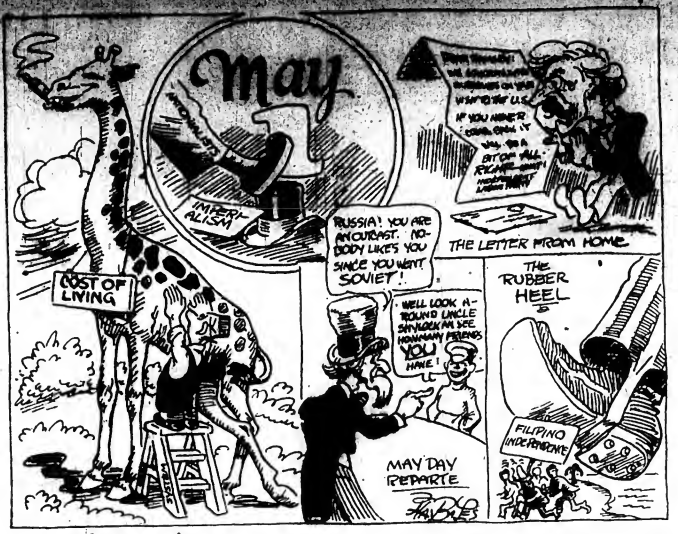
Barnes is a coal operator who has been active in the anti-union campaign in Harlan county. He has been indicted for murder in connection with the killing of Harry Simms, union miner, during the strike last year.

Offer to Bulgaria Revealed By Paris Newspaper

PARIS, May 2.—A sensational exposition of Italian intrigue by Premier Mussolini to King Boris, to secure Bulgaria's support in the Italo-Jugo-Slavian dispute, is published today by L'Information, which states that its story is based upon a dispatch to the Belgrade Novosti Zagreb from its Sofia correspondent.

This dispatch alleges that Premier Mussolini has sent a special emissary to King Boris and Foreign Minister Bourov, proposing that if Bulgaria remains neutral in any Italo-Jugo-Slavian conflict that she will obtain several districts of Macedonia.

A further proposal is alleged to have been made that if Bulgaria enters an alliance with Italy a marriage will be arranged between Princess Giovanni and Boris.



Premises Hegemony.

Premier Mussolini is alleged to have promised to establish a Bulgarian hegemony over the Balkans and to restore to Bulgaria portions of Dobrunjlae taken from Bulgaria by the Treaty of Bucharest.

Foreign Minister Bourov is said to have rejected the proposals and announced his intention of remaining strictly neutral and refusing to profit from difficulties of Bulgaria's neighbors.

Marconi After New Wife.

ROME, May 2.—Count Beninicali today announced the engagement of his daughter, Christine, to Guglielmo Marconi, famous wireless inventor and scientist. The marriage is expected to take place the middle of June. Signor Marconi's first marriage to the honorable Beatrice O'Brien, daughter of the fourteenth Baron Inchiquin was recently dissolved by the "sacred rota" of the catholic church.

Let's Fight On! Join The Workers Party!

In the loss of Comrade Ruthenberg the Workers (Communist) Party has lost its foremost leader and the American working class its staunchest fighter. This loss can only be overcome by many militant workers joining the Party that he built.

Fill out the application below and mail it. Become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party and carry forward the work of Comrade Ruthenberg.

I want to become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Name .....

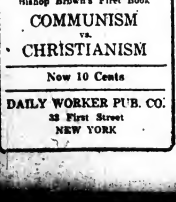
Address .....

Occupation .....

Union Affiliation .....

Mail this application to the Workers Party, 108 East 14th Street, New York City; or if in other city to Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Distribute the Ruthenberg pamphlet, "The Workers (Communist) Party, What it Stands For and Why Workers Should Join." This Ruthenberg pamphlet will be the basic pamphlet thruout the Ruthenberg Drive.



Every Party Nucleus must collect 50 cents from every member and will receive 20 pamphlets for every member to sell or distribute.

Nuclei in the New York District will get their pamphlets from the District Office—108 East 14th St.

Nuclei outside of the New York District write to Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 East First Street, New York City, or to the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

BISHOP BROWN'S

NEW BOOK

"My Heresy"

The autobiography of an idea.

$2.00 Clothbound

Bishop Brown's First Book

COMMUNISM vs. CHRISTIANISM

Now 10 Cents

DAILY WORKER PUB. CO.

33 First Street

NEW YORK

Political Declaration of 8 Chinese Proletarian Organizations

IMPERIALISM AND MILITARISM.

The victorious northern expedition brings the revolutionary army face to face with the main forces of the enemies on the one hand, the marines and soldiers of the imperialists concentrated in Shanghai; on the other hand, the soldiers of the northern militarists.

The defeat of Sun Chuan fang—though a heavy blow to the imperialists and militarists—is only the beginning of a final clash between the revolution and the counter-revolution. Because Sun was unable to prevent the revolutionary army from coming to Shanghai, the imperialists are constrained to play their last card: armed intervention. Consequently, a fight between the revolutionary army and international imperialism is becoming inevitable.

Furthermore, Chang Tso-lin is concentrating his forces against the revolutionary army; and hopes if possible, to push back the latter. It is clear that his hyperitical plan has the entire backing of the imperialists.

Duty of the Masses.

The first phase of the northern expedition being at its highest point, it is very necessary to have an decided and energetic fight to make it completely victorious.

At this urgent moment, all democratic and advanced forces must stand united behind the revolutionary army, in order to help it clear out all imperialist and militarist combined forces from the Yangtse region, and to reap the fruit of victory.

Up to the present, the people and the revolutionary army sincerely fulfilled their obligations. They deserve felicitation for the victory thus gotten under the leadership of the Kuomintang and the nationalist government. To defend that victory and the victory in the future, the leadership of the Kuomintang is more necessary than ever.

The strongest defense of the revolution remains in the disciplined organization of the revolutionary forces. Our forces, however, are being scattered over a large front of several hundred miles, in which modern communication is lacking. In such a situation, a supreme centralized power is necessary to realize the program of national revolution. This power must rest in the hands of the Kuomintang. Therefore, whatever act that may weaken the supreme power of the Kuomintang is a danger for the revolution. That will be intolerable, and will not be tolerated. We rally all the organized masses under the Kuomintang to make its power higher than any other organs above also the nationalist government and the revolutionary army.

Comrade Wang Must Resume Office.

To develop the revolutionary movement to the highest point, to lead the revolutionary army to victory, to organise a democratic and revolutionary government, to consolidate the political power of the masses in the territories newly acquired—it is necessary to centralize the power of the party. To consolidate the party power, it is necessary to unite all revolutionary forces, without distinction. For this, comrade Wang Ching-wei is needed by the party. We hope comrade Wang shall resume office. We will rally all the organized masses to urge comrade Wang to return immediately.

Kuomintang Above All.

The Kuomintang must be defended above and before all else. Whoever mixes up with the organization and the power of the party must be condemned as dangerous for the revolution. We consider them as anti-party. If there are some in the party who commit such acts with the organized masses we urge the central executive committee to punish them, to deal with them according to party discipline.

Cooperation With Kuominchun.

In military affaire, the cooperation with the Kuominchun is of the highest importance. The united action of the revolutionary army and the Kuominchun will place the northern anti-revolutionary forces in a dangerous position. The nationalist government in Hankow must be the centre of all revolutionary cooperation. The revolutionary troops are the arms of the revolutionary government; and this latter is the foundation of mass democracy.

The masses have fought the imperialists and their counter-revolutionary tools. The imperialists, either jointly or individually, are intervening at the front. We shall not be fooled by them. They are all enemies of the Chinese people. Our aim of fighting is against them all. Momentarily, we must concentrate our forces against this or that imperialism; but we shall not forget that our emancipation urges the overthrow of all imperialism.

French imperialism pretends to keep a so-called "neutrality". It is only hypocrisy. The French government not only secretly armed Yunan militarists, but openly supported the intervention policy of Britain. The "friendly" policy of America is but a false note. American imperialism always utilized or encouraged Chinese opportunist elements, in order to weaken the Chinese emancipation movement. The "Tartuffere" of American imperialists was already unmasked by its proposal of neutralizing Shanghai. That proposal, aimed at transforming Shanghai into a property of imperialists so that they can legally use their armed forces against the revolutionary army if this latter attacks that city.

The policy of Japanese imperialism is clear. No Chinese can ever forget the humiliation of the 21 demands, the help given to Yuan Shi-kai before and to Chang Tso-lin at present by Japan.

All imperialist purpose to come in relation with the revolutionary army and the nationalist government is intended to disperse our strength. Those who favor these hypocrites are enemies of the revolution, and must be dealt with accordingly.

Kuomingtang Above All.

We intend to weaken the imperialist forces by utilising their own rivalry and antagonisms, in order to consolidate our own forces. But such tactics must be used only with the authorization of the Kuomintang and the Nationalist government, after serious study. No army or government shall be allowed to come in relation with foreign government without the agreement and direction of the party and the nationalist government.

Recently there were rumors about the general headquarters of the revolutionary army entering into treaty with Chang Tso-lin. We urge the people to heed these rumors, and to deny them energetically; they are unfounded. Chang Tso-lin and his followers pretend that they are fighting for the same aim as the revolutionary army. That is a lie. We are sure that never, never can the revolutionary army make peace with the leader of the reaction—Chang Tso-lin. Maybe Chang Tso-lin was obliged to ask for peace when his soldiers were in a perilous position, but the answer for his demand is: "NO!" One of the most important meanings of national revolution is to free China from reaction. Therefore, in whatever necessity, strategical or otherwise, the revolutionary army cannot act contrary to that principle.

Workers' and Peasants' Demands.

All organizations of the people shall stand behind the Kuomintang and the Nationalist government, in order to shoulder the revolutionary soldiers up to victory. We must never compromise with Japanese imperialism and northern militarism, because this will be a sort of alliance with the enemies of the people. This will lead to the pitfall of international imperialism, to the submission of the revolution. Therefore, the people must back the Nationalist government to defend the victory, to avoid a chance of defeat.

To make the Nationalist government the centre of the revolution, the Kuomintang must rely upon the toiling masses. And for that, the Revolutionary government must carry out the labor and peasant program. Only by realizing the labor and peasant advanced program shall military crisis be avoided. The prosperity of the masses at the rear makes sure 50% the victory of the soldiers at the front. If the revolutionary soldiers can cure the miseries of the masses—such as heavy taxes, usury, bandtism overtaking the peasants will support the soldiers with all their heart and soul. If the revolutionary soldiers can abolish the oppression of the gentries, can give village autonomy and democracy to the peasants, these latter will surely help and welcome them.

Soldiers' Conscience

The soldiers are the most powerful instrument of the revolution. To measure the fighting strength, one must look at the degree of awakening of the army—from the command to the rank and file. Therefore, the Party must enlarge the work of the Political sections of the Army. Material betterment for the soldiers—such as payroll—is an important question, and must be the first thing to take care of in military budget.

With organization and enthusiasm of the people, the Revolution will be defended, and opportunism avoided. We make bold to appeal to the organized and enthusiatic masses to back the Kuomintang and the Nationalist government.

Down with imperialism, militarism, and opportunism!

All power to the Party of the People!

Signed: The All-China Labor Union, Canton Branch
The Enlarged CEC of Kwangtung PO.
The Hongkong-Shaneen Strike Committee.
The CEC of the Kwangtung Communist P.
The KWDC
The Hongkong General Labor Union
The All-China Railwaymen's Union.
The All-China Seamen's Union.

What's What in Washington

Hoover and Kellogg Intrigue For Power As Coolidge Wobbles

WASHINGTON, May 2 (FP)—President Coolidge's announcement that Secretary of Commerce Hoover would not be made secretary of state, even if Secretary Kellogg should resign, has been followed by a series of moves on the political chessboards in Washington that again raise the question as to which man has the greater influence on administration policy.

Hoover Has Machine.

Hoover, maintaining in all corners of the world a highly-paid and alert staff of commercial advisers, has been getting more credit than ever, since the Coolidge slap, for extension of American prestige and trade aboard. Kellogg has brought home from Europe a number of men especially qualified to deal with trade problems, and thereby to make the state department appear as the prime promoter of American foreign commerce.

Hoover Speaks Thru Cal.

Kellogg has lowered his tone toward Mexico, but the Coolidge New York speech, suggesting that the United States and Mexico can amicably settle their differences, is credited a Hoover line of influence. It was Hoover who pointed out privately to administration leaders that the fruits of conquest in Nicaragua and of bulldosing in Mexico were never going to match up to the losses that these offenses would bring to trade and investments in South America.

Now comes the Pan-American Commercial Conference, with speeches by Coolidge, Kellogg, Hoover and other luminaries. There are future billions in it for American big business, it is clear, the South Americans are handled right.

Kellogg Cools Off.

Kellogg is reported to be cultivating a genial smile and soft words, while Henry Stimson, sent to Nicaragua to look over the grabbed territory, is suddenly converted into a peacemaker between the puppet Diaz and the liberal Sacasa government, which was supposed to be as completely wiped out as the free government of Haiti.

Hoover's play in this conference has yet to be disclosed. But his fine hand is suspected by the Kellogg adherents in a cruel article published in the Magazine of Wall Street, showing how the silk-hatted and cuffed and spatted snobs in the state department are costing the country billions in lost foreign trade. A photograph of J. Butler Wright, assistant secretary of state, now designate minister to Hungary, and one of the chief exhibits in the tapper-and-spats brigade, is published with the article.

American Investments In Europe and Canada Reach Highest Stage

WASHINGTON, May 2.—The flow of American dollars abroad for foreign investment during April broke all records, the department of commerce announced today.

Loans to foreign governments and corporations during the month totaled $200,000,000, of which Europe and Canada received the biggest share.

Germany To Protest Allied Arms.

BERLIN, May 2.—The German government will make diplomatic moves tonight for a reduction of the army of occupation in the Rhineland, it was learned today.

International MAY DAY Notes

Strong Demonstration in London.

LONDON, May 2.—Resolutions denouncing the infamous Trades Disputes and Trades Union Bill and demanding the release of Tom Mann, Harry Pollitt, Tom Bell and Arthur Field, were passed at thousands of May Day meetings throughout Great Britain yesterday. Hundreds of thousands of speakers, workers, men, women and children, with banners and floats, denounced the Baldwin government as the combatant enemy of the British working class and demanding its overthrow. The police and Fascists were everywhere but were not able to oversaw the workers' demonstrations. Half of central London's population lined the way of march of the celebrating workers. Red flags waved in Trafalgar Square and Piccadilly. In Stepney Borough the Council in accord with resolutions passed last week raised the red flag over the four principle municipal buildings.

• • •

May Day in U. S. S. R.

MOSCOW, May 2.—Hundreds of thousands of marchers, troops representing every division of the Red Army, delegations representing every labor union in the U. S. S. R., the Red Boy and Girl Scouts, and floats and motor trucks packed with hundreds of singing school children, took part in the May Day celebration on the Red Square in Moscow while the Commissars and high government officials reviewed the monster parade and sixteen aeroplanes maneuvered overhead. The crowd carried banners or took part in floats depicting episodes in the revolution, showing the great forward strides the Soviets have made in production and electrification and declaring the Soviet Union's friendship for China.

• • •

"Down With Fascism."

BERLIN, May 2.—Berlin's entire police and fascist force was out to suppress the May Day celebration of the 300,000 Communists and workers in front of the former Imperial Palace. Proletarian songs were sung, and banners were paraded reading: "Down with the fascists," but the police did not care to interfere.

• • •

Wound 11 Polish Workers.

WARSAW, May 2. — The police charged the May Day demonstration of 20,000 workers here today, wounding eleven Communists and making nearly 100 arrests. The Communists attempted to make a united front with the socialists to demonstrate against the White Terror and the murdere of workers and Communists by the Pilsudski dictatorship. The socialists repulsed the Communists and called the police to their assistance.

• • •

Arrest Communist Leader.

PARIS, May 2.—M. Monmousseau, Communist leader, was arrested during his May Day speech in Dunkirk yesterday. He was held on the charge of inciting the French troops sent to China to fraternize with the workers and peasants of the Chinese Nationalist armies. There were parades, and speeches by well-known Communists here.

• • •

MEXICO CITY, May 2.—President Calles yesterday reviewed the May Day parade of 25,000 workers from all branches of industry. The marchers carried giant banners calling on the Mexican workers to boycott American and other foreign goods and buy home products. At noon the marchers observed a five minute silence in honor of the labor leaders who lost their lives in the disturbances in Chicago in 1886.

• • •

TOKIO, May 2.—Police today made many arrests in the huge labor demonstration, comprising thousands of workers and 1,500 women taxtile workers, carrying banners with resolutions demanding the eight-hour day, protection for the unemployed, abolition of unjust labor laws, and no intervention in China.

• • •

VIENNA, May 2.—150,000 workers, Communists and socialists celebrated May Day with a gigantic demonstration. In Budapest, Belgrade, Bucharest, and Constantinople May Day demonstrations were prohibited by the governments. The police remained in control.

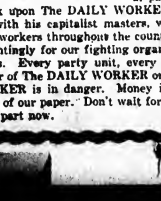
Police Break Up Sacco-Vanzetti May. 1 Parade; Jail 28 in Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, May 2.—The Sacco-Vanzetti May Day parade here was broken up by the police. Twenty-eight machines filled with paraders were arrested, and the drivers of the cars were taken to jail and held until late in the day, when they were released in time to take part in the united front May Day demonstration and picnic.

All banners and placards calling for justice for Sacco and Vanzetti were confiscated by the police.

The picnic was a huge success, and a large crowd listened to speeches denouncing the frame-up of Sacco and Vanzetti by the courts of Massachusetts, and calling for a stop being put to American imperialism in Latin-America and China.

Filipino Conference Calls Coolidge Bluff On U. S. Imperialism



CHICAGO, May 2 (FP).—Pres. Coolidge's declaration before the United Press Association in New York that "there is no shred of imperialism in the foreign policies of the United States" draws the following comment from the Conference for Filipino Independence:

"If Mr. Coolidge wishes to be taken at his word he must immediately reverse his policy with regard to the American empire. In the Philippine Islands a nation of 11,500,000 people is demanding its freedom. The Conference for Filipino Independence, an American body, echoes the demand. Taking up the challenge of the president's speech we call upon his administration to grant immediate and absolute independence to the Philippine Islands. Independence was specifically promised in the Jones law of 1916."

Rednce Rubber Quota.

LONDON, May 2.—The colonial office announced that the rubber supply quota of Maylaya and Ceylon will be reduced for the next quota to sixty percent of production.

They Mean Business

WILLIAM F. DUNNE, Editor and Bert Miller, Business Manager, of The DAILY WORKER, have both been held for Special Sessions in spite of the fact that neither one was in a position to be responsible for or aware of the publication of the matter for which the paper is being attacked.

Special representatives of the District Attorney's office have taken a leading hand in the case. Powerful pressure has been brought to bear upon the court to prevent the dismissal of any of the defendants. The situation is clear. The black forces of American capitalism intend to railroad our staff to jail and crush our DAILY WORKER.

But we mean business, too. We will fight to the last ditch to save our paper. For every professional patriot seeking by the attack upon The DAILY WORKER to ingratiate himself with his capitalist masters, we will show a thousand workers throughout the country ready to sacrifice unstintingly for our fighting organ. Let's mobilise our forces. Every party unit, every comrade, every supporter of The DAILY WORKER on the job. The DAILY WORKER is in danger. Money is needed for the defense of our paper. Don't wait for the next appeal. Do your part now.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of

..... dollars .... cents to the Ruthenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....

Address .....

City .....

State .....

Attach check or money order.

Phone, Orchard 3020

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
By mail (outside of New York)
$6.00 per year; $3.50 six months; $2.00 three months
By mail (outside of Manhattan and Bronx, New York)
$8.00 per year; $4.50 six months; $2.50 three months
Foreign and Canada $9.00 per year; $5.00 six months; $2.75 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 50 Fifth Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL ..... Editor
WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editor
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

AID FOR CHINESE WORKERS
Editor, Daily Worker:

I would like to add my little mite to assist the Chinese workers and farmers in their struggle against the imperialists that infest that great land. Being a member of the Communist Party, I have carefully studied the history of the Russian revolution, likewise all of the imperialist movements that have taken place in the last quarter century.

The Kaiser seeing that Russia was to continue the war made it possible for Lenin and all of the radicals to return to Russia. They, of course, were welcomed by the masses and put forth the workers' program, which is summed up as follows: Immediate peace, land to the peasants, industries to the wage workers. This program caused the army to leave the battle-field, whereupon Kerensky turned what was left of his army on the Bolsheviki. Needless to say the Kerensky government was soon replaced by the Bolsheviki, which in turn was attacked by the Kaiser's army. This, of course, met with the approval of the allied powers as they hated a workers' government more than they did the imperialism of the central powers. As proof of this fact we noticed that the allies laid low on the west front all the while the German army invaded Bolshevik territory. After the Kaiser forced the Bolsheviki to sign the treaty at Brest the allies again began their attack on the Kaiser's army. This continued until the uprising of the German workers led by Carl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemberg caused the Kaiser to abdicate. This brings us back to the above mentioned Fritz Ebert, who did not want to see the German masses ignored in workers' republic. So he adopted the first plank of the Bolshevik program which was peace.

The situation in China is the same as that of Germany on the day the armistice was signed, and the renegade socialist was placed at the head of the government. The workers and peasants of China must never lay down their arms or listen to a peace slogan until the last profit monger is driven from their soil. The refusal to lay down their arms will of course give the foreign powers an excuse for armed intervention. In this event every class conscious worker on the face of the earth must do all in his or her power to block any attack coming from the imperialist plunderbonds.

If they will not keep their hands off China and Russia, they will give the workers of other nations another chance to get what the people of Russia have. That is, a workers' republic.

A. C. Miller, Williston, N. D., April 20, 1927.

Rally to Daily Worker.
Editor, Daily Worker:

Inclosed is my contribution of $5.00 for the defense of The DAILY WORKER. I shall not be called the sentry who has slept at his post of duty.

We must do our utmost to support our paper, The DAILY WORKER. Without it we would be at a loss, especially at this moment when the reactionary forces are employing every means of destroying the revolutionary movement.

It is our duty to support and uphold the only English daily paper, which fights for the interests of the exploited masses.

Fraternally Yours,
Comrade MRS. F. MLADINICH.
315 Roxbury Rd., Garden City, L. I.

Cops Surprise This Worker.
Editor, Daily Worker:

I have just read in The DAILY WORKER about the arrest of the members of the Young Workers League for distributing leaflets on Union Square.

Once for all we, the people of America should see that the laws of our constitution should not be trampled on by any petty judge or policeman, and, not once, but we prosecute their crimes, and free born citizens. I am surprised that a policeman who has not had hardly a human being in him, but is an animal-like to whom is like himself, a man.—

BENJAMIN.

April 20, 1927, 9 p. m.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

PRINTERS FIGHT HARD.
Editor, Daily Worker:

The strike of the printers who were locked out on April 16 by the White Printing Company here in Chicago, has been progressing very favorably.

The open-shoppers of the White Printing Company have fetched up scabs from all over the country, and brought them here to help the strike-breaking police and thugs, which are very numerous around the White plant. The company is unable to produce a third of the work it did before the lockout. The little work that is being produced, is done in such a way that the customers have to refuse to accept it, because the inexperienced scabs are unable to do a printers' job.

To date the unions involved in the lockout have succeeded in transferring the printing of six publications from the open shop plant to union shops. It is believed that more will follow.

The open shoppers will long regret this onslaught they have made upon the Printers' Union, involving five of them. In the hearing on the injunction, the bosses-owned Judge, Wilkerson delayed the action for another week.

Comradely greetings.
DAN POLLIN.
2659 Walton Street, Chicago, Ill.
April 28, 1927.

Canadian Legion Like American Legion.
Editor, Daily Worker:

I read The DAILY WORKER very closely as regards opinions of the Americans Legion in getting two teachers fired from joba. It seems as thought they believe in Empey's policy, "treat 'em rough" and that our country le not always wrong. Our Canadian Legion is not always right and nses very poor judgment in allowing one of the members to have too many privileges. Some of the Canteeners among the returned soldiers here had protested about the Canteen not being open for certain day over the National League. It was simply the anniversary of the formation of the league and was satisfactorily explained.

I wish we could send some Canadian Legionnaires with the American Legion to Paris so that all the drunkards could drink themselves to death.

Yours for emancipation,
THOMAS ASHTON.
Alberta, April 19th.

Don't Be Passive.

In "Evolution in the Light of Modern Knowledge," Geological section, professor William W. Watts, says:

"The development of armour has throughout geological history been a constant temptation and one highly dangerous to those that have taken this 'primrose path.' A few examples may be given; the heavily plated fishes of the Devonian Period, the development of granules, scales and spines by the dinosaurs, followed by groups more nearly plate, encased, and spired; the occurrence of horned, armoured, and plated forms in some of the Tertiary mammals . . . In the majority of cases this method of passive resistance has been resorted to, tho form adopting it have gone under in competition with those which have developed weapons of attack, teeth and claws, necessarily accompanied by activity, speed and movement, and attack."

I was struck with the wonderful neatness of this passage as applied to the pacifist of our day. Further comment seems to be superfluous.

(Emphasis mine.)
Los Angeles.

Brooklyn Bag Makers Also.

BE IT RESOLVED that we, the membership of the Paper Plate and Bag Makers Union, Local 107 in meeting assembled, declare our deep-rooted conviction that Sacco and Vanzetti are guiltless of the crime charged against them and that their execution would constitute the most unjustified, cold-blooded and brutal case of judicial murder on record, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that we demand a new and immediate trial and the freedom of Sacco and Vanzetti, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that we urge a National Conference in order to help free Sacco and Vanzetti, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED that copies of this resolution be sent to the Governor of the State of Massachusetts and to the press.

M. Gardon, Secy.

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

NAVAL DISARMAMENT CONFERENCE
LUNCH
LUNCH
LUNCH

Organized Labor—Trade Union Activities

News and Comment; Education, Labor and Government; Trade Union Politics

Coast Political Body Wants Joint Workers Campaign

(By Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 2—Last Monday night, the Trade Union Political Conference was organized as a permanent body pledged to work for "Independent Political Action for Labor."

J. L. Weber, of the Painters District Council, was elected as chairman; J. S. Simmons, National Organiser of the United Brotherhood of Optical Workers, was elected secretary; Edward Russell, Machinists Local 311, was elected Vice-Chairman; and Wm. Schneiderman, Office Employes Local 15,251, is treasurer.

Sam Globerman, candidate for Board of Education, reported that the committee who had called the conference had received endorsements for his candidacy from 11 local unions, 4 district councils, and the Central Labor Council.

For Joint Campaign.

The plan of the Political Conference is to approach any trade union candidates who survive the May 3rd primaries, and ask them to run jointly on a Labor platform in the June 6th elections. Following this, the conference will approach all unions who had been affiliated with the former Labor Party, to commit themselves to independent political action and enlarge the conference with delegates.

To Follow Suit.

The next step would be a general appeal to all local unions and district councils in the city to follow suit. It is pointed out that, the Painters District Council has already gone on record for a Labor Party, and the Building Trades Council is on record for a United Labor Ticket, which presents a favorable situation for the conference.

So far the conference has endorsed only one candidate, Sam Globerman for Board of Education, and is waiting to see the attitude of other trade union candidates after the primaries as to a Labor platform.

For Labor Party.

To forestall any moves in the direction of a Labor Party, the Central Labor Council may call a political conference of their own, with delegates from each local union, to decide their political policy, instead of thru a Joint Executive Board of the various councils as at present.

Altho such a move is favored by some of the officials, they fear that it may repeat the events of 1923, when such a political committee of Labor was turned into the Los Angeles Labor Party, new defunct.

The next meeting of the Trade Union Political Conference will be held May 11th.

Injunction Doesn't Hurt.

NEWARK, N. J. (FP).—Business Agent Shinns of Steam and Operating Engineers, Local 450, has been served lately with several writs of injunction but they do not slow him up. Four hundred and fifty members were taken into his local at the last meeting.

A New Pamphlet

THE THREAT TO THE LABOR MOVEMENT

The Conspiracy Against the Trade Unions

By WM. F. DUNNE

15 cents

Further Witnesses "Assault Charge" Inspired by Rights

Declaring that he had been "fooled" by International officials who promised him a job and persuaded him to cause the arrest of I. Winick, M. Bjarni, and M. Kovalic, workers loyal to the Joint Board, on the charge of "threatening to attack" Herman Packman today withdrew his charges against the men. They were dismissed by Magistrate Gottlieb in Jefferson Market Court today.

The charge of "threatening to assault" is one of the favorite forms of frame-up used by the right wing against innocent workers. Oscar Miloff, a loyal Joint Board adherent, is now serving a sentence of six months in the work house on charges of having "threatened to attack" Solomon Wiener, who is himself charged with attacking and severely wounding two furriers on April 5.

Used By Right Wing.

When young Packman noticed three men walking in the same block with him, and mentioned it to International officials they advised him to make the same charge against them, and offered to find him a job if he would do so, he declared today. "They just fooled me. I didn't intend to send workers to prison, and now that I know what they were trying to get me to do, I have withdrawn all the charges so that the men can be freed," he said. He also declared that he was "not in the newspapers had reported, for I did not take the job the right wing promised me, and have never been scabbing."

Threat By Winick.

I. Schwartz, one of the men freed by Packman's declaration, declared at the time of his arrest that I. Winick, a vice-president of the International, had threatened "to put you in jail all right," and had followed him to the 30th street police station after his arrest. Kovalis and Djarus were said to have been marked by Winick for arrest, also. The three men were going to lunch at the time that Packman thought he was "being followed."

Kenosha City Council Decides to Fine All "Disloyal" to Govt.

(By Worker Correspondent)

KENOSHA, Wis., May 2.—Besides the numerous issues worked out by the City Council of Kenosha, such as the paving of streets, the issuing of permits to hackmen under the game of the right to sell or manufacture non-intoxicating liquors containing alcohol, (until the police catch them), and the awarding of contracts to contractors for the construction of various projects, the City Council at a recent meeting has passed an ordinance in which they have made provisions for "the peace of the community."

The second half of Section One of an ordinance punishing "offenses against public order and morals," and "punishing disloyalty," reads: Any person who shall be guilty of any remarks disloyal to the government or tending to excite sympathy or aid for the government edemies at war or indicate any desire to assist in any way the government enemies of war, or indicating a desire or intention to hinder the government in the prosecution of the war in such a way as to give aid or comfort to the enemy, but being less in degree than treason as mentioned in the Constitution of the State of Wisconsin, and the Constitution of the United States shall forfeit a penalty of not less than twenty-five dollars, and not more than One hundred dollars, and in default in the payment thereof, together with the cost of prosecution, shall be imprisoned in the common jail of Kenosha County for a period of not less than ten days, nor more than six months."

This provision is made, say the Councellors at an appropriate time, as it is difficult to tell just what the outcome of the entanglements of United States in China, Nicaragua, and Mexico will be.

Payroll Padding in The National Guard

CLEVELAND, May 2.—A scandal that may develop national proportions is being uncovered in the national guard of this city. It has been found that ten officers have engaged in this profitable work and they have been arrested. Washington is investigating and it is believed that the scandal will reveal that similar work has been done elsewhere.

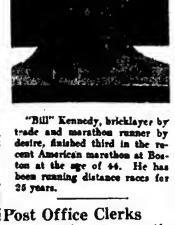
The method employed has been to register men not in the guard, and to draw for them. Probably public grafting which is carried on by all "respectable" people, has infected men in the guard, who are doing likewise.

Newark Carpenters Gain.

NEWARK, N. J. (FP).Carpenters of Newark and other Essex county towns go on a $12 a day scale July 1. $11.20 was formerly paid. Electricians are demanding an increase from $12 to $14.

Left Wing Needle Trades in Chi. to Publish New Paper

While reactionary labor bureaucrats generally are organizing their forces upon a national scale the fight against all progressive unionism and especially that section expressed by the Trade Union Educational League and the Workers (Communist) Party, the left wing and progressives are also extending and developing their forces. The DAILY WORKER welcomes the announcement which we print in full below of the launching of a new local left wing paper by the Chicago Needle Trades Section of the TUEL and urges all militants in the Chicago district to give full support to this paper.



The Chicago Needle Trades Section of the Trade Union Educational League announces the publication of the Chicago Needle Worker—a monthly paper of eight pages. The first issue of the Chicago Needle Worker will appear June 1st, 1927.

The appearance of the Chicago Needle Worker on June 1st in the needle market will be the realization of the dream of the progressive and left wing workers who are either directly affiliated with or work in united front campaigns with the Chicago Needle Trades Section of the TUEL.

While the Chicago Needle Worker will be the voice of the organized left wing of the Chicago needle workers its columns will be wide open to all progressive and militant workers in the trade. The committee in charge is composed of workers from all trades in the Chicago needle industry. The committee urges and requests all progressive workers to send in articles and stories of their shops and unions. The committee will take every precaution in not publishing the names of the writers if so requested.

The subscription and sustaining fund campaign is now under way. Many workers have already subscribed and contributed to the Chicago Needle Worker.

The subscription price is 50c per year. Send all subscriptions, contributions and articles to the Chicago Needle Worker, 106 N. La Salle St., Room 37, Chicago, Ill.

"Bill" Kennedy, bricklayer by trade and marathon runner by desire, finished third in the recent American marathon at Boston at the age of 44. He has been running distance races for 26 years.

Post Office Clerks Advertize Convention

WASHINGTON, (FP). — Because the Indianapolis local of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks sent out a postcard 24 by 36 inches—the legal limit in size, and bearing $1 in stamps—to advertise the coming of their national convention to Indianapolis on Sept. 5-9, that convention will be one of the most-widely press-agented affairs ever held in the United States by organized labor.

The big postcards were addressed to various locals in the larger cities, and when received were photographed, usually in the presence of the city postmaster and a local committee of the union. These photos were printed in papers from coast to coast, some of them in Sunday rotogravures.

In preparation for the convention, the Postoffice Clerk's Organization is now completing a membership drive which has brought the total enrollment to the highest point ever reached—about 41,000. Recently the national office in Washington issued Local Charter 1,500, that number being the total, thus far, of local branches in offices of the first and second class.

Strike In Jersey Beach Towns.

ASBURY PARK, N. J. (FP).—A general strike by the Monmouth county building trades council tied up hundreds of thousands of dollars of construction in Asbury Park, Bradley Beach and other neighboring shore communities. The strike was called in support of the bed-carriers and cement finishers whose demands for an increase from $7 to $8 a day were refused.

$17 a Week, 12 Hour Day in Scab Textile Mill in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 2. — In Cleveland there is a textile mill employing over 2,000 workers who have been admittedly doubling on Passaic for the last several months, viz. the Cleveland Worsted Mills. This place is notorious in Cleveland as a slave pen, and the conditions there are rotten.

In the rooms where machine work is done, in the different buildings of the plant, light is very poor. The machine work is hard, and the workers leave the plant completely knocked out. In most cases workers eat in the work-rooms during the half-hour, for the company cafeteria is some distance away, and to travel there and back is too much waste of precious rest-time.

12-Hour Day.

They work the women to the limit—nine hours a day, but for the men there are 10, 11, 12-hour shifts, and one worker stated that on one Saturday they were forced to remain for 15 hours, standing at machines. The wages run on an average of $17 for all—that is, during steady work periods. However, many workers—these are young girls and old women especially—get two dollars a day. Some kinds of machine work, and labor, carting, etc. get all of 30 and 35 cents an hour. For the last year there has been no steady work. We have worked four or five days a week, sometimes ¾ or 1 day a week, and in many cases laid off for 7 to 12 days at a time. Figure for yourself the amount of wages drawn in the last year, by the individual workers, and by the whole plant.

The cafeteria is a prize one. The first day I went in, and reached up to the top of a pile of trays to take one, I saw a great roach sauntering up the pile. Since then I've heard that some were even found in the food. The food is rotten—meat tough as the devil, coffee like mud, with almost no sugar, sloppy, cheap deserts, and bread without butter. Of course, the unspoken apology for all this is that the Cleveland Worsted Mills Co. is losing money. One of the reasons is that the vice-president draws $100,000 per. Maybe if the workers would realize that this is a problem, not alone for the little stockholders, but for the workers of the mill, something else would happen.

Last week there were distributed at the gate some little shop papers, issued by the Young Workers Communist League of Cleveland, which dealt with shop conditions, with the possibilities of war, and called upon the workers in the textile mills to organise. The leaflets certainly created a stir. The workers were delighted with them, for every word in them was true, and nothing like them had ever been seen before. Even the foreman got very excited, and branded them, along with some announcements for hands off China—May Day celebration, as damned Bolshevistic stuff. Every one of the workers is hoping that more of these little papers will soon appear, for they have already brought home to the workers many lessons, the biggest and most important one of which is that of organization.

Cleveland Builders Fail to Unite For Parley With Bosses

CLEVELAND, May 2.—The agreements of some of the building trades unions with the contractors expired March 1, others on May 1.

Each union has been entering into separate negotiations with the employers, but few have settled. The plumbers settled on the basis of the "yellow dog" contract, but the international rejected the agreement. According to the agreement that was adopted by the local union, union plumbers would be compelled to work with non-union men of any other trade that the employer saw fit to put on the job.

Carpenters are facing the same issue, since the contractors are stubborn on this point. The men are demanding an increase of wages, but the breaking point is the "yellow dog" contract.

Nine trades are still waiting for settlement, and all of them will not settle till the carpenters have come to an agreement with the contractors.

It is reported that the banks are not granting credit to the contractors, and are determined to continue this position until the agreements are closed.

WORKERS! PROTEST THE DEATH OF SACCO AND VANZETTI!

SEAMEN ENTER INDICTIES FOR LACK OF UNION

Crew Starved, Robbed At Master's Whim

The stiff sentences meted out to seamen before the courts for violation of the navigation laws for supposedly "mutinous" conduct, and the refusal of the judges and the courts, in nearly every case, to accept the following experiences of a trip to San Pedro, Cal.

I signed on the Haiti tanker of the Atlantic Refining Co., of Philadelphia on December the eleventh. After we had been out some time and were already within two days of San Pedro, the musty flour was found to be full of insects and the margarine too rancid for further consumption. When the attention of the shipper was turned to the green and rotten conditions of the supplies, by the steward he made an excuse that the food was good enough without his knowledge or supervision.

Despite this, no fresh supply or provisions was taken on in San Pedro, before we left with oil for Mentanzas, Cuba. From January 10 to 19 there was no bread or butter or any substitute served aboard the ship. The crew also soon discovered the fact that there were no sea biscuits in the life boats.

Play Off Races.

When the crew complained to the captain again, he brusklly answered them that it was not his fault that the company did not supply enough food. He told the men that he could not make the food at sea and that they would have to damned well do without it.

He also blamed the steward's inefficiency for the discomforts which the men were suffering. These stewards were Filipinos and the crew was a bone-headed Yankee bunch. The captain knew this and he took advantage of the resultant feud between the Yanks and Filipinos to cover the rumblings and protest of the crew as a whole. This feud lasted for a few days and then died down.

When we arrived in the Port of Mentanzas there was unity among the crew once more. We asked the captain that he take on stores immediately upon our arrival there. He refused this in direct contradiction to his attitude which until now had been that the company and not he was responsible for the food. He got all excited and angry, telling us that our only recourse was to sign off the boat after she got north of Hatteras.

Now he started to get real sneaky in his tactics, he blamed the entire trouble of the crew while coming over on the Filipinos and reversed the stunt the Filipinos and reversed the stunt by playing the same kind of dirt on the Americans.

Calls On Soldiers.

The crew happened to have a few hot headed southerners in its make up and these they their ignorance fell for the pretense of the captain and started a fight with the Filipinos. The upshot of the whole mess, I hear was that the Filipino steward stabbed an American sailor, not seriously.

The captain by this time had gone down to the police and had made a charge against the crew on the basis of rioting and mutiny.

The police with a contingent of soldiery came aboard. The captain then formally ordered the arrest of the crew including the stewards. The arrested men were taken to the jail.

The rest of the crew who had been taken aback by the fighting then demanded of the captain one half of their pay to which they were legally entitled in order that they might go ashore and see the American consul and complain of the intolerable conditions in which they had to work.

The captain refused telling them to go wherever they pleased so they went to the consul despite this and complained about the food and treatment.

The consul promised to send new provisions and food aboard, this was never done however.

Men Are Released.

The next day the men that had been arrested were tried in court. It was a typical kangaroo procedure. All the material witnesses in favor of the defense were jumped and the only members of the crew that were allowed to testify were the ship's officers, most of whom backed up the captain.

The consul however ordered all hands back on ship proving that the men were justified and not the captain, since he had prejudiced the crew against one another in brief to cover the deficiencies of the company.

Well all didn't flow so smoothly until we got to Philly. But a distinct point in favor of the men was the fact that they no longer quarrelled between themselves.

Balls Go Aboard.

When the ship arrived in port, the gangway was lowered, and no sooner did this happen than six uniformed bulls came aboard.

The captain had wired ahead preparing the company officials for trouble and they were ready with the worthy protectors of safety and humanity—the police. Then three plain clothes bulls, two immigration officers and fourteen company officials also came on board. They all proceeded to the pay-off table and sat down in an inquisitional circle around it.

Then the deputy commissioner proceeded to pay the men off one at a time. When they asked that they be given the privilege of paying off at once and that they be allowed to voice their complaints collectively they were refused.

The captain then imposed fines for disipline and took off the cost of police rides for himself and his officers from the pay of the men.

He also swore that the ship had been fully equipped with provisions all the time. He said that as we then left the port he had one of their regular inspections of it.

The chief mate, the chief engineer, and the first assistant backed him up in these falsehoods.

Despite the division caused by the company in separating the galleys of the men, each man demanded immediate penalties as per maritime law because and for substance while in Mentalnas. They also demanded discharging.

Reshed Two Days' Pay.

They were logged two days for pay and had various fines and bad records of character imposed upon them. This logging was done in spite of the legal right of the men not to work while in port unless commanded to do so by the captain, who had never done anything of the kind either in San Pedro or in Mentanzas.

No Recourse Left.

The men protested this before the chief commissioner, but as yet no action has been forthcoming.

This story is indicative of the evils to the men caused by the capitalist shipping and transport companies. If the men were organized into a strong seaman's union that could enable them to stick together such incidents would, never come to pass. In fact, upon the failure of a ship's complying with the elementary rights of the workers that man her she could be tied up in port by a general strike of the men who could then refuse to move her until such union conditions as were demanded would be complied with by the company.

Only thru the strong organization of the seamen into a single union able to fight for and gain the basic demands of the men, will they ever see any justice either thru the capitalist courts or in any other wise.

Will the Boys Ever Learn?

MILWAUKEE, Wisc., May 1.—An ex-soldier, slightly disabled, applied for work at the A. O. Smith Corporation.

They told him they couldn't use him.

He said, "You know I fought for my country in the World War."

The manager said, "Maybe you did fight for your country, but the A. O. Smith corporation doesn't need any fighters now."

A Tag Day in Detroit.

The Workers of Detroit have organised a conference for defense. At their first meeting it was decided to have a Tag Day to be held on May 1st, and May 8th.

Violin and Viola Lessons

Given by expert teacher. For reasonable rates, write to JOHN WEINROTH

2186 LARCHWOOD AVENUE, Phone Girard 7852, Philadelphia, Pa.

New York's Water Front

News and Views of the Biggest World Port

Red CARTOONS

1926

The first volume of proletarian drawings sold into thousands of copies—and is still selling. The large sale has enabled us to offer it now at the special price of

50 CENTS

1927

The second volume of RED CARTOONS is ready. Those who have enjoyed the first should fail to get this one. If you wish to make a gift of this joyous book we will mail it for you.

$1.00 POSTPAID

THE DAILY WORKER PUB. CO., 33 FIRST ST., N. Y.

strike a blow for labor subscribe to THE DAILY WORKER

The National Labor Daily

Name_____

Address_____

City_____ State_____

Subscription rates: one year—six mo.—three mo.

Outside New York ——— $6.00 ——— $3.50 ——— $2.00

In New York ——— 8.00 ——— 4.50 ——— 2.50

Make cash, check or money order with subscription and mail to DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York City. A copy of RED CARTOONS of 1927 free with each annual subscription.

Trade Unions Are Weak Because of Workers Who Remain on the Outside

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

ABOARD, Aboard the United States Liner, President Roosevelt, Tuesday, April 23 (By Mail from Cherbourg, France).—My cabin steward shakes his head at the mention of trade unionism aboard ship. It is impossible to get the men together, he says. When they have a grievance "somebody always gets something out of it," meaning that favored places are reserved for the few, while the many continue to suffer the same as ever. This is his viewpoint.

• • •

To be sure, the conditions might be better, he admits. The food is good, but the quarters are so cramped that the men are compelled to stand up while eating. The sleeping quarters are also crowded.

Similar conditions are known to exist on the ships of the French Line, the Royal Dutch Line, the Holland-American Line, the Panama Pacific Line, the Munson Line, the Clyde Line, the Mallory Line, the Ward Line, the Red D Line, the Lamport & Holt Line, the Booth Line, the Lloyd Royal Belge Line, the Canadian Pacific Line, the Canadian National Line, the Furness Line, the Cunard Line, the White Star Line, the Red Star Line, the Atlantic Transport Line, the Leyland Line, the Anchor Line, the Anchor-Donaldson Line, the Cunard-Anchor Line, the Fabre Line, the Italian Line, the Greek Line, the Polish Line, the Scandinavian-American Line, the Swedish-American Line, the Norwegian-American Line, the Danish-American Line, the Finnish-American Line, the Russian-American Line, the Japanese-American Line, the Chinese-American Line, the Filipino-American Line, the Mexican-American Line, the Cuban-American Line, the Haitian-American Line, the Dominican-American Line, the Puerto Rican-American Line, the Virgin Islands-American Line, the Panama-American Line, the Costa Rican-American Line, the Nicaraguan-American Line, the Honduran-American Line, the Guatemalan-American Line, the Salvadoran-American Line, the Belizean-American Line, the British Honduran-American Line, the Jamaican-American Line, the Trinidadian-American Line, the Barbadian-American Line, the Grenadian-American Line, the St. Lucian-American Line, the St. Vincentian-American Line, the Grenadinian-American Line, the Antiguan-American Line, the Montserratian-American Line, the Guadeloupian-American Line, the Martinican-American Line, the Dominican-American Line, the Haitian-American Line, the Cuban

Organized Labor—Trade Union Activities

News and Comment
Labor Education
Labor and Government
Trade Union Politics

Coast Political Body Wants Joint Workers Campaign

(By Worker Correspondent)

LOS ANGELES, Calif., May 2.—Last Monday night, the Trade Union Political Conference was organized as a permanent body pledged to work for "Independent Political Action for Labor."

J. L. Weber, of the Painters District Council, was elected as chairman; J. S. Simmons, National Organizer of the United Brotherhood of Optical Workers, was elected secretary; Edward Russell, Machinists Local 311, was elected Vice-Chairman; and Wm. Schneiderman, Office Employes Local 15,251, is treasurer.

Sam Globerman, candidate for Board of Education, reported that the committee who had called the conference had received endorsements for his candidacy from 11 local unions, 6 district councils, and the Central Labor Council.

For Joint Campaign.

The plan of the Political Conference is to approach any trade union candidates who survive the May 3rd primaries, and ask them to run jointly on a Labor platform in the June 6th elections. Following this, the conference will approach all unions who had been affiliated with the former Labor Party, to commit themselves to independent political action and enlarge the conference with delegates.

To Follow Suit.

The next step would be a general appeal to all local unions and district councils in the city to follow suit. It is pointed out that the Painters District Council has already gone on record for a Labor Party, and the Building Trades Council is on record for a United Labor Ticket, which presents a favorable situation for the conference.

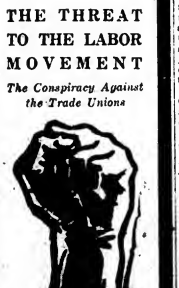
So far the conference has endorsed only one candidate, Sam Globerman for Board of Education, and is waiting to see the attitude of other trade union candidates after the primaries as to a Labor platform.

For Labor Party.

To forestall any moves in the direction of a Labor Party, the Central Labor Council may call a political conference of their own, with delegates from each local union, to decide their political policy. Instead of thru a Joint Executive Board of the various councils as at present.

Altho such a move is favored by some of the officials, they fear that it may repeat the events of 1923, when such a political committee of Labor was turned into the Los Angeles Labor Party, now defunct.

The next meeting of the Trade Union Political Conference will be held May 11th.



Injunction Doesn't Hurt.

NEWARK, N. J. (FP).—Business Agent Shinns of Steam and Operating Engineers, Local 450, has been served lately with several writs of injunction but they do not slow him up. Four hundred and fifty members were taken into his local at the last meeting.

A New Pamphlet

THE THREAT TO THE LABOR MOVEMENT

The Conspiracy Against the Trade Unions

By

WM. F. DUNNE

15 cents

Furrier Withdraws "Assault Charge" Inspired by Rights

Declaring that he had been "fooled" by International adherents who promised him a job and money if he'd cause the arrest of I. Schwartz, M. Bjarus, and M. Kovalis, furriers loyal to the Joint Board, on the charge of "threatening to assault," Herman Packman today withdrew his charges against the men. They were dismissed by Magistrate Gottlieb in Jefferson Market Court today.

The case charging "threatening to assault" is one of the favorite forms of frame-up used by the right wing against innocent workers. Oscar Miseroff, a loyal Joint Board adherent, is now serving a sentence of six months in the work house on charges of having "threatened to attack" Solomon Wiener, who is himself charged with attacking and severely wounding two furriers on April 5.

Used By Right Wing.

When young Packman walked three men walking in the same block with him, and mentioned it to International officials they advised him to make the same charges against them, and offered to find him a job if he would do so, he declared today. "They just fooled me. I didn't intend to send workers to prison, and now that I know what they were trying to get me to do, I have withdrawn all the charges so that the men can be freed," he said. He also declared that he was "not a scab as the newspapers had reported, for I did not take the job the right wing promised me, and have never been scabbing."

Threat By Winnick.

I. Schwartz, one of the men freed by Packman's declaration, declared at the time of his arrest that I. Winnick, a vice-president of the International, had threatened "to put you in jail all right," and had followed him to the 30th street police station after his arrest. Bjarus and Djarus were said to have been marked by Winnick for arrest, also. The three men were going to lunch at the time that Packman thought he was "being followed."

Left Wing Needle Trades in Chi. to Publish New Paper

While reactionary labor bureaucrats generally are organizing their forces upon a national scale the fight against the progressive unionism and especially that section expressed by the Trade Union Educational League and the Workers (Communist) Party, the left wing and progressives are also extending and developing their forces. The DAILY WORKER welcomes the announcement which we print in full below of the launching of a new local left wing paper by the Chicago Needle Trades Section of the TUEL and urges all militants in the Chicago district to give full support to this paper.

The Chicago Needle Trades Section of the Trade Union Educational League announces the publication of the Chicago Needle Worker—a monthly paper of eight pages. The first issue of the Chicago Needle Worker will appear June 1st, 1927.

The appearance of the Chicago Needle Worker on June 1st in the needle market will be the realization of the dream of the progressive and left wing workers who are either directly affiliated with or work in united front campaigns with the Chicago Needle Trades Section of the TUEL.

While the Chicago Needle Worker will be the voice of the organized left wing of the Chicago needle workers its columns will be wide open to all progressive and militant workers in the trade. The committee in charge is composed of workers in all trades in the Chicago needle industry. The committee urges and requests all progressive workers to send in articles and stories of their struggles and unions. The committee will take every precaution in not publishing the names of the writers if so requested.

The subscription and sustaining fund campaign is now under way. Many workers have already subscribed and contributed to the Chicago Needle Worker.

The subscription price is 50c per year. Send all subscriptions, contributions and articles to the Chicago Needle Worker, 106 N. La Salle St., Room 37, Chicago, Ill.

Kenosha City Council Decides to Fine All "Disloyal" to Govt.

(By Worker Correspondent)

KENOSHA, Wis., May 2.—Besides the numerous lashes worked out by the City Council of Kenosha, such as the paying of a fee for the issuing of permits to bootleggers under the game of the right to sell or manufacture non-intoxicating liquors containing alcohol, (until the police catch them), and the awarding of contracts to contractors for the construction of various projects, the City Council at a recent meeting has passed an ordinance in which they have made provisions for "the peace of the community."

The second half of Section One of an ordinance punishing "offenses against public order and morals," and "punishing disloyalty," reads: Any person who shall be guilty of any remarks disloyal to the government or tending to excite sympathy or aid for the government ofemies at war or indicate any desire to assist in any way the government enemies of war, or indicating a desire or intention to hinder the government in the prosecution of the war in such a way as to give aid or comfort to the enemy, but being less in degree than treason as mentioned in the Constitution of the State of Wisconsin, and the Constitution of the United States shall forfeit a penalty of not less than twenty-five dollars, and not more than One hundred dollars, and in default in the payment thereof, together with the cost of prosecution, shall be imprisoned in the common jail of Kenosha County for a period of not less than ten days, nor more than six months."

This provision is made, say the Councellors at an appropriate time, as it is difficult to tell just what the outcome of the entanglements of United States in China, Nicaragua, and Mexico will be.

Payroll Padding in The National Guard

CLEVELAND, May 2.—A scandal that may develop national proportions is being uncovered in the national guard of this city. It has been found that ten officers have engaged in this profitable work and they have been arrested. Washington is investigating and it is believed that the scandal will reveal that similar work has been done elsewhere.

The method employed has been to register men not in the guard, and to draw for them. Probably public grafting which is carried on by all "respectable" people, has infected men in the guard, who are doing likewise.

Newark Carpenters Gain.

NEWARK, N. J. (FP).Carpenters of Newark and other Essex county towns go on a $12 a day scale July 1. $11.20 was formerly paid. Electricians are demanding an increase from $12 to $14.

"Bill" Kennedy, bricklayer by trade and marathon runner by desire, finished third in the recent American marathon at Boston at the age of 44. He has been running distance races for 28 years.

Post Office Clerks Advertize Convention

WASHINGTON, (FP). — Because the Indianapolis local of the National Federation of Postoffice Clerks sent out a postcard 24 by 36 inches—the legal limit in size, and bearing $1 in stamps—to advertise the coming of their national convention to Indianapolis on Sept. 5-9, that convention will be one of the most widely press-agented affairs ever held in the United States by organized labor.

The big postcards were addressed to various locals in the larger cities, and when received were photographed, usually in the presence of the city postmaster and a local committee of the union. These photos were printed in papers from coast to coast, some of them in Sunday rotogravures.

In preparation for the convention, the Postoffice Clerk's Organization is now completing a membership drive which has brought the total enrollment to the highest point ever reached—about 41,000. Recently the national office in Washington issued Local Charter 1,300, that number being the total, thus far, of local branches in offices of the first and second class.

Strike In Jersey Beach Towns.

ASBURY PARK, N. J. (FP).—A general strike by the Monmouth county building trades council tied up hundreds of thousands of dollars of construction in Asbury Park, Bradley Beach and other neighboring shore communities. The strike was called in support of the hod-carriers and cement finishers whose demands for an increase from $7 to $8 a day were refused.

$17 a Week, 12 Hour Day in Scab Textile Mill in Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Ohio, May 2. — In Cleveland there is a textile mill employing over 2,000 workers who have been admittedly doubling on Passaic for the last several months, viz. the Cleveland Worsted Mills. This place is notorious in Cleveland as a slave pen, and the conditions there are rotten.

In the rooms where machine work is done, in the different buildings of this plant, the light is very poor. The machine work is hard, and the workers leave the plant completely knocked out. In most cases workers eat in the work-rooms during the lunch half-hour, for the company cafeteria is some-distance away, and to travel there and back is too much waste of precious rest-time.

12-Hour Day.

They work the women to the limit —nine hours a day, but for the men there are 10, 11, 12-hour shifts, and one worker stated that on one Saturday they were forced to remain for 15 hours, standing at machines. The wages run on an average of $17 for all—that is, during steady work periods. However, many workers—these are young girls and old women especially—get two dollars a day. Some kinds of machine work, and labor, carting, etc. get all of 30 and 35 cents an hour. For the last year there has been no steady work. We have worked four or five days a week, sometimes ½ or 1 day a week, and in many cases laid off for 7 to 12 days at a time. Figure for yourself the amount of wages drawn in the last year, by the individual workers, and by the whole plant.

The cafeteria is a prize one. The first day I went in, and reached up to the top of a pile of trays to take one, I saw a great roach sauntering up the pile. Since then I've heard that some were even found in the food. The food is rotten—meat tough as the devil, coffee like mud, with almost no sugar, sloppy, cheap deserts, and bread without butter. Of course, the unspoken apology for all this is that the Cleveland Worsted Mills Co. is losing money. One of the reasons is that the vice-president draws $100,000 per. Maybe if the workers would realize that this is a problem, not alone for the little stockholders, but for the workers of the mill, something else would happen.

Last week there were distributed at the gate some little shop papers, issued by the Young Workers Communist League of Cleveland, which dealt with shop conditions, with the possibilities of war, and called upon the workers in the textile mills to organize. The leaflets certainly created a stir. The workers were delighted with them, for every word in them was true, and nothing like them had ever been seen before. Even the foreman got very excited, and branded them, along with some announcements for bands off China—May Day celebration, as damned Bolsheviatic stuff. Every one of the workers is hoping that more of these little papers will soon appear, for they have already brought home to the workers many lessons, the biggest and most important one of which is that of organization.

Cleveland Builders Fail to Unite For Parley With Bosses

CLEVELAND, May 2.—The agreements of some of the building trades unions with the contractors expired on March 1, others on May 1.

Each union has been entering into separate negotiations with the employers, but few have settled. The plumbers settled on the basis of the "yellow dog" contract, but the international rejected the agreement. According to the agreement that was adopted by the local union, union plumbers would be compelled to work with non-union men of any other trade that the employer saw fit to put on the job.

Carpenters are facing the same issue, since the contractors are stubborn on this point. The men are demanding an increase of wages, but the breaking point is the "yellow dog" contract.

Nine trades are still waiting for settlement, and all of them will not settle till the carpenters have come to an agreement with the contractors.

It is reported that the banks are not granting credit to the contractors, and are determined to continue this position until the agreements are closed.

WORKERS! PROTEST THE DEATH OF SACCO AND VANZETTI!

Seized Keeper Indignities For Lack of Union

Crew Starved, Robbed At Master's Whim

The stiff discipline that the unorganized seamen have was continued last night when Captain Peters and the courts, as usually lacked from the following experience of a trip to San Pedro, Cal.

Ignored on the high seas of the Atlantic Refining Co., of Philadelphia on December the eleventh. After we had been out some time and were already within two days of San Pedro, the musty flour was found to be full of insects and the margarine too rancid for further consumption. When the attention of the shipper was turned to the green and rotten conditions of the supplies, by the steward he made no excuse that the food was put on without his knowledge or supervision.

Despite this, no fresh supply of provisions was taken on in San Pedro, before we left with oil for Mentanas, Cuba. From January 10 to 19 there was no bread or butter or any substitute served aboard the ship. The crew also soon discovered the fact that there were no sea biscuits in the life boats.

Play Off Races.

When the crew complained to the captain again, he brusk1y answered them that it was not his fault that the company did not supply enough food. He told the men that he could not make the food at sea and that they would have to damned well do without it.

He also blamed the steward's inefficiency for the discomforts which the men were suffering. These stewards were Filipinos and the crew was a bone-headed Yankee bunch. The captain knew this and he took advantage of the resultant feud between the Yanks and Filipinos to cover the rumblings and protest of the crew as a whole. This feud lasted for a few days and then died down.

When we arrived in the Port of Mentansas there was unity among the crew once more. We asked the captain that he take on stores immediately upon our arrival there. He refused this in direct contradiction to his attitude which until now had been that the company and not he was responsible for the food. He got all excited and angry, telling us that our only recourse was to sign off the boat after she got north of Hatteras.

Now he started to get real sneaky in his tactics, he blamed the entire trouble of the crew while coming over on the Filipinos and reversed the stunt the Filipinos and reversed the stunt by playing the same kind of dirt on the Americans.

Calls On Soldiers.

The crew happened to have a few hot headed southerners in its make up and these thru their ignorance fell for the policies of the captain and started a battle with the Filipinos. The result was a total mess, and was that the Filipino steward stabbed an American sailor, not seriously.

The captain by this time had gone down to the gather and had made a charge against the crew on the basis of rioting and mutiny.

The police with a contingent of soldiers came aboard. The captain then formally ordered the arrest of the crew including the stewards. The arrested men were taken to the jail.

The rest of the crew who had not been taken put up no fighting. Then demanded of the captain one half of their pay to which they were legally entitled in order that they might go ashore and see the American consul and complain of the intolerable conditions in which they had to work.

The captain refused telling them to go wherever they pleased so they went to the consul despite this and complained about the food and treatment.

The consul promised to send new provisions and food aboard, this was never done however.

Men Are Released.

The next day the men that had been arrested were tried in court. It was a typical kangaroo procedure. All the material witnesses in favor of the defense were jumped and the only members of the crew that were allowed to testify were the ship's officers, most of whom backed up the captain.

The consul however ordered all hands back on ship proving that the men were justified and not the captain, since he had prejudiced the crew against one another in order to cover the deficiencies of the company.

Well all didn't flow so smoothly until we got to Philly. But a distinct point in favor of the men was the fact that they no longer querrelled between themselves.

Bulls Go Aboard.

When the ship arrived in port, the gangway was lowered, and no sooner did this happen than six uniformed bulls came aboard.

The captain had wired ahead preparing the company officials for trouble and they were ready with the worthy protectors of safety and humanity—the police. Then three plain clothes bulls, two immigration officers and fourteen company officials also came on board. They all proceeded to the pay-off table and sat down in an inquisitional circle around it.

Then the deputy commissioner proceeded to pay the men off one at a time. When they asked that they be all given the privilege of paying off at once and that they be allowed to voice their complaints collectively they were refused.

The captain then imposed fines for discipline and took off the cost of police rides for himself and his officers from the pay of the men.

He also swore that the ship had been fully equipped with provisions all the time. He said that at no time did the ship run out of their regular supplies, which is not.

The chief mate, the chief engineer, and the first assistant backed him up in these falsehoods.

Despite the division caused by the company in separating the patriots of the men, each man demanded compensations as per maritime law for losses and for subsistence while in Mentafasa. They also demanded logging.

Docked Two Days' Pay.

They were logged two days for pay and had various fines and bad records of character imposed on them. This logging was done in spite of the legal right of the men not to work while in port unless commanded to do so by the captain, who had never done anything of the kind either in San Pedro or in Mentafasa.

No Recourse Left.

The men protested this before the chief commissioner, but as yet no action has been forthcoming.

This story is indicative of the evils to the men caused by the capitalist, shipping and transport companies. If the men were organized into a strong seaman's union that could enable them to stick together such incidents would never come to pass. In fact upon the failure of a ship's complying with the elementary rights of the workers that man her she could be tied up in port by a general strike of the men, who could then refuse to move her until such union conditions as were demanded would be complied with by the company.

Only thru the strong organization of the seamen into a single union able to fight for and gain the basic demands of the men, will they ever see any justice either thru the capitalist courts or in any other wise.

Will the Boys Ever Learn?

MILWAUKEE, Wisc., May 1.—An ex-soldier, slightly disabled, applied for work at the A. O. Smith Corporation.

They told him they couldn't use him.

He said, "You know I fought for my country in the World War."

The manager said, "Maybe you did fight for your country, but the A. O. Smith corporation doesn't need any fighters now."

A Tag Day in Detroit.

The Workers of Detroit have organized a conference for defense. At their first meeting it was decided to have a Tag Day to be held on May 1st, and May 8th.

New York's Water Front

News and Views of the Biggest World Port

Violin and Viola Lessons

Given by expert teacher. For reasonable rates, write to JOHN WEINROTH, 2126 LARCHWOOD AVENUE. Phone Granite 7282, Philadelphia, Pa.

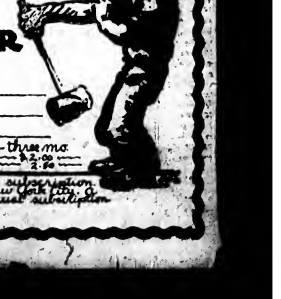
1926

The first volume of proletarian drawings sold into thousands of copies—and is still selling. The large sale has enabled us to offer it now at the special price of

50 CENTS

1927

The second volume of RED CARTOONS is ready. Those who have enjoyed the first should not fail to get this one. If you wish to make a gift of this joyous book we will mail it for you.



$1.00 POSTPAID

THE DAILY WORKER PUB. CO., 33 FIRST ST., N. Y.

strike a blow for labor subscribe to

THE DAILY WORKER

The National Labor Daily

Name _____

Address _____

City _____ State _____

Subscription rates: one year—six mos.—three mos.

Outside New York ..... $8.00 ..... $4.50 ..... $2.50

In New York ..... 6.00 ..... 3.50 ..... 2.00

Make cash, check or money order with subscription and mail to The Daily Worker, 33 First Street, New York City. A copy of RED CARTOONS at 1.00 free with each annual subscription.

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP THE ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION!

THE DAILY WORKER

THE DAILY WORKER PRINTS FOR THE EMANCIPATION OF THE EXPLOITED FOR THE 40-HOUR WEEK FOR A LABOR PARTY

FINAL CITY EDITION

Vol. IV No. 95. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $4.00 per year. NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, MAY 4, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

COOLIDGE QUARRELS WITH BRITISH OVER CHINA

"BIG FOUR" LIFE INSURANCE OFFICIALS RETREAT UNDER CHARGES OF WORKER

Metropolitan Chief Hides Behind Cloak of Silence When Queried on Exposé of Frauds

Past Events of Insurance Expose

On April 11th The DAILY WORKER commenced its expose of the evils of the weekly payment life insurance business. The chief offenders are the "Big Four," i. e., the Metropolitan, the Prudential, the John Hancock and the Colonial Life Insurance Companies.

On April 21st, William F. Dunne, editor of The DAILY WORKER, wired Governor Smith calling his attention to the charges made in the Harrison articles which charged fraud, misuse of "mutual" funds, interlocking directorates and gross overcharging.

On April 27th Governor Smith replied saying that he had instructed Supt. of Insurance Beha to make inquiries into The WORKER charges.

On April 29th Mr. Beha wrote to The DAILY WORKER asking for copies of the articles, although marked copies of the articles had been sent to him since the beginning of the series.

The matter now rests in the hands of Mr. Beha. The indications are that Mr. Beha will "pass the buck" to the Governor by recommending a legislative investigation.

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON

I am informed that reporters who have tried to get the officials of the "Big Four" to comment on Governor Smith's inquiry action were met with the cowardly, "we have nothing to say."

In particular, I am told, that when Robert Lynn Cox, second vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, was approached by a press correspondent he said who asked him if he had any statement to make on the governor's action, replied, "no—no, I have nothing to say."

Won't Answer.

In the face of the specific charges which the WORKER has made about the "Big Four" weekly payment life insurance business in general and about Mr. Cox in particular, Mr. Cox can think of nothing more manly than to take cover in silence.

The following excerpts are taken from charges laid to Mr. Cox or his associated comrade in arms:

"Tha day before the "industrial" life insurance companies were to come up before the insurance investigating committee (Armstrong Insurance Investigation—1905) . . . Assemblyman Robert Lynn Cox, at that time a member of the committee, was instrumental in moving that the committee adjourn to draft its report, "Industrial" insurance was never investigated.

"Shortly afterwards Mr. Cox was appointed manager and general counsel of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents at a salary of $20,000 per year. He is now vice president of the Metropolitan Life with an annual salary of $38,000. This is considerably more than $1,500 he received as assemblyman . . . If he was not corrupted that would make interesting news."

In this series of articles evidence was adduced proving that the "Big Four", i. e., the Metropolitan, Prudential, John Hancock and the Colonial Life Insurance Companies are guilty of misuse of "mutual" funds, that rates are employed which are outrageously high, that the directors of the "Big Four" are also directors in the banks and railroads in whose securities billions of "mutual" funds are invested.

Banker Also Director.

It was further proven that Mr. Albert H. Wiggin, the president of the Chase National Bank, (which always has an average of $20,000,000 in Metropolitan life funds on deposit) is also a director of the "Big Four."

We have shown that "Big Four" officials and executives draw enormously inflated salaries running into hundreds of thousands of dollars per year per man, while on the other hand, the clerical workers employed by this combine are the lowest paid office workers in the c[illegible]

We have charged the "Big Four" with making their policy conditions so harsh and unfair that of all terminated policies only 1⅞ are endowments and only 9% are paid in death claims. We have shown that 75% of all terminations are total loss lapses.

All of these things we have charged—and many more. Yet all that Mr. Cox can do is shake his head and say, "we have nothing to say."

Governor Smith has ordered Supt. of Insurance James A. Beha to make

(Continued on Page Two)

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER [illegible]

Faint Hope for 57 Miners Left In Blasted Mine

EVERETTSVILLE, W. Va., May 3.—Only a faint hope that 57 remaining entombed miners in the Federal No. 8 mine of the New England Fuel and Transportation Co., may have escaped the deadly gas which swept through the mine after the terrific explosion Saturday was revived here today when veteran miners suggested that a group might have taken refuge in an airway about a mile and a half from the mine mouth.

Everettsville was an armed camp today, companies of West Virginia national guards having pitched camp near the mine.

Gas Is Thick.

Gas is so prevalent throughout the mine, despite the efforts of the owners to avert explosions through the use of rock dust, that mine officials fear further blasts momentarily.

Coroner Martin M. Moore, of Monongalia county has impaneled a jury to probe the cause of the blast, but the inquest will be delayed until all bodies have been recovered and the mines had been cleared.

Find More Dead.

Shortly after noon today six bodies were found far back in the main heading. The bodies were not removed from the heading which is about 5,000 feet back from the entrance of the mine.

Rescue crews early today came upon the body of an unidentified man off the main heading. The body was not immediately removed from the mine. The death of Tom Daugherty, a tipple man who succumbed in the Fairmont hospital swelled the toll to twenty-four.

* * *

Second Mine Still Burns.

FAIRMONT, W. Va., May 3.—One of the worst mine fires on record in West Virginia was raging today in the Virginia and Pittsburg Coal and Coke Co., mine at Kinomont near here.

Although 250 men normally are

(Continued on Page Two)

Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die!

Beha Leaves Town To Draft Report Ordered by Smith

Superintendent of Insurance Beha, who was recently ordered by Governor Smith to look into the complaints embodied in the insurance expose articles being published in The DAILY WORKER, left for Richmond, Va., in order to give his undivided attention to the investigation.

A police secretary informed all and sundry that the superintendent will be back in New York on Monday.

Sacco-Vanzetti Editorial In Boston Newspaper Wins the Pulitzer Prize

The editorial in the Boston Herald, October 26, reversing that paper's stand on the Sacco-Vanzetti case, was selected yesterday as the year's outstanding editorial by the Pulitzer Prize Committee.

The Herald, a conservative Boston morning newspaper which had consistently joined the rabid redbaiting against the two Italian workers since their arrest in May, 1920, suffered a change of heart last fall after the pounding of millions of workers on the doors of Dedham jail. The workers' protest arousing intellectuals and jurists to the significance of the case, the Boston Herald tardily swung around to advocacy of a new trial. Usually considered the best newspaper in the city, the Herald's stand created a wide impression.

JOINT BOARD OF FURRIERS SIGNS WITH TRIMMERS

Webster Hall Meeting Ratifies Pact

Enthusiastic approval of the agreement signed by the New York Joint Board of the Furriers' Union with the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association, Inc., was given yesterday afternoon by over 1,500 fur workers, who have been locked out of their shops for refusal to register with the scab union of the International.

The workers gathered in Webster Hall about 1.30 p. m. after holding a great picket demonstration in the fur market during the noon hour. A picket demonstration was also held before work in the morning, and on both occasions thousands of workers joined in this display of solidarity with the Joint Board.

The Webster Hall meeting heard Ben Gold, manager of the Joint Board, explain the new agreement with the trimming association. This differs from the agreement made at the close of the strike with the Associated Fur Manufacturers, only in the fact that it allows 10 hours of overtime per week during the busy season, with time and a half in payment.

Shops Signing Up.

"Not only will this agreement affect the shops of members of the trimming association," Gold told the workers, "but there are already a large number of individual shops who have made application to join with the trimming association and thus avoid being drawn into the internal union fight.

"The officials of the Associated Fur Manufacturers chose to cooperate with Matthew Woll and the other right wing, reactionary A. F. of L. leaders in the attempt to smash the furriers' union. They deliberately plunged the fur shops into turmoil in their efforts to force the workers to register. Those employers who were interested primarily in production and not in union affairs have resented this, and have decided to sign a contract with the Joint Board which will insure peace so long as its terms are obeyed."

All phases of the right wing attack upon the furriers' union were discussed at length by the workers at yesterday's meeting. After some opposition by a few workers, it was decided to elect a committee of 50 to visit the International's Snb-Committee last night and acquaint them with the wishes and demands of the union members.

Smoke Out Officials.

This step was decided upon as the best means of clarifying the present situation in view of the many peace rumors which have been current, and to determine whether or not such talk on the part of certain International officials had any meaning or not.

The Committee of 50 wa delegated to demand that the International officials either issue a call at once for the convention which should have been held this week according to the union's constitution; or that these officers, who are now maintaining their positions illegally shall withdraw at once

(Continued on Page Five)

FLOOD DICTATOR THINKS 172,000 TO DROWN OUT

Main Refuge Camps "For Whites Only"

BATON ROUGE, La., May 3.—With residents evacuating at least fifteen towns and villages in Northeastern Louisiana, former governor John M. Parker, federal relief dictator for the state, stated today that the rising Mississippi waters threatened an area with a population of 172,000 in half a dozen parishes bordering the west bank of the river north of Baton Rouge.

Parker is the "Flood Dictator" appointed by Secretary Hoover after his investigation here, during which the sacrifice of the residents of Lonisiana living below Poydras levee was decided upon.

It is expected that Parker will carry on Hoover's policy of diverting the river flood damage onto the poorer residents, and saving the richer taxpayers at their expense.

Northern Louisiana Flooding.

Flood waters which have been coursing through Arkansas for ten days have passed over the Louisiana boundary, inundating large sections of East Carroll, West Carroll, Catahoula and Morehouse parishes. Concordia parish had been gradually flooding since the opening of the Glasscock break last Saturday. Evacuation orders have been issued for a score of towns in Avoyelles and St. Landry parishes, which are threatened by a break in the Bayou De Glaise levee at Big Bend.

The greatest peace time mobilization of relief forces the state ever has known is functioning today in an effort to avert further disaster.

Militia Patrol.

Fourteen National Guard units are patrolling the levees at threatened points, sending hourly reports of river conditions to general headquarters here. When danger is imminet at any point, militia engineers in the office of Adjutant General L. A. Toombs, joining the staff of Governor Parker, plot the probable course of the overflow waters on contonr maps. From

(Continued on Page Two)

SORMENTI CASE ARGUED BEFORE HIGH OFFICIALS

Whether Enea Sormenti will be condemned to death by the United States government through the expedient of deporting him to Italy will be decided by the board of review of the labor department within 10 days.

The case of the noted Italian editor, who fled Italy to escape death at the hands of Mussolini's fascists, was presented to the board of review by Clarence Darrow, the noted Chicago criminal lawyer, Arthur Garfield Hays of the American Civic Liberties Union and Albert Shorr.

They argued that the department of labor has no right to deport a man to a foreign nation where he is in danger of being killed. Chairman A. E. Cook of the board was told of Sormenti's sufferings in Italy, of Mussolini's numerous attempts to silence him through imprisonment, how he was beaten and left for dead by the blackshirts and how he escaped to America.

Stay of 60 Days Asked.

A stay in the deportation order for 60 days is asked, so that Sormenti in case the order is not revoked, may have an opportunity to make arrangements to go to some other land than Italy where certain death faces him.

The board promised to make a further examination into the case. If its decision is favorable, a precedent will be created of great importance in shielding workers from the furies of anti-labor governments.

The International Labor Defense, through Rose Baron, appealed for workers and all people interested in the fight against fascism to join in the fight to save Sormenti from deportation.

Saturday Union Square Meeting to Hear Truth About Nanking Outrage

Horace Robeson, American missionary who has just returned from China, will be one of the main speakers at the mass protest demonstration for Hands Off China that will be held at Union Square on Saturday at 12 noon.

Robeson, who was present, when Nanking was bombarded and shelled by the battleships of the imperialist powers, will tell the truth about that famous incident.

The "Hands Off China" committee that is issuing the call represents over 85 labor, liberal and anti-imperialist organizations. On its executive committee are:

Harry Ward, professor in Union Theological Seminary.

Timothy Healy, vice-president of the International Brotherhood of Firemen and Oilers.

Louis Budenz, Editor of the Labor Age.

William Pickens, field secretary for the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

Scott Nearing, Lecturer and author of "Dollar Diplomacy."

H. Linson, president of the Chinese Students Club, Columbia University.

Lewis Gannett, Associate Editor of The Nation.

James P. Yard, American missionary, just returned from China.

SACCO CAREFUL IN SCRUTINIZING REVIEW LETTER

Lawyer Presses for His Signature on Document

(Special to The DAILY WORKER)

BOSTON, May 3.—Nicola Sacco is standing adamant against signing any document for a review of his case which implies admittance of guilt. His comrade in Dedham jail, Bartolomeo Vanzetti, is said to have written a letter to Governor Fuller telling of the frame-up and simply asking for a review of the case.

Sacco has conferred several times with William G. Thompson, chief defense counsel, over the possibility of any part of the letter being construed as an admittance that he had any part in the South Braintree payroll murder seven years ago. Petitions for pardon invariably carry the confession of guilt with a plea for mercy, and Sacco on past occasions has fought clear of all such petitions.

Several people who have known Sacco closely are being used by Thompson to persuade him to sign the document which the attorney wants to present to the governor as soon as possible.

Won't Open Files

The Department of Justice will refuse to open its files on the Sacco-Vanzetti case. Attorney General Sargent has informed Senator David I. Walsh of Massachusetts. Walsh informed the defense committee today that his efforts to persuade Sargent that the files should be opened because of the department's activity in assisting in the frame-up were unavailing.

The senator was informed however that the department holds nearly 500 communications protesting against the electrocution of the two Italian workers on Jul· 10.

Baltimore Joins In Sacco Review Appeal

BALTIMORE, May 3 (FP).—Five hundred persons attended a Sacco-Vanzetti labor mass meeting in Baltimore on May Day. Albert Weisbord, organizer of the Passaic textile workers' strike, was the chief speaker. Resolutions were adopted demanding freedom for the two prisoners.

In response to an appeal by V. F. Calverton, of the Hands Off China Conference, more than 60 persons volunteered to picket the British consulate in Friday as a protest against British and other foreign imperialism in China. Resolutions opposing foreign coercion of China, Mexico and Nicaragua were adopted.

CABINET SPLIT ON TORY COOPERATION MacMURRAY SHOUTS FOR ULTIMATUM

Fake Trial for Mme. Borodin and Four Envoys; Communist International Scores Murder

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Report split in cabinet over China; Coolidge, under pressure from financial interests, scores British propaganda.

2.—British plan to send more planes to China.

3.—Mme. Borodin and four Soviet Union diplomatic couriers arrive at Peking for "trial" on trumped-up charges of disseminating propaganda; report Chang's action new attempt on part of imperialist powers to provoke Soviet Union.

4.—Asiatic Petroleum Company resumes business in Changsha; Chen assures American business men that the Nationalist Government at Hankow welcomes foreign trade.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—The split in the cabinet over the Chinese policy is reported to be growing wider and wider.

Although certain die-hard members of the cabinet favor a joint ultimatum on the part of the imperialist powers, and look with favor upon the British proposal for the occupation of the Yangtze Valley and the eventual partition of the whole China, other members of the cabinet favor a more cautious policy.

Kellogg-Hoover Battle.

Observers here point to the revival of the Hoover-Kellogg battle before the Pan-American Congress as one indication of the differences over foreign policy within the cabinet.

The uncertain policy of the administration is also indicated by a statement made by President Coolidge today, advising Americans to regard with suspicion any stories purporting to state the government's attitude toward China that originate outside of Washington. Although President Coolidge mentioned no names, it was obvious that his threat was directed at the British, who have been endeavoring for some weeks to drag the United States into joining them in a stiff ultimatum to the Nationalist government.

Cal Cautious, Not Friendly.

This reversal in the policy of the administration is not interpreted as an indication that Coolidge regards the Nationalist government at Hankow with any greater friendliness than he has before. It has long been suspected that powerful financial interests have been exerting their influence against rash action, and Coolidge's statement is regarded as the proof of their success. The Chinese trade and rivalry with Britain are their reasons.

The British press has been filled for several weeks with acrid criticism of the American government's Chinese policy. British newspapers have carried such headlines as "America Deserts Allies." The British imperialists have expressed in no uncertain terms their chagrin at their failure to drag the United States into an open war against China.

MacMurray Wants War.

Coolidge's statement indicates that Minister John V. A. MacMurray's views differ considerably with the views of a majority of the cabinet. MacMurray and a large portion of the consular service would push the United States into an imperialist war against Nationalist China.

* * *

British to Send Planes.

LONDON, May 3.—Plans for sending a large air force to China were mapped out yesterday at a special meeting of the cabinet, it was learned today. The meeting was attended by Earl Beatty, Sir George Milne, Chief of the Imperial General Staff, and Sir High Trenchard, Chief of the Royal Air Force.

* * *

To "Try" Mme. Borodin.

PEKING, May 3.—Mme. Borodin, wife of the Russian adviser to the Hankow government, who formerly lived in Chicago, arrived here tonight together with four Soviet Russian diplomatic couriers, to face trial on trumped-up charges of disseminating propaganda in China.

Mme. Borodin has been in jail in Tsinan for two months awaiting trial and her attorney has as yet not been permitted to see her.

The trial is regarded as another attempt on the part of the imperialist powers to goad the Soviet Union into a war.

* * *

Foreigners Reopen Business.

(By Nationalist News Agency.)

HANKOW, May 3.—The Asiatic Petroleum Company (the great British oil company) station at Changsha has reopened business to relieve the oil shortage. A German firm is handling its business until the Han-

(Continued on Page Two)

Seven Years Ago Sacco Vanzetti Case Began In Murder of Salsedo Here

Seven years ago today Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti learned that on the previous day their friend, A. Salsedo, had been found dead on the sidewalk in front of the Park Row Building. He had been held incommunicado for some time in the New York offices of the department of justice on the fourteenth floor of this building, following the notorious Palmer red raids of 1920.

The New York American, seven years ago today, stated that Salsedo had been murdered. The mystery of his death was never solved.

Because of his mysterious death, Italian radicals all over the country expected and feared further persecution. As a result of this, Sacco and Vanzetti with two other Italians made an attempt to hide the literature they had been distributing in protest against the red raids. Their efforts brought about their arrest as "suspicious characters," and several days after the arrest they were charged with the South Braintree payroll robbery and murder, for which they were convicted and sentenced to die.

Commonwealth Wires To Governor Fuller

Faculty and students at the Commonwealth Labor College at Mena, Arkansas, have added their voices to the appeal to Governor Fuller to review the Sacco-Vanzetti case with the end of freeing the two framed-up workers.

Commonwealth is a part-work, part-study labor school in the Ozark mountains with a student body drawn from all sections of the country. William Zeuch is director.

Charge Bankers in Booze Deal

Romolo D'Aloia, and his brother, Vincent D'Aloia, bankers and brokers of 261 New Main street, Yonkers, were arraigned before United States Commissioner O'Neill in federal court here yesterday charged with possessing and manufacturing liquor and held in $1,000 bail each for hearing on May 84.

German Comrades Guard Ashes of C. E. Ruthenberg

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

BREMERHAVEN, Germany, (By Mail).—"In the name of the Communist Party of Germany, I take over the ashes of our dead comrade, the leader of our American Communist Party, for their safe conveyance over the soil of Germany."

As Wilhelm Kasper, member of the Central Committee of the German Communist Party, and one of its representatives in the Prussian Landtag, finished speaking these words, the throng of workers gathered in the great open plaza before the Wasermunde-Bremerhaven Railroad Station, broke into the singing of "The International."

The German Communist Party, next to the Communist Party of the

(Continued on Page Three)

WORKER TELLS OF RAILROADING TO TOMBS JAIL

Young Worker Accuses His Trial Judge

Matthew Kushner, thrown into jail for the crime of distributing Hands Off China leaflets, has written a graphic account of his arrest and imprisonment in Tombs prison.

Kushner, a member of the Young Workers' League, was seized near Union Square last week and brutally hustled off to jail, being held without bail. The International Labor Defense is handling his case. His letter reads:

"I have been in the Tombs now for three days, placed in the worst cell imaginable with unbelievable lack of regard for decent sanitary conditions. The food is rotten. You will be interested to know how I was arrested.

I was distributing Hands Off China leaflets at the "Americanization" meetings (you see how I was given a dose of Americanization) when one of the fat bellied parasites came over and began to shove me ont of the crowd and tryed to seize my leaflets.

He could not drive me away for the crowd sympathized with me, and so he called over a policeman. The cop violently shoved me out of the crowd, but it followed asking for more leaflets.

Seeing that this only attracted the attention and sympathies of the people, he arrested me and took me to the police station, Precinct 8. As he walked me from Union Square to Irving Place, hundreds of workers followed us protesting.

In court I was told that I was charged with disorderly conduct. I pleaded guilty, thinking that I would get off with a fine but the judge showed his venom by snatching the leaflet and reading it avidly. Heatedly he asked me whether I approved of everything in it.

Drags In State Department.

On my response, the judge shouted, "You are a Bolshevik and a menace to this country. He added that the state department would handle this case. He ordered fingerprinting and sent me to the Tombs.

I protested that I was being tried not for disorderly conduct but for membership in the Communist Party. At the jail they threatened physical mistreatment.

Please send me something to read, especially The DAILY WORKER.

Comradely yours,
MATTHEW KUSHNER.

LABOR PARTY BIG ISSUE IN UNIONS OF LOS ANGELES

Opposition in Council Fears to Touch It

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 3.—Opposition forces within the Central Labor Council have formed an election alliance in the coming June elections for officers, and have formulated a "progressive ticket and platform," it is understood. It is announced that John Valentine, secretary of the L. A. County Building Trades Council, and secretary of the former labor party of this city, will be the candidate for secretary against Burzel, the administration candidate and incumbent, and Johnston, anti-administration reactionary who is supported by John Horn, anti-red labor leader in this city.

The program includes: Organization of the unorganized; a campaign to promote the union label; freedom of expression and opinion; educational activities on matters affecting labor; and assistance to unions in strikes and emergencies.

Political policies have been left open to be thrashed out later, as around the question of a labor party there may develop considerable differences of opinion between the conservatives and the progressive wings of this opposition group. It is quite possible that these differences will run their own state, unless a satisfactory political policy can be agreed upon in this program.

With the reactionary machine split wide open, it is likely that this opposition ticket will carry the Central Labor Council elections if the progressives support it.

In a straw ballot, conducted by the Los Angelee Daily News, Sam Globerman, Communist candidate for board of education supported by organized labor, has forged ahead from eighth to sixth place, still leading the socialist candidates in the field by a large margin. Ten out of the eighteen candidates have to pince in the May 3rd primaries, and five in the general elections June 6th.

War Veteran On Trial

SYRACUSE, N. Y., May 3.—The state rested its case today against Ralph Seeger, World War veteran of Homer, N. Y. Accused of first degree murder in connection with the "love-bomb" death of his former sweetheart, Mrs. Arlene Cuttis, a Syracuse nurse.

Chinese Spies To China Spies on Nobles

(Continued from Page One)

how Chinese Nationalist representative, now on board, arrived at Changsha.

Five Spies Change

Over a thousand members of the Kuomintang have arrived here from Shanghai, refugees from Chiang Kai Shek's oppression. Chiang Tso-min, chief of the Federal Police Department, and General Chang Chen are among the arrivals.

The May Day celebration included more than one thousand trade unions. Factories and schools were closed the whole day, business offices a half day, public utilities stopped for one hour.

Celebrate May Day.

Three meetings were held simultaneously at noon in Wuchang, Hanyang and Hankow and were followed by processions of workers. Arrangements were made so that the demonstrations did not enter the foreign concessions.

* * *

Chen Assures Americans.

HANKOW, May 3.—Eugene Chen, Nationalist Foreign Minister, in conversation with a deputation of Chicago manufacturers who visited him, categorically denied the suggestion that the policy of the Nationalist government either now or at any time strove to destroy foreign trade in China.

Chen emphasized that the Nationalist government was in its economic policy following Sun Yat-sen's principle regarding the necessity of attracting foreign capital for the successful development of China.

Brutal Execution.

MOSCOW, May 3.—Branding the brutal execution of the Chinese Communists several days ago as the work of British imperialism, the Communist International issued the following statement:

"Twenty of the best members of the heroic Chinese Communist Party were murdered by slow strangulation. This execution preceded by a judiciary comedy—the rapidity with which the sentence was passed recalls the horrors of the court martials of Tzarist Russia.

Imperialists Consent.

"Only with the diplomatic body's consent could Chang Tso-lin's cutthroats penetrate the foreign quarter, the Chinese Communists be hanged, and this cruel act of class vengeance be accomplished.

"The blood of the strangled Communists falls on the heads of the international band of assassins—the bourgeois governments of all Imperialist countries. The immunity of the legation quarter serves as a refuge for all of the enemies of the Chinese revolution—the monarchists, reactionaries, Anglophiles, Japanophiles, the Manchurian dynasty overthrown in 1911 and the Anfuist of 1920. Refuge has been granted to all but revolutionaries and Communists.

Aid Counter-Revolution.

This is not the first time that the imperialists have been guilty of such an infamous act. The British authorities raided the local committee of the Kuomintang and gave up fourteen of its principle adherents to Chang Tso-lin. This act unmasks the British policy and shows the undisguised participation of the British government in the civil war on the Manchurian bandit, Chang Tso-lin.

British Hangmen.

"The British government, proud of the refuge given to political refugees, systematically hands Chinese revolutionaries over to the Mukden reactionary clique, well-knowing that they will be hung or executed.

"After the bloody massacre and bombardment of Wanhsien and Nanking and aggression against the Soviet Union, which alone maintains a favorable attitude towards the Chinese revolution, the imperialists decided to again bleed the Chinese working class, which appears as the guide of the Nationalist revolution.

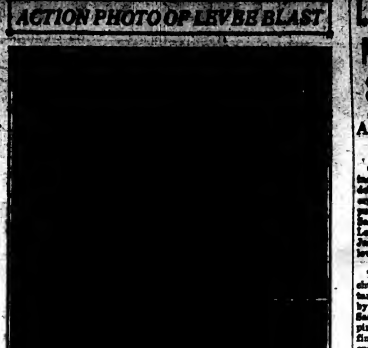
Renounce Chiang.

"The disarmament and the massacre of the Chiang Kai Shek ares links in the same chain forged by international imperialism.

Call For Protest.

"British workers protest against the trangling of the members of the proletarian vanguard. Workers, peasants of all countries in the name of international solidarity launch a powerful protest against the new acts of violence of the imperialist henchmen who are murdering the working class and preparing for a new world war.

"Protest everywhere against these monstrous acts, prevent military preparations. Let the string which strangled the twenty Communists be used some day for strangling Chang Tso-lin and the international bandits who bless his infamous acts.



"Let Chang Tso-lin, who presents the world bourgeoisie with the heads of the twenty Communists rejoice today. But no one will be able to drown in blood the immortal Chinese revolution.

"Heroic workers and peasants of China, Communists, friends of the Kuomintang, raise higher the red flag of labor. Hard trials fall upon your young revolutionary parties; but remember that you are not alone. Comrades, the toilers of all countries are with you.

"Hail fallen heroes. Long live the brotherhood of the workers of the world. Long live the Chinese Communist Party, the Kuomintang and the world revolution."

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

ACTION PHOTO OF LEVEE BLAST

The Poydras Levee was cut with dynamite to release the pressure on New Orleans and turn the flood waters of the Mississippi into two Louisiana parishes where only poor people, without political influence, had their homes. The government does not promise any recompense to them.

METROPOLITAN HOME OFFICE THROWN INTO PANIC WHEN LABOR REPORTER APPEARS

(Continued from Page One)

Inquiries into The DAILY WORKER charges.

Investigate!

Nothing short of a legislative investigation, honestly conducted, will drive these legalized looters into the open.

William F. Dunne, editor of The DAILY WORKER, in a recent editorial said: "The exposure of the methods by which the "Big Four" companies . . . plunder millions of worker policyholders thru 'industrial' insurance schemes which enables their owners to control other gigantic profit making enterprises, is the first attack on these leeches in 20 years."

"This series of stories are not being published merely to make public the startling facts which compose it. The DAILY WORKER believes that with the co-operation of its readers a government investigation of these companies can be forced which will disclose still more abuses."

At all costs the "Big Four" officials have decided to remain silent in the face of an attack which charges them with more offences, legal and ethical, than could fill an entire newspaper. This silence is an admission of guilt.

They hope that Governor Smith's call for action will die down and be forgotten as it lies buried an entagling mass of red tape.

The hundreds of thousands of readers who are following this series of articles in this and our associated papers will arouse a wave of resentment which will force a definite sequel to the governor's first move in the right direction.

Flood Dictator Thinks 172,000 Must Flee

(Continued from Page One)

these the evacuation warnings are shown.

The latest order called for the exodus today from Bunkie, a town of 8,000 and Marksville, the parish seat of Avoyelles parish.

Six feet of water was reported today at Bardell, Richland parish. Royville, the parish seat was closely watched by militia officers who feared the city too might have to be evacuated.

"Camps For Whites Only."

Preparations are complete, even to the tentative assignment of lumber requisitions, for the opening of two huge refugee camps here which would be ready for flood sufferers upon a few hours' notice. The main camp, for whites only, is plotted on the old University Campus, two miles from the heart of the city.

The city of Baton Rouge with a mean elevation some sixty feet above the highest predicted water level, is in no danger, but miles of surrounding country on the east bank, both north and south of the city, would be inundated by a break in the east line dikes at any one of the several danger points to the north.

An unforeseen problem had developed, however, in the direction taked by the shunted waters, whereas it had been calculated the new channel would be formed southward, from the spillway, and eastward to Lake Bergne, great quantities of the released waters were backing up north and west toward the city.

"Big Four" Officials Meet Worker Attack By Scared Silence

Frightened by the threatened investigation, high officials of the "Big Four" weekly payment life insurance companies hid yesterday behind studied refusals to comment on The DAILY WORKER charges of alleged fraud and corruption.

Robert Lynn Cox, second vice-president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, 1 Madison Ave., when approached by a reporter threw his hands up in despair and said, "I have nothing to say."

When reminded that Governor Smith ordered Superintendent of Insurance James A. Beha, on Saturday, to look into the charges made in the WORKER articles, said, "No, no, I have nothing to say."

Efforts to induce other "Big Four" officials to talk were equally abortive. From all sources, word has been passed down the line that a policy of silence would be most effective in meeting The WORKER attack.

Labor reporters particularly were persona non grata at the home offices of the companies involved in the exposure.

Much Deadly Gas In West Virginia Mine

(Continued from Page One)

employed in the mine, all escaped unhurt. Only the fact that the mine is not of the gaseous type, prevented a serious explosion, Robert M. Lamble, chief state mine inspector, who is here to direct rescue work at the Everettsville mine, said.

Official Talks "Incendiarism."

Smarting under the plain evidence of two different explosions and fires in the gaseous, dusty, non-union mines of the Fairmont region, the state mine inspector, put in office by the coal operators has begun to cast out hints of "incendiary fires." His official report on the Kinomont disaster states that, "authorities are investigating" and that the fire was "not caused by wiring or spontaneous combustion" of the admittedly dangerous gases.

It is considered possible here that this is the beginning of an attempt to frame-up some pro-union miners here. The West Virginia mines are non-union.

The state mine inspector has carefully avoided mentioning in his report that the U. S. bureau of mines is authority for the statement that gas and dust explosions are practically avoidable, if proper dusting and ventilation is resorted to, and that the necessity for operating dangerous mines is lacking, anyway, because there is at present an over-supply of mines—too many for the market they supply.

The superintendent also omits to point out that the worst and most numerous explosions of this sort occur in non-union territory, as the mines, where strongly organized and active, insists on precautions.

L. L. A. WARNS OF NEW MENACE FOR SACCO, VANZETTI

Analyses Attempts to Disrupt Campaign

CHICAGO, May 3.—In response to inquiries from several cities where delegates from a number of workers' organizations were denied the right to participate in conferences called for Sacco and Vanzetti, the International Labor Defense, through its secretary, James P. Cannon, has issued the following statement:

I. L. D. Statement

The day is fast drawing near for Massachusetts' day of revenge against militant labor represented and symbolized by the two heroic Italian workmen, Sacco and Vanzetti. Events are transpiring with cyclonic speed which are finally deciding the issue. Do these events forecast the doom or the triumphant liberation of Sacco and Vanzetti? Let us examine them and draw our conclusions from the facts. The main outstanding developments since Judge Thayer pronounced the sentence are as follows:

1. An outburst of indignation and protest from the laboring masses, resolutions, protest meetings, talk of strikes, etc. This is on the side of Sacco and Vanzetti. The protest and faith of the masses are their strength and protection.

Organized Form

2. The protest movement begins to take organized form. Delegate conferences are called in the principal cities to unify and coordinate local activities. The idea of a great national conference, similar to the famous "Mooney Congress" is discussed with approbation. This development is another weight in the scale for Sacco and Vanzetti.

3. The counter-campaign. The capitalist forces begin to organize against Sacco and Vanzetti. Manufacturers Associations throughout the country pass resolutions supporting the death sentence. "Patriotic" Societies demand their blood. The Massachusetts Bar Association finds the verdict perfectly legal and backs up Judge Thayer. The capitalist papers which first ventured a mild protest are being hushed up. The counter-campaign is under way.

Labor Reactionaries Disrupt

4. The pressure of the capitalist interests who want the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti as a lesson and warning to militant labor is being reflected in the labor movement. Green, Woll and other leaders of the A. F. of L. are preserving an ominous silence, while other labor and socialist leaders who have hitherto been inactive in the case, are now attempting to disrupt the protest movement.

In several cities recently, delegates from the I.L.D. and other workers' organizations have been denied the right to participate in conferences for Sacco and Vanzetti. The controversies of the labor and radical movements are being brought into the Sacco-Vanzetti conference and the attention diverted from the main issue of the movement. Their aim is to isolate the militants and then sabotage the movement. The attempt to disrupt and demoralize the protest movement reinforces the counter-campaign of the capitalist interests for the execution of the death sentence.

What To Do

How shall the militants, the honest workers, proceed to overcome this double danger to the cause? The most energetic work and, at the same time, the most careful tactics are necessary, because we are dealing with powerful and shrewd enemies. The I.L.D. recommends to all its members and friends in the movement the following line of action:

1. A ten-fold increase of agitational activity. Plaster the town with leaflets and stickers. Systematically canvass all organizations for the passing of resolutions and signing of petitions. Organize conferences and demonstrations, etc. Let nothing interfere with or stop the work of agitation. AGITATION IS THE MOTIVE POWER OF THE MOVEMENT.

Proclaim Solidarity

2. Advocate everywhere and under all circumstances complete unity and solidarity of all labor forces. Avoid all provocations. Present no special or partisan demands. Make it clear to every honest worker that we are demanding nothing but unified action for Sacco and Vanzotti on the basis of the class struggle.

3. Where divisions occur in spite of all our efforts for unity, we must energetically proceed with the agitation work to the best of our ability and with all means at our disposal without engaging in any controversy or conflict with other bodies and continually approach them with proposals for unity and cooperation. Keep the issue of unity clear before every worker. THE UNITY OF THE MOVEMENT IS A PRE-REQUISITE FOR SUCCESS IN THE FIGHT TO SAVE THE LIVES OF SACCO AND VANZETTI.

The Unity and Solidarity of labor alone can save Sacco and Vanzetti. Without it they will burn in the electric chair to the everlasting disgrace of those who, for selfish or partisan reasons, prevent that Unity.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

Who is Behind the Prosecution of the Militant Needle Trades Workers?

Who Are Matthew Woll's Fellow Conspirators?

They Are Leaders of the National Civic Federation!

Woll is Acting President of the Labor Hating Civic Federation.

There is a United Front of the Special American Federation of Labor Committee, headed by Vice President Woll, and the National Civic Federation, dominated by the most powerful capitalists in the United States.

Matthew Woll is the connecting link in the conspiracy. With him in the Civic Federation is:

DANIEL WILLARD, president of Baltimore & Ohio R. R. Co., 2 Wall Street and Baltimore, O.
Director, Akron and Barberton Belt R. R. Co. (V. Pres. and Dir.)
President and Director, Baltimore and New York Railway Co.
President and Director, Baltimore and O. Chicago Terminal R. R. Co.
President and Director, Baltimore and O. Southwestern R. R. Co.
President and Director, Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific Railway Co.
President and Director, Cleveland Terminal & Valley R. R. Co.
President and Director, Fairmont, Morgantown & Pittsburgh R. R. Co.
President and Director, New York Transit and Terminal Co.
Director, Philadelphia & Reading Railway Co.
President and Director, Pittsburgh and Western R. R. Co.
Director, Reading Co.
Director, Richmond-Washington Co.
President and Director, Sharpville, R. R. Co.
The President and Director, Staten Island Railway Co.
The President and Director, Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway Co.
President and Director, Toledo and Cincinnati R. R. Co.
President and Director, Valley R. R. Co.
Director, Washington Southern R. R. Co.
President and Director, Washington Terminal Co.
President and Director, West Virginia and Pittsburgh R. R. Co.

Federals Hurt By Still

Caught unawares when a confiscated 500-gallon still exploded in a house at 9735 Seventy-seventh street, Woodhaven, Queens, three federal agents were nursing painful burns and other injuries today.

Needle Trade Defense

A Few Bazaar Notices

All Bazaar tickets outstanding must be settled for before the end of this week or they will be charged to the holders.

Bring in the Bazaar Honor Rolls at once. All names must be in, to be printed in the special Bazaar number of "Unity."

Some of the organizations who will have booths at the Bazaar are the Mutual Aid Association, the City Committee of the International Labor Defense, The DAILY WORKER Art Booth, Workers Downtown Club, Workmen's Circle Branch 548, Six Councils of the United Council of Workingclass Housewives, representing the Bronx, Furriers and Cloakmakers Joint Defense Committee of Boston, and many others are still to be reported.

Many new arrangements are being made that this affair is sure to receive the name of "The Bazaar of a Thousand Surprises."

* * *

Vegetarians Tonight

All members of the Vegetarians Workers Club, are requested to attend a meeting tonight (Wednesday) at 81 E. 110th St. At the last meeting it was decided that the club take over the Vegetarian section of the Restaurant at the Defense Bazaar. A number of the Vegetarian Restaurants have already promised to donate food, and final plans for the arrangements of the work will be made at the meeting tonight, at which a representative of the Joint Defense and Relief Committee will be present. All vegetarians interested in this work are requested to get in touch at any time, with J. Ghneberg, organizer of the Club.

* * *

Food Workers Attention!

A special meeting of all volunteers who are going to help out in the main section of the restaurant, has been arranged to be held at the headquarters of Local 22, 16 W. 21st St., next Tuesday night. The restaurant is always one of the greatest sources of income at a Bazaar, and its success depends upon the volunteers. It is therefore urgently necessary that all those who intend to participate should be present at this meeting without fail.

* * *

Wide Support

A new feature of the defense campaign is the donations being received from all sorts of organizations which have been neither circularized nor solicited.

Morris Levine and Frank Perkel from the International Social Club, brought in $12.00, the proceeds of a collection at a package party of the club held May 1st, at their rooms, 350 Grand street. Ten dollars was received as a donation from the First Zigiffer Podoger Verein. Ten Dollars from a Paterson attorney. The Progressive Young Men and Ladies' Workmen's Circle, Br. 556, sent $35.00 from its treasury. Workmen's Circle, Br. 33 sent $18.00 collect at a May Day Vetcherivka, and so on.

* * *

A Letter From Cleveland

Dear Friends:—Enclosed please find a money order for $38.00 on account of defense books. Please send us 50 copies of the special Bazaar Number of "Unity."

If we are still in time, please insert our greetings, in the name of the Cleveland Progressive Needle Workers. We are enclosing $5.00 for same.

(Signed) Esther Schwettzer.

* * *

A Letter From South Bend

Dear Brothers:—When I read your appeal for help in The DAILY WORKER, I felt as though I had to do something. I was myself in the Shopmen's Strike so I know what it means, and I know what kind of rulers we get-in free America today, and what poor leaders we have in the labor movement. I just wish I could send more, but maybe later I can.—Karl J. Malmstrom, South Bend, Ind.

For the interest and delight of all workers

READY

The Special Anniversary Number of the

NEW MASSES

MAY DAY ISSUE

Full of interesting articles, stories, reviews, poems, by

Scott Nearing
Joseph Freeman
Floyd Dell
Paxton Hibben.
V. F. Calverton
Louis Untermeyer
Genevieve Taggart
and others

This Anniversary Number IN TWO COLORS

Cartoons and Drawings by
William Gropper
Hugo Gellert
Covarrubias
Klein
Soglow
and others

On All Newsstands NOW

Subscription Rates

$2.00 A YEAR

THE NEW MASSES
Union Square
New York

Enclosed $..... for ..... mos. sub.

Name .....

Street .....

City .....

State .....

What's What in Washington

INSURGENTS HOLD BALANCE OF POWER BUT THEY HAVEN'T AN IDEA WHAT TO DO WITH IT

(By A Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The so-called insurgents or farmer-Laborites who in 1924 instituted the La Follette-Wheeler presidential race and who after its collapse lapsed into innocuous office-holding program to "fight" Coolidge's re-election "within the party."

Senator Robert M. La Follette, Jr., who from his father's secretary at a nice fat salary, became his successor when the elder died in 1925, recently informed press inquirers that he "believed" it was the plan of the "progressives" to fight Coolidge within the party ranks. What he meant was simply, that cosened and well-salaried he and the rest of this group of impotent liberals in Congress intended playing the old political game that his father was such a master at.

Will Make A Noise.

They will go to the conventions, demand certain progressive "planks" and grab off much publicity. They will then return to their States and amid much righteous indignation denounce their reactionary party bedfellows and run for re-election on liberal "platforms." Those of them who are not up for re-election will go off vacationing in choice summer spots.

Next Congress these progressives will be the balance of power in the Senate. As a matter of fact they can pretty nearly control legislation in the two Houses. But outside of a little lasidasical chatter about "getting together" and "formulating a program," they have taken no steps or done nothing to use this power that will be theirs if they had the courage, the fight, the capacity to use it.

Not One Worker.

There will be eight so-called progressive senators and 12 similarly progressive representatives in the next Congress.* Not one, with the exception of Senator Norris who has announced that he is fed up with what he designated as the hopelessness of the situation and will retire to his State, Nebraska, at the end of his term, have any capacity for leadership, or a consciousness of the great class struggle that is going on. Not one has a worker's antecedents. Most of them are life-long politicians, men who have lived long and well from the public trough.

Rans With Wealthy.

Take the senators. La Follette was reared in the Washington atmosphere. He is sleek, well groomed, and socially acceptable. His stooge associates are the sons and daughters of the wealthy and the powerful. Recently when he went off for a vacation he went to that playground of the social elite, Raleigh, North Carolina. The papers carried pictures of him attired in the most fashionable riding clothes consorting with lily-scented belles of the best families.

Let Workers Wait.

Last winter when textile delegations from Passaic came to Washington to urge him and his progressive colleagues to have a federal inquiry into the textile industry, he let them cool their heels. The reason was simple. The A. F. of L. bosses, who are his political advisers, demanded that he lay off, and he did.

The correspondent recalls one occasion when the reporters asked him point blank why he and Senator Wheeler, member of the Senate Committee on Manufactures, did not go over the committee's head and call upon the Senate to take action.

He was non-committal, beyond saying that Senator Phipps, ultra-reactionary from Colorado against whom charges of excessive campaign expenditures are even now pending before the Senate campaign fund committee, was fighting the idea very bitterly. Of course he was fighting it, and so was Senator Butler from Massachusetts, a big textile operator and President Coolidge's best friend.

Never Did Anything.

Senator La Follette never did anything on the Passaic matter. The strikers and their attorney, Frank P. Walsh, finally turned to Senator Borah, who likewise did nothing, although he did make an effort to bring the workers and employers together, privately. La Follette is a politician, without consciousness of a fundamental economic program or a fundamental economic idea, other than keeping his berth.

He has a ready mouth for the customary liberal blah and gushes readily. He has already informed friends that if Coolidge vacations in Wisconsin this year he will make a few "hot speeches for his benefit." This is the limit of his resistance. All last session when the progressives were running rampant, neither he nor one of his brother progressives lifted their voices, seriously, to stem the looting.

Blaine, Demagogue.

Besides La Follette, there is Blaine, who defeated Lenroot and will take his seat in the next Senate. Blaine has a bad labor record. He was bitterly denounced by the Wisconsin Federation of Labor. He is a blatant windjammer and a demagogue. He is a political opportunist and a man without even a glimmering of what the class struggle is all about.

He will undoubtedly eventually break with what manager progressive ties he now has and will become another Lenroot, whom he was able to defeat only by a 25,000 vote margin, in spite of Lenroot's hundred-per cent bad record.

Powerless Frazier.

Of the other senators there are Frazier, former Nonpartisan League governor from North Dakota, stolid and impotent; Nye, a young editor of a backwoods North Dakota weekly and also a Nonpartisan Leaguer, not quite as ponderous as Frazier, but a man who is as unconscious of what is going on and what to do about it as the former; Dill, from Washington, who reputedly married $5,000,000 to the Coy feminist champion Rosalie Jones; Wheeler of Montana, an easy going growler who after he has lat ont a few barks lets it go at that; Howall, of Nebraska, a graduate of the navy college, Annapolis, a well trained engineer and of a sincerity that is on a par with his colleague Norris, much above the others, but far from a radical; Borah, Reed of Missouri, constitutionalists and legalists, who play their own games and who really make no effort to be being liberals; Brookhart, a mouthing ass who has curbed to heel and will continue to do so; Shipstead of Minnesota, the so-called Farmer-Labor Party senator, who is probably the biggest fake of all.

Shipstead of the 400.

Shipstead plays the social game in Washington and no one can do that here and escaped unscathed. His wife particularly is a social fan. She chases after the big numbers in the social-political field and apes their foibles. Shipstead is a complete dud. He lets out a little hurray now and then, but more than that in the five years of his service in the Senate, he has done nothing.

Fundamentalist Nelson.

That completes the list in the Senate. In the House the line-up is even more pitiful. Nelson, a reactionist almost entirely of the Wisconsin delegation. The leaders in this group are Representatives Nelson, Frear and Lampert.

The first was national chairman of the La Follette-Wheeler campaign. He is an unadulterated babbitt with a fundamentalist slant. He views everything from the standpoint of whether it is politically expedient. He goes in heavily for religion "of the good old bible kind," and until recently, when he became alarmed at rumors of strong opposition against him in his district, was engaged in spending most of his time and that of his clerks on the government payroll in gathering material for a book to prove that fundamentalism was "scientific." He is now preparing himself to go back to the hustings to convince the suckers that he is carrying on the banner of progress.

They Play Politics.

Nelson has been in Congress for twenty-two years. Frear and Lampert are pretty close to the Nelson type. Outside of that and the well-filled purses they have and the property holdings they possess, they have nothing to show for their service. They are politicians whose sole purpose is re-election. They have no more consciousness of a class-struggle than if it did not exist. Evolution evinces them the creeps. They are as vigorous in their denunciation of the idea as their reactionary associates.

They Drift.

This then is the line-up which will hold the balance of power in the coming session. They will meet this opportunity without leadership, without any of them having the capacity for leadership, without a program, or ideas for a program, other than to continue in office. Anything they do will be forced on them—but it is highly improbable that they will do anything. The elder La Follette, for all his short-comings was a ready and aggressive fighter. He commanded and the others jumped.

They Shy Away.

Now without a ring master, the impotence and sham of this crew is readily visible. They will no doubt remouth the old words, thump their desks, decry to empty walls—but to galvinize into action, to get underway an effort of fundamental issues and problems, they will shy-off. It is not for them, they are constitutional liberals, avoltdinary progressivas.

Vose Will Illustrate Calverton's Series on Negro Life, Struggles

A series of articles on "The New Negro," by V. F. Calverton, illustrated by Vose, one of our popular cartoonists, will appear soon in The DAILY WORKER. These articles will deal with various phases of the life and struggles of the American Negro masses and are intended to stimulate interest in this important problem of the American labor and revolutionary movement.

Watch for them!

Seize Liquor Laden Boat.

Coast guard officials yesterday seized the British trawler Cabriella with 30,000 tons of grain alcohol aboard off Staten Island after she had attempted to slip past quarantine.

Breaking Up Home Peacefully

Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, the former Virginia Fair, daughter of the late Senator Fair of Nevada, wealthy mine owner, has filed suit for divorce in Paris, France, against her husband, William K. Vanderbilt II. And he has surprised by filing a counter suit in Paris.

BRON WILL HEAD AMTORG TRADING CORP. NEXT YEAR

Expansion in Trade Is Foreseen by Manager

Saul G. Bron, who has held various important executive positions in the trading organizations of the Soviet Union, has been elected chairman of the board of the Amtorg Trading Corporation, 165 Broadway, the principal organization in American-Russian trade. He succeeds Alex V. Prigarin, who retires for pressing personal reasons. Bron recently arrived from Moscow. Amtorg, a New York corporation, represents the principal industrial and trading organizations of the Soviet Union and has a business turn-over of close to $50,000,000 a year. The change was announced yesterday.

Bron issued the following statement at his office:

"Because of American unrivalled machine production, trade with America is considered of great importance in the Soviet Union. It was a common practice in pre-war days to transact trade between the two countries through European middlemen. Soviet policy now aims to carry on the trade directly to the fullest extent. This policy will be of benefit to both the American exporter and importer and the Soviet consumer and exporter.

Retain Engineers.

"Industrial leaders in the Soviet Union are fully awake to the value of utilizing American technical and industrial skill to assist in developing the rich natural resources of the country and promoting its industrialization. A number of pre-eminent American engineers have already been retained by the Soviet authorities, among them Col. Hugh L. Cooper, who is now in the Soviet Union in connection with the Dnieper River hydro-electric development which will feed power to the whole southern mining district.

"Trade between the United States and the Soviet Union during the past Soviet fiscal year aggregated nearly $80,000,000, of which imports from the United States constituted $53,000,000, over 50 per cent greater than the pre-war figures.

Expect Expansion.

"Further development of trade between the two countries depends to a large extent on the credit terms which American manufacturers are willing to give on purchases for the Soviet Union. I am sure that in view of the plans prepared by Soviet industrial organizations, further expansion of American-Russian trade can be expected."

Bron was born in the Ukraine and is 40 years of age. He spent a good part of his early years in Germany, France and Switzerland, taking his degree of Doctor of Philosophy at the Universities of Zurich and Kiev. While abroad he studied the grain trade and worked in this field after his return to Russia.

After 1917 Bron held for four years the post of Minister for Foreign Trade of the Ukraine and served on the Supreme Economic Council. During the past two years he has been president of "Exportkhleb," the federal grain export organization of the Soviet Union, besides serving as a member of the Collegium of the Soviet Commissariat for Trade and a director of Railroad Telegraphers enrolled 410 new members in March.

Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die! OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

GERMAN COMRADES GUARD RUTHENBERG'S ASHES

(Continued from Page One)

Soviet Union, the delegation to the Communist International had specifically requested the ashes of Ruthenberg, returning yesterday, April 16th, from the heroic mission that had carried him into the eyes of the world's rival from New York City the day before.

As the singing of "The International" ceased, the magnificent Red Banners carried by the workers, the banners of the local party, the trade unions and Red Front Fighters' organizations, were slightly lowered. They were raised again as I responded to Kasper. Then Herman Osterlohr, the party secretary for Northwest Germany, also spoke.

It was a day made memorable for the workers of this small seaport town, where labor also toils in its vast shipyards. There had been the great honor of receiving the ashes of Ruthenberg and giving them in turn to the national party.

Kasper came on during the day from Berlin. He was accompanied by Osterlohr from Bremen. They had found the urn containing the ashes in view at the Party Headquarters. A Guard of Honor made up of members of the Red Front Fighters of Bremerhaven was continually on duty under the direction of their leader, Ludwig Ehrler. Red banners flanked the crimson covered dais on which the Urn rested. Thousands of workers filed past during the day.

Toward sundown the march to the Railroad Station began. With the roll of drums, of the Red Front Fighters' Drum and Fife Corps, sounding the funeral march, with the banners waving defiantly, with the Ashes' Urn carried by four Red Front Fighters and accompanied by an Honor Guard of Twenty, the representatives of the local and national party, we proceeded thru the working class districts to an assembling place on the waterfront called "Rote Sand" (Red Sand). Here the procession was joined by the main body of the Red Front Fighters, the "Rote Marine" (Red Marines), the Rote Madchen and Frauen Bund, and hosts of workers. From here the procession continued to the railroad station located in Wesarmunde, neighboring city of Bremerhaven. In fact, the two touch so that anyone walking down the street would not notice where one left off and the other started.

The Police Are Busy.

We were accompanied on our march by members of the various kinds of German police. There are the green and the blue, also the black police, the Schupo, the Kripo police, to mention a few. In addition there was the an auto truck load of additional gendarmerie who always hovered in the neighborhood thru which we proceeded. They all wear short swords and carry revolvers in full view. Even the government officials who came aboard ship to view our passports and landing cards, carried long swords and wore brilliantly colored military uniforms. The whole system smacks of the militarism of the kaiserdom that is supposed to have been deposed. Thus, under the watchful eye of the German capitalist republic, we carried the ashes of Ruthenberg to the station from which we were to depart for Bremen.

Unlike railroad stations in the United States, those in Germany usually have a large open plaza in front of them. It was here that we ended the march, where large numbers of additional other workers were waiting for the procession.

Comrade Kaspar, spokesman for the German party, is a brilliant speaker. As he spoke of Ruthenberg, one could feel the power of his words, the voice of the martyrdom of the German working class, of the blood that has been sacrificed in its struggle for victory. Only such working class defiance as Kaspar uttered could come in a land where there are 2,000,000 of unemployed, where 1,500 political prisoners still languish in the capitalist bastilles, where hunger and misery grip great masses of the people, where revolutionary struggles have continuously raged since Karl Liebknecht raised the cry of "War Against the War!" while the kaiser's armies were still in the trenches.

Kaspar reviewed the story of Ruthenberg's life and of his continuous struggle for 20 years in the revolutionary movement in America. His told of Ruthenberg being sent to prison during the war, of the part he played as a founder of the American Communist Party, of his being sent to prison a second time, and of the ten year sentence to prison that hovered over his head when death responded and snatched him down. This brief biography seemed to reveal to the German workers, more than anything else possibly could, the real nature of the American capitalist republic. It showed that American "democracy" was of the same brand of tyranny that ruled in Germany under the kaiser. I responded in part as follows.

"I bring to you, workers of Bremerhaven, the ashes of Comrade Ruthenberg. They are during the solidarity and the unity of the workers of the United States and Germany. And as I bring them to their final resting place in the Red Wall of the Kremlin at Moscow, they become a symbol of the unity and solidarity of the workers thruout the entire world.

"Ruthenberg was a member of the presidium of the Communist International. He was our foremost standard bearer in the social revolution.

"Ruthenberg was our Karl Liebknecht. When the Wall Street imperialists joined in the world slaughter, Ruthenberg, before masses of workers gathered in the public square at Cleveland, Ohio, declared, 'Not one penny to help pay for the imperialist war! Not one man, not one drop of workers' blood, to help fight the imperialist war.'

"For this he was put in prison. Following the war when he raised the standards of the newly organized Communist International in the United States he was again imprisoned.

"Ruthenberg was a Leninist and a Marxist. He knew how to lead, he was our best leader in the revolutionary struggle in America."

Then Osterlohr spoke briefly reviewing the significance of the fact that the ashes of a leader in the American revolutionary movement were being brought across the Atlantic Ocean and over Europe to be buried in the free soil of the Soviet Union. The speeches had to be cut short since train time was rapidly approaching.

Headed by the Red Front Fighters carrying our crimson banners, and with Comrade Kaspar carrying the Urn, and all carrying "The International," we proceeded thru the huge waiting room of the station. The procession did not halt until it drew up alongside the train waiting to carry us to Bremen. Thus the journey overland to Moscow continued, after it had spanned the more than 3,000 miles of the Atlantic's width.

During the day arrangements had been made to go to Berlin by way of Bremen and Hamburg. It was in the latter city that the Young Communist League of Germany, with 10,000 delegates present, was holding its annual congress over the Easter Holidays. But first to Bremen.

DARROW, ADDAMS TO ADDRESS CHI. CHINA MEETING

CHICAGO (FP) May 3.—A mighty gathering of many progressive forces, rarely attained in Chicago in recent years, is announced for the Hands-Off-China mass meeting to be held in the Ashland auditorium May 8. Among the speakers will be Jane Addams, Clarence Darrow, Paul Hutchinson of the Christian Century, congressman J. J. Sabath, John A. Lapp of the Natl. Catholic Welfare conference, Manual Gomez of the All-America Anti Imperialist league, Atty. Wm. A. Cunnea of the Socialist party and several Chinese of the Kuomintang.

The committee includes, besides these speakers, John Fitzpatrick and E. N. Nockels of the Chicago Federation of Labor, Margaret Haley of the Chicago Teachers federation, Prof. Ferdinand Schevill, Ella Boynton of the Women's Intl. league for Peace and Freedom, Carl Iiesseler and Atty. Wm. H. Holly as secretary.

The Chicago Kuomintang has cabled to the Chinese Nationalist government of Hankow, repudiating Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek as a traitor who must be destroyed and pledging its support to Hankow, as opposed to the seceding Nanking government. Indications are growing that the American Kuomintang is swinging toward the Hankow government after several weeks of hesitation in which it waited for Chiang to reveal himself in his true colors as a militarist.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day

Form Organization To Boost the Flag; Headed by Coolidge

A new method of boosting patriotism is the recently formed United States Flag Association. It has been organized with Coolidge as honorary president and the following founders: Cardinal O'Connell, Rabbi Abram Simon, Bishop James E. Freeman, Samuel Gompers, Owen D. Underwood, Senator Irvine L. Lenroot, Curtis D. Wilbur, Governor Alfred E. Smith, Mrs. Thomas G. Winter, Judge Elbert H. Gary, Mr. Samuel Gompers (in memoriam) Dr. Robert R. Moton, Hon. Thomas R. Marshall (in Memoriam).

The money subscribed is to be held in a permanent trust fund, the interest only of which will be used to "foster reverence for the flag of U. S." and combat all influences, conditions and forces hostile to the ideals, traditions, principles and institutions of which the flag stands.

One dollar is all you subscribe to become a permanent part of the living flag. You must state whether you wish to be a star or a stripe.

Norway Opens Legal Sale of Strong Drink

OSLO, Norway, May 3.—Legal sale of liquor has been in progress for two days following more than 10 years of prohibition, but there has been no increase noticeable in drunkenness, according to reports gathered here and elsewhere throughout Norway today.

Hundreds of spectators during the past two days have watched the police shepherding the crowds of thirsty into the legalized liquor stores. Only four persons were allowed to enter at a time. The crowds good naturedly encouraged the hard worked waiters "to be patient."

CAL CALLS RADIO CONFAB, BUT BARS U.S.S.R. AND CHINA

WASHINGTON, May 3.—In October of this year the representatives of practically every government in the world will meet in Washington to revise the international laws governing the use and operation of radio broadcasting. Russia and China, the two most populous countries in the world, will not be represented.

The State Department, under the presiding genius of Secretary Kellogg, known to his associates as "Nervous Nelly," has called the international conclave, but China and Russia are classed by it with such lands as Liberia, the little oppressed Negro Republic in Africa, who will not be represented.

Mr. Kellogg's explanation as to why Russia has not been invited is simple. "We have not recognized the Soviet Republic of Russia," he coughed in his characteristically apologetic manner, "and we have nothing to do with them."

Which raised the interesting question of what about the economic conference at Geneva to which Soviet Russia is sending delegates. American representatives will also participate in this meet. Of course, it is not being held under American auspices or in the United States, but the fact that Americans officially representing the United States meet on diplomatic grounds with Russians officially representing Soviet Russia is certainly a change in conditions. Some months ago Mr. Kellogg was asked by newspaper men about this fact, but he brushed it aside by pointing out that Russia refused to attend any conferences in Geneva. Recently, with Switzerland backing up and apologizing for the murder incident as well as making reparations, this pitiful alibi has been taken from Kellogg and soon the world will see the extent of the sham about American recognition of Soviet Russia.

Yaquis Rise Again.

NOGALES, Ariz., May 3.—Twenty to thirty Mexican soldiers, including General Arsenio, were dead today and forty others were wounded as the result of a hot engagement between Yaqui Indians and federal troops seven miles southwest of Nogales, Sonora, Mexico.

The battle raged for five hours, according to word received here. It is estimated that a band of 250 Yaqui warriors took part in the attack.

Put Some Power In That Kick!

Don't waste your energy in idle protest. When reaction attacks The DAILY WORKER and you want to fight—strike your blows where they will be most effective.

Kick in With a Sub.

Every subscription is a striking answer to the enemies of Labor—every sub is more strength to the blows that are dealt every day by The DAILY WORKER.

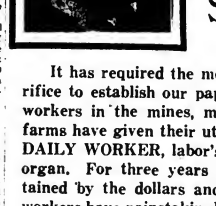
Don't only kick . . . . Kick in!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

Outside of New York		In New York
One Yr	$6.00	One Yr	$8.00
Six Mo	3.50	Six Mo	4.50
2 Mo	1.00	2 Mo	2.50

The DAILY WORKER
33 First Street
New York

Enclosed $ for
Send subscription to



Name .....

Street .....

City .....

State .....

WORKERS: STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

We Will NOT Be Silenced

It has required the most heroic self sacrifice to establish our paper. Thousands of workers in the mines, mills, factories, and farms have given their utmost to found The DAILY WORKER, labor's militant fighting organ. For three years it has been maintained by the dollars and dimes which the workers have painstakingly eked out of their meager pittance.

Shall we now allow our paper to be silenced by organized reaction? Shall the dollar patriots triumph? Shall the voice of labor be crushed?

No! A thousand times—no! We have shown marvels of proletarian initiative and courage in the creation of The DAILY WORKER. We will show still more in the defense of our paper against attack.

Forward all! To work! Every comrade! Every party unit! Every red-blooded, fighting worker! Stand by our paper now. Speed your contributions to the defense fund. Let your dollars be your answer to the attack upon The DAILY WORKER.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of

..... dollars .... cents to the Ruthenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....

Address .....

City .....

State .....

Attach check or money order.

DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, Except Sunday
Phone, Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only):	By mail (outside of New York):
one year $4.00	six months $2.00
per year $6.00	six months $3.00
one month .50	three months $1.00

Address all mail and make out checks to
THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

The Conflict Between the Imperialists.

The state department at Washington has officially announced that the American government will not participate with the other powers in a new note to China, in reply to the note of Eugene Chen requesting an investigation of the Nanking incident. This decision is as deeply resented by Americans in China, according to press dispatches, as by the British imperialist agents themselves.

American residents in China have been rudely awakened to the fact that the government is not back of their demands and they cannot understand why their opinions are swept aside as of no moment. They imagine the government, which has always been so loyal to American investments, ought to take its orders from them. They do not understand the fact that the government is not the defender of their own immediate and, by comparison with Wall Street, petty interests. The government is the agent of the great bankers and industrialists, as a class, and its policy in China is determined by the interests of that class.

The American colony praises the British policy of frightfulness because it knows that the triumph of Britain will enable them to operate their sla-ve pens in China today. The immediate opening of the industries in China through imperialist "pacification" of the country would serve their purposes and the aggressiveness of Britain promises them that. But at the same time it would establish Great Britain as the dominant power in China.

The rise to power of the Tanaka cabinet in Japan is a victory for British policy inasmuch as Baron Tanaka is an avowed advocate of the Anglo-Japanese alliance which was maintained for years against the United States. Against the aims of Britain and Japan the United States clings to its old policy of the "open door," which in reality is a demand for a free hand in China in competition with all the other imperialist powers. Considering the position of the United States as the banker of the world it is absolutely imperative that this government pursue a policy separate from and opposed to England.

If Britain and Japan can extend their "spheres of influence" in China it means the shutting out of American investment capital in those territories under their control. And if Wall Street does not maintain the "open door" in China so that it can dispose of its surplus in the form of investment capital it will face stagnation, because a gold supply that cannot be turned into capital will speedily bring about the collapse of the gold standard. It is true that American investments are much smaller than British investments. But it is not the present investments that determine American imperialist policy in China, but the fact that China is capable of absorbing fabulous amounts of investment capital in the future.

Britain, by pursuing its policy of ruthlessness, has aroused so much hatred among the Chinese that it dare not turn back, but must continue on the road it has mapped out for itself. It cannot reverse its policy without admitting defeat. And defeat in China means the beginning of the end of the British empire because the natives of India, Egypt and the other colonials and semi-colonials would rise against her domination. This explains the unrestrained savagery with which Britain and her agents are trying to defeat the nationalist movement. And the simple-minded American minister to China, MacMurray, played right into the hands of Britain by permitting Armiral Williams' petty officials to aid in the shelling of Nanking.

The imperialist conflict between America and Britain that rages throughout the world, in one form or another, is now becoming quite clear in China—is assuming definite forms.

While in its refusal to participate with the other powers in a new note to China the American government objectively aids the Chinese nationalist movement by preventing a united imperialist front, it must always be borne in mind that this action is in pursuit of its own imperialist policies which are equally as malignant as that of Britain. And all defenders of the Nationalist liberation movement in China will continue to demand that this country get its warships and marines and missionaries out of China and keep them out.

In view of the conflict with Britain and Japan the demand for Hands Off China should be incessantly made because the present situation carries with it dangers of another world war. China is today a powder magazine and the slightest spark may explode it with a detonation that will rock the whole world and start a conflagration in which untold millions of workers will be called upon to lay down their lives to decide whether America or Britain shall have the privilege of exploiting the rest of the peoples of the earth.

Outlawing the Revolution.

Just one year after the great general strike in England the working class celebrated International Labor Day by denouncing in unmeasured terms the "trade disputes and trade union bill," calculated to outlaw general and sympathetic strikes. Each section of the leadership of the working class clearly revealed its character in its manner of approach to the question. The reactionary leadership, the Thomases and their ilk, deeply deplored the short-sightedness of the Baldwin government and tried to persuade the Tories that the same results could be accomplished by more liberal methods. They endeavored to scare the ruling class by telling them that such legislation "played into the hands of the extremists." By extremists they mean, of course, the Communists and the Minority Movement.

Other elements urged that the only reply to the threat to outlaw the general strike is another general strike. The Communists fight with every weapon at hand against the proposed law, but they are under no illusions regarding the action of the government in face of another general strike. They know that the government will use its full power against another strike the same as they did last year. And hundreds of thousands of workers learned, in the general strike, that such a mobilization of workers will always meet with the fiercest resistance on the part of the capitalist government and therefore, from the beginning it must decisively challenge the power of the capitalist class and openly proclaim to the workers that it is the first step on the road to revolution.

The ruling class have also learned this lesson and when they outlaw the general strike they know they are outlawing the revolution. But when was revolution anything other than outlaw from the standpoint of the class that is about to be overthrown?

The British Communists fight against the bill in order to expose further to the workers the true character of the government, in order to make them despise the government as the instrument of oppression in the hands of their enemies. They do not fight because they believe that the absence of such a law will make the final struggle any easier.

And, as for the ruling class, the passage of the bill will only reveal its futility, because the insurgent workers, being ground down by the mechanism of imperialism, will rise and fight against their oppressors.

To try to outlaw a general strike in an imperialist country is as sensible as adopting legislation against the sunrise.

Official Labor Reaction Meets Political Defeat

The Supreme Court Translates the Fair Words of the Civic Federationists Into Plain English.

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.

ARTICLE III.

WHILE the coal barons were putting John L. Lewis thru his paces and proving up to the hilt the contention of the Communists and the left wing that unions and labor movements must fight to live and fulfill their functions, the Supreme Court was getting ready a little demonstration of its own.

For years the ears of American militants have been assailed by the proud boasts of labor officialdom whenever it secured some mild and more or less meaningless legislative reform. This was the case with the passage of the Clayton Act which was supposed to free labor and labor unions from the provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

SAMUEL GOMPERS indulged in panegyrics. He hailed the Clayton Act as "the Magna Charta of Labor" and all the lower strata of union officialdom, without knowing what the Magna Charta was, were greatly impressed.

President Wilson presented Gompers with the pen he used in signing the Clayton Act and Gompers was overjoyed. He said:

"This pen with which the President signed the Clayton Bill has been added to the collection of famous pens at the A. F. of L. headquarters —trophies of humanitarian legislation secured by the workers of America. This last pen will be given the place of greatest honor—it is symbolic of the most comprehensive and most fundamental legislation in behalf of human liberties that has been enacted anywhere in the world."

ON April 11, 1927, the Supreme Court, by handing down the decision in the Bedford Cut Stone Company case which outlawed the Stone Cutters Union because its members refused to use stone quarried and cut by strikebreakers. This decision becomes the law of the land and it means simply that a union is deprived of the possibility of declaring any product unfair even for its own members.

JUSTICE Brandeis, in his dissenting opinion characterized this phase of the question as follows:

"Members of the Journeymen Stone Cutters' Association could not work anywhere on stone which has been cut at the quarries by "scabs" without aiding and abetting the enemy. Otherwise by reason of a member of the provision of their constitution which forbids such action, was essential to his own self-protection. It was demanded of each by loyalty to the organization and to his fellows. If, on the undisputed facts of this case, refusal to work can be enjoined, Congress created by the Sherman Law and the Clayton Act an instrument for imposing restraints upon labor which reminds of involuntary servitude."

THE Greens, Wolls, Lewises, etc., are of course greatly shocked by this manifestation of reaction. For them it is indeed unfortunate. Here they have making war on the "reds" and making great capital out of what they have claimed was "a new era." The labor leaders got out and helped the bosses with a right good will. At chamber of commerce banquets, at rotary club luncheons and at conventions they have been whooping it up for efficiency and abolition of waste in industry. If the bosses will just give the unions a chance like good old Dan Willard has on the B. and O. they said, the unions (under able official direction, of course,) will show that they appreciate it by turning out two or three times as much work as ever before.

No more fighting, just good feeling and lots of work. The Supreme Court felt the same way—hence the Bedford Cut Stone Company decision.

BUT what becomes of the theory of peace and democracy in industry? What becomes of the kindred theory that by supporting capitalist party candidates the bosses' government will reciprocate by not being too rough?

It has gone the way of all such miserable excuses for inaction and it is certain that many union men and women are wondering why it has been necessary for Green, Woll, Lewis, etc., to denounce, expel and try to jail Communists and left wingers who predicted that the coal barons and government agencies, such as the supreme court, would fight the labor movement just the same—whether reds were in the trade unions or not.

SUMMARIZED, it means that the four-year war on the militant elements in the unions has placated the capitalists to the extent that they are trying with might and main to destroy the backbone of the labor movement—the UMWA—and have handed out a supreme court decision which makes illegal the most elementary activities of unions.

Surely this is a political defeat of major proportions for the efficiency unionism and class peace policy. In addition to these two smashing blows at the labor movement there are such things as the defeat of the carpenters union in San Francisco, the lockout of the plumbers union in New York, the open shop offensive begun by the Regan Printing company against the typographical union in Chicago.

THE attempt to railroad Ben Gold, A. Shapiro and eight other militant Furriers to prison, attempts in which the leadership of the American Federation of Labor took part openly, has also left a bad taste in the mouths even of many who supported the right wing as against the left wing. The whole affair, a disgraceful revelation of the depths to which leading union officials have sunk, has drawn a sharp line between thousands of union members and officialdom.

THERE is no hope for the leadership of the A. F. of L. but the membership will learn from the events dealt with in these three articles. As the New Republic said in commenting on the Supreme court decision:

"Labor has now for long been subdued by the siren propaganda of "prosperity." A severe jolt was needed to awaken the more innocent even of the trade unionists from the illusions of the Civic Federation, of dinners with the mighty, of all the prattle of "identity of interest."

The spectacle of the United Mine Workers faced with defeat, and with the fact of the arrogant attitude of American capitalist government as shown by the Bedford decision after labor officialdom has crawled on its cellied belly to the capitalists, means the beginning of a revolt against the worker-employer-cooperation policy.

The left wing must and will show that these attacks of capitalists can be answered only by great organizing campaigns, but a labor party and by repudiation of the class peace theory.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day.

STATEMENT ON SENTENCE OF TWO YOUNG WORKERS ISSUE BY DISTRICT 2, WORKERS PARTY

The Workers (Communist) Party, District 2, has issued the following statement:

"The sentencing of Herman Moskowitz to six months imprisonment by Justice Weil in the Fourth Jewish Magistrate's Court is an act of gross disregard for the rights of freedom of expression which is afforded the American people by our constitution.

For Mentioning China.

"The action of Justice Weil has been sponsored not for the violation of any city ordinance but is prompted by the fact that this leaflet called for "Hands Off China" and for stopping the murder of unarmed and defenseless Chinese peasants.

"This sentence reminds one of the days of the actions of the courts and police authorities in the last war, and is a forerunner of what steps these authorities will take in silencing opposition to the imperialist plans of Wall Street.

Continue Agitation.

"These actions will not for a single moment deter the Workers (Communist) Party from continuing the agitation for hands off China and for preventing another great imperialist catastrophe in which the American workers will give their lives for the interests of the big bankers. We will take every step to defend our rights of freedom of speech and will support Herman Moskowitz and Matthew Kushnir, whose cases have been taken up by the International Labor Defense.

"Workers (Communist) Party, District 2. W. W. Weinstone, General Secretary."

HOW THE AMALGAMATED CELEBRATED INTERNATIONAL SOLIDARITY ON MAY DAY

By BENJAMIN GITLOW.

Local 51, of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America, held a May Day celebration at the Amalgamated Temple in Brooklyn, New York.

When the committee of Local 54, in charge of the May Day celebration, appeared before the manager of the hall, Greenberg, on the matter of hiring the hall for their celebration, Greenberg informed them that the Amalgamated would not rent them the hall if they had any Workers Party speakers speaking at their May Day celebration. The committee, however, did arrange to hold the meeting with the Workers (Communist) Party speaker, Bert Wolfe, being obtained as the English speaker.

He Might Criticize.

Before May Day, Bert Wolfe was called out of town and I was designated to substitute in his place. I was informed that when the Amalgamated officialdom in charge of the hall discovered that I was to speak at the celebration of Local 54, they took the matter up with the Joint Board office.

There it was reported that the Joint Board under no circumstances would tolerate my speaking on May Day for Local 54 at the Amalgamated Temple. First, because I was expelled from the Amalgamated and second, because I might criticize the Amalgamated.

Gangsters Mobilize

Steps were then taken to prevent my speaking. Before the meeting started the committee in charge of the hall and the meeting, was given to understand that if Gitlow was permitted to speak the meeting would be broken up. Strong-arm forces were mobilized at the meeting for this purpose.

The comrades in charge of the meeting were of the opinion that it was highly inadvisable for the meeting to be broken up and the impression be given that a riot took place, giving an opportunity to the police to interfere. The comrades in charge of the meeting declared that they would strongly protest this action on the part of the Amalgamated officialdom and the Joint Board.

This is another proof of the kind of free speech that Sidney Hillman, Joseph Schlossberg and their lackey, Salutsky, believe in. If Local 54 had invited the psalm-singer exploiter of labor, Nash, to speak, Hillman would have hailed it as a great victory for workingclass unity.

What About Civil Liberties?

It is well also that the American Civil Liberties Union should know this act on the part of the Amalgamated, because Hillman and Company have strongly protested to the American Civil Liberties Union and have recently reiterated that under no circumstance have they been guilty of denying freedom of speech. The May Day incident of Local 54 is only proof of the fact that the full-doting fascist braggadacio of Beckerman, the present manager of the Amalgamated, is the prevailing mode of the Amalgamated.

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

Let's Fight On! Join The Workers Party!

In the loss of Comrade Ruthenberg the Workers (Communist) Party has lost its foremost leader and the American working class its staunchest fighter. This loss can only be overcome by many militant workers joining the Party that he built. Fill out the application below and mail it. Become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party and carry forward the work of Comrade Ruthenberg.

I want to become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Name .....

Address .....

Occupation .....

Union Affiliation .....

Mail this application to the Workers Party, 108 East 14th Street, New York City; or if in other city to Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Distribute the Ruthenberg pamphlet, "The Workers (Communist) Party, What It Stands For and Why Workers Should Join," This Ruthenberg pamphlet will be the basic pamphlet thruout the Ruthenberg Drive.

Every Party Nucleus must collect 50 cents from every member and will receive 20 pamphlets for every member to sell or distribute.

Nuclei in the New York District will get their pamphlets from the District Office—108 East 14th St.

Nuclei outside of the New York District write to Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 East First Street, New York City, or to the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

DRAMA

National Theatre to House English Players

The National theatre on Houston Street will house an English company beginning May 9, when the Yiddish players go on tour. Among the English players that will appear under the direction of Charles D. Pitt are Mildred Leaf, Charles Ellis and Morris Strassberg. The Broadway players will open with "Welcome Stranger," the Aaron Hoffman comedy, which is to be followed by "White Cargo," "Is Zat So," "The Gorilla," "The Fall Guy," "Potash & Perlmutter," "We Americans" and others.

Broadway Briefs

"Talk About Girls" a new musical comedy based on a play by John Hunter Booth, called "Like a King," will be brought to New York in June by Harry H. Oshrin and Sam Grisman. William Carey Duncan adapted the book. Harold Orlob and Stephen Jones wrote the music and Irving Caesar the lyrics. The cast will include Andrew Tombes, Russell Mack, William Frawley, Jane Taylor and Frances Upton.

Robert Milton is planning to produce in September a new play called "All the King's Horses," by Fulton Oursler, co-author of "The Spider." Oursler will also have another play produced next season, "Behold This Dreamer," a dramatization of his novel of the same name.

Richard Herndon is planning to present his new revue on May 30.

Net Receipts of May Day Celebration Sent

BALTIMORE. — Dear Comrades: Inclosed find check for $50.55 which was collected from our May Day celebration. By a decision of the conference, the collection, after all expenses are paid, is to be turned over to The DAILY WORKER.—Wm. Wilkins.

Sends Check for $15.50 To Ruthenberg Fund

LUZERNE, Pa. — Dear Comrade Editor: I am sending you a check for $15.50 for the Ruthenberg DAILY WORKER sustaining fund. It was collected here.—Secy. S. N. No. 1.

MARY ASTOR

In "Rough Riders" at Geo. M. Theatre.

Screen Notes

'Anna Karenina," Tolstoi's famous novel which is now being filmed will have many prominent stars in the cast. Greta Garbo will star, with Ricardo Cortez, Lionel Barrymore, Helene Chadwick, Dorothy Sebastian and Zasu Pitts as her support.

Sidney Howard's play, "Lucky Sam McCarver," will be the next starring vehicle for Thomas Meighan. "We're All Gamblers," will be the screen title.

Heading the long list of Columbia's schedule of releases for the coming season, will be "The Blood Ship," adapted from Norman Springer's novel and to feature Hobart Bosworth. This will be one of a number of specials, others of which will be "Alias the Lone Wolf," from Louis Joseph Vance's novel; "The College Hero," by Willard Mack, "By Whose Hand?" by Channing Pollock, "The Sporting Age" and "The Way of the Strong."

Will Hays, the Czar of movieland, has, it seems, approved "The Green Hat," for the films. Fox will produce Michael Arlen's story, with Virginia Valli playing the role of Iris March.

Edward Peple's successful stage farce, "A Pair of Sixes," will be filmed shortly with Johnny Hines in the star role.

AMUSEMENTS

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN
TWICE DAILY, 2 P.M & 8 P.M.
RINGLING BROS. and BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS
Incl. among 10,000 Marvels PAWAII SACRED WHITE ELEPHANT
TICKETS at GARDEN BOX OFFICES 8th Ave. and 49th St., and Gimbel Bros.

Theatre Guild Acting Company in PYGMALION
GUILD THEA., W. 52 St. Evs. $.50 Mats. Thurs. and Sat. $.50
Next Week—The Second Man

MR. PIM PASSES BY
GARRICK 65 W. 35 St. Evs. $.50 Mats. Thurs. and Sat.
Next Week—Right You Are

NED McCOBB'S DAUGHTER
Jean Golden Th. St. East Hy Circle Mats Thu. & Sat. 2.30
Next Week—The Silver Cord

Sam HARRIS THEA. West 42nd St. Twice Daily, 2.30 & 8.30
WHAT PRICE GLORY
Mats. (exc. Sat.) 50c-$1. Eves. 50c-$2.

EARL CARROLL Vanities
Earl Carroll Thea., 7th Ave. & 50th St. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2.30

TIMES SQ. CRIME
Thea., W. 42 St. Evs. 8.30. Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2.30 with James Kenaie & Chester Morris

The LADDER
Now in its 6th MONTH
WALDORF, 58th St., East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT.

Bronx Opera House 149th Street, E. of 3rd Ave. Pop. Prices Mat. Wed. & Sat.
"KATY DID"
A New Domestic Comedy

WALLACK'S West 42nd Street. Evenings $.50 Mats. Tues. Wed. Thurs and Sat.
What Anne Brought Home
A New Comedy Drama

GROVE ST. THEATRE
Block So. of Christopher St Subw. Sta.
DORSHA presents the THEATRE of the DANCE
Featuring the new ballets
This week only (May 2 to May 7), Evenings 8.30. Mat. Sat. 2.30
Phone, Spring 10[illegible]

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

BOOK BARGAINS
AT SPECIAL PRICES

Letters of Rosa Luxemburg

To Karl and Luise Kautsky.
Edited by Luise Kautsky.

One of the most brilliant of Europe's revolutionists, who fell in the early days of the German revolt, is intimately revealed in all her personal and revolutionary activities in these letters to her closest friends.

This book should prove of interest to all workers and especially the youth. In a cloth-bound attractive edition for your library. Formerly selling at $2.50.

NOW $1.00

THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

NOTE—Books offered in this column are listed in limited quantities. All orders cash and filled in turn as received.

DELEGATES IN [illegible] APPLAUSE FOR SOVIET RUSSIA

Convention Goes Thru Routine Matters

The second day of the convention of the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers International Union passed yesterday without touching upon any of the important problems which must be faced by the delegates who are meeting daily at Beethoven Hall, 205 East 5th Street.

A telegram was received from Local 9 of San Francisco denying the statement made in the convention on Sunday regarding any friction between the local and B. Sorin whose expenses were paid by Local 46 of Los Angeles, and urging that Sorin be given a seat in the convention. This was declared to be legally impossible in view of the fact that this was a request from the local's executive committee and not a vote of the membership. Sorkin was made a guest of the convention, with the privelege of attending the banquet.

Applaud Soviet Union.

During the reading of many resolutions, and the adoption of several of them, the only one which drew applause was one demanding recognition of the Soviet Union. This will be voted upon later in the convention. Other resolutions referred to committee included one on the raising of the union's initiation fee; one condemning the Citizens Military Training Camps; one to allow representation on the executive board for all branches of the industry, no branch to have more than two delegates; and a resolution calling for a forty hour week for the millinery trade.

The convention yesterday passed unanimously a demand that Sacco and Vanzetti be released unconditionally. It also passed resolutions voting support of the Jewish workers of Palestine, and support of Jewish agencies helping in the settlement of Jews in foreign lands. In this resolution the American Jewish Immigration quota was condemned as working great hardship.

Zaritzky Like Czar

Max Zaritzky, permanent chairman of the convention, showed his ability to suppress left wing expressions yesterday when he denied the floor to I. Feingold who wished to speak on one of the resolutions. Zaritzky, a former president of the International union, is rumored to be a candidate for the position again this year. This question has not yet come before the convention.

In behalf of Pioneer Youth, Norman Thomas appealed to the convention for funds yesterday. Algernon Lee made a similar appeal for the Research Department of the Rand School.

Tammany Profits By Big Shake-up In Police Bureau

An overwhelming shake-up of the police department executive staff, due to the conflict between the policies of former commissioner McLaughlin and the present commissioner, Joseph A. Warren, is expected about May 15, it was learned at police headquarters yesterday.

Using as a pretext a pretended opposition to members of the uniformed force holding deputy commissionerships, Commissioner Warren is forcing the resignations of John Daly, second deputy, and Edward D. Kelly, fourth deputy. An attempt will be made to raise the pay of the deputies by reducing the number from five to four.

The sugar plum of the first deputyship, which will be taken away from the present incumbent, John A. Leach, will be awarded to Philip D. Hoyt, former newspaperman and now the commissioner's secretary, for faithful service in the interests of Tammany Hall. His salary will be raised from $5,000 to $6,500. Leach will be demoted to the fourth deputyship.

Felix Muldoon, now third deputy, will fill the place made vacant by the departure of Daly, the second deputyship, and Joseph A. Boag, fifth deputy, will become the third. A reorganization of the license bureau, with a uniformed inspector in charge, will follow the resignation of Commissioner Daly, whose successor will, however, "supervise" the bureau.

The resignment of the commissioner's cabinet, old-timers at headquarters said, is reminiscent of the administrations of old line Tammany democrats, in which the executives of the department were appointed for their faithfulness to the organization machine and their ability to aid in running a strictly "Tammany" administration, fostering patronage and corruption.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER
AT THE NEWSSTANDS

Mrs. Mokhtz Denied Bail by Judges in China Leaflet Case

The Court of Special Sessions refused to release on bail Herman Moskowitz, Young Workers' League member who was sentenced to six months in jail last week by Judge Weil in the Yorkville police court.

The three judges denied Attorney Charles M. Joseph's plea of "reasonable doubt" claiming that they could not act on the case until they have read the minutes of the police court. Meanwhile Moskowitz is in the workhouse where he was taken immediately after being sentenced by Judge Weil last Friday morning.

Kushner Trial.

Matthew Kushner, arrested at the same time as Moskowitz, will be tried in the Yorkville court this morning. Josephs will appear as attorney.

Moskowitz and Kushner were arrested last Wednesday at Union Square and 16th St. where they were distributing Hands Off China leaflets. After being brutally beaten by the police they were arraigned, bail at first being refused to either of them.

MR. PIM PASSES BY

"So full of dramatic repose—

So neatly written—

So frolicsome—

Don't let Mr. Pim pass you by!"

Says a critic of this delightful comedy

Presented by

The Daily Worker

thru arrangement with

The Theater Guild

MAY 16 to MAY 21

Tickets on Sale

Daily Worker N. Y. Office

108 E. 14th St.

Telephone Stuyvesant 6851
(FIESTA TICKETS WILL BE EXCHANGED.)

FACT IS FURTHER PROOF OF I. L. EFFORT TO FORCE FURRIERS INTO DUAL UNION

Ben Gold, secretary of the Joint Board of the Furriers' Union, yesterday issued the following statement on the new agreement between the Joint Board and the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association. Instead of with his statement is the text of the agreement:

The Joint Board considers this agreement as an outstanding victory in its struggle against the splitting on the part of the American Federation of Labor's special organization committee, together with the Board of Directors of the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc., to force the fur workers against their will, to register with the International dual union.

This Agreement is an indication that the fur manufacturers are beginning to realize that the Joint Board is the only body that enjoys the confidence and support of the mass of fur workers in New York, and is therefore the only body that can be responsible for the maintenance of contractual relations between the fur workers and fur manufacturers of New York City.

The Joint Board is convinced that this victory will be followed by the realization of the manufacturers belonging to the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc., that full recognition of the New York Joint Board and its bona fide representatives is their only assurance for peaceful and normal production.

Text of Agreement.

AGREEMENT made this 2nd day of May, 1927, by and between the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association, Inc., and the N. Y. Joint Board of Locals 1, 5, 10 and 15 of the International Fur Workers' Union of the United States and Canada, and its authorized representative hereinafter referred to as the Union.

WHEREAS the contracting parties are desirous of entering into an agreement respecting labor conditions in the fur industry with the view of promoting peace and harmony therein.

Now, therefore, in consideration of the mutual obligations herein contained, the parties hereto have agreed and do hereby agree as follows:

First: The parties hereby assume and agree to become bound by all the terms, conditions and provisions set forth in the agreement dated February 1, 1924, heretofore entered into between the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc., and the Union, and in the additional agreement between the same parties dated June 11, 1926, copies of which agreements are hereto annexed, with the same force and effect as if the words "Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association, Inc.," appeared therein in place of the words "Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc." with the exception, however, of the following modifications thereof:

(a) Overtime Prohibited.

(a) Additional overtime work shall be permitted during the months of August, September, October and November in each year, except that during the month of August no overtime on Saturdays or Sundays shall be permitted, overtime work during said months shall not exceed two (2) hours in any five days in the week, at the rate of time and a half.

(b) The Impartial Chairman and the Secretary of the Conference Committee shall be chosen by mutual decision of the parties hereto.

Closed Shop.

(c) The status quo existing in the shops of members of the Association shall not be disturbed by the Union except that hereafter all new workers employed therein shall be members in good standing of the Joint Board of Locals 1, 5, 10 and 15 of the International Fur Workers' Union of the United States and Canada, only.

(d) No agreement shall be made by the Union with any other organization or individuals during the term of this agreement upon any terms more beneficial to such association or individuals than are contained herein.

In witness whereof the Association has caused these presents to be executed by its president and duly authorized representatives, and the Union has likewise executed these presents by its committee and lawfully authorized representatives.

(Signed)

FUR TRIMMING MFRS. ASSN. Inc.
By Maurice L. Steinig, Pres.
Samuel Weisinger
Emanuel M. Cohen
Beni. Goldschmidt
Michael Kaufman

N. Y. JOINT BOARD FURRIERS UNION, LOCALS 1, 5, 10 and 15.
By Ben Gold
Aaron Gross
Samuel Liebowitz

Witnessed by
Emil K. Ellis,
Herman Dollinger.

Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die!

Furriers Joint Board Signs With Trimmers

(Continued from Page One)

and cease their campaign of disruption in the union.

The workers went prepared to call to the attention of the anti-committee the fact that according to the constitution, no convention can be postponed without a referendum vote of the membership; and no such referendum having been held, and yet no convention called, the present officers have illegally overstayed their elected term. Yet these men are colaborating with the reactionary forces in the American Federation of Labor to thwart further the will of the membership and drive out the leaders of the Joint Board whom they have chosen to represent them.

* * *

Newark Condemns International.

In no uncertain terms, the traitorous officials of the International Fur Workers' Union were condemned Monday night by members of Local 23 of Newark, who met in Montgomery Hall, Newark, to protest against their suspension.

Morris Langer, manager of the local, who presided, declared that there was absolutely no legal justification for this suspension on the grounds of failure to pay dues. This charge was only used as an excuse, he declared, because the International had been unsuccessful in its effort to gain control of the local by the injunction applied for several months ago.

Resolutions denouncing the International's action were passed unanimously by the workers at the meeting.

* * *

The hearings on the charges of alleged bribery of the police during the fur strike last year were again postponed yesterday, to be resumed this morning before Magistrate Corrigan in the Criminal Courts Building at 10.30 a. m.

Dancing Feiss Axed Kicked Off Air as Bad Taste; Jazz Substituted

Civil liberties on the air got another jolt yesterday when Mrs. Mary F. Ford was cut off the microphone in the midst of a sentence supplementing Denmark as a country which kept out of the world war.

She was speaking over WGL at a dinner given in honor of Mlle Gade Gorson, the English Channel swimmer at the Hotel Majestic.

"We are proud that Mrs. Corson is a women," Mrs. Ford began, "proud that she comes from Denmark, that country which upholds an ideal of peace, that country which, said to the enemy, 'if you must cut through, cut women and children—

Right then Charles Isaacson, studio manager, switched Mrs. Ford off the air and substituted a jass band. He explained later that the argument for peace was "in bad taste."

The National Security League swung into action immediately in approval of Isaacson's action. The American Civil Liberties Union, through Director Forrest Bailey, will investigate the incident. The Union is conducting a campaign for free speech on the air.

Republican Ladies Demand Their Beer

Lady politicians of republican stripe want their booze back. That's what the Women's National Republican Club has found out as a result of a national questionnaire rent to its 3,000 members. Only 1,000 answered and 88 per cent of them want the Volstead Act amended so they can have their beer and wine.

* * *

A Sacco-Vanzetti protest meeting will be held Wednesday at 8 p. m. at 81 E. 110th St. under the auspices of the Workers Vegetarian Club. Aid for the Cloakmakers Bazaar will also be discussed. Speakers will include H. Mourovitch, M. Mutt, Pat Devine and J. Ginsburg.

* * *

The United Council of Workingclass Housewives Local 11, of the Workers Cooperative House at 2700 Bronx Park East is giving a concert and dance on Saturday evening. The proceeds will go into the emergency fund for the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti. The Freiheit Singing Society will participate.

* * *

$12 was collected at a farewell party by W. Levitt of 495 Hinsdale St., Brooklyn for the defense of Sacco and Vanzetti.

* * *

Dr. John H. Heindel of the English Lutheran church of the redeemer will an unidentified working women at Bergen and Jewett Aves., Jersey City yesterday. The holy divine was charged with manslaughter.

TALK FAKE PEACE AS DIAZ TOWN IS TAKEN BY SACASA

Kellogg Admits Loan To Crush Revolution

BULLETIN

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 3.—A forty-eight hour truce between the Diaz government troops and the Liberal forces under Dr. Juan Sacasa was signed here today. Fighting ceased at noon.

* * *

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 3.—While peace negotiations are in progress here, there is stiff fighting in the field.

The liberals attacked and captured the city of Magarote.

Representatives of Dr. Sacasa, liberal leader, have agreed with Henry L. Stimson on peace proposals and today these proposals were sent to General Moncada, liberal military leader, for his decision. Two United States marine officers and an escort of fifty marines took the proposals to General Moncada.

The capture of Magarote comes as a shock to those who have believed the official statements of American marine officers and the American-controlled Diaz government, that "the rebels have been suppressed."

* * *

Kellogg Admits Loan.

WASHINGTON, May 3. — Secretary of State Kellogg has openly admitted that he had sanctioned a million dollar loan by New York bankers to Diaz to smash the liberal revolution in Nicaragua.

The admission came as the result of the conflic. between Secretary Hoover and the secretary of state.

Scores Kellogg Policy.

Scoring by implication the Kellogg policy of sanctioning loans to Latin-American dictators friendly to American imperialists for the purpose of suppressing revolutions, in a speech before the Pan-American Commercial Congress yesterday, Secretary Hoover said. "No nation should itself or should permit its citizens to borrow money from foreign countries unless this money is to be devoted to productive purposes."

In response to a direct question, Secretary Kellogg admitted that he had sanctioned the million dollar loan to Diaz.

One Billion Tribute.

Reviewing American investments in foreign countries, Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan and Company, a speaker at the congress, admitted that debtor countries paid American capitalists an annual tribute of one billion dollars.

Yonkers Workers to Hear About Frame-up

YONKERS, N. Y., May 3. — A Sacco-Vanzetti mass meeting will be held here Sunday, 2 p. m., at Columbus Hall. Speakers in English, Italian and other languages will address the meeting.

Young Workers Will Rally For Welsbord, Bambach, Smelkinson

(Special To The Daily Worker)

PASSAIC, N. J., May 3.—One week from today the election of the five city commissioners will take place here with the energetic campaign put up by the three labor candidates during the last month as the most significant feature.

The Young Workers (Communist) League held a large mass meeting last night at Hodcarriers Hall, Oak St., where Albert Welsbord, one of the labor candidates for city commissioner spoke. The meeting was also addressed by several speakers representing the league.

Role of the Youth.

Welsbord pointed out the importance of the youth in the working class struggle, their role in the 4 month textile strike, and how in the future they must enroll and fight in the front ranks of labor. Many copies of the Young Worker and The DAILY WORKER were sold.

In addition to Welsbord the other labor candidates are Simon Smelkinson and Simon Bambach. They are running in the "non-partisan" election with the endorsement of the Passaic Branch of the Workers (Communist) Party, the organization of which the three candidates are members.

Hold Open Air Meetings.

A series of open air meetings will be held Wednesday evening that will be addressed by the candidates and other speakers including Sylvan A. Pollack of The DAILY WORKER and Emil Gardos, Workers Party organizer.

Arrangements are being made to distribute 10,000 copies of The DAILY WORKER on Saturday as the climax of the campaign.

Return Lists.

All those who have campaign lists are urged to return them at once to 27 Dayton Ave., Passaic N. J., so enough money will be on hand for the last days of the campaign. Without money the work will be greatly hampered.

Central Committee I. L. D. Meets Thursday.

The regular monthly meeting of the City Central Committee of the International Labor Defense will be held Thursday evening, 8 p. m., at Manhattan Lyceum, 66 East 4th Street. All delegates are urged to be on time.

BUSINESS & PROFESSIONAL DIRECTORY
FRIENDS OF ORGANIZED LABOR

Booth Phone, Dry Dock 8412, 7846.
Office Phone, Orchard 3819.
Private Exchange
MANHATTAN LYCEUM
Large Halls With Stage for Meetings, Balls, Entertainings and Banquets; Cafeteria, 66-68 E. 4th Street, New York, N. Y. Small Meeting Rooms Always Available.

Tel. Lehigh 6032.
DR. ABRAHAM MARKOFF
SURGEON DENTIST
Office Hours: 8.30-12 A. M. 2-8 P. M. Daily Except Friday and Sunday.
249 EAST 116th STREET
Cor. Second Ave. New York.

Dr. J. Mindel Dr. L. Hendin
Surgeon Dentists
1 UNION SQUARE
Room 803 Phone Stuyv. 10119

Tel. Orchard 3782
Strictly by Appointment
DR. L. KESSLER
SURGEON DENTIST
43-50 DELANCEY STREET
Cor. Eldridge St. New York

Dr. Jacob Levenson
SURGEON DENTIST
54 East 109th Street
Corner Madison Ave.
PHONE: UNIVERSITY 7823.

ANYTHING IN PHOTOGRAPHY
STUDIO OR OUTDOOR WORK
Patronize Our Friend
SPIESS STUDIO
54 Second Ave., cor. 3rd St.
Special Rates for Labor Organizations. (Established 1887.)

Health Food Vegetarian Restaurant
1600 Madison Ave.
PHONE: UNIVERSITY 5748.

Telephone Dry Dock 9067.
Meet me at the Public Art
Dairy Restaurant
and Vegetarian
75 SECOND AVE. NEW YORK
Opposite Public Theatre

MRS. ROGIN
Vegetarian Restaurant
249 E. 13th St. New York

FOR A FRESH, WHOLESOME VEGETARIAN MEAL
Come to
Scientific Vegetarian Restaurant
75 E. 107th Street New York.

Where do we meet to drink and eat:
at Sollins' Dining Room
Good Food! Good Company!
Any Hour! Any Day!
REAL HOME COOKING
222 E. 14th St. Bet. 2 & 3 Aves.
Phone: Stuyvesant 7281.

For
A Home-Cooked Vegetarian Meal served in a home-like atmosphere come to
ESTHER'S DINING ROOM
26 East 109th Street.

PATRONIZE OUR ADVERTISERS

GOOD printing of all description at a fair price.

Let us estimate on your work.

Telephone ORCHARD 7744

ACTIVE PRESS
INCORPORATED
33 FIRST STREET NEW YORK

"The Russian vs. The American System of Government"
Will be debated by
Bertram D. Wolfe and Aurthur Garfield Hays
FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 13th
(Auspices of The Bronx Free Fellowship)
at THE COMMUNITY CHURCH, 34th St. and Park Ave.

Tickets at 50 and 75 cents on sale at:
Workers Party and Workers School, 108 East 14th Street.
The Freiheit, 30 Union Square.
Jimmie Higgins Book Shop, 706 University Place.

Phone, Drydock 5340.
FRED SPITZ
The FLORIST
3 SECOND AVENUE
Near Houston.
FRESH CUT FLOWERS DAILY
Fresh and Artificial Flowers Delivered Anywhere.
SPECIAL REDUCTION TO LABOR ORGANIZATIONS.

"NATURAL FOODS"
Sundried Fruits, Honey, Nuts, Brown Rice, Whole Wheat, Macaroni, Spaghetti, Noodles, Nut Butters, Swedish Bread, Maple Syrup, Tea and Coffee Substitutes, Innesiana, Kneipp Teas.
Books on Health.
VITALITY FOOD & VIGOR FOOD Our Specialties.
KUBIE'S HEALTH SHOPPE
75 Greenwich Ave., New York (47th Ave. and 11th St.)
Open Evenings Mail Orders Filled.

Bonnaz Embroiderers' Union
7 E. 15th St. Tel. Stuy. 4279-9857
Executive Board Meets Every Tuesday. Membership Meetings—2nd and last Thursday of Each Month.
George Trierman E. L. Freedman
Manager President.
Harry Halesky
Secretary-Treasurer.

ARBEITER RUND, Manhattan & Bronx; German Workers' Club.
Meets every 4th Thursday in the month at: Labor Temple, 243 E. 84th Street. New members accepted at regular meetings. German and English library. Sunday lectures. Social entertainments. All German-speaking workers are welcome.

Amalgamated Food Workers
BAKERS' LOCAL No. 1.
350 E. 85th St. Office hours from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. daily. Meeting on announcement of Executive Board.

HELP WANTED
Volunteers to help with clerical work are needed constantly at the office of the Joint Defense and Relief Committee, 41 Union Sq. Room 714.

Red CARTOONS

1926
The first volume of proletarian drawings sold into thousands of copies—and is still selling. The large sale has enabled us to offer it now at the special price of
50 CENTS

1927
The second volume of RED CARTOONS is ready. Those who have enjoyed the first should not fail to get this one. If you wish to make a gift of this joyous book we will mail it for you.
$1.00 POSTPAID

THE DAILY WORKER PUB. CO., 33 FIRST ST., N. Y.

The Solidarity of Labor Is Developed Thru Wiping Out All Nationality Lines

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

AT SEA, Aboard the United States Liner, President Roosevelt, Wednesday, April 15. (By Mail from Cherbourg, France.)—This morning at two o'clock the ship dropped anchor in Plymouth Harbor, Plymouth, England. But it was not until a curiously shaped boat came alongside out of the night—a mail tender—built to carry thousands of sacks of mail od its flat top, that one fully realised the shores of a foreign land had finally been reached after a week of nothing but water.

This realization came thru the medium of the faces and voices of a different people—the Englishmen. There were fully two score of them, under the direction of British postal officials, at the receiving end of long chutes that led up to the main deck of our ship. They grabbed the huge sacks of mail, placing them in designated piles to aid in forwarding them to their separate destinations. They were jovial and boisterous for the most part at their work, these Englishmen.

• • •

Up on our main deck two score members of our largely German crew revolved in a huge, human wheel, almost silently, not morose but ominous, touching the chutes at the boat's railing on the side, dumping its load and then returning to reload from the mountains of filled mail sacks piled in the deck's center.

No greeting did I see or hear, between these German and English workers. Altho the sides of the two boats touched, these Germans and English workers might as well have moved in two separate, far-removed worlds.

• • •

The newsboy came aboard from another tender that came alongside to take off the passengers bound for London and other points in the British Isles. American money was as good as if I had merely crossed the border into Canada, from Detroit or Niagara Falls.

I got a copy of the London Daily Mail and found that the Prince of Wales had only yesterday pressed the button that had set in motion the 42 printing press units in its new home in Northcliffe House. It was all thoroly covered in pictures.

• • •

But the item that should interest workers in the United States, especially the coal miners, told of the thousands of would-be emigrants from Scotland to the United States who have applied for visas in the Glasgow, Edinburgh and Dundee consular areas. It was stated that these consulates have a waiting list of 60,000 applicants, more than 50,000 of whom live in South Western Scotland. Scotland's share of the British quota will this year be not more than 15,000.

But this migration is on the move and must be assimilated by the working class in the United States, largely by the coal miners because into this industry much of the immigration flows. This is something for the coal miners to think about, and to steel them to greater efforts in the struggle now raging.

Thousands of these Scotchmen are coal miners who will want jobs in American pits. Their funds are practically depleted. They will not have much more than passage money. They are doubtless in the same circumstances as the large number of Irish who came to the United States on its last trip westward across the Atlantic. A steward told me they were all practically down to their last cent. They will work. They want jobs.

The stand-offish attitude of the Germans on this government-owned United States Linar, President Roosevelt, and the Englishmen on the mail tender, "Sir Francis Drake," or even support of capitalist class immigration laws of the United States will not help. The solidarity of labor will.

• • •

In this series of articles on the coal miners' struggle, I cite the favorable position enjoyed by the antiracite mine owners, in 1888, when they managed to crush the strike of that year largely because of a "superabundance of labor thruout the anthracite regions. By this time the southern European workers were coming in at a rate which made their competition formidable for the miners of north European extraction who had come before them. Differences in language and customs made their assimilation difficult, and their lower standards of living and willingness to work for lower wages tended to displace "native" workers. Yet these same "immigrants" have later become some of the best members, and fighters of the United Mine Workers of America.

In this respect the problem of the anthracite is also that of the bituminous fields. In fact, the development of the struggle in the two wings of the industry have been very similar.

It may, therefore, not be out of place to recount some of the other features of this anthracite struggle in 1888, that may be duplicated at any time in the present bituminous conflict.

At first the Lehigh operators had refused to consider the demands of the workers for remedying the evils of the industry. As a result 10,000 men went out on strike. The Reading Company agreed to an increase of wages for its men. While working the Reading miners contributed money to the support of the Lehigh strikers. But the Reading miners soon discovered that the Reading company was supplying the Lehigh selling agencies with coal. The effect of this would ultimately be to starve the Lehigh strikers into submission, in spite of the support they were getting, when the Reading company in its turn would reduce the wages of its miners. This is an excellent example of the working out of the Lewis policies in the present warfare between miners and owners.

• • •

Refusal on the part of the railroad workers to load coal and to switch cars designated for Lehigh agencies led to the discharge of those who refused and brought on a crisis with both the miners and the railroad workers of the Reading Company. The trouble was temporarily smoothed out, but because of a delay in sending the telegrams which ordered the men to return to work, many failed to report. The company had stipulated that those who did not return to work at the agreed time would be discharged, and as a result 6,000 railroad men were let out. On Jan. 1, 1888, no agreement having been reached, 22,000 Reading miners went on strike.

• • •

The ensuing bitter struggle brought on a congressional investigation. The committee of investigators concluded that the Reading Company had delayed the telegrams in order to precipitate a strike. Also that the so-called "Shamandoah Riot" was intentionally provoked "by the company for the purpose of placing the strikers in the position of offenders, and of thus influencing public opinion in favor of the company."

It was declared that the committee believed the company had decided that the union was getting too strong and that the time had come to crush it.

The committee was confirmed in its opinion by the evidence which it collected relevant to the general industrial situation in the anthracite field. The company had mined its full quota of coal as established by the "Hor-

(Continued on fourth column)

Nagging de Niggah

By WILLIAM MELVILLE SUTTON,
ARTICLE V.

Somewhere below Cincinnati—probably not many miles from that dreamy city—the serene, stellike body of Mason and Dixon's line ceases. Out of Cincinnati, bound for all points in the South, run palatial trains, all-Pullmans, designed for millionaires, nouveau-riche and Northern Salesmen. What Demand Comfort. Out of this same port run cheaper accomodations—combinations of Pullmans and coaches—and "niggah" coaches.

Crossing the Dead Line.

The Northerner may know little about geography—he may not know just where the Mason and Dixon line divides North from South, much vaunted, but fictitious liberalism from paraded bigotry, half-hearted, wordy tolerance from complete intolerance. Yet, however weak his powers of discernment, let him cross the Mason and Dixon line and he knows. How does he know? The Negro of Negroes lives in slightly emboldened by the absence of kicks in the North and as employe of the Pullman or the railway company, courteously, but firmly and impressively, furthered the chamber business of his or her employers, now become, veritably, a shrinking, fawning slave.

The white man—the homing Southerner and the sojourning Northerner with a superiority complex—who accepted the black man's service a little timidly, a little fearfully perhaps, yet in the spirit in which it was proffered, now is the self-assertive master, curt, abrupt, peremptory, blustering.

The Negro knows ha is in the South; the Northerner knows ha is in the South. Both forget or ignore the existence of the Emancipation Proclamation or the Constitutional Amendment that seeks to make all men free and equal in this good old U. S. A. For the Southerner it is merely the return of the master of his domain. The spirit of the South, to speak of the Negro and his Northern "friend," pervades them both. He who doubts that a Northerner can become a Southerner in a few minutes need but ride across the smug imaginary line that separates the apparently free Negro from the obviously enslaved. Just to cross the line on an American train is sufficient introduction to the nature of the South.

Give a Liberal Power!

The usual Northerner, however boisterous he is in asserting his liberalism, is always ready to try out his power on the black in the South. Often, being of the same mental and social calibre as the Southerner, he smarts of a too equal rating of Negro with white; often, he smarts for no reason at all. Whatever his emotions, he becomes an experimenting psychologist among the Negroes. Figuratively, ha likes to kick one and hear him squeal and see him run, and with the positive assurance that no white black has the audacity or the courage to return tho kick, for always in the offing, with hands itching to slip a shackle upon his head and to arrest him up to the nearest tree, stands the white man's mob—symbol of the white man's justice in the South—ready to act as if out of nowhere in less than it takes to say "Jack Robinson" or, for that matter, than it takes to kick a niggah. To the Southerner, born and bred to superiority and mastery, asserting his royal rights is a boring process. He would rather kick a dog—there is much more fun in that for him.

They Do Lynch.

This matter of lynchings and mob-rule: I, in common with other Northerners who had never been in the South, had always been inclined to doubt the number of hangings of Negroes and to ascribe the fact I was willing to admit were perpetrated to a gang of irresponsible, uprighteous defenders of virginity, who, envious because a black and not they, was courageous enough to take it from a woman, reimbursed their lean souls by wrecking vengeance upon him.

Unreported Lynchings.

But during my stay among the corn and watermelon, the cotton and the rice, my doubts were knocked on the head. I found that lesser crimes gave rise to mob rule and lynchings, that a mere theft—for which a white man might be sentenced to 90 days in the county jail—would bring swift death to a black, that the mere presence of a Negro in the neighborhood of a crime would make him and a rope the center of a huge and thirsty celebration, and news of which would ever penetrate to the North.

The festivities would be entered in with a great show of spirit, zest, gayety and enjoyment by every worshipful Baptist, Methodist, Kinkster and other fleshish morons in the vicinity who could be gathered in 15 minutes or so, and these sadists would be supplemented as the celebration continued by others to whom the glorious news had spread. After it was all over, nothing would be said. There would be a deadly sinister calm. No one would know anything about it. The participants would not even recognize each other. Perfunctory investigations, resulting in nothing, of course, would be made by the authorities, many of whom, I would venture to say, were among the merry throng, if not among the masked masters of ceremonies, that watched like a scientific group the writhings and meanings of a Negro depended from rope and tree.

It was while I was in Memphis that I heard the story of such an affair—the inside story, not the one given to the press, which represented the Negro victim as a fiend who had committed an unspeakable crime. Memphis is the center of the world's greatest and biggest inland cotton market—a story involving a young Negro whose life and death took place in a little village in the Ozark Mountains. Originally the black, who was 19 years old, had been accused of stealing corn from another black, but that was inconsequential. Then he was accused of stealing furs and animals from a silver fox ranch, owned by a white man. Although the situation then took on serious proportions, since a white man was involved, the rancher could not stir up enough wrath to bring about a lynching and he could not produce sufficient evidence, even in the South, to cause the Negro's arrest.

Then he succeeded in fastening a reputation easily slain—that of a Negro. Thus, when a white girl, aged nine, disappeared from the hills, young Tom—I call him that, as I cannot recall his real name—was charged with raping and then killing the child. Without much ado, without questioning, without efforts having been made to ascertain the facts, without trial, Tom was torn from his cabin, around which grew the corn he was raising for his livelihood, was dragged through the hills, over rocks and stones, and hanged, a torn figure, to the pole. And when the district attorney of the county was asked what he was going to do about it, he replied, naively, yet with finality:

"No-Account, Enyways."

"They ain't much we kin do." We don't lose no fathers wus'n on the lynchin,' an' besides, he wuz a no-account niggah, enyways."

And illustrating the effect on the Negro: A young Southern lady, full of the Southerner's pride of the South, and a worker for the astimable Red Cross of Memphis, who accepted my card and myself during our atheistic and Northern views, finding in us a new sort of audience to her fund of Negro stories which she was so fond of telling because they illustrated her humane and social scientific activities, and thereby her rare ability, retailed this one—not privy to the fact that it was an arraignment of her and her kind.

One day, a much harassed and fearful Negro entered the Red Cross office and pleaded that the workers charity help him out of a dilemma, which involved a debt, a white farmer and a threat of jail for the black. Our young lady promised to help him, to negotiate with the white man and to obtain more time for his paying of the debt. This entailed a trip to a suburb of Memphis, where the farmer reigned liege lord over the descendants of his ancestors' slaves and exslaves. In her Ford, the Red Cross worker took the black to the suburb, offering to ask his fellow-men company. It was a day after a severe rain storm, the first in many weeks of dreuth, and the dried dirt of the highways was an unsafe and slippery foundation. Especially was it slippery and dangerous on a steep hill that they had to traverse in order to reach their destination. An accident did occur, had to get out of the automobile and walk.

A few feet from the top of the hill, the Red Cross lady found that her French heels and her automobile legs were not equal to the task before them—the mud was too menacing, tha hill too steep. There was the danger of a twisted ankle or a broken collar-bone or worse.

"Hey, niggah," she called to the black walking a few paces behind her, in approved Negro-to-white attitude, "give me a hand, and help me down the hill."

The Lesson of Fear.

"Lawdy, lawdy, leddy" cried the Negro in alarm, "If ah was to give y'all a hand and y'all was to slip whoah would ah be? Ah'd jest natch'ly be lynched an' no questions asked."

She remonstrated with him.

"No, no, leddy, ah's 'fraid. They ain't no white folks 'round heah naow, nohow, but jest y'all let 'em see a white leddy git hurt in a niggah's comp'ny an' den dey'd 'pear fum nowhah."

And all the way down the hill, as the leddy clumsily and fearfully made slow descent, he importuned her not to slip, looked about nervously in panic, hoped that she would not fall.

"Y'all's got mah life in yoh hands, leddy. Y'all see, don'cha, dat ef y'all was to fall an' ah was to stoh to help y'all—does white men simply wouldn' understan' an' think ah was—wal, ah was tryin'—y'all see, don'cha. Ah suah would be lynched."

Thus, has the Negro learned his lesson of fear.

Free Publicity for Navy

Publicity experts for the navy got in some good cracks yesterday evening as the populace watched the serial illumination of the city by the searchlights of 47 men of war, part of the imperialist armada anchored in the Hudson River. Ships from Staten Island to Yonkers joined in the display.

Mlle. Gade Corson, channel swimmer, was employed to ride the entire length of the fleet on water skis while amateur pictorial beats' loaded with camera followed.

The whole business is expected to boost the law rate of enlistment in the navy, and the marines for service against the workers and peasants of China, Nicaragua and other countries against whom the United States is now making war.

Professional Patriots and Labor Leaders

By ROBERT DUNN.

(Continued From Last Issue.)

There are other reasons why labor should stay away from Mr. Easley than the fact that he is a link between Mr. Easley and Mr. Burns, late of the Department of Justice, were very intimate. Some reports have it that Easley claims the credit for the appointment of Burns as head of the Bureau of Investigation. It is known also that Mr. Easley raised a moderate amount of the cash used by Mr. Burns in his Michigan prosecutions against the Communists in 1923. Certainly he gave Burns a more than friendly boost in broadcasting that gentleman's assaults on liberals, pacifists and "reds."

In addition to his relations to Mr. Burns, other channels to the federal authorities were open to Mr. Easley that would be denied the average citizen. Personal friendships mean a lot. Common aims and interests also count. Members of one's executive committee who have held public office also help. It is not, therefore, an exaggeration to say that Easley's access to the nation's red-baiting government departments, such as those presided over by Messrs. Daugherty and Denby, was more or less one hundred percent. As Gen. Amos B. Parker, former president of the N. C. F. hinted, as much when, in speaking of the "radical menace," he said: "Through the expenditure of large sums of money and the use of all the machinery of the federal and some of the state governments a tremendous amount of authoritative and invaluable material has been gathered which is available to all citizens seeking the truth." The N. C. F. undoubtedly had access to this pondarous information and apparently assisted in its distribution.

Again in one of Easley's leaflets describing proposed skirmishes with the "Reds" we find this sentence:

"Also in so far as is compatible with public interest, the department will facilitate in every way the co-operation of governmental agencies in Washington."

Burns' unusual intimacy with the professional patriotic societies, notably Easley's, may be contrasted with his reply to the secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War who had requested permission to inspect the files of the Bureau of Investigation for the incriminating evidence Burns stated he had on the peace advocates:

"I must advise you that it has long been the practice of the Bureau to hold its files confidential and available for confidential use only and I regret that, under this rule, it would be impossible for me to answer your inquiry."

But Burns made a practice of breaking that rule for the benefit of Easley and his fellow business patriots!

Secret Reds.

There is no room here to recount the Easlian reaction to Russia except to remark that no subject is better calculated to throw Ralph—as well as his pal Matthew Woll—into a spasm. Socialism has always been an abomination to him but Soviet Russia and its program is the abomination of abominations. Anyone visiting Russia and returning with anything but horror and atrocity stories is the immediate object of our business patriot's rage and indignation. Senators and congressmen have not been spared. Relief workers have come in for particularly intense specimens of his wrath. Take, as the latest case in point, Dr. Louis Hatch Allen on the Russian Famine Fund. Easley charged that the Russia Famine Fund had some 60 prenounced Bolshevik sympathizers out of 84 on its National Committee which included Governor Alfred E. Smith, Nicholas Murray Butler, Bliss, Jr., Charles R. Crane, Charles W. Eliot, President Emeritus of Harvard, Hon. David R. Francis, former Ambassador to Russia, Robert Herrick, Cyrus H. McCormick and Samuel Untermyer. Said Mr. Easley, writing to the Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Russia Famine Fund: "If tha people who are contributing to the Russian Famine Fund understood that their money is being used by Lenin and Trotsky, contributions would soon cease." George W. Wickersham and Henry W. Taft and Herbert Parsons and Julius Rosenwald, also members of the Fund did not understand so! They did not resign. But super-patriot Ralph was in earnest and threatened to give the matter a more serious press and stated that he had "turned it over to the Department of Justice for investigation."

In his white against the Russia Famine Fund and the Quakers, through whom they are distributing its supplies, Mr. Easley developed a frenzied line of reasoning which is characteristic. Ha held that Pref. Jerome Davis of the Yale Divinity School was a hardened Bolshevik because he had written an article for the New Republic describing in sympathetic terms the milk distribution work in Moscow of a certain English Quaker named Watts. But Watts in turn praised the Soviet authorities for their co-operation in milk distribution and in general for their educational activities in the face of famine. So, reasoned Easley, Watts is obviously a hardened Bolshevik. But Watts is also a Quaker. Therefore the Quakers are all hardened Bolos. Since the Russian Famine Fund distributes through the Quakers it, too, must be Boishevik. And since Davis praised Watts who praises the Soviet, he too is a double-dyed follower of Lenin.

The whole episode—and pages like it are available—is of value only to show another case of Easley's complex against Communists in general and any organization which can, by his singular logic, be even distantly connected with them. And in this case he was involved with an organization including on its committee even the name of his trusted friend, Samuel Gompers himself!

(To Be Continued.)

SEND IN YOUR LETTERS

The DAILY WORKER is anxious to receive letters from its readers stating their views on the lasnes confronting the labor movement. It is our hope to develop a "Letter Box" department that will be of wide interest to our readers. The DAILY WORKER family. Send in your letter today to "The Letter Box," The DAILY WORKER, 33 First street, New York City.

(Continued from first column)

gan Pool" of 1886. This pool had estimated the output needed for the year, fixed a penalty of 50 cents per ton for exceeding tonnage, raised the price of coal 25 cents per ton, and appointed a committee to fix allotments.

• • •

The congressional committee found that inter-related interests controlled all the railroad lines which penetrated the Lehigh and Schuylkill regions except the Pennsylvania Railroad; that competition in freight rates was eliminated; that production was restricted and prices were controlled; that so-called independent operators surrendered as freight charges 36 percent of the price which their coal brought; and that wages were arbitrarily fixed. The committee concluded that "it (was) difficult to imagine how the common carrier could commit greater depredations upon national commerce, more flagrant violations of the law, of greater abuses of individual and public rights."

But these were "mere words" from capitalist parliamentarians. The miners lost the strike and went to work at the terms dictated by the mine owners. The policies of John L. Lewis failed in 1888. They cannot help but fail these two-score years later with an even greater consolidation of ownership of railroads, coal lands and coal companies.

FOOTNOTES TO THE NEWS

By EUGENE LYONS

Sailors' Chanty

I throw out my chest,
And I boast and I brag;
Oh, great is my country,
And proud is its flag;
Its power is dreaded
Wherever men speak;
It gives me a job
For eleven a week.

Our navy's the best,
Our air fleet's supreme;
Lands quake when they see
Our bayonets gleam;
My country is honored
By Turk and by Greek;
It gives me a job
For eleven a week.

It's true there are holes
In the shoes on my feet;
And once in a while
I have nothing to eat;
But still I rejoice
(Though I can't pay my rent)
That the "national wealth"
Has increased ten per cent.

—JOSEPH FREEMAN.

Society Notes—There la no cause for pessimism in regard to British labor. It is making steady progress socially. Already its leaders mix in the best circles. MacDonald was allowed to chat with Coolidge. More significant still, an authority on style has attested publicly that British labor leaders—whatever one might say about their views—are at least correct in their clothes. The wedding of Peggy Thomas, daughter of the labor chief, J. H. Thomas, served as a crucial test. Society circles were all agog. Would the occasion measure up to social standards? Would labor be equal to its new dignity as lackey of the aristocrats?

Labor stood the test. The New York Times from London reports that "the British Labor Party has been tried by a style expert and found not wanting." This expert (none other than the editor of "Tailor and Cutter") is quoted as saying: "There was a pleasant surprise in store. Labor has grown up, has assumed responsibility and gone to a good tailor. Not only relatively but positively is labor to be congratuinted on its appearance at the wedding. There were leading Conservatives and Liberals present with lords and men of great possessions, but labor held its own in the cut of its morning coat and the tilt and gloss of its top hat. Mr. Thomas was well dressed and wore a vest, spats and a boutonniere to brighten up his formal suit. Ma. Henderson, although not the glass of fashion and the mold of form of Thomas, because he lacks the figure and air, offered no room for criticism."

From private sources we are able to supplement this account. It is reported that eighteen members of the British Labor Party will be expelled because of serious deviations in etiquette. One of them, it appears, wore a white cravat instead of the yellow one prescribed, as everyone knows, for conservative labor leaders. Another is accused of a red stripe in his underwear; in defense he has submitted affidavits by his laundryman to the effect that the red was quite accidental. All candidates for office on the labor ticket hereafter must show a diploma from an accredited finishing school. They will be required to take oath on some standard work on etiquette never to shame their constituencies by any lapse in good manners.

HINTS TO HOMICIDES

What follows may have no practical value for Mrs. Snyder or her boy friend. They have chosen their strategy of defense and will have to abide by it. But we offer the comment anyhow. It may be of service to future murderers. Somewhere and somehow our advice may strike fertile soil, like an oat sown casually, etc. We feel very strongly that Ruth Snyder and Judd Gray and their respective attorneys have blundered. Their defense has shown an astounding failure to understand the psychology of the suburbs.

One of the strongest tenets of American middle-class faith is that "love is blind." It is perhaps the cornerstone of the whole structure of popular beliefs. Not merely is love blind, but it is somehow made more beautiful by its blindness. In real estate and bridge and politics we must have sanity, clear vision, etc. But in love—the more cock-eyed and imbecile the better. In fact, when a man and a woman retain their common sense, look normal, talk without twittering, avoid frenzies and otherwise run counter to literary and movie specifications for lovers—their love is obviously a fake.

That was the great chance for Ruth and her boy friend. They had it in their power to make of themselves symbols of love at its blindest and most imbecile. They might have twined their names and their pictures in numberless chromos of Romantic Love, Devastating Passion, Great Primal Instincts, The Passion That Dares, Love That Recks Not. They might have tapped the great reservoirs of American sentimentality and made them to gush and to gurgle. Imagine Ruth and Judd sitting in the court room, gazing love lornly into one another's eyes, seizing every chance for touching hands. Imagine them each insisting that the other was blameless; that he—or she—alone did this thing blindly, driven by an overwhelming love.

"I hardly knew what I was doing, gentlemen. It was something stronger than myself—something that gripped me and made me its slave." How can I explain it, when I do not know myself? I suppose it was love, gentlemen, love—you know."

And we wager that no jury could be found to disturb such a pretty picture by shoving an electric chair on the scene. Such insane passion seems somehow a part of Glorious American Institutions, the Constitution, Dr. Frank Crane, the National Security League.

But instead the two defendants chose to accuse one another, to glare across the table. Any scenario writer could have put them wise.

TO JUDGE THAYER

Tyrant, you, who sit there on the throne,
Leering down on those who dare to moan
At your cruel passion.

Sadist, taking joy in others' pains!
You, we say, sha'n't always hold the reins
In this bold fashion!

For soon a day will come when o'er the land,
A marching throng of men hand in hand;
Shall make you cower!

And taking what is theirs by right and deed,
Shall oust you and the rest who live on greed—
When they take power.

—PUNCHINO.

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION!

THE DAILY WORKER FIGHTS: FOR THE ORGANIZATION OF THE UNORGANIZED; FOR THE 40-HOUR WEEK; FOR A LABOR PARTY

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office of New York, N. Y., under the Act of March 3, 1879.

Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

Vol. IV. No. 96. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $4.00 per year. NEW YORK, THURSDAY, MAY 5, 1927 Price 3 Cents

ILLINOIS MINERS CONVENTION MAY GET MORE ACTION

Militants Would Extend Efforts Over South

By DAN V. GRANT

PEORIA, Ill., May 4. — Thirty-First Consgcutive and Sixth Biennial Convention of the Illinois mine workers assembles here, when the union has already entered into its fifth week of the coal strike and all the forces of organized capital are being utilized, all the powers of the public opinion and capitalist press, in order that a condition may be created that will result in a reduction of wages as against those paid in the mines of this country and also in order to smash the union.

Pres. Fishwick of District No. 12, United Mine Workers of America has already announced thru the capitalist press that only internal affairs of the organization will be transacted at the convention. The progressive delegates will fight against this. The strike is the paramount thing to all the men back on strike. They will bring the strike on the floor of the convention and demand a 100% strike to save the miners' union and better the conditions of the miners, 100% strike to include the unorganized bituminous miners and the anthracite miners.

Victorious Slogans.

The slogans of the Pioneers of the miners' union as well as the progressives of today are, "An injury to one is an injury to all." "Strike one, strike all." This is the spirit that organized and built the miners' union. Lewis-Fishwick's policy of local and district agreements is a drowning man's policy, and will only weaken and cause demoralization among the miners.

The question of strike relief is of vital importance and should become a big issue at the convention, because of the severe suffering among a large number of miners, their wives and children, that will soon exist among the striking miners.

"Save The Union."

Brophy's "Save the Union" program, the progressive delegates will fight for militantly. Such issues as the labor party, nationalization of the mines, organize the unorganized, etc., will come up in the convention and the right kind of action will produce results that count. The Illinois miners must step forward.

The Illinois mine workers with 72,000 dues paying members occupies a key, or strategic position in the central competitive field. Therefore, the proceedings of this convention will be watched with great interest by both the striking miners and the operators.

Try To Smash Union.

Since the war, the Illinois miners have had to go thru three big strikes. The bosses have used all the power in the economic struggle in order to smash the union and compel them to accept lower wages and worse working conditions. Today the Illinois boasses are making preparations to strangle the union and in all probability to operate on a non-union basis.

For instance, the big mine of the Peabody Coal Co., at Taylorville has built a stockade around its property, a six foot fence of closely woven wire strung on iron posts, set in concrete and surrounded by four strands of barbed wire. The same procedure has been followed in several of the mining camps of southern Illinois and similar measures are reported to be in contemplation for Peabody's No. 7 and No. 8 mines near Taylorville.

Two Enemies.

The Illinois miners have not only had to meet these attacks and threatened attacks of their bosses; they have also had to fight the treachery of the reactionary Lewis-Fishwick and Farrington machine which stands in the way of the miners making a militant fight in their own interests. When Judge Anderson issued his famous injunction during the 1919 strike ordering Lewis to order the miners back to work against their will and in violation of the constitution, Mr. Lewis obeyed and said, "I cannot fight the government." Now Lewis expels those who have best fought the bosses.

Frank Is Gone.

The Illinois miners for the first time in many years will be without the services of Frank Farrington, who has been exposed as a Peabody Coal Co., stool-pigeon. But the coal miners of Illinois know that Harry Fishwick and Lewis and the whole bureaucratic district machine are tarred with the same Peabody brush and that Fishwick in particular was Farrington's loyal lieutenant.

Shielding the Higher-ups Through Dismissal of Oil Co. Indictments

Indictments against the Century Consolidated Oil Company, and numerous other defendants, charging a conspiracy to defraud investors through the sale of worthless stock were ordered dismissed yesterday by United States Attorney Charles H. Tuttle.

According to the true bills scores of investors were defrauded of large sums of money through purchase of stock in the corporation, which was represented as a $10,000,000 concern.

A sensational phase of the early investigation was the allegation that the defendants had represented to investors that the late Charles B. Manville, formerly head of the Johns-Manville Asbestos Company, was owner of the Century Company, and that W. H. Sage of the Iowa State Insurance Company was its secretary.

Simpson reported that the death of Manville would retard investigation. The indictment was quashed, despite the efforts of victims to regain their losses said to run into thousands of dollars.

RESCUE WORK IN COAL MINE SLOW; STATE IN CHARGE

EVERETTSVILLE, W. Va., May 4. —Rescue work proceeds ever more slowly, in the fire swept, explosion wrecked, gas filled mine No. 3. of the New England Fuel and Transportation Co. here.

If the crews under the direction of R. M. Lambie, state mine bureau chief, are really being used to save lives, and not just stop the fire and protect reserves of coal property, they are going about it in a round about way.

Possibly Alive.

There are still fifty miners, buried in the depths of the mine, and possibly alive, the official statements hold out little hope. The mine bureau chief has ordered a number of brick walls built, cutting off the burning portion of the mine, and says that after this is done, the rescue crews will try to work along into the deeper parts of the mine.

Then Will "Rush."

Lambie says that rescue crews will be "rushed" to entry number seven, northwest, where seventeen miners were believed to have been at work when the explosion shook the mine last Saturday.

If those men are dead, there is no chance that the others in the mine will come out alive, according to Lambie, twenty-four dead have been accounted for, and the name of another miner, William Jackson, was added today to the list of men entombed.

Another Victim.

A check-up of miners' homes revealed that Jackson entered the mine Saturday and did not come out. If the company estimate is correct the toll of the blast will be ninety-four lives, assuming that the entombed men cannot now be rescued as the mine experts believe.

The body of Harvey McKay, the latest victim removed from the mine, was sent to Elizabeth, Pa., to his relatives.

Checking the position of two mine trains, which were wrecked near where six bodies were found late yesterday, mine experts said the trains were too far apart to have caused the explosion through a collision, as at first believed. It had been the belief of rescuers that the trains speeding to the mine mouth, might have crashed at an intersection, the force of the impact compressing mine gas and causing it to explode.

Two More Navy Fliers Killed; Probe Starts

NORFOLK, Va., May 4.—A board of inquiry started today an investigation into the fatal crash of a naval seaplane in which Commander Hardy S. Page and Lieut. R. V. Pollard were killed. Their deaths marked the tenth fatality in two weeks along naval flyers here, and has resulted in talk of a sweeping investigation that will cover more than this one crash.

Check Jersey Fires

With thirty-six miles of wooded lands in Atlantic County, New Jersey, reduced to a charred and blackened waste, the forest and brush fires which have raged since Sunday night, were reported completely under control yesterday.

VANZETTI CASE NOW FORMALLY BEFORE FULLER

2 Workers Ask Liberty Or Death

BOSTON, May 4.—Governor Fuller at last is formally launched into a full review of the famous Sacco-Vanzetti case.

He received today the petition from Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti which he has demanded before taking up their case with a view to investigating fully the frame-up by which the two Italian workers are scheduled to be electrocuted at Charlestown State Prison on July 10.

The petition to Fuller does not plead for mercy, it spurns any implication of guilt and demands no pardon. Sacco and Vanzetti ask simply for liberty or for death.

The petition, an eloquent document of 16 closely typewritten pages and rivalling Vanzetti's great speech before the cowering Judge Thayer in Dedham court at the pronouncing of the death sentence, was penned laboriously by Vanzetti himself over a period of weeks. Long conferences with Sacco resulted in minor changes while William G. Thompson, chief of defense counsel, has revised the petition to conform with certain legal requirements.

Hope for Review

Members of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, including Aldino Felicani, Joseph Rossi, Gardner Jackson, Emilco Fabbri and Emilio Coda

(Continued on Page Two)

GENEVA CONFAB TO PATCH PLUTE ECONOMY OPENS

GENEVA, Switzerland, May 4. — The International Economic Conference, whose object is the stabilization of tottering capitalist economy, opened today, with 1,500 delegates, representing forty-six nations present.

Interest at the first session of the parley was centered less on the opening address of former Premier Theunis of Belgium, president of the conference, than the arrival of the Russian delegation from Baste. The Soviet Union has steadily refused to participate in Geneva conferences since the Swiss government freed the assassin of Vorovsky, Soviet Union delegate to the Lausanne conference.

Fear European Competition.

That the conflicting interests of European and American industrialists will give rise to a number of heated battles was indicated at the opening session at which American representatives expressed the fear that "European combines would compel Americans to accept fixed monopolistic prices on goods." The truth of the matter is that American industrialists, particularly the steel magnates, fear the competition of the new powerful European cartels.

Another point of conflict will probably be the control that European capitalist countries exercise over the export of raw materials—particularly rubber—from their colonies; while the question of war debts is another that will arouse heated controversy at the parley.

Confab Futile.

In his opening address M. Theunis said, "We have to conduct a general inquiry and a broad survey into the main aspects of the world economic situation and the causes of the present unstable conditions."

The futility of the conference is seen even by the capitalist press. "There is complete harmony only about one point in Geneva," says the Berliner Tageblatt. "This is the extreme skeptical appraisal of the spirit of compromise and conciliation prevailing in all delegations. Geneva has certainly witnessed greater enthusiasm at other occasions."

Soviet Delegation.

The Soviet delegation at the conference consists of Ostinski, Sokolnikoff, Kinchuk, head of the press department, and Stein, head of the German department of the Soviet Foreign Office. Ossinski is head of the statistical bureau, while Sokolnikoff is former finance minister.

Passaic Meetings This Week.

Meetings arranged this week are a Jewish meeting Friday night at Cantors' Hall, Monroe St.; an Italian rally Sunday at Hod Carriers' Hall, Oak St., and a meeting for the Negro workers on Monday.

Treasury Aide Denies Churchill Debt Statement

In support of Secretary Mellon's much disputed statement in regard to the uses to which Britain put American loans, Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, G. B. Winston (above) has made public figures which show marked discrepancies between the figures quoted by Winston Churchill (below) British Chancellor of the Exchequer, and those on the American financial books. Mr. Churchill, for instance, said that Britain spent three billions of her own money here, whereas the figures show only three quarters of a billion so spent.

CHURCHILL'S NOTE PROTESTS MELLON COLLECTION IDEA

"Much at Variance" Say Uncle Shylock's Men

LONDON, May 4.—The British government has sent a new note to the United States, setting forth its position with regard to war debts.

The note was drafted by Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, and is in reply to recent observations by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon on the debt question.

The note will be published here tomorrow.

• • •

Mellon Got The Kick.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A communication from the British government, setting forth certain views on the international war debt question that are at variance with those recently expressed by Secretary of the Trensury Mellon, has been received at the state department, it was learned today.

The British note has been the subject of a conference between President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon and state department officials, but all refused to discuss it in any way.

Making Answer.

Secretary Mellon, it was learned at the state department, is now preparing a reply to the British communication.

It is understood Winston Churchill, Chancellor of the British Exchequer, disputes Mr. Mellon at many points as set forth in Mellon's recent letter to President Hibben of Princeton.

Welfare Island Jailer Peddled Dope, Charge

Jeremiah O'Connor, a temporary keeper on Welfare Island was arrested yesterday on a charge of smuggling drugs to addicts under treatment there. Supervising Warden Henry O. Schleth stated that he found heroin and a hypodermic needle in O'Conner's possession.

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

HANKOW NATIONALIST TROOPS ROUT CHANG TSO LIN IN SOUTHERN HONAN; SOVIET UNION SENDS A NOTE PROTESTING ILLEGAL TRIAL OF CITIZENS

Police Swarm Around The Scab White Printing Company; Unionist Hurt

CHICAGO (FP)—The second week of the White Printing House lockout finds a union man in the hospital, the strikebreakers bunking inside the plant and the police swarming on the outside. Over 200 members of the Typographical No. 16, Pressmen 3 and 4, Bookbinders 8 and Bindery Workers 30 were locked out when the establishment, formerly the Regan Printing House, went non-union overnight. A federal injunction against picketing and other usual strike activities was extended when bearings to make it permanent were postponed.

The shop has lost a considerable part of its business due to switching of magazines to union houses.

RED FIGHTERS PAY HOMAGE TO RUTHENBERG

Ship Builders Guard Ashes of Leader

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

BREMEN, Germany (By Mail).—Three times it sounded:

"Rote Front!
"Rote Front!
"Rote Front!"

It was the parting salute of the Guard of Honor of the Red Front Fighters of Bremen, drawn up in martial array on the railroad station platform. Then the train started. We were on our way, carrying the ashes of Ruthenberg to Hamburg, our next stop.

It was early Sunday (Easter) morning, seven o'clock. As the order was given for the train to depart, the Red Front leader called the comrades to "Attention!" and gave the command for the parting salute. This consists of the leader saying, with considerable snap, "Rote!" (Red) in one syllable. The Red Front Fighters then reply in unison, "Front!" This is repeated twice. The German enunciation is deep and strong, so that when many partake in the salute, it has an

(Continued on Page Three)

MacMURRAY IS REPUDIATED BY ADMINISTRATION

Drafted Threatening Note to China

(By A Staff Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON, May 4.—President Coolidge, thru his famed alter ego, "The White House Spokesman," informed the press that he knew of no threatening note that the Great Powers had drafted in reply to the answer of the Cantonese to the original complaint of the powers. In a vague, uncertain manner, he added, that the representatives of these powers in Peking may have formulated such a comunication, but that he knew nothing of it.

Exactly three hours later, from an unimpeachable source, it was ascertained that the state department had been in possession of the note for several weeks, and that it was President Coolidge's and Secretary Kellogg's timidity about joining in this drastic action it urged that had halted its presentation to the Cantonese. The informant, an internationally known member of Congress, declared that he had read the note and had been shocked by its harshness. He was shown the document by Secretary of State Kellogg, as well as a letter discussing the project, written by the American minister to China, MacMurray.

Minister Drafted Note.

From this source it was also learned that MacMurray and the British representative were responsible for the drafting of the threatening

(Continued on Page Two)

Fear for Lives of Captured Envoys; Powers Would Goad Soviet Union Into War

British Bombard Chinese at Nanking, Kiangyin, When Hit by Stray Rifle Bullet

HANKOW, May 4.—The invading army of Chang Tso-lin, Manchurian war lord, suffered a severe reverse at the hands of Hankow Nationalist troops under the command of General Tang Chen-tse in southern Honan.

The Nationalist troops captured eighteen of the thirty-six field guns belonging to the northern war lords as well as a quantity of military supplies.

The Hankow Nationalist troops have also defeated an army of Chiang Kai-shek's at Kiukiang.

• • •

U. S. S. R. Sends Protest.

PEKING, May 4.—The Soviet Union has sent a note to the Peking government announcing that it will "take suitable steps" if prisoners, citizens of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics, taken in the embassy raids, are tried and condemned by the same courts which tried and condemned the Chinese Communists captured in these raids.

Fear For Prisoners.

Fears are felt in some circles today far the safety of the fifteen of the embassy staff who were arrested during the raids on the Soviet Union embassy.

Packages of linen sent to the prisoners have been returned, leading to the belief that they may have been executed or perhaps secretly deported.

The imperialist powers, particularly Great Britain, are willing to go to any lengths to provoke the Soviet Union into a war, it is believed.

• • •

Appeal To Foreign Soldiers.

HANKOW, May 4.—Handbills signed by the General Federation of Trade Unions petition foreign troops stationed here not to shoot their Chinese fellow-workers. The handbills read: "You sailors on the warships come from the working class and should join us in our common demands. Although your warships threaten the lives of our people, we workers and peasants greet you as our class brothers. Would you kill us?"

• • •

British Bombard Chinese.

SHANGHAI, May 4.—The British gunboat Cockchafer fired at Chinese troops stationed near Nanking today. The British destroyer Wanderer fired upon Chinese at Kiangyin. Both ships had been accidentally hit by stray rifle bullets. The number of Chinese killed by British fire is unknown.

OPEN AIR MEETS IN PASSAIC ARE WELL ATTENDED

Weisbord Speaks to Big Crowds

PASSAIC, N. J., May 4.—A series of open air meetings were held here tonight for the labor candidates Albert Weisbord, Simon Smelkinson and Simon Bambach. In the workingclass centers of the city hundreds listened eagerly as the message of labor was being delivered.

In addition to the candidates the speakers included Sylvan A. Pollack of The DAILY WORKER; Emil Gardos, Workers Party Organizer; Louis A. Baum, secretary of the Photographers' Union, New York, and Herman Gordon and Max Maraish of the Young Workers League.

The labor campaign committee announced today that the labor candidates will be the first three names on the ballot at next Monday's election. Workers when they go to the polls should place crosses next to these three names only, as they are the only nominees who represent the workingclass interests.

Hold Youth Meeting.

Weisbord spoke at a meeting arranged by the Young Workers League held at Hod Carriers Hall, Oak St., on Tuesday evening. Several hundred young workers listened to addresses by Weisbord, Clarence Miller and other speakers.

Arrangements are being made to distribute 10,000 copies of The DAILY WORKER as the climax of the campaign.

Return Lists.

All those who have campaign lists are urged to return them at once to 27 Dayton Ave., Passaic, N. J., so enough money will be on hand for the last days of the compaign. Without money the work will be greatly hampered.

$50,000,000 Profits Not Reported by Mutual Directors

Past Events of Insurance Expose.

On April 11th The DAILY WORKER commenced its exposé of the evils of the weekly payment life insurance business. The chief offenders are the "Big Four," i. e., the Metropolitan, the Prudential, the John Hancock and the Colonial Life Insurance Companies.

On April 21st, William F. Dunne, editor of The DAILY WORKER, wired Governor Smith calling his attention to the charges made in the Harrison articles which charged fraud, misuse of "mutual" funds, interlocking directorates and gross overcharging.

On April 27th Governor Smith replied, saying that he had instructed Supt. of Insurance Beha to make inquiries into The WORKER charges.

On April 29th Mr. Beha wrote to The DAILY WORKER asking for copies of the articles, although marked copies of the articles had been sent to him since the beginning of the series.

The matter now rests in the hands of Mr. Beha. The indications are that Mr. Beha will "pass the buck" to the Governor by recommending a legislative investigation.

BY CHARLES YALE HARRISON

Where the "Big Four" differ from banks is that banking institutions have rather limited control over their deposits. These deposits may be withdrawn at the will of the depositor and the law makes provision for 25% of all deposits to be held in reserve. Practically all bank deposits are subject to check. This privilege of the depositor to call for his money restrains somewhat, the use which bank officials may make of funds entrusted to their care.

Cash Is Power

This happy condition does not exist with the funds held by the "Big Four" weekly payment life insurance companies.

As we have said before on November 31, 1925, the "Big Four" had on deposit over $70,000,000 in their various banks and trust companies.

Such tremendous accumulation of ready cash makes it possible for these Napoleons of finance to exercise a control over American banking houses which they consolidate by the use of interlocked directorates.

For example, the Chase National Bank is the most prominent depository for the funds of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. In 1925 the

(Continued on Page Two)

JAIL THOUSANDS FOR FREE SPEECH

Baldwin Finds No Civil Liberty in England

BERLIN, May 4.—"The Tory Government is increasing its repression on all sections of the movement," says Roger Baldwin, director of the American Civil Liberties Union, describing civil liberties in England in a circular letter.

Baldwin was permitted to enter England for two weeks only after he had promised the Home Office to "abstain from all political activity."

"Free speech as it was so long practiced in England is gone,—though the Hyde Park forums still run Sundays without interference," he says. "But whenever any serious industrial or political situation rises the lid is clamped on agitation through prosecution under 'emergency regulations' or old libel and peace laws.

Arrested For Meeting

During the coal strike from May to December, 1926, 7316 prosecutions were brought, chiefly for speeches, distributing literature and holding meetings. 910 workers were sent to prison. 23 men are still in prison,—ten of them for one to eight years. 2970 strike cases are still pending in the courts.

The court contests and the relief of prisoners has been carried on almost wholly by the Class War Prisoners' Aid, which has the support of many local unions and the left wing of the Labor Party. The Labor Party has had helped only in cases of a few prominent members. Quite the most active group in London is the insurgent left of the Party, many of them former Communists, a strong, vigorous intellectuals and trade unionists with an international outlook. Lansbury, the only old man among them, expresses their policies and makes the contact between the Communist wing and the progressive forces. One of them put the situation graphically by saying that in England now "There is plenty of petrol lying around, but no matches; while in France there are plenty of matches but no petrol." And a German friend here adds that in Germany there are neither.

Communists In Vanguard

The work in England for prisoners on the continent is also entirely due to the efforts of the Class War Prisoners' Aid, which organized the expeditions of parliamentary delegations of Labor members to Bulgaria in 1925 and to Poland a few months ago. The relief work for Bulgarian prisoners and families which followed was independently organized and produced the amazing total of nearly $5000 in small gifts from workers who were themselves in distress. Much publicity has resulted and many meetings have been held in London for these victims of persecution on the continent, but with no such spirit and effect as the great demonstrations in Paris. The Labor Party makes a great gesture of sympathy now and then,—but its foreign affairs department is so anti-Communist that it will not cooperate in any way with efforts in which Communists participate. It takes the lead of the Socialist International, which emphasizes the Russian political prisoners and attacks the Int'l. Red Aid.

Refuse Military Service

In Holland, where I spent a week, there are two situations of interest to us,—one, the prisoners serving for refusal of military service, and the other, the agitation against repression of native movements for independence in the Dutch East Indies. The only political prisoners in Holland are the anti-militarists. Of all European countries Holland alone has a long history of struggle against compulsory military service.

Over 1500 youths have gone to prison in the last 25 years,—most of them from the small towns and country districts of the north and east where the old tradition of freedom among a sea-faring people is strong. Sectarianism and individualism mark Dutch life. Most of the present-day prisoners are anarchists,—not non-resistant pacifists by any means,—with a considerable number of religious pacifists. The morning I visited the prisoners at Scheveningen, where the 25 boys of 19 now serving time are kept together in one section, a Baptist was just leaving after his 10 months' of it. Ten months is the usual sentence by the court-martial. The period of military service is six months.

Colonists, Executed

The situation in the Dutch East Indies, where 50 million natives furnish the basis for the profits by which 7 million Hollanders maintain a rich industrial life, is too complicated to say more than a few words here. As a result of uprisings against oppression last year, 10 native leaders have been condemned to death, 500 exiled to barren New Guinea, and some 1500 are in prison, most of them without trial. The Indonesian students in Holland carry on agitation in their behalf, and an amnesty committee of prominent liberals has been recently formed to intercede with the government. Most of the prisoners had nothing to do with the armed violence. Even the Colonial Secretary stated to me that hundreds were arrested in a time of excitement who were innocent of crime, but who had expressed nationalist sympathies.

WAITING ON NARROW LEDGE FOR RESCUE BOAT

Snapshot of refugees huddled on a high point of the Stag's Landing levee, Mississippi — among which the flooded Mississippi cut a great gap, flooding Greenville and a dozen other towns. These particular refugees, lined up on the narrow ledge with the waters roaring all around them and their homes lost to sight, are from Shaw, Miss., and are awaiting rescue steamers from Vicksburg, Miss., amid mercy aced by the flood.

Beckerman Speaks Hypocritically of Trade Union Unity

By H. H.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., May 4.—A resolution, adopted by approximately 700 workers assembled in a May Day meeting under the auspices of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America calls upon Governor Fuller to release Sacco and Vanzetti.

Ironically, the union smashing gangster Beckerman of New York City graced the platform as the principal speaker of the day.

Wolf in Sheepskins.

Using the vague promise of a forty hour week and an eloquent appeal in behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti as a smoke screen behind which to conceal his treachery to the workers in the needle trades industry, this Judas appealed to the membership of the union for "unity." While at the very moment he spoke the leaders in the furriers' union were being railroaded to jail with the able assistance of "brother" Beckerman and his ilk.

Circus Methods Used.

Apparently sensing the hostile attitude of the audience towards the speaker, the local machine forces made ample preparations to meet the occasion.

Upon introducing Beckerman, the band struck the strains of the "International," whereupon the audience rose. This was apparently done to create the impression that the audience rose to honor Beckerman.

To prevent a possible anti-Beckerman demonstration the committee in charge forbade the distribution of literature of any description in the hall. In spite of this several hundred leaflets, condemning Beckerman, found their way to the audience.

That the clothing workers of this city do not approve of the brand of "unity" which Mr. Beckerman peddles was evidenced by the fact that out of a total membership of over 12,000 in this city scarcely 700 attended the May Day meeting.

The following is a copy of the anti-Beckerman literature above referred to:

* * *

DOWN WITH BECKERMAN.

May Day is the day that International Labor has consecrated to the cause of justice and righteousness, to the abolition of all forms of oppression.

Only those who believe and champion these ideals can express Labor's hopes.

How can A. Beckerman, the man who has joined the bandwagon of the most reactionary wing of the labor movement, the gang that at all times has denounced and expelled radicals of all shades, the man who can also be the jailing of workers who dare to resist these betrayals, HOW CAN HE BE THE MAIN SPEAKER AT OUR MAY DAY CELEBRATION?

How can Beckerman, the sponsor of expulsion and intimidation against the active and militant workers of our union, Beckerman the despot and gangster, HOW CAN HE EXPRESS LABOR'S HOPES?

His presence at a May First Celebration is an insult to all class-conscious workers. To have him as a speaker is a distortion of the high ideals to which this day has been consecrated.

First of May is NOT the day of the Mussolinis, but the day of the hoping oppressed.

Down with Beckermanism. Long live May Day, International Labor Day!

Fight in Shopping District.

A duel in the heart of New York's shopping district yesterday between Charles Picopalli and Stefano Avanzalo, attracted hundreds of men and women, and resulted in the former being taken to Bellevue Hospital with a fractured skull.

Chaplin Would Stop Charges.

LOS ANGELES, May 4.—Attorneys for Charles Chaplin, the comedian, prepared today to file in Superior Court a motion to strike out certain startling changes in Lita Grey's divorce complaint. Conferences to bring about elimination of the objectionable accusations failed.

MacMurray Repudiated By Administration

(Continued from Page One)

note. France, Japan and Italy had agreed, or rather their representatives had agreed to go in on the proposition, but it was understood that the work was that of MacMurray and the Englishman, and that France and Japan expressed the greatest reluctance about the deal. Italy is playing Great Britain's game.

For the time being Coolidge and Kellogg are fighting MacMurray and the British in their demand for taking a vigorous attitude toward the Chinese. How long they will persist in this view is uncertain. There is tremendous pressure being brought to bear on the administration that it back up the blood-and-intervention policy of the British. In China, the traders and suppliers are crying into the skies demanding armed intervention.

Policy Is Uncertain.

The fact that so far Kellogg and Coolidge have not made public the note is a matter for concern. It denotes that they are uncertain as to their policy. If they were fixed in their determination to keep out of China it would be extremely favorable to their cause to publish the document, point out its dangers, and in an accompanying statement announce their intention of maintaining friendly relations with the embattled Chinese. The fact that they have not done so, that Mr. Coolidge saw fit to give the press the impression that there was no note, is subject to but one interpretation—that for the time being they are temporizing and that they may change their position and want to be free to reverse themselves with the least possible trouble if for any reason or the other they decide to do so.

MacMurray Resignation Expected.

For several days there has been a rumor current that MacMurray refuses to be downed, that MacMurray has resigned. The state department and the White House have denied it, but the rumor still is likely to turn out to be true. So far this has been what has happened to international affairs here. The state department and White House deny and invariably it turns out to be exactly the opposite.

Minister Is "Career Man."

There is no doubt but that at present MacMurray is very much at loggerheads with the administration over the conduct of Chinese matters. MacMurray is one of the bureaucratic clique of so-called "career men" in the state department, an arch imperialist and snob. He is said to be a man of capacity and very much English in his manners and way of viewing things. He was ordered returned when the Cantonese began their drive northward last year, but things developed very rapidly and he was told to remain—which was a tough break for the Chinese.

Ambassador MacVey, who has just returned from Japan to take care of personal business matters, has given the president and Kellogg some first-hand information on the Japanese position. It is understood that he has told the president and Kellogg that the wisest policy is one of caution and coolness and strongly urged against hasty decisions.

Note Is Impudent.

Whatever the cause and counsel, for the time being the administration is proceeding carefully and deliberately and by doing so has thrown askew the hot-headed mailed-fist schemes of the interventionists and militarists. There can be no doubt but that Washington's refusal to play in on the threatening note prevented its presentation. The note was declared to have informed Chen, the foreign minister of the Cantonese, that not only make a liar, but that the Cantonese were not to be trusted and fixed a time limit for the offering of "satisfaction." It was in sum and substance a threat and a challenge, in brutal, ferocious language.

The policy of the administration may change. The fact that it is attempting to keep the note a secret is evidence that there is some uncertainty as to what it proposes doing. In the meantime Washington is awaiting MacMurray's withdrawal. It is said that if he gets ont that Admiral Bristol, who has represented the country in Constantinople for a number of years, will succeed him.

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

DIE-HARD BALDWIN HISSED ON STRIKE BILL; CALLED LIAR

Suspend Laborite for Five Days

LONDON, May 4.—Hisses, groans and catcalls greeted Prime Minister Baldwin this afternoon when he arose to defend the labor-smashing anti-strike bill introduced by his die-hard cabinet.

"Liar," shouted John Beckett, Gateshead member, when the prime minister launched into a vicious denunciation of the trade unions. A roar followed from the die-hards on the government benches.

Polite Laborites Shocked.

When David Kirkwood, member from Clydeside, leaped up and challenged the speaker to suspend Beckett, Winston Churchill moved the suspension of Beckett for five days. The vote of 32 to 88 in favor of the motion indicated that Beckett's and Kirkwood's tactics had displeased some of the polite gentlemen sitting on the labor benches.

Vicious Attack On Labor.

The prime minister again launched into his denunciation of British labor affairs after Churchill's motion had been passed.

The government's bill would outlaw general and sympathetic strikes as well as boycotts and would place severe restrictions on picketing.

Sacco-Vanzetti Case Is Formally Before Fuller

(Continued from Page One)

accompanied defense counsel to Dedham jail for a last conference yesterday afternoon before the actual signing of the petition. It was scheduled to be delivered to Governor Fuller today. He has indicated that he will name one or two special representatives, probably the chairman of the state parole board, to report to him on all aspects of the case, including the outrageous Bridgewater case.

President Lowell of Harvard University, visited Fuller yesterday for an hour's conference. Although he would not comment on his visit, it was generally understood that he was closeted with the chief executive over the Sacco-Vanzetti case, probably backing up the arguments of his law department and of his relative, Blakey Lawrence of the Massachusetts Episcopal church in appeals for a complete review.

Outstanding among the appeals received yesterday for a commission was that from the San Francisco branch of the American Civil Liberties Union. It was signed exclusively by people whose names are in Who's Who, including Dr. David Starr Jordan, chancellor of Stanford University, Gertrude Atherton, the novelist, Judge Jackson, H. Ralston, the labor attorney and 47 other distinguished scientists, educators, lawyers, writers and artists.

226 students of Bryn Mawr College and 28 students at Clark University, Worcester, Mass. added their protests to the impending legal murder of the two workers. The Clark students declared, in part:

Strong Statement

"The literary secession of Boston from Massachusetts seems eminently probable of emulation in the judicial secession of Massachusetts from the Union should you fail to intervene in the case of Sacco and Vanzetti. It is up to you whether you will see justice done or whether you will allow a fish peddler and shoemaker to hang and so hang your judiciary in the eyes of all intelligent people. It is possible that you have learned of what the foreman of the jury replied to a friend who had said he did not believe the men were guilty of the crime charged: 'Damn them. They ought to hang anyway.'

"That makes the issue plain enough for you to take immediate action. That makes it plain that the men were tried not for murder, but for not loving the United States, for draft dodging, for circulating radical literature and for speaking disrespectfully of Harvard College. That makes it plain that the men were convicted for being intelligent."

RIVER CURRENTS SWEEP ON INTO NORTH LOUISIANA

Ruin Big Cotton Fields; Thousands Homeless

TALLULAH, La., May 4. — The Mississippi today won northeastern Louisiana from its defenders. Defeated in a two-state struggle with the raging flood, residents of the northeast quarter of the state gave up their fight with the devouring river today to flee for their lives.

From a point 80 miles north of the Arkansas border, the river has become an inland sea, at many points fifty miles wide. Water pours in on nine parishes from three directions. Rail traffic is prostrated and communications are failing rapidly. Thousands of refugees are scattering over the fertile countryside in a wild dash for high ground. Approximately five thousand square miles of the richest agricultural land in the state is laid waste.

Everything Swept Away.

Houses are being swept away, livestock and crops devoured, and hundreds of towns and villages are being evacuated with new hordes taking to the roads southeast and west as the waters rise today.

High Water.

Waters from the Milliken bend overflow reached the edge of Tallulah, the first seat of Madison parish before daybreak. Six to twenty feet of water was anticipated over vast areas of Madison's 650 square miles before noon. To the north, back waters from Arkansas swept down through Morehouse, West Carroll, East Carroll and Richland parishes to join with the Milliken Bend flood in a sweep south through Tensas, Catahoula and Concordia. At Concordia parish the third inflow from the Glasscock break which has been widening hourly since Saturday augments the back levee river in its sweep south along the red crumbling levees threaten to extend the sea into Avoyelles Rapides and St. Landry parishes.

Negroes Victimized.

Vicksburg had more than 7,000 refugees in camp at dayhreak with new throngs arriving hourly. Some pulled across the black and treacherous river through the night in rowboats, others trekked over the bridge from the Louisiana side. Hundreds came in the fleet of rescue boats which was turned into the territory immediately after the Milliken Bend break yesterday afternoon.

Madisen parish, in which the latest break occurred is one of the richest in the state. Cotton is the principal product of Madison's 400,000 acres of normally productive land. There are 18 cotton gins in the parish. Tallulah has a population of approximately 12,000. Tallulah has a population of 3,500. In Tensas parish, which has a population of approximately 12,500, Negroes outnumber whites by three or four to one. The refugee camps are for the whites, the Negro flood victims shift for themselves.

Open New Channel.

Five days dynamiting at Peydras crevasse has opened a spillway 1,600 feet wide into St. Bernard and Plaquemines parishes affording a third channel to the gulf, ever the hopes of the former residents of these parishes.

Argentine Menaces Yankee Exploiters With Tariff Battle

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A thorny threat was projected today among the verbal roses that have marked the speeches at the third Pan-American Commercial Congress here.

On the heels of President Coolidge's renewed expression of political and commercial co-operation with the countries of Pan-America, Luis Duhau, president of the Argentine Rural Society, definitely hinted today at a boycott of American manufacturers to batter down the American tariff wall against Argentine agricultural products.

U. S. Discriminates.

In a speech to the congress today, Duhau declared that Argentine farmers intended to proceed on the principle, "buy from those who buy from us."

Argentina's own tariff, he pointed out, is directed principally at manufactured goods, and "is fiscal rather than protectionist, but almost all the 1,000 duties falling on Argentine products are wholly protective."

He pointed out that in beef alone, Argentine's production is gratting the British market, while the American market is closed because of the tariff wall.

Duhau's declaration of war on the American tariff was the high spot of today's session.

Confiscate Distillery

BAY SHORE, L. I., May 4.—Confiscated by one unarmed state trooper working single-handed, the contents of what police declare to be the largest distillery ever seized on Long Island, were being held for the federal authorities today.

Who is Behind the Prosecution of the Militant Needle Trades Workers?

Who Are Matthew Woll's Fellow Conspirators?

They Are Leaders of the National Civic Federation!

Woll is Acting President of the Labor Hating Civic Federation.

There is a United Front of the Special American Federation of Labor Committee, headed by Vice President Woll, and the National Civic Federation, dominated by the most powerful capitalists in the United States.

Matthew Woll is the connecting link in the conspiracy. With him in the Civic Federation is:

E. K. HALL, Vice President Telephone and Telegraph Co., N. Y. City, 195 Broadway.
The Director Bell Telephone Co. of Canada.
Director Bell Telephone Securities Co.
Director Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.
Director Cuban-American Telephone and Telegraph Co.
Director Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph Co.
Director Electric Bond and Share Co.
Director Electric Utilities Corporation.
Director Lehigh Power Securities Corporation.
Director Michigan State Telephone Co.
Director Mercantile Essex Trust Co.
Director New England Telephone and Telegraph Co.
Director Ohio Bell Telephone Co.
Director Pacific Telephone and Telegraph Co.
Director Pennsylvania Power and Light Co.
Director Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co.
Director Southern New England Telephone Co.
Director Southwestern Bell Telephone Co.
Director Utah Power Securities Corporation.

FIFTY MILLION PROFIT NOT REPORTED BY MUTUAL LIFE DIRECTORS' RING

(Continued from Page One)

Metropolitan balance averaged $20,000,000.

Charles M. Schwab, Henry Ollesheimer, Albert M. Wiggin and Frederick H. Ecker all directors or officials of the Metropolitan are also directors of the Chase National.

The Prudential Life, another member of the "Big Four," employs the same system of interlocking directors.

Among its important depositories are the Seaboard National Bank, First National Bank and the Farmers Loan and Trust Company. On the directorates of these banks we find Howard Bayne, Chellis A. Austin, George M. Lamonte and David F. Houston.

The assets of the "Big Four" are absolutely in the hands of the officials of these companies.

The "Big Four" are supposedly mutual companies, that is to say, they are operated, presumably, in the interests of the 40,000,000 worker-insurers who compose its membership. In theory its machinations are "co-operative."

Actually we find that Haley Fiske, $150,000 a year president is interested in the following multi-million corporations:

Chatham & Phenix National Bank
National Surety Co.
Metropolitan Trust Co.
Pittsburg & W. Va. RR
West Side Belt RR

We find that Frederick H. Ecker, $125,000 a year vice president of the Metropolitan Life, is interested as director of the following chain of gigantic corporations:

Chase National Bank
Chicago, Eastern RR
Denver & Rio Grande
Interboro Rapid Transit
Wheeling and Lake Erie RR
Conn. & Western RR.

One could go on like this indefinitely showing that the officials of these enormous "mutual" life insurance companies have holdings in the very corporations in which the so-called mutual funds are invested.

Very Excessive Group

At this stage of their elephantine development, the "Big Four" have combined assets of about four billion dollars, ever which a small, but select group of financiers exercise dictatorial power.

In defense of retaining these colossal assets, which are called the "reserve," rates are arranged in such a manner that these assets continually keep accumulating. It is claimed that these tremendous trust funds are necessary for the payment of future claims.

The industrial life insurance business is based upon the following theory. While the duration of life of any individual is uncertain and various, the average duration of the lives of a great number is certain.

You cannot tell how long any one man will live, but you can say with absolute certainty that the average age of any 1,000 men, age 35, will attain is 66.8 years, and, that on an average they will live 4 years longer than another 1,000 men who are 40 years old.

In technical language this is termed "expectancy of life." These figures used by the "Big Four," while grossly inaccurate will serve to show that the use of Mortality Tables enables the prediction of death losses to a mathematical certainty.

Make More

If each of these 1,000 men wanted $1,000 of insurance payable at death, the premium for each (overlooking management expense for the moment) is that amount, which invested and compounded at the rate which it is assumed the investment will pay will aggregate $1,000. At the present time, these corporations assume that their investment yield will be 3 or 3½%, whereas in their public reports it is much nearer 6%.

Among these 1,000 persons the number of deaths increase each year. But under the level premium system practiced by these companies, the premium charge is always the same. That is, in the earlier years the insured pays not only a premium large enough to cover his risk, but something over to take care of the future increased risk.

Young Pay Twice

For instance, a man 25 years of age pays twice as much as that which represents the risk of his dying in that year.

Now, weekly payment life insurance policies are forfeited unless full premiums are paid for three years. No cash may be realized on them until they have been in force for ten full years.

Forfeited policies are termed "lapsed" policies. The lapse of a policy means a total loss of his deposits to the insured.

The experience of the "Big Four" shows that the rate at which policies die is greater than the rate at which the insured dies.

The life of a straight life insurance policy is great not because life is short but because the terms are harsh, the rates high and the general policy conditions such that if the policyholder was aware of them at the time of insuring his life, he would not have signed his application.

People who take out fire insurance generally continue it, because fire insurance may be dropped without the insured losing anything.

But in life insurance where large premiums are paid in early years on account of a greater risk in later years, the policyholder who drops his policy not only loses the actual cost of the risk, but money paid for the risk which was never assumed by the company.

During 1923 of all policy terminations only 9% were paid as death claims, 13% as matured endowments and 73% were total loss lapses.

What is the explanation for this terrific lapse rate? It can only be this: Men are induced to take out insurance by misrepresentation or by promises which statistics show can never be realized.

Extravagant management expenses renders the cost of insurance so high that the defrauded policyholders cannot afford to carry it for any length of time. It is assumed that the average duration of weekly payment life insurance is less than three years.

In this respect it is estimated that last year the "Big Four" made over $50,000,000 in profits—profits which the present insurance laws do not compel these corporations to declare to their "mutual" policyholders.

Needle Trade Defense

The Progressive Bakers Club has decided to work for the Bazaar and to help the defense in every way possible. As an immediate measure it was decided that the club should donate all the bread needed in the Restaurant.

Many of the members bought dollar certificates, 50 Bazaar tickets were taken and 25 defense coupon books were taken to be sold by the members.

* * *

Letter From Workers.

Dear Friends:

The Joint Executive Board of our organization acted upon your letter of April 19th and voted to donate neckwear for your Bazaar on May 12th to 18th, and to have a booth at which neckwear will be sold.

Please reserve a booth for us and give us further details if necessary.

Fraternally yours,

—Associated Silk Workers.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day.

RED FRONT FIGHTERS OF GERMANY PAY HOMAGE TO RUTHENBERG'S ASHES; SHIP BUILDERS GUARD

(Continued from Page One)

impressive effect, long to be remembered by those coming from foreign lands where no Red Army in the making has as yet manifested itself.

Power of C. P. of Germany.

The "Free City of Bremen," thru its workers, did itself proud in greeting the ashes of our comrade, Ruthenberg. Bremen was one of the cities that belonged to the Hanseatic League in the centuries gone when commerce and trade were in battle with the feudal barons. Today it has a population of about 300,000, is one of the principal seaports of Germany, as well as one of the centers of its metal industry and shipbuilding.

Nine Communists sit in its municipal council. They were elected with the ballots of 27,000 workers. It compares in size with such American cities as Columbus, Ohio; Jersey City, New Jersey; Los Angeles, Calif.; Providence, R. I.; St. Paul, Minn.; or Toledo, Ohio, cities in which our American Communist movement is as yet weak. A comparison with Bremen gives an idea of the power of the German Communist Party. Bremen is the home of one of the 34 Communist dailies in Germany, the Arbeiter-Zeitung, that serves northwest Germany.

Paper Self-Sustaining.

The Bremen Arbeiter-Zeitung is self-sustaining. In fact, practically all the Communist dailies in Germany are self-sustaining.

It was into Bremen that we came from Bremerhaven, after ten o'clock on the night of Saturday (the Eve of Easter Sunday), April 16th.

Wilhelm Kaspar and Herman Osterlohr, representing the German Communist Party, Otto Lindau, one of the editors of the Arbeiter-Zeitung, and I had made the trip together. We had brought along the huge wreaths of laurel and evergreen, with their wide and long crimson ribbons, all carrying some defiant slogan of the revolution. One of these was, "Ich war, Ich Biu, Ich Werde Sein-Revolution," meaning, "I Was, I am, I Will Be—Revolution." The wreath of the Communist Party in Northwest Germany carried the wording, "Last Greeting to the Revolutionists—Ruthenberg."

Red Front Guard.

The Guard of Honor of the Red Front Fighters of Hamburg was waiting and ready as the train came to a standstill in Bremen. Immediately took the Ashes' Urn in charge, the wreaths were assigned to Red Front comrades who followed the urn, that we who had crossed before them. The remainder of the Red Guard fell in behind. Down the station platform and up thru the station and out upon the open plaza we marched. There an impressive multitude of the revolutionary workers of Bremen, men and women, were drawn up, in two long lines. We marched between them. We were greeted by Paul Taube, political secretary of the Party in Bremen, speaking on behalf of the Communists of Bremen. Wilhelm Kaspar also spoke.

At Bremerhaven, I had had a translator, a young German comrade who had spent three years in the United States, who had translated my remarks. In Bremen I had no translator. I met the situation by making my first address in German, utilizing what German I knew. I said in part:

Ruthenberg Speaks.

"You say that you, the workers of Bremen and of all Germany are the slaves of the Dawes Plan, that the German Republic is a Dawes Republic. Yet we, the workers in the United States, we also know that we are the slaves of the Dawes Plan, since the Dawes Plan is only a part of the capitalist system, a part of the Dollar Imperialism.

"Ruthenberg was our best fighter against the American capitalists, against the Dawesen, the Morgans, the Rockefellers, the Fords and the Garys. He was an agitator, an organizer and educator of the working class, building the struggle for the abolition of capitalists. He was our leader in the struggle for a Soviet America. Ruthenberg is dead. But his spirit lives on. It lives in the growing revolutionary movement of America and of the world."

Then the procession started for the Partei-Haus (The Party Home). The Party has a band of 70 pieces in Bremen. But there is a police regulation that no music is permitted on the streets after ten o'clock at night, except the beating of drums by the police themselves as the occasion demands. So our march was silent, broken only by the regular rhythm of many proletarian footsteps on hard cobblestones. Even at this hour there were many workers who stood on the curb and doffed their caps as we passed.

The Assembly Hall at the Party Home had already been prepared awaiting our arrival. One end of it was entirely set off with red hunting. A beautiful bronze bust of Lenin stood upon a high pedestal, behind it was a flag with the crossed sickle and hammer upon its crimson field. At the foot of the pedestal containing Lenin's hust was a raised dais on which the Ashes' Urn was placed.

Many wreaths filled the space about the dais. There was one from the shipyards workers, who are ouilding the Bremen and the Deutschland, two of the largest passenger ships in the world. They built the Vaterland, the Ilamburg and the Columbus. Usually 20,000 workers are employed at this shipyard. Due to unemployment the number is now only 8,000. Contributions for the purchase of the huge wreath had come from social-democratic workers as well as Communists. The wreath contained the wording: "A Last Greeting to an International Communist." The wreath of the Bremen Red Front Fighters said: "The Spirit of Lenin Spans Both Land and Sea."

Workers Pill Hall.

With the Guard of Honor in place, the hall filled with workers and many wailing outside, there was another short program of speaking. Hubert Serve spoke for the party in the Bremen district. He is also the labor editor of the party organ in Bremen. Serve spoke of the meaning of this occasion and reviewed the life and death of Ruthenberg. Kaspar spoke declaring that it is most significant that, "The banner can stand when its bearer falls. Our banner stands. Millions follow it. Ours will be the victory in spite of everything."

In responding, and again speaking in German, I said in part:

"It is my greatest wish that all the members of our American Communist Party could be present with you here tonight, to witness the great honor that you bestow upon the memory of our dead leader. But even so the knowledge of this occasion will reach even to America and give new spirit and new courage to our American Communist movement, to help us build stronger the Red Fighting Front of our American Communist Party against the enemies of the working class."

Then the Red Guard of Honor watched thru the night. Early in the morning we went on to Hamburg.

Army-Navy Scrap On Colorado Grounding

The army and the navy were engaged in a free-for-all yesterday over the grounding of the hell-belcher Colorado on Diamond Reef in the harbor recently. The navy goldbraids say army engineers failed to show the rock and its depth correctly while the army retorts that the navy needs a few capable navigators for its $27,000,000 ships.

A court martial against Captain Karns and the pilot may result.

Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die!

OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

Hands Off China Meeting at Union Square Saturday

Array of Prominent Speakers

On Saturday, May 7, at 12 noon, Union Square, there will be a mass protest demonstration for Hands Off China. This meeting, called by the "Hands Off China" Committee, will demand a stop to the war on China and to the mobilization of imperialist troops in the Pacific for another war.

Many Labor Speakers.

Leaders of the labor and liberal movement will address the meeting. Approximately forty have already accepted invitations to address the meeting, among them being Scott Nearing, H. M. Wicks, Robert W. Duuu, Beu Gold, Louis Hyman, William Pickens, Albert Weisbord, Pat Devine, Richard Moore, James Walsh, Juliet Stuart Poyntz, P. Pascal Cosgrove, Carlo Tresca and Louis Budenz.

Response ta Cable.

This meeting has been called in response to the special cable from Hankow, the capitol and center of the Chinese Nationalist Government, to the "Hands Off China" Committee, which follows:

"The actions of the American diplomatic and armed forces in China, is making the American people jointly responsible for one of the great crimes in the history of the armed struggle of imperialism against the Chinese revolution.

"The American people must protest emphatically against this shameful assault and must demand the removal of all armed forces from Chinese territory and waters. The war against China threatens not only the Chinese revolution but also the peace of the entire world."

The presence of 48 American battleships in Chinese waters, 10,000 marines and sailors, 12 airplanes and a flotilla of submarines demonstrate that the American Government is not only threatening war but actually waging war against the Chinese people. The only way to call a halt to such procedure on the part of the American Government is for the American people to raise such a protest that the American Government will be compelled to obey.

All workers, therefore, forward to the Union Square "Hands Off China" demonstration, Saturday, May 7, 12 noon.

Put Some Power In That Kick!

Don't waste your energy in idle protest. When reaction attacks The DAILY WORKER and you want to fight—strike your blows where they will be most effective.

Kick in With a Sub.

Every subscription is a striking answer to the enemies of Labor—every sub is more strength to the blows that are dealt every day by The DAILY WORKER.

Don't only kick. . . . . Kick in!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

Outside of New York	In New York
Per Yr. $6.00	Per Yr. $4.00
Six Mo. 3.50	Six Mo. 4.50
3 Mo. 2.00	3 Mo. 2.50

The DAILY WORKER
33 First Street
New York

Enclosed $ for mos sub to

Name .....
Street .....
City .....
State .....

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

Chinese Labor Not So Docile Anymore

By RONALD ROSS

HANKOW, April 15. (By Mail)—Where christianity and curiosity have brought a hundred foreigners into China, the cheapness of labor has brought thousands.

The men who came because labor was cheap have brought a new era into China, the industrial era. China has changed in many ways since the first foreigner, seeking cheap labor, arrived in the country, but through all the changes wages have remained low. A man could be hired to do for ten cents a day in China what a man would not do for a dollar a day in the West. And it was easy labor to handle, ignorant, docile, subservient.

Now Want Something.

Today, decades later, wages are still low, but labor is not so docile as it has been. There is a tendency to ask for a very few of the amenities of existence, a holiday a week, security of job, wages and hours that make possible bite a little nearer the human, a little less the dog.

We hear a great deal these days from employers of labor, both foreigners and Chinese, of the unreasonableness of labor demands. Glaring examples are cited. Wage increases which amount to a hundred per cent. Reduction in hours that, it is claimed, would materially handicap business. A voice in the control of industry. A check on dismissal, holidays, bonuses, sick leave, union leave, and others. Employers have been appalled.

Managers Feel Loss.

Two views can be taken of the labor situation that is developing in China. The first is to look at it from the standpoint of the manager, the man who sees labor as one factor on a ledger which must show a substantial balance on the credit side at the end of the year.

This manager shows how the new demands of labor affect his industry, how they cripple him, how they make it impossible for him to declare the enormous dividends which apparently are necessary to keep his stockholders satisfied, how, unless these labor demands are moderated, he must close his plant. What, he asks, would happen to labor then?

To Make Ends Meet.

This is one way of looking at the situation. The other is the way of the laborer. The laborer is not looking at a ledger that shows profits at the end of the year. He is looking at a ledger, which never shows a copper on the credit side, which, at best, can be made to balance, and whose items are, on the whole, the hard realities of enough rice to keep alive, enough cotton to cover his back, enough silver pieces to pay a landlord so he can keep the roof of a hovel over his head. On the other side of his sheet, he puts his wages—ten cents, twenty cents, thirty, forty, fifty cents a day. Scarcely ever it is as much as a dollar.

He is in the position of a man who is trapped, who has been caught in the rollers of a machine and who is asked to bear the pain because if the tension on the machine is relaxed, the machine will stop, and if the machine stops, he will starve. The man in such a position, aware only of enormous suffering, cannot look calmly at the consequences of the stopping of the machine. He cries out against his pain, fights madly to be free.

Master or Servant.

In these two ways, the situation of the laboring man in China can be viewed. We can look at it from the point of view of the man in the ricksha, neatly dressed, comfortable, well-fed, just up from a good night's sleep in a good bed and just having finished a satisfying breakfast, or we can look at it from the point of view of the shabby, dirty wretch in the shafts, half-fed, shivering in his rags in the winter time, with no warm shelter at night, and panting in the summer under the hot blasts of the sun, always miserable, always just half-alive.

In viewing this situation from either angle in the past, there has been a tendency to speak in general terms, on the one hand of per cent, profits, dividends, wage scales and cost of labor, and on the other of union rights, union rules, strong organization.

Causes of Unrest.

There may, however, be given pictures instead of terms. Tha lives of the workers in China will be explained. Those lives are the best explanation of the so-called "labor unrest." It is true, industries must not be strangled, but it is true also that without strangulation most of the industries of China could be reorganized in such a way that children under ten and eight would not work for twelve hours a day in dark factories for a few paltry cents, and that tired, worn women would not sit all day over steaming tables in silk factories, while their babies cry from discomfort and hunger, or mercifully sleep, in baskets of rags, under the machines.

If to ask for a reorganization which would eliminate these evils is to be dangerous, subversive to the interests of investors in China, then the Nationalist movement as a whole, is a dangerous agent.

But by the foreigners, if not by the foreign employers of labor, such a condemnation cannot be made without some sense of guilt, for every foreigner in China knows that such conditions as exist in the mills of China are unthinkable in his homeland. He knows that, at home, the existence of similar conditions, a little over a century ago, is a lost upon the memories of his grandfathers. His homeland may still be far from a heaven for tha workingmen, but it is no longer quite such a hell, as he and his Chinese imitators, have made of China.

This afternoon, in four hours, the writer was guided rapidly through four mills. My impression at the end of it is that the industry of China is built up of the energy of pale-faced women and wistful-faced children.

Twelve hours a day is a long way. It means rising at dawn, and laboring till twilight. There is no sun. Or else it means entering an electric-lighted factory at twilight and working till dawn.

In other countries, labor has fought for years against the twelve hour day, and in most of the world it is now legally conceded that twelve hours a day is a crime.

Women and Children Toil.

It is children and women, as well as men, who labor in China. Laws that have long since been considered necessary for humanity's sake in the West have not yet been passed in China. In other countries labor has fought for special laws for women, and it is now legally conceded in men, twelve hours a day is even more of a crime than to work the men.

Other countries have fought against child labor, and it is now legally conceded that to make tiny children labor at machines, to keep them out of the sunlight and out of schools, to stunt their bodies and warp their souls in dark, unventilated factories or in mines is the worst crime of humanity.

In China the time has not yet come when it is legally conceded that these things are crimes, and factories, belonging both to foreigners and Chinese, work their laborers, men, women and children, twelve long hours a day, and often more.

How Much For It?

What in wages does this long day of labor mean to the laborers? It varies. In a British-owned press packing plant I visited today, where hundreds of women and children work twelve hours a day sitting on stone floors loosening cotton from cotton bales, breathing air that is so thick with cotton dust that the room seems in a perpetual fog, the average wage per day is twenty coppers.

There is one room where there is more skilled labor, men laborers, who work around the packing machine. One man in this room crouches down at regular intervals before one of the great metal arms of a huge wheel, and, straining every muscle, jars the great wheel from a dead stop, and pushes it into place under the machine. Other men take care of other phases of the actual binding of the packages. The men in this room are the plutocrats of the factory. They get 130 coppers a day.

Disease Prevails.

The atmosphere in the rooms of the factory is deadly. There is much coughing, many wan faces with high spots of color in the cheeks. It is a place where death lurks in the air. But the factory never loses a cent when a workmen is sick. There is no provision for care of the laborers on the premises. There are no holidays with pay. If they take Sundays off, they lose a day's pay. If they take two hours off, they lose a fraction of the day. Labor in this mill is a figure, a factor, an item on an expense sheet; it is not viewed in terms of human lives.

Children Swarm.

There were children in this factory, swarms of them, sitting on the floor, sorting out the cotton. Several of them let me take their picture. The picture is reproduced here. These small children are the workers in a British press packing company here. They spend twelve hours a day in rooms filled with cotton dust. They have little time out for their meals. And they get twenty coppers a day, or less.

When the Nationalist forces came to Hankow last fall, there was a strike at this factory. The workers asked for better conditions and better pay. Very little was gained and the workers had to go back to their jobs. The union says that the strike was poorly organized.

Very Low Pay.

It is to this factory that the men come who are seen on the Bund carrying enormous bales of cotton from the river docks. These bales weight 290 catties. They are dumped in rooms on the ground floor of the building. They must be carried up three flights of stairs. A man gets 13 coppers for carrying a big cotton bale to the top of the building. The workmen say that it wouldn't be such wretched pay but for the fact that there are more men than bales and they have to wait their turn.

Chinese Mill Worse.

I saw three other mills this afternoon. The worst of the four was a Chinese silk mill. The best was a Japanese weaving mill. In all the mills, the day was twelve hours long, and women and children did most of the work.

The silk factory was a horror. Babies huddled in baskets under the machines. Women and girls in long lines in a badly lighted, badly ventilated room, with their hands in steaming water in which the cocoons are soaking. The air thick with moisture and the smell is bad. Everywhere babies, and tiny children, too young to work.

Better Under Nationalists.

For the workers in this wretched factory, the coming of the Nationalist Government has meant a little relief. They received a twenty per cent increase in wage, and a day's holiday in each week. The wages now are sixty coppers a day for children and thirty-five cents a dny for women. So these women now get about $10 a month for feeding spindles twelve hours from the water-soaked cocoons.

Anyone who lives in Hankow knows what $10 a month means—the poorest food, clothes little better than rags, a hovel to live in—and for these women the deadly wearing, with these women the machines all day, lying in neats of rags, and families to take care of and feed in the evening after the day's work is done. The women are thin and pale in this silk factory. They never see the sun.

Same Long Hours.

The two other factories was visited were weaving factories, one a Japanese factory, one a Chinese factory. The Japanese factory was a model factory for Hankow. That means that the rooms were light and the ceilings high. Wages are a little better here also,—forty cents a day or $12 a month. But here, too, most of the workers are women and children and the day is twelve hours. Here we find also the deadly strain in the faces of women and children who all day long tend a whirring machine in a room with hundreds of other machines so that the noise is deafening.

The coming of the Nationalists has meant an increase of wages to these workers—an increase to forty cents a day. But forty cents a day means only $12 a month. And the day is still twelve long hours. Here, as in all the other factories, one hears about the union that is fighting for better wages, better conditions. The union in this particular factory has succeeded in securing medical care for the workers, and a tiny hospital room.

The Japanese weaving mill is far better than the Chinese mill I visited. The reason given is that the Chinese mill is poorly financed. Rooms here are dark, poorly ventilated. Hours are long, work hard and nerve-wrecking, pay only thirty-five cents a day.

Work at Home Also.

Four factories in an afternoon means only the most hasty inspection. There is no time to stop and talk with workmen to find out what is back of these tired faces, no chance to chat a little and find more about the lives that these people return to after twelve hours of labor.

But these are married women who have homes, no matter how poor, that must be cared for at night. These women do not have nurses to take care of their children while they go out to their jobs—and they do have children They go home to cook rice and a few vegetables for their families and go to bed in the midst of squalor; to get up at five o'clock the next morning, to hurry through early morning duties and to be on hand when the whistle blows and the sun rises at 6.

This is factory life in Hankow. Talking to union leaders later, I was told, yes, these factories were organized; they were doing their best to get all the increases possible, to get shorter hours, regular holidays, decent working conditions. I mentioned to these leaders that to the managers of the factories, this union movement was viewed as a menace, dangerous, threatening, unreasonable.

At the mention of the word unreasonable, the union leaders smiled. They were mill workers themselves. All their lives they have been wondering about "reasonableness." They asked me about it. All their lives, they said, they had been looking for some "reason" for their existence. So far, unless to starve that others might be clothed and fed, they had found none. Where, they asked, was the reason in this?

It was a hard question to answer.

We Will NOT Be Silenced

It has required the most heroic self sacrifice to establish our paper. Thousands of workers in the mines, mills, factories, and farms have given their utmost to found The DAILY WORKER, labor's militant fighting organ. For three years it has been maintained by the dollars and dimes which the workers have painstakingly eked out of their meager pittance.

Shall we now allow our paper to be silenced by organized reaction? Shall the dollar patriots triumph? Shall the voice of labor be crushed?

No! A thousand times—no! We have shown marvels of proletarian initiative and courage in the creation of The DAILY WORKER. We will show still more in the defense of our paper against attack.

Forward all! To work! Every comrade! Every party unit! Every red-blooded, fighting worker! Stand by our paper now. Speed your contributions to the defense fund. Let your dollars be your answer to the attack upon The DAILY WORKER.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of
..... dollars .... cents to the Ruthenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....
Address .....
City .....
State .....
Attach check or money order.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.

50 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone Orchard 1020

SUBSCRIPTION RATES

By mail (in New York only): 1 yr. $6.00; 6 mos. $3.25; 3 mos. $1.75; 1 mo. 65c
By mail (outside of New York): 1 yr. $6.00; 6 mos. $3.00; 3 mos. $1.50; 1 mo. 60c
Foreign countries: 1 yr. $8.00; 6 mos. $4.00; 3 mos. $2.00

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 50 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Get MacMurray Out of China.

Our Washington correspondent informs us that the state department is in possession of a draft of a reply to Eugene Chen's note requesting an investigation of the Nanking incident which not only insults the Cantonese government by calling them liars, declaring that the nationalists cannot be trusted and fixing a time limit for "satisfaction." The note is claimed by congressmen close to the administration to have been drafted by the cheap adventurer and interventionist, MacMurray, who is American minister to China.

The fact that the government turned it down only confirms our conviction that the imperialist policy of this country is in sharp conflict with the policy of Britain. But the refusal of the administration, in order better to serve its own imperialist aims, to approve the MacMurray proposal, does not by any means clarify the situation in China. As long as MacMurray, who has been used as the pliant tool in the British game of frightfulness against the nationalist liberation movement, remains in China, there is danger of American participation in other "Nanking incidents" in defense of the policy of Britain. Rumors in Washington are persistent that MacMurray has resigned because his policy has been repudiated. If he has not resigned he should be kicked out.

This clash of imperialist interests in China should be welcomed by all friends of the liberation movement, because the wider the breech becomes between the predatory powers the better chance there is for the early triumph of the nationalist forces.

MacMurray, the apostle of a policy of wholesale murder of the Chinese, is responsible for American participation in the shelling of Nanking and hence he fights against the suggestion of Chen that the whole affair be investigated so that all the world may know the fact regarding his own role in that monstrous unprovoked massacre of defenseless inhabitants of that unfortunate city. This cowardly butcher should be removed from his post, not as a means of breaking off relations with China, but because of the facts at hand that prove MacMurray to be deliberately plotting joint intervention with Britain against the Chinese liberation movement. Whoever succeeds him will also be an imperialist agent, but one who carries out a policy of awaiting developments, rather than plunging madly into joint intervention, the effect of which can aid only British imperialist policy.

Of course, in carrying out its own policy, the United States government hopes that Britain will, in the meantime, break her neck in China, which will enable Wall Street to dominate the situation. It is a long-distance policy that has other potentialities not anticipated by the Coolidge administration.

With the bloody clutches of Britain withdrawn from the throat of China, the Nationalist movement will be able to consolidate itself, so that it can in due time give battle even to the machinations of American imperialism.

We fight against the domination of Britain in China, not because we intend in any manner to aid American imperialism, but in pursuit of a policy that we are convinced will enable China to take advantage of the antagonism between the imperialist powers to drive out all the imperialists—American as well as British.

Manufacturers' Political Platform.

John E. Edgerton, president of the national association of manufacturers, announces that a "platform of American industry" is to be presented by his association to the two old parties to incorporate in their 1928 platforms; the platform is to be "non-partisan, non-religious, non-sectional and non-doctrinarian." He ought to have added "non-union," the manufacturers' euphemism for "scab."

Many of the planks of the platform he will advocate are already incorporated in the programs of the old parties. Whether they are incorporated therein or not is of slight consequence, because, after all, old party platforms are only vote-catching devices; not programs of action. Just why the manufacturers should want their demands incorporated in a platform is puzzling, for the reason that they usually get what they want anyway. The only times they fail to realize their demands is when they conflict with those of a more powerful economic group that dominates a certain administration, as in the case of the Wilson administration serving the House of Morgan to the detriment of certain industrialist groups in the Middle West.

What the manufacturers really want is anti-union and anti-strike legislation and they want the two old parties to declare for it. In that respect they are short-sighted, for such planks would alienate the votes of workers, votes that are needed in election campaigns. Furthermore such planks would make it impossible for the very good friends and faithful servants of capitalism, the officialdom of the American Federation of Labor and the grand chiefs of the railroad Brotherhoods, to "reward their friends" by approving candidates selected by these old parties.

Surely the national association of manufacturers does not want to deprive Mr. Green, Mr. Lewis, Mr. Woll and the other betrayers of labor of their opportunity to serve them in the election campaigns!

Workers Party Women's Industrial Conference Friday

The Second Party Women's Industrial Conference will be held Friday, May 4th at 8 p. m., at 126 East 16th Street, New York City.

All delegates at first conference plus the following comrades must attend:

1.—Representatives from shop nuclei in shops employing women.

2.—All Party industrial organizers.

3.—Individual comrades working in shops employing women.

4.—Section and sub-section organizers for women's work.

This conference will be of especial interest. Report on activities and new tasks will be taken up.

Read The Daily Worker

The Birthday of Marx

So vitally significant is the present world position, with the period of the decline of capitalism and the proletarian revolution in the ascendancy, that the life and works of Karl Marx take on a new image. Today that man was born one hundred and nine years ago, just after the close of the Napoleonic wars.

When we consider other historical figures of that time they seem to belong to the dim past, while Marx is of today. Others who played their roles upon the stage of history in his time recede further and further into the past.

But Marx looms ever larger and his impress upon the world grows deeper and deeper.

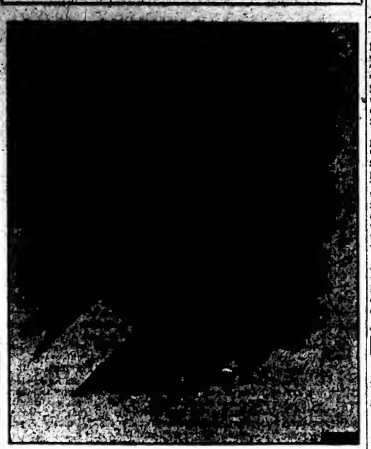
Participating in the revolutionary struggles of his day he formulated the theory of historical analysis that enabled him to see beyond those struggles. In the light of the revolutionary periods of 1830, of 1848, he re-examined the history of the past and discovered that the development of civilization can be explained only by analyzing the struggles between various classes; that each class as it appears upon the scene of action develops its own ideology which is a reflex of its economic condition in society. The real test of any historical theory is its ability to explain its own origin and development. Marxism has stood that test. By applying the Marxian theory itself we can explain Marx and his work. There may have been, before the period in which Marx lived, men as capable as he of analyzing social forces, but without the environment in which Marx lived they could not have made the contribution that he made. Only in a period of intense class conflicts, such as the first half of the past century, could the motive force in history become clear. Man Marx perceived that the history of his day was a history of class struggles, he proceeded to take inventory of all past history from the days of the tribal patriarchy and discovered the law of history.

But he was not content merely with discovering laws for explaining past history. He proceeded to formulate methods of making history, which impelled him to endeavor to discover in the society in which he lived the class that would next rise to power, the class that must be the carrier of the future development of society. That class, as Marx proved, must be the proletariat—the workingclass.

He declared it to be the dismal destiny of the capitalist class to sink into the grave prepared for it by the workingclass. To then set about studying the methods by which this could be brought about. In every revolution he sought the protolarian thread that ran through it, proving that it was the workingclass that always bore the brunt of the fighting even in the capitalist revolutions against feudalism. In the Paris Commune of 1871 Marx saw the proletariat for the first time emerge as a ruling class and he drew therefrom the revolutionary lessons that served, long after his death, to guide the revolutionists in Russia in 1905 and again in 1917 when they had to construct a new revolutionary form of state. The germ of the Soviet form of government was found by Marx in the combined legislative and executive system developed during the short life of the Commune. Marx was the first to perceive, upon the basis of that experience, that the workingclass cannot use the old cumbersome state apparatus for revolutionary purposes.

In studying revolutions of his day and the revolutions of the past he also developed the theory of revolutionary uprising by recognizing the fact that insurrection is an art, something that must be studied in all its intricacies. This part of his work was utilized by Lenin and the leaders of the Russian revolution in all the conflicts with the enemy before and after the 1917 revolution. And a special institute exists in Russia for the purpose of gathering every scrap of the writings and correspondence of Karl Marx and his great co-worker, Frederick Engels, as a guide to workingclass leaders in their struggles against the master class.

Marx is the only figure of his time who influences society to this day because he worked for the triumph of the workingclass and it is the triumph of the workingclass in Russia that vindicated the theoretical works of Marx and created, for the workers and peasants' government in Russia, a monument that testifies to the utter bankruptcy of all the capitalist class economists and historians who have tried on hundreds of occasions to refute the Marxian conclusions.



One-sixth of the entire world is dominated by the class that achieved power by following a leadership trained in the Marxian school and as time goes on millions of other workers are coming to recognise this leadership.

Though dead more than forty years the influence of Marx, the mighty thinker and determined revolutionist, is constantly growing and will continue to grow until the society that he predicted is established in every spot on earth.

A Defense Party.

The Neutral Workers Youth Center of Brownsville, ran a little affair at their headquarters which resulted in a net income of $80.00. They promise to improve on this sum at their next defense party if they can get a good speaker with whom to attract a larger crowd.

HIS BIRTHDAY.

May 5, 1818—March 14, 1883

Greetings to the Workers of the World

The following workers "shake the Hand of World Labor" with comradely Greetings on the International Holiday of Revolutionary Labor. We send fraternal greetings and a comradely handclasp.

Akerson, Bror, Little Falls, Minn.
Anonymous, Wilmington, Del.
Antonovich, New York City.
Abek, New York City.

Belkin, Sam, Cleveland, Ohio.
Bimba, A., New York City.
Budrewitz, New York City.
Benus, Louis, Long Island City.
Bakatich, J., Chicago, Ill.
Buckenberger, P. N., New York City
Bartoff, J., Cloveland, Ohio.
Boehm, Alex N., New York City.
Boehm, Alex N., New York City.
Bozvary, John, Schenectady, N. Y.
Benus, Louis, New York City.
Brisk, S., New York City.
Berich, J., Chicago, Ill.
Buiatkin, J., New York City.

Chilopis, New York City.
Coogler, New York City.
Cherin, Herman, Chicago, Ill.

Duchan, E. A., Cleveland, Ohio.
Dorosal, P., New York City.
D'Rossi, Peter, New York City.
Extz, New York City.
Elges, Pauline, Detroit, Mich.
Epstein, Sophie, New York City.

Field, Edward K., Detroit, Mich.

Gudzin, A., Schenectady, N. Y.
Greyer, Sylvia, New York City.
Gego, John M., Chicago, Ill.
Glick, New York City.
Gordon, P., New York City.
Gordon, M., New York City.
Greenberg, J., New York City.
Goldsmith, Sonya, New York City.
Gross, S., New York City.
Gottheif, E. B., Cleveland, Ohio.

Hilderbrant, Chas., Schenectady, N.Y.
Heyden, William, New York City.
Heinrich, New York City.
Holland, Anne, Norwaik, Ohio.
Holmberg, J., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Hyrkas, Regina R., New York City.

Jensen, Jens, Bridgeport, Conn.
Juraleff, Steve, Detroit, Mich.

Korn, Rudolf, Schenectady, N. Y.
Kosma, A., Brooklyn, N. Y.
Kovacevich, G., Chicago, Ill.
Khehen, John, New York City.
Keppel, New York City.
Katrovich, New York City.
Kazirovich, New York City.
Koenig, Edward, Brooklyn, N. Y.
Krotofil, Anton, Norwalk, Ohio.
Krotofil, Katharine, Norwalk, Ohio.

Klukka, Paul, New York City.
Lapsky, John, New York City.
Lomos, Sam, Cleveland, Ohio.
Lupelka, J., Cleveland, Ohio.

Maselka, J. S., Cleveland, Ohio.
Mitrovic, A., Chicago, Ill.
Milior, P., New York City.
Medoia, New York City.
Mizara, R., New York City.

Nevin, Rose, New York City.
Nadler, New York City.
Nelson, C., Cleveland, Ohio.

Perechodkie, A., Cleveland, Ohio.
Pabalis, J., Cleveland, Ohio.
Flanin, Ilelen, New York City.
Petersön, E., New York City.
Prtenjaca, Luka, Chicago, Ill.
Padolsky, New York City.
Persson, Harry, Hicksville, L. I.
Persson, Fritz, Hicksville, L. I.

Rady, Joe, New York City.
Ruderman, I., New York City.
Robins, Bele, New York City.
Robkov, Jure, Chicago, Ill.
Rudich, S., Chicago, Ill.
Rade, Joe, New York City.
Ragozin, R., New York City.

Soininen, Jack, Schenectady, N. Y.
Shapiro, Sam, New York City.
Schlossberg, David, Cleveland, Ohio.
Sholom, Norman, New York City.
Shafberger, N., New York City.
Savitzky, New York City.
Surba, New York City.
Sewie, New York City.
Simon, Dr. W., New York City.
Stone, New York City.
Seidel, New York City.
Sherry, New York City.
Sockol, Arthur A., Stamford, Conn.
Sockol, Samuel, Stamford, Conn.

Telcich, R., Chicago, Ill.
Turkin, New York City.
Tamkus, K., Cleveland, Ohio.

Verhagen, Anth., Schenectady, N. Y.
Verinn, A., Chicago, Ill.

Weiner, New York City.
Werontsov, New York City.
Waeckel, Maurice, Philadelphia, Pa.
Wright, Willis L., Great Falls, Mont.

Yankelson, B., Cleveland, Ohio.

Zimik, New York City.
Zaslawsky, T., New York City.
Z. V., Passaic, N. J.

DRAMA

"In Abraham's Bosom" Awarded Pulitzer Prize

"Paul Green, author of "In Abraham's Bosom" was awarded the winner of the 1926 Pulitzer prize for "the most original American play." The drama, which deals with Negro life, was produced by the Provincetown Players at their little theatre on MacDougal Street, and later transferred to the larger Garrick Theatre.

The author is an instructor in philosophy at the University of North Carolina. He has turned out some forty one-act plays, which have been presented from time to time by Little Theatre groups throughout the country. "In Abraham's Bosom" was the first of his plays to be presented by a professional company. The production is being revived by the Provincetown Playhouse this Sunday night with the original cast.

"The Field God," Paul Green's other play, which is now playing at the Greenwich Village Theatre, will be moved to an uptown theatre Monday night. The playhouse is not decided upon as yet.

Broadway Briefs

"What Anne Brought Home" Larry E. Johnson's comedy now current at Wallack's, will celebrate the 100th performance tomorrow night.

"Triple Crossed," a new mystery play by F. G. Martin opens tonight at the Morosco theatre. Patricia Barrow, Robert Toms, Vera Maxwell and Frank Morton are in the cast.

"Grand Street Follies of 1927" which opens at the Neighborhood Playhouse Tuesday evening, May 17th, is now being rehearsed by Agnes Morgan. Max Ewing who composed much of the music for the Follies of 1925 has written several numbers of the current edition.

Ian Maclaren for several years has been a member of the permanent company of the Neighborhood Playhouse is going to California to play Christus in the Pilgrimage Play, "The Life of Christ" which is presented this summer in Hollywood.

Earl Carroll Vanities will join hands in donating their service in a special benefit performance tomorrow afternoon for the relief of the Mississippi Valley Flood sufferers.

Early next season Brook Pember-

LAURA HOPE CREWS

Gives a delightful and charming performance in "Mr. Pim Passes By." Milne's amusing comedy at the Garrick theatre.

Rosalip Lea, titled, "Colonels' Ladies." Rosalip lea, titled, "Colonels' Ladies." Miss Lea is a writer of short stories. This is her first play.

Proceeds of Russian Picture at Trenton to Go to N.Y. Cloakmakers

TRENTON, May 4.—For the first time in the city of Trenton the people will have the opportunity to see the new life of Russia before them on the screen this Saturday evening May 7, 8 p. m. at the Y. M. C. A. Auditorium, corner Clinton and State Sts.

In New York City, "Breaking Chains" made a tremendous success, it appeared several times at the Waldorf Astoria Theatre, corner 50th St. and Broadway, and at the present time this film is being shown throughout the United States.

The proceeds of the shows will go to defend the arrested cloakmakers and furriers under the newly organized Joint Defense Committee of Trenton. So far Trenton has raised about $5000.00 for needle trade workers.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

AMUSEMENTS

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN
TWICE DAILY, 2 P.M & 8 P.M.
RINGLING BROS. and BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS
Incl. among 10,000 Marvels PAWAIL SACRED WHITE ELEPHANT
TICKETS at GARDEN BOX OFFICE 8th Ave. and 49th St., and Gimbel Bros.

Theatre Guild Acting Company in PYGMALION
GUILD THEA., W. 52 St. Evs. 8:15 Mats. Thurs. and Sat. 2:15
Next Week—The Second Man

MR. PIM PASSES BY
GARRICK 65 W. 35 St. Evs. 8:30 Mats. Thurs. and Sat. 2:30
Next Week—Right You Are

NED McCOBB'S DAUGHTER
John Golden Th. 58 E. of B'way. Little Mts. Thu. & Sat. 2:30
Next Week—The Silver Cord

Sam H. HARRIS THEA. West 42nd St. Twice Daily, 2:30 & 8:40
WHAT PRICE GLORY
Mats. (exc. Sat.) 50c-$1. Evgs. 50c-$2

EARL CARROLL Vanities
Earl Carroll Thea., 7th ave. & 50th St. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30

TIMES SQ. Thea., W. 42 St. Evgs. 8:30. Mats. Wed. & Sat. 2:30
CRIME
with James Rennie & Chester Morris

The LADDER
Now in its 4th MONTH
WALDORF, 49th St., East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT.

Bronx Opera House 149th St. and 3rd Ave.
Pop. Prices. Mat. Wed. & Sat.
"KATY DID"
A New Jewish Comedy

WALLACK'S West 42nd Street. Mats. Tues. Wed. Thurs and Sat
What Anne Brought Home
A New Comedy Drama

GROVE ST. THEATRE
Bleek west of 6th Ave. Subway Sta.
DORSHA presents the THEATRE of the DANCE
Featuring the Dorsha Ballets
This week only (May 2 to May 7), Evenings at 8:30, Sat. Matinee at 2:30.
Phone Spring 9797

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

BOOK BARGAINS
AT SPECIAL PRICES

THE RED INTERNATIONAL OF LABOR UNIONS

Decisions and Resolutions of the First (1921), Second (1922) and Third (1924) Congresses Held in Moscow.

For every worker—and for the trade unionist especially—these booklets give a ready source of invaluable information. Separately each of these sell for 15 cents. Together with

STRIKE STRATEGY—By Wm. Z. Foster (25 cents)—a book that should be read by every militant worker.

(A total of 70 cents)

ALL FOR 50 CENTS

NOTE. Books offered in this column on hand to a limited quantities. All orders rush and filled in item as received.

Organized Labor — Trade Union Activities

News and Comment
Labor Education
Labor and Government
Trade Union Politics

Policies and Programs
The Trade Union Press
Strikes—Injunctions
Labor and Imperialism

Sacco-Vanzetti Appeal Ended But Air is Red Trade Just Substituted

Civil liberties on the air got another jolt Tuesday when Mrs. Mary F. Ford was cut off the microphone in the midst of a nationwide broadcasting Democracy in a country which kept out of the world war.

She was speaking over WGN, at a dinner given in honor of Mlle Gade Corman, the English Channel swimmer at the Hotel Majestic.

"We are proud that Mrs. Corson is a woman," Mrs. Ford began, "proud that she comes from Denmark, that country which upholds an ideal of peace, that country which said to the enemy, 'If you must cut through our women and children—'

Right then Charles Isaacson, studio manager, switched Mrs. Ford off the air and substituted a jazz band. He explained later that the argument for peace was "in bad taste."

The National Security League swung into action immediately in approval of Isaacson's action. The American Civil Liberties Union, through Director Forrest Bailey, will investigate the incident. The Union is conducting a campaign for free speech on the air.

Tammany Profits By Big Shake-up In Police Bureau

An overwhelming shake-up of the police department executive staff, due to the conflict between the policies of former commissioner McLaughlin and the present commissioner, Joseph A. Warren, is expected about May 15, it was learned at police headquarters yesterday.

Using as a pretext a pretended opposition to members of the uniformed force holding deputy commissionerships, Commissioner Warren is forcing the resignations of John Daly, second deputy, and Edward D. Kelly, fourth deputy. An attempt will be made to raise the pay of the deputies by reducing the number from five to four.

The sugar plum of the first deputyship, which will be taken away from the present incumbent, John A. Leach, will be awarded to Philip D. Hoyt, former newspapermau and now the commissioner's secretary, for faithful service in the interests of Tammany Hall. His salary will be raised from $5,000 to $6,500. Leach will be demoted to the fourth deputyship.

Felix Muldoon, now third deputy, will fill the place made vacant by the departure of Daly, the second deputyship, and Joseph A. Boag, fifth deputy, will become tha third. A reorganization of the license bureau, with a uniformed inspector in charge, will follow the resignation of Commissioner Daly, whose successor will, however, "supervise" the bureau.

The readjustment of the commissioner's cabinet, old-timers at headquarters said, is reminiscent of the administrations of old line Tammany democrats in which the executives of the department were appointed for their faithfulness to the organization machine and their ability to aid in running a strictly "Tammany" administration, fostering patronage and corruption.

Polish Priest Bars Labor Candidate but Welcomes Opponent

PASSAIC, May 4.—Albert Weisbord, candidate on the labor party ticket for commissioner, may be nationally sought after as a speaker but he is not wanted at the Holy Rosary Auditorium. The very Reverend Canon Stanislaus J. Kruszek told him so the other day.

Weisbord, who has been reaching audiences in every possible hall in Passaic during the political campaign, was barred from the church auditorium, where political rallies are frequently held by Krucsek.

"I will not permit you to preach the teachings of Russia to the people here," the holy father said.

But the preachings of Wall Street were welcome. Denis A. G. Lyons, a candidate on the anti-labor ticket, was welcomed into the Holy Rosary hall by the priest himself. Backed by a delegation of Knights of Columbus worthies, he was enthusiastically applauded by Krucsek.

Catholic mill workers who have attended Krucsek's church are wondering what's wrong with the church that bars the labor candidate while welcoming effusively the anti-labor politician.

Two Workers Killed In Deep Excavation

DETROIT, May 4.—Two laborers were overcome by gas and are believed to have been drowned today at the bottom of a 126-foot shaft which was being dug in connection with the construction of the New Penobscot building.

They are: George Skill and V. Jorginero.

JOINT BOARD OF FURRIERS SIGNS WITH TRIMMERS

Webster Hall Meeting Ratifies Pact

Enthusiastic approval of the agreement signed by the New York Joint Board of the Furriers' Union with the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association, Inc., was given Tuesday afternoon by over 1,500 fur workers, who have been locked out of their shops for refusal to register with the scab union of the International.

The workers gathered in Webster Hall about 1.30 p. m. after holding a great picket demonstration in the fur market during the noon hour. A picket demonstration was also held before work in the morning, and on both occasions thousands of workers joined in this display of solidarity with the Joint Board.

The Webster Hall meeting heard Ben Gold, manager of the Joint Board, explain the new agreement with the trimming association. This differs from the agreement made at the close of the strike with the Associated Fur Manufacturers, only in the fact that it allows 10 hours of overtime per week during the busy season, with time and a half in payment.

Shops Signing Up.

"Not only will this agreement affect the shops of members of the trimming association," Gold told the workers, "but there are already a large number of individual shops who have made application to join with the trimming association and thus avoid being drawn into the internal union fight.

"The officials of the Associated Fur Manufacturers chose to cooperate with Matthew Woll and the other right wing, reactionary A. F. of L. leaders in the attempt to smash the furriers' union. They deliberately plunged the fur shops into turmoil in their efforts to force the workers to register. Those employers who were interested primarily in production and not in union affairs have resented this, and have chosen to sign a contract with the Joint Board which will insure peace so long as its terms are obeyed."

All phases of the right wing attack upon the furriers' union were discussed at length. After some opposition by a few workers, it was decided to elect a committee of five to visit the International's Sub-Committee last night and acquaint them with the wishes and demands of the union members.

Smoke Out Officials.

This step was decided upon as the best means of clarifying the present situation in view of the many false rumors which have been current, and to determine whether or not such talk on the part of certain International officials had any meaning or not.

The Committee of 50 was delegated to demand that the International officials either issue a call at once for the convention which should have been held this week according to the union's constitution; or that these officers, who are now maintaining their positions illegally shall withdraw at once and cease their campaign of disruption in the union.

The workers went prepared to call to the attention of the committee the fact that according to the constitution, no convention can be postponed without a referendum vote of the membership; and no vote of the kind having been held, and yet no convention called, the present officers have illegally overstayed their elected term. Yet these men are colaborating with the reactionary forces in the American Federation of Labor to thwart further the will of the membership and drive out the leaders of the Joint Board whom they have chosen to represent them.

Newark Condemns International.

In no uncertain terms, the traiterous officials of the International Fur Workers' Union were condemned Monday night by members of Local 125 of Newark, who met in Montgomery Hall, Newark, to protest against their suspension.

Morris Langer, manager of the local, who presided, declared that there was absolutely no legal justification for this suspension on the grounds of failure to pay dues. This charge was only used as an excuse, he declared, because the International had been unsuccessful in its effort to gain control of the local by the injunction applied for several months ago.

Resolutions denouncing the International's action were passed unanimously by the workers at the meeting.

The hearings on the charges of alleged bribery of the police during the fur strike last year were again postponed yesterday, to be resumed this morning before Magistrate Corrigan in the Criminal Courts Building at 10.30 a. m.

PACT IS VICTORY OVER A. F. L. EFFORT TO FORCE FURRIERS INTO DUAL UNION

Ben Gold, manager of the Joint Board of the Furriers' Union, yesterday issued the following statement on the new agreement between the Joint Board and the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association. Included with his statement is the text of the agreement:

"The Joint Board considers this agreement as an outstanding victory in its struggle against the attempt on the part of the American Federation of Labor's special reorganization committee, together with the Board of Directors of the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc., to force the fur workers against their will, to register with the International dual union.

"This agreement is an indication that the fur manufacturers are beginning to realize that the Joint Board is the only body that enjoys the confidence and support of the mass of fur workers in New York, and is therefore the only body that can be responsible for the maintenance of contractual relations between the fur workers and fur manufacturers of New York City.

"The Joint Board is convinced that this victory will be followed by the realization of the manufacturers belonging to the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc., that full recognition of the New York Joint Board and its bona fide representatives is their only assurance for peaceful and normal production.

Text of Agreement.

AGREEMENT made this 2nd day of May, 1927, by and between the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association, Inc., and the N. Y. Joint Board of Locals 1, 2, 10 and 15 of the International Fur Workers' Union of the United States and Canada, and its authorized representative hereinafter referred to as the Union.

WHEREAS the contracting parties are desirous of entering into an agreement respecting labor conditions in the fur industry with the view of promoting peace and harmony therein,

Now, therefore, in consideration of the mutual obligations herein contained, the parties hereto have agreed and do hereby agree as follows:

First: The parties hereby assume and agree to become bound by all the terms, conditions and provisions set forth in the agreement dated February 1, 1924, heretofore entered into between the Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc., and the Union, and in the additional agreement between the same parties dated June 11, 1926, copies of which agreements are hereto annexed, with the same force and effect as if the words "Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association, Inc.," appeared therein in place of the word "Associated Fur Manufacturers, Inc." with the exception, however, of the following modifications thereof:

Overtime Provision.

(a) Additional overtime work shall be permitted during the months of August, September, October and November each year, except that during the month of August no overtime on Saturdays or Sundays shall be permitted, overtime work during said months shall not exceed two (2) hours daily, five days in the week, at the rate of time and a half.

(b) The Impartial Chairman and the Secretary of the Conference Committee shall be chosen by mutual decision of the parties hereto.

Closed Shop.

(c) The status quo existing in the shops of members of the Association shall not be disturbed by the Union except that hereafter all new workers employed therein shall be members in good standing of the Joint Board of Locals 1, 5, 10 and 15 of the International Fur Workers' Union of the United States and Canada, only.

(d) No agreement shall be made by the Union with any other organization or individuals during the term of this agreement upon any terms more beneficial to such association or individuals than are contained herein.

In witness whereof the Association has caused these presents to be executed by its president and duly authorized representatives, and the Union has likewise executed those presents by its committee and lawfully authorized representatives.

(Signed)

FUR TRIMMING MFRS. ASSN. Inc.
By Maurice L. Steinig, Pres.
Samuel Weisinger
Emanuel M. Cohen
Benj. Goldschmidt
Michael Kaufman

N. Y. JOINT BOARD FURRIERS UNION, LOCALS 1, 5, 10 and 15.
By Ben Gold
Aaron Grass
Samuel Lisbowitz

Witnessed by
Emil K. Ellis.
Herman Dellinger.

Poverty Causes Sick Children — U. S. A.

WASHINGTON, May 4.—Typical investigations of the extent of malnutrition among children indicate that one-fourth to one-third of the children in the United State are definitely malnourished and that the number of children of family which is nutrition is small, according to a report which has just been published by the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor under the title, "What is Malnutrition?"

Written by Lydia J. Roberts, this bulletin was published first in 1919. Since then, however, much material has been made available by research on various aspects of the problem of nutrition of children. The bureau has revised its bu.letin in the light of these later studies, in an effort to assist parents, teachers, social workers, and others responsihla for the welfare of children in recognizing and combating a condition which is so widespread that it is declared by the report to be "scarcely recognized as an abnormal condition."

Why are there so many children below par? Evidently they wers not "just born that way," for the studies of malnourished children show that in the gres majority of cases they started life in normal physical condition. Given this start they should have developed into healthy, robust children. That they failed to do so indicates that something was wrong with their diet and mode of living.

Improper or inadequate diet, lack of sleep, too little out-door play, fresh air, and sunshine, overexertion due to too much work or too strenuous play, and physical defects such as bad teeth, tonsils, or adenoids are listed among the causes of malnutrition. But this gives raise to another question: Why are children improperly fed? Why do they have too little sleep? Why with bad tonsils, teeth, or adenoids not attended to? The answer, according to the report, seems to be that ignorance, lack of parental control and poverty, singly or together, are the causes underlying these bad conditions.

Aviator Would Risk It

PERNAMBUCO, May 4.—Captain St. Roman, French aviator, who is attempting a flight across the South Atlantic, has been ordered to discontinue the flight unless he restores the floats to his saroplane, according to a report received here today from St. Louis, Senegal.

Captain St. Roman removed the floats from his hydroplane in order to lighten the plane and the French government is reported as considering an attempt under these conditions too dangerous.

FIREMEN WANT UNITED FRONT OF RAILROAD UNIONS

Tri-State Convention Asks Amalgamation

EL PASO, Tex., May 4.—A Stirring appeal for amalgamation of the railroad unions into one mighty organization has been issued by the Tri-State Union Meeting of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, representing 60 lodges in Texas, New Mexico and Arizona.

Representing the sentiments of thousands of firemen in the Southwest, the resolution has great significance in the move to form a closer fighting front of workers against the powerful railroad employing interests. The text of the resolution reads:

Amalgamation or Annihilation!

We recognize the fact that American capitalism is passing from the policies and practices of competition to the methods of cooperation which change is evidenced by the great and growing trusts and combines in all heavy industry;

We recognize that these gigantic combinations of capital are becoming so powarful that they constitute a serious menace to the welfare of the workers whom they employ;

Craft Unions Inadequate.

We recognize that the present union organizations of the workers are no longer adequate to cope successfully with the growing power of these mighty corporations, and thus the workers find themselves defenseless in a large measure and exposed to the attacks of the capitalists who are organized in more efficient and modern fashion;

Therefore, we urgently request the Thirty-First Convention to give consideration to this grave situation and to issue a call to each of the other transportation organizations to join with us in an effort to effect the amalgamation of the transportation brotherhoods into one compact organization with a common policy and a fighting leadership, to the end that the workers might present a more united front to the railroad capitalists and thus stand in better position to defend and promote the economic interests and general welfare of the workers in the transportation industry.

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

CAPMAKERS IN APPLAUSE FOR SOVIET RUSSIA

Convention Goes Thru Routine Matters

The second day of the convention of the Cloth Hat, Cap and Millinery Workers International Union passed away without touching upon any of the important questions which must be faced by the delegates who are meeting daily at Beethoven Hall, 205 East 5th Street.

A telegram was received from Local 9 of San Francisco denying the statement made in the convention on Sunday regarding any friction between the local and Jo Sorin whose expenses were paid by Local 48 of Los Angeles, and urging that Sorin ha given a seat in the convention. This was declared to be legally impossible in view of the fact that this was a request from the local's executive committee and not a vote of the membership. Sorkin was made a guest of the convention, with the privilege of attending the banquet.

Applaud Soviet Union.

During the reading of many resolutions, and the adoption of several of them, the only one which drew applause was one demanding recognition of the Soviet Union. This will be voted upon later in the convention. Other resolutions referred to committee included one on the raising of the union's initiation fee; one condemning the Citizens Military Training Camps; one to allow representation on the executive board for all branches of the industry, no branch to have more than two delegates; and a resolution calling for a forty hour week for the millinery trade.

The convention yesterday passed unanimously a demand that Sacco and Vanzetti be released unconditionally. It also passed resolutions voting support of the Jewish workers of Palestine, and support of Jewish agencies helping in the settlement of Jews in foreign lands. In this resolution the American Jewish immigration quota was condemned as working great hardship.

Zaritzky Like Czar

Max Zaritzky, permanent chairman of the convention, showed his ability to suppress free expressions yesterday when he denied the floor to I. Feingold who wished to speak on one of the resolutions. Zaritzky, a former president of the International Union, is rumored to be a candidate for the position again this year. This question has not yet come before the convention.

In behalf of Pioneer Youth, Norman Thomas appealed to the convention for funds yesterday. Algernon Lee made a similar appeal for the Rand School Department of the Rand School.

Moskowitz Denied Bail by Judges in China Leaflet Case

The Court of Special Sessions refused to release on bail Herman Moskowitz, Young Workers' League member who was sentenced to six months in jail this week by Judge Weil in the Yorkville police court.

The three judges denied Attorney Charles M. Joseph's plea of "reasonable doubt" claiming that they could not act on the case until they have read the minutes of the police court. Meanwhile Moskowitz is in the workhouse where he was taken immediately after being sentenced by Judge Weil last Friday morning.

Kushner Trial.

Matthew Kushner, arrested at the same time as Moskowitz, will be tried in the Yorkville court this morning. Josephs will appear as attorney.

Moskowitz and Kushner were arrested last Wednesday at Union Square and 16th St. where they were distributing Hands Off China leaflets. After being brutally beaten by the police they were arrested, bail at first being refused to either of them.

Benjamin Ide Wheeler Dies

LONDON, May 4.—Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president emeritus of the University of California, is dead in Vienna, according to a dispatch from that city today. Prof. Wheeler was in his 73rd year.

He was always a successful moneyraiser for the second largest institution of learning in the United States, and was a reactionary of the deepest dye. He paid special attention to the University cadet corps, even before the war, and was instrumental in providing that only the rich "student leaders" should become officers in it.

Vanzetti Case Placed In Hands of Soviets Here

Seven years ago Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti learned that on the previous day their friend, A. Salsedo, had been found dead on the sidewalk in front of the New York Bureau of Investigation, where he had been held incommunicado for some time in the New York offices of the department of justice on the fourteenth floor of this building, following the notorious Palmer red raids of 1920.

The New York American, seven years ago today, stated that Salsedo had been murdered. The daytery of his death was never solved.

Because of his mysterious death, Italian radicals all over the country expected and feared further persecution. As a result of this, Sacco and Vanzetti with two other Italians made an attempt to hide the literature they had been distributing in protest against the red raids. Their efforts brought about their arrest as "suspicious characters," and several days after the arrest they were charged with the South Braintree payroll robbery and murder for which they were convicted and sentenced to die.

Even Supreme Court Amazed at Tyranny Of U. S. in Manila

WASHINGTON, May 4.—(FP).—Questions asked by justices of the federal supreme court during argument of the appeal of the city of Manila against the latest autocratic action of Ben F. Wright, the American auditor of the Philippines, indicated that the justices were astonished at the lengths to which American official coercion had gone. Auditor Wright is the agent through whom Gen. Leonard Wood is trying to take self-government from the Filipino people.

This appeal to the federal supreme court was made by Wright from an order by the Philippine supreme court directing him to cease confiscating the share of internal revenue collections of the Philippine Islands which by law belong to the city of Manila. That share is 30 percent. Wright was taking this money and handing it over to the Metropolitan water district, a public utility which had a dispute with the city government.

Wright Manila Autocrat.

The city had refused to pay to the water district for water used by the city, on the ground that the water system was, in fact a city property. The question was one for settlement by the Philippine courts. But Auditor Wright, to whom the water district managers appealed, ruled that the city must pay.

Having thus usurped the functions of the courts, he refused to sign any more warrants for payment of internal revenue collections into the city treasury, but instead handed these collections over to the water district.

It was this high-handed conduct, in disregard of law, that brought the justices of the highest federal court to sit up and ask questions indicating their ill opinion of Gen. Wood's agent's methods.

"Duke" in Jail Here

Gerhard T. Jurgon, who achieved distinction in the Hollywood movie colony as the "Duke of Hanover," has been brought back from the West Coast and is being held in $1,000 bail each in Long Island City, on charges of abandoning his wives and children. He pleaded not guilty.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day

SACCO-VANZETTI CASE ARGUED BEFORE HIGH OFFICIALS

Whether Enea Sormenti will be condemned to death by the United States government through the rejection of deporting him to Italy will be decided by the board of review of the labor department within 10 days.

The case of the noted Italian editor, who fled Italy to escape death at the hands of Mussolini's fascists, was presented to the board of review by Clarence Darrow, the noted Chicago criminal lawyer, Arthur Garfield Hays of the American Civic Liberties Union and Albert Shorr.

They argued that the department of labor has no right to deport a man to a foreign nation where he is in danger of being killed. Chairman A. E. Cook of the board was told of Sormenti's sufferings in Italy, of Mussolini's numerous attempts to silence him through imprisonment, how he was beaten and left for dead by the blackshirts and how he escaped to America.

Stay of 60 Days Asked.

A stay in the deportation order for 60 days is asked, so that Sormenti, in case the order is not revoked, may have an opportunity to make arrangements to go to some other land than Italy where certain death faces him.

The board promised to make a further examination into the case. If its decision is favorable, a precedent will be created of great importance in shielding workers from the furies of anti-labor governments.

The International Labor Defense, through Rose Baron, appealed for workers and all people interested in the fight against fascism to join in the fight to save Sormenti from deportation.

Add More Water to Standard Oil Stock

Stockholders of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey will be asked to approve an increase in capital stock from $625,000,000 to $750,000,000 at the annual meeting to be held June 7.

In recommending this increase, the directors of the company stated today that no new financing was contemplated at the present time. No new plan is under consideration involving the sale of additional capital stock, other than the small amount currently sold to the workers of the company, for which authority has already been granted.

Jobs Scarce When Plants Close Down

KENOSHA, Wis., May 4.—Unemployment is very acute in Kenosha and surrounding towns in Wisconsin. Workers by the hundreds are walking the streets jobless.

The C. M. Hall Lamp Company and the N. R. A. Allen Tanning have moved their factories out of the city, leaving a great number of workers out of a job. More than half of the 5,000 workers of the Nash Motors Company are either laid off indefinitely or are working a few hours a day.

The city is supporting approximately 100 families, while the local charity organizations are kept busy relieving the extreme needy.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

Red Cartoons
OF 1927
$1 Postpaid
Red Cartoons
Of 1926 Now
50 CENTS

Violin and Viola Lessons
Given by expert teacher.
For reasonable rates, write to
JOHN WEINROTH
6136 LARCHWOOD AVENUE,
Phone Granite 7288, Philadelphia, Pa.

ATTENTION, CHICAGO!

Big Protest Meeting

AGAINST WAR, FOR HANDS OFF CHINA

Friday, May 6, 8 P. M.

ASHLAND AUDITORIUM

SPEAKERS:

Congressman Sabath
Clarence Darrow
William Cunnea
Jane Addams
Fred Moore
Reverend Hutchinson
Reverend Lapp
C. T. Chi
Manuel Gomez
Carl Haessler

Special message from John Fitzpatrick, President Chicago Federation of Labor.

Auspices: HANDS OFF CHINA COMMITTEE.

Additional May Day Greetings—Too Late for May Day Edition

Greetings From

DISTRICT ONE

WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA

District Office
36 CAUSEWAY STREET, BOSTON, MASS

W. CHERNOV	Boston
H. ROSEN	Worcester
SAM OZER	Boston
FRANK DUBENKO	Boston
A. KOLOS	Boston
L. ZION	Boston
A. CULLEN	Boston
MR. and MRS. COHEN	Boston
M. NANKIS	Boston
K. BONDAR	Boston
JACOB KRANTZ	Boston
DAVID SCHWARTZ	Boston
GEORGE KRASKA	Boston
E. OZER	Boston
SOL REINSTEIN	Chelsea
NATALIE RUBIN	Boston
BERTHA LIEB	Cambridge
J. ROLL	Mattapan
W. GREGORSON	Boston
ADAMSON	Boston
K. ZIHRULO	Boston
N. FRED	Boston
S. DIAMOND	Chelsea
ELSIE PULTUR	Boston
DAVID HEINO	Worcester

N. JACOBSON	Boston
SONIA DINOFF	Boston
S. ZEITCHIK	Chelsea
L. HURWITZ	Boston
S. D. LEVINE	Boston
V. ANMAHIAN	Chelsea
WM. EXTINE	Boston
ROBERT OSOLIN	Boston
A. CERS	Boston
J. ESHENWALD	Boston
W. Y. YING	Boston
A. ROSENBERG	Roxbury
H. M. UKERTZ	Boston
A FRIEND	Boston
S. DOBOL	Boston
ALBERTO	Roxbury
A. SUGAR	Boston
GOOBER	Boston
G. S. SHKLAR	Boston
M. S. MARTIN	Boston
P. ANSTON	Boston
E. EIDA	Boston
E. TUPETAY	Boston
SPELMAN	Roxbury
JOHN LERCH	Dedham

The Workers Book Shop
32 LEVERETT ST.
Boston

BOOKS ON SOCIOLOGY, ECONOMICS, SCIENCE, POLITICS

BOOKS FROM RUSSIA, GERMANY, ENGLAND

Members of Executive Committee

Mothers League of New England

GOLDING — Boston	AISSEN — Boston	KALIS — Boston	GOLDMAN — Boston
GOLUB — Boston	RUBIN — Boston	EYLIN — Boston	ZALL — Lynn

GREETINGS
from
STREET NUCLEUS No. 30
Chicago, Ill.
Meets 2nd and 4th Friday.
Watch for announcement of outdoor affair to be given by our nucleus soon.
Part of the proceeds for
The DAILY WORKER

COMRADES:

The Joint Board Furriers' Union, Locals 1, 5, 10 and 15 send greetings to the Labor Movement on this 1st day of May.

The first of May, Labor's holiday, first originated in America. In 1886, at the Convention of the American Federation of Labor, this day was set aside as Labor Day.

Today the fur workers lay down their tools and rally to the labor movement in its expression of solidarity with the workers all over the world.

Today the fur workers review their victories and with ever more determination rally behind the Joint Board in its struggle to maintain a class conscious labor union.

Today the fur workers are more determined to fight for the freedom of its imprisoned workers.

Furriers, close the ranks! Show your solidarity to the working class!

JOINT BOARD FURRIERS' UNION
LOCALS 1, 5, 10 & 15
B. Gold, Manager.

May Day Greetings
Phone Tremont 4267.
L. BROWNDORFF
Chiropractor
1795 Clinton Ave.,
Bronx, N. Y.

Greetings from
Dr. B. Goldman
DENTIST
2501 W. Division St.
Chicago, Ill.

GREETINGS!
ST. NUCLEUS 6, SEC. 3
CHICAGO, ILL.

GREETINGS
from
The Daily Worker Agency
Philadelphia
Leo P. Lemley Fred Vigman

GREETINGS!
STREET NUCLEUS 14
CHICAGO, ILL.

Hail the Solidarity of Labor and The DAILY WORKER
Sub Section 2A, Unit 4.

Greetings
to
The Daily Worker
from
City Executive Com.
and Fractions
Jersey City, N. J.

Greetings from
Hotel and Restaurant Workers
Branch of the Amalgamated Food Workers
133 West 51st St., New York.

GREETING
GLAZIERS' UNION
Local 1087

Bronx Comrades of Br. 4, Section 5, W. P. of A.

send Communist greetings to the toilers of the world on the glorious international holiday—the 1st of May.

The imperialistic rulers of the world are waging war against the revolutionary proletariat. And of late their infamous crusade has even gained momentum. But the workers' solidarity girdles the globe. The fact that on May day the hearts of the workers from Shanghai to San Francisco and from Oslo to Sydney beat in unison with resoluteness of struggle is the surest guaranty of the early triumph of the revolutionary cause of labor.

WITH THE 1ST OF MAY, COMRADES, FELLOW WORKERS! ON WITH THE STRUGGLE!

MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
A GROUP OF INSIDE IRON WORKERS
7 East 15th Street,
New York City.

A. Rosenfeld — Alexander Korn
Geo. E. Powers — S. Becker
A. Elkin

MAY DAY GREETINGS
GREEK FRACTION
DISTRICT 6.

MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
A GROUP OF MEMBERS OF THE
FUR WORKERS' UNION
Local 53, Philadelphia, Pa.

INTERNATIONAL MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY
District 3

INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE
Philadelphia Local
sends
FRATERNAL MAY DAY GREETINGS

YOUNG WORKERS (COMMUNIST) LEAGUE
DISTRICT 3
sends
MAY DAY GREETINGS
to
The DAILY WORKER.

MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
WORKERS (COMMUNIST) PARTY
District 2
Branch 6, Section 7

LONG LIVE THE DAILY WORKER!
LONG LIVE THE WORKERS
(COMMUNIST) PARTY!

GREETINGS
TO THE WORKERS
OF ALL LANDS:

UNITE AGAINST THE COMMON FOE,
CAPITALISM!

Business and Editorial Staffs
of
The DAILY WORKER.

International May Day Greetings!

WORKERS' CLUB
706 45th Street
Brooklyn, N. Y.

MAY DAY
GREETINGS
from
1F SUB SECTION 2B

May Day Greetings
to
The DAILY WORKER
The National Labor Daily
Branch 2, Section 5.

Greetings!
JAMAICA INT'L BRANCH
Workers
(Communist) Party

May Day Greetings
Street Nucleus 5
Chicago, Ill.

The Jewish Fraction
Workers (Communist) Party
sends
May Day Greetings
to
The DAILY WORKER

MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
Street Nucleus 2, Section 2
DETROIT, MICH.

INTERNATIONAL MAY DAY GREETINGS
to
The DAILY WORKER
from
UNIT 3 F, SECTION 3 D

Greetings from
Street Nucleus 29
CHICAGO, ILL.

May Day Greetings
from
Workers (Communist) Party
Paterson, N. J.

GREETINGS
from
ROYAL PALACE
16 Manhattan Ave.,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

May Day Greetings
from
Vera and William Beck.

NUCLEUS 204
BUFFALO, NEW YORK
sends
MAY DAY
GREETINGS

MAY DAY
GREETINGS

RED STAR
SPORT CLUB

29 Graham Ave.,
Brooklyn, N. Y.

GREETINGS
Section 7,
International Br. 5
Coney Island

MAY DAY
GREETINGS!
SUB SECTION 3C,
UNIT 3 F.

MAY DAY
GREETINGS
SUB SECTION E,
F. D. 5.

THE JEWISH WORKERS'
CENTRE OF HARLEM

Sends Its Greeting to the American Workers and the Workers of the Whole World on the occasion of the May Day Celebration.

LONG LIVE THE INTERNATIONAL SOLIDARITY OF THE WORKERS!

LONG LIVE THE FIEST OF MAY!

GREETINGS
NUCLEUS 32,
CLEVELAND, OHIO.

Berkshire 7149
Dr. T. D. SARGOOD
SPECIALIST
Catarrh, Nose, Throat, Lungs
Lung Disease
859 42nd St. Brooklyn, N. Y.
(Ninth Avenue)
CONSULTATION
1 to 2 P. M. 6 to 8 P. M.
AND BY APPOINTMENT

Because I believe literally in Free Speech, I wish to greet The DAILY WORKER and to wish that it will keep contending for the things in which it believes.
WM. PICKENS.

Greetings from
S. Feldman, Musician
2361 Valentine Ave.,
Bronx, N. Y.

Greetings!
Dr. S. Glouberman
1292 Washington Ave.,
New York City.

Greeting from WORKERS (COMMUNIST)
PARTY
ST. LOUIS, MO.

May Day Greetings!
SHOP NUCLEUS NO. 2
BUFFALO, N. Y.

Choppy Waves Thru Lack of Unity Have Little Power And Do Not Arouse Fear

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

On the English Channel, Aboard the United States Liner, President Roosevelt, Thursday, April 14 (By Mail from Bremerhaven, Germany).—Unity of action breeds power. This is clearly seen, for instance, in the workings of the waters in the ocean. On the most quiet days, even when the sea seems almost calm, the great ship rolls and some passengers continue seasick and stick to their berths. At other times the huge waves need show but little temper to force the greatest liners to pitch and toss. The big wave has power.

It is a little different here in the English Channel. The waves are choppy and lots of them. They send a peculiar shiver thru the ship, but that is all. The ocean liner keeps straight and sure along its course, not bothered to any great extent by the little waves.

* * *

This may be a rather homely way of continuing the discussion of the development of the miners' union in the United States. But I think it is a fairly good illustration of a point that I have been continually trying to stress in these articles.

With the organization of the United Mine Workers of America in 1890, new efforts were made by the miners to develop their "choppy sea" union, with its local and separatist tendencies, into an organization having the power of the heaving ocean. This was not an easy task, as has already been shown. It is a task that has not yet been completed, clearly revealed by the "choppy sea" policies of President John L. Lewis today, in dealing with the mine owners, permitting disastrous seperate district and local agreements instead of developing a unified movement to enforce the national agreement on the coal profiteers.

* * *

The failure of the Joint Conference of 1880 to agree and the disastrous results of local strikes in the spring and summer of that year furnished the occasion for calling an interstate convention of miners in December to consider ways and means of dealing with competitive conditions in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Western Pennsylvania. The miners were invited to attend irrespective of union affiliation (the National Progressive Union and the National Trades Assembly No. 135, of the Knights of Labor, were still in existence) and to represent these districts.

The convention was asked to formulate a policy regarding reduction in the hours of work, limitation of daily production, general suspension of work at stated periods, the time and methods for the introduction of strikes, and the creation of a defense fund to support strikers.

Because of the over-development of the industry, even at that time, it was recognized that to shorten the working day to eight hours would probably not reduce the aggregate tonnage produced. But it was thought that it would distribute the production in a way to necessitate the operation of the idle mines, increase the number of working days, absorb the surplus labor, and add to the health and comfort of the mingrs.

* * *

It was generally conceded, back there in 1890, that experience had proved that local strikes, and strikes during the spring and summer were generally ineffective. Local strikes placed a disproportionate burden on the few who fought the battle to maintain the wage rate while the other districts went on prodncing.

"A GENERAL STRIKE WAS THOUGHT TO BE MORE EFFECTIVE IN ESTABLISHING UNIFORMITIES AND RAISING THE LEVEL OF WORKING CONDITIONS AND WAGES."

The deliberation over such matters came as the result of the bitter experiences under ruthless competition.

IT WAS AGREED THAT NO ONE OF THE MEASURES CONSIDERED COULD BE MADE EFFECTIVE WITHOUT CONSOLIDATING THE MINERS' UNIONS AND INCREASING THE MEMBERSHIP.

* * *

In developing the new movement, for the consolidation of power, the national organization of the United Mine Workers of America, in 1891, sought to bring about the reestablishment of the Interstate Joint Conference. But the Ohio and the Western Pennsylvania mine owners were the only ones to respond to the miners' invitation.

The miners asked for an increase of 10 cents per ton and an eight-hour day. They argued that the industrial outlook warranted the increase. It was easy to demonstrate from the figures of production that the miners could produce all the coal needed under a shorter working day and more regular employment. They pressed their demand for the eight-hour day as a matter of greater importance than an increase in wages.

As no contracts were in existence which would hamper their efforts to make the eight-hour day universal in the central competitive field, they believed the time was particularly opportune.

Yet the mine owners refused to grant more than the wage rates of the previous year, and expressed surprise that the miners expected to use the joint conference as a means for settling anything but wage rates. They took the initiative in moving that the conference adjourn.

* * *

It was decided to call a strike for May 1, 1891, to enforce the demand for the eight hour day and a wage increase.

However, it was discovered that there were still a lot of "choppy waves" in the organization, that militated against united action. A district convention in West Virginia declared itself opposed to a strike, and the Straitsville district of Ohio made an agreement to work at the old rates and hours.

Upon consulting with the presidents of the district unions, the national executive board concluded that it would be unwise to go on with the strike because of the disaffection of certain districts, the number of unorganized miners and the inadequate funds in the national treasury. The strike order was rescinded, and the miners in the various districts continued to work under the rates and the conditions of their last agreements.

* * *

There was no doubt considerable dispute as to whether the was the best that could have been done at the time. At least an effort to secure unified action was put forth, altho it remained practically a mere gesture. It was the first general eight-hour movement.

The movement to unify the policies of the various districts during this period of depression was greatly handicapped. Of the 300,000 miners in the industry in 1891 only 32,000 were members of the union, and by 1892 the membership had fallen to 20,000.

The mine owners' policy of "divide and rule" was having its effect then as now. Only in 1891 the miners' officials dom offered some resistance to this policy of the mine owners. Today the Lewis administration in the United Mine Workers of America falls in line with this union-wrecking strategy of the employers and adopts it as its own.

What's What in Washington

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE ANNOUNCES TIGHTER GRIP ON INVESTMENT MARKET OF THE WORLD

WASHINGTON, May 4.—A striking commentary on the stupendous world-wide financial grasp of Wall Street is afforded in an unheralded monthly statement gotten out by the Finance and Investment Division of the Department of Commerce.

According to this report during the last month, April, $307,000,000 in foreign loans was placed by Wall Street in the United States; a sum that exceeds that of any other month in the whole history of foreign financing in the United States. In April, 1926, foreign loans amounted to $141,000,000.

* * *

Loaned to Everybody.

The loans not only went to governments, national and municipal, but to industry and business. Europe was the heaviest borrower, with Latin-America second.

European borrowing in this market during April took the lead over Latin-America, which held the lead during the past two quarters. Canadian loans during April also exceeded the Latin-American total. The European total of about $92,000,000 was composed mostly of the large governmental loans of $30,000,000 each to the city of Milan and to the Kingdom of Yugoslavia, the $12,000,000 of the State Mortgage Bank of Yugoslavia and the $2,750,000 of the city of Trondjem, Norway. The balance of the European loans went to various corporate enterprises.

Less to Canada.

For some time past the amount of Canadian borrowing in the American market has been falling off. A survey of the April total, however, indicates that Canadian offerings are still being made in the money market of this country. The total par value of Canadian securities floated during the month was $58,000,000; of this total but $23,000,000 went to governments, and municipalities and about $35,000,000 to corporations. In all there were 15 Canadian issues, while the total of all other issues for the month was only 19.

Mostly to Governments.

The predominance of government loans over corporate, which characterized foreign financing in the United States in the fourth quarter of 1926, and the first quarter of 1927 continued in April when the value of government issues amounted to about 2¼ times that of corporate issues.

It was pointed out in the department's survey of foreign financing in this country during the first quarter of the current year that January, 1927, witnessed the greatest monthly amount of such financing during the period and probably the largest amount ever recorded in this country. The April total, however, surpassed the January takings by about $31,000,000.

Hoover vs. Kellogg.

Of interest and significance equal to that of these statistics is the attitude of Secretary of State Kellogg and Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover on these loans. Hoover, talking before the third Pan-American commercial conference now being held in Washington, the delegates are business men and financiers from Latin-American countries, declared that private American loans to foreign countries should be permitted only for "reproductive purposes."

Hoover is a highly skilled engineer. Every now and then, when he lays aside for a moment his political mask, he delivers himself of some intelligible reasoning. The engineer in him predominates and he talks efficiency and reason. In his address before the conference in discussing foreign loans he indulged himself in one of these lapses.

Loans to foreign countries, Hoover said, for such purposes as balancing the budget or buying arms operate to lower the standards of living of the countries so accommodated. He took the position that American loans should be limited to those to be used for developing commerce and industry.

An hour or so later, at his press conference, the matter was put up to Mr. Kellogg. Mr. Hoover's viewpoint was conveyed and Mr. Kellogg was asked what the state department's position was. Of course there was no doubt about how Mr. Kellogg felt. He has approved loans for any purpose, arms, budget juggling, revolution, such as in Nicaragua if it's the state department behind it, of a revolt, upholding the hand of Italian fascism. But the reporters asked him for his policy, and Mr. Kellogg in his choleric manner explained it to them.

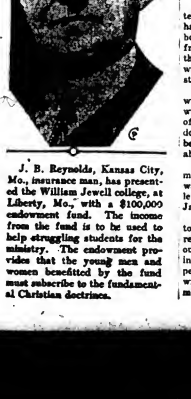
Scolds Hoover.

Mr. Hoover's ideas are not used by the state department. Mr. Kellogg petulantly declared, throwing a little side-light on the reason for the recent public rebuke of Hoover by Coolidge. The state department under Mr. Kellogg is willing to permit the reporters to quote him, advising them that in writing about the subject they should resort to the subterfuge of declaring that "it was learned at the state department."

For Crushing Liberty.

Under this beneficent management, Mr. Kellogg can see no reason why the Guaranty Trust Company and the J. & W. Seligman & Company of Wall Street, New York, should not loan the illegally installed and United States marine-maintained President Diaz of Nicaragua, $1,000,000 to put down the revolt of the masses against him. President Diaz pledged the credit of Nicaragua for the $1,000,000 and spent the sum buying machine guns, bullets and rifles in the United States, some from the American government itself.

It might be said in passing that the loan was bitterly attacked by Horace G. Knowles, former American minister to Nicaragua.



Money to Mr. Kellogg is money, and if those who want it are satisfactory to Mr. Kellogg, the purpose for which they want to use the money are of no concern to him. He has every confidence that they will use the money to good purpose, such as putting down radicalism or buying the means to crush expected revolts.

Foreman of Jury

George Young, selected foreman of the jury to pass judgment on Mrs. Ruth Snyder and Henry Judd Gray, on trial at Long Island City, N. Y., for the murder of Mrs. Snyder's husband, Albert Gray.

Fundamentalist Feels Need of More Recruits

J. B. Reynolds, Kansas City, Mo., insurance man, has presented the William Jewell college, at Liberty, Mo., with a $100,000 endowment fund. The income from the fund is to be used to help struggling students for the ministry. The endowment provides that the young men and women benefited by the fund must subscribe to the fundamental Christian doctrines.

Injury to Worker Brings Curse From Lips of the Boss

(From the Note Book of a Carpenter)

If brother Jay were better acquainted with the rotteness of our Woodhaven frame building constructions, he would know that some ceilings are framed from 2x3 without boards on the garret to serve as a floor. He would know that he has to watch his step.

As soon as brother Jay stepped up with his tools on the garret to fit the windows, there was a thunder-noise of broken-down ceiling, and fallen-down tools and brother Jay was lying below uttering oh, oh, oh, ah, ah, ah, (through the agony of his pains).

We were all on the spot. A policeman stepped in. Soon an ambulance was on the place and with swollen legs, more dead than alive, brother Jay was taken to the hospital.

We went back to our tools but were too much depressed to do any thing real. At the place of the accident our boss, Mr. Alfred remained walking restlessly and muttering repeatedly—"Ah what a mess, there will be mess job here. Ah what a mess, what a mess, God Damn!"

Professional Patriots and Labor Leaders

By ROBERT DUNN.

(Continued From Yesterday.)

At the same time it must be remembered that one of Easley's closest associates during the days when the "Bolshevist Menace" was in its heyday, and the Lusk Report was being written, was Mr. Boris Brasol, a former head of the Russian Black Hundred, and reported to be the "brains" of the Russian monarchist movement on this side. Brasol is also a vigorous anti-Semite. Lieutenant Brasol contributed frequently to Mr. Easley's Civic Federation Review, his outstanding article bearing the title "Recognize the Omsk Government" of Admiral Kolchak. He also contributed his knowledge of red movements to the Lusk Committee and inspired Mr. Easley's recurrent attacks of Russiaphobia by writing his "Bolshevism of Russia" and "Socialism vs. Civilization," both highly entertaining bits of romance. With Mr. Easley in the back of our minds we cannot help remembering the report in the New York World, December 1924, under the heading "Three Hundred Russians Hail Grand Duchess as Reigning Czarina—Royalists of All Classes Join in Singing Anthems, Kissing Her Hand and Sending Up Cheer—Hotel Plaza Reception Like Royal Court Levee," and this paragraph:

"... An all-Russian, all-Royalist audience filled the small salon with eager conversation. Then Boris Brasol, Grand Duke Cyril's representative in America, announced:

"The Czarina is ascending in the elevator."

Boris Brasol was only one of a number of dilapidated dukes and broken down counts who fled from Russia into Mr. Easley's drawing room to sip his cocktails and to provide him with juicy tales concerning the "Red Terror," the "Protocols of Zion," and the world-wide conspiracy of the Communists and the international Jewish bankers to overthrow all governments! And we are told Mr. Easley believed them all. Just as Matthew Woll, his "Acting President" pretends to believe them all.

Mr. Easley's organization has been particularly vigilant against the upholders of free speech and those who advocated amnesty for political prisoners. Its "Committees on the Limitations of Free Speech" headed by the wealthy and notorious Lusk Report attorney, Archibald E. Stevenson, declared that the political prisoners had not been jailed for opinions but for bald disloyalty; and Easley's Department on Anti-Revolutionary Movements expressed the same opinion. "Free Speech a Nuisance" was the title of a report published by his Industrial Economics Department some years ago.

Like Edward McGrady, Matthew Woll and the others who are now fighting the left wing workers, Mr. Easley grows particularly vehement when the name of the American Civil Liberties Union is mentioned. In one of his letters to Ivy Lee he refers to Dr. Harry F. Ward, Roger N. Baldwin and others as belonging to this "bunch of free speech fakers," and in an earlier communication, refusing to appear on the same platform with Messrs. Gannet and Villard of the Nation, he speaks of the Union as "that most virulent and notoriously radical organization."

This revulsion against free speech is not to be wondered at in an admitted admirer of Mussolini, and in one who advocates fascist treatment for American liberals and Passaic strikers.

Some Comments.

Mr. Easley continues to rant—now about Passaic, now about Russian recognition, now about church pacifists, now about Communists, and the more he rants, the more he hangs himself in the public forum. Considering the origin and objects of his Federation it is a sinister fact that his policy should now be dictated by such a factious, rancorous, arrogant and unreasoning spirit."

Charles Nagel, former Secretary of Commerce and Labor under Taft, after withdrawing from Easley's federation, describes it as one of those "societies that organize in the East with twelve contining members from these dear United States and then proceed to dictate patriotism to the 'innocents of the interior.' "

Robert D. Kohn, famous New York architect, and former president of the New York Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, replied to a letter asking why he had severed connection with Easley's group:

"As for my present opinion of the so-called 'patriotic' performance of the N. C. F. during the last two years, I can only say that my opinion is not fit for publication. It would reflect not on their merits or, demerits but rather with pity as to their sanity."

A certain United States Senator from Pennsylvania privately ventured the opinion that "The National Civic Federation does not stand very high with anybody who thinks," and referred to it as "a controversial organization with its own private game to play." Morris Hillquit, well known socialist and attorney, wrote some years ago:

"The game played by the N. C. F. is the shrewdest yet devised by the employers of the country. To the organized labor movement the policy of the Civic Federation is the most subtle and insidious poison. It robs it of its independence, virility and militant enthusiasm; it hypnotizes or corrupts its leaders, weakens its ranks, and demoralizes its fights."

Question: Does Mr. Hillquit still have the same opinion of Easley and Woll?

Frank P. Walsh, noted labor attorney, says, "I believe the influence of the organization, if it has any, would be of a most anti-social and baneful character."

Those who resigned from the Civic Federation had their own reasons—President Taft because Easley went after the peace societies too indiscriminately, William C. Redfield, former Secretary of Commerce, because of his asinine attacks on the Youth Movement, Mrs. Belmont of the National Woman's Party because of Easley's complex for controversy on the peace problem. Mrs. Belmont even threatened to sue Easley for keeping her name on the letterhead after he withdrawal, while Warren Stone and Timothy Healy left the "wage earner" section of the N. C. F. Executive Committee because Easley insisted on denouncing the British Labor Party.

What Is a Patriot?

A certain society lady of Seattle was recently invited to hear an address on world peace at the home of a fellow club member. This righteous lady drew herself up haughtily and replied, "I am a patriot."

This lady, I suspect, was a member of the Women's Department of the Civic Federation and had probably read one of Ralph's tracts "exposing" the peace organizations. But after all the kindest thing you can say about the Easley brand of Professional patriotism is that, as Captain Howard wrote, "it springs from prejudice and class interest."

It is well for the labor movement to get this point straight and keep it straight. Mr. Easley's motives, interests and prejudices represent those of the owning, ruling and robbing class in American industrial society. Mr. Easley is a 100% owning-class patriot. . . . And Matthew Woll is his "Acting President."

With the Young Worker

THE WAR TOM-TOMS BEAT AGAIN

THIS GAME OF WAR

Millions of dollars invested by Morgan and Company, the Chase National City Bank and other great financial monarchs, in Central America, Asia, Africa, are in danger. The masses of workers and peasants in these colonial countries are sick of giving Uncle Shylock his pound of flesh, and now they are showing him the Open Door—flying outwards.

So Morgan wants soldiers in China, soldiers and more soldiers; nice husky, straight-shooting marines. At home Morgan has whispered the magic word into the ears of the various directors of public opinion, and is waiting for the wave of hysteria to rise. A thousand teachers, preachers, speakers and editors are beating the tom-tome of war, all shrieking at the top of their hraas lungs for protection for our property, nationals and virgins.

* * *

The official propaganda machine of the War Department is lying itself into convulsions in its frantic efforts to get more and more bullet-stoppers for the protection of Morgan's bonds. To the end of getting young workers into the steel trap of the army machine, they put out alluring prospectuses that would put a Miami real-estate catalogue to shame. They put pictures in their bulletins that would make a kosher Jewish boarding-house keeper, schooled in the tricks of John advertising, eat pig. And the way in which their leaflets play on the economic status of the young worker is nothing short of diabolic in its hypocrisy.

Cast your eyes over "some of the advantages of being a soldier," as pointed out by a U. S. army leaflet:

1. The soldier's paymaster never fails in business, or fails to pay the wages of his employees.

2. The factory does not shut down and lay off its employees.

3. He never has to quit work and go "on strike."

4. He doesn't have to worry about "getting a job."

5. He doesn't worry about the cost of clothing or of beefsteaks or of rents.

And so on the bait goes, declaring that the soldier doesn't have to "worry about doctors' bills," a charitable "Uncle Sam pays them"; that he will have the opportunity to "see the world"; that he will learn a trade, became strong and become a useful citizen. And, the leaflet goes on, if the young worker wishes to, he may stay in the army and become a commissioned Cossack, for "the service offers exceptional facilities for advancement."

Another propaganda bulletin of the U. S. Army, distributable along the Bowery or Whitehall Street—where there are many unemployed, young and old—boldly asks one:

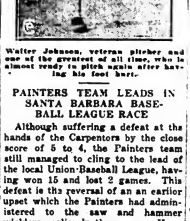
"What Do You Say, Fellow?

Free Home, Eats, Clothes, Movies, Athletics, and Pay Besides—If You Enlist in the Famous Seventh Infantry."

The war-dogs are loose again and they must have their meat. Young workers are being lured to the mouths of cannons by tales of a comfort which they cannot have in civil life, by guarantees of the bare necessities of existence.

Young workers, must we stake our lives for the bare necessities of existence? Must our lives be the forfeit for the pleasures of travel and knowledge?

No! We must struggle! We must join that organization that fights for the economic demands of the youth, that battles against imperialistic militarism—we must join the Young Workers League of America.



* * *

The Young Workers League has a strong League, also. The Postal Workers, the Laundry Drivers, Milk Wagon Drivers, and Printers also sponsor and support baseball leagues. There is talk of staging city series to determine the union championship of Chicago, sometime this fall.

SPORT

(Issued by the Labor Sports Union)

Another Season!

Walter Johnson, veteran pitcher and one of the greatest of all time, who is almost ready to pitch again after having his foot hurt.

PAINTERS TEAM LEADS IN SANTA BARBARA BASE-BALL LEAGUE RACE

Although suffering a defeat at the hands of the Carpenters by the close score of 5 to 4, the Painters team still managed to cling to the lead of the local Union Baseball League, having won 15 and lost 2 games. This defeat is the reversal of an an earlier upset which the Painters had administered to the saw and hammer wielders earlier in the season. However in this game, the carpenters threw away their tools and grabbed their gloves and bats with a do or die spirit. They did!

The Santa Barbara League has 11 teams registered, each having played at least 16 games.

CHICAGO MACHINISTS LOCALS ORGANIZE BASEBALL LEAGUE.

The Chicago Machinists District No. 8 has launched a baseball loop composed of 8 teams, representative of various locals. 'Play is scheduled to start May 7th, and a complete schedule has been worked out. The locals are very enthusiastic about the League and there is keen competition among the younger members to see who makes the various teams.

In organizing their League the Machinists have added another union baseball loop to the rather long list that already is in existence. The Street Car Workers have a powerful league with more than a score of teams. The Postal Workers have a

LABOR SPORTS PRESS SERVICE WANTS UNION SPORTS NEWS.

Unionists who wish to boost the sports activity of their teams will find an easy and effective way of doing so by sending in news and writeups to the LABOR SPORTS PRESS SERVICE at 43d South Ave., Chicago.

THE LABOR SPORTS PRESS SERVICE issues a weekly sports news release to labor papers thruout the country. Scores of leading union papers are availing themselves of this service to add a very attractive feature to their columns. With the baseball season in full swing, there are hundreds of union ball teams in action, and the labor movement generally wants to hear about them. Unionists active in sports are urged to send in the news of what's going on.

Special Service

We haven't a newsboy in every block like the country to deliver the paper. Not yet—altho we will have some day! Right now we have a special service. We put the papers on a train and from there a mailman brings them right to your door. Subscribe for the Young Worker. It's only $1 a year. Send your cash to Young Worker Editorial Committee, 33 First Street, New York City.

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION!

THE DAILY WORKER FIGHTS:
FOR THE ORGANIZATION OF THE UNORGANIZED
FOR THE 5-DAY WEEK
FOR A LABOR PARTY

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

VOL. IV. No. 97. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. NEW YORK, FRIDAY, MAY 6, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

JAPAN PROMISES WAR ON CHINA WILL CEASE

ENGDAHL SPEAKS AT MAGNIFICENT DEMONSTRATION

50,000 Assemble at Hamburg, Germany

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.
(Special to The DAILY WORKER)

HAMBURG, Germany (By Mail)—This correspondence, written while rapidly crossing Europe to the eastwards, can neither be carefully prepared nor complete. Especially in view of the brief moments available between traveling, participating in the huge demonstrations the workers of Germany have prepared and are carrying out in conveying the ashes of our comrade, Ruthenberg, to Moscow, and greeting the comrades of whom we all read but few have the opportunity to meet.

Monster Demonstration.

In haste, however, I must write a few words of the most imposing and magnificent revolutionary demonstration in which I have ever joined. Such demonstrations are not yet known to the United States, nor even to England as yet, according to the British delegate, Massel, to the German Youth Congress, with whom I spoke.

In 1910, I was a delegate to the International Socialist and Trade Union Congress at Copenhagen, Denmark, the last congress of the Second (Socialist) International before the world war. The workers of Copenhagen turned out in great numbers to greet the congress. But there was no comparison with Red Hamburg, on Easter Sunday, 1927.

In 1910, I also came down into Germany from Denmark and attended the Congress that year of the German Social-Democratic Party at Magdeburg. The congress opened with a demonstration with Karl Liebknecht as one of the principal speakers. The latter had just declared, once more, that he ruled with divine power, an incident of which Liebknecht took full advantage in his speech, with the police present to take down his speech verbatim. This gave some spirit to the gathering but it had no comparison to the revolutionary fervor that swept thru the masses of Hamburg gathered this Sunday.

First of all it was Germany's Communist Youth Day. Then the Communist International had just issued a manifesto calling on workers everywhere to demonstrate not only against the blood bath of the imperialists in the East, but also against the right wing betrayers of the revolution in China.

There were 10,000 delegates in the city for the Youth Congress. The Hamburg Communists number 9,000. Hamburg has a powerful Young Communist League. It is proud of its Red Front Fighters' Organization, (Its Rote Frontkampfer Bund, Rote Jung Front, Rote Frauen und Madchen Bund). Here was the red heart of proletarian Hamburg.

A Live Paper.

The Hamburger Volkszeitung, the party organ, had appeared on Saturday as a special edition. The first page displayed the manifesto of the Communist International under the heading, "Rally Against the Imperialist Hangmen of China!" also the latest news from the Far East under the heading, "Defeat the Hangmen and Their Allies!" There was also an illustration showing a young worker planting the banner of the Young Communist International on the top of a huge structure with the Hamburg Harbor showing in the background. It carried the captain, "The Young Guard of the Revolution in Hamburg." The issue was filled w articles and illustrations on the situation in China and the problems confronting the Communist Youth.

The Gathering Demonstration.

This was the appeal that drew the mighty battalions of labor in Hamburg to the assembling place—Lübecker Torfeld. I arrived there with Comrade Otto Lindau, editor of the Bremen Arbeiter-Zeitung about 1:30 o'clock. Many had already arrived. More came however, until three o'clock, the thousands come singly, or in great hosts. The thunder of drums; of music of great bands, the singing, could be heard continuously from up the streets in every direction to the red multitudes assembled. Before the delegation, more than a thousand of the Youth Congress, with its

(Continued on Page Three)

Banker Indicted

Walter Cravens, president of the Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank, has been indicted by a federal grand jury at Kansas City, Mo., on 61 counts, charging fake entries, conspiracy to defraud, and manipulation between the Bank and other finance companies. Five associates also were indicted.

District 5, Miners' Union Officials at Home on May First

PITTSBURGH, Pa., May 5.—While the bitter struggle is taking place between the coal miners and the operators of District Five, May Day passed through quietly, with the exception of the mass meeting arranged by the Workers (Communist) Party and a number of other labor organizations.

No mass meetings were held by the United Mine Workers' of America officially. Since the strike began, the union has been holding meetings throughout the district every Sunday and in many cases on week days.

Investigation disclosed the fact that the district officials of District 5, U. M. W. of A. have decided not to hold meetings on May Day because May Day is an accepted holiday by "radical labor" so the district officials of District 5, U. M. W. of A. celebrated May Day in their own way by staying home while the workers throughout the world and throughout this country were celebrating in hundreds of thousands.

Successful meetings were held in Daisytown, which was arranged by a United Front Committee and which attracted more than 700 workers, and in Pittsburgh, East Pittsburgh and Glassport.

Rain Added Misery To Flood Refugees; Waters Still Rise

NEW ORLEANS, La., May 5. — With the waters continuing to rise to unprecedented heights from here to Vicksburg, engineers today fought valiantly to hold the levee line ending eighty miles west of Old River.

Practically the whole of northern Louisiana between the Mississippi River and the Red River was an inland sea today from which long lines of bedraggled refugees were making their way to camps of mercy reserved for whites, tho the Negro population is the largest.

The Red River and the Wachita River were from two to four feet higher than ever before in their history. The Mississippi was adding to their volume by sending tons of water crashing through reserved breaks in the Concordia and Tensas levee lines.

Blinding rains through the area to the flood peril and increased the terror and tragic plight of the victims. It was estimated that 200,000 are homeless and many millions of property damage is reported. The fate of the hundreds of thousands living in the lower delta will rest on developments within the next ten days.

MATTHEW WOLL RUSHES TO HELP OF "BIG FOUR" INSURANCE SWINDLERS

Civic Federation, Watch Dogs for Bosses; Buy Daily Worker to Keep Clients Wised

PAST EVENTS OF INSURANCE EXPOSE

The series of insurance expose articles which The DAILY WORKER has been running has resulted in forcing action on the part of Governor Smith. On April 27th the Governor ordered Superintendent of Insurance James A. Beha to make immediate inquiries into the charges made in the Harrison articles. Mr. Beha is now in Virginia and will return to New York on Monday at which time he will take action based on The DAILY WORKER expose.

The National Civic Federation, the publicity machine for Big Business, is the odious subject of today's article.

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON.

Perched atop the Metropolitan Tower are the headquarters of the National Civic Federation, America's guardians of sweetness and light and official watchdogs of the "Big Four."

The acting president of the Federation is one Matthew Woll, vice head of the A. F. of L., a thorogoing bahbit; a man, let it be understood, who makes good regardless of cost; a man who is determined to be "successful" even if it means the betrayal of the class that spawned him.

The Watch Dogs.

The Civic Federation is a collection of avowedly disinterested public spirited citizens who desire to put the American worker "right" on such involved questions as why our marines are in Nicaragua, why American 6-inch shells poured in a bloody carnival into the teeming streets of Nanking; in short, to prove that, much as radicals may rave, these things are done to keep the Old Glory waving and for the peace and security of the world.

Incidentally, of course, the Civic Federation looks with a kindly paternal eye on the company union and other evidences of 100 per cent Americanism. The Federation naturally does not frown upon the attempted smashing of a genninely militant labor union.

But the ultimate purpose of the National Civic Federation is to see that attacks on the powers-that-be are rendered impotent.

Woll Leads The Pack.

Mr. Woll, in his capacity of acting president of this labor-baiting organization, must keep his newly-found classy associates an conrant.

Members of the executive committee of the Federation are as follows:

Haley Fiske, President, Metropolitan Life; Morgan J. O'Brien, director Metropolitan Life; Nicholas Murray Butler, Columbia New York Life; William R. Wilcox, director U. S. Life Ins. Co.

In addition to these insurance magnates there are the usual crowd of presidents and directors of the companies in which the insurance combine invests its "mutual" funds.

At the corner of 4th avenue and 23rd street stands Mrs. Ellen Bort. Mrs. Bort is a widow who is compelled to run a newsstand from early in the morning until late at night.

A few months ago Mrs. Bort used to sell two dozen DAILY WORKERS every day. Now Mrs. Bort sells more than the news agency can supply to her.

Buys Daily Worker.

Every day at two o'clock a trusted employee of the Civic Federation comes down from his nest in the Metropolitan Tower and buys 200 copies of The DAILY WORKER. Mrs. Bort is pleased.

The nattily dressed employee goes up to the offices of the Federation; there the papers are doss into packages of two and three and sent down to corporations which come under the fire of The DAILY WORKER insurance attack.

Thus the Federation serves the purpose of being the watch-dog of Big Business.

Such A Labor Leader.

Think of it! Matthew Woll, a so-called labor leader, using his efforts in keeping his bosses informed of a genuine effort to expose the fraud of weekly payment life insurance by means of which 40,000,000 American workers are defrauded of their life savings. What a picture it is to see Matthew Woll cringing and bulging to Wall Street in an effort to show how loyal he is to system which pauperizes the class which he is pleased to say he represents. (A little soda and rhubarb, please.)

There is a move afoot to crush The DAILY WORKER because of its militant stand against the corruption of the "Big Four" and the American Federation of Labor. A so-called unpatriotic poem is the pretext this time.

Mr. Woll is the president of the Union Life Insurance Company. We warn Mr. Woll, labor leader and life insurance president, that The DAILY WORKER attack on the insurance trust is successful and the day is not far distant when he and his toney associates will be standing in the courts defending their swindling practices.

SACCO CASE AT CLIMAX; FULLER WILL ACT SOON

(Special to Daily Worker)

BOSTON, May 5. — The world-famous Sacco-Vanzetti case reached its climax today on the seventh anniversary of the arrest of the two workers.

The great defense plea, written by Bartolomeo Vanzetti on behalf of Nicola Sacco and himself, lay upon Governor Fuller's desk today, backed by five affidavits and one statement proving Judge Thayer's venomous bias against them.

Back of the overwhelming swing of public opinion to the side of the two humble Italians, who seven years ago were practically friendless and wholly unknown, is the greatest demonstration on the part of world labor against upper class justice since the days of the Moone case in 1916-20.

With every body of American labor from the aggressive Workers (Communist) Party to the conservative A. F. of L. lined up in united front behind Sacco and Vanzetti, with the Red International of Trade Unions and the Amsterdam international, somewhat tardily, on record for their freedom, and with powerful labor groups in every nation on the globe battling fiercely for seven years against the legal murder of their fellow-workers, Sacco and Vanzetti at last seemed near a hope for some poor excuse of delayed justice.

Labor Responsible.

It took labor six years to make the upper classes in Massachusetts and America sit up and take notice. When the Boston Herald switched from opposition to defense last October, the great tide of public opinion began flowing definitely toward the framed.

(Continued on Page Two)

Rush Poison Gas Bombs To Compel Convicts To Work Fifty-five Hours

CALEDONIA PRISON FARM, NEAR TILLERY, N. C., May 5.—Four hundred muthnous white prisoners here were held at bay by prison guards this afternoon, while a new outbreak was feared momentarily.

No fatalities have occurred, but one hundred tear gas bombs have been ordered from the war department at Washington, Pou said. The mutiny was caused, Pou said, because the prisoners objected to working 55 hours a week.

Detroit Preachers Lay Resolution Against War On China on the Table

By W. B. Worker Correspondent

DETROIT, May 5.—A resolution protesting against the presence of United States troops and war ships in China, was passed at a meeting of the Detroit Association of Congregational Churches yesterday afternoon.

Evidently the master class of Detroit, a big patronizer of the congregational churches, must have reminded the sky-pilots on what side their bread is buttered, for in the evening the resolution was reconsidered and laid on the table by a vote of 16-14.

By this action the sky-pilots remove their holy cloak of pacifism and showed themselves the willing supporters of imperialism.

KIDNAP PLOT ON WEISBORD IS REVEALED

(Special to The DAILY WORKER)

PASSAIC, N. J., May 5.—Sensational disclosures of how the mill owners during the recent strike gave orders for the kidnaping and beating up of Albert Weisbord, strike leader and now labor candidate for city commissioner, has been disclosed by Captain Ben Turner, chief of detectives, who is also a candidate for commissioner.

Turner told Weisbord Wednesday evening after he refused to allow him to speak at a Negro campaign rally on Chestnut St. that "you should be grateful for what I done for you." Turner is now delivering his heaviest political blows against Abram Prestkiel, commissioner of public safety,

(Continued on Page Two)

FIVE YEAR TERM FOR NINE FURRIERS FROM L. I. JUDGE

Eight furriers unjustly convicted in connection with an alleged attack on Jack and Michael Barnett in their fur shop in Rockville Center on April 19, 1926, were sentenced yesterday by County Judge Lewis E. Smith here to serve from two and one-half to five years each at hard labor in Sing Sing prison.

The workers are:

Leo Franklin, 2765 Reservoir Ave, the Bronx.

Morris Malkin, 2098 Coney Island Avenue, Brooklyn.

Samuel Mencher, 1966 Honeywell Avenue, the Bronx.

Jack Schneider, 1890 Longfellow Avenue, the Bronx.

Martin Rosenberg, 1215 Wheeler Avenue, the Bronx.

Oscar Miller, of 831 Kelly Street, the Bronx.

Joseph Katz, 806 East Sixth Street, Manhattan.

George Weiss, 823 Kelly Street, the Bronx.

A ninth worker Philip Lenhart, 19, 569 Fifth Avenue, Long Island City, was sentenced to serve an indefinite term in Elmira reformatory on account of his age.

Trial Ended April 22.

The nine workers were found guilty on April 22 last. Benjamin Gold, manager, and Isidore Shaptro, president of the Furriers' Joint Board who were also indicted, were acquitted.

Stay is Granted.

George A. Medalie, counsel for the furriers was granted by Judge Smith today a stay of ten days in order that Medalie might apply for a certificate of reasonable doubt in the supreme court, Brooklyn. The workers were remanded to the county jail pending application for the certificate.

The court room was crowded with people, among them relatives and friends of the furriers. They were brought in under heavy guard. The imposition of sentence was brief. There was no demonstration and after the men were sentenced, a dozen women, relatives of the men, wept as they left the court room.

PREMIER FEARS BOYCOTT; CHIANG OFFERS POST TO 'IMPERIALIST DOG'

Fear for Lives of Soviet Union Officials Captured By Chang Tso Lin

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Japan, her finance shaky and fearing another disastrous boycott, adopts more conciliatory Chinese policy.

2.—Chiang Kai Shek offers Ministry of Foreign Affairs to C. C. Wu, former mayor of Canton, deposed for pro-imperialist sympathies.

3.—Fear for lives of Mme. Borodin and officials of Soviet Union captured by Chang Tso-lin.

4.—Chang Tso-lin censors student publications in Peking; police report 10,000 Kuomintang members in Peking universities.

5.—Hankow Nationalists take towns near Canton; four armies move thru Hunan Province against Canton.

* * *

TOKYO, May 5.—That the British die-hard cabinet has failed—for the time being—in forcing the imperialist powers into a joint war against Nationalist China was indicated this afternoon in a conciliatory address by Premier Giichi Tanaka before the Japanese Diet.

"Reports of the outrages in China are exaggerated," the premier told members of the Diet. "Japanese women have not been insulted in China."

British Workers Protest

This announcement coming on the heels of President Coolidge's declaration that the United States would not join forces with Britain in a stiff ultimatum to China means the virtual isolation of the British die-hards. That Great Britain may be forced to modify her policy in view of these facts and the stubborn opposition of British workers to a war on Nationalist China is likely.

Japan Cautious, Not Friendly

Observers here point out that the position of the Japanese cabinet is not due to its love for the Chinese Nationalist movement. Japan needs Chinese markets and Chinese raw materials; and Japanese business men fear that militant action against China may lead to another disastrous anti-Japanese boycott. Japanese industry and finance are tottering and another boycott, those in touch with the situation point out, would be ruinous.

The Winning Horse

Japan, observers say, wishes to bet on the winning horse; and though Premier Tanaka, may wish that Chang Tso-lin will come out on top, he must reckon with the growing power of the Nationalists.

The recent defeats suffered by Chang Tso-lin at the hands of the Hankow Nationalist troops is said to have influenced Tanaka's policy.

* * *

Chiang Pro-Imperialist

SHANGHAI, May 5.—Dr. C. C. Wu, "running dog of the imperialists" who has been offered the foreign ministry, in the government that Chiang Kai-shek is attempting to form, will leave for Nanking within a few days.

Dr. Wu was driven out from his position as Mayor of Canton last year because of his noticeable friendliness for the imperialist powers.

Negotiates With Sun

It has been definitely learned that Wu has already accepted a position on Chiang's Central Control Committee. Whether or not he will accept the ministry of foreign affairs is uncertain.

Chiang Kai-shek is reported to be carrying on negotiations with Marshal Sun Chuan-fang, northern warlord.

* * *

Fear Execution

PEKING, May 5.—Citizens of U. S. S. R. here fear that the Soviet Union officials captured by Chiang Tso-lin in his raids on the Soviet embassy compound may be secretly executed, James Fox, American lawyer, who has been retained to defend them, has again been refused permission to see the prisoners.

Fear is expressed that Great Britain, which is backing Chiang, may go to any lengths to provoke a war with the Soviet Union.

Students Are Nationalist

An indication of the wide-spread sympathy here for the Nationalist movement is indicated in a police report recently issued which estimates that there are ten thousand Kuomintang members and several hundred Communists among Peking university students.

(Continued on Page Two)

The police have demanded that the colleges deliver up students named in

NONE COULD LIVE IN BLASTED MINE, SAY GAS EXPERTS

Operators Kept Running In Spite of After Damp

EVERETTSVILLE, W. Va., May 5.—Mine experts directing operations at the Federal No. 3, mine of the New England Fuel and Transportation Co., here where 94 miners are believed to have been killed in an explosion, today sent for four more rescue crews.

There is such a high percentage of carbon monoxide in the mine that it was deemed advisable to re-examine each member of the rescue parties which have been working in relays since the blast occurred last Saturday, for possible ill effects of the gas.

Leave Bodies Below.

No more bodies have been located and the last six found are still in the mine. Directors of rescue work expressed grave concern over their inability to clear the mine of gas. Samples of gas taken from the mine this morning were analyzed by U. S. Bureau of Mines chemists, who said the miners could have lived no longer than five minutes after breathing it.

There must have been a dangerous accumulation of gas in the mine for days before the fatal explosion, the tests revealed.

Light Failed.

Wade Wilson, car dispatcher, was in telephone conversation with outside offices when the explosion at the New England Fuel and Transportation Co., here snuffed out his life and those of 93 other miners, it was revealed today by John Spiker, pit boss.

The Explosion.

Spiker's office is located at the pitmouth. It is connected by a system of signal lights with each dispatcher's shanty inside the mine. A few minutes before the blast Spiker said the light at Wilson's station, 4,000 feet from the entry, went out.

The pit boss rang Wilson's phone and the dispatcher answered "just a minute until I see what's the matter," Wilson told Spiker when the pit boss told him the light was out. These were the last words Wilson spoke. His body is believed to be one of the last five of twenty-nine which have been located.

Vose Will Illustrate Calverton's Series on Negro Life Struggles

A series of articles on "The New Negro," by V. F. Calverton, illustrated by Vose, one of our popular cartoonists, will appear soon in The DAILY WORKER. These articles will deal with various phases of the life and struggles of the American Negro masses and are intended to stimulate interest in this important problem of the American labor and revolutionary movement.

Watch for them!

SHOOTS UP TOWN, PAY AND SHOT UP

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 5.—Armed troops patrolled the streets here today to prevent a race riot following the lynching of the one Negro, one burning and threatened lynching of a second and the wounding of a white boy by mobs that took control of Little Rock last night.

John Carter, 35, a Negro, was lynched and his body thrown on a funeral pyre in the Negro section, and a second Negro was found to be armed and was severely beaten and only to be saved by white men who pleaded with the mob to let him put him in jail.

Reckless Firing

Robert Lowe, 18, white youth, was accidently shot by the mob while parading through the Negro section firing indiscriminately.

Found hiding in a tree, Carter was tortured by the mob until he confessed that he had earlier in the day attacked Mrs. R. E. Stewart and her daughter as they drove into Little Rock.

Mrs. Stewart was taken from the hospital by the mob and stood thirty feet away while he was hanged to a tree and riddled with bullets.

Dragged and Burned

The Negro's body was tied behind an automobile and dragged through the main section of the city and then through the Negro district. The automobile was followed by more than a thousand members of the mob.

In the heart of the Negro section, the body was placed on a bonfire and burned to a crisp.

Negroes fled as the mobs marched through the streets for hours. It is suspected other Negroes were killed by the general rioting.

Japanese Premier Says Will Not Attack China

(Continued from Page One)

lists drawn up by Chiang's agents. The police are exercising a rigid censorship over all university publications.

• • •

Nationalists Take Towns

CANTON, May 5.—Sympathizers of the Hankow Nationalist government have taken control of a number of towns and villages in outlying districts. The right wing wuich has seized control in the city sent troops in an attempt to suppress them.

The four Nationalist armies recently ordered by the Hankow Nationalists against Canton are moving rapidly through Human Province, according to reports received here.

++++++++++

A Red Army Does Not Travel on Its Stomach

Food for the stomach is not enough, Napoleon's army was finally defeated

The Red Army Of Russia

Travels on its knowledge as well. In the Red Army there are 1,500 permanent libraries and 5,500 traveling libraries. The Red Army soldier reads and studies to become a better fighter for his class.

READ

ON TRADE UNIONS

Labor Lieutenants of American Imperialism. 10c
Jay Lovestone .....
The Threat to the Labor Movement.
Wm. F. Dunne 15c
Defie Strategy.
Wm. Z. Foster 25c
Labor Unionism.
D. J. Saposs $1.50
Woman Worker and the Trade Unions.
Theresa Wolfson $1.75

ON RUSSIA

Russia Turns East.
Scott Nearing 10c
Russian Workers and Workshops in 1926.
Wm. Z. Foster 25c
Russia Today. (Paper) $1.00
Cloth $1.75
Broken Earth.
Maurice Hindus $2.00

HISTORY

Peasant War in Germany.
Friedrich Engels $1.50
Social Forces in American History.
A. M. Simons $1.00
Thos. Mooney and His Uncle.
Karl Kautsky $2.50
England on the Eve of Industrial Revolution.
L. W. Moffitt $2.50

LONDON, May 5.—The matter of the coal controversy was raised in the House of Commons this afternoon.

Colonel Howard Bury asked Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill whether he was aware that Secretary Mellon had repudiated the statement that Great Britain is receiving more from the allies than she is paying America.

Churchill was asked whether the British note had been given wide publicity in the United States and he stated that it had.

Churchill refused to adopt the suggestion that the government should take an early opportunity to draw the attention of the United States and its people to the civil war debt of some southern states which is still due some English bond-holders.

Kellogg Insulting.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The Coolidge administration informed the world today that the matter of international war debts is a closed book so far as Washington is concerned.

This is the practical effect of Secretary of State Kellogg's curt note to the British government, answering a formal communication from London which sought to make a controversy out of an exchange of letters between Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and John Grieg Hibben, president of Princeton.

"The government of the United States regards the correspondence between Mr. Mellon and Mr. Hibben as a purely domestic discussion, and does not desire to engage in any formal diplomatic exchanges on the subject," said Kellogg's note.

The Creditor's Argument.

For brevity and bluntness, this government's key rejoinder to the British communication is almost unprecedented in diplomatic exchanges between London and Washington. It, in effect, a timely disguised rebuke to the British foreign office for taking up something that was not addressed to the British in the first place.

It constitutes, as well, the second diplomatic slap that Washington has handed London this week, the other occuring being President's Coolidge's advice to the American people to disregard much of the British-colored news that is now emanating from London and the Far East concerning America's Chinese policy.

Sacco-Vanzetti Case at Climax Now up anarchists. Now that tide has drenched Governor Fuller and his State House with a nearly unanimous protest against the burning to death of the two men on July 10 in the dark walls of Charlestown State Prison.

(Continued from Page One)

Only employers' associations, professional patriots and narrow legalists intent on upholding the courts, whether right or wrong, have opposed the mighty demand for justice. Vanzetti's own appeal for justice, not mercy, crests that tide of public opinion and makes it imperative on Governor Fuller that he formally review the case.

Freedom Not Assured.

It was regarded as certain today that Fuller will act, either through appointing a commission or some trusted individual, to investigate all details of the case. While liberals may rest on their oars after this happens, the real battle to save Sacco and Vanzetti will only have started, and workers must guard carefully to prevent the commission's report being an excuse for the electrocution of the workers.

Nicola Sacco is not insane. Thoroughly disillusioned by his seven years' fight for freedom and the absolute class bias which has kept him in jail during that time, he has given up, as hopeless any effort to avert the burning on July 10 for which the professional patriots are clamoring.

Flexibility Lost.

"I would not say that Sacco was on the border line of insanity," said Abraham Myerson, alienist, who examined Sacco in his cell in Dedham jail. "But his mind has lost the flexibility which enables a man to adjust normally to situations."

Flexibility indeed! It would seem that Sacco has adjusted his mind perfectly to capitalist justice!

"There is no question the seven years of his incarceration madly without employment and entirely pre-occupied by his situation have helped bring about an abnormal state in which his fanaticism has been intensified to an obsession," said the alienist.

Attorney Explains

William G. Thompson, counsel for the defense, explained that Sacco has frequently stated that he was completely discouraged: that he had no more hope in any efforts that might be made in his behalf: that he felt sure that every department of the government was determined upon his death; and that he believed that if he were dead and out of the way it might relieve the suffering of his wife.

Every speech with every statement in his petition to the governor of the state of Massachusetts, Nicola Sacco is not insane.

Marquis Francesco de Pinedo, the fascist flier, who has been making a spectacle for the curious by flying from city to city in South and North America and reviewing blackshirt militia organized there, has been sent another airplane by Mussolini to take the place of the one he lost in an Arizona irrigation lake. It is called the "Santa Maria II."

Tell of Plot to Kidnap Weisbord

(Continued from Page One)

who directed the terrorism against the strikers.

Turner disclosed how the plans were laid to kidnap Weisbord, have him brutally beaten, hoping in that manner to disorganise the workers' forces. Turner made a plea of his "being fair" to Weisbord.

After the meeting Weisbord issued the following statement

Statement by Weisbord

"Last evening at a Negro rally held on Chestnut street, Captain Turner made a very important statement.

"He declared openly that during the strike I was supposed to have been kidnaped and he implied I was also to have been severely beaten.

"I believe at this time when Captain Turner and others who may have known or even been involved in this plot are running for political office, that these facts be made public.

"The people of this city want to know now and not after election from Captain Turner:

Puts Five Questions

"1. What does he know about this outrageous plot? Who were involved in it? Was Mr. Van Yeck in it? Was Mr. Preisker? Was Cabell? Was Chief Zober? Was the Chamber of Commerce or the American Legion?

"2. Who was to furnish the funds and the men for this dirty job?

"3. When Captain Turner ordered my arrest and the union papers seized without any legal warrant or right whatever, did Captain Turner do this on his own initiative or was he ordered by Mr. Preisker?

"4. Was Captain Turner ever ordered to place a gun in my pocket, cause my arrest and thus break the strike?

Why Was He Quiet?

"5. Why did not Captain Turner, if he is as honest and fearless as he is represented, speak up before and tell the public about these crimes which were being hatched with his knowledge?

"Let the newspapers of this city raise their voices also and demand Captain Turner tell us the whole truth.

"Albert Weisbord."

On Top of Ballot

According to a ruling by the New Jersey courts, the names of Albert Weisbord, Simon Bambach and Simon Smolkinson will top the list on the ballots May 10. The judge said that as the three labor men were running with common slogans their names should be bracketed together, and as Bambach is the first name alphabetically, Weisbord and Smelkinson follow.

Hold 6 Meetings

Tonight six open air meetings were held in the working class sections of the city. They were addressed by the candidates and by Emil Gadros, Workers Party organizer, Sylvan A. Pollack of The DAILY WORKER and other speakers. Open air meetings will also be held Saturday evening when 5,000 copies of The DAILY WORKER will be distributed.

Indoor meetings arranged for this week include a Jewish meeting Friday night at Kantor Hall and an Italian meeting Sunday at Hod Carriers Hall.

All campaign workers are urged to report at 27 Dayton Ave., Saturday, 4 p. m. A conference will be held and arrangements for distributing the DAILY WORKER will be acted upon.

• • •

Return Lists At Once.

The campaign committee urged all those having contribution lists to return them at once with all money collected to date to 27 Dayton Ave., Passaic, N. J.

• • •

Watchman in River Six Months.

DETROIT, May 5.—The body of a man, bound with rope around the neck, taken from the Rouge River, was identified today as Abraham Deavold, a night watchman for the Ranna Furnace Company. Deavold disappeared December 4. The body had been in the water nearly six months.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day

petition being written by Vanzetti—but held that as it was not addressed to "the people" (the working class) and that therefore he would not be consistent with his philosophical views if he signed it. Both Sacco and Vanzetti declared that they are innocent of the crime of murder.

U.S.S.R. DELEGATES KEPT PRISONERS AT PLUTE CONFAB

Protest Against Swiss Police Measures

GENEVA, May 5.—The delegation of the Soviet Union to the World Economic Conference, has thru Valerian Osinski, lodged a strong protest against the "excessive and unwanted" police protection given it by the Swiss authorities.

Under the guise of protecting the delegation from attack, the Swiss police have virtually kept the Soviet Union delegates prisoners. Accompanied by several of his comrades, M. Ossinsky told Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the league of nations, that the police measures were ridiculous, an annoying and unacceptable restriction of their liberty.

The Japanese delegate, T. Shicashi, addressing the conference, indirectly referred to the American exclusion of Japanese.

"The post-war protective policies by different nations, monopolistic control of raw materials and natural resources and inequitable distribution of population are undoubtedly the three outstanding and unfortunate tendencies of the world today, liable to effect the peace of the world," said Shicashi. "We emphasize the absolute necessity for countries to study these three problems and search for fundamental solutions. The deferential laws of customs and discriminatory treatment of persons and goods offer no small obstacles to commerce."

Justice for Sacco And Vanzetti Asked By Richmond Labor

RICHMOND, Va., May 5.—Further proof of the widespread nature of the revulsion against the intended legal assassination of Sacco and Vanzetti was given when the local Central Trades and Labor Council, at its last meeting, passed a strong resolution, reasserting its belief in the innocence of the two Italian workers—protesting against the "justice" given them, and requesting the governor of Massachusetts to grant a pardon.

• • •

NORWOOD, Mich., May 5.—The Finnish Workingmen's Society with International Labor Defense held a meeting in the Finnish Hall. The following resolution was adopted; it reads in part as follows:

Resolved, that this meeting of Finnish Workingmen's Association of Norwood, representing 150 members, request the Governor of Massachusetts to intervene and give justice to our two persecuted fellow workers, who have devoted their lives to the cause of labor, by releasing them unconditionally from all penalties of this unjust conviction. Be it further Resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to Governor Alvan T. Fuller, State House, Boston, Mass. to Wm. Green, President, American Federation of Labor, Washington, D. C., and to the press.

• • •

Millionaire Florist Killed

RENSSELAER, N. Y., May 5.—Kryakos Psikoyius, 62, vice-president and director of the New York Florist Supply Company, of 103 West 28th street, New York City, was instantly killed near here today when his automobile turned turtle.

His daughter, whose stage name is Alice Roberts, was badly bruised. Theodore Zikos, of New York, friend of Miss Roberts was in a serious condition in St. Peter's Hospital in Albany with a possible fractured skull.

• • •

Bride Killed in Bus.

DETROIT, May 5.—Mrs. Ida Glazer, 19, of Cleveland, who was found shot to death in bed was murdered, Cleveland authorities declared today after they had applied in the girl's body at Forest Lawn Cemetery here and performed a searching autopsy.

Soviet Union Unless Say State Labor Offices In Russia Control

By PHYLLIS FENIGSTON.

BOSTON, May 5.—The Central Labor Union of Boston had appointed a committee of five to investigate the Department of Labor and Industries of Massachusetts. The evidence brought out in the public hearing of the case of Mary Donovan, they felt, showed clearly that one of the reasons for dismissing this factory inspector from her job was a conscientious attempt to protect the workers of the State by seeing that employers observed the labor laws.

Much Evidence.

When these facts were presented at the Central Labor Union, many delegates rose, to give their evidence of the methods employed by the Massachusetts Department of Labor. They charged the Department with an attitude of partiality toward employers, and hostility toward workers in all strikes and labor disputes.

Officers of the Department, it was stated, take every opportunity to use technicalities to protect employers from living up to labor laws, instead of protecting and, safeguarding the workers.

Connivance.

One delegate told how the State Attorney meets the attorney of the employers before their cases come up in Court; whereupon the cases of violation of labor laws are nolle prossed or disposed of with significant fines even below the minimum demanded by law.

Incapable inspectors are retained who gloss over violations and take their reports from employers instead of getting information from the workers who suffer under unsanitary conditions, without proper safeguards from machinery, or beyond the hours permitted by statute. Nearly every union represented in the Central Labor Union has cases of such violations to report.

Committee Appointed.

A Committee of five was appointed with full authority to investigate these charges, to ask for public hearings, and to take whatever action they deem necessary.

Needle Trade Defense

The Bazaar is growing by leaps and bounds. Philadelphia sends word that it will want a booth. Cleveland sent word that goods are being shipped for the Bazaar. Many of the letters we have received will speak for themselves. It is becoming evident that this affair will be one of the greatest events of the year.

Additional organizations having booths are The Unity House, The Millinery Workers, Progressive group of Local 38, The fancy Leather Goods Workers. There will be a dress dept., a Men's Straw Hat Dept., a Fur Dept., and a Men's Clothing Dept.

• • •

Letter From Milwaukee.

Dear Friends:

Herewith is a Bazaar Honor Roll and a check for $10.00 from a group of friends from Milwaukee. We greet the brave cloakmakers and furriers in their struggle against the union bureaucracy and their allies. We feel that this sum is very small, but we will make this good by collecting articles for the Bazaar. We hope to collect $150.00 worth of merchandise and forward it to you.

I wish you all success in the work, and remain for the group, Mr. Berson, Milwaukee, Wisc.

• • •

Camp Nitgedaigt.

Dear Friends:

I have collected $87.00 on the Bazaar Honor Roll List at the camp for which I send you a check. Please acknowledge this in the press and send me some more Honor Rolls so that I may make another collection next week. With best wishes, (Signed) Yetta Shaffer.

• • •

A Surprise.

Although many of the leading office workers were lately expelled from the union for daring to think, which is contrary to the policy of Big Bill Bright, they nevertheless have maintained themselves as a unit and sent $20.00 to the defense to show that they mean to build an Office Workers Union in spite of Bright, Pruchtor and Company.

• • •

A Shop Collection.

We the girl workers of N. Azeis Fur Shop, 333 Seventh Avenue, contribute $30.00 to the defense fund to help free the prisoners in Minsola and Bridgeport, who were imprisoned as a result of the frame-ups of the officers of the International and the A. F. of L.

We pledge our loyalty to the Joint Board and Imprisoned workers.

Lena Braverman, for the committee.

• • •

A Letter From Canada.

Editor, The Freiheit:

Anything may be expected from American Justice so I send you a cheque for $10 for defense book No. 7982 for the cloakmakers and furriers defence. As I am alone in the city and was unable to sell the coupons, I decided to send you this as my own contribution. I feel that I have done very little, but I expect to do much better in the near future.

Who Is Behind the Persecution of the Militant Needle Trades Workers?

Who Are Matthew Woll's Fellow Conspirators?

They Are Leaders of the National Civic Federation!

Woll is Acting President of the Labor Hating Civic Federation.

There is a United Front of the Special American Federation of Labor Committee, headed by Vice President Woll, and the National Civic Federation, dominated by the most powerful capitalists in the United States.

Matthew Woll is the connecting link in the conspiracy. With him in the Civic Federation is:

NICHOLAS F. BRADY, President, New York Edison Co., 80 Broadway.
Director, Amsterdam Electric Light, Heat and Power Co.
Director, Anaconda Copper Mining Co.
The Director, Astoria Light, Heat and Power Co.
Director, Atlantic and Gulf Petroleum Co.
Director, Atlantic Coast Lumber Corporation.
Director, Bronx Gas and Electric Co.
Chairman of the Board of Directors, Edison Co., Inc.
Director, Branch Electric Illuminating Co. of New York.
Director, Central New York Power Co.
Director, Chattanooga Estates Co.
Director Chili Copper Co.
Director, Chili Exploration Co.
Director, Consolidated Gas Co. of New York.
Director, Consolidated Telegraph and Electrical Subway Co.
The Director, East River Gas Co. of Long Island City.
Director, Edison Light and Power Installation Co.
Director, Electrical Storage Battery Co.
Director, Electrical Testing Laboratories, Inc.
Trustee, Emigrant Industrial Savings Bank.
Director, General Rubber Company.
Director, General Rubber Company of Brazil.
Director Helderberg Cement Co.
Director, Meyers Rubber Co.
Director, Morristown Trust Co.
Director and President of Municipal Gas Co.
The Director, National City Bank of N. Y.
Director, National City Company.
Director, National City Safe Deposit Co.
Director, National Surety Co.
Director, New Amsterdam Gas Light Co.
Director, New York and Queens Electric Light and Power Co.
Director, New York and Queens Gas Co.
Director, New York Carbide and Acetyline Co.
Director, New York Edison Co. (and President)
Director, New York Mutual Gas Light Co.
Director, Northern Union Gas Co.
Director, Northern Westchester Lighting Co.
Director, Peekskill Lighting and Railroad Co.
Director, Prudential Oil Corporation.
Director, Rubber Regenerating Co.
Director, Thomson-Houston Electric Light Co. of Yonkers.
Director, Union Carbide and Carbon Co.
President and Director, United Electric Light and Power Co.
Director, U. S. Cast Iron Pipe and Foundry Co.
Director, U. S. Rubber Co.
Director, U. S. Rubber Export Co., Inc.
Director, U. S. Rubber Plantations, Inc.
Director, U. S. Tire Co.
Director United Timber Corporation.
Director Westchester Lighting Co.
Director, Yonkers Electric Light and Power Co.

Broad Demand For Complete Review of Vanzetti Frame-Up

BOSTON, May 5.—Typical of the great sheaf of mail placed on the governor's desk every day asking a review of the Sacco-Vanzetti case is the list of organizations and individuals tabulated herewith.

From all kinds and conditions of people come the letters, telegrams and cables, from ladies on Beacon Hill and from cigar workers in Tampa, from bronzed Montana farmers and lily-handed professors in leading colleges. Here's the list for one day:

Coruna Cigar Co.'s 300 workers, Tampa, Fla.; M. Valle & Co. 240 workers, Tampa; Several maiden ladies with Beacon St. addresses here. Gary Workers Cooperative Society, Lynn Lasters Union of the Boot and Shoe Workers. 381 students of Mt. Holyoke College. John M. Maguire, law faculty, Harvard University. Workers School of Springfield, Mass. Providence, R. I. tils and marble workers. New York Brewers Local 1. Haverhill, Mass. Shoe Workers Protective Local 8. Brooklyn Heights, N. Y. Public Forum. San Francisco Central Labor Council. Slovak Workingmen's Society of Ballaire, O. Epworth, Wash. Central Labor Council. Detroit Machinists Local 82. Regenburg Cigar Co.'s 700 workers, West Tampa, Fla. Libertarian Alliance of Argentina. Liberal Club of the University of Chicago. Farmers and workers of Plentywood, Mont. Garcia & Gegas cigar workers, Tampa, Fla. Amago y Arango cigar workers, Tampa, Fla. Guerra Diaz cigar workers, Tampa, Fla. La Tradicacion, Tampa, Fla. daily. La Integridad cigar factory, 200 workers, Tampa, Fla. Santaella cigar factory, 850 workers, Tampa, Fla. Toulon, France, Central Labor Council. Belgian Federation of Labor. Park Ave. Congregational Church pastor. Labor Sports Union of Detroit. Boston Carpenters' Local 107.

Asbury Park Suppresses Lewis.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., May 5.—Following in the foot steps of Boston, Asbury Park has barred Sinclair Lewis' novel "Elmer Gantry" from the shelves of the Public Library, Miss Eleanore Porter, librarian, announced today.

The decision, Miss Porter said, was reached by the directors of the Library on the grounds that the book "might be harmful to young readers." Miss Porter said that the library had received many requests against the book. The book previously banned is a caustic type of Protestant minister.

Scab Miller Shoe Concern Discharges Wood-Heel Chairman

The scab concern of I. Miller, manufacturers of ladies' shoes, agitated, fights against organized labor by maintaining a so-called shop organization controlled by chairmen of various departments who do the bidding of the company and play the part of stool pigeons against any worker who dares to talk for real unionism.

The chairman of the wood-heeling department, Joseph Berg, was discharged from the I. Miller concern last week because he was held responsible for unanimous sentiment in that department against a three-year agreement that the concern proposed to the men.

As soon as the three year contract was proposed, carrying with it, of course, the yellow dog provisions maintained by such firms, the "chairmen" of the departments got busy and terrorized the men in their departments to accept the thing.

Berg, in the wood-heeling department, employing 80 men, agitated against the thing and exposed the scab character of the shop organization and the trick behind the three-year contract, which was designed to prevent the men organising into a real union for three years. The men in his department voted unanimously against accepting the firm's proposal.

Called Into Office

Because of the fight Berg put up against the agreement, the men elected him chairman of the department. When this happened he was called into the office and one of the partners of the concern, Mike Miller, who handled the "industrial" end of the business, demanded that another vote be taken. The general shop chairman was also present and backed up the arguments of the boss, because he is merely the chief pigeon stool for the firm.

At a second meeting of the department the vote again was against the agreement. Then the following morning the superintendent of the plant met Berg as he came to work and informed him that he was discharged, that his tools were locked and that he could not even enter the shop. The bosses feared he would tell the workers in the department about his treatment, which would result in a walkout.

So, in spite of the fact that Berg was chairman of his department, he was kicked out without even a chance to inform the men that they should select another one in his place.

The only remedy for this sort of thing is organization in a real labor union.

Speech Delivered by Sun Yat-sen

AT A MEETING OF CHINESE WORKERS MAY 1, 1924

Comrades, we meet here today to celebrate the first of May as the other workers in other countries celebrate it. Why do the workers of the whole world celebrate the 1st of May? Because 38 years ago the American workers organized themselves, made a demonstration, and demanded the eight-hour day from the employers: 8 hours to work, 8 hours rest, and 8 hours for education. This led to the abolition of slave labor. Therefore, the American workers celebrate this anniversary. As result of this the May day celebration spread to Europe, and the European workers began to make the same demands as the American workers. The European workers, like the American, have been victorious in this struggle. The May day celebration has become customary among the European workers, and has spread all over the world. This May day celebration is a victory won by the working class over the capitalists, and therefore we must welcome it.

The Chinese Workers.

When the workers of China celebrate this anniversary, they must remember the position of the Chinese workers. If we are to understand the position of the Chinese workers, we must first understand the position of China at the present time. China is today the poorest and weakest of countries, and is under the yoke of the imperialist powers. The position of China is much worse than that of many colonial countries. Thus, for instance, Korea is a colony of Japan, Indochina a colony of France. Korea and Indochina play no role of importance among the peoples of the world. But since Korea and Indochina are each the enslaved countries of one power, then each is subject to the yoke of that one power only. China, on the other hand, has been made the slave of many countries by the unequal treaties forced by the Manchu dynasty. These unequal treaties have reduced the Chinese people of many grades, and differ in methods from former rule over the rule of slaves.

Thirteen years ago we overthrew the Manchu dynasty, and freed ourselves in one sense, but we did not succeed in abolishing the unequal treaties, and therefore we have remained slaves as before. At one time we were under double yoke; now it is a single yoke, but still we have many masters to serve, and therefore our position is much worse than that of Korea or Indochina. You must remember that it is more difficult to serve many masters than one. There is a Chinese proverb which says: If you satisfy your mother-in-law, but you have not yet satisfied your wife. China is in this position, and has much more to suffer than Korea or Indochina. As a result of this position of China other nations despise the Chinese people.

Must Organize.

Comrades, if we are to celebrate the 1st of May as it should be celebrated, we must be organized. The other civilized countries have their labor organizations. The Chinese workers have taken over the strike from other countries, and again we take this May Day celebration from the workers of other lands. What is the position of the workers in the different countries?

In the civilized countries the workers have their organizations. What is the object of these labor organizations? The workers organize to fight against the capitalists because of the injustice suffered by the workers in this world. The capitalists of the civilized countries treat their workers with increasing cruelty, and therefore the workers of these countries are fighting against the capitalists, and to change these conditions. Such conditions obtained in all countries, and therefore the workers of all countries are uniting in a common fight against the capitalists.

The Industrial Revolution.

The character of capitalism has been changed by the industrial revolution. The industrial revolution changed the methods of production, and developed industry from handicraft production. Factory production has accelerated the speed of production by the introduction of machinery, and the owners of the machinery have become capitalists. The capitalists utilize their wealth for the exploitation of the workers, and extend their power to other countries. The difference between the foreign and the Chinese workers consists of the fact that the workers of other countries are under the yoke of their own capitalists, and are in such special circumstances that their governments issue laws regulating the exploitation of labor.

The workers of other countries, therefore, though exploited by their capitalists, enjoy a certain measure of protection from their governments. In China industry is not much developed. In China there are no great native capitalists as in other countries. Production by machinery is the foundation of the capitalist exploitation of the working masses. The Chinese workers are not subject to exploitation at the hands of Chinese capitalists, as there are no great capitalists in China. By whom is the Chinese worker then exploited, under what yoke is he crushed? In other countries the workers are exploited by their own capitalists, but the Chinese are exploited by foreign capitalists. That is the difference between the position of the Chinese workers and that of foreign workers.

Chinese Must Learn.

How are the Chinese workers exploited by foreign capitalists? The Chinese worker has no clear conception of this exploitation, and therefore he cannot realise the difficulty of the position. What are the means employed by the foreign capitalists in the exploitation of the Chinese workers? They accomplish this by means of the import of foreign goods under the protection of the Chinese government. The aid given by the Chinese government to foreign capitalists is shown in the custom duties. The Chinese government grants many privileges to the foreign capitalists, and the unequal treaties of which we have spoken enable the Chinese tariff system, in the hands of foreign capitalists, to be an efficient means of exploitation. All the export and import duties are collected by foreigners, and what they collect they keep. The tariffs of other countries impose duties on imported goods, but not on exported goods. This enables the price of foreign goods to be raised so that native goods can be sold cheaper. This arrangement protects native goods against the competition of foreign goods. The immediate protection afforded to home products by a high protective tariff for foreign products signifies an indirect protection of the interests of the workers of the country concerned.

Foreign Competition.

We have lost our protective tariffs, and with them the means of protecting our industry. The absence of protective duties enables foreign goods to penetrate into China. The population buys the foreign goods for they are cheap, and the local industries of China perish. In this way the Chinese workers suffer indirectly. Since the European powers forced their way into China, China has been transformed into a colony, exploited by capitalism and handicrafts, but since China has been opened up to foreign commerce, the competition of foreign goods has made the Chinese people poor. The Chinese masses to earn their living. In China there are foreign notes in circulation, and these reduce the value of the Chinese dollar. China is not, therefore, an independent country, but in reality it is a colony, oppressed by economic dependence; therefore the Chinese workers are under a double yoke to gain the means of existence.

Trade consists of the exchange of goods required by the various countries. China imports industrial products and exports raw materials. Its trade balance is however adverse to the amount of 500 million dollars which means that China loses to the amount of 500 millions dollars yearly. Formerly the Chinese workers did not suffer from foreign oppression, but now the adverse trade balance presses upon the workers more than these troops. China's trade balance was not always so adverse. Ten years ago the deficit was 200 million dollars; now it is 500 million, and if it continues to increase at this rate, it will have reached a milliard ten years hence. A trade balance adverse to the amount of 500 millions is a heavy disadvantage to us; what will be our situation when the deficit is doubled? Our greatest difficulties lie still before us. How can we fight against them? The workers of other countries are oppressed by their capitalists, the Chinese workers by foreign capitalists. Remember the difference between the Chinese and the foreign workers. The foreign capitalists suppress the Chinese intellectuals, the peasantry, and the trades people.

Look To Russia

Comrades, how can we combat this economic slavery, and attain a position equal to that of the foreign workers? Foreign workers find protection with the governments of their countries, and have therefore not so much to fear the prospect of an economic situation so difficult as ours. The foreign workers have made use of their liberties, and have organised labor unions. In Russia the organised workers have overthrown the autocracy and established the dictatorship of the proletariat, under which all power is in the hands of the workers. Just imagine the position of the Russian workers at the present time. In this manner the position of the workers in the different countries improves gradually, and they can better solve the difficult problems by which they are faced.

End Exploitation

If the Chinese workers want to pursue the same course as the workers of other countries, to solve their difficult problems, and to prevent the rise of Chinese capitalism, that is not so difficult; but we must go still further, we must save the 500 million dollars lost by the adverse trade balance.

The Chinese capitalists are not strong enough to exploit the Chinese workers. The Chinese workers are exploited by foreign capitalists. Once the workers here gathered together must seek for means of protection against foreign capitalist oppression. The Chinese workers' fail to observe the yoke of foreign capital and which oppresses the Chinese capitalists also. The abolition of the Chinese capitalists is no solution of the problem. The Chinese workers must free themselves from all economic exploitation.

Capitalism Is Foreign

What prevents them from emancipating themselves immediately from economic exploitation? The fact that the exploitation is being exercised, not by Chinese, but by foreign imperialists. If the adverse trade balance is to be swept away, we must have the Chinese customs in our hands. The unequal treaties which have been made permit the customs revenue to be collected by foreign powers, and therefore we must endeavor to annul these treaties. Can the workers help in this matter? If we are to be victorious, the workers must organize. The workers and students are organised. The trades people are not organised to the same extent, and the peasantry are not organised at all. Here it is the workers and students who must fight for the annulment of the unjust treaties. Comrades, all of you present at this meeting are workers, and represent a part of the nation. A heavy responsibility rests with the Chinese workers, and if you prove worthy of this responsibility, China will become a great nation and her workers a mighty power. Therefore we must free ourselves from foreign oppression, and declare war against the foreign capitalists. The goal aimed at by the Chinese workers is that the workers of other countries is the same, and Chinese and foreign workers must join their forces. To be victorious, we must have the same revolutionary courage as that shown by the revolutionists in 1911. With such a heroic courage we can free ourselves from foreign imperialism and from the unequal treaties. If we pursue this line of action, China will be raised to the same stage of development as other countries. The inequality of China's position has arisen owing to the rule of international capitalism in China. It is not difficult for the workers to free themselves from such a yoke. The workers of Russia and of Great Britain set us a good example. If you take responsibility on yourselves as the Russian and British workers have done, you must follow my three principles and five rules.

Follow Three Principles

Comrades, if you follow the three principles which I have laid down, you will attain the same position as that reached by the workers of Russia and England.

The economic struggle for shorter working hours and higher wages is not the only problem confronting you; there are other much more important political tasks. In the pursuance of your political aims you must follow my three principles, and support the revolution. If you come to the aid of the revolution, and follow my three principles, then the meeting of today will achieve good results.

SUN YAT SEN—FOUNDER OF THE KUOMINTANG.

Fascists in Bonn Rioting as Police Shield Them

BERLIN, May 5.—The working class quarters are seething with scorn for the fascist "Steel Helmet" society, which is staging a demonstration Sunday; under complete police protection, for the overthrow of the Hindenburg republic and the establishment of a frankly blackshirt regime, similar to Mussolini's in Italy.

The reactionary "Steel Helmet," the nominally composed, of daredevils, and theoretically anti-governmental, has to have the entire police force of Berlin at its disposal to save it from the wrath of the workers.

All meetings of Communists or trade unions are forbidden by the city government on the day of the fascist "outbreak." A cordon of police are to be thrown completely around the meeting places of the reactionary conspirators, not to prevent them from doing the government any harm, but to keep them safe from the wrath of the workers.

Wave The Beer Stein.

While these precautions are being taken, the fascist organization indulged in a typical "disorder" of its own last night, understood to have been occasioned by discovery of a Nationalist newspaper reporter and an evangelist at one of their meetings. The fascists called this meeting for the purpose of planning raids on non-fascist newspapermen. When the Nationalist reporter and the evangelist were discovered there was a general uproar and the two were beaten into unconsciousness with beer steins. The police were called out and a general melee followed.

Meyer Has Banker Put in Charge of Farm Loan Bureau

WASHINGTON, May 5.—President Coolidge has decided to name Eugene Meyer, Jr., a Democrat, as executive head of the reorganized Federal Farm Loan Bureau, it was learned today.

The appointment will be announced at the White House within a few days. Meyer was endorsed for the post by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, who represents particularly the bankers in Coolidge's cabinet.

Meyer, who served a decade as managing director of the War Finance Corporation, will succeed Robert A. Cooper as executive commissioner of the Farm Loan Bureau, whose resignation was requested by the president.

As the farmers of the United States are heavily mortgaged and there is necessity, from the bankers' point of view of not doing anything that will interfere with the immensely profitable business of private farm loans, the banking interests have been placed in charge of the government loan organization thru Meyer, Mellon's man.

Floatless Airplane Near.

RIO JANEIRO, May 5.—Captain St. Roman, intrepid French aviator who is making an attempted flight across the Atlantic today without floats on his plane, sent a cable to the French Consul at Pernambuco prior to his departure from St. Louis, Senegal, announcing that he expected to arrive in Pernambuco at midnight tonight.

Arrangements have been made to keep flares alight to aid St. Roman in landing. No ships have reported sighting St. Roman as yet.

Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die!

ENGDAHL SPEAKS AT DEMONSTRATION OF 50,000 WORKERS IN HAMBURG, GERMANY

(Continued from Page One)

own band and a host of banners, attracted much attention. The Youth Delegation from Saxony carried a banner declaring: "We Come From Red Saxony!" The Wedding Communists were conspicuous as were those from Cologne. Always the music and the singing kept growing in volume. The party leaders came, among them Ernst Thalmann, the leader of the German Party, who showed intense interest in the Chinese situation and declared the utmost must be done to meet successfully the crisis growing out of the betrayal by the right wing Kuomintang leaders.

Thalmann was the party candidate against Von Hiffdenburg in the last national election. He appears younger than his early forties. He was greeted enthusiastically everywhere he went.

Here were delegates and delegations from foreign countries, the young comrades from Denmark especially making themselves heard and seen.

At three o'clock the order to march came. The bicycle corps was in the lead opening the way and keeping order, for huge throngs filled the sidewalks, on both sides of the street, from curb to building front, as we passed. Behind the bicycle corps was a Red Front Guard, then the Party and Youth Leaders, then a drum and fife corps, then a brass band, then the main body of the procession.

Red Flags Line Streets.

The march of an hour and a half, to the outskirts of the city, mostly thru working class districts, thru "The Streets of the Proletariat," as huge banners flung across the avenue declared, challenges words to describe. Thousands of crimson flags waved from the windows of workers' homes. Germany's cities are closely built, workers, as we marched, did I see individual homes such as one finds in American cities. It was more like passing thru the canyons of New York's East Side, with the buildings three, four and five stories high, with every window a point of vantage to view the procession.

50,000 In Demonstration.

Thus we came to the Stadtplatz, a great park with a tremendous open field. The Party and Youth leaders, with the representatives from foreign countries entered the reviewing stand and witnessed the hosts as they passed, which took another full hour and a half. It was estimated that at least 20,000 were in the line of march, while at least 30,000 more had been drawn to this Stadplats for the demonstration—50,000 in all, not including the numerous tens of thousands who had viewed the procession.

An open place before the speakers' stand, a great space in itself, had been reserved for the marchers. This was rapidly filled. The great red banners were assembled at a place apart. As the procession continued to arrive the number of banners grew into a veritable forest of crimson flags. By actual count there were more than 300 of these inspiring standards of the revolutionary struggle, every one of them having a separate and interesting story of its own.

I might cite for example that at [illegible], one of the banners carried in our procession there was a working class standard carried in Germany's revolutionary struggle of 1848 which, although unsuccessful, marked a great effort on the part of the German working class.

Finally the procession had entirely arrived. We were marshalled together and proceeded to a place set apart from which the parade of banners was to proceed to the praetidium. With a lane thru the throng made by Red Front Fighters, we proceeded, first a Red Front Guard, then a band of music playing, then the Party and Youth leaders and visiting delegates, then the banners, up to the speakers' platform, about which the banners made a huge red circle.

Many Speakers Present.

Again, the program of speaking and the presentation of new banners, for which was given to the British Youth Delegate, Massei, to take with him back home to England, constitutes another epic story. The leader of the German Youth opened. The representative of the Young Communist International spoke. I was called to speak for America. Massei spoke for England. A telegram was read from France. A Czecho-Slovak delegate spoke. A Chinese spokesman of the Kuomintang was given a tremendous ovation. Then came Ernst Thalmann, addressing the youth on behalf of the German Communist Party, reviewing the tasks of Germany's revolutionary workers in the present world crisis and calling for even greater efforts.

Torch-Light Parade.

Then there was a period of rest, for an hour. The night hed come on. It was after eight o'clock when the return march to the city began. Thousands of torches appeared, carried by the marchers, who made the streets echo with their songs, songs that are rich and numerous in the German revolutionary movement.

Thus Red Sunday passed in Hamburg. All day today, Easter Monday, the hosts have been marching to the great Haupthahnhof (Railroad Station) to return to their homes, for greater struggles, in all parts of Germany, fresh with new vigor and new spirit.

It is past midnight, as I write. For a moment, however, I must go to the window of my room in the "Heimstatte" (Homestead), the hotel of the Hamburg trade unions, conducted in connection with the Gewerkschaftshause (The Home of the Trade Unions).

Depart For Berlin.

The thunder of a brass band is heard down the street. Another procession is coming. The marchers are singing. They sweep past, every Red Soldier in step, every marcher in his place, on the way to the railroad station—the Berlin Delegation going back to the Capital City of the German Capitalist Republic. They sing the song that, next to "The International" seems the most popular, the song about Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxembourg.

Comrade Wilhelm Kaspar has arranged that on the morning, we too, go to Berlin with the ashes of C. B. Rothenberg.

Books

As a Doctor Sees It

By B. LIBER

With 64 Pencil Sketches by the author.

This interesting new volume is the kind of a book that can be recommended to every worker. A critic says:

"It certainly seems as the total of human misery that a physician is able to observe in a decade is as nothing compared to what he can read."

$1.50 Postpaid.

Put Some Power In That Kick!

Don't waste your energy in idle protest. When reaction attacks The DAILY WORKER and you want to fight—strike your blows where they will be most effective.

Kick in With a Sub.

Every subscription is a striking answer to the enemies of Labor—every sub is more strength to the blows that are dealt every day by The DAILY WORKER.

Don't only kick. . . . . Kick in!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

Outside of New York.	In New York
Per Yr. $8.00	Per Yr. $9.00
Six Mo. 4.50	Six Mo. 4.50
3 Mo. . . 2.00	3 Mo. . . 2.50

The DAILY WORKER
33 First Street
New York

Enclosed $. . . . . for . . . mos. sub to:

Name .....

Street .....

City .....

State .....

Foil the Professional Patriots

Seitz of the Keymen of America, and Darte of the Military Order of World War Veterans, are representative types of the professional patriot. These vultures upon society are seeking to use the case against The DAILY WORKER as a means of increasing the loot derived from plying their nefarious trade. They are the paid agents of business interests, which are bent upon depriving the working class of this country of its powerful and dreaded weapon—The DAILY WORKER. On the basis of their first success in holding the members of The DAILY WORKER, for Special Sessions, they will collect many thousands of dollars from employers throughout the country. With this money they hope to carry the case to success. The forces of big business, the city and federal government are on their side. Our enemies are a unit against us.

Seitz and Darte must not succeed. We will not give up our chief weapon. The thousands of dollars collected from the bosses by the prosecution must be matched dollar for dollar by the collective effort of our party members and DAILY WORKER supporters. The united front of the reactionaries must be met with the united front of labor behind its organ. The dollar patriots must be taught a lesson they will never forget, to keep their hands off the labor movement. This demands action—effective and immediate. You must send your contributions to the Defense Fund. You must do it now. Get your fellow worker to do the same.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of

..... dollars .... cents to the Rothenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....

Address .....

City .....

State .....

Attach check or money order.

...Publishing Association, Inc.,
...Street, New York, N. Y.
...Phone, Orchard 3620

...SUBSCRIPTION RATES.

By mail, the New York DAILY: $6.00 per year, $3.50 six months, $1.50 three months, $1.00 one month.
By mail, Canada or New York DAILY: $8.00 per year, $4.50 six months, $2.50 three months, $1.00 one month.

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 33 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL ... Editor
WILLIAM F. DUNNE ...
BERT MILLER ... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

...: Advertising rates on application.

A Few Facts the President Did Not Tell the Latin-Americans

For the second time in less than two weeks President Coolidge has publicly discussed Latin-American relations. On Tuesday evening he addressed the Pan-American commercial conference at Washington and stressed the economic dependence of the Southern republics upon the United States. He particularly emphasized the fact that this country takes from Latin-America more than it gives, that their exports to the United States far overbalance their imports.

With flimsy sophistry Coolidge informed the delegates that the balance of trade is in their favor. He did not, however, inform them that the principal beneficiaries of this favorable balance of trade are not the inhabitants of their countries, but precisely those Wall Street magnates whose heavy investments in Latin-America enable them to realize extraordinary profits off their exploitation. Neither did he tell them that much of the imports to the United States from those countries consist of raw material for industries in this country, thereby stifling the development of native industry.

Since his speech was prepared in advance, a set speech, with no opportunity for questions, the delegates remained silent. But if they are anything else than plain tools of imperialism they must have thought a great deal about the close connection between the economic supremacy of the United States about which Coolidge boasted and the political depredations that are being carried out in Haiti, Santo Domingo, Nicaragua and about the recent Kellogg attempt to terrorise the Calles government in Mexico into yielding to the demands of the oil, mineral and land bandits of this country.

Regardless of the thoughts upon American imperialism that might have passed through the minds of his hearers at the Pan-American congress, we are sure there are thousands of workers in those countries that perceive an apparent contradiction in the attitude of this country toward the southern countries and its attitude toward China. In China the United States has to maneuver for supremacy against the intrigues of Great Britain and Japan, hence a long-distance policy is pursued that has as its aim the gaining of advantages over its formidable imperialist rival on the battlefield of world history. There is no such menace to its supremacy in the southern republics, so the policy is one of open terror and bloody intervention—as in the case of Nicaragua—in order forcibly to throttle any vestige of self-government.

Again, the Chinese masses may see in the present American attitude toward its weaker neighbors to the south, a picture of their own future, if American policy triumphs in China.

It is to be hoped that in their fight against British imperialism the Chinese masses will generate sufficient force to be able also to smash the sinister power of American imperialism that is only waiting an opportunity to repeat in that part of the world the atrocities it now inflicts upon its unfortunate neighbors in the Pan-American union in order to establish and maintain governments that do the bidding of the banking and industrial magnates whose aim is to exploit the whole world.

Instead of a Pan-American union subservient to the United States the peoples of Latin-America should create a union of southern nations AGAINST American imperialism, an anti-imperialist bloc that will drive from their shores the invading hordes of the gunmen of Wall Street and all its other political agents.

United Against the Farmers

President Coolidge has appointed as executive head of the reorganized federal farm loan bureau Eugene Meyer, Jr., a democrat. The appointment was made at the suggestion of Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. Thus republicans and democrats are united in manipulating the machinery designed to impose still greater burdens upon the already heavily mortgaged farmers of the country. The farm loan bureau aids the small bankers, subsidiaries of the great banking combines, to enmesh in their web the farmers of the country.

The farm loan bureau is the medium through which the banking oligarchy enslaves the farmers so that they will toil only for the enrichment of the parasitic Wall Street gang. The government places money for loans at the disposal of the banks in the agricultural territories and enables the bankers to obtain a much higher rate of interest through various shady devices without risking a cent of their own capital.

The spectacle of democrats and republicans working hand in hand in a conspiracy to fleece them ought to impel the exploited farmers toward a class party of labor that will defend also their interests.

Any special farmer political movement will sink into the futilities of agrarianism, but as a part of a great labor party the farmers can fight against their progressive degradation that has been proceeding uninterruptedly since the close of the world war.

Woll's Slogan—Rule or Ruin!

Matthew Woll, field general for the reactionary officialdom of the American Federation of Labor, who has been conducting the union-wrecking campaign against the representatives of the rank and file of the Furriers' and International Ladies' Garment Workers' Unions, now threatens with expulsion the whole International Fur Workers' Union because the pressure of the rank and file seems to be forcing them to talk peace with the left wing leadership.

If persistent rumors of peace conferences conducted "unofficially" are correct it is indicative of some semblance of responsibility to the membership on the part even of the right wing bureaucratic officialdom of the Furriers' Union. It was undoubtedly the low trickery of Woll that caused the fight of the left wing to be launched after a successful strike in the demands of the rank and file were realized under left leadership. Now that Ben Gold and his associates in the Joint Board have succeeded in breaking away from the association of employers the trimming manufacturers and signing an agreement with them the bureaucratic officialdom of the International knows that Woll has failed to carry out his promises to exterminate the left wing. Therefore they are probably in the mood to listen to overtures for peace. But peace in the unions will discredit Woll. His game as agent of the Civic Federation, labor haters and apostles of the scab shop will be up. He prefers to wreck the unions rather than permit them to be dominated by a leadership that will put up a militant fight against the employers. His slogan is "rule or ruin."

If the International officials want to atone in some degree for their shameful conduct against the membership and their support of the Woll-Frayne-McGrady wrecking crew they will speedily make peace with the left wing and then expose to the whole membership of the organization and to the general labor movement the real character of the unprincipled swindler and liar who created a united front with the Civic Federation, the bosses, the police and underworld elements in order to railroad to the penitentiary the militant leadership of the Joint Board of the Furriers, who committed the unpardonable sin of winning a strike instead of bludgeoning the workers, in approved Woll fashion, into accepting the terms of the bosses.

SACCO-VANZETTI'S PLEA FOR JUSTICE
FEARLESS DEFENSE OF PRINCIPLES

Described by all readers as "one of the most amazing documents which has ever figured in a criminal case in Massachusetts," the 7,000-word petition of Bartolomeo Vanzetti for justice or for death is on Governor Fuller's desk today. In a fearless plea in which the principles of anarchism held by them are not only admitted but expounded, Vanzetti deliberately warns the governor that Sacco and he do not ask mercy or pardon, but full justice.

"Governor Alvan T. Fuller," concludes the eloquent document, "we have been in prison seven years, charged with a crime we did not commit, awaiting a fate that every day came nearer and nearer. Perhaps you can imagine what that has meant to us.

"And do you realize what that has meant to Sacco's wife and children, and to Vanzetti's father and mother and family at home in Italy? . . .

"And yet we ask neither for mercy but for justice. We do not impose their sufferings of our own upon you. You cannot justly consider their suffering or ours as a ground for your official action, except that suffering may seem to you a reason for giving the most careful and unprejudiced consideration to the two grounds of our prayer—that we are innocent and that our trial was unfair."

The text of the petition, abridged in part, follows:

"We, Bartolomeo Vanzetti and Nicola Sacco, confined in the jail at Dedham under sentence of death after conviction of the crime of murder in the first degree, hereby pray you to exercise the power conferred upon you by the constitution of Massachusetts publicly to investigate all the facts of our cases and set us free from that sentence, if the findings will so dictate to your understanding and conscience. We deem the faculty of compassion to be one of the highest of the human attributes, but here we are asking not for mercy but for justice, and this is the reason why we have not used the printed form provided for petitions of this nature. It contains the word 'pardon,' which we are unwilling to use, although our counsel has assured us that it does not necessarily mean forgiveness or convey the idea of a confession of guilt. But we wish the utmost possible clearness and precision on this point and are unwilling to risk being misunderstood.

Fearless of Prejudice. .

"Our counsel has warned us that what we have to say may deepen the prejudice against us; but we are foremostly concerned to save what no human power except ourselves can deprive us of, our faith and our dignity, since we have already been deprived of almost all of what men can deprive men.

"We have been told that Your Excellency stands and has always stood for honesty in public and private life as you understand it, that you have a mind free and not in legalistic bonds. So, since the nature of each human being is common with the fundamental nature of mankind, and consequently the sentiment of justice is fundamentally common to all men, we can safely speak to you as man to man, notwithstanding the other differences of opinion which divide us.

"Our present request is made first and foremost on the ground of our innocence. We are not guilty, and have to do with the South Braintree crime. Our instincts make us abhor and our principles condemn such a crime."

Outlines Family History.

The statement then tells briefly the family history of the two men. Both could have lived comfortably in Italy, it says, but they were drawn to America by the love of freedom. It points out that neither Sacco nor Vanzetti, after the South Braintree crime, conducted themselves like criminals, but lived normal lives in the three weeks preceding their arrest.

The first discussion of the trial itself concerns the identification testimony. There is reference to the discrepancies in the reputations of Goodridge and Lola Andrews, two of those who identified Sacco.

Then follows a discussion of the affidavit of Capt. William H. Proctor of the state police, with quotations from the record and from Judge Thayer's charge.

"We mention this," the statement explains, "to show the great cleverness of the district-attorney in turning a hostile witness into a favorable witness in such a way that we and our counsel would not see what he was doing."

The district-attorney is also accused of misleading the jury in discussing the evidence pertaining to the cap found at the scene of the crime, which the prosecution contended belonged to Sacco. All this evidence broke down in the government's case, leaving only "consciousness of guilt."

Conscious of Being Radicals

"The only guilt we were conscious of was the guilt of being radicals in danger of arrest, detention and torture, or death, as had happened to our friend Salsedo, and other friends at the hands of Mitchell Palmer's agents," is the summing up of the first declaration of innocence.

The statement then takes up at length the contention that the trial was unfair, "certainly unworthy of the tradition of even-handed justice which your race and your country profess to respect."

Continuing, the statement says:

"No argument, no explanation, no excuse, can ever blot out the facts that the testimony of Capt. Proctor, who believed us innocent, was deliberately perverted by the prosecuting officer; or that our cross-examination, and especially the cross-examination of Sacco, as to radical views, friends, and publication, was designed to excite the utmost prejudice and hostility against us at a time when the public mind was most abnormally excited against such men as we are, or that it was admitted by the judge on the false ground stated by the district-attorney that he desired to ascertain whether we were really sincere radicals, or only pretending to be radicals. Proof has been furnished and never contradicted that at the very time when the district-attorney was offering this reason to justify the cross-examination, he had received full information from agents of the federal department of justice about our views and associates, and that, we were on the list of men to be watched as radicals.

In overruling the objections made by our counsel to this cross-examination the judge made statements in the presence of the jury which were calculated to prejudice that had occurred, and must have operated to deepen the prejudice against us. It seems to us little short of mockery to suggest that the effect of such occurrences could have been removed by mere general admonitions to the jury to treat us fairly.

The Governor is asked to consider the "suppression by the district-attorney of the testimony of important eye-witnesses," and the use by the prosecution of an interpreter named Ross, who subsequently was sent to the house of correction for attempting to sell his influence with judges. Ross, distorted translations to aid the prosecution, and also drove Judge Thayer to and from Boston in his automobile during the trial.

"Much has been said in praise of the fairness of the judge who tried us," says the statement, getting down to the accusations against Judge Thayer, "but we have learned to our sorrow that professions of fairness do not necessarily mean real fairness and may cover an intention to use the great judicial power to secure a conviction which under the forms of law will stand. We understand that this power is called discretion, and that the judge who uses his discretion to convict is beyond the reach of any other tribunal unless it can be proved that he was corrupt or irrational. We do not intend to enter here a criticism of your system of law. We simply point out what it means to men of our hated class when brought before one of your tribunals.

Sample Instances of Discretion

"These are but few samples of the discretion exercised by the judge. Among the worst is the manner and substance of his decision on our last motion, in which he betrays his real animosity toward us; makes numerous statements of fact agreed by the district-attorney himself to be true; confines attention to the confession of Madeiros, which was but the starting point in the proof of our counsel offered that the crime was committed by the Morelli gang, and passes over in silence almost all of the 60 affidavits which corroborate Madeiros, including a finding of fact against us which, since it could not be shown to be corrupt or irrational, was final. And yet we are informed that the leader of the Morellis, a robber by profession, easily obtained his parole, and now roams the countryside in an expensive automobile with a private chauffeur."

The statement then calls the Governor's attention to the Sibley, Bernkopf, Benehley, Beffel and Rantoul affidavits, the public confession, adding that "if all those who know the facts were brave enough to disclose them, the number of such affidavits could be multiplied indefinitely."

Again discussing "consciousness of guilt," the statement justifies the carrying of weapons by the two men, on the ground that they had a right to protect themselves from the "private violence and cruelty of federal agents."

"It is true," the appeal continues, "that the foreman of our jury in a discussion of the case with one of his friends who believed us innocent, said before the trial, 'Damn them, they ought to hang anyway,' yet we wonder if he would have succeeded in convincing all of the other eleven jurors to convict us were it not that we were armed."

"Lies Told at Brockton".

The Governor is asked to analyze the evidence as to the lies told at Brockton on the night of arrest, and is assured that these lies had no relation to the South Braintree crime, but were told to shield friends in the radical movements. Sacco and Vanzetti had been warned, they now assert, to clear their homes of radical literature at the moment on the point of doing so when arrested.

"It was these facts and these fears that we were compelled to disclose as the only way of explaining the evidence of suspicious conduct introduced by the prosecutor," they say. "It was this that opened the door to our fatal cross-examination. Our guilt was the guilt of thinking and not of doing, of opinions and not of acts. This is the guilt for which in this free country our lives are to be taken."

The Plymouth trial is analyzed at some length. One of the witnesses against him, Vanzetti says, was a halfwitted woman. Other witnesses declared the testimony between the preliminary hearing and the trial, all this constituting "an aggravation of the unfairness shown us." The prosecution is accused of bringing the robbery charge to trial first to make more certain their subsequent conviction for murder.

Express Political Views.

The last six pages of the appeal are an expression of the political views held by the two men. They declare that they are not opposed to every theory of authoritarian Communism and socialism; for they would rivet more or less firmly the chains of coercion on human spirit, just as we are opposed to the present system, which is based upon coercion."

They do not deny that their fellow-anarchists, in other parts of the world, have committed acts of violence, but they justify such acts on the ground that "violence of tyranny has provoked the violence of the oppressed for self-defense."

"For this cause," they continue, "we are willing to suffer and to die, but not for the low and sordid South Braintree crime."

They ask the Governor, in conclusion, to make his investigations in public, and not to accept the stories of those who are only willing to give them behind closed doors.

Appeal for Justice.

The final paragraphs are:

"For these reasons, and because we realize how much time and labor will be required to deal adequately with the matters to which we have called your attention, we respectfully urge you, if you doubt our statements, to cause a preliminary public investigation of our case to be made by able and disinterested men. The result cannot be convincing unless the investigation is public so that all may know what is said against us. But in saying this we would not have you believe that we ourselves Libertarians, which means briefly that we believe that the perfectibility is to be obtained by the largest amount of freedom, and not by coercion, and that the bad in human nature and conduct we can only be eliminated by the elimination of its causes, and not by coercion or imposition, which cause greater evil by adding bad to bad.

"We are not so foolish as to believe or to advocate that human institutions be changed in a day. The change must be gradual. But we do believe that there ought to be a change, and that it should be in the direction of more freedom and not more coercion. That is why we are opposed to the present system, which is based upon coercion."

They do not deny that their fellow-anarchists, in other parts of the world, have committed acts of violence, but they justify such acts on the ground that "violence of tyranny has provoked the violence of the oppressed for self-defense."

"For this cause," they continue, "we are willing to suffer and to die, but not for the low and sordid South Braintree crime."

They ask the Governor, in conclusion, to make his investigations in public, and not to accept the stories of those who are only willing to give them behind closed doors.

Appeal for Justice.

The final paragraphs are:

"For these reasons, and because we realize how much time and labor will be required to deal adequately with the matters to which we have called your attention, we respectfully urge you, if you doubt our statements, to cause a preliminary public investigation of our case to be made by able and disinterested men. The result cannot be convincing unless the investigation is public so that all may know what is said against us. But in saying this we would not have you believe that we are asking for mercy or for anything but justice; or

COMMUNISTS TO BACK CALLES IN FIGHT ON TORIES

Party Convention Calls For Arming Workers

(Cable to the Daily Worker).

MEXICO CITY, May 5.—Support for the Calles government against the forces of domestic reaction and Yankee imperialism was urged upon the workers and peasants today in a manifesto drawn up by the convention of the Communist Party of Mexico.

Characterizing the Calles regime as petty bourgeois, and vacillating between the native reactionary groups, foreign capital and the workers and peasants, the Communist Party nevertheless declared that the danger of a counter-revolutionary effort demanded support for the government.

The government is menaced by the military, reactionary and counter-revolutionary elements in Mexico, continues the manifesto, while certain American oil interests are trying to establish a reactionary dictatorship which will destroy the workers and peasants movement.

Morones Attacks Unions.

While the government vacillates, the party points out, the Mexican Federation of Labor (CROM) under the leadership of Luis Morones, is permitted to carry on brutal attacks against the autonomous unions. This action on the part of the CROM may even force many elements to support the reaction in the attempt to overthrow Calles.

"The Communist Party of Mexico," the manifesto concludes, "calls upon the workers and peasants to form defense committees in factories, in the unions and in the towns, and calls upon the workers and peasants to arm to defend the government. It appeals for a postponement of the election until the reactionary forces have been defeated."

Eighteen delegates representing nine states compose the convention, which opened April 30 and may continue until May 10. Rafael Carrillo is secretary.

Hindoos Win Back Rights as Citizens After Stiff Fight

(By Federated Press).

A preliminary victory has been won by the India Freedom Foundation in its fight for the restoration of citizenship rights to Hindoos residing in the United States. The department of justice has just notified the attorney that the Hindoos whose citizenship papers have been cancelled would be restored to full rights and proceedings against others would be dropped.

This ruling affects the 69 Hindoos who had citizenship papers prior to 1923 when Supreme Court Justice Sutherlind ruled that the people of this race were not "whites" in the popular sense of the word and therefore were ineligible to citizenship. They formerly were admitted as members of the Aryan race.

The two or three thousand remaining Hindoos in this country are still ineligible to citizenship. The India Freedom Foundation is supporting Senator Copeland's bill annulling the Sutherland decision and opening citizenship doors to all Hindoos in this country—though not changing the immigration laws now barring newcomers.

Saliendra Ghose, secretary of the India Freedom Foundation, says his people have been intimidated and grafted upon by local authorities since the Sutherland ruling.

Expect Suckers to Bite on Big Loan For Polish Régime

While Wall Street is torn between two desires, the proposed $80,000,000 loan to Poland looms nearer and nearer.

Recognizing Poland's perilous position, surrounded on all sides by states against which she has pursued shameless aggression, the bankers of the Bankers Trust Co. and Blair & Co., who are negotiating the loan, have run up against big obstacles. The public is expected to fight shy of any loan to such an unstable country as the Polish government, with its quarrels with the Soviet Union, Lithuania and Germany.

To counteract this lack of confidence, the American bankers are insisting on American representatives on the control board which is to decide to what uses the $80,000,000 is to be put. These representatives would have practical veto power, by which the Polish fascists object bitterly. They are expected however to swallow their pride and take the eighty millions.

The American bankers will get a fat rake-off on such a speculative loan, but will pass the risk on to the bankers out in the provinces who believe the Polish government will be able to pay interest and principal. As to whether the suckers will bite or shy off as they did on the Italian loan recently, is yet to be seen.

Organized Labor Activities

News and Opinions of Labor Education — Labor and Government — Trade Union Progress

A. F. L. BOSS PARTY IS PEACE TALK BY INTERNATIONAL AS BOMBER GOES ON

Persons and Programs — The Trade Union Press — Industrial Notes — Labor and Immigration

SIGMAN FORCING SACRIFICE SALE OF STRUCTURES

Would Sell Joint Board Bank Stock Too

That the Sigman clique is ready to destroy the value of the union building, belonging to the new membership, in its efforts to gain control of the union was pointed out by Julius Portnoy, secretary-treasurer of the Joint Board, in a statement commenting upon the foreclosure proceedings begun against the Joint Board and local building by mortgagees.

"The Sigman clique is now attempting to take possession of the Joint Board and local building that were built by the hard earned money of the rank and file," he said. "When the cloak strike began in July, 1926, the Joint Board and the locals borrowed money from the International Union Bank. It gave as collateral the stock of the buildings, which it deposited through Hilliquit, with his clerk, Frederick F. Umbey. At the same time Hilliquit gave the Joint Board a letter in which he promised that the collateral would be returned at any time it was demanded.

"After the beginning of the general of the strike, the International Union Bank threw all its resources at the disposal of the Sigman clique. Sigman attempted to raise a loan of $85,000 on the Joint Board building, and when we stopped this we found that all of the papers concerning the buildings had been transferred to Umbey's name, in violation of our agreement with Hilliquit. Hilliquit then sued the Joint Board for $106,000. He demanded judgment against the Joint Board building proposing, with the help of the courts, to take possession of it for Sigman. So far the courts have not granted him a judgment.

"Although Umbey has transferred the ownership of the building to his name, he has failed to make the mortgage payments when they fell due, thereby forcing the mortgagees to foreclose. The Sigman clique knows that if the buildings are sold in auction, they will lose at least half of their present value. The equity which the International Union Bank has in the buildings will be reduced by half. But Sigman, of course, does not care if the bank suffers as long as he can destroy union property, just as he destroyed union conditions in the shops.

Sell Joint Board of Bank Stock.

"Sigman is now making another effort to crush the Joint Board by his double dealing. They informed us last Saturday that they are preparing to sell 75 shares of stock in the International Union Bank which the Joint Board owns as well as stock which the locals own. The purpose of this maneuver is clear. At present the Joint Board controls the majority of the stock in the International Union Bank, and Sigman seeks to remedy this situation by getting possession of the stock, which is also in the hands of Umbey."

The Mutual Life Insurance Company has begun foreclosure proceedings against Local 2, alleging non-payment of taxes amounting to $1,501.05. The Bowery Savings Bank, holder of the first mortgage on the Local 9, has begun foreclosure proceedings alleging non-payment of $500 due on the principal.

Supreme Court Justice Aaron Levy has appointed a receiver for the Joint Board Building upon request of the estate of Sophie Benjamin, holder of the second mortgage. The receiver is Max Herbst.

Charge Davis Frame-up With Detroit Bosses

DETROIT, May 5.—That Secretary of Labor James. G. Davis has made a "gentlemen's agreement" with the Detroit Chamber of Commerce to nullify this country's labor laws is the charge levelled by organized labor of Detroit.

Detroit unions complain that Davis is permitting alien workers to enter the United States in violation of the immigration laws.

"Mother Machree" Composer Dies.

SANTA ANA, Cal., May 5.—Ernest R. Ball, noted composer and well-known to vaudeville audiences, was dead here today.

Ball was the composer of such popular songs as "Mother Machree," "When the Sands of the Desert Grow Cold," "Irish Eyes Are Smiling," and many others. He was about 50 years old.

A. F. L. Leaders Fear Investigation of Their Union

A threat of expulsion of the white International Fur Workers' Union from the American Federation of Labor has been made by Matthew Woll, head of the special Executive Committee of the Furriers' Union whom the board that a committee of fifty workers had been elected to investigate the unofficial reunion of peace.

Judging by Woll's attitude, the fear of reds is more than mere gossip. He openly denounced the possibility of the right wing officials of the A. F. of L. "National" making peace with the Joint Board leaders and giving up the attempt to smash the union. Woll's warning is, "If you do this, the whole bunch of you will be thrown out of the A. F. of L."

Just how authentic the rumors of peace may be was not determined by the committee of workers on Friday night. Because of the big committees, whom they were to visit, postponed its meeting until Friday. No doubt Matthew Woll's temper was not only tried by this peace talk—in spite of all his efforts to dissolve, expel, smash, and exterminate the Joint Board of the Furriers' Union—but he was angered (to say the least) about the agreement signed by the trimming manufacturers with the Joint Board. In his attempt to minimize the tremendous importance of this break in the ranks of the manufacturers, Woll characterized the pact as a sign of weakness on the part of the Joint Board. No one knows better than he what a sign of strength it actually is.

Employers Notified.

Formal notification of the new agreement was received Wednesday by members of the Fur Trimming Manufacturers' Association, and a membership meeting is to be called within a short time. The new agreement provides that any additional workers engaged in the trimming shops shall be workers affiliated with the Joint Board. There shall be no discrimination against right wing workers who are at present employed in the shops.

Matthew Woll was once again a witness at the hearing on alleged bribery of the police during the fur strike. This was resumed before Magistrate Corrigan in the Criminal Courts Building, and Woll, Edward F. McGrady, Hugh Frayne and Henrietta Tolden, stenographer to Frayne, were brought back to testify in reply to the accusations of a frame-up which were made by the members of the Joint Board.

Woll declared that all these charges of frame-up were entirely untrue. "What reason was there for a frame-up? Why, they were all the best of friends. There had been a disagreement during the strike, but it had been straightened out and the International Furriers' Union, the American Federation of Labor and Sigman were working "in entirely good accord'," so Woll claimed. This state of peace and harmony Woll emphasized over and over again. How could there possibly be any bribery?

When questioned as to why he had asked witnesses "What do you know about payments to the police?" Woll said Saturday that they were merely rumors of payments to the police and to reporters from the newspapers.

"Name one person who told you these rumors."

"Well, Mr. Schachtman (president of the International) told me the police were bribed."

Woll did Schachtman also suggested the reporters were bribed, and it was in an effort to clear the reporters that various witnesses were questioned. Schachtman, the instigator of this story of alleged bribery of the police, told members of the committee—so Woll said—that he heard Abraham Goodman, attorney for the firm, say he would pay money to the police. When Schachtman testified during these bribe hearings, he absolutely denied that Goodman had made any such statement.

Give Lie To Schachtman.

Schachtman was also accused of making a "misstatement" in testifying that the officials of the Joint Board had been based on the report of the A. F. of L. investigating committee. This was Schachtman's contention when he was on the stand. Yesterday, the holy trio. Woll, McGrady and Frayne, said this was not true.

Hugh Frayne, after several minutes' questioning on this point, refused to answer "yes" or "no," as to whether the report was the basis of the expulsion.

"The Joint Board was expelled according to the constitution of the union," said Frayne. "It would have happened anyway."

McGrady informed the court that the real reason for the expulsion was that the Joint Board owed the International forty thousand dollars (sic) in back per capita tax; and also because they issued counterfeit dues stamps.

Never Issued Stamps.

This showed McGrady a little better prepared with explanations than the others; but it showed him ignorant of the facts, for the Joint Board never issued any stamps at all. When the International refused to supply the regular dues stamps, the Joint Board printed special books marked "Temporary Dues Book"—"To be exchanged for regular book of the International Fur Workers' Union." Apparently it was for this that the Joint Board was expelled.

"Why did you not charge bribery of the police? Why did you not charge misappropriation of funds?" Attorney Frayne S. Weiss asked each witness as he was permitted a short period of cross-examination. And this one made various excuses for this, saying "It was not my business to make charges"; "I deemed it unimportant; I did not believe they had bribed the police."

During questioning of Miss Holden, Frayne's stenographer for eighteen years, it was brought out by Walsh that she had not transcribed her notes for several days after each hearing; and that frequently she had not filled in figures for many weeks after the time they were given. She then got the figures from the report of the mediator auditors. She acknowledged that the figures said to have been given by Isadore Shapiro, chairman of the Joint Board in his testimony, had been filled in weeks afterward from the auditors' incomplete report.

Both Frayne and Woll declared had not given to the press the stories of the charges of bribery of the police. They had made every effort to keep this part of the report secret, because they "knew it would be misinterpreted as an attack on the police".

"At the time you made this report, had a single person given you the name of any police official, high or low, who had received money?" asked Frank Welsh.

"No," was the answer of both Frayne and Woll.

Woll tried to contend that the committee never made any charges against the police, but Walsh brought forth a copy of the report and read from it the committee's own words that they "were convinced" money had been paid by the Joint Board to the police during the fur strike.

Not only did Woll deny that he had promised to show members of the Joint Board the minutes of the investigation committee's proceedings, but he declared the Joint Board members had never asked to see them. Yet every member of the Joint Board who testified told how Woll had promised to show them their testimony and then had never kept his promise.

Wolls Lines Statement.

At the close of his testimony, Woll gave a long account of the formation of both the International and the Joint Board and how it had operated. He declared its sessions had not be made public, as requested by the Joint Board, because he feared the matters to be discussed would bring discredit on the American Federation of Labor and the Furriers' Union. He claimed that both the International and the Joint Board had been allowed to have their members present and at the close of the hearing "all were satisfied it had been fair and impartial."

Woll declared that John P. Ryan, president of the Central Trades and Labor Council "is in full agreement with our report. He was present when it was made". Yet Ryan testified that he had heard no charges of graft made against the police.

As the hearing closed Frank Walsh said to Woll:

"My clients say you framed this thing up."

"Your clients are lying", replied Woll.

"Well, they say the same thing about you", said Walsh.

Indefinitely Adjourned.

The hearing adjourned indefinitely yesterday morning. It will not be resumed until some time after May 23rd.

Wall Street Toasts Fascist De Pinedo

Fascists toneked glasses with Wall Street in the banquet tendered Francesco de Pinedo by the Italy-American Society at the Hotel Roosevelt yesterday.

The toast was spoken by Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co. The fascist "air ambassador" whose flight throughout the Americas has been the subject of endless reams of Mussolini propaganda as well as demonstrations by Italians here who are fighting fascism, will be ready Monday to fly his new plane, the Santa Maria II.

New Yaquis Battles Seen.

NOGALES, Ariz., May 5.—New skirmishes between Yaqui Indians and Mexican troops seemed likely today as 300 federals, divided into small groups, tried to find a roving band of 250 warriors. Heavy casualties were reported in two previous clashes.

RIGHT WING IN CAP UNION HITS REAL CHINA AID

Resolution But No Action to Help Revolution

Because there are Communist members on the "Hands Off China Committee," the reactionaries in control of the Cloth Cap, Hat and Millinery Workers Union at Wednesday's session of its convention, absolutely refused to affiliate with the committee and help fight the imperialist attack on the workers of China.

They passed a resolution expressing sympathy with the Chinese liberation movement, but they resolved to join only a "movement that is endorsed by the American Federation of Labor that has for its purpose the freeing of the Chinese people and workers".

One of the delegates, Anna David, demanded action and not "sympathy"; other delegates pointed out that Chinese workers wanted help, and they did not care whether it came from the A. F. of L. or Communists. I. Feigold, who had introduced the resolution proposing affiliation with the "Hands Off China" Committee, spoke at length on the sudden reactionary stand of this union which has always been one of the few progressive units in the American Federation of Labor.

"For years," said Feingold, "the capmakers and millinery always differed with the A. F. of L. in principle. The union was class conscious; the A. F. of L. never was. Now all of a sudden, our union thinks that only what the A. F. of L. endorses is good and right. Why this change? It must be because we have lost our class consciousness."

A number of the workers pointed out that if they waited for the A. F. of L. to start any movement in behalf of China they would wait forever. Yet the capmakers chose to wait, rather than affiliate with an existing organization working for China's workers.

"What did the A. F. of L. ever do for the workers of Nicaragua, for Mexico, for Mexico, against American imperialism? What did they do for Sacco and Vanzetti until years of agitation had been carried on by the progressive workers?

As an illustration of the fact that the capmakers and milliners had in the past followed policies of their own, regardless of the stand of the A. F. of L., Feinberg pointed out that the union had favored a Labor Party, yet the A. F. of L. has opposed this. Another delegate asked, "Was the A. F. of L. acting in the interest of us workers when it suspended our union for several years during the jurisdictional fight with the United Hatters?"

All Right to Kill Flier.

LOS ANGELES, May 5.—Immigration inspectors who shot and killed Arthur J. Daugherty, student flier of Somerset, Ohio, were exonerated of blame today. A coroners' jury decided that the slaying of Daugherty, who was shot as a smuggler, was "justifiable homicide."

Red Cartoons

OF 1927
.$1 Postpaid
Red Cartoons
Of 1926 Now
.50 CENTS

Violin and Viola Lessons
Given by expert teacher.
For reasonable rates write to
JOHN WEINROTH
6101 LARCHWOOD AVENUE.
Phone Grenville 7252, Philadelphia, Pa.

CARLO TRESCA RETRACES ORIGIN OF CASE IN ARREST OF SALSEDO, ELIA

Reign of Terror by Department of Justice Was Responsible For World-Famous Frame-up

By ART SHIELDS (Federated Press).

Why is the department of justice so desperately hostile to Sacco and Vanzetti?

Seven years after their arrest Attorney General Sargent shows his bitter attitude in an insulting letter to Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, a friend of the defense.

Carlo Tresca knows the story, an ugly story of murder during the Palmer "Red Raids." On the seventh anniversary of the jailing of Sacco and Vanzetti he told the story of how Elia D. of J. hatched its plot against the two radicals. Sitting in the office of his paper, Il Martello, he went back to the ghastly winter and spring of 1920.

"Those were the days when Italian radicals were being arrested, beaten and murdered by Palmer's agents," he said. "They were after me then too, as they have been since."

Visited By Vanzetti.

"Vanzetti came to see me a few days before his arrest. We were both working for the release of two of his friends who were being given the "third degree" in the office of the department at 21 Park Row.

"An Italian spy named Luigi Ravarino plotted the conspiracy. He had been assigned by the department of justice to work among his countrymen. First he visited Boston in the winter—long before the South Braintree murder—and got acquainted with Vanzetti and a circle of workers that had formerly published a paper called Cronaca Sovversiva. Ravarino urged them to start the paper again, and promised money for it.

Palmer Looking For Victims.

"Palmer's agent provocateur then came to New York. He was trying to implicate Italian radicals in the mysterious explosion in front of Attorney Mitchell Palmer's residence June 2, 1919. As you remember a man was supposed to have blown himself up in the explosion but no part of him was ever produced for identification except a pair of bloody shoes and some other articles of clothing—and a few copies of a leaflet called 'Plain Words'.

"Vanzetti and his friends knew nothing of the affair so the stool-pigeon next ferretted about in Harlem where two anarchist boys were running a propaganda paper called Il Refrattario, at 211 East 106th St.

"Announcing himself as a very violent person who committed holdups and burglaries to obtain the money for anarchist propaganda, Ravarino attempted to gain the confidence of the Harlem anarchists and to find out what they knew of the Palmer bomb. They knew nothing about it. But the detective continued to agitate, and sent their printing plant.

In the effort to find out whether they had any type corresponding to that used in the 'Plain Words' leaflet, Ravarino used to give them orders for different kinds of circulars.

Ravarino Exposed.

"At that time I was active in the defense of men arrested in the red raids. I became suspicious of Ravarino and wrote to Italy for information. I found that the friends of Enrico Malatesta and other Italian radicals knew all about him and I subsequently exposed him in Il Martello and the New York Call.

"I am giving this stool pigeon's story in detail because he is the agent who is responsible for starting this famous case the world has been talking of for seven years.

"Getting no information in Herlem he shifted again, to Brooklyn, where two anarchist printers, Andreas Salsedo and Robert Elia, were publishing "Il Domani."

Salsedo Asks Help.

"One day Salsedo entered my office, saying, 'Cerlo, you must help us. Elia has been arrested by the department of justice. They didn't recognize me and I escaped.'

"I had just gotten the erblence on Ravarino. 'That's his work,' I exclaimed.

"I advised Salsedo to employ Harry Weinberger, a radical attorney of New York, on the case, before something tragic happened to Elia. But three days later—when we were just about to formally engage Weinberger —Salsedo came in to say that they had employed an Italian lawyer, named Leigi Donato.

Lawyer An Arrest.

"'Beware of that fellow,' I said. 'I doubt if he is to be trusted.'

"Donato turned out to be another department of justice spy. His offices were on the fourteenth floor of the Park Row building, just below the department on the fifteenth.

"Not knowing that the man who had employed him was Salsedo himself, Donato cunningly asked him if he knew where Salsedo could be found.

Salsedo Arrested.

"'I am he,' said the printer.

"'Give me your home address so I can get you when I want you,' said Donato.

"That night Salsedo was arrested.

Torture Two Anarchists.

"For two months Salsedo and Elia were tortured there in the Park Row building.

"They were kept separate at first. Elia did not know what was happening to his friend till one day when he was being taken along the corridor and through an open door he saw eight men with their coats off working on Salsedo.

"This is the story that Elia afterwards told me and Attorney Walter Nelles of the American Civil Liberties Union.

Steadfast To Principle.

"The two printers refused to tell what was expected. By threats and blows the agents of Palmer tried to make them confess that they had printed the circular There Words, one to implicate other anarchists.

"One day in the office of William Flynn, chief of the U. S. Bureau of Investigation, Elia met his old comrade. Salsedo's face was badly bruised, with traces of blood.

"Screams came from Salsedo's room from time to time. For awhile the two men were kept in the same room. Salsedo complained to me on the point of losing his mind. He vomited continually and coughed. He could not sleep at night.

"All this while the stoolpigeon lawyer was assuring Salsedo that all would be well and the department agents were telling her that he would soon be out if she would keep her mouth shut.

"I met Vanzetti April 26. He had come to New York from Boston to see what could be done to free his friend. Salsedo and Elia. He came to my office.

"I had become convinced that some thing terrible was happening, though I had not yet learned the facts. We had gotten an attorney for the American Civil Liberties Union interested.

"Vanzetti went back to Boston to raise some money. He sent down $50."

Here Tresca paused.

Only $50.

"Fifty dollars is a lot of money for poor workingmen to raise in a hurry but they had to learn the facts. Sixtree bandits, with a payroll of $15,000, do you think they would have had only $50 for a friend who was being murdered. It is ridiculous.

"Ravarino," he continued, "knew Vanzetti and his group. The department made good when they saw an effort was being made to free Salsedo and Elia.

Night of Terror.

"May 2 was the fateful night. Salsedo was taken into another room by a man who entered in the dark. Elia said that he ley terrified in the bed. He heard someone enter his own room. What was about to happen to him he knew not but at that moment there was a crash.

"Next morning a guard said, 'Your friend is dead.'

"As he was being taken to dinner at noon he saw the newspaper headline 'Salsedo commits suicide.'"

"Was it a suicide, do you believe?" I asked Tresca.

"Elia does not think so," Tresca replied, "and he believes they pitched him out of the window."

Elia Deported. Dies.

Elia told his story to Tresca as Elia's friend. Before the days of justice was rushing him out of the country, a deportee. Their failure to charge him officially with the bombing they had been accusing him of told how baseless was the accusation.

He died in Italy a few months later a broken man. His nerves shattered, he could not sleep, he wrote Tresca.

Vanzetti Arrested On May 5.

Always he seemed to be feeling the blows of the detectives, and hearing their hatchet and threats.

The aftermath of the story is well known. Vanzetti and Sacco were arrested on a street car in Brockton, May 5, two days after Salsedo's death, as they were preparing for a mass meeting of protest.

PHILADELPHIA
ANNUAL BAZAAR
DANCE and CONCERT
of the
INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE
FRIDAY EVENING, MAY 6th
SATURDAY AFTERNOON and EVENING, MAY 7th
NEW TRAYMORE HALL
Franklin and Columbia Ave.
Tickets for both days, 50c. Single admission, 35c.
(Including Wardrobe.)

CHIANG KAI-SHEK

By M. P. PUSH.

Commercial forces of civilization in the service of groups remain forever indifferent upon the question of whether only a handful of people or the majority of a certain race or the whole of mankind is enslaved. From a certain point of view, the history of development of Chinese capitalism generally speaking bears this character. Everyone that contributed towards the victory of this revolution will be counted among the army of immortal pioneers who helped to raise the level of human development not only in China but that of the whole world.

Those creatures in human form who happen to be carried along upon the crest of the revolutionary wave, but who desert their comrades in the midst of the most sanguinary crisis, are recorded in history as venomous reptiles that curl up beneath the underbrush and treacherously strike at their immediate victims, when the latter least suspect it. Chiang Kai Shek is one of these creatures. He was entirely unknown to the world at large until the liberation movement in China commenced its victorious march a few months ago. This movement lifted him up to the pinnacle of world fame; but as soon as he reached this lofty height he showed his true color to be that of another bloody militarist of the Wu Pei-fu type. Not only did he use his position as generalissimo of the Nationalist armies to advance his own fortune, but as soon as he embarked on this road he did not stop at accepting bribes from his worthwhile enemies, the imperialists, and turned traitor to China's struggle for freedom.

This betrayal places Chiang in the same category of bandit robbers, of the exploited masses of China, with the notorious Anfu Club, Wu Pei-fu, Chang Tso-lin and others of this type of scoundrel. And just like the latter group, excepting Chang Tso-lin whose turn is still to come, has been swept away and thrown down into the dark recesses of oblivion so will Chiang be dragged in his disgrace and be flung overboard to take his rightful place alongside of the other bandits who helped keep China in misery.

It would not be worth the while to spend much paper and print in order to mention the fact that another traitor to the cause of the working masses has been added to the already long list, if there were no lessons to be learned therefrom. Now what are these lessons.

First, that every friend and foe of the emancipation movement of the proletariat must distinctly understand that the vast store of rich and invaluable lessons of October, 1917, will stand as the most powerful bulwark against defeat of the oppressed in the struggle for freedom. Our Chinese comrades are taking advantage of the lessons of the Russian revolution, they will therefore, in due course of time reach their goal notwithstanding the traitors in their ranks and the imperialist hordes within their gates. The Hankow government is sincerely desirous of bringing about (1) the expulsion of the imperialist robbers, (2) the abolition of the remnants of feudalism, (3) the unification of all of China into one united nation under one centralized government, (4) and the placing of this government in the hands of representatives of the producing classes. Anyone who finds himself in disagreement with this program will eventually find himself by the wayside.

That since Lenin, the greatest of all engineers of construction of proletarian power thru organization has taught the workers the technique of organizing, the usurpation of a movement of many by an inspiring Napoleon and using it for his own ends has well nigh become impossible as far as the revolutionary class struggle is concerned. Lenin demonstrated to the workers of the world that the leadership of the revolutionary struggle must be in the hands of "revolutionary cadres." That means that "professional revolutionists" who have no other interest outside the struggle for the emancipation of the proletariat, and whose lives are devoted to this cause alone and not the furtherance of individual ends can successfully organize and lead the producing masses to victory.

This means, first, devotion to the cause and self-sacrifice for it, second, it means team work, group action and direction so that no individual of the group may usurp dictatorial power. The enlarged session of the Central Executive Committee of the Kuomintang Party adopted this form of organization:

(1) The re-establishment of the military council whose powers Chiang usurped, (2) that a military commissary be established to supply all needs of the army, (3) that all foreign affairs be centralized in the hands of a foreign ministry, (4) that a finance ministry be established that will control all finances, instead of the way Chiang was plundering the treasury and did not give an accounting of same, (5) that all membership (which at times means dictators) be abolished and presidiums of 3 or 5 should control important committees.

(6) That all these divisions shall work under the direction and supervision of the supreme body, the CEC of the party.

Chiang Kai Shek gave lip service to it. He even issued a manifesto to the Chinese people in which he stated that he accepts the decisions of the Central Executive Committee. But while the Chinese masses were reading this manifesto Chiang Kai Shek was treacherously conspiring against them. And like Wu Pei-fu, who three years ago on entering into Hankow ordered his lieutenants to cut off the heads of the leaders of the Railwaymen's Union, so he, Chiang, ordered the executions of the leaders of the Shanghai trade union movement and those of other cities.

This betrayal has added to the burden of the Chinese struggling for freedom. It is therefore the duty of the workers of the whole world to redouble their efforts in behalf of China. To demand the withdrawing of the imperialist forces and leave the Chinese to work out their own salvation, which will be in the best interest of the workers of the whole world.

In the City of Mills

By MARY B. TRASK.

ARTICLE I.

The first impression one received was of extreme neatness. Having passed through the dishevelled alley, having opened the creaking door, we were met by a positive wave of cleanliness. Bright red and white checkered linoleum—a stove shining black and giving a welcome warmth.

It was not until she had found chairs for us and had offered hospitality to her unexpected callers that we began to notice curious things about her tiny house. Two rooms there were: two rooms and nothing more. In the corner stood a pail of water and a dishpan—testimony that running water was as remote from her life as electricity or steam.

Warm On Charity.

"Yes, my house sure and warm today." There was pride in her voice. "They send me coal this morning." She motioned toward the sack which stood in the corner. Already it was beginning to sag ominously—I wondered how "nice and warm" the house had been the day before, would be toward the end of the week. Two bushels of coal seemed suddenly a pitifully minute quantity.

"You got your food alright from the Relief store this week?"

Slim Rations.

"They don't have much—just the potatoes and milk I get. This week when I come in no more coffee. I have beans from last time so I no take—maybe another striker would want."

It was just matter of fact—not a trace of complaint in the voice.

With us was one from the office who was an old friend. They talked together; bits of conversation came to me, the outsider.

"No, they tell me nothing doing yet. Maybe next week. I think I must wait long time—they not want me become of the accident."

I knew about that. The "accident" was that ten years ago something had gone wrong with her back as a result of the position in which she was forced to stand at her machine. The doctor had told her that she must get other work—she was transferred to another part of the mill, at wages one quarter less than she had been receiving. Five dollars made a lot of difference, but when she ventured to complain they had told her to keep quiet or quit. As there were two children dependent on her, she had decided to keep quiet.

Now they would not re-employ her. Though she was a Botany worker, and the Botany strike had ended in December, she was still out of a job.

What use had they for this bent little old woman, who would so soon become of no value?

"You worked in the mill a long time?" I asked.

"A long time? Thirty-five year."

Only the Slavs can, by gesture, make a remark seem so utterly commonplace and unimportant.

"Not thirty-five years without stopping? You must have had a vacation!"

"Oh yes, it was one time I was sick. For four days I do not work."

I could understand the words. I could not comprehend their meaning. "For four days I do not work." "Thirty-five years." It was not quite possible.

She was talking again about the possibility of re-employment. "They say I am too old. I am not old—fifty-one."

A woman of only fifty could not look like that. She must at least be seventy. Yet when I asked them at the Office they even went so far as to look up her record to prove that she had not lied.

I was dumbly miserable. Despite her obvious pleasure at receiving callers, I could not but feel that to come into her home was an intrusion. To sit there on the stool which she had so carefully brushed off, and listen to her as she talked of these incredible things—I was glad when we rose to leave.

"Your youngsters getting along alright?"

"Sure, they get on fine. Mary does not feel so good this week, but she be alright soon. She want a lot of food!"

A lot of food! At best the family was only entitled to five dollars' worth.

"Well, you must keep her strong and healthy. She'll have to take care of you, someday."

"Yes, three years more—she thirteen now."

For what was sixteen the age limit? Her next remark told me, quite clearly.

"Three year, and then she go to work. I think she go Forstman Huffman—I no like the Botany so well."

Daddy Still Paying.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y. May 5.—Counsel for Mrs. Frances "Peaches" Browning today applied to Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins here for an order entering a judgment against Edward West Browning for $2,500.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

THE BEST COTTON LAND FLOODED

NON-UNION MINE, WHERE NINETY-FOUR WERE KILLED

Mine No. 3, of the New England Fuel and Transportation Co., at Everettsville, West Virginia, where a preventible explosion killed 94 miners.

FAKE AUTO WORKERS' UNION IN RICHMOND

(By IDA SYLVANEN.)

Twilight is stealing, creeping deathly slow over the valley, up the hillside and finally enveloping the little shack in its softly enfolding embrace. All around is silence; only the faint sighing of the wind in the near by trees is neard, and from the shack comes the dull monotony of a priest's praying voice, broken by the occasional groan of a dying man.

On the steps, a gaunt silent female is sitting, clasping a rifle across her knee. Her bloodshot eyes are trying to pierce the darkness and her ears are strained to catch the faintest sound. Above the sighing of the wind and the moaning and groaning, the faint bark of a dog is heard. She grips her gun tighter, and harder become the lines that once were lips; her eyes become mere slits and from their depths come gleams of deadly hate.

The baying grows louder and louder, the woman tightens her grip on the gun until her knarled hands are numb with pain. Inside the groans have become fainter and the praying more intense. . . .

Many times she had sat thus—alway waiting—

Long years ago—how many—she hardly knew, she had migrated to the fabled land of plenty, where one picked gold in the streets. But that illusion had been destroyed by years of unremitting toil and hardships and poverty. . . .

Nature had not been very lavish in bestowing gifts upon her, so love and beauty had passed her by—until one day, he came. So life became one sweet dream for her with no thot of awakening . . . but . . . one day, he came no more . . .

Long evenings of waiting at their trysting place, staring with burning tearful eyes up the darkening trail until the night hid it from view. But he came not.

All that winter she waited and in the spring the baby came. Then her marriage to the town drunkard to save her "honor" and again long years of waiting. Waiting and listening for his drunken footsteps. Waiting and dreaming for her son to grow into wonderful manhood. How she planned for him!

One day the husband ordered the boy to shift for himself and showed him the door. . . . More and longer years of waiting; lonely, long evenings of sitting on the doorstep and waiting—always waiting—and then the agonized cry, "mother"; a rush into her arms. "Don't let them get me, mother, they're after me . . . I . . . I . . ." the blood-choked utterance grew a little calmer now. "I was penniless, no work, was beating my way home . . . when they got me and sent me to the camp . . . I got away . . . they're after me . . . I—I'm dying . . . the swamp . . . the fever . . . mother . . .

A hasty ride for the priest—

The baying of the hounds is growing fainter and fainter and finally is heard no more . . . the dying man's groans have ceased. Only the wind in the trees is sighing and the priest's dull voice is monotonously praying in the shack.

Waiting

By THOMAS H. STONE.

THE labor movement has produced many queer freaks but surely none more so than the Richmond, Va., Brotherhood of Automobile Mechanics. This body was definitely formed about two or three weeks ago. According to a written statement of a member of the "Brotherhood," the following is the nature of the thing: "The Brotherhood is organizing and classifying all those who are so-called automobilo mechanics. A person, in order to be classified as a mechanic in the brotherhood, must have had as a prerequisite three years' experience in automobile repairing." Now listen to this gem: The applicant must be recommended by "two members or by dealers for whom he has worked." "This classification is then submitted to a committee, of five, three of whom must be foremen in reputable garages, the other two may be either mechanics or representatives of the dealers."

Following this beautiful line, the article proceeds: "Frequently the small shopowner was formerly a skilled mechanic and would easily qualify for membership in the brotherhood, and, if so, could make this a good advertisement for drawing business."

Is it necessary to go further with this nauseating mixture of stupidity and scab unionism?

What is the explanation of the formation of such a "union"? No doubt, either the bosses or some self-seeking fakers are playing a part in this game. But, this is not a full explanation. Up to the present this important work of organizing the auto workers has been neglected by the old line unions and such a farce as this "Brotherhood" is the result.

TO remedy this condition two steps must be taken:

1. The A. F. of L. unions, and especially the machinists in this town must start a real organization drive in the auto industry, linking it up with a national drive and eliminating the petty jurisdictional fights that have been the death of other drives in the past.

2. The honest members of the "Brotherhood of Automobile Mechanics" must realize the danger of their present course, leave this scab union, which can only function in the interests of their employers and join the local lodge of the International Assn. of Machinists, forming therein a solid block for the prosecution of a real organizing campaign. They should also try to eliminate from their midst an insidious spirit of race prejudice which expressed itself in restricting their membership to "Caucasians." Such suicidal stupidity should also be combatted in the I. A. of M.

Since this article was started, I have received information that the I. A. of M. is sending an organiser to line up the auto workers here. This is good, but the maximum results cannot be achieved unless rank and file organizing committees are formed by the active union members to assist him.

(N. B. A letter of commendation for the "Brotherhood" (!?) appears, in one of the local capitalist rags, from Williamsburg, Va., the seat of an insane asylum. Further comment is unnecessary.)

BOOKS

PREPARATIONS FOR THE IMPENDING IMPERIALIST WAR IN THE PACIFIC

China in Revolt. By Stalin, Tan-Ping-Shan, Manuilsky and Bucharin. Daily Worker Publishing Co. 15 cents.

This pamphlet on China should be in the hands of every worker who wants to understand the driving forces of the great upheaval in China. It is a symposium, comprising speeches and articles by the outstanding leaders of the world revolutionary movement and by one Chinese.

Stalin, in his speech delivered to the Chinese Commission of the Enlarged Executive Committee of the Communist International, dealt with the peculiarities of the Chinese revolution; pointing out those characteristics that distinguished that elementary insurrectionary movement from previous revolutions, particularly the 1905 revolution in Russia. With true Leninist analysis he depicts the role of the revolutionary armies in China and the important role of the peasantry in the struggle against imperialism. Most important for the study of the art of insurrection, particularly as it applies to countries predominantly peasant, is that part of Stalin's contribution regarding the conduct to be followed by the revolutionary troops after they establish themselves among the peasants. One quotation is worth far more than the price of the pamphlet and should be studied by all sincere revolutionists:

"It is said that the revolutionary army in China is welcomed with open arms, but that later, after it has established itself, there is certain disillusionment. The same thing happened with us in the Soviet Union during the civil war. This is explained by the fact that the army, after it has liberated new provinces and established itself in them, is compelled to maintain itself in some way or another at the expense of the district. We, the Soviet revolutionaries, usually succeeded in making up for these disadvantages by endeavoring to help the peasants against the landowners by means of the army. It is essential that the Chinese revolutionaries should also learn to make up for these disadvantages by carrying out a correct peasant policy with the help of the army."

Under the influence of the Communists who are the dynamic force in the revolutionary movement in China this advice is being put into practice, much to the amazement and chagrin of the imperialist military "experts," who cannot comprehend that a revolutionary army has reserves that no predatory army can ever hope for.

In military theory, an army, from the day it enters the field becomes weaker, regardless of whether it is winning victories or not, for the simple reason that its very existence depletes its forces. That applies to imperialist armies. Its only recruits come from new forces being thrown into the breech. But a revolutionary army, pursuing a correct policy in occupied territory wins to its support the population and the most virile elements of that population invariably rallies to the support of the revolution, with the result that the army constantly gains in numbers and power.

Many more valuable contributions to revolutionary strategy appear in Stalin's article in the pamphlet; too many, in fact, to be described in the short space alloted for our review.

* * *

Tan-Ping Shan emphasizes the steps necessary to complete the nationalist revolution in China, while Manuilsky deals with the Pacific problem as a whole, especially emphasizing the dangers of another world conflict by laying bare the antagonistic roles of the United States, England and Japan. Regarding America Manuilsky warns:

"America is already arming now for the war in the Pacific; there is already an extensive litérature which discusses this question in detail; and even the very time (1931-33) is set; plans for operations are described; in brief the picture which we had several years before the war in Europe is beginning to resurrect itself. At that time, prior to the world war, one could find in military literature detailed drafts of the German attack upon Belgium, which were later, on the first days of August, 1914, carried into effect with photographic fidelity.

"The whole development of American imperialism in the last 25 years testifies that this approaching struggle on the Pacific is in no sense a creation of fantasy."

Manuilsky's analysis is valuable today, inasmuch as it lays the foundation for an understanding of the strained relations between America and England that have come openly to the surface in the attitude of the Coolidge administration in refusing to participate in a second note to Eugene Chen, nationalist foreign minister of China, and are accentuated by the remarks of Ambassador Houghton in London to the effect that the United States would not follow British policy in the Pacific.

The policies of the three imperialist powers—the United States, Great Britain and Japan—are dealt with in simple and striking sentences that drive home to workers the monstrous threat of another world war that will eclipse in magnitude the last world war. Manuilsky concludes with emphasizing the role of the proletariat as the guardian of the peace of the world.

* * *

Bucharin analyzes the conditions in China that are favorable to the growth of the revolution and points out the dangers that would inevitably follow from a wrong policy of applying the united front against imperialism. He points out that a struggle for national liberation against imperialism must be combined with sweeping land reforms in order to win the solid support of the peasantry and that those petty bourgeoise elements not connected with foreign capital must remain in the ranks of the nationalist movement.

Finally Bucharin emphasizes the fact that the Chinese revolution will awaken a "mighty echo" in neighboring colonial countries. No matter what other literature one may have upon China, there is nothing that can take the place of this valuable pamphlet.

THE NEW MASSES

Whether or not China is ready for a proletarian state is open to question. That it is not seems to be the dominent opinion in the Communist International.

But there is all the difference in the world between that view and the cockeyed mystical notion that the "Chinese are not fitted constitutionally to become reds." Yet that is the theory that is advanced by Dorothy Wong in a leading article in the New Masses.

* * *

The theory of innate redness is not at all new. It has been applied by myopic liberals to revolutions and proletarian movements in every country. For English liberals, Bolshevism is all right in Russia, but Englishmen aren't constitutionally fitted for it; for German liberals, Bolshevism works all right in Russia, but Sovietism isn't in harmony with the German spirit; for American liberals Sovietism is all right for Russians (they're a little bugs anyway) but Americans ain't built like that.

The New Masses should lead with a very poorly-written article subscribing to that thesis is a little surprising. The only explanations that I can think of are that the article was written by a Chinese, and that the New Masses editors were hard up for stuff on China.

* * *

Of the two other long articles, one, Bukharin's attack on the Yessenin cult, is interesting. The other, "Economics and Education" is a very dull and erudite attempt by V. F. Calverton to establish the "causal relationship between educational theory and economic evolution." Calverton's preliminary apologies do not make his thesis less trite.

This is the way in which Bukharin punctures the Yessenin cult. "Is Yessenin talented? Of course he is. Who would dispute that. Nevertheless Yessenianism as a whole, is a disgusting, vulgarly painted and powdered Russian obscenity. It is saturated with alcoholic tears. A monstrous mixture of 'male dogs,' ikons, 'glaring candles,' birches, the moon, bitches, gods, necrophelia, a lot of drunken tears, and 'tragic' drunken hiccoughs; religion and hooliganism, 'love' for animals and a barbaric attitude towards men and especially women, impotent longings for 'wide open spaces' (while sitting within four narrow walls of a common cabaret), decadence raised to the height of principle,—and so on—all this under the cloak of a wild quasi-folk nationalism constitutes Yessenianism."

* * *

The most interesting thing in the magazine are a series of red hot Chinese atrocities created by Bill Gropper for the benefit of Minister MacMurray, who is hankering for a nice little war against Nationalist China; and a drawing by Hugo Gellert of John L. Lewis, "high-salaried strategist of the embattled miners," who regrets that he has but "one Union to sacrifice for his country."

* * *

Say the editors of the New Masses in the current issue, "Paragraph writers on The DAILY WORKER unload columns of sarcasm against our discussion of such human problems as for example, art and sex."

Personally, I'd prefer that the New Masses devote itself even less to strictly political questions than it does. I should like to see it deal with art, religion, the lives of dirt farmers,—even sex; but deal with them from a live radical and politically sane point of view.

I much prefer, for instance, that the New Masses print stuff like Bukharin's analysis of Yessenin than political slop like Dorothy Wong's.

—HARRY FREEMAN.

"HANDS OFF CHINA" DEMONSTRATION—UNION SQUARE, SATURDAY NOON

FIRST SECTION
This issue consists of two sections Be sure to get them all.

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV No. 98. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. NEW YORK, SATURDAY, MAY 7, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

"BIG FOUR" OFFICERS CRIMINALLY LIABLE FOR FAKE REPORT TO STATE

Amazing Discrepancy in Statement Made to Insurance Department Blamed on Poor Clerk

PREVIOUS EVENTS OF INSURANCE EXPOSE

As a result of a series of articles exposing the swindle of weekly payment life insurance Governor Smith ordered Superintendent of Insurance James A. Beha to conduct an inquiry based on the charges made in The DAILY WORKER.

Mr. Beha wrote to The DAILY WORKER calling for specific charges which were submitted to him on April 30th. His reply is awaited daily.

The charges contained in today's articles were not included in the letter to Mr. Beha and constitute additional evidence which the superintendent will have to cope with.

* * *

The gods are kind to the "Big Four." They have made it possible for legislature to be bought, they have blessed the land with forty million unfortunate people who are not too sharp at figures—and above all they have given the insurance business a most obliging Department of Insurance.

This department exists as a go-between for the Insurance companies and the "public." Its duties are to see that these gigantic corporations do not conduct their business other than on an honest and equitable basis.

All reports as to business done and the financial condition of the companies involved are to be carefully scrutinized by the examinere of the department.

On February 6th of this year The Prudential Life Insurance of America submitted a report to Mr. James A. Beha, superintendent of insurance, which among many other things contained the following deliberate and false statement:

Under the main heading of "disbursements" and particularly under the sub-heading of Ordinary miscellaneous expenditures the following items appear:

Annual Audit	$ 7,800.00
Examinations	20,843.11
Sundry & General	96,388.91
Investment Expense	531,058.30
Legislative Expense	1,598.15
Field Employees	115,092.20
Dining Room	181,222.75
Welfare Work	7,299.87
Premiums	23,303.50
Conferences	88,430.63
Election of Director	1,895.76
Premium of Stock	60.48

Simple Mathematics.

Now, anyone who ever got beyond the fourth grade in public school (let alone an expert accountant) is acquainted with simple addition by exercising such elementary knowledge one would find that the correct and true total to the above tabulation is $1,074,632.66. In the Prudential Life Insurance Company's annual report as submitted to the Department of Insurance the total is $1,029,026.66. How does the State Department of Insurance account for the discrepancy of $46,606.00?

I visited the offices of the Insurance Department yesterday and verified this error by examining the original statement as submitted by the Prudential.

Blames Clerk.

When questioned about the error, Mr. Hadley one of the state examiners said, "Oh a clerk must have made the mistake. You can't hold the Prudential officials for perjury." No mention was made of perjury previous to Hadley's remark.

Daniel F. Gordon, deputy superintendent when informed of the error said, "I can't see how the officials of the Prudential could have made such a simple mistake."

False—Fraudulent.

It is hereby contended that the report referred to is false and fraudulent and is in violation of Section 665 of the Penal Law of the State of New York in that it is a statement showing the pecuniary condition of a corporation which contains a material statement that is false.

The report was signed by Edward D. Duffield, president, Willard I. Hamilton, secretary, John K. Gore, actuary and Fredric A. Boyle, treasurer; all officers of the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

This is clearly a case for the district attorney.

Machinists' Balloting Closed

WASHINGTON. (FP).—Balloting by lodges of the Intl. Assn. of Machinists, in their biennial general election, has closed, and counting of the votes has begun. Arthur O. Wharton, president, and Fred Hewitt, editor of the Machinists' Journal, were unopposed. The main contest is for membership on the executive council and the delegation to the American Federation of Labor conventions.

Wharton, returned from an organizing trip around the eastern territory, reports that 1,300 new members have been enrolled during April.

J. N. Beffel Swears Judge Thayer Was Bitterly Hostile

One of the strongest affidavits showing prejudice by Judge Thayer against the defendants in the Sacco-Vanzetti trial at Dedham in 1921 was sworn to by John Nicholas Beffel, who covered the trial for Federated Press. Beffel is now employed on a local newspaper.

His deposition, in part, reads:

On or about the fourth morning of the trial, Marquis A. Ferrante, Italian consul at Boston, was present in court as a spectator. At the close of that session, I went over to where the consul was seated and talked with him. He asked me to take down a brief statement which he wished to give out to the press, and requested me to pass it on to all the reporters at the trial. The statement was this:

Italy Deeply Interested.

"The Italian authorities are deeply interested in the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, and this trial will be closely followed by them. They have complete confidence that the trial will be conducted solely as a criminal proceeding, without reference to the political or social beliefs of anyone involved."

Immediately afterward I typed this statement, making several carbon copies. Then I walked down to the Dedham Inn, and entered the private dining-room in which Judge Webster Thayer and the reporters usually ate their lunches. I sat down with several of the other newspapermen and gave them copies of the consul's utterance. Judge Thayer was sitting in another corner of the room, at his own table.

When the judge got up to leave the room Jack English of the Boston American showed him Marquis Ferrante's statement and asked him what he thought of it. Judge Thayer made a gesture of anger.

Testy About Consul.

"Why," he said, "that fellow came clear out to my home in Worcester and assured me that the Italian government had no interest in this case."

This was uttered in the presence of several newspapermen including Jack English, Frank P. Sibley of the Bos-

(Continued on Page Two)

327,000 Flooded Out Refugees Living in Mississippi Camps

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 6.—There are now 327,827 persons depending on charity for food and shelter, according to Henry M. Baker, disaster director of the Red Cross, who declared today that $10,000,000 must be considered a minimum to care for refugees in flood-tossed areas of the Mississippi valley.

This number of refugees is steadily increasing daily, Baker explained, as thousands are marooned in Louisiana or already enroute to camps and floods are continuing to sweep over more territory.

The official tabulation of refugees being cared for is as follows:

Arkansas 114,873; Mississippi 160,814; Illinois 6,000; Missouri 11,821; Kentucky 5,082; Tennessee 4,333; Louisiana 23,745.

GUARDED RUTHENBERG URN

Hamburg Red Front Fighters who guarded the remains of Comrade C. E. Ruthenberg at the Communist Party headquarters over Easter Sunday and Monday, before Comrade Engdahl and representatives of the Communist Party of Germany departed for Berlin.

Hamburg Red Front Fighters Guard Urn Of C. E. Ruthenberg

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

HAMBURG, Germany. (By Mail)—This famous seaport of Germany, center of many courageous battles of revolutionary workers in the class struggle, is truly crimson with Communist soldiers this Easter Sunday. Ten thousand delegates from all Germany to the German Youth Congress have practically seized the city and claimed it as their own. Everywhere on the streets are to be seen the Red Front Fighters, with their red arm bands, marching, singing, discussing.

They came in hosts, these young German workers, with the party comrades, to the great Hauptbahnhof, to greet our coming with the ashes of our dead comrade, Ruthenberg, who had struggled so hard, against great difficulties, to organize the working

(Continued on Page Three)

U. S. Marines Take Field to Destroy Nicaragua Liberals

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 6.—Abandoning all hope that the mercenary troops of "President" Diaz, Wall Street's man in Nicaraguan politics will ever be able to defeat the liberal forces of President Sacasa, the United States marines have forced themselves between the two contending armies, and will hereafter fight in the open field against constitutional President Sacasa's army.

General Moncada, liberal commander, has issued a statement to his troops asking them to take a vote as to whether they will surrender their arms and accept amnesty from Diaz, or continue the fight against the United States puppet, and from now on, against the whole power of the American exploiters.

Moncada advises surrender on account of the military resources of the United States.

LABOR VIGILANCE IN VANZETTI CASE URGENTLY NEEDED

BOSTON, May 6.—Governor Fuller is expected to name Frank A. Brooks, chairman of the state parole board and Attorney General Arthur K. Reading to investigate the Sacco-Vanzetti case, as exclusively predicted in the DAILY WORKER and Federated Press a week ago. A semi-official announcement to this effect circulated in State House quarters today.

While it is declared that Brooks is not too prejudiced against the two workers, the attitude of the attorney general is expected to be generally "hard-boiled."

The need for energetic working class protest to continue within the next two months before the scheduled burning of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti is as urgent as ever. The danger as seen now by friends of the condemned Italians is that labor will have a false sense of security after Fuller appoints his investigators.

Wisconsin Speaks Out

A petition signed by 66 members and the presiding officers of both houses in the Wisconsin legislature asking for an early and impartial investigation of the case was received by Fuller today.

Henry A. Huber, lieutenant governor, John W. Eber, speaker of the assembly, seven senators and 59 assemblymen signed the petition.

The petition from Wisconsin, one of the thousands received by the Governor, the first to come from members of an America legislative body.

Swedish Labor Protests

Paul Loebe, president of the German Reichstag, has cabled a plea for amnesty. The Massachusetts branch of the A. F. of L., a group of prominent Baltimoreans, including faculty members at Johns Hopkins University and prominent churchmen, and the 500,000 members of the Swedish Federation of Labor joined today in the world-wide protest against the scheduled electrocution.

A "nut" letter from Chicago, threatening murder of Fuller and his family, was given wide publicity in the local press. Although conceded to be the outpouring of an unbalanced mind, the document was nevertheless featured where Vanzetti's statement and the five affidavits impeaching Judge Thayer.

LONG SERIES OF MINERS' BODIES BORES EMPLOYER

EVERETTSVILLE, W. Va., May 6.—A second explosion in Federal Mine No. 3 of the New England Fuel and Transportation Co., rivalling in destructive force the blast of last Saturday that snuffed out the lives of 94 miners, loomed dangerously in the foreground today.

Methane gas was present in alarming quantities as shown in air tests taken hourly by the U. S. Bureau of Mines chemists.

Thirty-Second Body.

The thirty-second body recovered was found today by George Riggs of the U. S. Bureau of Mines from Pittsburgh. It has not been identified. Three more bodies previously reported were removed from the mine to the temporary morgue at the pitmouth.

This tiny mudlocked village is deserted, save for groups of rescue men camped near the pitmouth. Grief-stricken families now resigned to the improbability of ever seeing their relatives alive, as no longer in evidence. The National Guardsmen and Salvation Army have departed too.

Wearisome to Boss.

Company officials and state officers present to direct the "rescue" work complain of monotony—a monotony which is only broken when an occasional fire-scorched body is brought to the surface, wrapped in burlap and hurried away.

The New England Fuel and Coal Co., big non-union concern, is not worried about these bodies. This territory is not under the jurisdiction of the United Mine Workers' of America; the operatore own the state, there will be nothing to pay, or very little, to the families of the workers killed in an admittedly gas-filled mine.

An unestimated number of miners bodies are being consumed slowly by fire raging within the mine, others are sealed in gas pockets, while many more will be brought to the surface, but the hillsides no longer are dotted with spectators. Everettsville is alone with its sorrow.

In nearby Fairmont flags flutter at half-staff while plans to erect a monument over ove of the unidentified bodies to the "unknown miner."

HANKOW NATIONALISTS THROW 100,000 TROOPS INTO HONAN DRIVE; SCORE VICTORY OVER CHANG WHILE FENG PREPARES FOR ATTACK ON PEKING

Bolivian Soldiers Fire Into Crowd of Student Strikers; Kill and Wound

WASHINGTON, May 6. — One student was killed and six wounded in La Paz, Bolivia, when soldiers fired into a crowd of 2,000 students, according to reports here today.

President Bilea has declared martial law in the republic as a result of a strike by students. Students said they were protesting because the teachers have not been paid for four months.

Bilea reported that the strike was instigated by leaders of the revolutionary party.

Litvinoff Brands Chang's "Documents" Frauds Drawn Up by White Russians

Eugene Chen Nails British Lie; Announces Payment For Chiankiang "Damages"

HIGHLIGHTS OF TODAY'S NEWS

1.—Hankow Nationalists score victory over Chang Tso-lin in southern Honan; 100,000 troops in Nationalist drive northwards. Feng prepares for attack on Peking.

2.—Litvinoff brands Chang's "documents," alleged to have been captured in raids on Soviet Union embassy compound, as forgeries.

3.—Eugene Chen nails British lie; announces payment for damages done at Chinkiang.

4.—Japanese labor pledges support to Nationalist movement.

* * *

HANKOW, May 6.—Hankow Nationalist troops are making rapid progress in their northern drive against Chang Tso-Lin, Manchurian war lord.

The expedition into Honan scored a complete victory over Chang's troops at Chu Mai-tien. The Hankow Nationalists surrounded the northerners and disarmed them, capturing ten thousand rifles.

100,000 Troops

General Tang Shen-tse is directing the drive above Yengchow and a major engagement with Chang Tso-lin's troops is expected there soon. More than 100,00 Nationalist troops are engaged in the Honan expedition it is stated.

General Feng Yu-hiang is making preparations for a drive against Peking, while General Yeng Shi-san in Shansi is expected to join the drive against the northerners.

* * *

Chang's Documents Forged

MOSCOW, May 6.—Documents alleged by Chang Tso-lin to have been captured in his raids on the Soviet Union embassy compound at Peking were branded as forgeries by M. M. Litvinoff of the Ministry of Foreign Affairs.

"We are here facing a wide-spread plot to compromise the Soviet's accredited representatives in China and to spoil the Soviet's relations with other countries, for instance, Japan," said the assistant commissioner of foreign afaire.

Work of White Russians

The only "document" of which a photograph has been published so far is dated by an old process which has not been used in the Soviet Union since the 1917 revolution, and was probably executed by clumsy White Russians, M. Litvinoff says.

* * *

Chen Paid Indemnity

(By Nationalist News Agency)

HANKOW, May 6.—The attention of Eugene Chen, Nationalist Foreign Minister has been called to a statement by Rodney Gilbert in the North China News of April 27th, stating: "The check for $40,000 paid by the Nationalists for damages done at Chinkiang has been dishonored.

Eugene Chen said the statement was a lie.

Support of Japanese Labor

Japanese labor is solidly behind the Hankow Nationalist Government and is demanding of the Japanese Government the recognition of Nationalist China, according to E. N. Ishida, Japanese delegate to the Pan-Pacific Labor Conference.

He stated that ill-feeling which had been separating the Chinese and the Japanese had been due to aggressive Japanese and other imperialists.

Victims of Capitalism

Japanese workers, he said, realize that they are the victims of capitalism as much as the Chinese.

Shore leave has been granted by the British naval authorities to British sailors and marines and they have gone ashore in the foreign concession. They have not been allowed to enter the Chinese city.

Hold Northern Generals

Generals Liu Yu-chen and Chen Thiao-mao, northern generals who were captured at Wuchang and charged with mistreating the populace, who were reported executed, are held there imprisoned awaiting Liu's recovery from a tubercular attack. The trial has been delayed and the prisoners, despite reports to the contrary, have not yet been sentenced.

The Nationalist expedition into Honan scored a complete victory over the troops of Chang Tso-lin, Northern war lord, at Chu Mai-tien. The Hankow , Nationalists surrounded the northerners and disarmed them, capturing ten thousand rifles.

ILL. MINERS ASK HOWAT TO SPEAK; BOO LEWIS NAME

Scores Czar of Miners' Union

(Special to The DAILY WORKER.)

PEORIA, Ill., May 6.—Six hundred delegates of Illinois miners at convention yesterday by overwhelming vote invited Alex Howatt to speak at convention after repudiating president Lewis' recent acts of persecution of Howat.

Lewis expected to speak the same day with Howat.

Hindmarsh started the attack on Lewis when he said "It is high time that the Miners' Union run their own affairs.

"We have been the slaves too long of those whom we pay. We should let them know we are the bosses and not they. We have had too much autocratic rule under Farrington and should go on record as not intending to stand any more czarlike actions."

International board member Dobbins and George Hunt, an appointee, tried to defend Lewis but the delegates booed them. James Walker, brother of J. H. Walker, president of the Illinois Federation of Labor, also launched into an attack on Lewis with what he called "The Iron Rule of President Lewis."

John Hindmarsh is the progressive elected to the presidency of Springfield sub-district of the Illinois Mine Workers, District 12 of the United Mine Workers' of America. With him the entire progressive state was elected—and the district officials calmly ruled them out of office on technicalities. Such a storm was raised that they had to reconsider on part of the candidates, but the minere of Illinois have found them out.

Fishwick Has Old Machine.

Harry Fishwick the present district president inherited the old Frank Farrington political machine in District 12, having been vice-president to Farrington. The latter was president until the miners discovered last year that he was drawing side money in the shape of a $25,000 a year bribe from the Peabody Coal Co. Fishwick at the last International convention of the United Mine Workers, held in January in Indianapolis, lined up completely with John L. Lewis.

The revolt of the District 12 convention against Lewis, and the prominence of Hindmarch in it, therefore signifies a bad situation for the reactionary Fishwick regime of the district.

Distict 12 comprises all of Illinois, and is much the largest district of the union.

Takes Two Days to Get Jury to Try Mexican in Murder Case Frame-up

CHICAGO, May 6.—Two days were consumed in securing a jury to try Augustin Morales, the young Mexican worker framed by the police as the murderer of Policeman Stahl of Melrose Park, Dec. 7. A surprisingly large number of jurors had, to be excused because of their opposition to the death penalty. At one time, 10 of the 12 in the box were thrown out for that reason.

The witnesses for the defense include about 30 Mexicans, believed to be the largest number ever subpoenaed in a criminal case.

British Foreign Office Intimates It Won Debt Controversy With U. S.

LONDON, May 6.—Great Britain has received the brief, brusque note of Secretary of State Kellogg stating that the Princeton and Columbia war debt statements were matters of domestic concern, and the foreign office stated today that the controversy will not be carried forther.

Officials however stated somewhat cryptically that Great Britain is "glad that the United States government has admitted the main error in Secretary Mellon's statement and is glad to have shown that Great Britain is not breaking the principles of the Balfour note."

BIG BUSINESS OF U. S. AND EUROPE FIGHT AT GENEVA

Chinese Score Unequal Tariff Treaties

GENEVA, May 6.—The conflict between American and European capitalism is clearly reflected in the World Economic Conference, the object of which is the stabilization of the tottering capitalist world.

The acutenss of the struggle between American industrialists and their European competitors, who are combining in huge international trusts was clearly indicated this afternoon when Henry M. Robinson, speaking for the American delegation launched into an attack on the European cartels.

Score Unequal Treaty

The demands of awakening China, voiced at the Conference by Chuan Chao, introduced another subject for discord at the Conference. Chuan Chao protested against the unilateral, unequal and non-reciprocal tariff obligations imposed on China by the foreign powers. He protested against the "avidity of groups of foreign interests in China."

Justifies Big Business

Attempting to justify the unbridled power of big business in America, Mr. Robinson declared that the "American people are opposed to direct government interference in private business."

Russian delegates to the Conference headed by M. Osalnski, have little faith in the Conference. Members of the Russian delegation regard the conference as a futile attempt at the stabilization of capitalist economy.

ose Will Illustrate Calverton's Series on Negro Life Struggles

A series of articles on "The New Negro," by V. F. Calverton, illustrated by Vose, one of our popular cartoonists, will appear soon in The DAILY WORKER. These articles will deal with various phases of the life and struggles of the American Negro masses and are intended to stimulate interest in this important problem of the American labor and revolutionary movement.

Watch for them!

SOVIET UNION WORKERS CELEBRATE MAY 1 AS THEIR FACTORIES GROW

MOSCOW, May 6.—The first of May was celebrated in all towns of the U.S.S.R. with quite exceptional enthusiasm. In Moscow the Trade Union of Soviet Chemists' Day Festival with quite exceptional enthusiasm. In many towns there were unusually large mass demonstrations followed by carnivals, torch light processions, and all kinds of popular galeties.

Peasant University.

The first Peasant University of the Soviet Union was solemnly inaugurated at the White Russian agricultural academy.

The foundation was laid of the Novorossiisk regional electrical station, to generate twenty-two thousand kilowatts of power. Reports were received from Kharkov, Smolensk, Tiflis, and other towns of the opening of new factories, electrical plants, cloths, hospitals, ambulance stations, schools, and of the laying of the corner stones of all sorts of industrial buildings.

Great Spinning Mill.

At Ivanovovoznesensk there was laid the foundation of a spinning mill to use a hundred and twenty thousand spindles. The mill will cost eleven and a half million roubles to build, and will embody the latest in textile technique, and have the latest machinery. There are now over four million members of worker sports organisations in the U.S.S.R. During the last two years sport teams from the Soviet Union took part in sixty-three competitions abroad. This year Soviet Union athletes are invited to participate in sport competitions in Germany, France, Belgium, Austria, Turkey, and other countries.

Industry Progressing.

MOSCOW, April 21.—(By Mail)—Comrade Kuibichev, the chairman of the Supreme Economic Council of the Soviet Union declared in his speech at the Soviet congress that the industry of the Soviet Union represented 108 per cent as compared with pre-war. In the economic year 1926-27 the total production of the state industry was reckoned to be worth approximately 5 thousand million gold roubles, that is to say an increase of 20 per cent as compared with the economic year 1925-26.

In the current year engineering would represent 34 per cent more than the period prior to the war. Coal production would approximate 35,700,000 tons, that is to say, 14 per cent more than before the war, this fact would make it possible to give up the import of foreign anthracite. The oil production for the current year was reckoned to be 6,700,000 tons or 114 per cent as compared with before the war.

Many Power Stations.

The total power of the new power stations opened during the current year was 18,000 kilowatts. Together with the normal power available the total power production would be 106,000 kilowatts. Further, work has begun in many parts of the Soviet Union, for instance Dniepropetrovsk, upon still further power stations. The total number of power stations in the countryside will reach 446 during the course of the current year having a total capacity of 7,000 kilowatts, as compared with 78 power stations before the war with a total capacity of 1,260 kilowatt.

1,100,000,000 gold roubles have been set aside as capital investments for the current year, of this, $75,000,000 will be invested in heavy industry, $42,000,000 in the finishing industries and 148,000,000 roubles for electrification.

The erection of three engineering works is planned for the current year, in Siberia, the Urals and the Ukraine, respectively, at a total cost of 250,000,000 roubles. Further it has been decided to build a great tractor factory in Stalingrad.

Support Norway Workers.

A joint session of the Central-Council of Soviet Labor Unions with the central committees of the unions listened to the report of the delegation of the Norwegian Trade Union Council which requested support on behalf of the locked-out Norwegian workers.

A sum of one million Norwegian crowns has been granted from the funds of the Soviet Labor Unions for the support of the locked-out Norwegian workers. Of this sum, 200,000 crowns was given freely as an expression of solidarity by the Russian workers, the remaining 800,000 crowns were granted as long term loan without interest. Responsible authorities in the Soviet labor unions informed press representatives that the Central Council of Soviet labor unions had set no date for the repayment of the loan. In the opinion of the Central council the Norwegian Trade Union Council should itself fix the date for repayment in accordance with its financial situation and according to the length of time it takes the Norwegian unions to recover from the effects of the lock-out.

Woonsocket, Danbiock, Smallagan, Have Large Meetings

(Special to The DAILY WORKER)

PASSAIC, N. J., May 6.—Textile workers filled Eastern Hall here tonight at a campaign rally arranged for the labor candidates for city commissioner—Albert Weisbord, Simon Barnhash and Simon Smallzimer.

Last night's open air meetings where five large gatherings were held in the working class districts of the city were unusually successful.

Reach 8000 Workers

More than 5,000 workers heard the message delivered by the Communist orators and received it with great enthusiasm. Albert, Weisbord, one of the labor nominees, was the principal speaker at all the meetings. As soon as he appeared upon the scene the assembled workers burst into volleys of applause. Among the other speakers were Emil Gardos, Workers Party sub district organizer; Sylvan A. Pollack of the DAILY WORKER and Herman Ehrlich of the Young Workers League. F. Panariel, G. Razukieff, S. Gede, G. Rnako, and others.

Turner is Excited

Captain Ben Turner, who on Wednesday disclosed that during the strike he was supposed to have kidnaped and then beaten up Weisbord, yesterday tried to repudiate his statement, as he realized that it had started to send his chances of being elected down the tobaggon of defeat.

Big Business Won't Pay For Monuments To Dead War Heroes

(By a Staff Correspondent).

WASHINGTON, May 6. — This city of the nation, in its six year effort to raise sufficient funds to erect a memorial to its World War dead, offers a most significant commentary on the value that politicians place on what they so piously proclaim as patriotism.

Not A Cent For A Tribute.

Five hundred and thirty-five Washington men and women lost their lives in the war. Soon after the close of the war a movement was gotten underway to erect a suitable monument to their memory.

A competition for plans for such a memorial was instituted and a choice made. Then the local patriotism bosses, the newspapers and so-called patriotic societies started a campaign to raise the $500,000 desired. Since 1920 the drive has been underway and a so-called final effort is in preparation.

There is still to be raised about $150,000. The leaders in the movement have loudly called upon the government clerks and underlings to come across. They gave that you might enjoy," and other similar blurbs are to placard the city.

But the politicians, the senators, the representatives, the lobbyists, the Chamber of Commerce, who were responsible for the deaths of these and 50,000 others, they only nod assent. Apparently they haven't given very much, because if they had all contributed only a few dollars apiece there are enough of them here to have paid for the memorial several times over.

So the drive is on again, and once more the clerklings and the $1,200 a year boys and girls will be called on to do their bit in recognition of those "who gave that they might enjoy."

Banker Heads U. S. C. C.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—Lewis E. Pierson, New York banker, was elected president of the United States Chamber of Commerce at the closing session of the fifteenth annual meeting here, succeeding John W. O'Leary of Chicago.

The new board of directors consists of Judge E. B. Parker, Texas, chairman; A. J. Brosseau, New York; Robert R. Ellis, Memphis; William M. Butterworth, Moline, Ill., and Paul Shoup of San Francisco.

Award Building Contracts

The general contract for construction of Mt. Vernon's city hall, to start in the next ten days, was awarded by the Board of Estimate to Johnson and Miller, Yonkers contractors. Their bid was $488,160. Subcontracts for heating, plumbing and electricity were awarded three local firms.

Auto Victim Dies

Frank Acinipura, 24, a violinist, of 6223 Tenth Ave., Brooklyn, who suffered a fractured skull Monday when his automobile skidded and overturned on the Cross Bay Boulevard near Howard Beach, Queens, died. last night in Rockaway Beach Hospital.

Crafts Organize Baseball Leagues

CHICAGO, (FP). — Machinists, street car men, laundry drivers, milk-wagon drivers, printers and postoffice workers in Chicago have full-fledged baseball leagues, some of them with over 20 teams. A city series in the fall to settle the union labor championship is contemplated by the Labor Sports Union as a possibility.

Laundry Workers In Vigorous Fight For Pay Increase

Forty-three workers of the North American Laundry who have been on strike since April 25 are continuing their struggle with marked success. The 23 inside workers are affiliated with Local 290 of the Steam and Laundry Workers' Union while the 20 drivers belong to Laundry Drivers' Union, Local 810.

Most of the inside workers are Negroes who were receiving $15 to $17 a week. They demand a two dollar a week increase in pay and extra pay for overtime.

Since the strike started seven workers have been arrested, five being out on $1,000 bail and two on $50 bail. The boss refuses to arbitrate the differences.

Hudson Maxim Near Death

LAKE HOPATCONG, N. J., May 6.—The condition of Hudson Maxim, noted inventor of smokeless powder, has grown steadily worse, and is now very grave, it was learned this afternoon. Barring an unexpected rally, little hope is held out for his life. Maxim, who is 74, is suffering from general anaemia, aggravated by a stomach ulcer.

Lectures and Forums

TOMORROW NIGHT, 8 P. M.
Joseph Freeman
will speak on
"CULTURAL CHANGES IN SOVIET RUSSIA"
A brilliant proletarian journalist, who has just returned from a year's stay in the Soviet Union, tells of advances made in culture and art in the first Workers' State.
At the WORKERS' SCHOOL FORUM
108 East 14th Street.
Next Sunday: BERTRAM D. WOLFE will speak on "The Changing American Working Class."
ADMISSION 25c.

INGERSOLL FORUM
anti-religious center of N.Y.
CHAMBER MUSIC HALL,
CARNEGIE HALL
SUNDAY EVENING, 8 P. M.
MEYER APPLEBAUM
will speak on
"IS THE BIBLE A SAFE MORAL GUIDE"
LECTURES AND FORUMS
Questions and Speeches from floor.
Admission free. All welcome.

BOOK BARGAINS
AT SPECIAL PRICES
THE RED INTERNATIONAL OF LABOR UNIONS
Decisions and Resolutions of the First (1921), Second (1922) and Third (1924) Congresses Held in Moscow.
For every worker—and for the trade unionist especially—these booklets give a ready source of invaluable information. Separately each of these sell for 15 cents. Together with STRIKE STRATEGY—By Wm. Z. Foster (25 cents)—a book that should be read by every militant worker.
(A total of 70 cents)
ALL FOR 50 CENTS
NOTE: Books offered in this column on hand in limited quantities. All orders cash and filled in turn as received.

Bertel Swears Judge Thayer Very Hostile

(Continued from Page One)

ing Todd Hardwick, Jr., Col. Atwater Frost, and I think Charles Fickett of the Boston Herald.

"Other questions were then asked by Mr. Ehrlich, but I declined to do so with Fred H. Moore, of counsel for the defense. Mention of Moore's name showed signs of hostility from Judge Thayer. (This was on the day when the prospective list of 175 extra talesmen had been gathered in, and all morning the defense had strenuously opposed the use of any of those talesmen as jurors, on the ground that they had been summoned not from the highways and byways as required by law, but from special places such as Memorial building.)

Thayer Indignant.

Referring to Attorney Moore's objections to this special venire, Judge Thayer said: "And what do you suppose that fellow wanted me to ask those veniremen? 'Are you a member of a labor union? Are you opposed to union labor? Are you a member of a secret society?'"

The judge made another gesture of anger, and went on, addressing the newspapermen in general: "Did you ever see a case in which so many leaflet and circulars have been spread broadcast saying that people couldn't get a fair trial in the State of Massachusetts?

There was no mistaking that Judge Thayer was thoroughly angry. His remarks were uttered in a high voice and his face was flushed.

He was now near the doorway leading out in the hall of the court. At this point I stepped forward and tried to explain to him that I had given the other reporters Consul Ferrante's statement as the consul's express request. But the judge would not listen to my explanation. He brushed me aside, and as he turned to leave the room he shook his fist and said to the other newspapermen: "You wait till I give my charge to the jury. I'll shew 'em!"

Suppress Story.

Immediately after Judge Thayer left, there was a consultation among the newspapermen as to what they ought to write about the incident. This discussion lasted until we were all back in the courtroom. Harding of the Associated Press looked upon the occurrence as controversial matter, quite apart from the issues involved in the trial, and the policy of his organization was to keep clear of controversies. Sibley of the Boston Globe was of like opinion, and said: "Let's all agree that we won't say anything about it." This was agreed to, and none of the newspapers nor press associations mentioned the incident. It has never yet been made public.

On July 17, 1924, the day preceding that on which Judge Thayer was to deliver his charge to the jury, he gave out two advance copies of that charge—one to Jack Harding of the Associated Press and one to a Boston Transcript reporter. At the court's request, Harding agreed to make a typed clear chance and to give out copies of the digest to all the other newspaperman.

Changes His Address.

But the court's charge as delivered to the jury differed from the advance copy given to the newspapermen in that several paragraphs were omitted. One of the omitted passages called upon the jurors to "seek counsel in your deliberations such as was typified by the American soldier boy as he fought and gave up his life on the battlefields of France." The other omitted paragraphs were kindred in substance.

Both the Boston Evening Globe of July 14, 1921, and the New York Times of the following day (3-star section, page 6, column 2) include in their dispatches outlining Judge Thayer's charge the above admonition concerning the American soldier boy in France.

Many times during the selection of jurors in the Sacco-Vanzetti trial, I heard Judge Thayer address the talesmen with regard to "the courage of the American soldiers in France." He exhorted them to "render this service here . . . with the same spirit of patriotism, courage and devotion to duty as was exhibited by our soldier boys across the sea." And frequently, in my hearing, he reminded the talesmen of "the blessings of government," and urged them to be loyal to their government.

Charge Graft; No Arrests

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 6.—Secret indictments charging Arthur W. Phinney, city clerk, and William J. O'Brien, former city clerk, with embezzlement of municipal funds were made known today by Thomas D. Lull, clerk of Hillsboro County Superior Court.

Phinney is specifically charged with embezzling and fraudulently converting to his own use $5,237.20 on Jan. 27, 1923. O'Brien is charged with converting to his own use $2,233.46 on Jan. 18, 1922.

Think French Flier In Sea

PERMABUCO, May 6.—Convinced that Captain St. Roman has been forced down in his attempted flight across the Atlantic, French residents here today sent an urgent appeal to the French Government to re-consider its attitude towards the St. Roman flight and to order ships out to search for him.

The French Government had refused St. Roman permission to attempt the flight as he had removed the floats from his plans.

PASSAIC CRAFT ON WORKERS IS RELATED BY COP

Corruption Rampant in Textile Town

By HOLLACE HANDBELL.

Federated Press.

PASSAIC, N. J., May 6.—(FP)—Workers in the textile district are learning much from the political campaign for the election of city officials May 10th.

Coming so soon after the settlement of the strike when the struggle is still fresh in the minds of all, the campaign affords opportunity—in the scandals thrown up by the political opponents—for the workers to get the "low down" on the trickery, the snide thief methods used by the little crook politicians to cheat and rob them and to discriminate against them when they were in office. In their zeal to run down opponents, candidates have let a number of unpleasant looking cats out of the bag.

One of the exposures which has been getting headlines recently in the Passaic press has to do with a certain "overlord of the cells," as he was called by the Daily News. During the course of the campaign mudslinging, a story was uncovered which came near to exposing this grafter in the very midst of the city. But the exposé stopped short when it came to giving his name.

Chief Detective Saltches.

Benjamin Turner, Captain of the Detective Force of Passaic, told part of the story, which was reported by the News. Captain Turner is running for city commissioner along with eleven others.

A young Italian woman whose husband was arrested last November went to Albion Deane, now campaign manager for Thomas L. Raze, also running for city commissioner, to ask for help in getting her husband out of jail. In the words of Captain Turner, she told Deane that "when she was in the police court trying to see if she could get her husband out, a gray-haired policeman came to her and said to her: 'What do you want?' She said she told him she wanted to get her husband out of jail.

"This gray-haired policeman then took her to ——— who told her she must give her $200 to get her husband out of jail, as he would have to see Judge Davidson, and whatever he said to the Judge he would have to do for him. The woman then told ——— that she did not have any money and ——— told her he could not do anything for her."

Rob Poor People.

"That's just the way they do things here," Captain Turner was quoted later as saying. "They get from $15,000 to $20,000 a year out of the poor people of this city in that way."

Another part of the same story told by Captain Turner touches on the strike and shows the habit of the police in the employ of the strikers. The Italian husband in question, a tile-setter, went to Clifton just before his arrest to collect some money due him on a job. As Captain Turner relates it, he took a few drinks of wine there which went to his head.

"He went on a bus to come to Passaic, and got into an argument with someone and the jitney bus stopped in front of the Botany mill gate, and an officer came out and arrested him. The officer thought he was mixed up with the strike. He was taken into the Botany gate office and held there for several hours."

Poormaster Involved.

James Donnelly, Poormaster of Passaic, was also brought into the affair according to the account of Deane who zealously started out on a plot to expose the "overlord of the cells" who extorted $15,000 to $20,000 a year out of the poor, but abandoned his plot after a talk with Donnelly's campaigning at the present time for John McGuire, mayor of Passaic.

At a political meeting several days ago, Deane told of conferring with Donnelly about the arrested Italian. "Jim said he knew the case and then I began to realize why the man was in jail. Jim explained that this young man had been arrested in front of the Botany Mills and was one of those wire guys" (strikers).

Fung, Biedenkapp, to Speak in Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA May 6.—Despite an impression circulated in this town that the speech of Fung Sing Quong and F. G. Biedenkapp have been forbidden by the police, the committee in charge announces that Quong will speak on Hands Off Revolutionary China, and Biedenkapp will talk on "Hands Off Soviet Russia," as announced. The lectures are in Labor Institute Hall, 802 to 810 Locust St., Sunday, May 8th, at 2 p. m.

Child Killed By Poisoning.

HOLYOKE, Mass., May 6.—One child was dead and three other persons were in a critical condition at the Holyoke hospital today as the result of gas poisoning. The dead is Blossom Jacobson, one year old, her mother, Mrs. Aurelia Jacobson another daughter Fay, 5, and a maid in the Jacobson home, Miss Beatrice Normandin, are all in the hospital.

Needle Trade Defense

The office of the Joint Defense Committee is overwhelmed by groups of workers bringing protests for the Bazaar. The storerooms have already been filled with goods. Reports from cities are staggering, and Lundy, who thinks of everything, is commencing to wonder how so much goods can be sold in four days. "Walk for May 12-13-14-15, at the Star Casino," may say one day.

However, carpenters, electricians and sign painters are needed. Work must begin early next Wednesday morning. The fifty booths must be up by Wednesday noon to allow the placing of goods. All together on the last big drive!

* * *

A Few More Bazaar Booths.

The Raincoat Makers' Progressive Group will have a regular rubber goods store. More booths by the Independent Workmen's Circle Schools, Harlem Workers' Center, Polish Branch of the I. L. D., Coney Island Workers' Club, with Women's Council No. 5, and more to follow.

* * *

The End is Near.

There is a new spirit entering into the defense work. Reports that the treasurercy is weakening and beginning to talk about a compromise together with the surrender of the fur trimming manufacturers, indicate the fight is rapidly coming to a finish and that the needle trades unions will be saved if the great defense fight is not showed up. Money is needed. All must help. Let the fight be over and the prisoners will not be long in jail.

* * *

Progressive Grocery Clerks.

Friends of the Joint Defense Committee:

Herewith we send you $53.00 which is the first proceeds of a standing tax on our members until the time when you have gained the release of the imprisoned workers.

H. Silver, Secretary.

Here's How.

Workmen's Circle Branch 84, Plainfield, N. J., sends $40.84, proceeds of a collection at a May celebration. Workmen's Circle Branch 673 sends in $10.00 donation. A Bazaar list with $13.00 is received from Dorchester, Mass. The Ladies' Coat Makers Association of Boston sends $25.00. Five dollars comes from Memphis, Tenn. Worcester, Mass., sends a long letter with $26.00 and greetings to the prisoners. Lenin Branch Workmen's Circle $25 forwards a check for $20.50 with compliments to the prisoners. This isn't the half, but ten times more is needed.

NEWS FROM NEW JERSEY

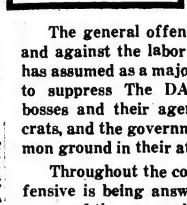
NEWARK, N. J., May 6.—Local electricians who walked out on strike May 2 are still out and are demanding an increase of wages from $12 to $14 per day. The bosses are beginning to advertise in the local press in an attempt to prove that the demands of the journeymen are unjust. All their arguments and propaganda are bound to fail as the men are sticking together and are determined to win their increase.

All electricians and helpers are urged to stay away from Newark where the strike is on. If you get a job here or answer any of the advertisements you will merely help on your fellow-worker who is attempting to maintain decent standards in the trade.

Coat Cutts Union.

JERSEY CITY, N. J., May 6.—Theodore M. Brandle, president of the New Jersey Building Trades Council of New Jersey, prominent in Hudson County labor circles and vice president of the International of the Iron Workers has resigned as an official of his organization. Many rumors are afloat as to the motives of his resignation but nothing official has come from his office. Brandle is as he was known among the labor and trade union workers was considered one of the most influential and powerful men in the State of New Jersey.

Truck Drivers on Strike



HIGH BRIDGE, N. J. May 6.—Thirteen men, all truck drivers, went out on strike against the long working day they were getting in for the state highway commission. They were working Route No. 9 on the Lebanon-Clinton section. Some of the men who went out on strike to protest have been working on the job for many years. Meanwhile the job is temporary held up.

200 Lose Jobs in Fire.

HOBOKEN, N. J. May 6.—A two alarm fire in the factory district of Hoboken resulted in damages estimated at $10,000 and forcing 200 employes to lose their jobs all of them girls. The fire broke out at Tenth and Clinton Sts. in the floor occupied by the Hoboken Land and Improvement Co.

Hear Thomas Parley

PASSAIC, N. J. May 6.—On Sunday afternoon at Belmont Park, Garfield, the District Council of the United Textile Workers of Passaic and vicinity have called a mass meeting for the purpose of solving the great unemployment problem that confronts the workers in this area. The militant labor speakers will speak.

Hold the Fort!

The general offensive against the Party and against the labor movement as a whole has assumed as a major objective the attempt to suppress The DAILY WORKER. The bosses and their agents, the labor bureaucrats, and the government have found a common ground in their attack upon our paper.

Throughout the country the capitalist offensive is being answered by the organized power of the masses behind the Communists and the left wing. In solid ranks they are rallying to the growing army of contributors to The DAILY WORKER Defense Fund. The existence of our paper in the face of the present attack depends upon the mass support given to this fund. The same self sacrifice and devotion which the workers have shown again and again on the picket line, will have to be shown now in the effort to raise money with which to carry on the fight for the defense of The DAILY WORKER. No party member is carrying out his full responsibilities unless he has mobilized his fellow workers behind the defense of labor's militant organ.

Let us hold the fort!

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of

..... dollars .... cents to the Ruthenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....

Address .....

City .....

State .....

Attach check or money order.

PROFESSIONAL PATRIOTS BAND WITH BIG BUSINESS, LABOR REACTIONARIES

New Book by Famous Publicist Traces Alliance of Civic Federation With Detective

"The National Civic Federation, though it carries a few labor officials on its letterhead and swears allegiance to the American Federation of Labor, is clearly a big business organization and has been so since Ralph Easley, its chairman, learned which side could write cashable checks.

"The organization is supported wholly by the contribution of the more than well-to-do. No labor organization ever voted it a nickle. Many like the United Mine Workers and the International Ladies' Garment Workers have openly condemned it and forbidden their members to join it.

"This, however, did not affect Mr. Samuel Gompers, former president of the American Federation of Labor, who was for years a vice-president of the Civic Federation and one of its most active supporters. Nor does it affect the activities of Mr. Matthew Woll, who is now Mr. Easley's 'acting president.'"

With this paragraph, "Professional Patriots," a book edited by Norman Hapgood from material assembled by Sidney Howard and John Hearley, scorches "this practical alliance between big business, organized labor, and the government secret service" as "unparalleled in the history of the labor movement here or in any other country."

The book was placed on the market today by Albert and Charles Boni, New York publishers. It professes to be "an exposure of the personalities, methods, and objectives in the organized effort to exploit patriotic impulses in the United States."

Intimate With Burns.

"Mr. Easley made common cause with the czarist opponents of the Soviet government and was on intimate terms with William J. Burns, while he was head of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice," states the book. "Although the American Federation of Labor is bitterly opposed to private detective agencies and to Dr. Burns' lifetime activity against organized labor, Mr. Easley furnished a link between Mr. Gompers on the one hand and Mr. Burns on the other. Each of the three had precisely the same interest in attacking Communism and Soviet Russia.

"Glance at the Who's Who of the National Civic Federation and you will find from the day of August Belmont, the former president, down, the names of a goodly assortment of 'herd-boiled' employers. Belmont, himself, it will be remembered, testified before the Industrial Relations Commission that the majority of the companies he represented opposed the right to organize and maintained spy systems.'

"The list of present executive committee members, both from the employer and the public group, includes directors of dozens of open shop enterprises that have made no effort to cultivate the collective bargaining with the American Federation of Labor which Mr. Easley professes to approve.

"Indeed, many of them are ruthless anti-labor concerns permitting no union organizations in their plants and employing spies and stoolpigeons to rout every attempt at unionization. Nicholas F. Brady, president of the New York Edison Company, Elon H. Hooker, president of the Hooker Electro-Chemical Company, Ogden L. Mills of the New York Trust Company, and T. Coleman Du Pont of the DuPont Powder Company are among those who held large interests in and direct the policies of corporations whose treatment of organized labor has been anything but conciliatory."

Whitewashes Child Labor.

The book accuses the Civic Federation of turning in a "whitewash report" on child labor in southern mills following an "investigation" by a committee including the wives of two southern cotton mill presidents and the president of the South Carolina Cotton Manufacturers' Association. Labor was not represented. Mr. Easley is charged with anti-labor activities, including spying on the Interchurch investigators of the 1919 steel strike.

"Mr. Easley admitted sending certain espionage documents to Judge Gary," says the book, "explaining that, of course, that he did it as an individual and not as the secretary of the Civic Federation. The Federation has shown similar affection for the Standard Oil Company and its industrial relations, notoriously anti-union."

During his lifetime, the presence of Samuel Gompers on the Federation Committee identified the American Federation of Labor with it in the public mind. The book, however, points out that many unions were bitterly opposed to this alliance with employers. Several union members of the Federation committee resigned because "they were unable to stomach Mr. Easley's attacks on progressive labor measures and congressmen and on the British labor movement," according to the authors.

Federation Line-up.

"Mr. Easley claims that his federation committees give 'equal representation' to capital and labor," the book continues, "yet an analysis reveals the line-up as follows: 33 men of obviously anti-labor convictions, five persons who depend for their livelihood on the 33, and 43 who may be called labor men, making the proportion about three to one against labor. And the results are even more disheartening if we take any one of the special committees of the federation. For example, one appointed in 1922 to consider increasing the army and navy, shows 25 from business and professional associations, 10 from military organizations, 16 from miscellaneous bodies, and only two representing labor.

"In the active woman's department under the devoted Mrs. Easley no names of working women are to be found. Instead we read Guggenheim, Van Rensselaer, Wood (Wise), Morgan, Dodge and Bacon. On the various special committees and departments labor is invariably treated to a loan representation. Note as typical the Department on Current Economic and Political Movements—four labor members to fifteen non-labor members.

Detroit is Planning Big Sacco-Vanzetti Meeting on Saturday

DETROIT, Mich., May 6. — The largest assemblage ever gathered here to demand freedom for Sacco and Vanzetti, the two framed-up labor men is expected Saturday evening. This meeting is being arranged by the Detroit Federation of Labor, Sacco and Vanzetti Committee, which has been enlarged to include other interested organizations. The International Labor Defense is one of the organizations represented in this committee.

The meeting will be held in the large auditorium of the Cass Technical High School, Second Boulevard and High Street. President Martel of the Detroit Federation of Labor, Judges Edward J. Jafferies and Frank Murphy of the Recorders Court, and very likely also Clarence Darrow, the famous lawyer will be the speakers.

The Detroit Federation of Labor has sent a letter to all unions, fraternal and other workingclass organizations calling upon them to turn out to this meeting in large numbers, to send resolutions and telegrams to Governor Fuller of Massachusetts, and to sign the special petitions.

Molders' Secretary Raps Imperialism in China; Praises USSR

(By W. A. LITTLE)

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., May 6.—The importance of the Chinese situation and the significance of May Day were pointed out by James Campbell, secretary of the Molders' Union of Buffalo, in an address at Hercules Hall last evening.

He explained that the situation in China might involve workers and farmers of America in another imperialistic war, unless they organized and protested against imperialism.

Praise for the wisdom and patience of the Soviet Union in the face of the attempt to provoke her into a war was given by the speaker.

The audience of Sacco and Vanzetti to the electric chair was scored by the speaker.

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI

New Agreement Signed By Slipper Workers

Slipper Workers' Local 55 of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union signed up the Melrose Novelty Co. yesterday, according to Chester W. Bixby, business agent.

The new agreement extends the one expiring in September for an entire year. Anxious to avoid any possible tie-up in the busy season this fall, the Melrose Co. signed early. The company employs about 50 shoe workers now, is planning extensions.

Bixby reports the union is carrying on a successful organization campaign with workers being lined up in nearly all the non-union shops.

Harvester Boss in London With Steno

LONDON, May 6.—Cyrus M. McCormick, Sr., of Chicago, multi-millionaire chairman of the board of the International Harvester Co., and his stenographer to whom he was secretly married just before their departure from New York, arrived from Ireland today and began the English part of their honeymoon with quiet life in a furnished "service" apartment in Hanover Square.

Abe Baroff Quits Job As I. L. G. W. Secretary; Says Cash Running Low

Abe Baroff, secretary-treasurer of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, has quit cold.

With cash in the treasury running low, Abe has handed in his resignation to President Sigman and left the union definitely.

"I won't work for love," he is reported to have told Sigman when funds ran low.

The two reactionaries, who have had a kindling hand in the effort to wreck the Joint Board of the Cloakmakers in New York City, got together and arranged to have enough checks signed to last the reactionary International for a couple months, and then Baroff shook the union dust off his feet.

Baroff has not yet announced which cloak and suit employer he will hook up with.

Need Four Stitches In Girl's Head As Thugs Sweep Down

Henry Turk, executive board member of Local 35, Ladies Garment Workers, was fired recently from the Fishelberg Brothers shop at 222 W. 27th street, at the behest of the reactionary international officials.

The workers there struck, obtaining his reinstatement on May 3. The international then brought more pressure to bear, resulting in his second discharge, and the second walkout of Fishelberg workers.

Thursday morning the "organization committee" of Sigman's fake "Local 35" swooped down on the picket line at Fishelberg's and attacked pickets, resulting in a general fight in which several workers were badly injured.

300 in Confusion.

More than thre hundred workers were thrown into confusion when the Right Wing adherents swooped down on the picket line. Police and detectives added to the general confusion by charging the crowd with drawn revolvers.

G. Goldberg, of local 2, one of the passersby, received dangerous head wounds when a detective struck him. The indignation of the crowd, at this brutal act, resulted in rough handling for the detective, who finally drew his gun and threatened the workers who surrounded him. Meissner was treated for, several wounds and shock.

When attacked by members of the "Organization Committee" Nancy Israelsone, of Local 35, received a cut in her forehead which required four stitches to close. Many other workers received minor injuries.

Ch. Meisner of Local 35, was arrested but was released upon payment of a $2 fine by Magistrate Corrigan.

Hyman Denounces Act.

"The special malice of the Sigman clique against all members of Local 35 who are loyal to the Joint Board has been apparent before this incident", Louis Hyman, manager of the Joint Board, pointed out. "This is President Sigman's own local which he formerly dominated by gangster rule. He is determined to use any tactics to regain the control, which he lost when the membership revolted against the corruption and gangsterism that were rife during his reign in that local."

Chilean Mussolini to Make Himself President With Aid of U.S. Plutes

SANTIAGO, Chili, May 6.—General Carlos Ibanez, Chilean Mussolini, who has established a dictatorship in Chile with the aid of the Guggenheim and DuPont nitrato interests, will probably succeed Emiliano Figueroa-Larrain, as president of Chile.

The ex-president's resignation was forced by the General Ibanez, it is stated here, despite the fact that the technical reason for the resignation was "illness".

Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die!

Fire Fighters Fight For Eight-Hour Day

WASHINGTON, May 6.—(FP)—Headquarters of the International Association of Fire Fighters, in Washington, has been notified that the locals in Montana are preparing to ask the Montana legislature, next winter, for a law granting them the eight-hour service day. A similar bill is before the Municipal Assembly in New York City.

A referendum at Great Falls, Mont., on the 8-hour day and a raise in pay from $145 to $150 a month was defeated, after the men refused to accept as a compromise a wage of $162.50.

Charleston, W. Va., has taken steps to organize a local, following the union's effort to secure a state law requiring at least two platoons of daily service in city fire departments.

DEFEAT UNITY AT HEADGEAR UNION'S CONVENTION HERE

Rights Beat Measures For Amalgamation

Further commendation of the policies of the reactionary leaders of the American Federation of Labor was given Thursday at the convention of the Cloth Cap, Hat & Millinery Workers' International Union which has been in session all week at Beethoven Hall, 1st 5th Street.

The convention voted down a resolution proposing to spur the A. F. of L. into more action on trade union amalgamation, and it went on record as feeling satisfied that the Federation was progressing just as fast as is possible and advisable along this line.

Altho the A. F. of L. at its 1912 convention voted to adopt a policy of amalgamation of the trade unions in various industries, nothing has ever been done in the matter. A resolution was introduced at the caps makers' convention calling upon the A. F. of L. to take the necessary steps to effect this amalgamation program, and urging as a first step the calling of a conference of various international unions. This resolution was voted down, and the convention declared its belief that the A. F. of L. was "doing its best."

World Unity Real Issue.

Heated discussion among the delegates also followed the report of the resolutions committee on a resolution proposing "that this convention endorse the efforts of the General Council of the British and Russian Union to establish world-wide trade union unity, and instruct our General Executive Board to fully participate in and encourage all such efforts."

The Thursday Delegate Bulletin, who is chairman of this committee, stated that they reported against this resolution because they did not want to have anything to do with "anything that smacks or smalls of the Third International. The Red Trade Union International is part of the Third International. We do not want to give anyone a chance to say we are connected with or have any part in the Third International."

For this reason, they recommended omitting all the workers of Russia from any program of world trade union unity. They voted finally to urge the A. F. of L. to cooperate with the workers of all other lands, and to join the Amsterdam International as a means of bringing about unity. But the trade unions of that country where there is a government of workers, Soviet Russia, the capmakers' convention fears and will not join hands with.

At yesterday afternoon's session, a resolution was introduced proposing to abolish the union paper, "The Headgear Worker," in order to use this money for organization purposes, to the resolution stated. There was vigorous objection to this proposal, and it was finally voted down by a large majority.

The speakers at the convention included Dr. Paul Abelson, impartial chairman of the fur industry, who talked of "making hasts slowly," which is always the admonition of President William Green and other A. F. of L. officials in talking to unions which have progressive ideas.

A. J. Muste, head af Brookwood Labor College, made a plea for support; and Dr. L. Gheleraw spoke representing the executive committee of the Socialist Federation of Roumania.

Member Beaten Up.

As the convention adjourned yesterday afternoon, one of the spectators, Sam Stern, who is a member of Local 40, was drawn into a room by the superintendent of the hall—who is supposed to be on hand to keep order—and he and two strongarm members of the union attacked Stern and beat him severely. His face is covered with bruises, as are many parts of his body. Workers who rescued Stern heard A. Dolinke, a business agent, and member of Local 1, remark:

"It is good he got it. He deserved it for a long time."

The "crime" for which Stern "deserved" this outrageous beating is the fact that he is an able organizer and has been in the habit of discussing union conditions with the workers as they gathered on the street at noon time. He had not carried on any argument yesterday, or made any sort of comment or disturbance in the convention.

This method of dealing with progressive workers is well known to the union members in the other needle trades unions and some of the leaders, and rank and file members who have taken active in such struggles for many months will be speakers tonight at the proletarian banquet arranged by the progressive capmakers and milliners at Stuyvesant Casino, 140 Second Avenue. Louis Hyman, Rose Wortis, Ben Gold, C. S. Zimmerman and many others will be present.

Delegates Invited.

All progressive delegates to the capmakers and millinars' convention are invited to attend the banquet. The committee has made arrangements to accommodate as many progressive workers as want to attend. If you want to spend an evening with the progressive workers in the other needle trades, come tonight at 8 o'clock. The price is $1.25.

Million and Half Words Wired From Gray-Snyder Murder Trial Courtroom

The noisome Snyder-Gray murder case is due to go to the jury late Monday.

Princess Rospigliosi, the former Miss Laura Stalle of Cincinnati, was a spectator at the trial yesterday afternoon.

The prisoner, who husband is of the Italian nobility, was escorted by a police lieutenant.

"It was thrilling," she said after listening to Judd Gray's cross-examination.

Approximately 1,500,000 words have been sent out by newspaper correspondents over the 19 Western Union wires in the basement of the Long Island City court house. The average has been about 100,000 words a day.

Twenty-four newspapers in 18 cities have special correspondents, in addition to the regular corps covering the murder trial for the three press associations. The capitalist New York papers have been averaging about 25,000 words a day.

Moskowitz Case Up In Special Sessions; I. L. D. Leads Fight

The case of Matthew Kushner, charged with disorderly conduct for distributing "Hands Off China" leaflets two weeks ago, was again postponed yesterday when it came up for hearing. It will be heard next Tuesday, May 10.

The case of Herman Moskowitz, arrested with Kushner and sentenced to six months in the workhouse on a disorderly conduct charge, will probably come up in Special Sessions this morning for consideration of an appeal. When the case last came up, the judges said they would take no action without seeing the minutes of the police court. The attorneys for the International Labor Defense hoped to procure these late yesterday afternoon and be able to present them in court this morning. If an appeal is granted, Moskowitz can be taken out of Welfare Island prison on bail.

The injustice of this heavy sentence is shown by the case of I. Steinberg, who was arrested with Moskowitz on the same charge —disorderly conduct for distributing the same "Hands Off China" leaflets. He was fined $5 and immediately released. Every effort will be made to keep Moskowitz from serving the santence which was imposed upon him by an evidently prejudiced court.

Travel Dear Untermyer Says on Return to City

Samuel Untermyer, prominent lawyer, is back in New York after a trip around the world. He expressed himself in disgust with the evidence he found of American domination of foreign markets and "disgusted" at the scornful treatment accorded American travelers, particularly in France. He attributed hostility to "jealousy of the prosperity of the United States."

Returning from his travels, Untermyer reports that due to a "vicious trust system" which exists in Cairo, Egypt and other cities, he had to pay sums ranging from $50 to $425 for a sitting room alone. This, the famous attorney said, didn't include additional charges for sleeping quarters.

Untermyer arrived upon his arrival that he is all set for a continuation of the hearings on reorganization and unification of the transit lines of the city. Responsible political observers explain that Untermyer's trip fitted conveniently into the Tammany plan of stalling on the transit hearings during the present critical internal situation in the democratic party.

Airplane Photos Improves.

WASHINGTON, May 6.—During a heavy electrical storm, William P. MacCracken, Jr., air secretary of the commerce department, using the telephone on his desk, talked today with an airplane flying 3,000 feet above Washington.

The radio-telephone experiment was entirely successful. Dr. J. H. Bellinger, chief of the radio section of the Bureau of Standards, was a passenger in the plane.

Technical Workers In Convention

WASHINGTON, (FP).—C. L. Rossmund was re-elected as president of the Intl. Federation of Technical Engineers, Architects and Draftsmen's Unions, in the 10th annual convention of that organization, held in Washington. The vice-presidents are Jas. Gilboy of Chicago, B. G. Barnes of Boston and N. P. Sparer of New York City.

Plans for organizing in new territory were adopted by the convention.

Violin and Viola Lessons
Given by expert teacher.
For reasonable rates, write to
JOHN WEINBOTH
108 SARATOGA AVENUE,
Near Livonia Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Red Front Fighters Guard Ruthenberg Urn

(Continued from Page One)

cious youth in America. There were 100 youth delegates from Bremen, with us on the train, coming to represent the various trade unions of that city.

Through Crowded Streets.

The procession was drawn up for several blocks in front of the station as the Red Front Fighters took over the Ashes' Urn. With drum and fife corps playing we marched thru the center of the city and then over into the working class district where the Hamburg Communist Party has its home and where it publishes its daily, the Volkszeitung. From afar, as we approached, could be seen the giant Red Flag displayed in front of the building. The street was jammed with humanity. It was impossible for that many to be accommodated inside. So we spoke from the steps of the building, presenting to these workers of Hamburg the view of the American class struggle as it was reflected in the life and death of Ruthenberg.

John Schorr, organization secretary of the Hamburg Communist Party, received the Ashes for the Hamburg Party. He emphasized the honor thus bestowed upon the Communist Party in this city. Wilhelm Kasper also spoke, reviewing the life's struggles of Ruthenberg, elting his proletarian origin, his entrance while still very young into the Socialist Party, and then the part that he played as the founder of the Communist Party in the United States.

I then followed, putting emphasis upon the effort to build the working Class Youth Movement in the United States and the role that Ruthenberg had taken in this effort.

Ruthenberg and the Youth.

"In America there are a million children in industry," I said. "Everywhere the youth is being drawn into capitalist industry. In the coal mines, in the textile, the automobile, the rubber, the oil industry, the youth are to be found in large numbers.

"Our Party in America, with Ruthenberg as its leader, gave every possible aid to our Young Communist League, to spread our message among the young workers. Some progress has been made in the coal industry. The youth were prominent in the Passaic textile strike, the story of which has surely reached Germany. On this Communist Yonth Day in Hamburg, I pledge our American Communist Party to increase its struggle to win the youth for the revolutionary movement of the working class."

The Red Front Salute.

Then the procession passed into the building. As we walked thru long corridors and stairways, we were flanked on both sides by rigid rows of Red Front Fighters, standing shoulder to shoulder, right fists raised to their right shoulders in Red Front salute, as we passed with the Ashes.

The walls of the room in which the Urn was placed upon a high pedestal were covered with flowers and crimson bunting. On the wall back of the Urn was a magnificent likeness of Lenin. On one side was a picture of Karl Liebknecht while from the other wall Rosa Luxemburg, calm and serene, looked down upon this scene of the tribute paid by her comrades of Germany to the fallen Red Soldier of another land.

In addressing the Guard of Honor of the Red Front Fighters, Comrade Wehcer said:

"I surrender the ashes of our Comrade Ruthenberg, to your care while they remain in our city. Perform your task, stand on guard, as true soldiers of the revolution."

Then Burnett, German Communist Youth Day (Easter Sunday) over Easter Monday, until we left for Berlin early on Tuesday morning, the Guard of Honor kept its watch, and thousands came to view the Urn that held the Ashes of that American Comrade.

One of the impressive events of the Youth Congress was the placing of a wreath on the graves of Hamburg's revolutionary dead and the holding of an appropriate memorial. This took place at noon on Easter Monday.

Attention! Harlem and Bronx.

Harlem and Bronx sections of the Y.W.L. have arranged a hike for the coming Sunday, May 8th.

The main feature of the hike is a baseball game between these two sections. A musical program and field games are also scheduled. All sympathisers are invited.

Meet us at 81 E. 110th Street or 1947 Boston Road, at 9 A. M. sharp.

Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die!

THAYER BRANDED UTTERLY UNFAIR AS TRIAL JUDGE

Defendants "Bastards" He Said in Trial

BOSTON, May 6.—Fire Affidavits and one statement were submitted to Governor Fuller with the petition of Sacco and Vanzetti for justice and a review of their case. They impeach the impartiality of Judge Webster Thayer, the trial judge, and show him to have violently prejudiced against the two workers. The affiants are:

John Nicholas Beffel, well known newspaperman, formerly of Federated Press.

Robert Benchley, dramatic editor of Life.

Mrs. Lois B. Rantoul of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches.

Frank P. Sibley, of the Bostan Globe.

Mrs. Elizabeth BernLopf, reporter. Sibley covered the Dedham trial for his newspaper. He recounts numerous expressions of prejudice by Thayer against the defendants Sacco and Vanzetti, including "those dama fools" and "long-haired anarchists from California." In another instance, during consultation of counsel and judge, Thayer told the court stenographer to "get the hell out of here."

Would Throttle Press.

Thayer tried to throttle Sibley and other reporters by denying statements attributed to him in the press and by dictating news polley.

Benchley tells of conversations with Loring Coes, a Worcester, Mass. babbitt who was a pal of "Web" Thayer. Coes reported to Benchley in great hilarity that "Web" had been telling what he intended to do with "those bastards down there," referring to Sacco and Vanzetti.

"I'll Hang 'Em"

Coes told him that Thayer was excited about "that bunch of parlor radicals trying to get these guys off and trying to bring pressure on the bench" and that he "would show them and would get those guy hanged."

"No Bolshevikl can intimidate me," Thayer is quoted as saying while thumping his chest.

Coes denied today that he had made these remarks to Benchley, but there is the affidavit of the dramatic editor of life against the mere statement of a Worcester business man who is a pal of "Web."

Hopelessly Biased.

Mrs. Lois Rantoul declares that Judge Thayer twice discussed the case with her while it was in progress, and that he was prejudiced defendants and witnesses, showing an absolute lack of judicial fairness. It Judge Thayer twice discussed the was hopelessly biased throughout the trial.

Beffel recounts how Thayer gave an Associated Press man a copy of his charge to the jury, but afterward omitted important sections when he actually read it. The prepared copy however was widely quoted in the press, with allusion to "our boys over there" in the A.E.F. and to Flagwaving. Mrs. Bernkopf's affidavit is much like Mrs. Rantoul's, swearing to Thayer's unrestrained prejudice in intimate discussions of the case.

George U. Crocker, former city treasurer of Boston is a member of the Union Club and a staunch conservative. He declares he is firm in his conviction Sacco and Vanzetti did not have a fair trial. This he bases on numerous and intimate contacts with Thayer at the University Club in Boston while the trial was in progress.

Although Thayer did not know Crocker, he approached him and voluntarily began a discussion of the case with an utter stranger. In these conversations he showed bias, prejudice and an utter lack of propriety for a judge.

TRURO, Mass., May 6. — Fire which for three days has been burning over a four mile area was brought under control this afternoon, but not until it had swept clear across the neck of Cape Cod from the shores of Massachusetts bay to the Atlantic ocean.

One building, a home which was under construction, was destroyed by the fire in its march, which laid waste acres of timberland and much scrubland.

Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die!

PHILADELPHIA

Funk Sing Quong
Member of the Kuomintang
will speak on
"Hands Off Revolutionary China"

F. G. Biedenkapp
Nat. Sec. of I. W. A.
will speak on
"Hands Off Soviet Russia"

LABOR INSTITUTE, 8th and Locust Street
SUNDAY AFTERNOON, MAY 8th, at 2 P. M.
Learn the Truth About China.—Help the Suffering Chinese Workers.
Auspices of the INTERNATIONAL WORKERS' AID, in co-operation with the KUOMINTANG.
Admission Free. Everybody Welcome.

THE DAILY WORKER

Published by the WORKERS PUBLISHING CO.

26 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone: Orchard 1680

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

By mail (in New York City): By mail (outside of New York):
$6.00 per year $4.00 six months $2.00 three months
$5.50 per year $3.50 six months $2.50 three months

Address all mail and make out checks to THE DAILY WORKER, 26 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL, WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Editors
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

More Contemptible Secret Diplomacy.

Following close upon the statement of Coolidge to the Pan-American Congress that the government would pursue a policy of "non-intervention beyond protecting American citizens and their property" and that he "would lend every encouragement we can to the restoration of peace," comes the report of the bullying tactics of the Coolidge appointee, Henry L. Stimson in Nicaragua.

After a conference with Stimson, General Jose Maria Moncada, commander of the liberal forces, made the announcement that:

"The view seems certain that the United States is prepared to take the field against us if fighting continues and I am prepared to order my troops to lay down their arms, turning them over to the United States troops. As continuation of Diaz (as president) is essential to the United States program, we are unable to resist, but we are not signing any peace agreement bearing such a provision."

Washington, as usual, remains silent when its duplicity is exposed. But the delegates from the southern republics must be pondering in their own minds the contemptible trickery of a government whose president talks peace to them, while his agent in Nicaragua is threatening with military reprisals the liberal army commander in order to force him to disarm in favor of Diaz, the Wall Street president who is maintained in office by American marines.

General Moncada is quite plainly a liberal and not a revolutionist. If he were a revolutionist, he would not yield to the threats of Stimson, but would take advantage of the situation to expose to all Central and South America the unprincipled character of the Coolidge government and endeavor to get aid from other nations to exterminate from that part of the world the Wall Street agents and their gunmen.

Certainly there is no more brazen example of the United States imperialist policy in Central and South America than the overthrow of the Sacasa liberal government and the "recognition" of the Diaz regime Even if Sacasa and Moncada do not act there is another possibility for action against Coolidge. If the delegates to the Pan-American congress at Washington have any political intelligence and serve the interests of their own populations instead of the Wall Street imperialists they could jointly serve notice on Coolidge and his gang that he must release from his bloody clutches every Southern nation that groans under the tyrannical rule of Uncle Sam or face a fight that will expose this government to all the world as the beast of prey that it is.

Britain Discusses Debts for Home Consumption to Detract From Anti-Strike Bill

Chancellor of the Exchequer Churchill of the Baldwin tory government raises the question of British debts to the United States by way of replying to Secretary of the Treasury Mellon's correspondence with President Hibben of Princeton University on interallied debts. A careful reading of the British note convinces one that the thing was written primarily for home consumption as it is a specious plea for the taxpayers of England, obviously intended to appeal to the small and middle capitalists.

A second mptive was to state England's case before its own debtors who have been told that they would not be expected to pay to the British government an amount greater than Britain pays to the United States. Melion, in his reply to Hibben had charged that Britain was really profiting from the European debt arrangements. This Churchili refuted with proof that, in spite of its diplomatic language, proves Mellon to be a falsifier of figures—a liar.

But the main reason for bringing up the debt question at this time is undoubtedly an effort to detract public attention from the infamous bill to outlaw general and sympathetic strikes. The tory government thinks it can sidetrack the small bourgeois elements by raising the debt question which affects their tax.

The anti-strike bill has already passed the second reading. There were some disturbances in parliament from the Clydesiders, who called the tory spokesman a liar. For this one of the laborites was ejected from the house, while the right wing gang on the opposition benches remained silent—probably deeply chagrined that one of their uncouth members should display disrespect for the niceties of parliamentary procedure. If they had really been working class representatives instead of sychophants of capitalism they would have arose as one man and walked out and proceeded to organize nation-wide demonstrations against the bill, thereby arousing the working class and driving forward to another general strike in defiance of the government.

But, although the parliamentary labor group accepts docilely the impudent attacks of the government, the great mass of British labor, sinking ever lower in the social scale, will be driven to revolt by the very desperation of its condition. With the Communist Party as the one dynamic force in the labor movement and the mass minority movement gaining adherents every day the discontent of the working class can be directed into revolutionary channels against the Tory government and its allies, the Thomases and MacDonalds.

Y. M. C. A. Dollar Patriots Launch Panhandling Campaign

A campaign has been launched in New York by the Young Men's Christian Association to raise some millions of dollars for new buildings. This hypocritical, pitty thieving outfit probably imagines that we are far enough removed from the world war to have forgotten the disgusting role they played by begging for donations for the "boys over there," and then selling tobacco and other commodities to the boys in the trenches at exhorbitant rates. Certainly no ex-soldier who saw service in France will contribute one penny to that outfit.

From the general labor point of view the Y. M. C. A. is an institution that consistently advocates the vicious anti-labor policy of the National Association of Manufacturers and in many parts of the country it functions as an active strike-breaking agency by telling the unemployed workers who ask for a night's lodging that they should go to work on scab jobs. This is a characteristic of most religious organizations of a similar nature, including the Salvation Army, which is also conducting a panhandling campaign to maintain its staff of loafers who talk pie in the sky to the workers and promise them "pay checks on the bank of heaven"—to use the trite observation of Paul LaFargue—in place of the cages they are entitled to here upon earth.

Son of Chiang Kai-Shek Calls Father Traitor

MOSCOW, May 6.—The last issue of the Moscow Youth paper, the "Molodi Leninzia (The Young Leninist) published an interesting interview with Chiang Kai-Shek's son who is a student of the Sun Yat Sen University. He said:

Chiang Kai-Shek's betrayal was not a surprise to me. I knew and said that Chiang Kai-Shek is not sincere, that he is scheming. But others disputed with me, maintaining that Chiang Kai-Shek will not betray the revolution.

I proved to be right. It could not have been otherwise.

Leader of Bourgeoisie.

The Chinese bourgeoisie turned against the Revolution when they realised that the national liberation struggle has gone too far, and that the masses of workers and peasants have been drawn into it. Chiang Kai-Shek became the leader of the bourgeoisie. He spoke eloquently about the revolution, but at the same time he was gradually betraying the revolution.

In his letters to me he was just as hypocritical and called himself a true disciple of Sun Yat-Sen. He was scheming and deceiving and in his heart he always looked forward to a compromise with Chang Tso-Lin and Sun Chuan-Fang.

Blood Bath.

We have heard recently about the blood bath in Nanking caused by the imperialists. Today we read about the blood-bath of Shanghai. The shooting in Shanghai was perpetrated by the national armies and therefore it is more disgusting than the Nanking blood-bath.

The shooting of Shanghai was committed by the national army, that army which hitherto fought for the revolutionary slogans.

Protest Shanghai Shootings.

The proletariat of all countries must now come out in protest against the shooting in Shanghai just as it protested against the Nanking slaughter.

What are the future prospects for the development of the Chinese Revolution?

I think that Chiang Kai-Shek will not continue the war against the militarists. His revolutionary career is ended. As a revolutionary he is dead. He is reborn as a counter-revolutionary—an enemy of the toiling people of China.

Alliance With War Lords.

Chiang Kai-Shek will come to an agreement with Chiang Tso-Lin and Sun Chuan-Fang—there can be no doubt about it.

We must join issue with the Manifesto of the Comintern published in today's press. We add to it one more slogan, namely: "Down with the right wing of the Kuomintang! Long live the left wing of the Kuomintang!"

The proletariat of Shanghai received nothing after the capture of their town by the National Armies. The Shanghai proletariat represents the most heroic section of the Chinese Workers. The armed Shanghai proletariat banished the militarists from Shanghai.

The victories of the workers have been destroyed. Chiang Kai-Shek, behind the back of General Bai Tsin-Shi, the Commander of Shanghai, started to act just as soon as he captured the town.

In an interview with the Japanese correspondent, Chiang Kai-Shek declared: "The session of the Kuomintang Plenum in Hankow was illegal. I will not submit to the resolutions adopted by the Plenum.

At the same time, Chiang Kai-Shek who was present at the Plenum, published his declaration concerning his absolute submission to the resolutions and the Kuomintang.

Such is the shrewdness and hypocrisy of General Chiang Kai-Shek.

Shoots Lefts.

Chiang Kai-Shek delivered a speech recently in Nanchang. In that speech he declared: "If the Right Wing of the Kmomintang will take any action against the Left Wing, I will shoot down the Rights. Should the Lefts come out against the Rights, I will shoot down the Lefts!"

Such were the "revolutionary" phrases of Chiang Kai-Shek. He wanted to demonstrate his determination and firmness. Actually he never took any action against the Rights. On the contrary, he always acted hand in hand with the Rights.

"Chiang Kai-Shek was favorably inclined toward Tai Tshi-Tao, the leader of the Right Wing of the Kuomintang.

Helped Right Wing.

I remember how I once got hold of a pamphlet written by Tao-Tshi-Tao against the Communists. Chiang Kai-Shek told me: Read this, it is very interesting and gives a correct elucidation of the vulous problems.

Chiang Kai-Shek sent Tao Tshi-tao to Japan. He helped him in every way. And this alone gives a true characteristic of Chiang Kai-Shek.

When an orator advanced a slogan against Chiang Kai-Shek in Nanchang, his soldiers shot down the demonstration. The same happened in Wuchang. Women and children present at the demonstration were shot only because the demonstration advanced a slogan against Chiang Kai-Shek.

Father A Hypocrite.

I wrote to Chiang Kai-Shek and endeavored to prove to him that he was wrong. Recently I received a reply from him in which he said:

"You are absolutely right"—said he in his letter—"I recognize the revolution and am ready to die for it. On questions of principle I have no differences whatever with the Communist Party. If there are people who think that I am not certain on this question, they are mistaken.

Such uncertainty would be detrimental to the Chinese revolution—"

This is how hypocritial and false Chiang Kai-Shek was in his letters. Now we know what kind of "revolution" he was fighting for. Everything is clear now.

I, as a revolutionary, declare that Chiang Kai-Shek was my father and revolutionary comrade. Now he has gone over to the enemy camp—he is my enemy.

My slogan: Down with Chiang Kai-Shek.

Long live the victorious revolution of China.

Joe Freeman Will Lecture Again at Forum on Russia

Joe Freeman's lecture at the Workers' School forum on Sunday, April 24, was so successful that he has been obtained again for next Sunday, at 8 p. m., to speak on the topic "Cultural Changes in Soviet Russia." Freeman, co-editor with Scott Nearing of "Dollar Diplomacy" was formerly editor of the Liberator and the New Masses, and has just returned from a year's stay in Russia.

He will discuss culture in Soviet Russia, changes that have taken place in education, press, art, stage and literature. As many were turned away from his last lecture, the hall being crowded to its capacity by 8:15 p. m., all are urged to come early to 108 East 14th St., top floor of the headquarters of the Workers' School.

Questions and discussions will follow the lecture.

On May 15, Bertram D. Wolfe, director of the Workers' School, will speak on "The Changing American Working Class."

Brownsville Youth Backing Cloakmakers

A big affair arranged by the Brownsville Yonth Club will be held at 63 Liberty Ave., Brookiyn next Sunday Evening. This affair is arranged for the purpose of assisting in the work to free the arrested cloakmakers and furriers.

A literary and musical program is arranged. A special feature of the evening will be the addresses by L. Hyman, J. Borochowitz and S. Liptzin who will speak on the present situation in the needle trades.

Young and old are invited to attend this affair and are assured of a pleasant evening.

Lower Bronx Dance Tonight.

No stone has been left unturned, no effort has been spared towards making tonight's concert and dance, which will be held at 542 East 145th Street, headquarters of the Lower Bronx Section of the Workers Party, a huge success.

The Lettish Club entertainers will be on hand to dispel gloom and gladden the hearts and minds of all those present. A chorus of 30 voices has been specially trained for this occasion. Dancing will follow the entertainment. Tickets will be 35c for each person. Come and dance "the light fantastic toe" with the lower Bronxites. You'll never forget or regret it. Benefit DAILY WORKER.

May Dance On the 21st.

The Downtown Branch of the International Labor Defense will hold a spring dance May 21st at the Downtown Workers' Club, 35 East 2nd St.

Protests Thruout Country.

CHICAGO, MAY 6.—The campaign on behalf of Sacco and Vanzetti, according to the International Labor Defense, which has been noteworthy in its activity for their release, is gaining wide response among the masses of the workers.

Noticee of meetings to be held have already come in from cities throughout the United States. A monster protest demonstration, attended by more than 20,000 workers at Union Square, New York, on April 16, protested the attempt at official murder of the two framed-up Italian workers. A huge demonstration is being held today in San Francisco; there will be protest meetings in Newark, N. J., on May 6; Chicago, Gary, Los Angeles, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Boston, Detroit and numerous other cities are arranging for mass demonstrations in quick succession.

Let's Fight On! Join The Workers Party!

In the loss of Comrade Ruthenberg the Workers (Communist) Party has lost its foremost leader and the American working class its stanchest fighter. This loss can only be overcome by many militant workers joining the Party that he built.

Fill out the application below and mail it. Become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party and carry forward the work of Comrade Ruthenberg.

I want to become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Name .....

Address .....

Occupation .....

Union Affiliation.....

Mail this application to the Workers Party, 108 East 14th Street, New York City; or if in other city to Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill. .

Distribute the Ruthenberg pamphlet, "The Workers (Communist) Party, What it Stands For and Why Workers Should Join." This Ruthenberg pamphlet will be the best pamphlet thruout the Ruthenberg Drive.

Every Party Nucleus must collect 50 cents from every member and will receive 20 pamphlets for every member so sell or distribute.

Nuclei in the New York District will get their pamphlets from the District Office—108 East 14th St.

Nuclei outside of the New York District write to Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 East First Street, New York City, or to the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Westchester in New York.

The oft-repeated suggestion that Westchester county ought to be part of New York City was heard again.

Join Workers Party To Fight for End of Capitalist Injustice

The capitalist class of this country fights bitterly against its enemy. When any worker dares to do something for his class, the bosses and their government will go to any length to "get him." That is why the Massachusetts courts have sentenced Sacco and Vanzetti to the electric chair. Sacco and Vanzetti were active in organizing the underpaid and enslaved textile workers of Massachusetts. The bosses hated them for this. They determined to "murder" them, to get rid of these two militant fighters for the working class in order to "cow" and intimidate other workers.

Evidence after evidence is disregarded; technicality after technicality is resorted to—the rulers demand their price. They have the power in their hands and they will use it. That is the only language they understand. We workers must realize that. Only strength on our part will move them, will get them to change their decision. That is the only thing the bosses fear—organization on the part of the workers, understanding in their ranks and determined resistance and fight against capitalist rule and exploitation.

The duty of every class-conscious worker is therefore clear. The building up of the Workers (Communist) Party is the best guarantee for the carrying out of those tasks, for the strengthening of the working class.

Join the Workers (Communist) Party and carry on the fight against capitalist injustice. Become a member of the Workers (Commnnist) Party and help it in its fight to save Sacco and Vanzetti.

Fill out the application blank for membership in this issue of the paper and mail it to 108 East 14th Street.

All Nationalities at Gary May Day Meet

GARY, Ind., May 6.—Workers here are still talking of the successful May Day celebration, held in Hod Carriers' Hall, and attended by representatives of all races and nationalities.

Speakers for the Workers (Communist) Party laid its aims and the needs of the DAILY WORKER before the audience, and the audience approved.

Comrade White, a veteran steel worker from Youngstown, was the principal speaker. Manuel A. Lopez, an old timer in the Mexican labor movement, but still a flaming orator, spoke in Spanish. Comrade Lourie spoke for the Young Pioneers. The entire program was excellent, and the audience was responsive.

WASHINGTON, May 6. (FP).—Its annual session at Washington headquarters has been concluded by the Intl. Brotherhood of Bookbinders. Felix J. Belair, general secretary, reported trade conditions good. Of the 14,000 members, about 75% are protected by union agreements. Men get an average wage of $43 for 44 hours per week; bindery women average $22 for 44 hours. Men in the trade are about 75% organized, and women about 25% organized. Centres of unionism are chiefly in the larger eastern cities.

FOOTNOTES TO THE NEWS

By EUGENE LYONS

Evasions.—1. Ramsay MacDonald refuses to comment on the Sacco-Vanzetti case, because it is "purely an American affair" in which he is too polite to interfere.

2. The Department of Justice ignores the Sacco-Vanzetti protests, pouring in upon it from all over the world because it is "purely a Massachusetts affair" in which it has no right to intervene. (Although admittedly it intervened to help convict them.)

3. The Massachusetts Supreme Court can do nothing about the new evidence because it is matter purely within the jurisdiction of the presiding judge of the lower courts, namely Thayer.

4. Judge Thayer can do nothing because the jury decided that the two goddam radicals ought to go to the chair anyhow.

A ROVING WRECKER'S CHANTEY

I've had my fill of wrecking,
Tearing up the bricks,
Scraping up the mortar,
Loading up the sticks:

I've had my fill of wrecking
In spite of all the pay,
A julcy three and fifty
For a nine-hour day:

I've had my fill of wrecking,
The boss and I, you see,
That gol-derned guiness foreman
And I could not agree:

For I was there to sun myself
So jolly and so free,
And not to break my fragile back
For the Symons' Company.

—ART SHIELDS.

Diplomatic Dope.—For frank, straight-from-the-shoulder dope on an international situation, the following from The World takes the cake. Please note how clear, definite and to-the-point every word is—

WASHINGTON, May 4.—President Machado of Cuba is authoritatively understood to have advised Secretary of State Kellogg during his recent visit to Washington that the Platt amendment, under which the United States has the right to intervene in Cuba, is objectionable and is causing friction between the two countries.

Secretary Kellogg is believed to have made no promises to President Machado regarding the removal of the amendment, but to have given assurances that steps would be taken at the next session of Congress to modify the parcel post regulation by which the United States prohibits shipment of cigars from Cuba in quantities of less than 3,000.

Further Indications of the Alarming Spread of the Suicide Wave.—The prison matron reports that since her arrest on a charge of murdering her husband, Mrs. Ruth Snyder has received 168 marriage proposals from all parts of the country.

For God's Sake.—The effects of religious training are clearly evident in Gray's pious exclamation as he slugged Snyder with the sashweight. We quote from his testimony:

"He was apparently full of fight. He got me by the necktie and a struggle ensued, in which I was getting the worse, because I was being choked. I hollered 'Mommie, Mommie, for God's sake help me.' I had dropped the weight. She came over, she took the weight and she hit him on the head."

Current Journalism.—Editing a newspaper while some such an epoch-making trial as the Snyder-Gray affair is on must be a cinch. From two to five pages are given up to verbatim testimony. All you do is get the court record, cut out the "unprintables" and stack in columns. After a while the chief functionaries on a newspaper will be stenographers and censors.

Fair Play.—News story: Prominent bankers give a luncheon to 100 workmen, because by working overtime, etc., they finished putting up the bank building in record time. After the luncheon, the bankers kept the building and the 100 workmen went out job-hunting.

The Lion and the Eagle: More Fact Than Fable

Yonder, where the Yangtse flows,
Where wakened China restless grows,
The Yankee eagle stoops to trail
Behind the British lion's tail;
The lion shows his bloody paws,
The eagle lifts his pointed claws.

Two worthy partners bent on prey,
Despite what their sleek spokesmen say.

The spectacle must give the chill
To the glorious ghosts of Bunker Hill
Who once did win eternal glories
By thrashing all the British tories;
Now their descendants, to their shame,
Play tricky Britain's bloody game.

Shall we, the self-styled brave and free,
The butchers of new China be?

—ADOLF WOLFF.

Faint Praise for the Jewish Writers.—A. B. Magil writes:

"It's about your note last Saturday on the open letter of the Jewish writers concerning the internal struggles in the needle trades. I agree with your general feeling in regard to the letter, but I think you do a number of these writers an injustice when you say they were moved to write the letter because of the rough language that is being used in the fight.

"This is, no doubt, true of the great body of 'impartial' Jewish writers whose snooty attitude throughout these long bitter weeks has been contemptible in the highest degree. But don't forget that among those who signed the letter were a large number whose sympathies lie with the left wing and who are genuinely interested in protecting the workers and saving the unions from complete disruption. Moreover, the letter was signed by several writers who are actively associated with the 'Freiheit,' among them being Abraham Raisin, H. Leivick, M. L. Halpern, Menachem Bareisha and Manl Leib.

"The chief objection to the letter is that it is so namby-pamby and takes no definite stand. It ends with: 'A solution must be found,' to which one is tempted to reply, 'You don't say!' or 'So's your old man.' It offers no suggestions and makes no specific criticism. I suspect that the desire to be all-conciliatory and to step on no one's toes produced a vehement zero.

"Incidentally, the mildness of the letter didn't save it from attacks from three different sources: the 'Forward,' the daintily impartial 'Day,' and the 'Freie Arbeiter Stimme,' Yiddish anarchist weekly."

Still, we repeat, the appeal to the literary conscience of Woll, Frayne, McGrady, etc.—who are really running the show for the right wing—is very nearly the limit of the absurd, whatever the good intentions behind it.

READ THE DAILY WORKER EVERY DAY

DRAMA

Feeble Apology for Big Business

"Wall Street." a play in three acts and a prologue, presented at the Hudson Theatre.

EUGENE O'NEILL

The noted dramatist will have his latest opus "Marco Millions" presented by the Theatre Guild early next season.

THIS miserable apology for a play is a fine echo of the first decade of this century when fourth rate journalists were busy turning out stuff about the great self-made men of the rich; extolling their great responsibilities and trying to prove that beneath the elegant finery of the life, luxurious and disolute of the idle rich, the souls of the four hundred there beat hearts of "purest gold." The last atrocity of this sort that we can recall was entitled "The Rich" and had a beefy comedian as the hero.

Wall Street in the story of a New England farmer who dreamed of getting the stock exchange and kept his dream secret from much to the chagrin of his loving wife. The New England scene contained all the trappings of the old time Yankee, a cranky old uncle, the Yankee lingo, a cradle with a mischievous infant in it, etc. Arthur Hohl and Margaret Douglas, enacting the roles of John H. and Anne Parry failed to make life in the packing house district of Boston real. The atmosphere of the shabby exhibited many of the shabby exhibits of the shabbiness of yokeldom. The characterization fell flat.

But when we thought the thing might prove to be a burlesque so we could enjoy it, if somewhat impatiently, it somewhat improved.

The next scene was a crippled attempt to show a broker's office in Wall Street. Stenographers, board boys, customers and a tycoon, John H. Parry himself having started to work in a cracker factory for the firm of Potter, Gray & Gould. By some sort of miracle Parry becomes a partner of Potter, assisting Marshfield. The two depart with great pomp to Nelson, the big factory town, taking the new head with her. Parry marries the daughter of Potter.

After years the son turns up to succeed his mother, he tries to double-cross his father, but the old man is a match for any of the Wall Street sharks or knows can put anything over on him. He outwits, and nearly, but not quite, ruins his son, but without need as such, John H. Parry.

The thing kept getting worse, but said we thought SOMETHING would eventually happen. But nothing happened. It went haltingly on to its dismal end. Absolutely pointless, poorly written, acted in the manner of the ten-twenty and thirty cent stock companies of pre-war days, the thing came to a close with the Wall Street magnate defeating all his scheming enemies and winning, at last, his beloved son—who incidentally won a wife.

The thing is obviously a crude attempt to grovel before the much-abused Wall Street gang by trying to picture one of its members as a human being, deserving of sympathy because of his great responsibilities.—H. M. W.

"An American Tragedy" will be presented by Horace Liveright at the Bronx Opera House for one week commencing Monday. Morgan Farley, Katherine Wilson, Janet McLeay, Walker Walker, Albert Phillips and Grace Griswold are in the cast.

Rosalie Stewart will revive "The Torchbearers" before the close of this season. This was the first of George Kelly's series of successful comedies.

The New Plays

MONDAY

"OSCAR WILDE'S," a musical play based on Oscar Wilde's farce, "The Importance of Being Earnest," will open at the Royale Theatre Monday evening, presented by F. T. Rossiter. Francis DeWitt wrote the book and lyrics, Robert Hood Bowers the music. In the cast are Ethel Intropidi, Marjorie Gateson, Hal Forde, Dorothy Dilley, Betty McDonough, Ralph Riggs, Katharine Witchie, Flavia Arcaro and Reuben Newberry.

THE NEIGHBORHOOD PLAYERS, INC., at the PROVINCETOWN PLAYHOUSE opens the second week of their season Monday night, presenting four plays during the week. The program: Monday and Friday nights, "The Cradle Song," Tuesday, "Angelo Maria," a drama, both by Martinez Sierra; Wednesday and Thursday evenings, "The Royal Pescock," by Guy Bolton; Saturday matinee and evening, "Pygmalion," by Bernard Shaw.

"JULIUS," by Cosmo White, will be presented by Homeric Productions at the Lyceum theatre Monday night with Alison Skipworth, Arnold Daly, Betty Pierce, Alexander Clark Jr. and Frederick Tidmarsh in the cast.

"THE MYSTERY OF EDWIN DROOD," by J. C. and Elliott Nugent, will be revived Monday night at the Fulton theatre by Stanley Phillips. The Nugents—Ruth, Elliott and J. C. will be in the cast.

"MARY, MARY, QUITE CONTRARY," a comedy by Willie Maxwell Goodhue, comes to Daly's 63rd Street Theatre Monday night, presented by Edward Whitehead and J. J. Levinson. Juliette Day and Romney Bent head the cast.

TUESDAY

"HOW'S THE LADDER?" a comedy by Herbert Hall Winslow, opens at the Frazee Garrick Tuesday night. The principal players are Ernest Glendinning, Louise Carter, John Carmody, Mildred Morris and Gertrude Forster.

WEDNESDAY

"HOW FOR ALL," a comedy by Ernest and Louise Cortis, will open at the Princess Theatre Wednesday night. The cast includes Madeline Delmar, Ethel Jackson, Jessie A. Eustace, Phillip Dunning, who collaborated with George Abbott in the writing of "Broadway," has a new one, a comedy of back-stage life, titled "The Understudy." Jack Donahue is collaborating this time.

Harry L. Cort and Clark Ross will produce a new play called "The Brigand," by Paul Fox and George Tilton, early next season. This will be followed with a musical comedy by Cort called "The Radio Girl."

AMUSEMENTS

The Theatre Guild Acting Company in
ALL NEXT WEEK
"The Second Man"
GUILD THEATRE 52nd Street, West of Broadway. Evgs at 8.30 Matinees THURSDAY and SATURDAY at 2.30.
Week of May 16th—PYGMALION
Week of May 23rd—THE SECOND MAN

PIRANDELLO'S
RIGHT YOU ARE
IF YOU THINK YOU ARE
GARRICK THEA. 65 W. 35th St. Evs. 8.30 Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2.30.
Week of May 16th—MR. PIM PASSES BY Week of May 23rd—RIGHT YOU ARE

ALL NEXT WEEK
"The Silver Cord"
JOHN GOLDEN THEATRE, 58th St., East of B'way. Matinees THURSDAY & SATURDAY. | CIRCLE 8079
Week of May 16th—MRS. McCORD'S DAUGHTER
Week of May 23rd—THE SILVER CORD

$500 AWARD
for the article of 200 words or less judged to be best on the play "The Ladder". Contest for fifth week closes Monday at 10 a. m. Money refunded if you do not like the play.
"THE LADDER" WALDORF THEATRE
50th St. E. of B'way—Mats. Wed. & Sat

TIMES SQ. THEATRE, WEST 42d STREET. Evgs. 8.30. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2.30
THIRD MONTH
A. H. WOODS presents
CRIME
By Samuel Shipman and John B. Hymer
"A vivid, gripping and absorbing melodrama. I confess that I enjoyed it as I haven't enjoyed a melodrama in seasons." —Alan Dale, American.

PROLETARIAN ART THEATRE presents
"The Awakening of China"
A Dramatic Recitation With
N. MALKIN and MARY GINSBURG, at
THE LABOR TEMPLE, 14th and 2nd Ave.
SATURDAY EVE., MAY 7th
Mr. STANLEY DAY at the organ.
Mr. JOHN PICORRI, Scenic Director.
H. M. WICKS will speak on the Chinese Revolution.
B. LUMET A. VINOGRADOF
R. VANDROF S. LIPZIN
TICKETS 50c, to be had at the Freiheit and at the Defense Office, 41 Union Sq. All money to go for the Cloak, Dress, and Furriers Prisoners—victims of the right wing Mineola treason.

MADISON SQUARE GARDEN
TWICE DAILY, 2 P.M & 8 P.M.
RINGLING BROS. and BARNUM & BAILEY CIRCUS
Incl. among 10,000 Marvels PAWAH SACRED WHITE ELEPHANT
TICKETS at GARDEN BOX OFFICES 8th Ave. and 49th St., and Gimbel Bros.

Bronx Opera House 149th Street, E. of 3rd Ave. Fop. Prices. Mat. Wed. & Sat.
"KATY DID"
A New Domestic Comedy

WALLACK'S West 42nd Street. Evenings 8.30. Mats. Tues., Wed., Thurs. and Sat.
What Anne Brought Home
A New Comedy Drama

Sam H. HARRIS THEA. West 42nd St. Twice Daily, 2:30 & 8:30
WHAT PRICE GLORY
Mats. (exc. Sat.) 50c-$1. Eves. 50c-$2.

EARL CARROLL Vanities
Earl Carroll Thea., 7th Ave. & 50th St. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2.30

THE NEW MAGAZINE
Section of The DAILY WORKER
SATURDAY, MAY 6, 1927 This Magazine Section Appears Every Saturday in The DAILY WORKER. ALEX BITTELMAN, Editor

Editor's Note

By ALEX BITTELMAN

IT would seem from recent developments that the imperialists of the United States are not altogether ready to play in China the game of Great Britain or to follow there fully the same tactics as British imperialism does. There seems to be a tendency in the ruling circles of big American capital in favor of the American government playing its own game in China, and with its own policies and tactics. Which, of course, will not make American policy in China any less imperialist, but only different from British policy.

How strong this tendency is remains to be seen. One must not overlook the fact that on several occasions in recent months the American government had acted jointly with the British in open attacks upon the Chinese Nationalist revolution. Suffice it to mention only two of the most outstanding incidents of this character: the joint bombardment of Nanking by British and American warships and the five-power protest note to the Chinese government in which participated also the United States. These, along with several more incidents of a similar nature, would indicate quite clearly that there has been and still is serious danger of the American government joining hands with the British for common military action against China. The demand of No Alliance With British Imperialism Against China must continue to be pressed with the greatest vigor and determination if such an eventuality is to be prevented.

* * *

AMERICAN imperialism has its own interests in China to look after. And these interests do not always coincide with those of the other imperialist powers, least of all with the interests of British and Japanese imperialism. In fact, the larger imperialist ambitions of American capitalism in the Far East and in the world generally run almost exactly contrary to the imperialist policies of both Great Britain and Japan. Hence, the concentration of American naval and military forces in China constitutes preparation for war not only against the Chinese revolution but also for the eventuality of armed conflict with the imperialist opponents of the United States such as Great Britain and Japan. The struggle for imperialist domination in China and for the mastery of the Pacific is, of course, the chief objective in the diplomatic maneuvers and military preparations of the big imperialist powers that is taking place before our very eyes. It is precisely here that we find the greatest danger of a new world imperialist war. And among the forces which are working and preparing for it are the imperialists of the United States.

* * *

THE defection of Chiang Kai-shek and his attacks upon the revolutionary block of the Chinese workers and peasants, has had a good deal to do with the so-called "pacific" turn in American policy in China, strengthening those elements among the American imperialists who favor a more independent (of Great Britain) policy in China. This turn is quite in accord with the traditional, "open-door," but nevertheless imperialist, American policy in China. Due to the fact that the American imperialists are comparative newcomers in China, they are less entrenched there than the British in an economic, political and military way. Consequently, the present day interests of American imperialism do not run so irrevocably and uncompromisingly in opposition to the interests of nearly all classes and groups in China, as is the case with British imperialism which finds itself able to co-operate almost exclusively with one or the other of the reactionary Chinese generals representing portions of the feudalistic cliques. British imperialism is fighting almost the whole of China, whereas American imperialism could afford to "pacify" at least the big native commercial and industrial bourgeoisie, in order to fight more effectively the workers and peasants of China which are the real backbone of the revolution.

Chiang Kai-shek's betrayal of the revolution reflects a readiness on the part of the big Chinese merchants, industrialists and landlords to reach an understanding with the foreign imperialists at the expense of the Chinese masses. And the "pacific" turn in American imperialist policy in China reflects the orientation of American capitalism towards an alliance with these big merchants, industrialists and landlords for a common struggle against the Chinese workers and peasants and for the joint exploitation of these masses. One of the chief inducements for the native Chinese capitalists to accept such an alliance with American imperialism against the Chinese Nationalist revolution is undoubtedly the ability of American imperialism to "finance" and promote the development of industry for large scale exploitation and profit-making in which the Chinese capitalists would have their proper share.

Despite therefore the so-called "pacific" appearance of the American imperialist policy in China, the maneuvers of the American government constitute a life danger to the Chinese revolution. This is particularly so because the American attack is directed chiefly against the Chinese revolutionary bloc, the workers and peasants, which is the backbone and mainstay of the revolution. To offer real support to the Chinese Nationalist revolution means to exert all possible effort to compel the American imperialists to keep their hands off China.

* * *

THE question of farm relief and farm relief legislation has not been settled by President Coolidge's veto of the McNary-Haugen bill. Not even the middle and rich farmers are willing or able to accept Coolidge's veto as something final and conclusive. While the poor and working farmers, whose lot would have improved little if any even with the passage of the McNary-Haugen bill, have not yet really begun to move. The voice of the masses of poor and working farmers is yet to be heard, and when this happens it will hardly sound like the McNary-Haugen bill.

What will actually happen with the farming masses, which have been most seriously affected by the critical conditions of wheat and cotton farming, will depend in a large measure upon the initiative, aggressiveness and foresight of those organizations that are qualified to speak for the poor and working farmers. Above all will developments depend upon the militancy of the farming masses themselves. It is high time that the poor and working farmers begin to consolidate their forces, clarify their program, and organize for struggle to demand actual relief.

Particularly becomes this urgent because the classes and groups hostile to the poor and working farmers are far from being passive in the situation. The big capitalists, whose political affairs are now managed by the republican administration, are actively engaged in breaking up the opposition of the farmers by first dividing their ranks. It is an open secret that President Coolidge is desperately trying to fix up an understanding with the spokesman of the middle and rich farmers which would give little to the middle farmer and nothing at all to the poor and working farmers. In doing so, President Coolidge is working not only for his own renomination as against possible fake agrarian contenders like Lowden, but also for big capital as against the farming masses. This united front of the big financial, industrial and commercial capitalists on the one hand with the rich farmers on the other hand constitutes a hostile and dangerous move against the poor and working farmers. The latter cannot afford to remain passive or indifferent to this condition. They must wake up to the dangers confronting them and begin to mobilise their own united front with a basic program of agrarian relief of their own. And in addition, they must also take measures towards closer relations with labor which is the only real ally of the poor and working farmers against the oppression of big capital.

Contrary to the comparative passivity of the poor and working farmers are the active efforts of the rich farmers to secure relief legislation in their interests. The spokesmen of this group, organized in the executive committee of 22 headed by George N. Peek of Chicago, held a meeting in that city a week ago to review the situation following the defeat of the McNary-Haugen bill and to "lay plans for the fight" at the next session of congress. It is understood that this meeting was preparatory to conferences soon to be held with Senator McNary and Congressman Haugen.

The statement issued at the close of the meeting says that the sentiment in different sections of the south and middle west for effective farm relief legislation is stronger than ever, and "that there is a no sentiment among those represented here today in favor of a legislative program which falls short of these aims or which attempts to compromise these principles." Which is all very well, of course, showing first that the well-to-do farmers are alive to their interests and, second, that they are preparing to put up a stiff fight to get the best of the bargain which Coolidge is trying to negotiate with them. But where do the poor and working farmers come in on this deal? Nowhere. It would be sheer folly to expect anything beneficial to the farming masses from the bargaining between Coolidge and the spokesmen of the rich farmers. To repeat what was said above, the poor and working farmers must begin to concentrate and mobilize their forces, in alliance with the workers, and prepare for struggle on a basic agrarian program.

STRIKE
Drawing by Maurice Becker

* * *

MAY DAY celebrations this year bore all the signs of the beginning of a real awakening of the workers to the dangers of imperialism and imperialist war. Even in the stronghold and citadel of the steel trust—Pittsburgh and the Pittsburgh district—the spirit and temper of the masses participating in our meetings was frankly and openly demonstrated against the war machinations of world imperialism, against the war on China and the contemplated attack upon the Soviet Union. Neither the terror nor the systematic persecutions of the workers by the steel trust and its agents could prevent the masses from expressing their loyalty to international working class solidarity.

An especially gladdening picture was presented by the May Day celebration in East Pittsburgh. The strenuous efforts of our comrades and their indefatigable preparations were well compensated by the splendid outpouring of the workers, their wives and children; the perfect organization and real militant spirit that prevailed at the celebration in East Pittsburgh. The slaves of the Westinghouse Company, which dominates the town, came to the celebration in large numbers. Adults and youth, boys, girls and children—all came to celebrate the workers' holiday. The celebration continued till far after midnight.

The writer of these lines cannot abstain from expressing his hearty admiration at the role played by the pioneers at the East Pittsburgh celebration. They sang and played, recited, cheered and demonstrated with such force, beauty and enthusiasm that the faces of the grown-ups became virtually transformed and the whole gathering imbued with courage, hope and pride in our movement and in our cause. Three cheers for the East Pittsburgh Pioneers. They have given us a vivid and beautiful image of the militant generation of working class fighters that is growing up now in the United States. These will not only carry on our struggles of today but will see them through to the very end and bring to a final conclusion the defeat of capitalism in the United States and the victory of the working class.

Murder and Love—By Proxy

Curtain up on the Great American Drama. A cross section of American life—as is. The walls are down and the wriggling mass of putrescence is exposed. Thugs—gunmen—newspaperman—politicians — prostitutes — workers — stenographers — Mutt and Jeff—columnists—tabloid editors—abortionists—A. F. of L. labor leaders—fixers—blackmailers—song and dance men—newsies—movie magnates—yessers—all, all are here!

Remember, Mr. Director, our characters are so much alike—good Americans all. You are mainly subtle in this act. They will say and do many things and it is well that you know why.

At heart, really, they are human beings. They want to live. The men want to feel the ecstasy of possession, the women want to experience the delights of childbirth. But they cannot. The men are robbed and stupified by labor. They would shrivel and dry up at the faintest hint of danger. Their souls are lost, twisted and plucked by centuries of "style"—and insufficient food. A chocolate coke and a vanilla soda—lunch 20 cents.

They live in boxes—two and three rooms—the monotony of which is only mechanical—Jiggy, Jiggy, work, fuck, subway. Life calls and even the Spring and Autumn shout, take Museum Street—down to the Museum in Pittsburg—down to the gray steel and cement in Passaic.

The desire to flow in enslaved veins—to feel unrestricted desires come to life—to run—to strike—to love—a strong, sweaty love—to empty one's loads in a hasty, hearse shout—(No talking—this means you! !)—but, also remember, Mr. Director, that working ordinarily means nothing to our characters—except bolts and pimples. They are stupified, heaped up—spiritually and every other way.

But these natural urges and instincts must be satisfied—they definitely hell's bellsmote them.

Make way! Here comes the yellow press! Fine! "We'll give 'em murder," they say, "we'll give 'em love—we'll give 'em thrills—we'll give the palest pulp-stuff and filling clerk the romance of her sheltered existence."

All right, then, let's go!

[illegible] BRIBED BY WEALTHY CLURMAN KILLS WIFE. (You, the dirty dawg, they oughta string 'em up.)

[illegible] SMOOTH TWO. (Tok rotta hand [illegible] get [illegible] with 'em")

PEACHES CRAMMER MANGLERS SIN. ("Too much money—that's what the matter with them young people today." or "Oh, I do wonder what he did to get caught. It'll be in the paper tomorrow and we'll know the horrible picture!").

CHAPMAN SEEKS REST AT HANGMAN. ("Yeah, that's the way to do—that's what I calls it")

You see, Mr. Director, these characters of ours live by proxy. They thrill at another's courage—feel shame for another's sin—they play ball by proxy—fight by proxy—yes (sotto voce)—they sin by proxy! Gunmen—prostitute—simpering gold-digger—hangman—prize fighter—they are all part of big, subsidized spectacle.

Have your mobs carrying pink tabloids under their arms—have groups reading them—. High above the mobs have newspapermen—editors—politicians—labor leaders and bankers cheerleading them—move them to and fro—keep 'em going.

In this act when a communist comes on it, and utters the first word of his speech, "Workers—" be sure and have the pack go for him with fury—the politicians and newspapermen well to the fore.

At the end of the act when a reporter explains his prostitution by saying "economic determinism"—be sure and see that he wears a sheepish grin.

Remember, Mr. Director, this is the Great American Drama.

PREVENT THIS HORROR!

Colonel D. P. Bloch, of the French army, paints a picture of the "next war" calculated to give one the horrors. Yet he is writing in the coldest technical terms, and much of what he sees for future conflicts would have been witnessed in the last one had it lasted a few months longer.

The first thing to realize is that in the "next war" there will be no "fronts." Attacks will be delivered by airplane hundreds of miles behind the frontier. Next, there will be no non-combatants; every one will be swept into the war machine, and every one will be in danger.

If the World War had lasted till the spring of 1919, the German trenches would have been drenched with "lacrimite," a deadlier gas than any yet used, and one defying all then known forms of protection.

This gas was the invention of an American college professor, and its manufacture would have been on a quantity basis of several thousand tons per week by March 1919.

On the other hand, Ludendorff had all plans laid to destroy Paris and London by a rain of "electron bombs," chemical fire makers which will start a blaze in anything burnable.

Colonel Bloch sees the American and German inventions combined in the next war; fire bombs used to drive people into the streets, and gas bombs to overcome or kill them when in the open.

It would be totally impossible to fit out a whole population with gas masks and train them in the use of such devices. Even if defense is found against one gas, another may be invented, and a week or day of its free use before the defense against it is found, may be sufficient to wipe out all resistance to it and win the war.—THE TAILOR.

1914-1917

—1914—

The strife-torn sun sank in the west
Amidst a hue and cry,
The sky was streaked with fore-telling scarlet,
As thru the trees the wind did sigh.

—1915—

Darkness, darkness, wrapped the earth as if in Foreboding mantle.
As storm raged, the thunder pealed, the Lightning flashed;
Rain came down in torrents; some stately trees
Were felled;
In troth the fiends of hell itself had met
And clashed.

—1916—

No moon, no stars, no faint ray of hope,
When thru the heavy laden clouds came breaking
A maiden
Yea, and dressed in a scarlet cloak;
And in her mad rush toward the earth her fiery
Locks were shaking.

—1917—March—

It struck, and its red embers filled the dark
And gloomy night.
But as all nights give way when they are spent,
The gray, astonished dawn came o'er and sighed
When such a fury, such confusion it beheld.

—1917—November—

But lo, before the scarlet-tinted morning star
Had kissed away the dew
A new, a brighter, reddish sun arose from Eastern shores.
And those set like a ruby jewel within the blue
It smiled, it laughed, the earth did glow
As from the heavenly heights the golden sunshine Poured.

— I. J. SPENCER.

Chao-Ting Chi Asks "Hands Off" Policy for China

AN appeal for the support and friendship of organized labor of this country in the movement started in China by the organized labor forces of that country for liberation and the right of self-government without outside interference, was made before the meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor Sunday, April 17th, by Chao-Ting Chi, a representative of the Chinese Nationalist Party. He asked that labor in this country protest against the sending of American warships to China to assist Great Britain in her imperialistic program.

Mr. Chi was sent to the meeting by the Chicago office of the Kuo Min Tang (Chinese Nationalist Party) at 259 West 22nd Street.

Desired Liberation.

IN his speech, which met with the evident approval of the delegates, Mr. Chi said that the position of the Chinese Nationalist Party was that it desired the liberation of the Chinese from the outside domination.

"The Chinese liberal movement has been misrepresented," said the speaker. "It is nothing more than the Chinese movement for independence against the oppression of imperialism, and native militarism against the Chinese people. The movement is supplied with funds by the Chinese labor movement, and because of the Chinese trade unions, it has been able to carry on so far.

Forced Unequal Treaties.

"FOR the past eighty years the powers have forced on China all kinds of unequal treaties. What are they? I will make a few simple explanations of a few of them. It would take me hours to explain all of them. I will illustrate by suggesting that foreign warships be sent up the Mississippi river to St. Louis to threaten to bombard the city, or into Chesapeake Bay to threaten your national capital at Washington.

"If that thing came to America just what would you feel about it? They send warships into the interior provinces of China whenever they feel like it. They say that they do it to protect their citizens. Well and good. Their citizens deserve protection. But I will explain how the Blue Express, a train that runs from Peking to Hankow, was captured by a group of Chinese bandits. Quite a number of foreigners were captured and kidnaped. They were taken into the mountains and held for ransom. This made the foreign countries from which they came angry, and they forced the Chinese government besides apologizing, to pay each one of the persons kidnaped and held prisoner $250 for every day of confinement on the hill. The Chinese government had to accede to the demands and had to pay that sum to each of the prisoners for each day of confinement.

Chinese Life Valued At $25.

"A few days later on the streets of Shanghai a foreign automobile killed a Chinese. I believe the victim was a woman. The case was brought to the mixed court in Shanghai and the driver of the automobile was judged by his own people in Shanghai. He had to pay $25 for the life of that Chinese. If the life of a Chinese is worth only $25 and the liberty of foreigners is worth $250 a day, that's the kind of situation the unequal treaties have forced on China.

"They claim that they send warships to protect their citizens but they use this as a shield to demand special privileges. The Chinese labor unions are against all kinds of oppression. We don't want your money, but we do want your help. In a few years the trade union movement has grown from nothing to a membership of one and one-half million.

Members of Labor Movement Guide.

"IN China they lack military maps, and guides are used in their place. The members of the labor movement act as guides for the soldiers of the liberalist movement. No Chinese people will serve as guides to the northern militarists, but serve as guides for the revolutionary army. That is the reason that they are able to gain through surprise attacks. If anybody in China seeks to destroy the labor movement, he cannot succeed, but if he supports the labor movement, he will succeed. Success depends upon working with organized labor. The imperialists have tried to destroy the Chinese liberation movement and have tried to provoke the Russians are attacking northern China. The imperialists are led by Great Britain and Japan and they are trying also to involve the United States in this war against China.

"The movement is not Bolshevik in its nature. It is not against the interests of the workers in the West.

"IN case the Chinese liberalist movement is not crushed we will set up our own government and stop the exploitation of Chinese labor. The Chinese government will support the Chinese trade unions, and force the capitalist to give higher wages. We do not want to reduce the standard of western workers to the level of Chinese workers, but we do want to raise the standards of our own workers so that they are comparable with your standards.

"What we hope you will do is that the American workers will protest against the sending of American warships to China, because of their own as well as our interests. We do not want this country to play into the hands of the British imperialists, but to try and stop a world war, and we want you to do this for your own interests."

On the Screen

"Five Days in Paris," a French comedy film starring Nicholas Rimsky, the Russian screen star, will be presented at the Times Square Theatre for one day only, tomorrow (Sunday), under the direction of the Equitable Film Company of Paris. This is the premiere American showing of the film. This picture has been showing in Paris, London and Vienna because of its novel comedy.

"Annie Laurie," Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new picture from an original story by Josephine Lovett, with Lillian Gish in the title role, will begin an engagement at the Embassy Theatre, next Wednesday evening. Norman Kerry, Hobart Bosworth, David Torrence, Creighton Hale, and Frank Currier are in the supporting cast.

Colleen Moore's newest film now in production is "Naughty But Nice," adopted by Carey Wilson from Lewis Allen Browne's "The Bigamist." Supporting Miss Moore are Donald Reed, Claude Gillingwater and Kathryn McGuire.

Constance Talmadge's next picture for First National will be "Breakfast Before Sunrise."

Richard Barthelmess is planning his next appearance with "The Patent Leather Kid," prepared by Winifred Dunn from Rupert Hughes' story.

Gertrude Atherton's novel "The Crystal Cup" will be adapted for the screen by Garrett Fort for First National. Fort is responsible for the recent adaptation of "White Gold."

EDMUND LOWE

As Sergeant Quirt in the screen version of "What Price Glory" at the Sam H. Harris theatre.

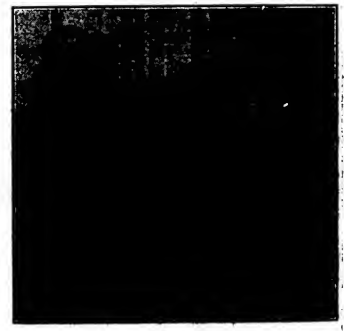
Clemens Kranss, conductor and director of the municipal opera at Frankfurt-am-Main, will come here as guest conductor of the New York Symphony Orchestra in the latter part of next season. Mr. Kranss will conduct the Symphony during March, following Fritz Busch, Osaip Gabrilowitsch and Walter Damrosch.

Anna Duncan will give a second dance recital on Sunday evening, May 22 at the Guild Theatre.

Leopold Stokowski, conductor of the Philadelphia orchestra, has been granted a leave of absence for the season of 1927-1928.

The Beethoven Symphony Orchestra, beginning next fall, will give a series of seven subscription concerts with soloists on three Wednesday and four Friday evenings.

The New York Symphony Society is making plans to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary next season. Leopold Damrosch directed the first concert of the orchestra in Steinway Hall on Fourteenth Street, fifty years ago.



MUSIC

Alice Paton, soprano, will make her debut at Town Hall Monday evening, in a diversified program of Italian, French, German and English songs, including the aria from "Lucrezia Borgia."

Emanuel Zetlin, violinist, and Frank Sheridan, pianist will appear in joint recital Sunday afternoon at Town Hall. The program includes three Sonatas; the D Minor, Op. 108 by Brahms; B-flat Major (Kochel No. 378), Mozart; B Minor, Respighi.

R. F. Quinn, baritone, will give his song recital next Tuesday night at Town Hall.

CUBAN PRESIDENT MEETS BILL

Snapshot of President Gerardo Machado of Cuba, left, being welcomed to Chicago by "Big Bill" Thompson, mayor.

DRAMA

Paul Green Writer of American Folk-Plays

THE author of "In Abraham's Bosom," which was awarded the Pulitzer Prize for 1926, is called a "Trail-breaker in the literature of the South" by Frederick Koch, the founder of the Carolina Playmakers—a little theatre group whose fame has spread some distance from Carolina, where the organization first produced Paul Green's folk plays.

The young instructor of philosophy in the University of North Carolina, was born on a farm in Harnett County in Eastern Carolina. "He is as much a part of North Carolina" continues Mr. Koch, "as the soil from which he springs. His plays are as indigenous as the pine tree to his sand-hills. Like the tree his roots strike deep. And from the raw materials of the land he draws forth the life itself in authentic folk-plays. His first play produced by our Carolina Playmakers, 'The Last of the Lowries,' a romantic tragedy of the Croatan outlaws of Robeson County, was drawn from materials familiar to him since his earliest childhood. The play stirred the audience strangely. Here was a sound artist—a new playwright of tragic power and poetic impulse."

A man of imagination, with a strong yearning for beauty, the glamor and adventure of old tales find colorful expression in his plays. And there is a lyric note, too, intrinsic in Green's dramatic writing—as in the weird strains of the pirate chantey of Bloody Ed in the "Blackbeard" play, and in the strange music of the white lady at the spinet in "The Old Man of Edenton." None the less is this true of his starkly realistic dramas. Of the repressed yearnings and of bitter revolt. The twilight singing of the fieldhands in the bleak tragedy of the tenant-farm preacher in "The Lord's Will," and the songs of the young folks enjoyin' themselves on Christmas Eve in "Old Wash Lucas," translate the neglected lives of the drab scene to the serene rhythm of art.

Paul Green is profoundly interested in the creation of a Negro theatre. He is one of the foremost workers in this field today. Such plays as "White Dresses," "Sam Tucker," "The End of the Row," "The Hot Iron," "The No 'Count Boy" and "In Abraham's Bosom," have made a distinctive contribution to our contemporary drama. They reveal an almost uncanny insight into the character of the negro and a rare feeling for the imagery and the melody of his race life.

SYLVIA FIELD

In "Broadway," the Jed Harris hit now in its ninth month at the Broadhurst theatre.

Theatre Guild to Do O'Neill's Newest Play

The Theatre Guild has acquired Eugene O'Neill's "Marco Millions" and will produce the play next season. Negotiations have been carried on with O'Neill, who is now in Bermuda. "Marco Millions" is that much discussed play which every important Broadway manager has had in his possession from time to time, but which they all relinquished because of what they considered the excessive cost of production. The version which the Guild has acquired has been revised by the author from his original drafts.

The play deals with the life and times of Marco Polo, and as O'Neill expresses it in the foreword to a published version issued by Boni & Liveright, is "an attempt to render poetic justice to one long famous as a traveler, unjustly world-renowned as a liar but sadly unrecognized by posterity in his true eminence as a man and citizen—Marco Polo of Venice." The title may be explained by Marco's devoted passion to the acquisition of money, a passion which grew and grew until he, too, could be counted as a possessor of millions. This is the first play of O'Neill's which has been published prior to the stage production. The Guild is planning to stage it in a most ambitious fashion. Two of his plays were revived this season, "Beyond the Horizon" and "Emperor Jones," but this will be the first new play for some time.

Proletarian Art Theatre To Give Benefit Tonight

The Proletarian Art Theatre will hold a great Festival for the benefit of the Imprisoned Cloakmakers and Furriers at the Labor Temple, 14th Street and Second Avenue, tonight at 8 P. M.

There will be recitations by A. Winogradive and Rubin Wandoff, well known artists of the Irving Place Theatre. The presentation of "The Simpleton," a special recitation by Baruch Lomed; Folk Songs by Mary Ginsberg; "The Awakening of China," by M. Malkin, and other numbers.

H. M. Wicks, editor of The DAILY WORKER, will deliver a special address. Uncle Sam (Liptzin) the Freiheit humorist will be chairman. Tickets at 50 cents can be obtained at the office of the Joint Defense Committee, 41 Union Square, Room 714, also at the Freiheit.

Gilbert and Sullivan fans will be pleased to hear that Robert Milton is planning to produce "Pullence" about May 16, with Vivian Hart in the title role.

Broadway Briefs

"In Abraham's Bosom," the Pulitzer prize play, will re-open at the Provincetown Playhouse tomorrow evening. Frank Wilson, who was in the previous presentation, will head the cast.

"A La Carte," Ronald Stewart's mid-summer revue, will come here sometime in August. In addition to sketches by George Kelly, the show will include Lyrics and music by Lorenz Hart and Richard Rodgers. Mabel and Karl Kruck and Norman Gregg. The cast will include Ray Fant, Harriet Hoctor, Chic Yorke, Rose King and William Holbrook.

William A. Brady has a new farce, "Uppercuts," by N. C. Fowler and C. W. Bell, which he will try out next month. Bell is the author of "Tucker, Bedroom and Bath" and other farces popular some seasons back.

An East Side Incident

By MAX GELTMAN

It was a warm spring day. The sun was beaming down upon all with a gay refulgence. The venders of fruits and vegetables on the lower east side of New York were about earlier than was their usual wont, adding an oriental touch to the already pleasant oriental weather.

Fruits and spices from the South and Far East were sold here. Dates and figs and nuts and pineapples wafted up their fragrance to a rising multitude ready for work. The quaint cackling of the Yiddish dialect, the pleasant strains of exhilarated, brass-buttoned, red-necked defenders of the law.

* * *

There was a bearded old Galician Jew. He couldn't quite see the sense in giving away money just for the privilege of being stationed. He'd rather ply his trade on the move, anyhow. If business was done in one place he'd move on—relying on the sign to tell the price while he'd merely shout "Apples, apples"—the pronunciation of which luckily being the same in Jewish as in English.

His cart this morning was well filled with apples; each one of which sat back on a down of fluffy tissue paper. Some sold for one cent, others for three cents and the largest and most succulent sold for a nickel. These nickel apples were always adorned to with an extra brush of the already shining sleeve.

It was yet too early to shout out his wares. Housewives were just barely being seen on the streets—and it was from them—and not from the occasional passerby that one earned a living. The sun's rays striking the blood-red apples set up a radiant reflection. The five cent apples were again dusted off—one was taken up, blown on and rubbed severely against the right sleeve.

"Apples, apples"—faintly—just to be prepared for the later rush, Shapse gave voice to his calling. "Apples, apples"—Some one kidded him about his calling and he took the jest in the trade. He felt extremely happy. He lifted his left index finger and burrowing through the matted beard to his chin he would slowly pull strands of yellow-gray hair therefrom. A pleasant feeling. He liked it—and it was only when Shapse was happy that he did that.

* * *

The city began to hum. Trucks honked their way through the narrow, push-cart lined streets. Wives —short, squat, amiable—with their large buying bags made their appearance on the streets. In crescendo-like fashion the voices of the hawksters began to make themselves heard.

"Three pounds little women for a quarter," some robust wag in Yiddish bellowed forth.

"Apples, apples"—

Onions, carrots, dates, beans, spices, figs, potatoes, watermelons, bananas—a medley of fruits and vegetables—each had their selling representative here crying forth the mouth-watering virtue of each concomitant with the meagerness of the price.

"Apples, apples"—

"Keep moving there. Come on, get off the corner!"

The sensation of a prod in the small of the back. Shapse looked up scared.

He motioned with his hands for his mightiness in blue to allow him just to finish his sale. The prodding became a little more intense.

"Come on, get a move on—"

Shapse nodded his head and smiled affably. "Yeh, yeh, yeh"—in soothing apologetic inflection. Couldn't the representative of the law see that he meant to move on just as soon as he finished the sale?

Shapse felt just a bit nervous. The balancing stick would not come out as it usually did. He was conscious of a multitude of eyes staring in his direction. A small crowd had gathered.

"Snap into it"——

The stick came loose—and dropped to the ground. Shapse held on to the cart with one hand while he lowered his body to reach for the stick—. The policeman's stick which had been beating a slight tatoo on the edge of the cart suddenly thrust itself forward and—at first slowly, then a little faster the cart went reeling down the avenue till it veered in crazy fashion and hit up against the curb. Apples went flying in all directions. Some of the crowd laughed; others were but mildly concerned while some muttered strange oaths that even the foreign ears of one of New York's finest couldn't misinterpret.

* * *

Shapse stood up slowly—very slowly. His eyes became glazed. As if in the distance he could see a line of round red apples rolling slowly down the car tracks. He made no effort to go after them. It was like a dream. A sad dream from which he wished to awaken. A bitter feeling filled his soul. Directly in front of him he could make out a gargantuan apparition in blue. The people were crowding in. Rage, bitter rage, the rage of one caught in a trap came over him. A passing street car clanged its way through the mob and pieces of apple flew in all directions. A babble of voices and an old man trying to think. "Come on"—that gruff, hateful voice again. Shapse lifted his head and his jaundiced face stared up into the red corpulent face of the policeman. Hate—blind rage—and Shapse gathered the mouthful of saliva which had been choking him and ho spat fully against the well stuffed uniform in blue.

* * *

For almost two months Shapse was missed in the markets of the east side. When he came back, his gait was slower—his apples were not as assiduously looked after as before—no more did he shout "apples, apples"—. His eyes were ever on the qui vive for one of those blue-uniformed, brass-buttoned, red-necked defenders of the law.

BRONX WORKERS SPORTS CLUB

By I. KURLAND.

One of the most exciting and lively games ever played in the Bronx was held at 4 o'clock on April 3rd, at Crotona Park Soccer Field. The first team of the newly formed Bronx Workers' Sports Club, "The Red Jerseys" played the first team of the Bronx Sports Club. This match, in which the two best selected teams of the Bronx participated, gave a real thrill to the spectators. The number exceeded 600 and many of them came to see the "Red Jerseys" play.

The spectators displayed enthusiasm and interest in the game and appeared to side with the Bronx Workers.

It was at last that the score of the game was 3—3, the Workers' team outplayed its opponent in the technic of the game and skill in handling the ball. The first half of the game passed with the right half of the Bronx Workers scoring a goal from a penalty kick. During the second half the Bronx Sports scored a goal from a corner. A few minutes later the right out of the Bronx Workers scored the second goal, which was accompanied by a long applause and cheers lasting for about three minutes.

Two minutes before the end of the game the Bronx Sports scored a second ball, which was illegal according to soccer rules. The Bronx Workers consented to that goal because they do not play for the sake of scoring only, but for the sake of sports and good sportsmanship. Consequently the score was 3—3.

The last issue of the "Soccer Weekly" has announced that International Stars participated in the game as the Bronx Workers team because the players did make a very good impression.

A successful dance given by the Bronx Workers' Sports Club on April 9, was another factor which helped to make this organization known in the Bronx. In spite of the short existence and other obstacles which the club had to overcome in its process of organization, the affair proved to be a tremendous success. Over three hundred and fifty young workers were present. Many sports and other organizations came in a body.

The organization tried to accomplish the following three items thru the dance.

1.—To acquaint the Bronx working youth with the organization.

2.—To enrich its treasury and thereby put the club on a firm financial basis.

3.—To acquaint the workers with our idea of sports as a workers basis as opposed to the usual practice of the bourgeois sport. The latter was well explained by a member of the club, who in a few words outlined the aims and purposes of the Bronx Workers' Sports Club.

THE CHINESE "REDS" SPEAK

By HENRY GEORGE WEISS.

Now by the turmoil you have made
With murderous greed thru countries,
Now by the blood upon your blade,
We rise against your tyrannies.

O bring your workers to these shores
Where Vanguards of The Dawn await
To tell them only peace endures
When Working Men control the State.

Come, let your toilers breathe the air
Of Communism blowing free;
We'll send them back—O never fear!
To strike a blow for liberty.

It will not be our allan feet,
It will not be our foreign cries
That thunder down your damned elite
When, bathed in blood, the System dies.

But English hands all rough with toil
Shall wield the blades and point the gun
When surging from the mills, the soil,
The task of Labor is begun.

And gaunt Americans shall seize—
Americans by right and worth—
The cause of all their miseries
And trample it into the earth.

And "Nordic" hands shall raise the Red
Victorious Banner to the sky,
By Labor's world-wide unity!
And yellow, white, and black be wed

THREE REVOLUTIONS IN ONE

(Continued from Page Three)

Hankow was captured the workers organized in unions won their demands after a brief strike by reducing the working day from 16 hours to 10 and 12 hours per day, and raised their wages from $1.50 to $3.75 per month. This is a tremendous gain for Chinese workers. The capitalists within the Party do not like it. But the workers in alliance with the peasants compose the essential force of the revolution, hence the workers must be retained at the expense of the capitalists.

Party Goes Toward Left.

Thus gradually the Kuomintang party purges itself of the exploiting classes and becomes the party of the producing masses whose interest lies in their emancipation not only from the military bandits, not only from the imperialist robbers but their interest lies in overthrowing their own native capitalist class and administer the land and its riches for the benefit of those who toil and produce all wealth by applying their labor power to their natural environment.

Workers of World Must Aid China.

The workers of the world owe a duty to their Chinese comrades in their struggle against tremendous odds. Because they are fighting the battle of all labor. The capitalists know this very well, this is why they stand united, ready to let loose all forces of destruction to devour the Chinese masses and drown their revolution in blood.

Every workers' organization should pass the resolution adopted by the English Independent Labor Party. Not only that, but organized labor must demand the withdrawing of the warships from Chinese waters and the recognition of the Hankow Nationalist Government. If this is not done now when each worker who remained silent in this hour of crisis will be responsible for the world slaughter the Imperialist Powers are preparing now.

Text of the Note from the Soviet Union to the Peking Government

Moscow, 11th April 1927.

ON the 9th April the following note signed by Comrade Litvinov dealing with the raid on the Soviet Embassy in Peking was handed to the ambassador of the Peking government in Moscow, Tchen:

In connection with the raid by armed soldiers of the army of Chang Tso-lin and by the Peking police upon the rooms of the military attache of the Soviet embassy in Peking and upon the living rooms of the employes of the embassy, I have the honor of requesting you to refer the following to the Peking cabinet:

1. Supplementing the note of the ambassador of the Soviet Union in Peking, Tcherny, of the 6th of April of this year, informing the Peking Peking cabinet of the shameful raid upon the rooms of the military attache and upon the living rooms of the employes of the embassy, and of the fact that many of the employes were arrested, maltreated and their living rooms searched and plundered, it has since been ascertained upon the basis of the information at present in our hands that the living rooms and the bureau of the military attache were searched, plundered partly destroyed by fire, despite all protests. Similarly, the living rooms of the employes of the embassy were demolished and plundered. A number of employes were arrested, some of them were beaten and subjected to other violence and to derision. The names of all the arrested have not yet been ascertained as the armed police and soldiers permit no one to enter the court where the living rooms of the military attache and the employes of the embassy are situated, and the police have up to the present not published any such list. At the moment, armed soldiers and police are still occupying all the rooms, both of the military attache and of the employes of the embassy.

2. The raid carried out by the Peking authorities is an unheard of violation of the most elementary extra-territorial rights recognized by all nations. The original supposition put forward by the ambassador of the Peking government in Moscow, Tchen, that the whole affair was a raid by common robbers and not a search carried out by the state police, has now been proved, by the receipt of the note of the foreign minister in Peking Wei Chiao-tu of the 8th April, to be incorrect. The commissariat for foreign affairs was inclined to accept the supposition of Tchen as being the most probable, for it could not assume that persons authorized to carry out the will of the Peking cabinet could commit such actions as those set out in the note of the ambassador of the Soviet Union, Tcherny and referred to above i. e. the arrest and maltreatment of employes of the Soviet embassy, the demolition of the bureau of the military attache, the searching and plundering of the Russian trade mission and of the greater part of the living rooms of the employes of the embassy situated next to the latter. It can now be stated definitely that the actions termed by Tchen a robber raid, were carried out by soldiers and by the Peking police upon the orders of the Peking government. Such violence is absolutely without precedence for two states maintaining official relations with each other.

3. If the Peking government supposed that it was carrying out a raid upon a building belonging directly, as stated in the note of the Peking government, to the complex of the Soviet embassy, then it had not the right to do so without first informing the Soviet embassy. The police and the soldiers carrying out the raid did not merely refuse representatives of the embassy the right to enter the territory being searched and plundered, but even refused this right to the ambassador of the Soviet Union, Tcherny himself. Such an attitude can only be explained by a wish of the Peking cabinet for the violence and plundering of its agents to take place in the absence of any official personages. Only the completely improbable and unbelievable statement of the Peking government that weapons and documents were found during the course of the searches, proving that an insurrection was being prepared, explains why the raid upon the rooms of the military attache and upon the rooms of the employes of the embassy took place under such extraordinary circumstances. For under such circumstances, when all possibility was removed of even the most elementary control and registration of the confiscated property, there is no guarantee whatever that the things allegedly "found" and which can be utilized by hostile foreign powers who inspired and sanctioned the raid on the 6th April, were actually found in the rooms raided.

4. If the Peking cabinet had discovered that Chinese citizens were present upon the territory directly belonging to the Soviet embassy, Chinese citizens who in the opinion of the Peking cabinet conducted an activity hostile to the interests of the latter, then it had the possibility and it was its duty to inform first of all the embassy of the Soviet Union. However, the Peking government considered it to be more correct in these circumstances, to direct itself to the diplomatic corps in Peking and, in agreement with the Dutch ambassador, Udendeyk, to violate the extra-territorial rights of the military attache, to use violence against employes of the embassy of the Soviet Union and to plunder and demolish their living rooms. The co-operation between the soldiers and police of the Peking government with the representatives of the diplomatic corps throws light upon the real motives of the unheard of violence and the violation of elementary extra-territorial rights and supplies the best evidence concerning those in whose interests this violence was committed.

The Soviet government emphatically protests against the above mentioned acts of violence and violation of normal rights and considers it necessary to insist upon the fulfillment of the following elementary demands:

a) The Chinese military troops and police must be immediately withdrawn from the rooms of the military attache, of the employes of the embassy and of the trade mission.

b) All the arrested employes of the Soviet embassy and of the economic institutions of the Soviet Union must be immediately released.

c) All documents removed from the rooms of the military attache must be immediately returned.

d) Personal effects, money, household goods, books and other objects confiscated or stolen by the police and the military must be returned to their owners immediately.

The Soviet government considers it necessary as a sign of protest to recall its Ambassador Teberny and the whole staff of the embassy from Peking and to leave only a staff necessary to carry out consular functions, until the above demands shall have been fulfilled.

The Soviet government limits itself to the above elementary demands which in no way are calculated to humiliate the Peking government. Every imperialist government whose representatives had been subjected to similar violence would have answered with the sharpest reprisals. The Soviet government which has sufficient means at its disposal to exercise reprisals, declares however that it has no intention whatever of taking such measures.

The Soviet government is well aware that irresponsible circles amongst the foreign imperialists wish to provoke the Soviet Union into a war. The Soviet government is well aware that the Peking cabinet was the instrument of foreign imperialist circles. However, in its policy, the Soviet government is guided only by the interests of the toilers of the whole world, including the interests of the masses of the Chinese people and the working masses of all countries. In answer to the Peking provocation which was intended to worsen the international situation and to turn the de facto military operations already begun by certain imperialists powers against China, into a new world war, the Soviet government declares that it will permit itself to be provoked by no one and will fight for the cause of peace between the nations with all the means at its disposal. The Soviet government does not doubt for one moment that its efforts for peace will receive the unanimous support of the toilers, in all countries including particularly the peoples of China and of the Soviet Union.

Creators of Wealth

Spring-cold but the promise of warmth
a bright sun, mellow, a blue sky
only sparrows chirping
only the pattern of stone and brick and tile static ornaments to break the hardness of walk and wall trees pregnant with budding leaves are gone spring in the city of steel and stone and men building time men weaving homes against the sky steel girders the warp steel girders the woof shuttles of steel weaving a black intricate pattern into the blue with bodies of steel for strands

Loud are the voices of the builders above the restless motors of automobiles jammed into unwilling line above the clamor of horns, the grating of metal wheels on the resisting track rise the voices of the builders

the shattered air vibrates to the rasp of the riveters hammer locking girder to girder with fingers of scorching metal shriek of the crane hoisting rafters and men alternate loads up to the dizzy heights framework for mountains, hives of masonary, shelter for millions sing . . for spring is in the air sing . . for men have learned how to fashion mountains for home

Slaves have built monuments before bent quivering backs to whips laid stone on stone that pyramids might rise honor to vanity of kings

the builders mistrust their strength the creators of mountains . . the welders of metal the harnessers of wind and water go harnessed willingly like oxen
they are afraid

Spring . . cold but the promise of warmth
a bright sun, mellow, a blue sky
sing together your voices will eclipse the tap tap tap of the riveters hammer together your voices will rise above the whistle of the crane hoisting steel and men to grapple against the sky

weld yourselves together, welders of many metals weavers of stone and steel . . . creators of cities

weld and weave your millions of bodies into a mighty pattern fuse and pour your voices into a mighty shout join hands one with another until you encircle the earth take what you have created .

—MARGARET GRAHAM

The COMRADE
Edited by the Young
A Page for Workers'

Young SECTION
Pioneers of America
and Farmers' Children

BOYS' WEEK

By H. L. H., New York City.

Beginning with May 9, we are going to have Boys' Week. It is going to last one week up to May 16. On May 16 there is going to be a big parade, the Boys' Week Parade.

Boys' Week is supposed to be for the benefit of the boys. But who is behind Boys' Week, who is organizing it? Some rich millionaires and bosses who make millions of dollars out of child labor and don't care if the children grow up ignorant and exploited. Also the school authorities whose job it is to train the minds of the workers' children with all kinds of lies that will make them obedient to the bosses. Also the government which is the worst enemy of the workers because it is always on the side of the bosses and always against the workers. When the bosses, the Board of Education, and the government are backing up a thing it shows that thing is bad for the workers and workers' children.

Also what does Boys' Week do? It makes the children feel that the government and the bosses are good to them and doing them good things and so it makes them forget that the bosses and the government are their enemies. It makes the children think the bosses and the school authorities and the government are their friends. This is not true; they are their worst enemies. And that's why Boys' Week is a very bad thing for the workers.

Workers' children! Learn the truth about Boys' Week. It's all a scheme to fool you.

OUR LETTER BOX

TEACHER LIES ABOUT RUSSIA

Dear Comrades: One day my geography teacher began to tell about Soviet Russia. She said it was a happy country and the people were wild and ignorant. She said that they were not educated and they were so wild that they killed the last czar. She said that the people couldn't read so they had to put pictures on the letter instead of letter. For example, if they want to say where they got a picture of a hat. I think this is all a lie. She said that even though they have a government it's no good because the people are wild and by all owning business together they have to go to ruin. I think that Soviet Russia is no use. I was going to stand up and tell her that Soviet Russia's government was GOOD, but good for the WORKERS and not for the big bosses like in U. S. So I kept quiet.

A. Y.

SHE HATES ALL PRIESTS

Dear Comrade: I am sending you ten cents for literature bottom. But I am afraid that they will come too late.

We have a new teacher, but we don't salute the flag. Her name is Mrs. Ruth Flurnoy. Our last teacher died and I was to her funeral. She was a great fool because she told such lies. I hate all priests.—EVELYN R. CARLIAS.

MY SCHOOL

By IRVING K.

In my school the principal is trying to organise Junior Scout Troop." One boy who is already a Scout tried to get me to belong, but I said nothing doing. I don't believe in it. Those Scouts almost said, "Don't try to bring him in the troop, he is a Socialist." That just shows how afraid they are of the Socialists.

I believe a troop of Pioneers here in Brownsville which I belong. We are trying to get all the workers' children who are in the Boy Scouts into the Pioneers when they really belong.

SUBSCRIBE SUB BLANK

Are you in the Subscribing Sub Drive? If you want to be, fill out this blank and send it to Daily Worker, Young Comrade Corner, 33 First Street, New York City.

1-6 year sub 25c—1 year sub 50c.

Name .....

Address .....

City .....

State ..... Age .....

Issued Every Month.

A PROTEST STORM!

(By L. Laukkonen)

Workers from all over the world are protesting against the execution of Sacco and Vanzetti.

SACCO AND VANZETTI

By SOPHIE TROTSKY—Brownsville Pioneer.

Two freedom fighters, two men of iron
Are sentenced to their doom.
Shall we let this injustice pass thru
When the nation is still in bloom?
Shall these who fought for workers
And workers, yes, we are,
Lay their lives because the shirkers
Are thirsty for human gore?
Or perhaps we should let those
Who live on our sweat
Silence two of our defenders.
Brave Sacco and Vanzetti. And yet:
Thru iron bars
Thru prison walls
Their messages they still send
"Comrades fight onward for your rights Fight comrades, till the end!"
Can "THEY" silence such strong voices
That reach so far and near
Can that mask of justice and freedom
Confuse us us to fear?
Or shall we tear that mask asunder
And see our brothers there
Come comrades choose, and choose the latter.
On to one great victory!

CAN YOU DRAW?

Besides articles, poems, jokes, riddles, puzzles, etc., all comrades are also invited to send in drawings and cartoons. Drawings about school—about the workers and the bosses, and especially about workers' children, are wanted. All good ones will be printed. If you can draw, let's see it. Send all drawings and cartoons to the Pioneer Editorial Committee.

FROM PIONEER TO PIONEERS

By JOSEPH SHERMER.

Come Pioneers from all the land,
Come on along, and we'll join hands;
We will dance and help the workers all,
Before our hands each boss will fall.

NOTICE!!!

Have you sent for your free copy of the Young Comrade? If not, why not? Grab that pencil and write to the Young Comrade Corner, 33 First Street, New York City for a free sample copy of the Young Comrade.

WHAT DO YOU SAY?

All children who go to school are invited to give their answers to the above question.

LAST WEEK'S PUZZLE

The answer to last week's puzzle No. 12 is: THE WORKERS AND CHILDREN ALL OVER THE WORLD HOPE THAT THE CHINESE PEOPLE WILL GET RID OF THEIR OPPRESSORS AND ESTABLISH A SOVIET CHINA. Those whose answers were right are:

Nicholas Gapanovich, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Vesr Rosinsky, New York City; Mae Malyk, New York City; Celia Silverman, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mae Feurer, New York City; A. Backer, Brooklyn, N. Y.

More Answers to Puzzle No. 11

Henry Cartier, Jr., Connorville, Ohio; Leo Wolin, Chicago, Ill.; Sarah Weiss, Minneapolis, Minn.; Hilda Wolf, Baltimore, Md.; Elsie Rogoff, Detroit, Mich.; Lillian Zager, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Mae Feurer, New York City; Helga Rose, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Florence Arkin, Chicago, Ill.

More Answers to Puzzle No. 10

Gera Gresto, Springfield, Ill.; Liberto Vilarino, Inglewood, Cal.; Lux Vilarino, Inglewood, Cal.; Bob Export, Petaluma, Cal.; Becky Export, Petaluma, Cal.

THIS WEEK'S PUZZLE NO. 13

This week's puzzle spells the name of one of the men who was recently sentenced to die for a crime that he never committed. Can you guess his name?

My first letter is 4 times in MASSACHUSETTS but not once in Italy.
My second is in VANZETTI but not in MUSSOLINI.
My third is in COMRADE but not in FOE.
My fourth is in CAPITALIST but not in DOUGH.
My fifth is in INNOCENT but not in STRESS.
My whole is a name for you to guess.
Send all answers to Daily Worker, Young Comrade Corner, 33 First Street, New York City, giving your name, age, address, and the number of the puzzle.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS

By MARTIN GREEN.

The difference between a fat capitalist and a skinny worker is that a fat capitalist is a rich guy who always says "get to work," and has always hot times and always eats which makes him fat. But the skinny worker is always working and does not get enough money to eat and is skinny.

THE LITTLE GREY DOG

(Continued)

While the dog was running restlessly back and forth to find a safe place, Benjamin sat on the bank of the river, letting his tired, burning feet hang in the water. Suddenly he was dreadfully frightened and drew his feet back hastily. A large pointed head thrust itself thru the water, a gigantic mouth opened, showing two rows of dreadful teeth, and a deep voice growled, "A fine morsel, just right for breakfast."

Benjamin screamed aloud and the dog came running quickly to him. The he was himself a little frightened, he whispered to Benjamin, "That is an alligator. Step back and let me speak to him."

The little boy obeyed and the dog addressed himself with cajoling courtesy to the alligator, saying, "Excuse us for having come to your kingdom, mighty lord of the river, but we are fleeing from evil people and know that you with your power will be good enough to defend us."

The alligator felt flattered, drew his gigantic mouth into a friendly grin, and replied politely, "You are a clever animal. I am truly more mighty than people, and," he agreed pensively, "neither are we as bad as they. But this creature that sat with his feet hanging in the water is also a human being. Then why is he running away from his brothers?" And the shiny, greenish eyes of the alligator looked distrustfully at the dog.

"You surely know, wise and mighty animal, that the rich people are merciless to the poor, as the they were the wildest beasts. That is because there is no more greedy animal than this man. He is never satisfied; he always wants more: food and drink and houses, bat above all, gold. That makes him so mean. My little friend is a poor child who must work for a rich man. He was torn away from his parents, and beaten until the blood flowed. I advised him to run away. And now we beg that you help us, for any moment the servants of the rich man may appear and capture my little friend."

(To Be Continued)

Three Revolutions In One

By SID BUSH

The spirit of solidarity expressed by the National Conference of the Independent Labor Party of England with the Chinese Revolution is a great forward step in the most important direction at the present time. It now devolves upon the workers of England to make this "spirit" of solidarity an actual empirical fact.

The I. L. P.'s resolution urges the British workers to refuse to fight in a war against China when the government declares one. That the workers refuse to produce munitions to be used in that war. That the workers refuse to load and transport munitions and troops to China.

Stop War on China.

The workers of the entire world are dutybound, to their Chinese comrades as well as to themselves, to pass similar resolutions and carry out the meaning of same to the last letter and dot.

The struggling Chinese masses deserve this solidarity because they have undertaken and are bravely carrying out the mission imposed upon them by the present historical epoch. A mission so tremendous in proportion and consequences that in ordinary slow development requires three revolutions to achieve the same results. For, unlike a highly developed capitalist country like the United States where the producing classes are exploited and oppressed by a native capitalist class, in China the toilers suffer cruel and vicious exploitation and merciless oppression under a triangular system of tyranny. And this struggle in China now means to overthrow with one powerful blow, one great revolution, three forms of historical regimes of tyranny, slavery, exploitation and bring about freedom for the producing classes.

Feudal Generals.

First, China has not yet shaken off entirely the feudal system of exploitation and oppression. Up to the time when the present liberation movement commenced its victorious march the country was divided amongst the most vicious coterie of bloody and merciless bandits that stalk on two legs.

There was the so-called "Central Government" in Pekin. Chang Tso-lin ruled in Manchuria. Yunan province had an autocratic potentate, Szechuan was blessed by the domination of three rival militarists, Wu Pei-fu controlled Honan Province and the greater part of the Upper Yangtze Valley, while Sun Chuan-fang controlled the lower Yangtze, and Chang Chung-chang ruled over Shantung. Feng Yu-hsiang controlled northwestern provinces around Mongolia, while in the south the Canton republican government flourished. Excepting the last two forces, that is, Feng Yu-hsiang and the Canton Republic, who are now the leaders of the liberation movement, China's masses bled, starved and writhed in agony under the iron heel of the Tuchunes, Tupans enumerated above.

Hired Soldiers Everywhere.

To maintain themselves as chieftains over their respective territories these rulers were compelled to surround themselves with bands of mercenaries. The rivalries between them led to costly wars, and consequently to destruction of lives and property, the interruption of enterprise in every field of endeavor where battles were raging. Not only that, but every defeated group of mercenaries in their march of retreat pillaged, looted, destroyed and killed along their route. Thus not only were the producing masses physically bled, their meager possessions looted and at times altogether destroyed but the needy expenses of these rival wars, the maintenance of the mercenaries and the various rulers' regimes, were borne by the masses of China so much so that many militarists collected taxes as far as 30 years in advance. Is it a wonder that thousands of poor Chinese rather than be victimized in this manner and starve to death turned to banditry themselves in their desperation?

Destroying Exploiters.

The present liberation movement is striking down these tyrants one by one and is bringing light and relief to the oppressed. It is striving to unite all of China into one whole nation and under one centralized and responsible government. This act is, in the first place, a revolution against the remnants of feudalism.

Second, China's division between hostile militarists was taken advantage of and perpetuated by the capitalist imperialists. While the former oppressed and tyrannized the Chinese masses the latter thru corruption, bribery and force took possession of the most important, most strategic and most valuable parts of the country.

The capitalists began their "civilizing" work last century in China by forcing the population to dope itself with opium. The Chinese people refused to be poisoned and even went so far, in order to save themselves from the degrading and ruinous effects of it, as to seize one of John Bull's steamers loaded with opium and dumped that abominable cargo into the water. Whereupon England's capitalist government declared war on China and at the point of the bayonet forced the Chinese to become drug fiends so that the English capitalists may grow fat on the profits derived from this shameful trade.

Not only that, to punish the Chinese for their impudence in refusing to be poisoned, the English took possession of the most important ports and cities along the Yangtze. And still the Chinese kept on fighting against the opium when in 1859 England was joined by France, fought China and in its civilizing campaign burned the summer palace and destroyed the most valuable art treasures therein and forced the Chinese government to legalize the opium trade.

Conquered Best Seaports.

Not only did the opium wars force this drug upon the country but they definitely established the imperialists as super-rulers over China. Nineteen capitalist countries entered China like hungry wolves to devour it and they willingly succeeded. They took possession of 49 ports, the most valuable territories for commerce, industry, railways and mines, established their own rules and laws, forced loans upon China, levied indemnities upon the nation for not submitting willingly to the robbery of the Imperialists, took possession of the customs to enrich themselves at the expense of the Chinese government, at the same time to keep the latter in penury and force it to be dependent upon the good will of the imperialist robbers.

In taking possession of the most important industrial centers China's workers were not only filled with opium, not only were they treated like worthless animals socially, not only were they deprived of their rights politically, but they were mercilessly exploited in the industries.

Men, women and children were worked 16 hours a day and more for $1.50 per month. And when the workers asked for better conditions, human treatment and higher wages, and struck for it, they were shot down for it. In May 1925 not only were clubs, rifles and machine guns used against the textile strikers of Shanghai, but armored tank cars were let loose that crushed the bones of the strikers, crimsoned the streets with their blood and scattered the entrails of the victims in every direction as the heavy machine plowed its way thru the screaming mass of workers.

Against Foreign Tyranny.

Thus the present liberation movement, in seeking to drive out these imperialists, has declared a colonial peoples' revolution to end foreign tyranny in its territory.

Third, the Chinese toiling masses will not and must not stop at overthrowing feudalistic autocracy and capitalist imperialist plutocracy but will at the same time fight the third revolution and that is the overthrow of Chinese native capitalism and establish a Workers' and Peasants' Government. It is clearly to be seen that that is the direction the Chinese liberation movement is heading for.

When the present struggle first commenced the Kuomintang Party represented all discontented elements. First, the Chinese capitalists, who smarted under the domination of foreign imperialism. The former were discontented because the latter were the chief exploiters of the Chinese masses. Not only that but the native capitalists suffered also by the condition of the militaristic regimes which expressed itself in heavy taxation, interruption of trade, and quite often in the destruction of commodities and other property due to rival wars.

Middle Classes Join.

Second, the petty bourgeoisie who suffered from foreign imperialism as well as from the native richer class, and on top of that from the militarists. Third, the professional class, that sees China's agony and misery and having received its education mostly in Western Europe and America desired to achieve national unification and national independence under a republican form of government modelled after the lines of the U. S. or some other democratic bourgeois form of government.

Such a government would give the predominant class its rightful place in public life and full sway to their abilities which is under existing conditions impossible. Fourth, landlords who suffered thru rival wars, high taxes and imperialist exploitation. Fifth, the poor peasantry. And sixth, the industrial and city workers. The latter two were the greatest sufferers of all because these carry on their backs all those enumerated above and furnish the Pegasus with all their requirements to maintain their regimes and their wars. Hence these six main elements in Chinese life joined the Kuomintang Party.

Working Class Blunt.

Hint with the progress of the struggle the workers and peasants who supply the sinews of the revolution demanded some concessions, an amelioration of their miserable condition. The capitalistic elements within the Party refused to heed them and fought against the workers' and peasants' demands. Then the peasants began to revolt against the Party. Were the Party to accede to the suggestions of the upper classes within the organization then the revolution would lose its backbone, for without the peasants, who comprise between 85 and 90% of the population, the liberation movement would go down to defeat.

Thus the landlords within the party had to be dropped and the peasants retained. Now the farmers are organized in unions and thru their organized power reduced the exorbitant taxes upon their holdings. And whereas before, when farmers protested against high taxation they were executed, now it is the contrary, it is the gentry that is being arrested by the farmers and the Kuomintang helps them along.

Wherever the Nationalists capture a city an army of organizers are let loose to organize the workers in all trades and industries immediately upon the heels of organization a strike wave sweeps the city and thru their organized power the workers reduce their working hours and raise their wages. When

(Continued on Page Four)

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION!

THE DAILY WORKER FIGHTS: FOR THE ORGANIZATION OF THE UNORGANIZED; FOR FIVE DAYS WORK—NOT FOR A LABOR PARTY

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y. under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 99. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $6.00 per year. NEW YORK, MONDAY, MAY 9, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

MARINES CRUSH OUT NICARAGUAN INDEPENDENCE

ITALIAN MEETING CLOSES PASSAIC LABOR CAMPAIGN

"Vote for Labor Only!" Is Final Plea

(Special To The DAILY WORKER.)

PASSAIC, N. J., May 8.—The labor campaign for Tuesday's election closed today with a big Italian meeting at Hodcarriers Hall, Oak St.

Saturday night a series of successful open air meetings were held in the working class sections of the city.

As at all previous meetings thousands of workers greeted the labor speakers with tremendous applause. Whenever a telling blow was delivered against the capitalist nominees it was enthusiastically received by the workers.

The speakers included Albert Weisbord, Emil Gardos and other local speakers. Oscar Fisher of the Young Workers' League, New York, also addressed the meeting.

How To Vote.

In a statement issued today by the labor campaign committee they remind the workers of Passaic, when casting their ballots on Tuesday, to vote only for the first three names—Bambach, Smelkinson and Weisbord.

"Place a cross next to the three labor candidates in the box headed 'first choice.' Ignore the rest of the ballot," the statement continues. "Do not vote for any second or third choices, or for any other candidates whatsoever. None of the other nominees represent labor.

"If you are a voter cast your ballot early and then see to it that all other citizens go to the voting places. Do not leave it until the last minute as something might prevent you from voting later in the day.

"Let Passaic roll up a large and significant vote for the workers' representatives."

Distribute 1,800 Daily Workers.

Five thousand copies of the Passaic election edition of The DAILY WORKER were distributed Saturday. They were eagerly grabbed by the workers who were glad to obtain them. Two of the distributors had their papers torn up by a drunken policeman who arrested them. Later they were released.

Several meetings will be held Monday as the campaign closes. Arrangements are being made to have several well known New York speakers present.

Navy Boosts Film And Vice Versa to Help Imperialism

The close connection between the United States navy and large business interests in the production of the latest Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer feature motion picture, "Convoy," According to the advertising it is reproduced with the co-operation of the U. S. navy and officially approved by Secretary Wilbur."

A complete tie-up exists between the Metro-Goldwyn-Meyer exploitation of the picture and the United States navy recruiting campaign. In front of the Strand Theater, Broadway and 47th where the picture opened Saturday, a United States sailor is distributing thousands of leaflets advertising the picture. One side is devoted to the usual motion picture advertising spread, including the fact that the picture was made with the help of the navy.

The other side is an appeal for recruits for the navy with the address of the recruiting station at 34 East 23rd St., at the bottom. It says that the sailor will "see many places . . . not only does the scene change frequently but the nature of the work generally changes with the scene." The writer must have had the Nanking shelling in mind.

Can You Beat This?

MILWAUKEE, Wisc., May 8.—A local worker was killed in an industrial accident. At his funeral, attended by a few friends and the deceased man's wife with four small children, the clown of the cloth told them all: "God probably needed this man more than his family did."

Prosperity Increasing In Soviet Union Due to Growth in Production

MOSCOW, April 8.—Trade Commissar A. I. Rikoyan, speaking today before the All Union Bourse Conference stated that because certain branches of production are leaping ahead of all calculation, the Soviet Union is able to meet its obligations abroad and obtain new credits.

"Russia will export 100,000,000 gold rubles worth of oil this year, and 275,000,000 gold rubles worth of grain," he predicted. "The active trade balance is 58,000,000 gold rubles for the first half of the year and for the whole year a favorable balance of 15,000,000 is assured."

'THOSE BASTARDS' THAYER SAID OF SACCO, VANZETTI

Robert Benchley Tells of Judge's Prejudice

The most sensational of the affidavits submitted to Governor Fuller in proof that Judge Thayer was utterly biased against Sacco and Vanzetti during their trial, was signed by Robert Benchley, dramatic editor of "Life."

Benchley swears to conversations with a close friend of Thayer, who associated with him throughout the trial.

Benchley's affidavit reads:

"My name is Robert Benchley. I reside in the city of New York. I am dramatic editor of 'Life.' I was brought up in the city of Worcester, Massachusetts, and am acquainted with many people there, among others with Mr. Loring Coes, with whom I have been on friendly terms for many years.

"In the year 1921, during the trial of Sacco and Vanzetti before Judge Webster Thayer, in the superior court at Dedham, Mrs. Benchley and I were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Loring Coes in Worcester. During this visit, on a day which I think must have been a Saturday or Sunday, I was sitting in an automobile with Mrs. Benchley and Mrs. Coes outside the Worcester Golf Club waiting for Mr. Coes to come out. When Mr. Coes came out and got into the automobile he told us what Judge Thayer, who was in the club, had just said in his presence and in the presence of several others about Sacco and Vanzetti.

"Those Bastards."

"The account by Mr. Coes of these remarks by Judge Thayer made a vivid impression upon my mind, and I remember them with considerable distinctness. Mr. Coes told us that Judge Thayer, whom he referred to as 'Web,' had just been telling what he, Judge Thayer, intended to do to Sacco and Vanzetti, whom Judge Thayer referred to as 'those bastards down there.' Mr. Coes said that Judge Thayer had referred to Sacco and Vanzetti as Bolsheviki who were 'trying to intimidate him,' and had said that he would get them good and proper' Mr. Coes said that Judge Thayer had told him and the other men that a bunch of parlor radicals were trying to get three guys off and to bring pressure to bear on the bench,' and that he 'would show them and would get those guys hanged,' and that he, Judge Thayer, 'would also like to hang a few dozen of the radicals.' Mr. Coes said that Judge Thayer added that 'no Bolsheviki could intimidate Thayer,' and that he added in substance that Worcester would be proud of having such a defender as Judge Thayer.

Make No Statement.

"I am informed and believe and allege that Mr. Coes has within a few days been requested by Mr. Thompson, counsel for Sacco and Vanzetti, to make an affidavit as to the remarks of Judge Thayer which I have mentioned and has refused to do so on the ground that it is difficult for him to remember what happened so long ago, and that he is disinclined to make the effort because Judge Thayer is an old friend of himself and his family. I am also informed and believe and therefore allege that in October, 1926, Mr. Coes was thrown from his horse and sustained an injury from which he has not yet entirely recovered."

USSR ASKS PEACE, TRADE; BUT WON'T CHECK SOCIALISM

Pleads for High Wages; World Disarmament

GENEVA, May 8.—Indicating that the Soviet Union is willing to work and trade with the capitalist powers, but is absolutely unwilling to compromise its socialist program and bargain away the fruits of the revolution, Valerian Osinskl, chairman of the delegation of the Soviet Union to the World Economic Conference offered eleven suggestions for the stabilization of world economy at yesterday's session.

"The Soviet Union," he said, "is willing to grant the capitalist powers concession in return for credits."

Plead for Higher Wages.

The delegation of the Soviet Union, realizing that the contradictions of capitalism makes the capitalist powers unwilling and unable to accept most of the Soviet Union's suggestions made a plea for the re-establishment of the eight-hour day, complete liberty for trade union organizations, cancellation of the war debts, abolition of the disarmament, and the cessation of all forms of political and economic boycott against the Soviet Union.

Osinskl was the first delegate at the conference who made any appeal for the freedom for labor to organize and strike, or for higher wages and better working conditions.

Attacks Trusts.

Attacking the organization of European industries into huge international trusts, Osinskl said that competition between American and European industries combines will lead to severe slashes in the wages of workers. These six results, he said, would follow from the combination of European capitalist states, a plea for which was made by Louis Loucheur several years ago:

"1.—The stoppage of industrialization in agricultural countries which, under the pressure of stronger states, would be forced to lower their customs.

"2.—The maintenance of high tariffs by powerful nations, protection not being an arm that one denounces for abstract interests, above all when in the interest of a group of great enterprises.

"3.—The destruction of little states unable to play a role in the industrial cartels.

"4.—An increase of the struggle between American and European cartels.

"5.—Higher prices in Europe.

Trusts Would Lower Wages.

"6.—Greater pressure by the European manufacturers united in the cartel upon the working classes."

The suggestions offered by the Soviet delegation are as follows:

1.—The annulment of all war debts and all relative war payments, as a unique means of liquidating the contradictions inherited directly from the war.

2.—The increase of the salaries of industrial workers.

Want 8-Hour Day.

3.—The re-establishment of the eight-hour day and the introduction of a six-hour day in mines and other occupations harmful to health.

4.—The establishment of complete, real liberty for trade union organiza-

(Continued on Page Two)

COMMANDERS OF THE RED ARMY

Left: M. Unschlicht, vice chairman of the Military Council, Union of Socialist Soviet Republics; and, Right: M. Voroshiloff, People's Commissar for War.

NATIONALIST TROOPS DEFEAT CHANG TSO LIN IN BIG DRIVE ON PEKING

U. S. District Attorney Aids Opium Smuggling; Paid for Running Guns to War Lords

HANKOW, May 8.—Hankow Nationalist troops are reported to have scored another victory over Chang Tso-lin's forces about 125 miles northwest of Hankow.

General Feng Yu-hsiang is said to be moving his troops in preparation for a flank attack on Chang.

Threaten Boycott.

LONDON, May 8. — Imperialist threats of a blockade do not perturb the Nationalist government, Michael Borodin told the correspondent of the "Daily Express" yesterday.

The Hankow government is willing to negotiate with the foreign powers, but threatens to declare a boycott should the foreign powers be maneuvered into a war on Nationalist China by the British die-hards.

Die-hard Policy.

It is believed here that the more moderate Chinese policies adopted by the other foreign powers, will force the die-hard Baldwin government to abandon its plans for a stiff ultimatum to China.

Japan, virtually bankrupt and fearful of a boycott has followed the lead of American finance capital into a policy of watchful waiting, leaving Great Britain isolated. If Great Britain follows the lead of the United States and Japan, it will not be because she has abandoned her plans for the partition of China. Alone, and facing the opposition of labor at home, the die-hard government finds war on China impossible.

Fear Nationalist Strength.

The rapidly growing strength of the Hankow Nationalists is also a potent factor in the change in imperialist policy.

Americans Smuggle Opium.

SHANGHAI, May 8.—The enormous and lucrative business which prominent Americans have been carrying on in opium-smuggling has been revealed in the trial of Leonard Goodwin, Hussar, American District Attorney for China.

Hussar was found guilty yesterday of "unlawfully and feloniously" destroying a book recording the trial of A. M. T. Woodward, wealthy American, at Bushire Persia for opium smuggling. Woodward paid Hussar $25,000 for destroying the evidence against him.

Aided Gun-Running.

The lucrative business that Hussar did protecting wealthy American smugglers was indicated by evidence at the trial showing that he was the possessor of large bank accounts, although his salary was only $1,000 a year. Hussar himself testified that Chang Tsung Chang, Shantungese war lord, had given him about $25,000 in commissions for introducing an Italian gun-runner who made a big sale.

Hussar was convicted yesterday and will be sentenced tomorrow.

Prepare Peking Attack.

HANKOW, May 8.—The position of the Hankow Nationalist government is stronger than most foreigners suspect.

With 100,000 troops, commanded by General Tang Shen-tse, thrown against Chang Tso-lin in southern Honan, with four well-trained and well-equipped armies marching against Canton and with General Feng holding more than a hundred thousand troops in reserve for an attack on Peking, the Hankow Nationalists occupy an extremely strong military position.

MIGHTY CHEER FOR FREE CHINA AT UNION SQUARE

Thousands Demand U.S. Withdraw Forces

"Hands Off China."

That demand, with a mighty roar that rolled across Union Square and beat upon the walls of high buildings to be re-echoed back, was the voice of New York labor Saturday afternoon.

Ten thousand hands shot up into the air, in accompaniment to the roar as three chairmen, presiding from as three platforms, put the question after the reading of a strongly worded resolution demanding that the United States government get its troops and warships out of China and allow the Chinese revolution to develop in its own way for the liberation of 400,000,000 workers and peasants.

One of Many Meetings.

Scores of brilliant banners and placards swayed, nearly 40 speakers representing every progressive element in the city, a crowd estimated between five and ten thousand, and squads of police joined on the warm spring May day in one of the great chain of demonstrations being held in every great city of the world, from Moscow, through Berlin and Paris to London and across the Atlantic to America.

From the three stands Chinese, Japanese, Porto Rican, Haitian, Negro, Italian and American speakers put the demands of the masses into words that rung through Union Square. An unending procession, of scarcely of men and women climbed the platforms. From Columbia Uni-

(Continued on Page Five)

UNION SQUARE SIDELIGHTS

By SYLVAN A. POLLACK.

Before the Union Square "Hands Off China" meeting opened Saturday afternoon, Capt. William E. Ward suggested to J. Cohen, a member of the arrangements committee the best locations for the three platforms.

* * *

Three little boys were present with the New Leader. But none were sold. They held a little confab near the bandstand and tried to decide why business was so slow.

* * *

On the other hand The DAILY WORKER also on sale were bought eagerly by hundreds of workers who were listening to the speeches. White, Negro and Chinese workers could be seen all eagerly holding their copies of the Daily.

* * *

Two Irish workers on their way to lunch were attracted by the crowd. Coming closer they read the placards with a great deal of enthusiasm. Especially those that attacked British imperialism. Turning to his friend, the other said: "Those English b—— they want to grab the whole world."

* * *

When the meeting closed at 3.30 than 2,000 persons assembled near the 25 patrolmen assembled near the Freiheit, 30 Union Square, fearing that the departing workers might cheer the Jewish Communist daily. But they were fooled, everyone leaving quietly.

* * *

When Juliet Stewart Poyntz was speaking Inspector McCormick, who was in charge of the police, asked Capt. Ward if that was "Elizabeth Flynn speaking."

COOLIDGE'S ENVOY TELLS LIBERALS U. S. WILL RULE; ALL MUST DISARM

Constitutional Forces, Finally Yield Before Menace of Whole U. S. Navy

WASHINGTON, May 8.—The United States has decided to suppress the independence of Nicaragua by more active intervention of American marines and the assumption of police and other government functions.

The assent of General Moncada, the chief commander of the Liberal (Constitutional) President's army, was only secured after Colonel Stimson, President Coolidge's direct personal representative in Nicaragua, had made a frank and brutal threat that the whole force of the United States would be used to crush President Sacasa, and maintain the conservative, President Diaz, in power.

President Sacasa has never consented to the surrender.

Borah Fooled.

Senator Borah, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations and sometimes an advocate of less imperialism and less bullying by the United States of the small Latin-American countries, announces that the final suppression of Nicaragua by the marines is all right, if a "real election" is held. In commenting on the Stimson action, he said:

"This entire settlement turns upon the question of the election. If there is assured to the people of Nicaragua a fair and free election, I would regard this settlement as probably the best that could be had under the circumstances."

Nicaraguan Bitter.

When he heard of Stimson's action, Dr. Vaca, representative of the constitutional government of Nicaragua, not recognized by Washington, but recognized by Mexico and various other countries, pointed out the absurdity of any fair or real election in a country policed by foreign troops, who have already actually taken the field to suppress one of the parties in the election. He said:

"The armed conflict in Nicaragua is about to be ended. By dictate of the president of the United States the liberal forces have been ordered to disarm, and at this moment the marines are moving toward the headquarters of the liberal armies.

"The end of the Nicaraguan episode leaves in the hands the Central American nations a life or death problem they can no longer pretend to ignore. The buffer state of Nicaragua is like a rope hanging at the

(Continued on Page Two)

TORIES ASK LAW TO STOP STRIKES "INJURING" BOSS

Amend Bill in Commons Making Effect the Test

LONDON, May 8. — The British government has greatly strengthened its proposed legislation against general strikes by introducing in the House of Commons an amendment to the clause defining an illegal strike. The words now are: "A strike designed or calculated to coerce the government either directly or by inflicting hardship upon the community."

"Injuring" the Test.

The original wording made intimidation the governing factor in deciding whether the strike was illegal. The keynote of the measure now is that if a strike inflicts hardship on the community, it is illegal.

A second amendment makes lockout illegal on the same grounds and prohibits the application of money to the support of such a lockout.

The government apparently has a majority, however, and only non-parliamentary power, such as the very general strike the bill is directed against, will prevent its passage. That, or the danger that Communists will be so strengthened by the government's own actions that the Communist argument that there is a capitalist dictatorship in Britain, may finally convince the Tories, even, that the passage of the bill is a bit of bad tactics.

Insurance Department Rushes to Aid "Big Four"

PREVIOUS EVENTS OF INSURANCE EXPOSE

As a result of the series of articles by Mr. Harrison which are now appearing in The DAILY WOR KER, Governor Smith ordered Superintendent of Insurance James A. Beha to make enquiries into the "Big Four" activities.

The "Big Four" are the Metropolitan, the Prudential, the John Hancock and the Colonial Life Insurance Companies.

Mr. Beha called for specific charges which were promptly submitted to him.

Among many other accusations are those of fraud, overcharging, misuse of mutual funds and corruption of the legislature.

Names prominent in government and financial circles pepper the series. Among those present are Charles M. Schwab, Haley Fiske, Albert H. Wiggin, Senator William J. Tully, who resigned following the investigation order, and many others.

* * *

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON.

The allied forces of the "Big Four" are going into action. The Department of Insurance comes forward with an ample pail of whitewash. The Civic Federation backs an attempt to suppress The DAILY WORKER. The army of reaction and corruption marches out to war. The battle is on.

We have said that the Department of Insurance which supposedly exists for the purpose of protecting the "public" against the marauding financial tactics of the insurance octopus, takes the attitude that any efforts to show that the "Big Four" are predatory and counter to the common good, are met with hostility and suspicion.

Under orders from Governor Smith, Superintendent of Insurance James A. Beha wrote to The DAILY WORKER as follows:

"Governor Smith has referred to me your telegram to him of April 21st. . . I have requested my Department to obtain copies of "The Daily Worker," containing the charges to which you refer. If you have any definite

(Continued on Page Two)

Facts in the Insurance Expose

Of all weekly payment policies which terminate every year only 1% are matured endowments and over 75% are total loss lapses. On this item alone the "Big Four" made over $50,000,000 in 1925.

While the "Big Four" are so-called "mutual" companies their directorates are saddled with Wall Street financiers who are also interested in the companies in whose securities the "Big Four" funds are invested.

Four officials of the Metropolitan Life "earn" nearly a half a million dollars a year in salary while the 26,000,000 policyholders are overcharged 300% for their insurance premiums.

New York's Water Front

News and Views of the Biggest World Port

"HERE YOU DOGS, FIGHT FOR THESE," SAYS UNITED FRUIT BOSS, DISTRIBUTING JOBS

A few days ago an incident took place in front of Pier 18 of the United Fruit Company, which was in keeping with the usual brutal handling of workers on these docks.

The men get the jobs on the dock thru a system of checks. These checks are handed out to a milling mob of workers every morning. It is quite a feat to get them as there are always fewer checks than men.

"Scramble, Dogs."

This particular morning the foreman distributed checks as usual and then after he had gone in he came out again with a few more checks which he flung into the gutter. "Here you dogs, fight for these," he said. Then he stood by and watched the workers scramble in the filth for the chance of making three dollars or so for a day's tiring labor carrying bananas.

This is not a" all unusual on these docks. The men are treated much worse than the average worker all around.

They have to wait all morning or afternoon for a few hours' work. Then they get fifteen minutes less pay anyhow.

Never Hire Enough.

There is always a huge crowd outside of the docks and the company is enabled to pick the men and divide them against themselves.

Thus they never take on as many men as are really needed on a job but pick out a minimum. These men they work at top speed. The men realize that any disobedience means getting fired immediately and so they do anything that they are told to do—even very often double the amount of work.

There are always plenty of men waiting outside to replace those of their fellows who are too weak to stand the strain or who are not quite obedient enough to the foremen and their lieutenants, the breaker-outs.

The men very often work nine and ten hours a day, without eating. They get fired if they are caught eating at the stand or anywhere else. The work is a constant grind from the conveyor which delivers the bananas out of the hold, to the freight cars, or else they must be carried to the trucks and stacked up there. There is no time to stop or even rest for a moment without having the foreman at you. Rain or shine, the work keeps up and the men often get drenched to the skin without stopping.

Why Not Get Wet.

One day, not so long ago, one of the men saw a company official putting his slicker on to keep himself from getting wet.

He also tried to throw a wrap around himself, but the officials said sneeringly, "What difference does it make if you get wet?"

This little speech is indicative of the regard with which the company handles its workers. They are no more to be considered than the ground upon which the officialdom of the company walks. In fact they are far more downtrodden.

Company Is Against Organization.

Organization on the fruit docks is null and void. The United Fruit Company realizes that if the men were to awaken to the elementary need of organizing into a body they would demand higher wages than the miserable fifty-five cents an hour which they are now getting; demand better working conditions than the workhouse in which they are now forced to slave; time off at noon to eat and all the other fundamental rights which these workers who make the millions of profits for the United Fruit Company need.

State Insurance Dep't Rushes to Aid Big Four

(Continued from Page One)

nets which are supported by facts ..which are in violation of the law or good insurance practices, I should be glad to have you submit same to me."

In an open letter to Mr. Beha we submitted 16 charges which were either contrary to the law or "good insurance practice." As yet Mr. Beha has not replied. He is away in Virginia.

Deputy Apologizes.

In his absence, Daniel F. Gordon, second deputy superintendent took it upon himself to reply to one of the charges which read:

"On pages 490-491 of your report to the New York Legislature, the Prudential Life is reported to have paid $221,284.71 to the Association of Life Insurance Presidents. This item was entered under the heading of disbursements. On page 504 of the same official document under the heading of "partial list of salaries, compensation and emoluments, etc.," this same item appears again, but this time it is recorded as $24,998.41." (Daily Worker, May 2).

Mr. Gordon devotes two typewritten pages to explain this obvious piece of account juggling. As the letter is more or less technical we will only quote the last few sentences which read:

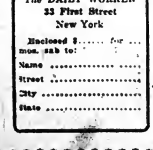
"This error was discovered some months ago, but of course the report had already been printed and sent out. The error was that of a clerk in the department in preparing the copy for the printer."

Passed Right Thru.

Mr. Gordon does not mention the fact that all official documents are submitted to the Legislature, or that they appear over the signature of the Superintendent of Insurance.

How did this error get by the Legislature? How could Mr. Beha have been so lax as to let his associates in the upper and lower houses see an inexcusable "error"? Are all the activities of the Department of Insurance characterized by the same laxness and inefficiency? Does the Department assume that all reports do not matter? Or has Mr. Beha got his eye on a soft job with the "Big Four" when his term of office is over?

It is a well-known fact that previous superintendents have been "taken care of" by insurance companies after the three year term of office. One recalls John S. McCall, Jr., who is now a director of the New York Life Insurance Company.



Get Busy, Beha.

It is a week since we submitted our 16 charges against the "Big Four." It is about time that Mr. Leha came out into the open and replied to our accusations.

Any evasions and flights of financial sophistry will be looked upon as stunts calculated to play the lackey to the insurance trust.

Unless Mr. Beha cannot disprove our charges he should take such action as will result in immediate and drastic change in the present "insurance practices."

Put Some Power In That Kick!

Don't waste your energy in idle protest. When reaction attacks The DAILY WORKER and you want to fight—strike your blows where they will be most effective.

Kick in With a Sub.

Every subscription is a striking answer to the enemies of Labor—every sub is more strength to the blows that are dealt every day by The DAILY WORKER.

Don't only kick. . . . . Kick in!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

Outside of New York	In New York
Per Yr. $8.00	Per Yr. $6.00
Six Mo. 2.50	Six Mo. 4.50
3 Mo. . 2.00	2 Mo. . 2.50

The DAILY WORKER
33 First Street
New York

Enclosed $..... for ... mos. sub to:

Name .....

Street .....

City .....

State .....

Vose Will Illustrate Calverton's Series on Negro Life Struggles

A series of articles on "The New Negro," by V. F. Calverton, illustrated by Vose, one of our popular cartoonists, will appear soon in The DAILY WORKER. These articles will deal with various phases of the life and struggles of the American Negro masses and are intended to stimulate interest in this important problem of the American labor and revolutionary movement.

Watch for them!

REVOLUTIONAY WORDS AND PREDATORY DEEDS OF REFORMISTS

By T. I. P. C.

It is a characteristic feature of Reformism that the more hypocritical its words, the more predatory its deeds. At the last international congress of the Amsterdam International in 1926 a resolution was carried for an embargo on munitions, "in the event of a threatened violation of armaments as a means to prevent war. Among other things in this resolution it was declared "to be the duty of every worker to wage a determined fight against war by stopping the manufacture of arms and ammunition," as well as the transportation of war materials. Emphatically put, so it would appear. Hence the conclusion would seem to follow that now, when British imperialism is trying to stifle the national movement in China, the Amsterdam International should at least call upon its affiliated bodies to carry out the resolution adopted in 1924. Nevertheless the English reformists contented themselves with a protest which scared nobody, whilst Thomas and MacDonald even applauded the sending of British interventionist troops to China, demanding that these be increased.

Acts and Deeds.

The International Federation of Transport Workers (I. T. F.) in its attitude towards the great liberation struggle of the Chinese people, has fully revealed the contradictory and lying nature of the reformist position. At the January plenary meeting the ITF Executive adopted a resolution on this question, in which "an appeal is made to all affiliated bodies to watch attentively the course of the events, and to do everything possible to prevent the outbreak of a war which will strengthen international capitalism, and weaken the world's proletariat."

The reformist Federation is afraid to declare straight and definite, as it was done by the Transport Workers International Propaganda Committee (T. I. P. C.): "Not a single soldier to China, not a single cartridge, not a single gun, not a single airplane!" It is afraid, because the leaders of the various affiliated national organizations are once again, as during the strike of the English coal miners, ready and willing to swop the international solidarity of the workers for the mess of pottage of "peaceful" connection with the transportation of munitions to China.

Everybody knows that in the world's freight market there is to be observed a cautious offering of tonnage owing to anticipated large demands from Great Britain for the purpose of carrying military supplies to China.

This is also taken into account by the reformists, who are apparently ready to lend a helping hand in this, in spite of all their resolutions, both to the imperialist government of Britain and to the counter-revolutionary generals in China.

Pass Information Along.

The German Verkehrsbund has already shown its hand. So far we know only about this one. We take this occasion to urge once again the need for all transport workers to inform their union of all cases of loading and transportation of armaments to the Chinese militarists, and for all revolutionary unions and oppositional minorities to pass on promptly such information to the TIPC.

On January 27-28 there were loaded on board the S.S. "Richmers" at Hamburg 1,200 cases of rifles and cartridges for Shanghai. On January 10th another steamer of the same company, the S. S. "Ea," loaded in Germany, was held up at Tsin-Tan, as it carried 2,978 cases of airplane supplies, arms and munitions for the commander at Shanghai. Bear in mind that Shanghai was then in the hands of the counter-revolutionary Chinese armies.

For Practical Steps.

How was such predatory action looked upon by the German reformists, and first of all, by the Verkehrsbund leaders? Did they take practical steps to prevent the transportation of arms for the Chinese counter-revolutionists and the British imperialists? Oh, no, even to the contrary. The Hamburg branch of the Seamen's Section of Verkehrsbund, at a meeting on February 10th, carried a resolution containing a pledge to carry no armaments to China. And the same meeting the question was raised by one of the delegates, why the official organ of the Seamen's Section —"Schiffahrt"—did not print any resolutions of the Hamburg seamen containing such pledges.

In printing a brief report about the meeting, "Schiffahrt" goes to extensive editorial explanations why it did not think it necessary to publish such resolutions. We are editorially told that the Hamburg seamen were acting unwisely in adopting resolutions not to carry soldiers and military supplies to China. According to the wise editors of this paper, no British or French soldiers, etc., would be embarked at Hamburg, then why bother about resolutions? As to the transportation of war supplies, it is claimed by "Schiffahrt" that there had only been one case of this kind reported from Hamburg, and that it had been found that the shipment was intended for the Cantonese army. And so the paper arrives at the conclusion that there was no need to publish the resolutions of Hamburg seamen pledging not to transport armaments to China.

For the Militarists.

Yet, as we have seen, such is not at all the case. The military supplies are intended not for the Cantonese army, but for the Chinese counter-revolutionists to crush the Workers' and not only towards the world of the workers, but by its deliberate suppression of the resolutions of the Hamburg seamen, it contributes to the transportation of armaments for the British imperialists and the Chinese militarists.

Do you have any illustrations for the above? The high-flown phrases of the reformists about the stopping of the transportation of armaments, the prevention of war, etc., turn out to be when put to the test to action.

In its appeal the Transport Workers' International Propaganda Committee (TIPC) directs the attention of all transport workers to the knot of world events that is being tied up in the Far East. The world may again be confronted with universal slaughter. It is the duty of every worker, and particularly of every transport worker, for the prevention of this calamity, to demand from his union the adoption of effective measures to stop the supporting of the imperialists and the counter-revolutionists. The transport workers should cut off their war supplies.

U. S. S. R. Offers Trade To Rest of World

(Continued from Page One)

tions among the working classes and the absolute right to strike.

5.—The introduction of real assistance for the unemployed, above all, by means which one calls a process of rationalisation-increasing taxes on the rich and reducing all forms of unproductive consumption such as militarist functionaries.

6.—A decisive warfare against increased prices for industrial merchandise.

War On USSR

7.—The abolishment of all barriers for the passage of surplus populations from one state to another.

8.—The abolishment of systems of protectorates or mandates, the withdrawal of all troops from Colonies and the recognition of the rights of all peoples to political and economic liberty.

9.—The cessation of all military intervention in China.

10.—The cessation of all forms of political or economic boycott against Soviet Russia and the establishment of relations based on the recognition of the mutually peaceful coexistence of two different systems; the Soviet to receive credits to increase her purchasing power in exchange for concessions; the establishment of technical collaboration; the renouncement of all attempts against the indissoluble institutions of the socialist system, particularly against the monopoly of foreign commerce.

11.—A complete and effective world disarmament, with the complete disorganization of all armed forces on land and sea, the workers' organizations and peasants to control the liquidation of all equipments and installations.

Philadelphia Living Newspaper.

How can a newspaper be alive? This is what Philadelphia workers are asking when they see the advertisement of the "Living Newspaper" and concert to be given on Sunday May 15, by District No. 3 of the Workers Party. Russian comrades who have produced such newspapers themselves, are not so curious, but they assure us the paper will make a big hit. All the latest news of the town, including the inner secrets of labor unions, the distressing fate of the Saccho-Vanzetti Conference, sensational revelations as to factory conditions in "Hilly" produced by first-hand witnesses, these things will be revealed by the "newspaper" which lives. It is rumored also that such celebrities as Albert Weisbord, fresh from a campaign for Commissioner in his old battle-ground of Passaic and Pat Lau of the local Kuomintang organization will be both seen and heard in person.

The mystery will be fully and enjoyably solved on the evening of Sunday May 15th at 221 York Ave., beginning at 8 o'clock.

Marines Crush Liberals By Coolidge's Order

(Continued from Page One)

door of the Caribbean nations.

"Once more the reign of Diaz is imposed upon the 'free and sovereign sister nation' of Nicaragua; what he represents we all know too well. The next act belongs to the big loans, the banks, the railroads and the other concessions; elections are promised for 1928; they are one year and a half too late; there were elections in 1912 under military occupation; Diaz was unanimously elected.

"His succession at the elections of 1916 and 1920 was guaranteed; then there was an election in 1924. The Nicaraguan people after sixteen years of practical experience know what to expect from elections at the hands of the overwhelming power that moves behind the indefinite screen of Don Adolfo's inner face.

Won't Recognize Diaz.

"The glory of teaching the people of Nicaragua who they must elect for president is not less enviable, but let us hope will be less gruesome than has been that of teaching them how to correct their mistake when they elected the unwanted men to office.

COMMISSION FORM EXPOSED IN PASSAIC

Weisbord Unmasks Fake Non-Partisanism

By ALBERT WEISBORD.

The campaign of the Workers Communist Party in the city elections in Passaic has given a severe blow to the Commission form of government.

The Commission form of government is only another mask used by the capitalists to befog the workers and to raise false issues. The theory behind the Commission form of government is that the city is a big corporation, a municipal corporation which must be managed the same way that a business corporation is managed. Those who are to be elected are to be elected only on the basis of personal qualifications and individual merit. No political parties or partisan issues are to be injected. Men are to be picked for office as superintendents are picked by the boss in a factory.

Conceal Class Struggle.

The result is that the electors are intrigued into discussing all sorts of fake issues with which the citizens and workers have really very little concern. The most miserable piffle is trotted out to the voters as "issues." There is hidden the fact that the candidates belong to certain major political parties which have definite platforms and principles hostile to workers and friendly to employers. There is hidden the fact that the interests of the workers of one city are closely bound up with the interests of the rest of the workers throughout the land and nation. There is hidden the fact that the election campaign is only another form of the class struggle.

In the Passaic election the Communist Party has completely exposed this sham and fraud. In a municipal campaign they have raised national issues as well, such as hands of China, against the Watson Parker Bill menace, against the laws against the foreign-born, and for a Labor Party. The Communist Party has exposed how the city government is under the complete control of the employers, how all of the candidates for commissioner, seemingly fighting each other, are in reality agents of the employers of the city, and how instead of a bosses' government there must be a workers' government. By raising these class issues, the Communist Party has made the individual issues, raised by the other candidates to fool the workers, look cheap and ridiculous Bosses Infuriated.

A further severe blow was handed the commission form of government by the decision of the Supreme court of the state of New Jersey that the Communist candidates because they were picketed together and one of them had a name which when placed alphabetically with the others would entitle him to be placed first, had to be placed at the head of the ballot. This decision infuriated the other capitalist candidates, but they had to submit.

What does this decision mean? There is no doubt that this gives an undoubted advantage to the Communist candidates who are placed together at the very head of the ballot. But more than that, since the Communist Party is more anxious to put forward principles than individuals, it will always be able to find a representative of its principles whose name will be on the top of the alphabetical list. That means that the Communist Party candidates will always be on the top of the ballot and always have this advantage.

This gives a severe blow to the commission form of elections now used. The capitalist theory is to make the election a question of certain individuals. This decision of the Supreme Court of New Jersey gives the advantage, not to capitalist individuals, but to workingclass parties.

Will the capitalists stand for this? There is no doubt but what, should the Communists participate in further municipal elections so as to be a real menace to the bosses' candidates, that the law will have to be changed and again the Commission form of government, with its fake and hypocrisy, shown up.

Sen. Walsh Demands Letters.

BOSTON, May 8.—In a letter to Miss Mary Donovan, recording secretary of the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, recently, Senator David Walsh informed the committee that he had applied to the department of justice at Washington for full information concerning certain letters received by that department in connection with the case.

The letters were written, the committee has maintained, by people in all parts of the country protesting against the execution of Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti during the week of July 10, for the alleged killing of a South Braintree paymaster and his guard.

Miss Donovan recently was dismissed from a position which she held with the Massachusetts state labor department. It is generally believed that her activity in defense of Sacco and Vanzetti was responsible for her discharge.

Needle Trade Defense

Only a few days are now left before the opening of the Bazaar, and the committee in charge, Carpenters, Electricians and Misc. painters now.

The great quality of merchandise that is being gathered makes it vitally important that all the booths be filled by noon on Wednesday, or the goods will not be placed in time for the opening.

* * *

What Kind of a Bazaar.

If your lady or gentlemen friend likes candy, come to the Bazaar Candy Store and get your supply.

There will be three refreshment booths, selling cigars, cigarettes and soft drinks. Coca Cola has been obtained below the wholesale price and will be on sale at the refreshment booths.

* * *

Free Zoolak.

Dr. Dadrean & Sons, Company, will have a Zoolak (fermented milk) booth at the Bazaar. This company has made a free donation of all the Zoolak that will be sold at the Bazaar.

How's that?

* * *

A Jewelry Store.

Branch 548 Workmen's Circle is arranging to have a Jewelry and Novelty Store. Quite a lot of beautiful art work, antiques, chinese silver and gold art goods, beads, pins, bracelets and diamond rings have been collected and donated and this store will furnish many surprises.

* * *

Other Booths.

The Committee of 100 will have a fancy work booth. Newark will have a fresh flower booth. The Progressive Grocery Clerks will have a Grocery Store, and the White Goods Workers will have a linen store.

The International Labor Defense requests that they be given two booths instead of one originally arranged for. The United Council of Workingclass Housewives are also dissatisfied. Two booths already assigned does not seem enough, and an offer of one additional booth seems to them altogether unsatisfactory.

ADDITIONAL MAY DAY GREETINGS

STREET NUCLEUS 8, CHICAGO, ILL.
sends
MAY DAY GREETINGS
to
The DAILY WORKER

MAY DAY GREETINGS
to
The DAILY WORKER
Street Nucleus 28, Section 6
CHICAGO, ILL.

HUNGARIAN WORKERS HOME

350 EAST 81st STREET
Bet. First and Second Avenue
NEW YORK

OFFICE AND MEETING ROOMS.
BILLIARD TABLES ON 1ST FLOOR

Workmen's Mutual Aim Ass'n, Inc.

GREETS THE WORKERS:

If you want to spend your winter months in a pleasant atmosphere, airy rooms to sleep in and fresh and wholesome meals, you will find it at the

CO-OPERATIVE HOUSE
1786 Lexington Ave., cor 111th St.
New York.

If you want to enjoy a splendid vacation in a wonderful summer resort, go to the

UNITY CO-OPERATIVE CAMP

WORKMEN'S MUTUAL AIM ASSOCIATION, Inc.
1786 Lexington Avenue,

Phone: Lehigh 1281.

WOMEN · FARMERS · CO-OPERATIVES

WORKING WOMEN OF THE SOVIET UNION

Muravieva, The Factory Cleaner.

In the most important shop it was cold and dirty. The dreadful year of 1920 stared out from the bare machines. Muravieva's first job was to clean this dirt. Tirelessly she carried the baskets with refuse, and cleaned and cleaned.

Her energetic work was soon noticed by all, and in 1921 she was elected a delegate to the local trade union committee and, later, she became a member of that committee.

There was plenty to do for Muravieva. She organized social evenings for women, where together with other women workers she sewed clothes for children's homes. She was fighting with the managers for improvements of the workers' conditions. In her torn boots she would walk from the Baltic to the Biegun railway station to organize women's delegate meetings. Her wage was 30 roubles a month and in spite of this small wage, in spite of her thinness and hard work in the shop she found plenty of time for her social activities.

"Later I was hurt to see that men work at the machine and that women must sweep the floors." . . .

Became Skilled.

And Muravieva became a skilled metal worker.

"My wages jumped up! I was now earning 130 roubles. But I did not stay very long at this job. In 1924 I was freed from it."

Muravieva became chairman of the local trade union committee. And there too her work went well. She worked in the vocational training school, she instructed the local trade union committees, and in the summer of 1926 she became the chairman of the sanitation committee.

Her work was difficult. One has to know how to approach a sick working man. One must see how the doctors work. One must do. . . . many things. And Muravieva managed also this work, and gained the respect of all.

* * *

A Tobacco Worker.

Marie Petrovna Kovaleva was born in a remote village of the Voronezh Gubernia. It was a poor peasant family. Her father was compelled to earn his living in the town, her mother had to become a cook. When Marie was 7 years old she became a nursemaid. Later she left her mistress and went to Leningrad. There, when she was 12, she left her mistress and went to work in a tobacco factory as a learner and later as a skilled worker.

In Revolution.

Then 1917 arrived. Kovaleva took active part in the revolutionary work.

At the beginning of 1918 Kovaleva decided to go back home. Up to 1919 Kovaleva worked in the poor peasant committee. LATER SHE VOLUNTEERED FOR THE FRONT. In 1920 she was demobilized and went back to work. She worked as a cleaner and later in the managing department. In 1923 she was elected chairman of the trade union committee of house workers.

In 1924 Kovaleva went back to work at her trade in the Government tobacco factory.

To Soviet Presidum.

Here she was an active social worker and in 1926 she was elected MEMBER OF THE CITY SOVIET, AND THERE SHE WAS ELECTED MEMBER OF THE PRESIDUM.

At the same time she was given administrative work. She is engaged as a member of the managing board of the North Caucasian Booth Stock Company and often she substitutes as director. She did not leave her work in her factory; she was at the same time one of the active workers on several commissions and in some of them she was the chairman.

Ishig Chagrir.

"The Light is calling"—in the Turkoman language.

The Turkoman women have no history. Their past has no bright spot. It was lost in the grimaces of their men folk. But now a fight is going on between the new and the old; it's a difficult struggle between the dead and the living, and in this struggle we can hear life calling to the women, who are liberating themselves from the deathlike embrace of their ancient customs.

Ishig Chagrir! The light is calling!

In one of the villages of the Shemakhin uyezd, the following incident took place during the election campaign.

A Meeting.

One of the election meetings was attended by 115 men and 95 women. The meeting proceeded with the drawing up of the candidates' list. Suddenly it became so noisy that the chairman did not know what to do. The women advanced their candidates and the men theirs. Finally the list was put up. The chairman proceeded with the voting. As soon as the voting started the men refused to raise their hands for the women candidates. They felt their strength as there were more men than women at the meeting. They determined by all means to "defeat" the women and they were already about to celebrate their victory.

Then something unusual happened. The women absolutely refused to raise their hands, demanding that the meeting be stopped, they left the hall.

"Wait a minute, do not vote. . . . We are leaving. . . . We will soon return. . . . We will soon vote again. . . . Don't you laugh! We will soon vote again. . . . Don't you laugh!"

They all left the hall and went away.

Only now the men realized that something was wrong. They realized that the women went home to bring more women with them. Measures must be taken. And the men proceeded to do the same.

Within an hour the meeting was reopened, the men did not find any new forces. But the women brought 75 companions with them. Now they were in the mjority and their list won. They elected their own candidates and defeated even those men who were sure of being elected.

Ready to Speak.

One of Dostoevsky's heroes says: "For three years I was silent and three years I was getting ready to speak." And when he started to speak his eloquence could hardly be believed. No one could understand how such a small being could find so much to say.

The same is true of the Turkoman woman. She was silent perhaps for thousands of years, for thousands of years she was getting ready to speak, she suffered her degradation silently, the insults and the inquisition which was practised against her in the East send now their stones.

"Ukuslat Ilzi chagrir! "The Government calls us!"

This phrase, so full of meaning, can now be heard at every women's meeting. It is become the slogan of the dark-hidden women.

"The government calls us!"

And there is another slogan just as important: "Dondada evar!" "We want to know everything in this world!"

The menfolk do not like to see the women side by side with them in performing their social work.

But life is following its course, it has wrought it out and nothing can stop it from following it.—Shilla.

Farmers, Workers of Svenson Support China

WHEREAS, The Chinese people are fighting to liberate themselves from the domination of foreign imperialism, and

WHEREAS, The foreign powers have sent military forces to protect the ill-gotten rights of individuals in that land, and

WHEREAS, The United States Government has followed the example of other imperialists in this action which we believe is contrary to the wishes of the people of the United States,

THEREFORE BE IT RESOLVED, by the workers and farmers of the community assembled in mass meeting this first day of May, 1927, at Svenson, Oregon, that we vigorously protest the action of the Government of the United States and demand that all warships and troops be withdrawn from Chinese waters and China immediately, and

BE IT FURTHER RESOLVED, that a copy of this resolution be sent to the press, "The Chinese Guide," The Anti-Imperialist League, and the Secretary of State of the United States of America. Unanimously adopted.

W. A. Halja, Chairman.
Alec Lindfors, Secretary.

Baltimore To Picket Consul.

BALTIMORE, May 8.—As a protest against Great Britain's Chinese policy, an organization known as "Hands Off China," composed of representatives of various civic organizations, yesterday perfected plans for picketing the British consulate here beginning today.

WATER COVERS LARGEST COTTON PLANTATION

Cotton acreage has been cut considerably by the disastrous floods in the Mississippi river and tributaries. This view depicts water rushing over a section of what is said to be the world's largest cotton plantation, near Scott, Miss.

GIVE MIGHTY CHEER FOR "HANDS OFF CHINA" RESOLUTION AT UNION SQUARE MEETING, N. Y.

(Continued from Page One)

versity, Chinese clubs, anti-imperialist alliances, great and small, the Workers (Communist) Party, labor magazines, The DAILY WORKER, the mines, came the speakers, each met with waves of applause as telling points in the one big demand brought instant response from the workers.

A Human Kaleidoscope.

At one time a Chinese, a Negro and a Japanese occupied the three stands. At another time three women were speaking, in the shifting kaleidoscopic scene, where the throngs swayed from one stand to another, seeking favorite speakers or the language they understood best.

Shortly afterwards, Pat Devine opened the second meeting on the west end of the square to be followed by the third platform at the east end, presided over by Robert W. Dunn.

Scott Nearing said: "The Chinese revolution has been accused of being started by the Bolsheviks. Let me inform you that the Chinese revolutionary movement began six years before the Russian revolution of 1917, and if the Bolsheviks were responsible, they must have led it from their Siberian prisons.

"Before 1925 the Chinese revolution was a business man's revolution since that time it has become a nationalist revolution having as its purpose: China for the Chinese."

Children In Mines.

Powers Hapgood of the United Mine Workers of America told of his visit to China three years ago.

"I observed conditions there," he continued, "visiting the living quarters and the places of work. After such an observation one does not wonder why they are revolting against foreign control.

"As a miner I visited the coal mines and found children five and six years of age working in the mines 12 hours a day, seven days a week. There was no ventilation and it was necessary for them to go around naked. I had previously visited the Soviet Union where the miners work six hours a day, five days a week."

Menace of World War.

H. M. Wicks, editor of The DAILY WORKER said that "the imperialists should take their warships out of China. They have no right there.

"The policy that they are now following is leading towards another world war. It is a real menace to world peace. Instead of the hundreds of thousands killed in the last war it would mean the murder of millions."

Aunt Resolution.

The resolution that was adopted unanimously follows:

Whereas the Chinese people are struggling for liberation from the rule of brigand war lords, and from the oppression of foreign imperialists, and

Whereas the national liberation movement is supported by the overwhelming masses of the Chinese people, who have awakened to a new life and are passionately struggling for a free and united China, and

Whereas, the trade unions of China are playing the leading role in the struggle to raise the standard of living of millions of Chinese, who toil inhumanly long hours at starvation wages in foreign mills and factories, and British Influence.

Whereas, our government under the influence of Great Britain and in contradiction to its declared policy is virtually waging war against the Chinese people, and thereby assist the war lords to murder labor and student leaders, to destroy the trade unions, and to ultimately strangle the Nationalist revolution, and

Whereas, the concentration of over one hundred battleships and tens of thousands of troops by the Great Powers, and the continued dispatching of armed forces to China may at any moment lead to the outbreak of another world war, therefore be it

Resolved, that we thousands of people in mass meeting assembled in Union Square, New York, demand that our government refuse to follow Great Britain in its imperialistic policy of bribery, corruption, and the use of armed force in China, as evidence in the Nanking bombardment, and be it further

"Hands Off China."

Resolved that our government persue a policy of Hands Off China, that it immediately withdraw all troops and battleships from China, and that it cancell the unequal treaties which oppress the Chinese people, and be it further

Resolved that copies of this resolution be sent to President Coolidge, to the Secretary of State, Kellogg, to the Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee, William E. Borah, to the Kuomintang (Chinese Nationalist Party), and to the Press.

Speakers List.

The other speakers included Louis Budenz, editor of the Labor Age; H. Linson, Chinese Students Club; Columbia University; Alexander Trachtenberg, Workers Party; D. Benjamin, Workers School, Richard B. Moore, American Negro Labor Congress; L. Navarez, Anti-Imperialist League of Porto Rico; S. D. Oging, Japanese Workers Alliance; George Siskind, United Textile Workers Local 55; George E. Powers, Bronze and Iron Workers' Union; A. Rosemond, Haitian Patriotic League; N. Napoli, Anti-Fascist Alliance; Rebecca Grecht, and A. Markoff, Workers Party, J. Sherman, Umbrella Workers' Union and Lena Chernenko, Amalgamated Clothing Workers and Juliet Stewart Poyntz.

Arrangements for the Union Square meeting were made by the "Hands Off China" Committee.

Among the members of the General Advisory Committee of this organization are Prof. John Dewey, Bishop Paul Jones, H. B. Brough, vice president of the Electrical Workers' Union; Rev. John Haynes Holmes, Dr. James M. Yard, president of the Chicago Union University; Louis Budenz, editor of Labor Age; Rev. Edmund B. Chaffee of the Labor Temple; Rev. Charles C. Webber, of the Church of All Nations; Lewis S. Gannett, editor of the Nation; William Pickens, of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People; H. Linson, chairman of the Chinese Students Club of Columbia University, and several other Chinese who are at the head of local Chinese organizations.

The Hands Off China Committee, just before time for the great demonstration, released the following appeal:

Issue Stirring Appeal.

"Progressive workers will rally to a man at Union Square and demonstrate that they will not tolerate American military forces and British serving ambassadors and consuls interfering with the struggle of the Chinese masses for national independence and national unity.

"The Hands Off China Committee knows that the workers of New York City have only friendship and solidarity with the great Nationalist movement in China; the Hands Off China Committee knows that it is only the American bankers and trusts and their British-serving government in Washington that is opposing the victorious march of the Chinese people. It is therefore calling this meeting to oppose the guns and bullets of Wall Street with the one power that can prevent the imperialists from starting another bloody war—the organized power of militant and class-conscious workers."

"Stop War On China."

"Demand Withdrawal Of U. S. Troops and Battleships."

Those were the demands dropping from the sky itself, yesterday afternoon when an aeroplane, manned by Ying Hsien Shih, a member of the Kuomintang, soared above New York City and dropped a hundred thousand printed cards announcing a mass demonstration.

Railroad Shop Workers End Layoff.

CLINTON, Ia.—(FP)—May 8.—The Chicago & Northwestern railway has reopened its machine and car shops in Clinton and East Clinton after a layoff of 800 men. The car shops had shut down for several weeks and the machine shops 1 week.

HATTERS CHIEF SPIKES UNITY IN CAP CONVENTION

No Amalgamation But Only "Cooperation"

Amalgamation is evidently not favored by the United Hatters of North America. This was made quite clear Friday in the speech of M. F. Green, president of the United Hatters, before the convention of the Cloth Cap, Hat & Millinery Workers' International Union, being held in Beethoven Hall on East 5th Street.

Green was introduced by the chairman, Max Zaritzky, with effusive compliments and offered the "key to the hearts" of the capmakers and milliners. Great emphasis was laid upon the close cooperation of the two unions, and the closer relation to come.

But while Green hopes for amalgamation of the two unions "in the future," he believes it best at present to have the United Hatters stay in "our Bible House, and you in your Beethoven Hall; and we will keep on cooperating as we have for the past two years."

Bosses of Left Gain.

Another speaker at Friday's session, was Julius Hochman who came representing the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. He began by bragging about the "forty hour week which we have gained," and talked about how far in advance of the rest of world labor this gain is. Unfortunately the Communists are dominated by the right wing clique for having prolonged the strike until the forty hour week was won; but Hochman does not mentioned the Communists had anything to do with it.

Instead, he launched into the customary tirade against all Communists. He presented Julius Hochman, very word seemed to set him off into an automatic denunciation of everything connected with Communism, including The DAILY WORKER from which he quoted an editorial. Some of the delegates remarked at the change in Hochman's style of speech. Formerly he talked always of sunshine and flowers and the springtime —which was scarcely more interesting to the workers than his latest line.

The chief debate at the convention Friday centered around a resolution calling for denunciation of the Citizens Military Training Camps. The resolutions committee reported no objections to the "Whereas" sections; but as delegate I. Feingold pointed out:

"We differ as usual when it comes to taking some action instead of just 'resolving'."

The opposition in connection with this resolution was an opposition to instructing the delegates to the next convention of the American Federation of Labor to introduce a measure opposing the camps.

"In Principle."

"We are unanimously opposed to the C. M. T. C. in principle, but——" said the resolutions committee, and the convention.

It was decided to leave it to the discretion of the delegates whether they should introduce such a resolution at the A. F. of L. convention. If the A. F. of L. was not going to take such a stand, and if the capmakers' delegates would be the only ones opposing the camps and would thus be conspicuous and ridiculous because of their opposition, they were not to be forced to do it.

Speakers pointed out the fact that at the last convention the capmakers' delegates were the only ones to favor recognition of Soviet Russia and they felt ridiculous when all the other delegates stood up in opposition to this motion. And their action in this matter was used against them when they went organizing in out-of-town cities. They must be careful how they took a stand opposed to the A. F. of L.

A. F. L. Probing Camps.

And then when it had been decided to leave the delegates to act at their own discretion, a speaker brought out the fact that the A. F. of L. had already had a committee investigate the C. M. T. C. and it was found that they were not military but physical training camps, and there was no danger that the men trained there would be used against workers during a strike. So once more the capmakers and milliners submit to the will of the A. F. of L.

Condemn Furrier Sentences.

The convention passed unanimously a resolution protesting against the injustice of the sentencing of the nine fur workers at Mineola. It also condemned fascist government, and particularly that fascist government of Italy. (This is all right because the A. F. of L. did it too).

The convention decided that there shall be educational committees appointed in each local. It closed the day by voting varying sums of money to a number of socialist and anarchist papers and organizations.

The proletarian banquet of the progressive delegates to the convention brought together a large number of progressive workers from all the needle trades last night. The dinner was in Stuyvesant Casino and it was a fully celebration, with speeches by many of the prominent leaders and rank and filers.

Shop Paper Distributed To May Co. Workers; Police Are on the Job

CLEVELAND, May 8.—The Workers (Communist) Party issued a shop paper today for its nucleus in the May Co., the largest department store in the city.

The paper pointed out the miserable conditions in the store, low wages, long hours of work, the driving time with no compensation, etc. It called on the workers to organize department committees to make demands of the company. It likewise emphasized the need of watchfulness in view of the danger of war and invited the workers to attend the May Day celebration of the party.

This was too much for the company watchman, who tried to stop two of the comrades who were distributing the shop papers to the employes as they went to work in the morning. The watchmnn called a cop, who took away the bulletins that the comrades had not yet distributed. A big crowd gathered to learn what was going on. In the meantime, the May employes stood round reading the shop paper and discussing its contents.

Harris Relatives Lose Round

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., May 8.—Miss Emily Fuller, stock company actress, of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., and former ticket seller at a Boston theatre won the first move in the contest of the will of Charles B. Harris, deceased theatre manager who left his entire estate to her, when Judge Charles N. Harris in Middlesex Probate Court today refused a motion for a jury trial. The motion was filed by counsel for relatives of the late theatre manager who are contesting the will.

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI!

CLASS-CONSCIOUS CO-OPERATIVE HAS BIG GROWTH

(By LELAND OLDS, Federated Press)

How the workers would gain from consumer cooperation on a national scale as a branch of the labor movement is strikingly illustrated in the 1926 report of the Cooperative Central Exchange of Superior, Wisc. This cooperative wholesale organization, serving retail coops, celebrated the 10th year of its existence with sales totaling $1,048,290, an increase of $212,760 (25½ per cent) over the previous year.

Savings to the consumer rather than excessive profits feature this annual report, in contrast with the reports of capitalist enterprises. Of the total sales, $925,942 represented the actual cost of the goods, while $122,360 covered the entire cost of operation including $44,033 for the modern bakery, $2817 for educational work and a net gain of $11,648. Out of the net gain the directors recommended the distribution of a $7722 purchase dividend payable in shares of stock. This is equivalent to the stock dividend of a capitalist enterprise and helps provide capital for expansion without recourse to money lenders.

Operating Costs Low.

The gross profit from the wholesaling of goods, according to the manager's report, absorbed only 7.36 per cent of total sales. Expenses took 5.52 per cent of the customer's dollar and 1.84 per cent of it went as net gain to increase resources. This means that the operating costs of the Cooperative Central Exchange are considerably lower than the average private wholesale house of the same size. The manager says:

"General statistics show that the gross profit of private wholesale houses of the same size is 11.3 per cent, the expenses 10.6 per cent and the net gain 0.7 per cent. This goes to show that we have already been able to offer benefits to our affiliated stores."

Figures showing for the 10 years and net profits are:

Cooperative Central Exchange	Members	Sales	Net Profit
1917	13	$25,574	$208
1918	25	122,423	2,967
1919	40	311,664	7,730
1920	48	409,591	6,756
1921	56	312,745	3,490
1922	56	417,367	4,18
1923	56	504,177	4,85
1924	60	613,215	5,87
1925	65	835,552	8,809
1926	71	1,048,293	11,64
Total		$5,342,551	$52,812

The success with which the Cooperative Central Exchange weathered the depression years of 1921 and 1922 is an achievement, particularly since it depends for its business entirely on wage earners and farmers, the two classes most severely hit by the bad times. Unlike most American cooperatives, it is based on the class struggle viewpoint.

Part of Labor Movement.

Through the efforts of the Cooperative Central Exchange the 1926 congresses of both the Northern States Cooperative League and the Cooperative League of America adopted a resolution recognizing the cooperative movement as a part of the labor movement working toward a new economic order through the united action of the working class.

The directors refer to the many criticisms leveled at such a program but note that many of the earlier coops, colorless from the class viewpoint, have either been wiped off the cooperative map or are at the mercy of the owning and middle classes while our organization has grown stronger year by year financially as well as organizationally."

SIGMAN SHOWN HE CAN'T FIRE CLOAK WORKERS

The cloak shop of Fischelberg Brothers, at 222 West 27th Street, was again the scene of an attack by right wing gangsters upon the left wing pickets, Friday morning, and the result was an announcement by the boss that he intends to send this lockout at once into the hands of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union like it or not.

Early Friday morning two scabs surrounded by 10 gangsters managed to get into the Fischelberg shop. Outside there was a great demonstration of workers, at least 2,000 of them, picketing the shop in protest and demanding the reinstatement of Henry Turk who was discharged at Sigmun's request a few days ago.

Shortly after the scabs reached the shop, the boss came down and stated to the workers of his shop who were on the picket line that he refused to have in his shop a bunch of gangsters who would steal everything they could lay their hands on. He announced he was going to tell the International that, and if it is expected that the shop will be all the original workers will be back at work on Monday.

Turk Member of 35.

During the picket demonstration, several workers who had been scabbing at the Bridge Dress Company in this same building were persuaded not to go to work. This was the second day of mass demonstration at this building following the discharge, the reinstatement, and the re-discharge of Henry Turk. He had been singled out not only because he refused to register, but because he is a member of Sigman's own local and was active in opposing his gangsterism in Local 35.

During the demonstration at Fischelberg, Edward F. McGrady, head of the A. F. of L. Reorganization Committee in the Furriers' Union, came by and was recognized by the workers.

McGrady Booed

"Squealer, squealer," cried the workers as soon as they saw him. And followed by these cries, and by the whole two thousand workers he hastily retreated from 27th Street. It is very hard for these reactionary right wing leaders to maintain their dignity when they come face to face with the workers who know what they really are.

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

Violin and Viola Lessons
Given by expert teacher.
Pupil accompanied at first lessons.
JOHN WEINROTH
6136 LARCHWOOD AVENUE,
Phone Granite 7202, Philadelphia, Pa.

Published by the DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO.
Daily, Sunday and Monthly Organ of the Workers (Communist) Party
26 First Street, New York, N. Y. Phone: Orchard 3587

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:
By mail (In New York only): $6.00 one year; $3.25 six months; $1.65 three months
By mail (Outside of New York): $6.00 one year; $3.25 six months; $1.65 three months

Address all mail and make checks payable to
THE DAILY WORKER, 26 First Street, New York, N. Y.

J. LOUIS ENGDAHL ..... Editor
WILLIAM F. DUNNE ..... Managing Editor
BERT MILLER ..... Business Manager

Entered as second-class mail at the post-office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Advertising rates on application.

Powers Prepare for New Assault Upon China.

The fact that the imperialist butchers in China have abandoned the idea of joint action in an effort to crush the nationalist liberation movement with the "Nanking incident" as an excuse does not mean that they have had a change of heart in the Orient. It only means that they will devise other means to strive to achieve the same end.

Great Britain, desperately striving to hold together its one mightiest empire, was in favor of using force to the limit. So well organized was the British machinery in China that all the other interested powers, including the United States, were playing the game of pulling British chestnuts out of the fire. The fourth-rate corporation flunkey, Mr. Kellogg, at the head of the American state department, joined Britain and the other powers in the first note to the Canton government, solely on the basis of misinformation furnished by the American minister to China, MacMurray. Immediately after the dispatch of the joint note the American imperialists called a halt on such blundering diplomacy. The administration then turned against MacMurray and refused pointblank to participate in a further joint note to China.

This refusal on the part of the United States, the imperialist giant of the world and the banker of the world, could have but one result, the collapse of the British proposal for further joint action. Japan, in spite of the fact that its new cabinet under Tanaka came into power because of its avowed determination to take an aggressive stand on the question of China, abandoned the idea of further joint action (at least openly) and practically reverted to the policy of the cabinet it had turned out of office. This action was followed by disavowals on the part of Italy. Then Britain, herself, and finally France announced a change of policy to conform with the attitude of the United States.

Apologizers for the Coolidge administration are now lauding to the skies the triumph of American diplomacy. In a panegyric to the Coolidge-Kellogg-Wall Street policy one of the inspired Washington journalists declares that American diplomacy has triumphed over the British brand. Like all incompetent scribblers who presume to air their views on the most intricate political problems, because his paper sent him to Washington, the correspondent recalls the time when British diplomacy was supreme throughout the whole world and recognized as the most astute and declares American statemanship now occupies the place formerly held by John Bull.

Only the revolutionists of today, the Marxist-Leninists, can account for the triumph of American diplomacy against British astuteness.

The rise of American diplomacy in international affairs keeps pace with the rise of the economic power of Wall Street. The decline of British diplomacy can be measured by the waning economic power of Britain in its world-wide struggle against American imperialism.

Certainly no one can attribute superior intellectual attainments to a creature of the type of Kellogg. No one with historical sense can perceive in Coolidge anything other than a somewhat bewildered puppet, who stands intellectually on a par with a Y. M. C. A. secretary.

But stupid as American statesmen are, and awkwardly as they proceed to apply the world policies of Wall Street, they meet with success for the simple reason that back of them stands the gang of plunderers that emerged from the world war as the most powerful on earth. What they lack in acumen is overbalanced by the power of banking and industrial capital. When the United States takes a position in opposition to the wishes of the other great powers, they must, at least formally, yield, and strive to achieve through new diplomatic maneuvers what they could not achieve openly. That is precisely what has happened in China.

British statesmen, who appear defeated in China by the American state department, now know that even in China the conflict that rages between the two leading imperialist powers in other parts of the world must be fought out with no quarter. But world politics have not developed far enough for open hostilities. There are still many possibilities within the realms of more or less peaceful diplomacy. In the diplomacy of today, however, can be perceived the open hostilities of tomorrow.

While refraining from participating in another note to China the powers that were signatories to the former note still have their armed forces on Chinese soil, their battleships in Chinese waters, and are carrying out, for their own special interests, their predatory policies. Every day the British, American, French and other forces remain in China brings nearer another world war.

As a matter of simple self-preservation the working class of this and every other country, the class called upon to carry out on the fields of battle the struggles that cannot be settled by the diplomats of the world, must insistently demand Hands Off China!

Not only should this demand be put with all the emphasis at our command, but in addition to that we must organize to cripple any country that dares to plunge into a war in the orient, or anywhere else for that matter.

The Iron Heel in Nicaragua.

Facts about the disgraceful and bullying threat to Nicaraguan liberal forces that the United States would use its armed forces to blast them off the map, published exclusively in The DAILY WORKER three days ago, are now admitted even by the capitalist papers supporting the Coolidge government.

Col. Henry L. Stimson, Wall Street agent and head of the American super-power company, was charged by the Coolidge government with carrying out the threats to the commander of the Nicaraguan army.

There is no more infamous chapter in the history of imperialism than the forcible conquest by this country of Nicaragua. Its first act was the overthrow of a duly constituted government because that government would not prostitute itself to Wall Street. Next it helped to maintain in power its own lackey, Diaz. It raised an embargo on arms so that the Diaz forces could get instruments of death with which to murder those who opposed the rule of the Dollar.

Failing to defeat the liberal forces with hired mercenaries from the native population, Stimson went to that country and openly threatened to invade it and destroy the majority of the population which supports the liberal movement unless the forces disarmed.

There is no need here to enter into a discussion of the legality of the thing and to remind our readers of the fact that war has been waged against Nicaragua without a declaration on the part of congress. It is a Coolidge-Wall Street private war and the administration evidently thinks it is no affair of the United States congress. This sort of thing has become so common that it is seldom mentioned. It was started by Wilson's private war against Mexico in 1914 when he shelled Vera Cruz, continued by his ravaging of Haiti and Santo Domingo in 1915-16, and is carried out by the Coolidge gang in Nicaragua, China and other places unfortunate enough to be objects of prey for the bloody fangs of Wall Street.

Nicaragua is a particularly desirable morsel for American imperialism, because it is the aim of the United States to build a second canal from the Atlantic to the Pacific through the lower part of that nation, or at least between that country and Costa Rica, to the south. Commercially such a canal is not of importance, but from a military standpoint it is essential to the heavy fortification of this country in Central and South America —also, by cutting off five hundred miles, it will enable boats of the Atlantic fleet to move into the Pacific to join the fleet there much quicker than travelling through the Panama canal.

Nicaragua groans today under the iron heel of American imperialism because she was unfortunate enough to have resources this country wants and to be geographically situated so that this country could utilize its land as a base of operations in its scheme to make of our southern neighbor republics a part of the American empire.

It is to be hoped that these republics, perceiving the threat to their existence by the actions of the United States in Nicaragua, will unite to exterminate the imperialist agents. In this they will have the support of millions of Americans who do not want to be cannon fodder in defense of Wall Street.

IN THE MIDST OF AMERICAN CAPITALISM

The capitalist system of the U. S. A. is a fine product of christian civilization—so says John Roach Stratton, famous fundamentalist—so says Aimee McPherson—so say the metropolitan newspapers. And they all gain readers thru the Snyder case.

Let's Fight On! Join The Workers Party!

In the loss of Comrade Ruthenberg the Workers (Communist) Party has lost its foremost leader and the American working class its staunchest fighter. This loss can only be overcome by many militant workers joining the Party that he built.

Fill out the application below and mail it. Become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party and carry forward the work of Comrade Ruthenberg.

I want to become a member of the Workers (Communist) Party.

Name .....

Address .....

Occupation .....

Union Affiliation.....

Mail this application to the Workers Party, 108 East 14th Street, New York City; or if in other city to Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Distribute the Ruthenberg pamphlet, "The Workers (Communist) Party. What it Stands For and Why Workers Should Join." This Ruthenberg pamphlet will be the basic pamphlet thruout the Ruthenberg Drive.

Every Party Nucleus must collect 50 cents from every member and will receive 20 pamphlets for every member to sell or distribute.

Nuclei in the New York District will get their pamphlets from the District Office, 108 East 14th St.

Nuclei outside of the New York District write to Daily Worker Publishing Co., 33 East First Street, New York City, or to the National Office, Workers Party, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Lithuanian Workers Adopt Resolution

At a meeting of Lithuanian Workers a resolution was passed that reads in part:

"Whereas, the overwhelming evidence in the case has convinced labor bodies and disinterested people thruout the world that Sacco and Vanzetti are innocent of the crime charged against them, and that they were convicted for their views and activities in the Labor Movement, and

"Whereas, the American Federation of Labor, at the Cincinnati and El Paso Conventions branded their conviction as a "ghastly miscarriage of justice," therefore be it

RESOLVED, that this mass meeting of Lithuanian workers held at Ulidi hall in Chicago, Ill., requests the Governor of Massachusetts to intervene and give justice to our two persecuted fellow workers, who have devoted their lives to the cause of labor, by releasing them unconditionally from all penalties of this unjust conviction."

Communist Leads in Straw Ballot

In a straw ballot being taken by the Los Angeles Daily News, Sam Giberman leads five socialist candidates for the Board of Education by a large margin. He stands eighth in a list of eighteen candidates, of which ten must place in the primary elections. Another socialist candidate for city council is running at the bottom of the list.

I. L. D. Booth.

The International Labor Defense Branches have decided to take a booth at the Bazaar. They are sure to have a large quantity of merchandise.

Sacco and Vanzetti Shall Not Die!

Workers' Health Bureau Convenes Soon in Cleveland

Issuing a call for a National Labor Health Conference to be held in Cleveland June 16-19, the Workers' Health Bureau points to the mounting list of industrial accidents and occupational diseases.

The entombment of 77 coal diggers in a West Virginia mine and the death of 12 automobile workers in a Detroit explosion a few days before are examples of the increasing hazards that labor must take steps to check, the bureau urges.

The Cleveland conference—at the Hotel Winton—will work out plans for curbing these industrial dangers. The conference will be thrown open to the entire labor movement. Every trade union organization is invited to send a delegation, in addition to those directly affiliated with the Workers' Health Bureau.

35,000 Workers Killed.

Labor men signing the Workers' Health Bureau call, believe that the coming conference will make history. The text of the call is a stirring document. It reads in part, as follows:

Brothers: Over 35,000 workers are killed in this country every year through accidents alone. More than 2,500,000 workers are injured, many of them permanently. These figures do not include injuries or deaths of workers in 6 states and the District of Columbia, where there are no Workmen's Compensation laws, and therefore no record of injuries. They do not cover many trades, such as railroad workers, longshoremen, seamen or farm laborers.

2,500 coal miners are killed in the United States each year. This is a death rate 4 times higher than for the coal mines of Great Britain. At least 1,773 workers were killed on buildings under construction in the years 1925.

In addition to accidents, workers are exposed to 620 separate occupational hazards. Lead poisoning causes the death of 1,502 workers during the 10-year period 1914-24. Ohio reports 3,226 cases of occupational diseases during the 5-year period 1920-5.

This ruthless destruction of workers' lives calls for definite measures of prevention and control.

The employers and the government have failed to check the appalling loss of life and health which is destroying the ranks of labor.

Signed By Union Officials.

Signing the call are James H. Maurer, Pres., the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor; Henry M. Donnelly, secretary of the Rhode Island federation; Harry W. Call, president of the Washington federation and 11 other members of the trade union council of the Workers' Health Bureau, including 5 painters' leaders, and representatives of bakers, miners, machinists and other trade union groups, also Grace Burnham and Harriet Silverman, directors of the bureau and Charlotte Todes, organising secretary.

Workmen's Circle Booth.

At the last meeting of Branch 548 W. C. it was decided to have a booth at the bazaar. All members are mobilized to collect articles to make the affair a success.

DRAMA

A New Capek Play

MORGAN FARLEY

Plays the chief role in Theodore Dreiser's "An American Tragedy," which comes to the Bronx Opera House tonight.

THE brothers Capek, the brilliant authors of "R. U. R." and "The Insect Play", both of which plays created quite a furore and received high praise when produced here some years back, have written a new play called "Adam the Creator," and which was recently produced in Prague. The first night audience receive the new offering with enthusiasm and intense interest.

"The play is titled a fantastic comedy," writes the Prague correspondent of the London Observer. "Like 'R. U. R.' and 'The Insect Play,' it deals with humanity en gros, a type being picked out here and there to illustrate the author's philosophy. Combine the stage perfection of a modern pageant revue with the didactic conception of an old Morality Play and the brilliant wit of a benevolent pessimist, and you have some conception of the new Capek play. The now world created by Adam is no whit better than the old, and in fact, is more repulsive and primitive in its vices than before. Even from the point of view of physical perfection, with the exception of the earlier creations, Adam does not seem to have been very successful. Nor has the Alter Ego achieved better results with his endless reduplication of the same type of cloth-capped worker.

"Eventually the quarrels between Adam and his Alter Ego, and the dissatisfaction and ingratitude of the created, ending in revolution between the followers of each, so disgust the two creators that they long to repudiate the works of their hands. But they grow old in their misery, and are despised even by the loathsome beggar who has such a tenacious hold on property and life. At the solemn climax they both welcome the voice of God which gives them rest from the thankless task of creating.

"The play, which relies for its dramatic effect largely on staging and impressionist scenery, was remarkably well produced, the first scene, in which the planets whirled chaotically in the heavens, being particularly striking. It was a triumph of stage art. The designs for the most part depict a mechanical age, with tall, crazy sky-scrapers reaching to heaven.

"The same criticism can be made of this play as of 'The Insect Play' Did" at Day's Grid Street Theatre.

BROADWAY BRIEFS

Albert Hackett will replace Douglas Montgomery in "Time" tonight at the Times Square Theatre. Chester Morris will take over James Rennie's role a week later. Frank Thomas will then play the latter's part.

The openings tonight include a new play by the Spanish Art Theatre at the Forrest Theatre, "The Trail-Song," the Sierra comedy which the Le Gallienne players did in English at the 14th Street Theatre. The other premiers are "Oh, Ernest" at the Royale; "Julie," at the Lyceum; "Kempy" at the Selwyn and "Katy Did" at Day's Grid Street Theatre.

AMUSEMENTS

THEATRE GUILD ACTING CO.
RIGHT YOU ARE
IF YOU THINK YOU ARE
GARRICK 65 W. 35th. Eves. 8.40
Mts. Thurs. & Sat. 2.40
Next Week: Mr. Pim Passes By

The SECOND MAN
GUILD Thes., W. 52 St. Eves. 8:30
Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30
Next Week: Pygmalion

The SILVER CORD
John Golden Th. 58 E. of B'way. Circle 3416
Mts. Thur. & Sat. 2:30
Next Wk: Ned McCobb's Daughter

Sam HARRIS 143rd West 42nd St. (near Broadway) Evs. 8:30
WHAT PRICE GLORY
Mats. (exc. Sat.) 50c-$1. Eves. 50c-$2.

WALLACK'S West 42nd Street. Evenings 8:30
Mats. Tues., Wed., Thurs. and Sat.
What Anne Brought Home
A New Comedy Drama

The LADDER
Now in its 4th MONTH
WALDORF, 49th St., East of B'way. Mats. WED. and SAT.

TIMES SQ. THEA., W. 42 St. Evgs. 8:20. Matinees Thurs. & Sat., 2:20.
CRIME
Pygmalion

Bronx Opera House 149th Street, E. of 3rd Ave.
Pop. Prices Mat. Wed. & Sat.
THEODORE DREISER'S
"AN AMERICAN TRAGEDY"

EARL CARROLL Vanities
Earl Carroll Thea., 7th Ave. & 50th St. Mats. Thurs. & Sat. 2:30

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

BOOK BARGAINS
AT SPECIAL PRICES
On World Trade Union Unity
WORLD LABOR UNITY. By Scott Nearing
Latest facts about a subject being discussed by the whole world of labor. 10 Cents.
THE MOVEMENT FOR WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY. By Tom Bell
In this booklet, every phase of the problem is presented and facts are given on steps already taken. A timely and important publication. 15 Cents.
THE WORLD TRADE UNION MOVEMENT By A. Losovsky
A record of the development of the world trade union movement up to the founding of the Red International of Labor Unions. This splendid booklet is written by the Secretary of the R. I. L. U. 50 Cents.
(Total of 75 Cents)
ALL FOR 50 CENTS
NOTE—Books offered in this column on hand in limited quantities. All orders cash and filled in turn as received.

LATIN-AMERICA RESENTS U. S. FORCE POLICIES

Aware of Imperialist Designs

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Every resource of adroit manipulation and management was resorted to during the third Pan-American Commercial conference that has just come to a close here to prevent the many delegates from the Latin American countries giving public expression to the resentment against the United States that was patently current among them.

Meetings were conducted in Spanish and Portugese, reporters were not furnished with copies of the bitter speeches of denunciation that many of the delegates made. The State Department, the United States Chamber of Commerce, the White House, even the press of Washington combined to put a quietus on the animated wrath of the Latin-Americans. But despite the weight of precautions and censorship thrown about the meetings, the restrictions placed on discussions, the resolutions adopted by the conference showed only too clearly the deep feeling of resentment against the interventionist and imperialist policy of the Coolidge-Kellogg administration.

Resent Customs Duties.

Several of the resolutions approved were directly aimed at the Administration for its iron-fisted activities in the southern continent. One of the resolutions calls for "a study to be made of the desirability of the gradual reduction of the high customs duties that may prevail in each country." The resolution suggests that the study be undertaken by committees of business men representing the different American republics and the various interests affected. It was adopted after vigorous protest had been voiced by the Latin-Americans on the floor, of the conference against the United States tariff wall.

Another resolution, aimed at the tobacco and income taxes of the United States called for a study in each country of "The desirability of reducing in a manner compatible with its fiscal interests, the internal taxes that may be imposed thereon." Other resolutions adopted indicated the bitter resentment felt at American restriction of Cuban cigars and cigarettes and limitations and restrictions on agricultural products, particularly beef.

Latin-America Hostile.

While a number of the southern republics hewed their individual scores against the United States—such as Peru's resentment over the wool tariff, Guatemala's objection to wool restrictions, Argentina's objection to the tariff on meats, Cuba's animosity toward the postal regulations and Mexico's general ill will toward this country—it was clear throughout the conference, that despite the usual line of bull handed out by various American government officials about brotherly and neighborly love, Latin-America with the example of Coolidge-Kellogg operations in Nicaragua is warily hostile.

Charge Imperialism.

As expressed by some delegates Latin-America believes that the United States is actuated in Nicaragua by imperialistic designs. Many of the delegates expressed the utmost apprehension over the interpretations that Coolidge and Kellogg have given to the Monroe Doctrine. If Coolidge is correct in his declaration that "the person and property of citizens are a part of the general domain of the nation, even when abroad," they feel that American warships and marines might be sent to their countries on the slightest provocation and on the solo opinion of the President or Secretary of State of the United States.

Much of the bitter feeling among the delegates were repressed by breaking them up into numerous so-called group conferences. These were difficult for the American interpreters and the hot views expressed at this gatherings were not reported. At one of these meetings attended by Brazilian delegates it is said that Coolidge-Kellogg imperialism was caustically and freely berated.

The State Department, as soon as it caught the real temper of the delegates, announced a rule that discussions on questions that did not bear directly upon commercial problems would not be permitted on the floor. By this ambiguous legerdemain the real feelings of the delegates were shunted away from public attention and directed into the impotent channel of group discussions.

Damage Suit For "Whip" Death.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., May 8.—Suit for $100,000 damages was brought against the County of Westchester and the Westchester County Park Commission before Supreme Court Justice Frank L. Young and a jury here today by Christian Fisher and an administrator of the estate of his son Albert, who was killed on May 30, 1926, while riding on "The Whip," an amusement device at Rye Beach. Fisher alleged that his son, who was nineteen at the time, was killed because of the negligence of the defendants in not making sure that the cars used in "the Whip" were provided with proper safeguards to prevent people from falling out.

German Communists Hear Greetings From American Comrades

Special to The DAILY WORKER.

HAMBURG, Germany.— (By Mail)—Speaking before the 10,000 workers gathered here Sunday, Easter Sunday, in the session of German Communist Youth Day and the German Communist Party protest against the brutalities of terror in China, J. Louis Engdahl, editor of The DAILY WORKER, and member of the Central Committee of the American Communist Party, made the following pledge to the German Communists on behalf of the American Communist Movement. He said:

"To you, the revolutionary workers of Hamburg and of all Germany; to you the heirs of Karl Liebknecht and Rosa Luxemburg; to you I bring the revolutionary greetings of the Workers (Communist) Party and the Young Workers (Communist) League of America.

"We know in America that we live in the land of the greatest capitalist reaction. We know that we are face to face with the powerful American Dollar Imperialism. We know the strength of the working class foe in America.

"Today, more than half a hundred American battleships are in Chinese waters. More are being rushed to the Far East. Thousands of American marines, the soldiers of the Dollar Imperialism, are already in China. Other thousands are being sent. Thus the American imperialists lead the imperialists of the world in an effort to drown in a bath of proletarian blood the revolutionary struggles of the workers and peasants of China.

"On behalf of our American Communist Party, on behalf of our Young Communist League, I pledge to you, the revolutionary workers of Germany, that we in America will continue to build stronger our Red Fighting Front against the enemies of the working class in America, who are the enemies of the workers of the world.

"We in America have also been inspired, we go forward encouraged and strengthened by the revolutionary deeds of Liebknecht and Luxemburg. We have drawn inspiration from your courageous and brave revolutionary struggles here in Germany. Thus we will build better and stronger our front in the revolutionary struggle.

"Down with the Dollar Imperialism! Down with the capitalists in the United States, in Germany, in China, in the whole world.

"Long live the Union of Soviet Republics! Long Live the Communist International! Hail the Social Revolution! Hail Communism—the Liberator of the World's Oppressed!"

Let Who Will Give Up Arms; U. S. Is Retaining Forts

WASHINGTON, May 8.—Proposals to be put forth by the United States at the Three-Power Naval Armaments Conference in Geneva next month will be whipped into final shape late next week. Full consideration, it was learned today, will be given to the American program at a series of conferences to be held between President Coolidge, Secretaries Kellogg and Wilbur, Admiral W. Eberle, Chief of Naval Operations, and Rear Admiral Hilary P. Jones, senior American naval delegate, returning from Geneva for this purpose.

U. S. Won't Reduce.

It is certain that the delegation will be instructed to confine the Geneva discussions as far as possible to the classes of naval craft not covered under the Washington treaty, that is, to light cruisers and submarines. It is not likely the United States will favor renewed consideration of the classes already limited.

Moreover, the American representatives probably will be advised that their government will not countenance a reopening of the question of Pacific Island fortifications. It has been suggested in Japanese quarters and elsewhere that this problem might again arise.

Labor Bills Fail in Illinois Legislature.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (FP)—May 8. The Illinois legislature has killed a number of labor bills, including the old age pension measure and the women's modified 8-hour bill.

Several anti-labor bills are recommended for passage including a state constabulary measure and serious curtailment of the power of juries in criminal cases together with a heavy increase in the power of judges. The proposal is backed by the big bankers and corporations who find it easier to control a judge making his living on the bench than to manipulate jurymen whose bread and butter comes from other sources.

Read The Daily Worker Every Day

After the Insurrection in Indonesia

(By Independent Press Agency)

In our last January Bulletin we began to give you by way of several articles, the tale of the most miserable conditions in which the Indonesian people live, so that they were forced to take up arms desperately when even to death is dearer than life of slavery. We also told you that the Dutch are accustomed to inform the world falsely about things, and instead of telling the truth about the bad conditions of their colony, they designed the most ideal picture of their colonial system as the best of the world.

Will Try Again.

But our attempt to shake off the yoke of Dutch domination has been unsuccessful. Does it mean that it is the end of our hope for a better life? To answer this question it would perhaps be useful to examine the conditions in which Indonesia now stands after the revolution.

According to the lying Dutch Press agency the "rebellion" should be of no importance, but if we mention the great number of imprisoned revolutionists, we are sure that you will be convinced that indeed the Dutch are talking double dutch.

Punished Without Trial.

There are about two thousands detained revolutionists in Boven-Digoel, 100 in West Sumatra and 1500 in Java. Most of them do not fall under the close to be condemned according to the colonial "penal law, but yet they do not escape from punishment. This is possible because according to the colonial constitution the governor-general has the right to banish persons whom he judges, or considers, whom he thinks, dangerous for the so-called "public rest and order" to any place in Indonesia he wants.

Thus a great number of revolutionists (we do not yet know the right number; one says about 800 personal) are expelled to the most horrible spot in New Guinea, where the revolutionists are exposed to savages cannibals and malaria fevers.

Several revolutionists are sent to Nusa-Kambangan, where they have to live with imprisoned criminals, murderers and thieves.

Others are condemned to death and also to imprisonments of 10 to 20 years.

Besides these condemnations the colonial government has proclaimed that all "communistic" action of the Indonesian people shall be put down by the military forces.

What is the reaction of all these oppressions? Are the Indonesian people, the Indonesian fighters for freedom conquered? Are they discouraged?

Learn From Defeat.

The failure of the Indonesian revolution shall not form an obstacle in the way to national independence, but it has brought a lot of experience for better organization and action.

The Indonesians will not cease fighting for the liberation of the native country.

Although so many of them have to offer their life and good for the sake of that high ideal, they are not discouraged. On the contrary their aspiration shall be more solid, stronger and stronger.

All revolutions need time to succeed, but they, as the "new spirit," never fail to conquer the "ancient regime."

So Indonesia shall succeed in spite of many reverses!

BUY THE DAILY WORKER AT THE NEWSSTANDS

"JUST AS SAFE AS A BANK"

Walter Cravens, president, and Ralph W. Street, vice president, of the Kansas City Joint Stock Land Bank, together with five other associates, have been indicted on many charges. Alleged to involve considerably more than $1,000,000, the charges include false entries, conspiracy to defraud stockholders, and manipulation in loans and money between the land bank and a hydro-electric corporation, as well as other companies promoted by what is known as "the Walter Cravens' group."

America Still Home of Child Labor

By LAWRENCE TODD.
(Federated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 8. — Frank Morrison, secretary of the American Federation of Labor, has dug up out of the dusty files of the American Federationist the issue for May, 1902, which featured an article on child labor in Southern textile mills, by Irene Ashby MacFadyen. It is entitled "Child Life vs Dividends." The frontispiece is a photograph of the author, with three children.

"Here are three of them," she says, "three little slaves of capital, typical of the 20,000 children under 14, now toiling out their lives in the textile mills of the South. Mattie, the little one standing beside me, is six years old. She is a spinner. Inside a cotton mill for 12 hours a day she stands in the 4-foot passageway between the spinning frames where the cotton is spun from coarser into fine threads. As it comes down from the roping above, now and then it breaks, and her baby fingers join the thread and set the bobbin moving again. From daylight to dark she is in the midst of the ceaseless throb and racket of machinery."

Nervous Break-Down.

This child's wage was 10 cents a day. Sally, the other girl in the group, was 9 years old, and had been in the mill three years. She had suffered a nervous breakdown. "Continuous work, the hot, unhealthy mill atmosphere, proved too much for her childish brain. She could neither speak nor stand, and her little limbs were shaken by convulsive movements. In a week or more she would be back at her endless toil. There are thousands like her in the South.

"I do not know how old Jack is. He does not know himself. He does not know anything except that he has worked since he can remember. He may be about 11. The only sign of interest he exhibits is when an organ-grinder is offered to him. There are thousands like him in the South."

Amusement Fails.

Twenty-five years of continuous agitation against these human sacrifices to textile profits have followed the publication of that picture. Congress hesitated 14 years, hoping that State Legislation would meet the need for a curb upon child slavery in the mills. In 1916 the first federal law prohibiting child labor was enacted. The federal supreme court by a 5-4 decision declared it unconstitutional. Another law was passed by Congress, and again the court nullified it. Then Congress adopted a resolution proposing an amendment to the federal constitution, authorizing Congress to prohibit child labor.

Southern cotton mill owners started a nation-wide propaganda campaign against ratification, using the argument that the federal government was "thrusting itself into the home" and "telling parents how to rear their children." Although the measure had gone through Congress with almost no opposition, ratification was refused in more than one-third of the state legislatures. The A. F. of L. continues to demand that it be ratified.

Meanwhile the child workers who had been temporarily taken out of the mills when the two federal laws were in force, have to a large extent come back. State laws have been improved, and the Children's Bureau finds that enforcement of state laws is no longer the farce it was before Congress acted.

Yet the legal standards in the South for safeguarding children in mill employment are still few. Thus, in Florida, the boys and girls up to 16 years may work 48 hours a week; in Georgia, no limit on hours per day and 60 hours weekly limit with exemptions; in North Carolina 11 hours per day and 60 per week is allowed for children 14 to 16 years old, and 8 hours a day for those under 14; in South Carolina the 10-hour day with exemptions, and the 55-hour week with exemptions, applies to all under 16; in Texas the law permits children to work 8 hours a day and 48 hours a week until they become 16. In North Carolina children under 14 are not legally permitted to work in factories. Yet more than 20 per cent of the children in mill villages in North Carolina who were 13 years old in 1925 were found not to be enrolled in school. Few children under 12 are now employed in Southern mills.

A study of the educational standards required for working permits for children in the South shows them to be very low. And investigation by three separate methods of testing the intelligence of children in two typical mill villages showed from one-half to two-thirds of them to be below normal in intelligence. These sub-normal children are in general the sons and daughters of workers who have spent long years in the mills and many of whom went to work in the mills as children.

STUDENTS AGAIN REJECT EFFORTS TO IMPOSE DRILL

Civilian Course Turned Down as Compromise

Undaunted by previous rejections of their recommendations, the student curriculum committee of the College of the City of New York has again taken a firm stand against militarism in the college.

The reason advanced by the committee for their recommendation is their conviction that military courses "are not indigenous parts of the college curriculum". The complete extent to which the opinion of this student group represents the unanimity of feeling of the entire student body on this proposition is intimated by the editorial comment of the Campus, the tri-weekly publication of the College.

"The small amount of space which the committee has given (in their report) to the proposal to abolish the compulsory features of military science and civilian drill seems to signify that they assume the attitude of the student body is known and taken for granted by the Faculty."

Sentiment Nearly Unanimous.

This feeling is based upon the tremendous demonstration made by the students last year when over three thousand cast votes favoring the abolition of military training.

The presentation of this opinion by the committee is doubly significant inasmuch as it asks for discontinuance of both compulsory civilian drill and military science courses. Civilian drill was instituted in the fall of 1926 and differs from the military science course in that the drill is gone through in the gymnasium instead of on the parade grounds; that wands are used in the drill instead of guns and that gymnastic uniforms are worn instead of the R. O. T. C. khaki.

The last-mentioned difference is highly important inasmuch as the students are required to buy their own uniforms in civilian drill. This deterrent factor of the cost of the uniforms has been the cause for the small enrollment as compared with that of the older military course in which the outfit is furnished by the war department. Civilian drill was established as an option, in order that the incoming freshmen class might have an opportunity to choose between the two courses which are known to have the same purpose in view.

Reject Both Drill Courses.

The establishment of the option in the choice of civilian drill as the alternate compulsory two-year military course last fall was generally interpreted by student opinion as a concession to the storm of opposition raised the previous semester.

The present recommendation of the student curriculum committee rejecting civilian drill along with the regular drill course makes clear that their action characterizes the attitude that students, represented by the committee, will reject any future options which may be advanced by the Faculty in the future. Should these Faculty changes retain the objectionable element of compulsory military training, their rejection by the committee is certain.

The students are now looking forward to the decision of the Faculty committee on the matter, which decision will be announced within a month, at the end of the present semester, according to a recent statement issued by President Frederick B. Robinson. The president evidently finds no point of agreement whatever with the student report on military training, for in commenting on it he is reputed to have explained that the real problem before the Faculty committee is that of "using their ingenuity to find some way of organizing both courses so as to spread out the work throughout the college course and not concentrate it wholly in the first two years."

Suddenly Stricken

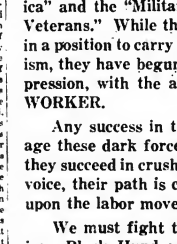
Serious illness of President Lauri Relander, above, of Finland, caused King Christian of Denmark and King Haakon of Norway to cancel visits they had planned to Finland.

Jugoslavia Asks For Loan.

WASHINGTON (FP) May 8.—When the new Jugoslav minister, Voislav Antoniyevitch, presented his credentials to President Coolidge, he suggested that what the Belgrado government wants from America first of all is a loan.

"The main problem of my country at present is economical," he said, "and there is great scope for capital

Louisiana Shivers Before Danger of Still More Flood



BATON ROUGE, La., May 8.—The crest of the flood that has ravaged the lower Mississippi Valley is rapidly approaching. Already there are 4,000,000 acres of good agricultural land under water in this state, all crops are destroyed, cattle killed, and houses damaged or entirely washed away. Unless greater efforts are put forth than seems possible at this time the levees along Bayou Des Glaises will give way when the water gets a little higher, and another 4,216,320 acres will be flooded.

The population of the thirteen parishes now flooded is 219,000. Very inadequate means exist for caring for these during their necessary inability to support themselves.

Such herds of cattle as have been saved are mixed together in narrow pastures, and on the tops of knolls, and the dreaded anthrax is killing them rapidly. Hurried calls for vaccine to stop the "black-leg" plague have met with some response, but not enough.

The government is concerning itself with appeals to the people to support the Red Cross, and with surveys of the damage done.

The state governments of Louisiana, Arkansas, and Mississippi are already bankrupt. Things look rather gloomy for at least a quarter of a million refugees, who may suffer considerably from lack of food and medical care before conditions return to normal.

Fight the American Black Hundreds

In Czarist Russia, ruffians and underworld characters were enlisted in a reign of terror against the populace. Ruthless suppression and terrorism were carried on in the name of loyalty to the Czar, Christianity and the peoples' rights. In America, we have our own Black Hundreds parading under such high-sounding titles as the "Keymen of America" and the "Military Order of World War Veterans." While these elements are not yet in a position to carry out the excesses of Czarism, they have begun their campaign of suppression, with the attack upon The DAILY WORKER.

Any success in this attempt will encourage these dark forces to further efforts. If they succeed in crushing labor's most militant voice, their path is clear for further attacks upon the labor movement.

We must fight the efforts of the American Black Hundreds. We must recognize the true character of these enemies of society in spite of the mask of respectability under which they hide themselves. We must defend The DAILY WORKER from their attack.

Our duty is simple and clear. Against the powerful resources which the bosses are able to mobilize in their attack upon The DAILY WORKER, we must mobilize the full strength of the most militant and class conscious workers, who realize the significance of the present attack. The defense of the paper requires funds for lawyers and other legal fees. We ask that such funds be collected immediately by all friends of The DAILY WORKER and rushed in to our office with all possible speed.

DAILY WORKER
33 First Street,
New York, N. Y.

Inclosed is my contribution of

..... dollars .... cents to the Rothenberg Sustaining Fund for a stronger and better DAILY WORKER and for the defense of our paper. I will pay the same amount regularly every .....

Name .....

Address .....

City .....

State .....

Attach check or money order.

THE SIGNIFICANCE OF THE PASSAIC ELECTION CAMPAIGN

By EMIL GARDOS.

The present election campaign in Passaic is the big final continuation of the great school the textile workers went through during the more than a year-long strike. The brutal use of the state power against the strikers, who went out to fight for a living wage, undoubtedly gave a good political education, laying the basis for this campaign, in which our party, for the first time in its history is a real factor, a real mass-party in the Leninist sense of the word.

The formation of a powerful labor ticket was unfortunately prevented by the treacherous attitude of the local trade-union leaders, who, following the old slogan of "rewarding your friends and punishing your enemies," hurried to the endorsement of the opposition candidates, the manufacturer Cabell and the detective-captain Turner, both republicans of course. We therefore decided to have a Communist campaign, bringing forward our full program, including the fight for a Labor Party, under the banner of Expose Election Fake.

The campaign for the election of five city commissioners is conducted on a non-partisan basis, one of the many fakes of the present democratic system. The candidates are running on the basis of the individual fitness to administer the business of the city, hiding their party affiliations as much as possible. The nailing down of this lie, the linking up of the other candidates with the parties of Coolidge and Wall Street and the bringing forward of the Workers (Communist) Party by endorsement was one of our main tasks.

Great Enthusiasm.

The campaign became especially significant, when Albert Weisbord, the strike leader, was put up to be with S. E. Bambach, a textile worker and Simon Smaikinen, a garment worker, the standard bearer of the party at the election. The most beloved man of the workers and cursed by the bosses came back after an absence of more than six months to represent the party in this second phase of the struggle. What will be the effect of his coming back?—many of us asked. The strike is over, the workers gained their partial victory, the union recognition, through many sacrifices, the unemployment is big and so is the misery. How will the workers react, what is their answer going to be to the man who led them into the struggle? The wonderful reception given to the strike leader at his first meeting held April 13 gave a clear answer. A meeting called in two days, not advertised by leaflets with about 4000 workers packing two halls to the overflow, giving a tremendous demonstration to the man and to the party he stands for, was enough to show, that the workers do not forget. Yes, the workers don't forget the struggles they went through, the leadership they had and are ready to rally around the same leadership in spite of temporary set-back, in spite of rumors, accusations, which may affect the weaker section of the working class, but not the class as a whole. The workers did not forget that the leadership did not come from an individual, but it came from the leader of class struggle; the Communist Party. This fact was stated very little before, but they knew it just the same. Those who were present at the meetings, who heard the applause whenever our party was mentioned, will certainly agree with what one of the millowners said about the strike: "It is a school for Communism."

Rally to Labor Ticket.

In spite of the lack of funds, the refusal of hall-owners to give their places for meetings, the deadly silence of the local press, the campaign gained strength every day. Hundreds of workers came, many of whom we never saw before, who had no connection with the union, to offer their services as campaign workers. They took out contribution lists, leaflets and went out to the street, to their friends, to work for the Labor candidates. To their work is due the success of our rallies with red and letter attended than the rallies of the capitalist candidates, who are sending out letters to the voters and give entertainment, sandwiches, cigars and "refreshments." We asked for the workers' contributions and got them willingly. They understood that there is something poisonous in the cigars and refreshments Preiskel, Saxe, Rubacky or Turner are offering to the voters.

Aid To Organization.

Besides the two weekly mass-meetings of our own, attended by an average of a thousand people, we found other ways to reach the workers. One was through the meetings of the sympathetic organizations, arranged especially for the candidates. The Sacco-Vanzetti meeting of the I.L.D. the campaign rallies of the Women's council, the Young Workers League, the language branches etc. all helped to reach different sections of the workers, but helped to build up the organizations as well. There was not a single meeting, which did not end with an appeal for membership, urging the workers to join the union, the I.L.D. the Council, the league and the party. The campaign was not conducted just for election purposes, the main objective was the revitalizing and strengthening of our organizations.

Reaction Avoids Debate.

Another medium of reaching the voters was the going to other rallies, where according to the Passaic tradition, all the other candidates were most respectfully invited. We accepted the courtesies and replied with the same, stating of course that we are going to debate the statements these gentlemen will make. None of them dared to come of course. On the other hand we went to them. In one case Weisbord was forced to leave the platform, because he "slandered" the present officials, (he spoke of the lessons of the strike) other times the floor was not given to our candidates, they were heckled most of the time—but they came out always stronger. Just a few instances: Weisbord spoke at the Rubacky rally for less than 10 minutes. Over two thousand people, mostly Polish workers gave him such an ovation, that he was interrupted several times by their applause. Preiskel, who is endorsed by the club, was booed by the audience. When Welsbord got through, the majority of the audience left with him. The Saxe rally, held at the Passaic Public Park auditorium, showed that even the petty-bourgeoisie is receptive to our principles. Without minding the hecklers, not using the favorite method of personal slandering of the other candidates, Weisbord gave a constructive Communist talk on the problems of the city, the unemployment, the need of a Labor government, and the crowd left deeply impressed not only by the fearlessness and sincerity of the candidate, but also by the solution he had to offer to the present situation. We expect to poll a considerable vote from the small business-men, office-workers and other sections of the petty-bourgeoisie in reaction to our principles. Without minding the hecklers, not using the favorite method of personal slandering of the other candidates, Weisbord gave a constructive Communist talk on the problems of the city, the unemployment, the need of a Labor government, and the crowd left deeply impressed not only by the fearlessness and sincerity of the candidate, but also by the solution he had to offer to the present situation. We expect to poll a considerable vote from the small business-men, office-workers and other sections of the petty-bourgeoisie in reaction to our principles.

The few days left over until May 10, the election day, will be utilized for open air rallies, for the distribution of several leaflets and The DAILY WORKER by five thousands and for a very extensive campaign for campaign workers, for watchers at the polling places, to reduce the usual stealing of votes to as low as possible.

Fight Still Goes On.

What will the election bring to us? The candidates will certainly get a very high vote (some even say that would not it be for the stealing of votes there is even a chance for election)—but this is not the big thing. The real achievement of this campaign is and will be, that the workers of Passaic, whom the bosses have considered defeated, showed very clearly, that the strike was not fought in vain. The strike is over, the fight is still on. Fight on the political field, against the strike-breaking state-power and against the false opposition candidates of the Cabell and Turner type, showing the

(Continued on fourth column)

"FEUDISTS' CRIME TALE TOLD

Fear of "gang vengeance" and a desire for revenge, are believed to be the motives which led Harry-Thomason, 19, serving a sentence of from 10 years to life imprisonment for robbery, to confess to the murder last Dec. 12, of Mayor Joe Adams, of West City, Ill. In his confession Thomason says he and his brother Elmo, 17, now dead, received from Charlie Birger, fend leader, $50 each for the three shots fired at Adams. Thomason further confessed that the murder was planned at Birger's cabin, where Birger's lieutenants, Art Newman, Connie Ritter, and Harvey Dungy, also, were present. He named Ray Hyland as the driver of the death car. These four men, along with Birger, have been indicted for murder. Elmo Thomason was killed when Birger's cabin was dynamited and officials believe Lory Price, state highway patrolman, was abducted and later killed because he would have connected Birger with the crime. The two girls, above, Jackie Williams and Pearl Phelps, testified against Thomason when he was on trial. After his confession, Thomason was sentenced to life imprisonment.

A World Affair

The purple sun quickly hides behind the mountain branches of Tien-Shan.

Violet, orange, blue and golden fumes are floating above the valley, the foaming mountain creek, the sparkling lake, surrounded by fir-trees and fields covered with red and yellow poppies and edelweiss.

Night covers the plantations, pastures and mountain villages of the Fergan Valley.

The old Akmala and the young Communist Mamadshan have much to do: the ox and seven sheep have to be protected to the town, to be delivered to the Soviet, after which they have to return within 24 hours. It is a hot time, the work doesn't wait, but this can't be put off—it were sin. A great affair, a world's affair, because it is destined for men, who got imprisoned not for their own, but for the world's sake.

There, where the green stripes of vineyards are ending and the rose coloured flowers of the cotton tree are spreading to north, east and west, stands on the highway a caravansary for the rest of travellers—dekhans, returning from the fields and caravan leaders, transporting goods.

The gates of the caravansary are opened from dawn to dawn and the whole day, the whole night great "samovars"—tea urns from Tula, especially made for this purpose are breathing with steam. From sunset to sunset wood piles are burning in the court: "Kavardak," Pilaff for the travellers and "Shashlyk" and small meat pasty for "great" guests are cooked and roasted there.

30 versts lay behind Akmal and Mamadshan and it was naturally that they entered the caravansary to drink a cup of tea and to eat Pilaff. Afterwards, enveloped in their coats, they listened to the endless rumours about Bukhara, Choresma, the far Moscow and the mountainous lofty Afghanistan. . . .

You intend to sell him?—Ay, ay, a fine ox, says somebody from behind an "arba."

Good day, Akmal—sounds from another corner in a well known voice. What has happened. . . . Why do you sell in such a hot time?

How much will you have for them, busily asks the owner of the caravansary, pointing to the sheep.

They are not mine, I say—not mine . . . answers the old man, they will go abroad . . . haven't you heard? Haven't they been here? Eh-eh-eh . . . Haven't they told you, who sits in prison for us, who starves to death? Eh-eh-eh—This cattle is from our village—the sheep and the ox. The village gave them. I am driving them to Kokand. "You shall drive them, Akmal"—I was told—and now I am driving them. . . .

* * *

It dawns.

In a gigantic rose-coloured prairie the cotton tree plantations are spreading.

In inexpressible colours are flaming the far mountain branches of Tien-Shan.

Akmal and Mamadshan are following a mountain track and in the colours of dawn and in the endless waves of rose-coloured cotton trees they seem like shepherds in a fairy tale wandering to the fires of the rising sun.

AL. KOLOSSOFF.

The Empire Fliers

By LILLIAN BORGESON.
(All-American Anti-Imperialist League Service)

The so-called "good-will" flyers of the United States Army have just returned from their 16,000 mile flight to the countries of South and Central America. Behind the mask of their "good will" was the more real purpose of strengthening American Imperialism.

Imperialists Sent Them.

This flight was under the joint direction of the War and State Department, which in itself is significant. The trip has made possible a chartered route from the United States to the countries visited.

Air-route connections between the United States and the South American republics are as important to American capitalists as are any other trade routes to countries under their exploitation. Moreover, definite efforts were made during the flight, to consolidate the forces in South America which are closest to the United States.

A Maneuver.

American imperialism is entrenching itself more and more strongly in the countries of South and Central America. The "good will" flyers were but another maneuver of the financial interests in the United States, to tighten up their hold on the republics of the south.

It is a maneuver that is going on side by side with the action of United States troops in Nicaragua and the presence of the United States battleships along the coast line of South America, with the exploitation of South American resources by American imperialism. The people of South and Central America, as well as those of the United States, should have no illusions about the "good will" expeditions to South America.

Worker Gets $6,500.

A jury sitting before Supreme Court Justice Stephen Callaghan has awarded Joseph Zwick of Calverton $6,500 in his suit for damages against the Long Island Railroad Company for personal injuries suffered when the Shelter Island express was derailed August 12 at Calverton, L. I. Six persons were killed.

WORKERS! STOP THE MURDER OF SACCO AND VANZETTI!

DANGER OF WORLD WAR

By D. BENJAMIN.

THIRTEEN years ago, in April 1914, very few people in Europe and America dreamt or realized that a war was to come upon them which would result in 10,000,000 dead, 4,000,000 missing and 20,000,000 wounded.

Today, April 1927, very few people realize or dream that there is a danger of another world war, only on a larger scale, than the last one. The source of danger for the entire world is imperialist aggression in China. The great imperialist powers with their hundreds of millions investments in China; with hundreds of millions of people to exploit on a tremendous scale—wages of skilled workers in Shanghai are but $180 a year and afford opportunities for superprofits, with a potential market unrivalled in the entire world, an avenue of escape for the surplus of European and American capitalism—these imperialist powers are waging informal war upon the Chinese people, are ready to start a war against Soviet Russia and will fight among themselves for the rich prize of China.

* * *

THAT this means the enslavement of the Chinese people and the forcing of foreign rule upon them; that this means unspeakable misery and lower wages for European and American workers—due to the extremely low wages paid by the British, Japanese and American capitalists to the Chinese workers—that this means the killing of Chinese workers and peasants and American and European soldiers and sailors—all this means nothing to the foreign robbers who are interested only in plunder and booty.

But does it mean anything to you? Are you ready to fight for hands off China? Are you eager to demand the withdrawal of troops and battleships from Chinese soil and waters? Are you ready to fight against another imperialist war? If you are, then your post is in the Workers (Communist) Party, which is leading in the fight in this country against imperialist war and for freedom for the Chinese people from foreign oppression. Fill out the application blank in this issue and mail to 108 East 14th Street, New York City.

SNAPSHOTS OF LOS ANGELES

By JIM SEYMOUR

A building being remodeled, a sign at the entrance to the temporary enclosure reading: "No help of any kind wanted. KEEP OUT."

A windblown eastern magazine, driven into a corner, desperately flutters a full-page ad of the L. A. Chamber of Commerce which invites manufacturers to come to the land of the open shop and contented workers.

A fair haired girl, still good looking in spite of chronic malnutrition, makes the rounds in a vain search for work. Billboards stating that gentlemen prefer blondes. The girl continues her quest along the Babbitts and meets no preference.

An ever-spreading epidemic of signs bearing what is obviously the officiel slogan of the town: "For Rent." Vacant stores, vacant houses. A stranger asks a question of a citizen, probably from Iowa. He receives a vacant stare.

Clerks in Goy stores stand around twiddling their thumbs but ready to pounce like famished wolves upon any prospective buyer who may chance to enter.

A blowsy gospel-peddler harangues a bunch of disinterested stiffs and tells them that many men have tried to get along without Jesus but have never succeeded. Newspapers nearby announce that 400 million heathen Chinks have kicked over the traces.

A few miles away a million dollar building is being erected by slaves in the Sunny Sunerwald, who recently found Jesus in the Chicago Y. M. C. A. and slipped him a big forkful of kale previously harvested.

Triple-chinned bourgeois females, lacking the grace of Poland China hogs, waddle and grunt their way into a respectable swill-trough-eria that features a special 75 cent dinner at suppertime.

The fair haired girl, thru with her day's work of looking for work, passes without pausing. Despite her fatigue she has the grace of a fawn. She may eat elsewhere

Read The Daily Worker Every Day

IN THE CITY OF MILLS

By MARY B. TRASK.

One of the many problems we had when we opened the Playground for Strikers' Children in Passaic last summer, was how to care for the babies and smaller sisters and brothers that occasionally appeared there. It was, of course, little for us to care for the well-loved of these tiny youngsters, who fell one morning, running across the field, and broke her arm.

We picked her up—poor kid, she was trying hard to be good, but a four-year-old can not battle very well against cotton—picked her up and took her in the car to the hospital.

"Will you get the doctor, quick? I think this child has broken her arm!"

There was confusion and rushing about. One nurse was writing down the child's name and age, another ran skilled fingers down the injured arm.

Someone who seemed to be in charge reappeared. "The doctor is coming right away. Come down to ——" she broke off abruptly. Stood staring at the girl who held Catherine in her arms.

"I know you," she announced. "You're a striker, aren't you."

"Yes, what of it?"

"Is that a striker's child?"

"Yes."

"This hospital is not for strikers. You will have to take the child somewhere else for treatment."

It was not until she repeated her decision that we really understood. Somehow it had not seemed quite possible that a public hospital would refuse to care for a four-year-old child who was seriously hurt, even though that child's parents were striking for a Union.

SEND IN YOUR LETTERS

The DAILY WORKER is anxious to receive letters from its readers stating their views on the issues confronting the labor movement. It is our hope to develop a "Letter Box" department that will be of wide interest to all members of The DAILY WORKER family. Send in your letter today to "The Letter Box," The DAILY WORKER, 33 First street, New York City.

(Continued from first column)

fist of Labor to the bosses, bringing back the old time fear into them, fighting for a Labor Party, the building up of the workers' organizations, and all this down under the leadership of the Workers (Communist) Party, this is the big achievement of the campaign.

Passaic is not dead, no, it is alive! The militant struggle of more than a year, which has put this little textile city on the map, was not fought in vain. Just as the strike was a great event of the American labor movement, showing the way to organize the unorganized, so is this election campaign a historical event, showing the connection between the economic and political struggle, a milestone in the development of a political mass party of labor in the United States.

With the Young Worker

Join the Navy — See the World

By S. BRODY.

The iron fist of American Imperialism has been gathered in New York Harbor. Lined up in the Hudson from 57th Street to Yorkers, stand 129 man-killing monsters: the Atlantic and Pacific fleets. This extraordinary display has apparently been prearranged and organized to the most minor details. Navy launches carrying the crowds to the battleships, officers parading in full military regalia, shore-policemen parading along the piers with immense clubs resembling baseball bats; in short, everything that goes with war is there.

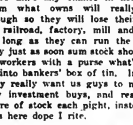
Parallel with this unusual concentration of battleships in a single port, a wide campaign of publicity has been launched in New York City. High schools and various boys' clubs are sent down to the fleet in large delegations, the Navy recruiting stations are working overtime, the kept press devotes long columns daily in glorification of "our gobs, our blue jackets, our sailors."

All this is no mere accident. It is now obvious that an intensive campaign has been started for the following reasons:

1. To draw young workers into the navy for the purpose of training them for impending blood-baths.

2. To create "atmosphere" and get American workers to think war a gradual nursing into a war hysteria.

3. To show other Imperialist Powers that Wall Street is ready for business.



Now more than ever must American young workers, those who are called on to fight for the interests of American financiers, refuse to be fooled by the various traps sprung in order to attract them into either the Navy, the Army, or the C.M.T.C. Elaborate displays like the one we are at present witnessing in this city must be unmasked for what they are: another indication that soon the American youth will be called on to give its blood for Wall Street.

Stock! Hell, No!

(By BILL LLOYD, Federated Press)

You take sum savin's from your sock and buy an ounce of bosses' stock. It's printed in sum colored ink and all lit up to make you think that you're as rich as all creation and goin' strong to own the nation.

I hope you don't gulp down the dope that buyin' stock is workers' hope. It's precious little you can get from your weekly wage, I bet. And there ain't any chance in hell that them what owns will really sell enough so they will lose their grip on railroad, factory, mill and ship. So long as they can run the show, they just as soon sum stock should go to workers with a purse what's thin as into bankers' box of tin. In fact, they really want us guys to make a few investment buys, and real our share of stock each night, instead of this here dope I rite.

Keep cool in your financial collar; the world ain't offered for a dollar.

DON'T JUMP ON 'EM! THAT'S TOO ROUGH!

Reason with them. Talk logically and simply. Explain why they ought to subscribe to the Young Worker. If they are older explain why they ought to subscribe to The DAILY WORKER. Don't forget the sub rate of $1 a year. Send the sub to the Young Worker Sub. Committee, 33 First Street, New York City.

Jack Dempsey has returned to the noble pursuit of knocking noses. His illness has vanished, his ambition has risen—to increase his bank-roll. He is soon to fight the Spanish Woodchopper Paulino Uzcudun. If he manages to knock the ax-wielder back to the Pyrenees he fights the winner of the Sharkey-Maloney petting party (very likely Sharkey). Granting a victory he will again meet Tunney.

Three victories would mean at least a million dollars. All of which proves that if you work hard, believe in God and will not join a union you are bound to succeed. A local publication "what pays good money for making smott krecks"—payed a guy for writing that Jack Dempsey is "a good prize-fighter." You can't improve on that. It describes all boxing.

* * *

This is the time of the year when Workers Sports Clubs get busy. And this is the place to tell the world about it. Send in the results of your sports activities—anything from a hike to a marathon.

* * *

Meanwhile our tennis champ, Bill Tilden, has gone to Europe to regain lost laurels. Age has creeped up on him. His bones, muscles and eyesight don't respond as beautifully as they had. But he has made a remarkable come-back sweeping everything before him in the recent Southern Championships. If he can keep this up there's trouble ahead for European champs. Tilden in good form is without equal.

Labor Sports Make Progress

(By Labor Sports Union).

Probably no industry in the country has furnished as many major league baseball stars, as coal mining. Probably the most famous of these stars was Mordecai Brown, the great three-fingered baseball pitcher of a decade ago. Stanley Coveleskie, former Cleveland pitcher, and at present with Washington, Jim Bottomley, scintillating Cardinal first baseman, and Harold Stricklett of the White Sox, are only a few of the coal-diggers who threw away their shovels to make a living at the more congenial occupation of playing ball.

Play During Strike.

With a strike closing down the mines in the bituminous fields, over a hundred thousand miners find time hanging heavily on their hands. The younger miners are taking advantage of their leisure to go in for athletics and in the coal district at this time of the year, this means baseball. Union organizers point out that it is essential to keep the young fellows busy, in order to maintain their morale, and keep them from drifting to the non-union fields or to the cities. In such a situation it would be an excellent thing to organize, not only union teams, but leagues, that will stimulate and provide inter-local competition.

Wants News.

With the organized labor movement taking a growing interest in the development of sports activity within its ranks as evidenced by the spread of union baseball teams, the problem of labor sports publicity comes to the front. In this connection, Labor Sports Union is putting out a press service which is issued weekly, without charge, to cover 100 labor papers. However, a press service must have correspondents and these the Labor Sports Press Service badly needs. It will be glad to receive news of any trade union sports events. Such news should be sent in to 453 North Ave., Chicago, Ill.

JOIN OUR RANKS
YOUNG WORKERS LEAGUE
National Office: 1113 West Washington Boulevard, Chicago, Ill.
New York Office: 108 East 14th Street, New York City, N. Y.
Read The Daily Worker

HANDS OFF CHINA! STOP ATTACK ON THE SOVIET UNION!

THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHES FOR THE CONSIDERATION OF THE WORKERS FACTS FOR THE 40-HOUR WEEK FOR A LABOR PARTY

THE DAILY WORKER

NATIONAL EDITION

Entered as second-class matter at the Post Office at New York, N. Y., under the act of March 3, 1879.

Vol. IV. No. 100. SUBSCRIPTION RATES: In New York, by mail, $8.00 per year. Outside New York, by mail, $4.00 per year. NEW YORK, TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1927 Published Daily except Sunday by THE DAILY WORKER PUBLISHING CO., 33 First Street, New York, N. Y. Price 3 Cents

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY IN SACCO-VANZETTI PLEA

LAW FACULTIES OF 11 COLLEGES JOIN IN APPEAL

Nation's Biggest Jurists Plead for Two

Columbia University, generally regarded as America's highest institution of learning, practically went on record yesterday for a complete review of the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Fourteen members of the Columbia law faculty signed the appeal to governor Fuller and were joined by nine members of the Yale Law School and six members of the University of Kansas Law School.

Adding to the impressive academic demand that Governor Fuller intervene to prevent the electrocution of the two Italian workers on July 10, 32 members of the law faculties at Cornell University and the Universities of Illinois, Minnesota, Missouri, Oklahoma, Indiana, Iowa, Ohio and Texas authorized their agreement with the purpose of the Columbia letter.

Give Expert Opinion.

The Columbia appeal, reinfoced by the most learned jurists in nearly every recognized first rate American law school, is deemed the most impressive appeal yet made to Governor Fuller. The university professors speak as men trained in the law. They have investigated every phase of the celebrated Sacco-Vanzetti case, and their verdict is that a miscarriage of justice is imminent.

That the noted jurists are chiefly concerned in public "confidence" in the legal hokus-pokus is indicated in the significant paragraph:

"The most admirable judicial system sometimes slips, or seems to slip. It is such occasional seeming that shakes confidence; and when confidence is shaken, it is shaken not in the single instance only, but in the structure as a whole."

Members of the law faculties disclaim any intention of officially representing their universities. But in the case of Columbia, for example, the fact that 14 of the 15 members of the law faculty signed the appeal puts the institution on record just as the unanimous appeal from the Harvard Law School carried the unmistakable conviction that Harvard, very cream of Boston itself, doubted the brand of justice used to railroad Sacco and Vanzetti.

President Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia did not sign the document sent to Fuller. He is not a member of the law faculty.

The text of the letter is:

New York, N. Y.
May 7, 1927.

To His Excellency, Alvan T. Fuller, Governor of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, Executive Chamber, State House, Boston, Massachusetts.

Your Excellency:

There are a number of facts which make it seem not improper for us whose chief concern is with the study of the law and legal institutions of this country to address you with refarence to the case of Sacco and Vanzetti, and to join with those members of the Massachusetts Bar who have requested that you inquire, perhaps by the appointment of a special commission, into whether in that case justice was accomplished, and whether there may not be occasion for the exercise of executive clemency.

Beyond State Limits.

1. The interest and concern aroused by that case have extended beyond the bonds of a single Commonwealth. We are affected by that interest not only as citizens, but as teachers of the law.

2. The belief, whether well founded or not, is widely held that in the case of Sacco and Vanzetti there may have been confusion of two issues—that of the defendant's guilt of murder and that of their radicalism; and that such confusion may have obscured decision of the real question under trial. We believe it most unfortunate that such a belief should exist, even though it be unfounded. Only a review of the whole case by an impartial body can dispel the belief, if proves unfounded. Only such a review can afford sound ground for curative action, if the facts should prove to warrant that.

Whatever the event, faith and confidence in our judicial institutions cannot but be strengthened by an inquiry which will make the facts clear for all time.

(Continued on Page Three)

Stimson Hounds Moncada To Complete Surrender; Giving Only Eight Days

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Gen. Jore Moncada, Liberal commander in Nicaragua, has agreed to try to disarm his forces within eight days, the state department was informed today by Henry L. Stimson, President Coolidge's personal representative in Nicaragua.

"Moncada returns to his army to undertake to disarm his troops and will do so insofar as it may be in his power. When returning to turn over arms he will notify Admiral Latimer (in charge of American forces), who will send a commission to take custody of such arms and ammunition. This Moncada will try to do within eight days," Stimson said. Moncada yielded to Stimson's blunt threat to use force to the extreme if he did not make his men surrender.

Tornado Kills, Wrecks In Kansas and Missouri; Seventeen Die in Texas

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 9.—Sixteen are dead and seventy-five injured today as a result of two tornadoes, one in Kansas and the other in Missouri, which struck near Hutchinson, Kan., and Eldon, Mo.

Eleven were killed near Hutchinson and damage throughout Kingman, Barner, Reno and McPherson counties is expected to reach $200,000.

Eight hundred homes were damaged in that section.

* * *

One Killed In St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., May 9.—One Negro was killed, another seriously injured and heavy property damage was caused by a severe wind and rain storm which struck this city today.

Large plateglass windows in downtown stores were broken and trees uprooted throughout the city.

* * *

DALLAS, Tex., May 9.—Ed Gibson, head of the Collin County Chapter of the American Red Cross, telephoning from McKinney, today placed the known dead in the tornado that swept through the town of Nevada early today at 17. Gibson estimated at least 100 were injured seriously when trapped in their beds by falling timbers and debris.

Gibson said that three-quarters of Nevada's 600 population are homeless and that nine-tenths of the business houses were destroyed. He placed the property damage at close to $800,000.

Chicago Bankers Arrive In Moscow to Look Over Jewish Colonial Plans

MOSCOW, May 9.—Felix M. Warburg, New York banker, president of the Jewish Joint Committee, with a group of high officials of that organization including Albert G. Beck of Chicago, arrived here today enroute for a tour of inspection of the Jewish farming colonies in the Ukraine and Crimea.

Building Collapse Entombs 50 Women

CHICAGO, May 9. — Between 20 and 50 woman were entombed yesterday when a four-story general store building suddenly collapsed during a bargain-day rush.

Cries of tha injured filled the air as police, firemen and volunteers dug into the ruins.

The collapse, probably caused by excavating operations in an adjoining lot, came without warning. Supports placed against the store to hold it up suddenly gave way and the structure tumbled into the hole.

Everyone in the store at the time was carried into the hole, it was reported.

Chaplin Defends Film On Plagiarism Charge

Charles Chaplain, the idol of countless million screen fans, took the witness stand in federal court here yesterday during the trial of the $50,000 suit for alleged plagiarism brought against him by Leo Loeb. The plaintiff charges Chaplin's film "Shoulder Arms" was pirated from a manuscript Loeb submitted to the comedian's producing company for consideration in 1918.

GREAT CAMPAIGN FOR LABOR VOTE ENDS IN PASSAIC

Weisbord and Ticket in Final Speeches

PASSAIC, N. J., May 9.—The election campaign closed here tonight with great enthusiasm displayed by the supporters of the working class candidates—Albert Weisbord, Simon Bambach and Simon Smalkinson.

Several open air meetings were held where final instructions were given on how to vote for the labor candidates. They were addressed by the candidates and Sylvan A. Pollack of The DAILY WORKER and Emil Gardos, sub-district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party. Cheer after cheer greeted the speeches as the anti-Fascist nominees were exposed.

An unprecedented vote for the labor candidates in Tuesday's election is expected. The campaign headquarters, 27 Dayton Ave., was a bee-hive of activity up to a late hour tonight making arrangements for election day. It is hoped to have watchers cover the polling places so all of labor's vote will be counted.

Like The DAILY WORKER.

Many workers were commenting today on the special edition of The DAILY WORKER, 5000 of which were distributed here on Saturday. It is believed that many new readers will be obtained for The DAILY WORKER as it has been the only English language newspaper that has presented the point of view of the labor group fairly.

The Workers (Communist) Party has also gained a great deal of influence during this campaign. Altho in a non-partisan election, all the candidates are members of and endorsed by political parties. With the exception of the three labor candidates they are all members of either the republican or democratic parties. The labor nominees are members of the Workers (Communist) Party., that has endorsed their candidacy.

Open and Flagrant Perjury Frames Up Mexican for Murder

CHICAGO, Dec. 9.—The trial of Augustin Morales, Mexican worker, for the alleged murder of Policeman Lyman J. Stahl at Melrose Park, Dec. 7th, continued all last week. Friday night it was adjourned till Monday. The trial is the most dramatic ever held in Cook County. The defense left not a stone unturned to save an innocent man who was framed.

Caught Lying.

Perjury of the rankest kind was introduced by policemen of Melrose Park—so vile that on cross-examination tha witnesses stood self-convicted before the jury. The sentiment of the crowd in the court room has been all in favor of the accused.

A dramatic incident was when a woman came to Mary Belle Spencer, Morales' attorney, in the corridor, with tears streaming down her face, and said: "Mrs. Spencer, I am an aunt of the dead Officer Stahl. I wish you to give to that poor boy in the court room my deepest sympathy." And with that sha hurried away, choked with sobbing.

Morales Impressive.

Morales, looking utterly tired out, took the stand in his own defense Friday afternoon. Through his interpreter, J. B. Durand, he told a sincere, impressive story that tallied so closely with his testimony at the inquest that the state's attorney on cross-examination could only peck away at a few minor details, one of which was cleared up to the satisfaction of the defense by the state's own interpreter, who was in court to check up the interpreter for the defense.

As the close of court on Friday, the general opinion was that Morales was already as good as free. A verdict is expected late Monday night.

Calles Dictatorship Rumors Denied Here

The Mexican consulate here yesterday flatly denied newspaper reports that President Calles has established a dictatorship in Mexico.

Suddenly Stricken

Serious illness of President Lauri Relander, above, of Finland, caused King Christian of Denmark and King Haakon of Norway to cancel visits they had planned to Finland.

Wage Increase Goes to Train Dispatchers On Several Big Railroads

CHICAGO, (FP).—Increases ranging from $10 to $20 a month have been obtained through mediation on a number of railroads by the American Train Dispatchers' Association, the national headquarters in Chicago announce. The raises cover a number of important roads, including the New York Central and Big Four ($12.50 to $17.50 a month); New Haven ($131); Reading ($10). The $20 raise was granted by the Huntington & Broad Top Mt. Railroad of Pennsylvania where dispatchers get $215.20 a month, compared with $87 a month 10 years ago.

The dispatchers maximum on the N. Y. Central has become $252.50 a month with the same scale applying to the Big Four, Boston & Albany, Monongahela, Pittsburgh & Lake Erie and the Rutland road. The New Haven maximum is $250 a month, the Reading and the Cotton Belt's $255. The rates became effective in March and April.

Mediation on the Southern Pacific started May 2.

INSURANCE COMPANIES ROB MILLIONS WHILE ADVOCATING THRIFT

PREVIOUS EVENTS OF INSURANCE EXPOSE.

The "Big Four" are the Metropolitan, Prudential, John Hancock and the Colonial Life Insurance Companies.

On April 11th The DAILY WORKER started its expose of the "Big Four" weekly payment life insurance companies. The articles attracted nation-wide attention and on April 27th Governor Smith ordered Superintendent of Insurance James A. Beha to make inquiries into the charges made in the Harrison articles.

Following the Governor's order William J. Tully, one of the targets of the WORKER attack resigned from his official position with the Metropolitan Life.

The DAILY WORKER is continuing its expose in this and subsequent articles which are appearing daily.

* * *

By CHARLES YALE HARRISON.

When a man turns ultra-pious, watch his private life. When billion dollar corporations start hollering about thrift, watch your pockets.

After all is said and done life insurance is but a method of saving. A most unprofitable one, to be sure, but a saving method nevertheless.

What, then, is the difference between a genuine savings bank and a pseudo one, such as a life insurance company?

The savings bank pays back to the depositor his deposits with interest, less necessary expenses. The insurance company, in theory, does the same thing.

Policies Pay Salaries

The difference is merely that the savings bank undertakes to repay to each individual depositor his entire deposits with interest, while the insurance company undertakes to pay only those who do not reach the average expected age (unexpected death claims) more than they have deposited and to those who exceed the average age less than they have deposited, including interest.

How many wage earners who insure in the "Big Four" would do so if they were told that for every dollar they pay, 40 cents of it will go towards paying lavish salaries to officers and to extravagant expenditures generally?

May Not Get Anything

How many wage earners would take on the load of paying life insurance premiums, in many cases several dollars a week, if they knew that they stand one chance in ten of ever seeing their money back?

Yet these things are perfectly true. Only one out of every hundred terminated policies is an endowment policy. Only nine out of every hundred terminated policies are paid as death

(Continued on Page Two)

GREAT BRITAIN FORCED TO SHELVE PLANS FOR PARTITION OF CHINA; CHAMBERLAIN THREATENS WAR ON NATIONALISTS AT FIRST OPPORTUNITY

5000 Carpenters Locked Out in Chicago; Refuse To Accept Wage Slash

CHICAGO (FP) May 9.—The second big labor trouble since William Hale Thompson became mayor of Chicago last month is the lockout May 9 of 5000 union carpenters in the woodworking establishments. By overwhelming referendum vote the men rejected a cut of 15 cents an hour negotiated by their officers. The employers refuse to employ the men at the old scale of $1.25 an hour.

The lockout of 250 union typos, pressmen and binders at the White Printing House continues without change.

Union Coal Firm Turns Scab and Opens One Mine

PITTSBURGH, May 9.—The Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, one of the biggest coal companies in western Pennsylvania, has opened its Coverdale mine with scab labor.

This is the first Terminal pit to be opened since the strike began on April 1. The company terminated its union contract when the strike started and announced it would operate non-union, but no attempt has been made until now to carry out the threat.

Scabs were imported from Johnstown, Pa., where hundreds of miners are unemployed. Union men of District 2 did affective work in picketing the job agencies of Johnstown, holding down the number of scabs shipped out.

The Pittsburgh Termiual Company was the biggest union firm in the Pittsburgh area and is exceeded in size only by the Pittsburgh Coal Co.

Fear Growing Strength of Kuomintang as Feng Prepares for Big Drive on Peking

Chiang Kai-shek, Weakened by Peasant Attacks, Rushes Reinforcements to Nanking

LONDON, May 9.—Deserted by the other imperialist powers and facing the opposition of the labor movement, the British diehard cabinet has been compelled to shelve—for the time being—its plans for open war against Nationalist China.

Sir Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister, announced in the House of Commons this afternoon that an ultimatum on the Nanking incident is "inexpedient."

That the British die-hards have undergone a change of heart was made clear by Chamberlain. The Baldwin government has no more love for a united free China than it had last month or last year.

Still Wear War.

Stating the position of the British die-hards, Chamberlain said, "Reviewing all facts, we have decided that the present application of sanctions for the Nanking outrages or failure to observe the conditions of the Hankow agreement is inexpedient, however fully justified."

Wait for Opportune Moment.

Implying that Great Britain will resume her war against China at the first opportune moment, Chamberlain continued, "In these circumstances Great Britain does not propose to address any further note to Eugene Chen. We have informed the other powers. We have added that we reserve full liberty of action as to the future and in particular respect to any further outrages."

Fear National Strength.

Observers here point out that the "inexpediency of sanctions" is due (1) to the recent changes in the Chinese policies of the United States and Japan dictated by finance capital in the case of the former and industrial capital, fearing a boycott of its goods, in the case of the latter (2) to the rapidly growing strength of the Nationalist government at Hankow (3) to the opposition of the labor movement to British war on China (4) to the large deficits in the enormous British budgets of the last two years.

That Great Britain will continue to subsidize to the northern war lords and continue to aid the counter-revolution, no one here doubts.

* * *

SHANGHAI, May 9.—General Feng Yuh Siang, the "Christian General," is again reported to be mobilizing his troops for an attack on the northerner at Honan. General Feng is reported to have proceeded to Loyang to take charge of this drive, which is in support of the Haukow Nationalists.

Peasants Attack Chiang.

Chiang Kai-shek is reported to have been considerably weakened by attacks from "Red Lances," an armed peasants' organization that has been moving slower and closer to the Hankow Nationalists. Chiang is rushing reinforcements to Nanking in attempt to stem the attacks of the peasants.

* * *

Fessenden Wants War.

HANKOW, April 26 (delayed at Shanghai).—An editorial in the People's Tribune, organ of the Nationalist government, points out that the head of the Shanghai Municipal Council of the International Settlement, Stirling Fessenden, American lawyer, has consistently supported Chang Tsung-chang, Shantungese warlord, notorious for his extreme brutality.

Fessenden in addition to instigating the picketing of the Soviet Union consulate, has given his open support to the Shantungese and has appealed for foreign intervention in China.

* * *

Nationalists Stronger.

LONDON, May 9.—Eugene Chen, Nationalist foreign minister in the Hankow government, is quoted in an interview in the Daily Express as stating that the Nationalist movement in Hankow is growing stronger every day.

Chen declared that General Chiang Kai-shek had been ousted from the Nationalist movement of Hankow because he "attempted to substitute personal authority for the authority of the Party."

FLOOD SPREADS IN LOUISIANA; BANKERS PROFIT

Hoover Plans Companies To Handle U. S. Money

BATON ROUGE, La., May 9.—Levca defenders were driven from their ground along the west bank of the Mississippi today a few miles above Torras, Louisiana, where Engineers have been directing an intensive fight for three days to hold in check the ever swelling crest of the nation's most devastating flood.

New Channel.

Behind the Torras Levee stretches a potential new channel to the sea through half a dozen parishes south of the Red River still comparatively untouched by the blighting waters. A break here would open a new spillway through the Atchafalaya valley to the Gulf carrying off sufficient water, in the opinion of army engineers, to "break the back of the flood." It would drive tens of thousands from their homes in Point Coupe, West Baton Rouge, Iberville, St. Martin and Assumption Parishes, and add hundred of square miles to Louisiana's 3,400 square mile inland sea.

As the waters washed over the top of the crumbling levees above Torras, new havoc rolled down from the flooded Northeastern Parishes to three vulnerable spots in the Bayou Des Glaises Levees in the Red River District.

"Rehabilitation" Corporations.

While the final spasms of the Mississippi's orgy spread new disaster through Central Louisiana, machinery was being rigged in the three great victim states, Arkansas, Louisiana, and Mississippi to enable the business and commercial interests to make a fair profit off of the distress of their fellow citizens.

Hoover's Plan.

Under a plan worked out in conferences between secretary of Commerce Hoover and Mississippi officials, state financial and commercial

(Continued on Page Two)

Arrest Girls for China Protest Near British Consulate

BALTIMORE, May 9.—Arrested for picketing the British Consulate to protest against the unofficial British war against Nationalist China, Misses Sonia Borinsky and Rebecca Sklar were taken to police headquarters, where they were severely questioned yesterday. Both young women were finally released.

When arrested the pickets were walking toward the consulate carrying large signs reading "Hands Off China" and "Keep Our Boys Out of China." The police department had announced that it would stop any attempt to picket the consulate.

Police Capt. Burns warned Misses Borinsky and Sklar not to participate in any further attempt to picket the British consulate. What action the police will take if another protest against British intervention in China is made here is unknown. Capt. Burns refused to discuss the case except to say that it was "police business."

INSURANCE COMPANIES ROB MILLIONS

(Continued from Page One)

claims. The rest of the policies are issued in one form or another to the tune of millions of policyholders who hope their contracts every year.

"Save Your Old Age"

The six million policies which terminated last year on the books of the "Big Four" were distributed as follows:

Death	564,845
Maturity	121,729
Expiry	116,243
Surrender	799,520
Lapse	4,742,121

At this point I would advise the reader to get hold of some of the "Big Four" advertising literature and read the alluring promises contained therein. "Save for Your Old Age." "Are the Wife and Kiddies Protected." "Are You Making Provision for Your Sunset Days?"

Read the glowing accounts of how a policy in the "Big Four" will solve all of your economic ills. Save and beat the system, save and become another Ford or Rockefeller; try and do it.

Then take a good look at the termination figures listed above and see what chance you have of ever realizing your pipe dreams. Out of six million terminated policies nearly five million are total loss lapses.

These big insurance companies advertise the fact that they pay all claims, and underwrite "Accident" when mature. But your chances are 1 to 5 of it happening. And when an endowment policy matures you get your own money back—without interest.

In view of the fact that weekly payment policies do not have a cash redemption value until they have been in force for ten years, and, as most of these policies lapse before they have been in force three years, all money which has been deposited by the erstwhile policyholder is irretrievably lost.

Conservatively estimated the "Big Four" made upwards of fifty million dollars last year on lapsed policies alone. What happens to this money?

Who Gets It?

These companies are so-called mutual companies; all money earned is to be turned back to the policyholders, yet in the various reports written by these companies for the Superintendent of Insurance not a word is mentioned about the money made on lapses—and the Superintendent never thinks of asking about it.

In the face of these figures the croakings of the "Big Four" about thrift is an enormous joke.

But nothing to laugh about.

Chaplain Bars Workers' Books From Leavenworth

Three books mailed by The Daily Worker Publishing Company to the "New Era," organ of the prisoners at Leavenworth, Kansas, have been returned marked "disapproved."

The notice of "disapproval" comes from the chaplain's office and is signed by the prison's chaplain, James W. Reed.

The books returned are "The Awakening of China," by James Dolsen; "The Government as Strike Breaker," by Jay Lovestone and "Elements of Political Education," compiled by Bukharin.

Copies of the "I Confess" and Coolidge's speeches are allowed in the prison.

Wave Lengths Given.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Sixty new temporary broadcasting permits were issued today by the Federal Radio commission. This list practically completes the commission's temporary radio set up. It was learned. Officially said that within a few weeks a general allocation of semi-permanent wave lengths would be announced.

Boy Victim of Shotgun.

Accidentally shot by a rifle in the hands of his high-school chum, James MacDonald, 18 years old, is dead at Peekskill today.

Needle Trade Defense

Bazaar—Bazaar—Bazaar!

Only a couple of days left!—and now we must have carpenters, electricians and sign painters or we will be in trouble. This means you, we need you without fail.

• • •

The Straw Hat Season.

Bald men don't need hats of course. All others can get their new summer hats at the Bazaar at half price. Leave it to the Joint Defense Committee.

Millinery will be combined with the Dress Department in the rear balcony so the ladies can have no complaint that too much attention is being paid to the men.

• • •

A Clothing Store.

Nothing less! The workers from the gentle Mr. Beckerman's Amalgamated will probably make the best showing of any individual group at the Bazaar. Besides the complete line of the G. G. G. clothes, obtained by them, there will be a great deal of clothes made by individuals. All suits and topcoats will be altered to fit, right at the Bazaar, where a complete tailoring outfit including a machine and pressing table will be installed.

• • •

A Few More Booths.

The Bath Beach Workers Club and Women's Council No. 10, have applied for a booth. Two photographers have donated their services to the Bazaar already. The Bronx Workers Club, the West Bronx Workers Club and the Bronx Youth Workers Club have combined on one booth. There will be a drug store, but no hospital we hope.

• • •

A Letter From a Prisoner's Wife.

Dear Friends of the Relief Committee:

I am sending my present to the Bazaar for the defense of the union. Although I am a prisoner's wife, I am not in prison as yet. I am trying my best and using my freedom in helping my brothers in prison, who were sent there by Sigman and his clique. Hoping you will make a big success, I remain, Mrs. H. Rosenblum (Wife of Harry Rosenblum, Cutter Local 10, Ledger No. 8423.)

This letter was accompanied by a beautiful hand embroidered bungalow apron which will be auctioned off at the Bazaar.

• • •

Bazaar Conference Tonight.

All workers for the Bazaar will meet tonight at 7:30 P. M. at Local 22, 16 W. 21st Street. Final plans will be made, committees assigned and the work in general will be explained in detail.

There will be a special conference of workers who will be in the restaurant. The restaurant can return big profits if properly managed and this depends on the loyalty and work of the volunteers who will be in the restaurant. The best workers are needed for this job and these are requested to be present tonight without fail.

Put Some Power In That Kick!

Don't waste your energy in idle protest. When reaction attacks The DAILY WORKER and you want to fight—strike your blows where they will be most effective.

Kick in With a Sub.

Every subscription is a striking answer to the enemies of Labor—every sub is more strength to the blows that are dealt every day by The DAILY WORKER.

Don't only kick. . . . . Kick in!

SUBSCRIPTION RATES:

Outside of New York	In New York
Per Yr. $6.00	Per Yr. $8.00
Six Mo. . 3.25	Six Mo. . 4.25
3 Mo. . . 2.00	3 Mo. . . 2.50

The DAILY WORKER
33 First Street
New York

Enclosed $ ..... for ..... mos. sub to.

Name .....

Street .....

City .....

State .....

Mass Murder Expert's Super-Torpedo Dream Is Halted by Death's Hand

Death ended the efforts of Hudson Maxim, famous expert on mass murder, to double the deadliness of the naval torpedo. While the body lay yesterday at Lake Hopatcong, the plans for substituting ultro-glycerin for power-heated steam as a motive power for torpedoes were definitely delayed until Maxim's successor gets on the job.

A foe of pacifists to the end, the inventor contended that the United States, committed to imperialism, was bound to clash head-on with other first-rate powers, and should be in a position to conquer. His efforts were devoted toward making the Yankee brand of imperialism invincible.

Maxim's most famous discovery was smokeless powder.

Soviet Leader Speaks in Berlin Stadium Tonight

Dawes Plan Still Stalks

BERLIN, May 9.—The "Steel Helmets" demonstration, which began in the streets of Berlin on the basis of a warning message by Hugo Stinnes, Ruhr industrialist, that the policy of reconciliation with the allies and the Dawes Plan must go on.

At the same time Count Westarp, leader of the nationalists, in a speech at Essen, declared: "The German nationalists will continue to work for the restoration of the monarchy."

The net results of the "Steel Helmets'" demonstration, according to the police was six seriously injured, forty slightly injured, and 1,000 arrested, most of these having been released already. Prince Eitel Friedrich, Prince August Wilhelm and Prince Oscar today marched with the "Steel Helmets" at Potsdam, concluding the demonstration. It is considered a failure.

Flood Spreads Over State; Bankers Gain

(Continued from Page One)

interests will set up rehabilitation corporations through which the resources of the federal intermediate credit system will be made available to them. A survey preliminary to establishment of similar corporations in Louisiana was ready in the offices of State Relief Dictator John M. Parker today as secretary Hoover arrived aboard the river steamer Control.

It's Business.

The government could have given money outright, but Coolidge "economy" policy, which permits extraordinary expenditures merely for naval and military purposes, is in the road. Also, the loaning of the money provided by the government will permit the local banks a good percentage as profit, and this is a business administration.

Danger Grows.

In the extreme northwestern quarter of the state the Arkansas overflow is still rising in Morehouse and Ouachita Parishes, with Monroe, the sixth city of the state, defending her levees as never before in history. Emergency calls for diking materials were sent to Western Louisiana last night as the waters reached the danger mark on the railroad embankments which form the protecting wall around the south edge of the city.

Phone reports to State Relief Headquarters here today were that armies of men worked in endless chain formation throughout the night piling sand bags against the ominous tide. Large sections of the threatened sector behind the railroad embankments have been evacuated. Monroe's population is more than 17,000. A week ago the locality was considered so secure that a refugee camp was established within the city limits.

Coolidge Again Refuses.

WASHINGTON, May 9.—Senator Reed (D) of Missouri today urged all democratic and a few liberal senators to join with him in demanding that President Coolidge call a special session of congress to administer flood relief.

Despite Reed's insistence, the White House reiterated today that President Coolidge saw no need for an extra session at this time.

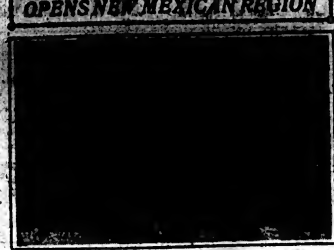
Unknown Man Found Murdered in Queens

The body of an unidentified man about 24 years old was found lying face downward today, with a gunshot wound in the left side of the head, at 126th Place and the Conduit Blvd., South Ozone Park, Queens. Police and medical examinar Howard W.

BULGARIA

The following is an example of the conditions in the Bulgarian prisons:

In the district prison of Philippopel, which contains 1600 political prisoners, the following cases are worth mentioning:



Sentenced to death—22 prisoners, among them a women.

Sentenced to 15 years hard labor—the peasant Stajko Zerwoski because he had hidden some time from the police, which burnt down his house. The teacher Walko Nozarow, 50 years old, because he had hidden from the police for 10 days during the mass arrests; a family (mother and daughter, the father received imprisonment for life) because they had hidden their son or brother respectively. from the police; the old woman, Rada Kementschaschiwa, 68 years old, because she had hidden her son from the police (her son was sentenced to death). As a consequence of the moral and physical tortures through which she passed the old woman became insane, but had to remain in prison.

Probe Forest Fires.

Search for the mysterious firebug whose depredations have left a $300,000 trail of damage from Purchase to Mt. Kisco, was concentrated at Tarrytown yesterday, following the report of four fires over the week-end, all of which were found to be of incendiary origin.

OPENS NEW MEXICAN REGION

Completion of the Salsipuedes viaduct, Mexico, over Salsipuedes (Pass-If-You-Can) Canyon, is the last link in a new 1000-mile stretch of railroad linking central Mexico with the rich west coast of Mexico. The bridge is 660 feet long and 240 feet high. Cost of the bridge and railroad was $14,000,000.

What's What in Washington

COOLIDGE CELEBRATES THIRD TERM CHANCES BY BOASTING OF STRONG ARM POLICY IN NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, May 9. (FP).—Out of the White House, still ringing with the jolly report by National Chairman Butler that the Western prairies are afire with enthusiasm for Coolidge, comes a new doctrine of International conduct. It is so simple that it ought to apply equally well to American politics, such as the troublesome incidents of Mr. Frank Smith in Illinois, and Mr. Bill Vare in Pennsylvania.

The "Hands Up" Policy

This doctrine was stated in connection with the Stimson letter to Gen. Moncada, military commander of the Nicaraguan Liberals. It was: The method by which we get peace in Nicaragua is not important; the thing that the public should keep its eye on is the fact that we get what we go after, which is pacification.

That is to say, Coolidge sent Stimson to Nicaragua to tell the Liberals that the United States government had decided to conquer them by gunfire unless they surrendered immediately. The method did not matter to the Coolidge administration; the Latin American republics might protest if they dared, but probably they would not dare. Washington demanded instant surrender, regardless of international law and regardless of the American constitution, which entrusts the war-making power to Congress.

Celebrating Good News

The White House was feeling good enough to confess its strong-arm policy, because there had been a happy political breakfast. Butler had been called upon to tell the guests, including Sen. Borah and Speaker Nick Longworth, how Butler had found the party clamoring for four more years of Coolidge, when Butler went into the West to inquire.

Longworth grinned and passed his plate for some more sausage, while Borah laid away a second cup of coffee. Neither of these possible candidates disputed Butler's romance. Someone said afterward that the breakfast party renominated Cal by acclamation. Later in the day the White House let the hungry press know that Butler had made a most satisfactory report.

However, Congress has still to meet in December, and the Smith and Vare scandals have still to be explored, and these two senators-elect, or senators-non-elect as the Senate may determine, are bringing pressure on Coolidge to stand by them. If he sidesteps, as he has sidestepped Sinclair and Doheny in recent months, they may embarrass him in the convention. There is where the beauty of the "no squeamishness" rule for Nicaragua comes in, if the administration decides to look upon Smith and Vare as marytrs to Democratic intrigue.

Maybe Congress, next winter, will probe the mystery of the documents which came into the hands of President Calles of Mexico, and which have never been explained by all the press yarns printed as to their probable contents.

If Congress does get the facts, it will perhaps answer these questions, now current in "high circles": Was George Barr Baker, confidential agent of Secretary Hoover, invited to inspect 200 documents in possession of the Mexican government? Did these documents include files of letters from Ambassador Sheffield to Secretary Kellogg, and from Kellogg to Sheffield? Did Kellogg, writing to Sheffield, bitterly complain against Hoover, whose commercial agents in Mexico were sending to Hoover a constant drool of information on Mexican conditions? Did Hoover get copies of these letters? Did he take them to Kellogg and demand an explanation? Did Kellogg explain that the caustic marks on Hoover were interpolated in the letters by forgers? Did such an interview between the rival cabinet officers take place only a few days before Coolidge told the world that Hoover would not be made secretary of state, if Kellogg should resign?

Interesting questions, which Baker, Hoover and Kellogg could answer. By answering, they would throw much light on a dark diplomatic secret which has led to endless whispering in Washington.

PASSAIC STRIKE FILM IS TRULY LABOR PRODUCT; PROFESSIONAL MOVIE PEOPLE COULDN'T DO IT

CHICAGO (FP).—It took over a month before the professional movie producers who had been engaged to make the Passaic strike film, to realised that the textile workers wanted pictures of actual happenings and not studio pipe dreams. When this finally penetrated, the professional producers quit and the strike organisation began grinding its own movie camera and piecing together its own continuity. The result is a labor film that has fascinated thousands of worker audiences in big cities and little towns all over the United States as well as in foreign lands.

Alfred Wagenknecht, the Passaic relief director, stopping in Chicago for a few days, recounted the history of the film. "We wanted a photographic record in movie form of the epochal Passaic textile strike," he said. "We wanted it not only as a vital bit of American labor history but to show the countless friends of the Passaic strikers all over the land what the struggle was about, what terrific police violence and other obstacles the workers had to face and also how effectively and carefully the generous relief contributions were put to use.

"So we engaged two professional producers from Boston for the job. They knew what we wanted but they hung around in their studio, planning fake scenes and talking of putting pretty girl strikers into the foreground of the film with lots of romance for the American movie public. We protested and told them to go to the picket lines and relief kitchens. But they did not like the idea of having their heads battered by police clubs for taking pictures of the lawless cossacks doing their stuff, and so we had to get rid of them.

Workers Got True Picture.

"We then bought a movie camera and a projector, got together a staff from the strikers and photographed the real happenings. It was dangerous but it was genuine adventure, not the carnival of thrills carefully dolled up by Hollywood mathods. Romance was there too, in the hard fight of the striker families, young and old, parents and children, against the mill owners and their allies in the government, police and church.

"The result is the remarkable film that is still drawing large audiences in many places. Numbers of workers have seen it several times. It is now the principal source of relief funds for the Passaic workers, who have settled their strike with most of the mills but are now disastrously hit by unamployment."

The film headquarters are in the office of the Passaic local of the United Textile Workers, 734 Main Ave., Passaic, N. J. The Chicago office, where bookings are also made, is managed by Natalia Rogers, Room 48, 106 N. LaSalle St.

Thousand Acre Hunting Preserve Menaced When Woods Fire Creeps Near

The shooting lodge of Edward F. Hutton, millionaire New York stock broker, five miles south of Riverhead, L. I., was endangered by a woods fire yesterday. A hose company from the Riverhead department extinguished the fire before it reached the buildings. The lodge is located on a 1,000 acre hunting preserve at Red Creek.

The district attorney of Suffolk county has instituted an investigation of a fire Saturday night at the duck farm of Alexander B. Sozars.

Who is Behind the Prosecution of the Militant Needle Trades Workers?

Who Are Matthew Woll's Fellow Conspirators?

They Are Leaders of the National Civic Federation!

Woll is Acting President of the Labor Hating Civic Federation.

There is a United Front of the Special American Federation of Labor Committee, headed by Vice President Woll, and the National Civic Federation, dominated by the most powerful capitalists in the United States.

Matthew Woll is the connecting link in the conspiracy. With him in the Civic Federation is:

GEORGE B. CORTELYOU, President and Trustee of the Consolidated Gas Company of New York, 130 E. 15th St.
Director of Astoria Light, Heat and Power Co.
The Director, All Electric Illuminating Co.
Director, Bronx Gas and Electric Co.
Director, Brush Electric Illuminating Co. of N. Y.
Director, Central Union Gas Co.
Director, Consolidated Telegraph and Electrical Subway Co.
Director, East River Gas Co. of Long Island City.
Director, Municipal Lighting Co.
Director, National Coke and Coal Co.
Director, National Surety Co.
Director, New Amsterdam Gas Co.
Vice Pres., New England Conservatory of Music (also trustee).
Director, New York and Queens Electrical Light and Power Co.
Director, New York and Queens Gas Co.
Director, New York Edison Co.
Director, Northern Union Gas Company.
Director, New York Life Insurance Co.
Director, Northern Westchester Lighting Co.
Director, Peekskill Lighting and Railroad Co.
Director, Standard Gas Light Co.
Director, United Electric Light and Power Co.
Director, Westchester Lighting Co.

ADDITIONAL MAY DAY GREETINGS

GREETINGS
from
A DAILY WORKER Reader.

MAY DAY GREETINGS
from
Street Nucleus 31
CHICAGO, ILL.

Greetings
from an Oppressed Worker
E. Michalowich.

DEFENSE BAZAAR NEWS

Great preparations are being made for the Defense Bazaar to be held in the Star Casino, May 12-13-14-15. The Bazaar must be given attention by all workers' organizations, individuals and storekeepers.

The names of new organizations that have decided to participate in the Bazaar are reaching the office daily while packages are constantly being received from friends. Not only is the work being done in New York, but the Bazaar is attracting attention in all parts of the country as well as Canada, from where articles have already been received.

Thanks to the devoted work of large groups of workers, it will be possible to sell all sorts of merchandise at half price.

Vegetarian Club Restaurant.

A meeting of the Vegetarian Club will be held next Tuesday, 51 E. 110th Street. Arrangements will be made to organize a vegetarian restaurant at the Bazaar. The restaurant will be opened with a lecture on the relation of vegetarianism to the class struggle.

Workingclass Housewives to Help.

The United Council of Workingclass Housewives has issued an appeal to all workingclass women to join the Women's Defence battalion for the purpose of making articles and collecting articles for the Bazaar.

THE FIRST OF MAY
Is the Appropriate Day
for Jewish Workers to Begin Reading
the
JEWISH DAILY
FREIHEIT

The only militant Jewish Labor Paper in America.

For first hand information on the Labor Movement in America and the world over—read the Freiheit daily.

For a thorough understanding of the outstanding political events—read the Freiheit daily.

For detailed reports of the Communist Movement in every country of the world—read the Freiheit daily.

For enlightened reports on the only government of workers and peasants, the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics—read the Freiheit daily.

For a better understanding of the political machinations of the American plutocracy—read the Freiheit daily.

For an intelligent comprehension of the powerful left wing movement in the Trade Unions the world over—read the Freiheit daily.

A staff of correspondents in all large centers of Europe. Read the Freiheit —Read it daily.

Jewish Daily Freiheit
30 Union Square
New York, N. Y.

Illinois Bloods Farmers To Save Banks During Big Financial Crisis

TOKYO, May 9.—The Bank of Formosa, which was suspended three weeks ago, reopened its doors for business today following passage of legislation designed to relieve the Japanese financial crisis.

The acute economic crisis in the affairs of the bank and its many branches resulted in a change of cabinets several weeks ago.

The Diet, in special session, voted 200,000,000 yen for the bank's relief. The government is in bad financial condition and increased taxation is contemplated to rest on the peasantry.

Workers of Chicago Order Coolidge to Leave China Alone

(By Federated Press)

CHICAGO—(FP)—With wild acclaim and unanimous assent the crowded Hands-Off-China mass meeting in the Ashland Auditorium May 6 ordered the following telegram sent to President Coolidge:

"This mass meeting of 3000 Chicago citizens, having listened to addresses on the situation in China by Jane Addams, Dr. John A. Lapp and others, together with messages from Clarence Darrow and President John Fitzpatrick of the Chicago Federation of Labor, urgently requests that you

"1. Withdraw all American armed forces from China.

"2. Direct the state department to use no other kinds of pressure in any attempt to favor one Chinese group, and that you

"3. Proclaim to the world that the policy of the American government is to intervene in no manner in the attempt of the Chinese people to work out their destiny and that you are ready to recognize whatever government the Chinese people choose to establish in power. (Signed) Carl Haessler, chairman."

China Marches.

Immense enthusiasm greeted the clear and forceful speech of Chao-Ting Chi of the Chicago Kuomintang. "China," he exclaimed, "marches toward freedom at the head of the oppressed peoples of the east. India, Koren, the Philippines and the Negro races will follow in revolt against imperialist tyranny. The Chinese liberation movement is a mass struggle of the awakening workers and peasants against both foreign and native oppressors."

Hindu Speaks.

The rebel spirit of India was expressed by Haridar Mazumdar.

Margaret Haley of the Chicago Teachers Federation spoke wittily and uncompromisingly against British and American imperialism and for the Chinese cause. Manuel Gomez of the All-American Anti-Imperialist league outlined the relations of the western imperialisms and their common hostility to the Chinese Nationalist movement and the Soviet Union.

Clarence Darrow, unable to appear in person, sent the following message:

"I believe that every people in the world should be left free to work out its own problems. The modern western world with its Nordic conceit has established its own courts in China and the east, simply because it had the power. As well might the eastern world establish their own courts in Great Britain and America. The American gunboats have no business in Chinese rivers.

"The Anglo-Saxon people who invest in foreign bonds should take their chances in collecting foreign loans and investments, as other countries take their chances here. The missionaries should claim no special privileges.

